Almost all the Asiatic traditions closely resemble the Biblical account. Berosus in his Chaldee history (B. C. 260) speaks of ten kings, who appear to correspond to the ten patriarchs in Genesis before the flood. The last of these kings was called Xisuthrus. Berosus relates that "Kronos appeared to Xisuthrus in a dream and warned him that all men would be destroyed by a deluge on the 15th of the month Daesios and commanded him to write down all the learning and science of men and to hide it in the sun city Siparis and then to build a ship and enter it along with his family and relatives and nearest friends and to take into it with him food and drink and beasts and winged fowl. When he was asked whither he was about to sail, he was bidden to reply, 'To the gods to pray them that men may prosper.'" Xisuthrus did as he was commanded, and when the flood showed signs of abating he sent out three birds in succession. The first and second came back, the latter with mud on its feet, but the third returned not. Soon after this the ship was stranded on a mountain, and Xisuthrus disembarked with his family, offered thanks to the gods and vanished. Subsequently the remaining survivors heard his voice in the heavens, bidding them fear God and to take his writings out of Siparis and from them instruct men.

An Exception.

A New York banker tells the story of two Irishmen who discussed the "nationality of the American states." Said Pat, "Faith an' be jabbers if this grate counthry ain't overrun wid th' Irish, an' yit out of all th' states in th' Union not wan has an Irish name." "Sure an' yer wrong," replied Mike. "What's the matter wid O'Regon?"

Ancestors.

"My ancestors," said the man whose name happened to be Endicott, "came over in the Mayflower."

"And mine," observed the man whose name was Adams, "were the original occupants of the garden of Eden."—Chicago Tribune.

Enthusiasm.

Nothing is so contagious as enthusiasm. It is the real allegory of the tale of Orpheus; it moves stones; it charms brutes. Enthusiasm is the genius of sincerity, and truth accomplishes no victories without it.—Bulwer.

To make knowledge valuable you must have the cheerfulness of wisdom.—Emerson.

Looking Forward.

"Progress is becoming extremely rapid."

"Yes, indeed. In the year 3000 or so lightning will have to get a move on if it wants to be considered fast."

Lucky Patients.

"Did you ever make any mistakes, doctor?"

"Well, I've had several patients get well that I expected would die."

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE
PATENTS
TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS,
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

Remember the dates-Sept. 3,4,5,6,7, and 8th.!

That's the Holiday Week of the Year
—The week of the Great MINNESOTA STATE FAIR.

Opening of the $100,000 Livestock Ampitheater on Monday morning Sept. 3rd, Dedication adress by James J. Hill.
Dan Patch and Cresceus, the two fastest stallions in the world, to go against their world's records Monday.
The [illegible] Livestock Exhibition of the world-All the week.
Three great [illegible] of Pure Bred Cattle in the Amphitheater daily.
Livestock [illegible] Sensational Racing each day.
[illegible] Spectacular Fireworks. Racing. [illegible] $5,000 Pacing Race on St. Paul Day. [illegible] days—Every afternoon of fair [illegible] evening. Demonstrations of all kinds of farm and dairy [illegible] Premiums and Purses $65,644 50.

Half Fare Railroad Rates.

Tickets on Sale Saturday Sep. 1 Good returning to Leave Cities until Monday Sep. 10th.

C. N. COSGROVE, Pres. E. W. RANDALL, Sec'y.

THE FIRST
STATE BANK, OF
THIEF RIVER FALLS, WILL LOAN YOU THE Money To Make Your Second Payment, or to make your final proof. Give us a call, as we give the best rates
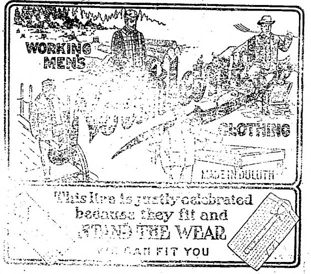
On Farm Loans.

Stephen Singer, Edward Singer,
SINGER BROS.
Dealers In,



WORKING MENS
CLOTHING
MADE IN DULUTH
This line is justly celebrated because they fit and STAND THE WEAR
WE CAN FIT YOU

Groceries, flour & feed.
Dry Goods, Boots & Shoes.
HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR FARM PRODUCE
Rhoda, Minn.

NEW STORE,
AT ANTON MINNESOTA.
Dry Goods, Groceries, Flour & Feed.
EXCLUSIVE [illegible] THE CELEBRATED DE- [illegible] THE ELEVEN TOWNS.
[illegible] Taken in Exchange For Goods.
GIVE ME A CALL.
Located at Anton post office, on the Red Lake River, Eight miles east of Thief River Falls.
Christ Larsen, Proprietor.

The Whipping of Ned

By PHILIP VERRILL MIGHELS.

"So you're going up to Garnet Peak to lick your brother?" said the owner of Paradise hotel, speaking to a great fellow who had just arrived. "Excuse the question, Wally, but ain't this the second time you've come back to do the whipping of Ned?"

"Third time, Zach," corrected the traveler. "He has licked me twice since I started to grow. He used to lick me regular every time we fought. Darn him! I always said I'd be coming back some day to lick him good for all the thumpings he has given me, and I reckon I'm big enough now to do the racket up to the handle. When does the stage start for Garnet Peak?"

"In 15 minutes," said Zach.

Over the sagebrush ridges and down through the barren canyons the stage went winding monotonously. The road was narrow, the scenery grey and dull. Wallace Rocklin rode on the box with the driver till he felt himself growing drowsy. As the sun disappeared he climbed down, propped himself in a corner of the coach, and went to sleep.

As the horses plodded sturdily around the last of the curves, before the level of the summit should be won, a deep voice broke the stillness:

"Stop. Throw up your hands!"

With a sudden jolt that heaved Rocklin forward in his seat, the coach ceased to grind the sand.

"Now, toss down the company's express," ordered the voice, "and don't you tackle no fooling. Do you hear?" The masked figure came nearer, with his weapon held in readiness for use.

The treasure box came into sight without delay, and then crashed down in the brush. At that instant a form shot from the coach and hurled itself recklessly against the robber and his gun, dashing the weapon to the rocks, where it struck and exploded a barrel. The report rent the air, and the horses, plunging in fright, made a dash for the summit and disappeared with the stage.

Wrapped in a savage embrace, the two men battled in the throes of deadly combat. Clutching and heaving, they scuffled across the road, with arms tense with effort, their legs as rigid as pillars of steel.

The robber's fingers dug in the shoulder of his foe, while the wrist and arm worked underneath the chin. He suddenly gave Rocklin's head a backward jolt that nearly broke his neck.

Pushing the robber sharply to the rear against the hill, Rocklin heaved him off his feet and crashed him heavily down on a rock.

A crunching of ribs and a growl of rage and pain aroused an added fury in the robber. In a spasm of movements he dragged his foe to the earth on his breast, and over and over they rolled. Sure of his victory now, and terrible in his calm, Rocklin dragged his antagonist's arm across and under the latter's back; and he heard the snap when the bone was cracked in the shoulder.

Again the bellow of rage burst forth. The hand that was free dug a piece of granite from the sand and thumped it on Rocklin's ear. The latter trembled. By the greatest effort he kept his senses from reeling; he fastened his clutch on the robber's throat with a wavering strength. The robber rolled him suddenly over. They were poised for an instant on a rocky ledge, and then, kicking loose, the man in the mask gave the other a thrust that toppled him over the plunge. Down he rolled on a barren declivity and disappeared in an avalanche of earth and rocks.

When his eyes slowly opened Rocklin found the sun shining in his face. He lay on the earth blinking, grimly painted with patches of blood.

It was late afternoon when at last he came to the ranch of a German in the canyon.

For more than a week, as a convalescent, Rocklin limped about in the sunshine of Springmeyer's place.

"I've got to go to Garnet Peak," he announced every day; and at last, with many a clap on the back, he went.

The climb was steep, the afternoon sultry. He found himself willing to sit on the boulders often to gather his strength. "I don't know whether I can lick him now or not," he muttered; "but I reckon he wouldn't make me fight it out to-night."

He made his way about the ridge. It was now less than a mile to Garnet Peak, and the slope was pierced here and there by the tunnels of the miners. The sun had gone down when he approached one of the claims, and glanced about at old familiar features. When he came to the mine he stood on the dump, oddly saddened. The mine had caved.

He knocked presently on the door of a cabin. There was no reply. Responding to his pressure, the door swung open on the darkness of the room.

"Ned," he said. "Ned Rocklin . . . It's me—brother Wally." His eyes grew accustomed to the shadows. He avoided the stools, a table, and a box, making his way toward the bunk. Suddenly he halted; a pair of feverish eyes were gazing from the blankets. "Why, Ned," said he, "are you sick, old man? What's the matter?"

The man in the bunk closed his eyes. Rocklin hurried to light a candle, and to run for water. He mixed up a drink and pressed it to the swollen lips.

"Ned," he murmured; "don't you know me, Ned?"

A feeble smile illumined the face on the pillow; the eyes came open in a wistful appeal. Slowly the man drew his hand from beneath the blankets, and gave a tremulous pressure to the rough, big hand of his brother.

"Are you sick, old man?" Wallace repeated, anxiously. "Is it fever, Ned?"

The other shook his head slowly. "Smashed," he whispered.

"Smashed?—in the tunnel?—the cave in the tunnel?"

His brother closed his eyes as before.

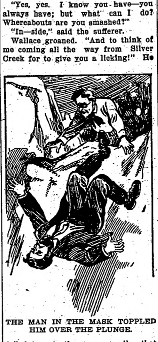
"Oh, Ned, and you a-lying here alone, starving! Hasn't anybody helped you—nobody come?"

"Been—too much—by—myself," Ned whispered painfully.

"Yes, yes. I know you have—you always have; but what can I do? Whereabouts are you smashed?"

"In—side," said the sufferer.

Wallace groaned. "And to think of me coming all the way from Silver Creek for to give you a licking!" He failed to note the weary smile that flitted across his brother's face as he pulled off his coat to go to work.



THE MAN IN THE MASK TOPPLED HIM OVER THE PLUNGE.

A fire was soon blazing in the chimney. "Shall I go for a doctor? Is there anyone in camp?" Wallace inquired eagerly. "Have you got any liniment? What about a doctor?"

"Don't want—him—now," said the feeble voice.

"Darn — hard — luck — for more—than—a—year," said the voice of Ned again, finally. Wallace removed his hand.

"You ought not try to talk," said he; "you haven't got the strength."

Ned merely turned his face a trifle to the wall. "Me and—Lucy—was—married," he slowly continued, "three—years—ago this—month."

"You and Lucy?" Wallace started to his feet.

"Yes, Wall. . . .We—loved—each other—a—heap. I went—home—and stayed—several—months. Left her—there on—the farm. Garnet—was too—rough—for a good—woman. I thought—I'd—make my—pile before—a year."

"She—wrote about—the boy," resumed Ned, in evident agony, "and—I sent—her—all I—had. But my—best—claim was—jumped, and—the company—took my—bullion—at the mill—for what—I'd borrowed. They—took a—thousand—for five—hundred—debt, and said—I—owed more."

"The lying thieves!" broke in Wallace.

"And so—it—went. Lucy—begged to—come. Boy—was — drooping — needed—Califor—ny air."

"When —her — letter — came, two — weeks ago — saying — the — boy was — going to — die — if he—didn't —git—away—from—there," he whispered, "I reckon—I—must have—lost my—sense."

"Poor little Lucy!" said Rocklin.

"Amen," replied his brother. "I lost—my—sense. Shake—my—hand, Wally," he murmured. "You—don't mind—looking—out—after Lucy and—the—boy?"

"Don't, Ned, don't go talking like that," pleaded Wallace. "I'm going to git you well."

"If — you'll — only — put your—hand—on my—head. . . Thank—you—Wally. . . . I must—have—lost—my—sense. But—I—never—touched—the—box. I—left—it—by—the road, when—I—came—to—my—sense—."

"I don't understand," said Wallace.

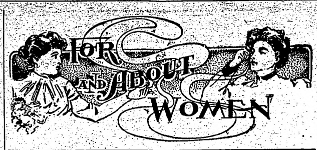
A feeble smile flickered across the haggard face. "You—licked—me—Wally," Ned whispered faintly, "licked—me fair—at the—summit—the only—time—I—ever—turned—robber."

"What, you!—oh, I didn't know it was you!" cried Wallace, suddenly. "I wouldn't have fought it. I had knowed. Ned—look up, old man—look up. Don't you remember the lickings you've given me? Ned—can't you speak? Don't—don't do that—I'll give you a thousand—I'll do anything if you'll git up and lick me again. Ned—"

"Licked—me — fair — and — square. God b-l-e-s-s—y-o-u," said the faltering whisper, and the faintest of smiles crept to and remained upon the motionless lips.

The candle sputtered, flared a second—and the light was gone for ever.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)



OF AID TO HOSTESS

"King's Daughters" Give a Measuring Party—A Forehanded Hostess—Unique Engagement Announcement—Choosing Partners.

A Measuring Party.

Two young women, who belong to a circle of "King's Daughters," have issued invitations for a unique affair to be given at the home of one of the girls. The jingle given below explains the nature of the entertainment. There will be a short programme and daintily served refreshments.

A "Measuring" party is given for you;
'Tis something novel, something new.
We young ladies ask all to come,
And each one bring to aid us some:
Two cents for every foot you're tall,
We'll measure you on door or wall;
An extra cent for each inch give,
And thereby show how high you live.
With music and song, refreshment
and pleasure,
We'll meet one and all at our party of "Measure."

A wise hostess was seen making a tour of the "favor" counter before departing for her summer home far away from the haunts of men, but where she always entertained the most delightful house parties. She has the reputation of being able to produce at once any article that may be desired, no matter how impossible it may be to obtain it. This is the secret: In a closet to which she alone holds the key there is a supply of the most unusual things, and the last thing she does before leaving town is to consult a list, which has been many months in making, and here are a few of the items:

Bottle of gold ink and one of white.
Extra tennis balls.
Dinner cards.
Favors for "Jack's" college dinner.
"Jap" things for the canoe club dance.
Snapping mottos for "Polly"s birthday.
Candles of all sizes.
Prizes for "bridge" party.
Extra fans and lanterns.
Ball room pencils and programmes.
Bolts of "baby" ribbon.
Tissue paper napkins.
Masks.
Supply of scissors and paper doilies of all sizes.

This list solved the problem of why this wonderful little woman never made distracted trips to the cross-roads store, how she was ready for any scheme proposed by the young people, why she could make the children forget that the day was rainy, and why she was called the "most popular hostess on the island."

To Choose Partners.

For choosing partners try matching animal crackers, which are hidden throughout the rooms. Matching flowers is another pretty way when the company is not too large to have enough varieties of flowers. Have two blossoms alike; carnations of all shades, roses, violets, pansies, lilies, etc.

Another way is to put the initials or the first name of the girls in envelopes and pass them to the men; the cracker alphabet letters to be obtained from the large grocery stores may be used. Of course this method is only of use in a crowd well known to each other. A jolly way to pair off is to play the old-fashioned game of silent "blind man's buff." Make a circle, blindfold one at a time, place in the center with a cane, then the one the blind man touches is the partner. Of course it is arranged so that a "boy" points to a "girl" and vice versa.

MADAME MERRI.

The Prettiest of Doilies

Chain 6, join.

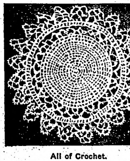
First row—Chain 3 for first treble crochet, 19 more, making 20 t c in ring, join.

Second row—2 t c in every one on last row, making 40 in all, join.

Third row—Increase again on 3d st, join. This gives 18 widenings, which are continued to the 13th row, when they are decreased enough to keep the work smooth, the last row having almost no widenings. This finishes the center, which has 15 rows.

Insertion—Fourteen double crochet along the edge of center turn, ch 10, fasten back in 7th st, turn, half fill loop with 6 d c, equally separated by 2 picots, (made thus: ch 5, fasten in 1st with s c) turn, ch 16, fasten back in 7th st on edge of center turn, fill loop with 14 d c equally separated by 6 picots, finish filling 1st loop with 6 d c and 2 picots, make 7 d c along edge, turn, ch 16, fasten in top of 1st loop, turn, fill loop with 14 d c and 6 picots, as at first. Repeat around mat.

Now ch 11, and catch in highest picot of each loop, all around insertion, make 2 rows of plain t c, widening enough to keep the work smooth, then make the border.



All of Crochet.

Border—Fourteen d c on edge of mat, turn, ch 10, fasten back in 7th st, turn, half fill loop with 6 d c and 2 picots (as in the insertion), turn, ch 16, fasten back in 7th st on edge, turn, fill loop with 14 d c and 6 picots, finish filling 1st loop with 6 d c and 2 picots, 7 d c on edge, turn, ch 16, fasten in top of 1st loop, turn, one-third fill with 2 d c, picot, 2 d c, picot, 1 d c, turn, ch 12, fasten back in 10th st (or top of opposite loop), turn, half fill with 2 d c, picot, 2 d c, picot, 1 d c, turn, ch 16, fasten back in 10th st, turn, fill loop with 14 d c and 6 picots, finish filling next loop.

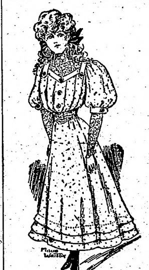
Then make 2 d c, picot, 2 d c, picot, 1 d c in next unfinished loop, turn, ch 16, fasten in top of last finished loop, turn, 2 d c, picot, 1 d c in loop, turn, ch 12, fasten in top of opposite loop, turn, 12 d c and 6 picots in loop, finish next loop with 1 d c, picot, 2 d c, picot, 2 d c, picot, 2 d c, picot, 2 d c, then last loop with 1 d c, picot, 2 d c, picot, 2 d c. This completes one scallop, of which there should be 19 for this doily. The last rows of treble crochet on both center and outer edge should have few or no widening, and even lap a little, as otherwise the lace would be too full, in which case a skipped stitch would be necessary at each scallop.

A PRETTY AND GIRLISH FROCK.

Of Cream Challis Spotted in Pale Blue, Lace and Silk Used.

This is a pretty girlish dress for summer wear; it is made in a cream challis finely spotted in pale blue. The full skirt is gathered into the waistband and is trimmed at the foot with three crossfolds of the delaine.

The bodice has a yoke and lower part of sleeves of cream lace over silk; the delaine is tucked where it joins the yoke, and is stitched down for a few inches. The center forms a box-pleat, ornamented with fancy buttons, though the actual fastening of bodice is down the center back. The yoke is outlined with straps of silk ornamented with buttons; a strap is also placed round the sleeve below the puff. Waistband of silk.



A Neat Model.

Materials required: 6½ yards delaine, ¾ yard lace, 1½ yard silk, 9 buttons, and 1⅛ yard bodice lining.

Letter of Acknowledgment.

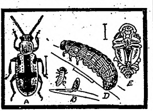
A bride writes a cordial note to each person who is so kind as to send a gift. If a present is received from a husband and wife, write to the wife and include a mention of her husband in expressing your appreciation, viz.: "It was very kind of you and Mr. B. to think of me and to send so charming a gift, etc."

HORTICULTURE

SPOTTED ASPARAGUS BEETLE.

Insect Which Does Much Damage to the Plants—How to Fight It.

One of the pests that affect the asparagus plants in the middle west is the Twelve-spotted Asparagus beetle. The insect is red with 12 black spots. The eggs are laid on the asparagus early in the spring and after hatching do a great deal of damage to the young plants. In the accompanying cut after Chittenden, of the department of agriculture, some of the important stages of growth are illustrated; a shows the beetle; b, the egg; c, newly hatched larva; d, full grown larva; and e, pupa. All are very much enlarged.



The Asparagus Beetle, Larva, Etc.

In treating to exterminate the pest, dust the young plants when wet with dew, with plaster of Paris mixed with some arsenical poison. During hot weather frequently all that is necessary is to simply brush the larvae from the plants. It is a good thing ordinarily to allow fowls to run in the asparagus beds. It is generally advised when cutting the asparagus to leave a few shoots, for beetles will deposit their eggs on these and they may then be cut down and destroyed.

WELL-FED TREES.

They Come Into Bearing Later, But Last Longer Than Those Underfed.

It is a matter of common observation that fruit trees on thin soils come into bearing early, exhibit a strong tendency toward fruitfulness, for a comparatively short time, and die, and that trees on good, strong land come into bearing as a rule somewhat later, grow to much greater size, and live for a very much greater number of years, says H. J. Waters, director of the Wisconsin experiment station. It is safe to say that well fed trees may have more than double the number of productive years than those which are underfed usually have.

The fact is strikingly shown by the results of an experiment conducted by the New Jersey experiment station with peaches, in which it was observed that on the unmanured land the crops secured at the end of eight years were so small as to very materially reduce the average for the whole productive period, while in the case of the manured land the average for the entire period was not only not reduced, but very materially increased. Thus, the crops secured from the manured trees, after those receiving no manure had practically ceased to bear, were greater proportionately than those secured previous to that time. That is to say, that the properly fed trees were at their very height of productiveness at the time when the unmanured trees had practically ceased to bear.

AGING TREES BEFORE PLANTING.

Can Be Done by the Farmer to Advantage If He Economizes on Space.

In my orchard I started to test a plan that I am working out much more extensively on my own farm, that of growing the orchard before I plant it out, says A. Sulley, of Connecticut. This is, instead of planting three or four-year-old trees in the orchard, put them in a nursery row about two feet apart and trim about the same as if planted in the orchard. Grow them two years, pull up, trim again, and again plant them, giving them more space, and at the end of two more years take to the orchard. I have taken this experiment far enough to feel sure that I can grow 1,000 trees on a quarter of an acre at less expense than in the field and have the latter clear to improve or crop in full. Do not confound this work with the old idea of bearing age trees. They must be handled on or near the farm where they are to be used, as the bulk will prevent shipping them. It is exactly the same process as is used by many ornamental stock growers, and for the same purpose.

Blight on Strawberries.

Leaf blight, or rust, of the strawberry is familiar to everyone. The disease occurs throughout the entire country, making its appearance in early spring in the form of whitish or purplish spots on the leaves. Eventually the entire leaf dries up into a brown mass. It is controlled by the familiar mentioned formula. If attack has been pronounced the preceding year the spraying needs to be done early. After fruit is off clean up beds, burn leaves and cultivate.

Need Cultivation.

The old as well as the newly set raspberry plantation needs cultivation. For the reds which are given to sending out new canes, we like to plow them with that almost discarded bar plow, throwing the dirt from them and afterwards working down the middle with a cultivator.

How Emperor William Is Battling Against a Dangerous Heredity.

Emperor William's father died of cancer of the throat.

Emperor William himself had infantile paralysis, and has had to struggle with many infirmities.

It has been whispered that he himself is troubled with the same malady which carried off his father. Royal blood is unfortunately most generally deteriorated blood. Emperor William knows this as well as anybody, and is doing his best to eradicate the bad blood from himself and his family by the adoption of simple life principles.

Through the visit of a countryman of his to Battle Creek, Michigan, while in this country, visiting the World's Fair in Chicago in 1893, Emperor William became acquainted with the Battle Creek idea of simple living and has to a large extent adopted the methods in his family. His wife and children live the simple life and take Battle Creek light baths. Their uncle, King Edward, also has these baths installed in his Windsor and Buckingham Palaces for the use of himself and Queen Alexandra.

Among other things GOOD HEALTH, the oldest health journal in the world, tells about the Battle Creek idea and the simple life. Every number is brimful of up-to-date ideas. Sample copy 10 cents. One dollar a year.

If you will cut this out and send to GOOD HEALTH PUBLISHING CO., Battle Creek, Mich., with a quarter you will receive a trial three months' subscription to this handsome illustrated monthly health magazine. Write to-day.

Rice Eaters.

In China and its dependencies, with a population of 400,000,000, or 25 per cent. of the total population of the world, rice is the principal food supply. The same may be said also of India, with its population of 275,000,000, and Japan, with its 40,000,000. In addition to these it is a chief article of diet with other peoples of Asia and Africa, whose population is estimated at 100,000,000. The total reaches 815,000,000, or 50 per cent. of the total population of the earth.—Boston Globe.

Butler's Stolen Fee.

The late Hon. Joseph Q. Hoyt, formerly of Boston, when a lad attended a circus and his silver watch was stolen. The supposed thief was arrested, and was defended by Benjamin F. Butler, who proved he did not take the watch, and never was at the circus.

During the civil war Hoyt was introduced to Butler at a dinner at the Astor house, in New York, and the latter remarked: "This is the first time I have had the pleasure of meeting you."

"Oh, no!" said Hoyt, who then related the circus incident.

"Was that you, Hoyt?" asked Butler, and, being answered in the affirmative, Butler laughed and said: "That was an awful good watch, Hoyt. That is all I got for defending the thief."

POPE'S STRONG COMMON SENSE.

Pontiff Refused to Be Made an Invalid by a Pen Prick.

The following story is told of Pius X. by the Rome correspondent of the London Pall Mall Gazette:

The other day he was writing at his desk, when his pen began to splutter. He decided to change it, but it stuck, and it was only after a strong pull that it came out, promptly pricking him under his nail, for which probably he would have followed the natural impulse to put it in his mouth, and we would have heard nothing more of the incident had there not been an ink-stain also. His exclamation brought his secretary, who washed away the blood with disinfectants, to obviate microbes, and bound it up, at the same time suggesting a doctor's visit.

"No, no," said the pontiff laughing, "it would be known to the press at once; I should be killed and buried by them before he could arrive!" Those surrounding him would have liked to make the slight mishap an excuse for stopping the audiences, but Pius X. was somewhat annoyed at the suggestion, saying, "Enough, enough! What is a pen-prick! You make me ridiculous. I have not ceased to be a man and become a baby!" So he was present at the ceremony in commemoration of his predecessor, making jokes about his bandaged finger.

SALLOW FACES

Often Caused by Coffee Drinking.

How many persons realize that coffee so disturbs digestion that it produces a muddy, yellow complexion?

A ten days' trial of Postum Food Coffee has proven a means, in thousands of cases, of clearing up bad complexions.

A Washn. young lady tells her experience:

"All of us—father, mother, sister and brother—had used tea and coffee for many years until finally we all had stomach troubles more or less.

"We were all sallow and troubled with pimples, breath bad, disagreeable taste in the mouth, and all of us simply so many bundles of nerves.

"We didn't realize that coffee was the cause of the trouble until one day we ran out of coffee and went to borrow some from a neighbor. She gave us some Postum and told us to try that.

"Although we started to make it, we all felt sure we would be sick if we missed our strong coffee, but we were forced to try Postum and were surprised to find it delicious.

"We read the statements on the pkg., got more and in a month and a half you wouldn't have known us. We were all able to digest our food without any trouble, each one's skin became clear, tongues cleaned off and nerves in fine condition. We never use anything now but Postum. There is nothing like it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville." "There's a reason."

LOOK OVER WASTE.

PECULIAR DUTIES OF WASHINGTON TREASURY EMPLOYES.

An Discarded Paper Gathered up and Subjected to Systematic Search —Large Sums of Money Have Thus Been Saved.

Any one who enters the treasury department at the extreme northern door on Fifteenth street can, when he gets at the foot of the short flight of granite steps and glances into the first room on the left, observe the manipulation of the waste paper, gathered up each day in the treasurer's office and carried from below to undergo examination before it is sold to be remade into new paper, says the Washington Post.

The presiding genius of this particular waste-paper room, as it is called, is Mrs. Mary Warren, a pleasant-faced and courteous woman, who has been fingering waste paper for at least a third of a century. She has the assistance of two other women, and the work is by no means light. "Our fingers sometimes get very sore," said Mrs. Warren, "and we have to use glycerine very often when the day's work is ended to keep our hands soft and our digits limber."

Sometimes papers of much value and money of large amounts are found in the discarded envelopes that find their way into the waste-paper room. Mrs. Warren herself received a promotion some years ago for discovering and promptly turning in a heavy amount of money that had been heedlessly left in its inclosure. Checks have frequently been found among the waste papers, envelopes, and boxes that are dumped into the large wicker baskets preparatory to examination by the trio of diligent searchers in their humble little room in the treasury basement.

Sometimes on a pay day, a clerk when he gets his little envelope, in a hurry to get out and "blow in" some of his cash, fails to extract the full amount. He tears open his envelope, thinks he has got all of his salary, when he has not. The sweepers find the envelope on the floor, chuck it into the waste basket, and down it goes with an abundance of other litter to Mrs. Warren. She or one of her painstaking assistants, finds it and the man who lost it gets it back and is so happy that he feels like writing a sonnet in honor of the finder.

"We don't find as many checks or greenbacks now as was the case some years ago. When we do it can easily be traced to carelessness on the part of some one," said the chief of the room. "In every case it is an accident, but such accidents can hardly be overlooked more than once, and the careless employe who is responsible is duly cautioned. The fact that such mishaps are so infrequent now does not in the least lessen our responsibility. We folks down here handle every piece of paper conscientiously, and if any sort of valuable matter comes here in the waste it won't escape coming to light under our scrutiny.

"It strikes me as something of a misnomer to call all this stuff waste," Mrs. Warren continued. "Nothing goes to waste. The sale of the paper brings cash into the treasury. Even the sealing wax that is melted upon the strings about big envelopes is utilized. I believe it is re-used in the preparation of cement. The thick paper boxes are all examined and go out into the world again to perform some new service."

In addition to the "waste room," which is under the supervision of the treasurer, there are two others in the department. They are under the eagle eye of Superintendent Rhodes. The duties are similar to those just referred to, but if any of them is more important than the other it must be that of the treasurer's office, for there it is located in close proximity to the counting room, the cash room, and the great vaults, with their silver and gold and greenbacks and bonds and millions of the nation's wealth.

Constituent Wanted Much.

Senator Nelson, of Minnesota, claims to number among his constituents the American citizen who has the most primitive ideas as to the power and duties of members of congress. This voter, who lives in Sleepy Eye, wrote Mr. Nelson, saying: "When you go to the capital the next time please go to the pension office and get my pension increase pushed through, and then see if the fish commission will give us some tront seed up here. Same time see the postmaster general and have Nils Swenson made postmaster at Koday, and if you see him, tell Secretary Wilson we all up here want plenty new cabbage next spring. Next time go in attorney general's office and poke up Moody to get Halvor Halvors out of jail for selling whisky to Indians. That's all now."

For Posterity's Sake.

"Weary, why don't yer ever do no work?"

"I'm t'inkin' o' my descendants, Raggsy."

"Wot d'yer mean?"

"Fur be it from me to do any act that'll keep 'em from boastin' that the founder of their fambly wuz a gent of leisure."

Without Prejudice.

"Do you believe the horrible accusation that has been made against Senator Snide?"

"Sure I do. What is it?"

A "Meow-less" Cat.

Sometime, maybe, the scientist who has brought forth a stingless bee may be able to provide your neighbor with a barkless dog.

GOOD COLORS FOR HOUSES.

It is not generally known—not even among painters—why certain tints and colors wear much better than others on houses, and the knowledge of just what tints are best to use is, therefore, rather hazy.

One writer on paint, in a recent book, says that experiments seem to show that those colors which resist or turn back the heat rays of the sun, will protect a house better than those which allow these rays to pass through the film.

Thus red is a good color because it turns back, or reflects, the red rays, and the red rays are the hot rays.

In general, therefore, the warm tones are good and the cold tones are poor, so far as wear is concerned. In choosing the color of paint for your house, select reds, browns, grays and olives which, considering the various tones these tints will produce, will give a wide range from which to choose.

Avoid the harsh tints, such as cold yellows (like lemon), cold greens (like grass green, etc.), and the blues.

It must be understood that no virtue is claimed for tints in themselves, irrespective of the materials used in the paint. Any color will fade, and the paint will scale off, if adulterated white lead or canned paint is used, but if one is careful to use the best white lead—some well-known brand of a reliable manufacturer—and genuine linseed oil, the warm tints mentioned above will outwear the same materials tinted with the cold colors.

BOYISH MIND WAS WORKING.

Youngster on His First Sail Over the "Raging Main."

None of us ever quite forget those days—when our years were few—of dreaming about life on the raging main, when the imagination reveled in pirates and plunder from stately galleons and valorous deeds done on storm-swept decks, says a writer in the New York Times. Recollection of this period is, at any rate, sufficiently vivid, so that the remark of a small boy could contribute materially to the "gayety of nations," among the passengers on one of the excursion steamers running from Manhattan across the harbor to Coney Island.

The steamer made her way across the bay, dodging tugs and ferryboats—fortunately meeting no pirate craft. The passengers, escaping gladly from the city's heat, nibbled their sandwiches and enjoyed the breeze. The waiters moved about the deck with their trays. The boy, just from the inland town, where his life so far had been spent, sat rapt and wide-eyed. If one could but know fully the "mental content" from which sprang his words at last!

"Ma!" he cried, hoarsely, "tell me which one of 'em is the skipper!"

Another Dig at Powers.

A few days ago Gov. Cobb, of Maine, and Hon. W. R. Pattangall, prominent in politics in the same state, were together on a train. Mr. Pattangall is a lawyer and an editor, the writer of the humorous "Meddybemps Letters" appearing in his paper, the Machias Union.

In the course of conversation, Gov. Cobb remarked to Mr. Pattangall: "I don't see why you and Llwellyn Powers should be so extremely antagonistic to each other. Neither of you ever fails to give the other a rap when there is opportunity."

At this point an interested listener in the car leaned toward their chairs and asked: "Is it really true that ex-Gov. Powers is of Indian descent?"

"Well, the Indians deny it," Mr. Pattangall answered, in his inimitable manner.

Chinese Ingenuity.

Many attempts have been made to find an unfailing supply of pearls. The Chinese, it is said, have solved in their own way the problem of how to make a mussel "lay" pearls. Five or six small beads, made of mother-of-pearl and strung together by a thread, are dropped at the proper season into the open mouth of the shell. Two years later the mussel, when recoveredfi is made to disgorge the beads, now covered with a pearly crust, indistinguishable from the naturally made pearl.

MORE THAN MONEY.

A Minister Talks About Grape-Nuts.

"My first stomach trouble began back in 1895," writes a minister in Nebr., "resulting from hasty eating and eating too much. I found no relief from medicine and grew so bad that all food gave me great distress.

"It was that sore, gnawing, hungry feeling in my stomach that was so distressing and I became a sick man. Grape-Nuts was recommended as a food that could be easily digested.

"Leaving the old diet that had given me so much trouble, I began to eat Grape-Nuts with a little cream and sugar. The change effected in 24 hours was truly remarkable, and in a few weeks I was back to health again.

"My work as a minister calls me away from home a great deal, and recently I drifted back to fat meat and indigestible foods, which put me again on the sick list.

"So I went back to Grape-Nuts and cream and in four days I was put right again. The old dull headaches are gone, stomach comfortable, head clear, and it is a delight to pursue my studies and work.

"Grape-Nuts food is worth more than money to me, and I hope this may induce some sufferer to follow the same course I have."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason."

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Washington, D. C., August 20th.—A determined effort will be made at the next session of congress to prevent another appropriation for the free distribution of common garden seeds. Congress now expends $242,000 a year in giving away the commonest varieties of peas, beans, turnip, squash and pumpkin seeds. They are divided into 40,000,000 packets so that the packets cost about half a cent each. But as a large part of the appropriation is expended in clerk hire, packeting the seed, etc., the actual value of the seed in a packet is much less than half a cent. These packets are put up in packages of five packets, the total cost of the packages being about two cents each, and they are purchasable anywhere at five cents. Each member of congress gets 12,000 such packages, which he distributes to the voters of his district.

The farmers say that these packages contain so little seed as to be of no value to them, while the total appropriation, if expended in sending out really rare and valuable seed, or in maintaining a national agricultural college, or divided among the state agricultural colleges, would be of immense value to the farming interests. They therefore protest against the waste of public money. The seedsmen claim that as congress has already expended $5,000,000 in giving away turnip and watermelon seed, it is time it should give away saws, axes or hoes and give the seed trade a rest. Those who believe that congress should cut off this perquisite of its members now used for political purposes, are writing their senators and representatives, urging them to abolish the free seed distribution, and the National Grange, many state and local granges, horticultural, agricultural and other societies are adopting resolutions condemning it. Mr. William Wolff Smith, of Washington, D. C., has been selected to represent the opposition to the congressional free seed distribution, and is personally answering all inquiries concerning the same.

Pushing Cape to Cairo Line.

In a report in the London Times it is stated that the Cape to Cairo railway in South Africa has been opened so as to run over the Kafue river on a bridge which stands on 13 spans, each 100 feet, with pillars resting on a bed 16 feet under the water. Kafue river is 266 miles north of Victoria falls, and the distance from Cape Town is 1,908 miles. The railroad, however, is now at Broken hill, 347 miles beyond the falls, the line having been pushed on while the bridge was building over the Kafue river.

Ladies' Hats for Fall.

The new styles of Ladies' Hats are out and will be greatly admired by the fair sex. Plain felt shapes seem to predominate, although hats made of Velvets, Silks and Braids are extensively shown. Plain and Fancy Wings, Soft Aigrettes, Ostrich Tips and Plumes are used for trimmings. It is necessary for Dealers in even small towns to be able to supply their trade with up-to-date Millinery. The aggressive Jobbing and Manufacturing concerns recognize this fact. One of the foremost wholesale houses is the firm of Blumenfeld, Locher & Brown Co., known as the Progressive Millinery House of Milwaukee. Hats from this firm are always the latest in style, excellently made, but can be sold at prices within reach of the general public. Ask your saleslady to show you hats with the B. L. & B. Co., Monogram Label.

The school of experience is open 24 hours each day.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES color more goods, brighter colors, with less work than others.

Switzerland's Silk Production.

Few people probably suspect the extent to which Switzerland figures among the silk-producing countries of the world, which, so far as Europe is concerned, have always been supposed to be France and Italy. But Switzerland exports annually silk to the value of about $20,000,000, nearly all going to European countries.

DOCTOR CURED OF ECZEMA.

Maryland Physician Cures Himself—Dr. Fisher Says: "Cuticura Remedies Possess True Merit."

"My face was afflicted with eczema in the year 1897. I used the Cuticura Remedies, and was entirely cured. I am a practicing physician, and very often prescribe Cuticura Resolvent and Cuticura Soap in cases of eczema, and they have cured where other formulas have failed. I am not in the habit of endorsing patent medicines, but when I find remedies possessing true merit, such as the Cuticura Remedies do, I am broad-minded enough to proclaim their virtues to the world. I have been practicing medicine for sixteen years, and must say I find your Remedies A No. 1. You are at liberty to publish this letter. G. M. Fisher, M. D., Big Pool, Md., May 24, 1905."

Gen. Mercier in England.

Gen. Mercier, who has fled from Paris to England, where he hasn't been enthusiastically received, once delivered in the French senate an elaborate speech on the feasibility of invading England.

COULD NOT KEEP UP.

Broken Down, Like Many Another Woman, with Exhausting Kidney Troubles.

Mrs. A. Taylor, of Wharton, N. J., says: "I had kidney trouble in its most painful and severe form, and the torture I went through now seems to have been almost unbearable. I had back-ache, pains in the side and loins, dizzy spells and hot, feverish headaches. There were bearing-down pains, and the kidney secretions passed too frequently, and with a burning sensation. They showed sediment. I became discouraged, weak, languid and depressed, so sick and weak that I could not keep up. As doctors did not cure me I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and with such success that my troubles were all gone after using eight boxes, and my strength, ambition and general health is fine."

Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Considered the Proprieties.

A man in Dallas county tried to shuffle off this mortal coil by hanging himself with a blind bridle. His wife found him suspended from a rafter in the barn. He was wroth at her interposition, saying: "If you had let me alone a few minutes more I would have been in heaven." His wife replied: "Yes, and you would have looked nice running around over heaven with a blind bridle on, wouldn't you?"—Thockmorton (Tex.) Times.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children

Bears The Signature Of Chas. H. Fletcher. In Use For Over Thirty Years

The Kind You Have Always Bought

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

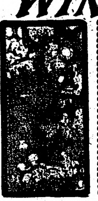
WINCHESTER

Smokeless Powder Shells

"LEADER" and "REPEATER"

The superiority of Winchester Smokeless Powder Shells is undisputed. Among intelligent shooters they stand first in popularity, records and shooting qualities. Always use them For Field or Trap Shooting.

Ask Your Dealer For Them.



THE LAXATIVE OF KNOWN QUALITY

There are two classes of remedies; those of known quality and which are permanently beneficial in effect, acting gently, in harmony with nature, when nature needs assistance; and another class, composed of preparations of unknown, uncertain and inferior character, acting temporarily, but injuriously, as a result of forcing the natural functions unnecessarily. One of the most exceptional of the remedies of known quality and excellence is the ever pleasant Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., which represents the active principles of plants, known to act most beneficially, in a pleasant syrup, in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to contribute their rich, yet delicate, fruity flavor. It is the remedy of all remedies to sweeten and refresh and cleanse the system gently and naturally, and to assist one in overcoming constipation and the many ills resulting therefrom. Its active principles and quality are known to physicians generally, and the remedy has therefore met with their approval, as well as with the favor of many millions of well informed persons who know of their own personal knowledge and from actual experience that it is a most excellent laxative remedy. We do not claim that it will cure all manner of ills, but recommend it for what it really represents, a laxative remedy of known quality and excellence, containing nothing of an objectionable or injurious character.

There are two classes of purchasers; those who are informed as to the quality of what they buy and the reasons for the excellence of articles of exceptional merit, and who do not lack courage to go elsewhere when a dealer offers an imitation of any well known article; but, unfortunately, there are some people who do not know, and who allow themselves to be imposed upon. They cannot expect its beneficial effects if they do not get the genuine remedy.

To the credit of the druggists of the United States be it said that nearly all of them value their reputation for professional integrity and the good will of their customers too highly to offer imitations of the manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., and in order to buy the genuine article and to get its beneficial effects, one has only to note, when purchasing, the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package. Price, 50c. per bottle. One size only.

Genuine—Syrup of Figs

SICK HEADACHE

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively cured by these Little Pills.

They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.

SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature

Brent Good

REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

Libby's Food Products

enable you to enjoy your meals without having to spend half your time between them over a hot cook-stove.

All the cooking is done in Libby's kitchen—a kitchen as clean and neat as your own, and there's nothing for you to do but enjoy the result.

Libby's Products are selected meats, cooked by cooks who know how, and only the good parts packed.

For a quick and delicious lunch any time, in doors or out, try Libby's Melrose Pate—with Libby's Camp Sauce.

Booklet free, "How to Make Good Things to Eat." Write

Libby, McNeill & Libby, Chicago

Libby's
Melrose Pate

PIMPLES

BLACKHEADS

Prevented by

Cuticura SOAP

To treat Pimples and Blackheads, Red, Rough, Oily Complexions, gently smear the face with Cuticura Ointment, the Great Skin Cure, but do not rub. Wash off the Ointment in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and hot water, and bathe freely for some minutes. Repeat morning and evening. At other times use Cuticura Soap for bathing the face as often as agreeable. No other Skin Soap so pure, so sweet, so speedily effective.

Cuticura Soap combines delicate medicinal and emollient properties derived from Cuticura, the great Skin Cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients and the most refreshing of flower odors. Two Soaps in one at one price, viz., a Medicinal and Toilet Soap. Depots: London, 27 Charterhouse Sq.; Paris, 5 Rue de la Paix; Boston, 137 Columbus Ave. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props. Mailed Free, "How to Beautify the Skin."

READERS of this paper desiring to buy anything advertised in its columns should insist upon having what they ask for, refusing all substitutes or imitations.

SALESMEN WANTED.

We want a live, active and thoroughly experienced salesman in this locality with sufficient money to buy outright his first month's supply of our Simplicity Low Pressure Hollow Wire Gasoline Lights. A utility needed in every store and home and fully complying with insurance rules. To such a man we will give exclusive sales right and guarantee to refund money if goods not sold in 60 days. Further particulars on request. The Standard-Gillett Light Co., 930 N. Halsted St., Chicago, Ill.

DO YOU WANT A JOB? Structural steel and cement crowd the railroad yards and wharves of San Francisco. The banks are over-loaded with the money of the people anxious to put it into buildings. The commonest kind of labor commands from $2.75 to $4 a day; carpenters get from $5 to $8 a day; bricklayers and plasterers from $8 to $10 a day. If you want the facts direct a letter to the BUREAU OF PUBLICITY, R. 514, Union Trust Bldg., San Francisco, and get full particulars.

FAIRBANKS' SCALES

Ask for Catalog St-150.

Fairbanks, Morse & Co., St. Paul.

60 Bus. Winter Wheat Per Acre

That's the yield of Salzer's Red Cross Hybrid Winter Wheat. Send 2c in stamps for free sample of same, as also catalogue of Winter Wheats, Rye, Barley, Clovers, Timothy, Grasses, Bulbs, Trees, etc. for fall planting. SALZER SEED CO., Box W. K. La Crosse, Wis.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

The Strange Case of STEARNS KENDALL ABBOTT, Victim of Environment

Groton.—In this quiet Massachusetts village 25 years ago, there lived a family named Crue. Their home was a small farm house in a particularly lonely location, three miles from other habitations.

Crue was a teamster, whose duties compelled him frequently to go to Ayer Junction, several miles away. Sometimes he left home early in the morning, and remained ta his labors until sunset. His wife was left under the protection of a dog, who spent a large part of the day sleeping near the kitchen stove.

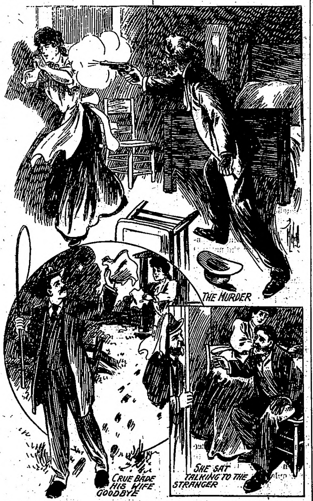
Mrs. Crue was an ordinary New England housewife. That is to say she was purely domestic, worked from morning till night at household duties, and knew the outside world only slightly. The desolation of her domicile was second nature to her; she accepted it as her fate. When, day after day, she was left practically unguarded it never occurred to her to be frightened.

If a vagabond came to her door, whether or not he asked for alms surlily and peered about as though to learn of her unprotected state, she showed no fear, but gave him food and told him to be off before her husband came down stairs and detected her charity. Moreover, Mrs. Crue, by reason of her daily domestic exercises, was strong and hardy enough to feel self-reliant. Invariably she held a stout broom during her talks with the occasional vagrants. She believed thoroughly that this traditional household weapon would serve her faithfully in time or need.

Rumors of Domestic Troubles.

From time to time there were rumors among people who knew the Crues. They said the husband did not pay as much attention to his wife as he should, and they mentioned other names, but the wife never answered impertinent questions. She told curious people that she minded her own business and expected her neighbors to follow her example. Whereupon they shrugged their shoulders, and any possible sympathy for her they might have felt expired.

On the morning of January 17, 1880, the home of the Crues was surrounded with snow. The adjacent woods were thin and scrawny, and the whole immediate world was bleak and chilly.



THE MURDER
CRUE BADE HIS WIFE GOODBYE
SHE SAT TALKING TO THE STRANGER

Now and then a biting wind swept across the open stretches, and whirled the snow off the roof of the house. Betimes the thin spirals of smoke rising from the chimney contrasted with the brittle snowscape.

Shortly after dinner Crue told his wife he had to haul some logs to Ayer Junction, and expected to be late for supper.

Crue harnessed his horses and drove away over the white road, around the windy corner of the timber land and out of sight. His wife watched his departure with phlegmatic interest.

During the afternoon a neighbor, on his way across the country, called to pay his respects to Mrs. Crue. He knocked on the door and then, without further formality, turned the knob and entered. Mrs. Crue sat in her kitchen talking with a stranger. The neighbor excused himself, said he merely stopped to say a word of greeting, and then withdrew.

Stranger Opened Door.

Later in the afternoon Miss Jennie Carr, a well-known Groton young woman, also called. She knocked on the door several times. Nobody answered. Then she noticed that the curtains of the front window were lowered. But it occurred to her that Mrs. Crue might be somewhere in the the house, so she continued to knock. Presently the knob of the door turned, the door opened a few inches, and a man looked out cautiously at her. He was a stranger to her. She asked if Mrs. Crue was at home. He replied curtly:

"No, she has gone to town for the afternoon, to make some calls."

Then the door closed without further ado.

Of the history of the day, which immediately follows, the husband is the only authoritative source. He returned from Ayer Junction shortly after sunset. Much to his surprise, the house was quite dark.

Failing to secure an entrance through any door, he went to one of the windows and vainly tried to raise it. He concluded that his wife had taken excellent precautions to prevent the entrance of strangers. Yet the drawn curtains, staring him blankly in the face, made him uneasy. He walked around the house to the cellar door. Through the gloom he groped his way with caution, always sensing impending disaster. This promonition grew stronger and stronger as he mounted the stairs to the kitchen. Now he proceeded more warily than ever, listening for any significant sound. The house was quite silent, and at last he struck a match and hurried to the lamp. The light partly reassured him.

Then he decided to look into his wife's room, and with the lamp in one hand, he crossed the kitchen. On the floor, in front of the door to the bedroom, was a line of discoloration. At any other time he might not have noticed it, but he still had a foreboding, and was curiously observant. First he glanced around the room, and then he stooped and felt of the discoloration. When he raised his hand his fingers were stained and damp.

Found Wife Murdered.

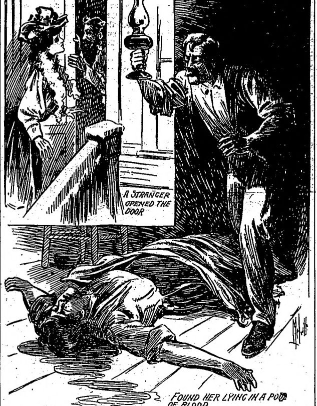
Quickly he pushed open the door of the bedroom, and holding the lamp high above him, he stared into the room. The huddled figure of Mrs. Crue lay on the carpet. Her head was splashed with blood, and her clothes were wet. A quilt partly covered her lower limbs. The woman was quite dead—and it was murder. The husband ran out of the house.

Presently the family of Augustus Woods, the nearest neighbors of the Crues, were disturbed at their supper by a peremptory knocking. Woods hurried to the door and opened it. Crue stood on the stoop, bare-headed and wild-eyed.

"Somebody has murdered my wife!" he shouted. "Come quick."

Groton became tremendously excited over the deed, and the medical examiner and the constables immediately began to make their investigations. They found two bullet holes in the woman's head and another in her breast. But there were no signs of a struggle, and there was no robbery.

The officers retained the bullets and took impressions of the imprints in the snow outside the house. Crue was questioned closely, but he proved an alibi. Then the officers surmised that a tramp committed the deed, and searched the village thoroughly for evidence of strangers. Everybody was puzzled over the apparent absence of any motive.



A STRANGER OPENED THE DOOR
FOUND HER LYING IN A POOL OF BLOOD

Stearns Kendall Abbott.

If the home of the Crues in Groton was lonely, the childhood home of Stearns Kendall Abbott in Claremont, N. H., was the merest existence. There, in 1839, he was added to an already large family.

It was a very sordid existence; it was almost worse than nothing. In a general way the boy knew, as he grew older, that other boys here and there enjoyed three nourishing meals a day, and slept in beds by themselves and had enough clothing to keep them warm. Yet it seldom occurred to him to think much about other boys in this world, because he was always concerned with the problem of satisfying his hunger and his craving for warmth.

Later he went to the country school. He wore ragged clothes, and, of course, everybody in the school could see them and everybody in the town knew that he was a poverty-stricken youngster, and, therefore, according to country traditions, looked down on him and considered him an inferior species of the race of small boys.

At the age of 14 he went to Lowell to obtain employment. But he was a very helpless waif, who lacked every bettering influence, who was thoroughly cowed—a hopeless waif whose destiny was nine-tenths death or degradation and one-tenth honest livelihood. He failed to get a job at once. He could furnish no references, and the factories needed no small boys. He fell among disreputable men, who told him how to make money with ease. One companion of the waif from Claremont explained that if he forged an order for $15 he could secure the money without any danger and promptly lose himself in some other city. The boy was without any answering argument. Indeed, the plan appealed to him, for he lacked many necessities of life. So he made out an order on a firm for $15, for work done, presented it at the cashier's office, obtained the money, divided it with his adviser, and then went to an eating house and fed heartily. The lad was suddenly wealthy.

Given State Prison Term.

But the swindled tradespeople gave the police an excellent description of the thief, and the police caught him. He could only say that he had needed the money badly, and had taken the advice of an older man. He couldn't tell them, however, that he had never had a fair chance. Lacking the vocabulary, he could not tell them one-tenth of his sordid childhood. Nobody defended him. He went before the court and received a sentence of 30 months. Then they took him away, not to a reformatory, but to state prison.

He served his time, and left the prison a jail-bird for life. His first destination was his home. He wished to see Claremont, even though he were a jail-bird and his home a wretched blur on the rural landscape. He found nothing changed. His mother was still suffering patiently; his brothers and sisters were still pale and hollow-cheeked. Everybody there needed the commonest necessaries of life, so Stearns Kendall Abbott, the youth, more self-reliant and energetic than Stearns Kendall Abbott, the child, went forth to obtain them, not caring greatly how he obtained them so long as he succeeded. He broke into a small store and was possessing himself of its money when the country constables arrived and possessed him. For his offense he served six years in Concord prison.

Thence he went into the army for service against the confederacy. Somebody cheated him out of his bounty money, and he deserted in Hartford, Conn. He was at once confronted by the problems of feeding and clothing himself, and he followed his bent. One day he espied a mail bag without protection. He stole the United States property, opened it and appropriated its contents. But they caught him and sent him to jail for five more years.

Long Career of Crime.

He was used to that sort of life by this time; and he was unused to any other kind, save existence in a poverty-stricken home. Thereafter one offense succeeded another. He stole a horse and buggy, and served a resultant sentence of four years in Charlestown; he embezzled $250 and returned to Charlestown for two years more. Later he entered a house in Manchester, N. H., and stole $17. For this crime he spent three years in the New Hampshire state prison. He was now 42 years old, his terms of confinement aggregated 22 years, and he was known as an habitual criminal.

Stearns Kendall Abbott was in Groton on the 17th of January, 1880. He was only a month and a half out of Concord prison, and presumably was trying to obtain employment as a wood carver. This was his trade—his prison taught trade—and he was a capable man. He called at several houses and explained ta one man that he wished to secure a job as a wood carver and to another—and to several others—that he wished to purchase some farm property. Of one man—Henry Hewins—he asked to be directed to the Crue house.

From house to house Constable Reed, of Ayer, traced his movements, until at last he located him in East Weare, N. H. The prisoners denied the crime. He said that he had never known Mrs. Crue, and had never seen her. He told the court that he left Groton during the afternoon of the 17th and went to Boston, where he spent several hours in a house of ill-repute. But he couldn't corroborate his statements. Witnesses located him in the Crue house; a chain of circumstantial evidence held him firmly.

Death Sentence Commuted.

He was sentenced to be hanged, and from his window in the jail he watched them building the scaffold. Wendell Phillips and others became interested in his case, and urged Gov. Long to commute the sentence. At first the governor refused, but when one of the chief witnesses against Kendall, Jennie Carr, admitted herself a perjurer respecting part of her testimony—respecting a denial of her motherhood—Gov. Long reprieved the condemned man and ordered that he spend the remainder of his days in the state prison.

That was 25 years ago. Twenty-five years ago they wrote the last record against the name of Stearns Kendall Abbott—"life prisoner for the murder of Maria L. Crue, of Groton." It was the concluding chapter of one of the most stirring murder stories of western Middlesex county. It was also the aftermath to the prisoner's hopeless childhood.

AROUND THE BASES

WHEN "HEINE" PEITZ GOT THE WORST OF IT

The recent McGinnity-Peitz battle created much discussion among the Chicago Nationals. While it was pleasing to them in a way as indicative of the irritableness of the Giants under defeat, lessening their chances for recovery, they deplore the fight because of its effect on the public. Several players allowed they had been expecting Peitz would provoke some player beyond the limit for some time. Incidentally, there came to light, a verbal contest between Peitz and Manager Chance early this season on the West side, which is the only case on record in which Heine got the worst of it.

Peitz was coaching at first and began kidding Chance to rattle him. "Say, I see you're a real manager now, Frank. How did you manage it?" and other remarks of similar nature were hurled at Chance between Peitz' stereotyped bits of advice to the batter to "make it be good," "look him over," etc. Chance apparently heard none of the gibes and said nothing until he walked over toward his base while a foul was being recovered, when he looked up at Heine in feigned surprise and said: "Why, hello, Heine, are you still with the Pittsburg team? Dreyfuss was asking for waivers on you a few days ago." Peitz shut up like a clam for the rest of the day and spent his time wondering if Chance was kidding or, being a club manager, telling the truth.

CHRISTOPHER MATTHEWSON PITCHER OF THE NEW YORK (N.L.) CLUB

REMARKABLE FEATS OF PLAYERS WITH THE BAT

The other day Fred Tenny, of the Boston Nationals, succeeded in making four hits in a game. This is a rare feat, considering the number of games played and the army of players taking part in them. It has been accomplished only 22 times this season. Twice this season five hits per game have been made, by Schulte of Chicago, and by Clarke, of Pittsburg. Schulte got his five hits off Taylor and Ferguson in a game at New York on June 6. Clarke hit Sparks five times safely in a ten-inning game at Philadelphia on June 11. These are the best records of the number of hits made this season, but they are not the best in the matter of total bases. Schulte and Clarke each had a double among their five hits, giving each a total of six bases.

The best record of the season is a total of nine bases, made by Catcher Kling, of the Chicago team. In a game on May 18 at Chicago he had a double, a triple and a home run off Nichols and McCloskey, of the Philadelphia team. The next heaviest individual batting was done by Ward, of Philadelphia; Wagner, of Pittsburg, and Ganley, of Pittsburg, each of whom made a total of seven bases in a game. On April 27 Ward in a game at New York, hit Wiltse for two singles, a double and triple; Wagner, on May 30, hit Weimer, of Cincinnati, for two doubles and a triple, and on June 2 Ganley made a single and two triples off Taylor, then pitching for St. Louis. A total of six bases in a game was made by Himes, of St. Louis; Maloney, of Brooklyn; Ward, of Philadelphia; Schulte, of Chicago; Steinfeldt, of Chicago; Clarke, of Pittsburg; Jordan, of Brooklyn, and Schlei, of Cincinnati.

Of course, the record made by Kling does not for a moment compare with the record of the major leagues. In 1884 Dave Orr, then with the Metropolitans, put the mark at 12 total bases. Two years later, in 1886, Guy Hecker, of Louisville, and Dan Brouthers, of Detroit, raised the figures to 15; Hecker against Pitcher Dick Conway, and Brouthers against Jim McCormick. This mark stood for three years. Larry Twitchell, of Cleveland, in 1889, hoisted it a notch by hitting Mike Madden for a total of 16 bases.

For five years this was the shining mark, and then Link Lowe, of the Boston team, astonished the baseball world by making a total of 17 bases. He did this on May 30, 1894, in a game at Boston against the Cincinnatis, who had Elton Chamberlain in the box. Lowe cracked out four home runs and a single. Two years later, on July 13, 1886, Ed. Delehanty duplicated the feat. He was a member of the Philadelphia team. In a game at Chicago he hit Bill Terry for four home runs and a single, giving him a total of 17 bases. This is now the world's record and bids fair to remain so for some time to come.

HOWELL'S START AS A PROFESSIONAL PITCHER

When J. C. Chapman owned and managed the Meridan Connecticut league champions, Harry Howell, the crack pitcher of the St. Louis Browns, lived in Brooklyn. He called on Manager Chapman at his residence in that city early in the spring of '98, asking for a job with the Meridan club, and said that he had been told by a number of players that Chapman was always willing to give a young player a start if he thought the youngster had the right stuff in him to make a good showing. He also said that he had no bad habits and that he had played on the Prospect Parade ball grounds, Brooklyn, for a couple of years with the "grass eaters" clubs, who had turned out some good players, and that in the back yard of his home he had paced off the pitching distance and painted a large target with a bull's eye on a large plank and practiced pitching every clear morning, and that he had become so perfect that he could hit the bull's eye some mornings nine times out of ten pitched balls, and sometimes he had broken the plank in halves with his speedy ones and had to go for more timber.

Chapman did not know what to make of the lad after telling his story, but as he had an intelligent face and looked to be of powerful build, he thought he might turn out to be some good with a little good handling, so he asked him how much he wanted to go to Meridan.

"Will $45 be too much, Mr. Chapman?" Howell asked.

"Well, that is a little high," said the manager, "but I'll give it to you."

So Howell went to Meridan, but when he found out he could "fan" the Connecticut leaguers he ran away because he wanted more money. Some of the older players swelled him up, of course. However, Chapman satisfied him and brought him back, and he finished the season in good shape, and his manager did all possible in pushing him into faster company.

THE SUNBEAM.

MINNESOTA
HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

VOL. VI. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, AUG. 31, 1906. NO. 22.

CUBAN REBELS ARE GAINING STRENGTH WITH EACH MOVE

Hundreds of Volunteers Flock to Join Standard of Gen. Guerra in Pinar del Rio and Situation Is Growing to Be Most Serious.

Havana.—Heavy fighting occurred in the province of Pinar del Rio between the forces commanded by the rebel general, Pino Guerra, and the government troops commanded by Colonel Estrampes.

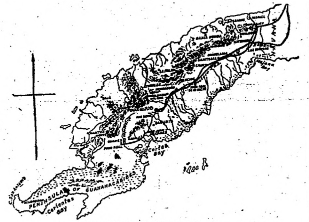
The government claims that Guerra was defeated, but the revolutionists declare that Estrampes is in full retreat, after having been whipped in a three hours' battle. They add that he fell back at first upon the town of Guines, which he was forced to abandon later. His force is estimated at 1,800 men, while it is believed that Guerra had nearly 3,000 men at the time of the fight.

Rebels Well Armed.

The rebels were well armed, and were seemingly well supplied with ammunition. The government force was made up of a mixture of rurales and volunteers, who had been hurriedly scraped together and rushed to the front, with little or no discipline, and but poorly equipped. This leads to the belief that the government is withholding the truth, and when the facts are known it will probably appear that the rebels were victorious.

Flock to Guerra's Standard.

Whatever the result of the fighting, the situation in Pinar del Rio is extremely grave. Hundreds of persons are flocking daily to the standard of General Guerra, whose force is estimated to have grown from 800 two days ago till it numbers at least 4,000. He has overrun almost the whole of the western portion of the island preparatory to an attack upon the city of Pinar del Rio, which is likely to fall at any moment.



PROVINCE OF PINAR DEL RIO.

Marches to Battle.

Messages received here regarding the movements of the opposing forces said that Colonel Estrampes was marching out from the City of Pinar del Rio to engage Guerra, who, it was declared, was planning to meet him with only one division of his troops. The rebel leader had sent a part of his followers, it was reported, to capture the town of Guines, into which, the latest news says, the government troops have now been driven.

Force Under Guerra.

There is grave doubt if the force of government troops now at San Juan de Martinez would be able to withstand an attack by the forces of Guerra.

Guerra's force is larger than has been supposed. He has probably 3,000 men well equipped with arms and ammunition, and is well supplied with money. Guerra's movement westward is not a retreat nor is it with the purpose of occupying Guanes. That town is in fact already practically occupied by resident insurgents. Guerra's purpose is to effect a junction with several hundred insurgents who are coming eastward from the vicinity of Guanes.

Whether Guerra's movement toward Guines was a feint is not yet known. That town and the villages of San Juan and San Luis, which the rebels had already captured, lie within a radius of twenty miles of each other.

Reenforcements Arrive.

The only other news that reached the government from the seat of operations concerning the troops was to the effect that the two poorly equipped artillery companies which left here twenty-four hours after Estrampes and his main force reached him before he set out from Pinar del Rio and that he had received four field guns which were sent forward at the same time. Concerning the rebels, it was reported that Guerra had recruited 200 more men in the towns which he had taken.

Menace Cienfuegos.

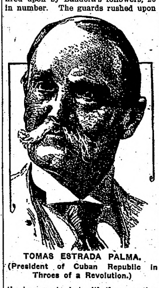
The rebels are menacing the important city of Cienfuegos in Santa Clara province. News of a battle near there is momentarily expected. General Guzman, with a force of nearly 500 insurrectionists, is moving rapidly across Santa Clara, sweeping everything before him. To oppose him are 150 Rurales. They have already been driven back in a skirmish in which a few were wounded.

The whole province of Santa Clara is in a state of unrest. The dissatisfied elements is hastening to join the rebels, whose ranks are growing in numbers with every hour. The government has been unable to reenforce the garrisons there on account of the serious state of affairs in Pinar del Rio.

Insurgent's Body in Morgue.

Havana.—The body of the negro general Quentin Bandera, the most daring insurgent in Havana province, lies in the morgue at Havana, flanked by those of two mulatto comrades, all frightfully gashed by long machetes of the rural guards who ended their careers

The arrival of Bandera's body here was the first news of the fight in which he met his death. The conflict occurred at the Silveira farm, near Punta Brava, 15 miles from Havana. A detachment of 38 mounted rural guards, under Capt. Ignacio Delgado and Lieut. Martinez, were searching throughout the night for Bandera's party. At two o'clock Thursday morning the guards were breaking through a wire fence at the edge of the Silveira farm when they were suddenly fired upon by Bandera's followers, 20 in number. The guards rushed upon the insurgents, but with the exception of their chief and his two leading comrades they all succeeded in getting away.

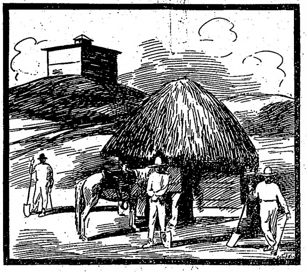


TOMAS ESTRADA PALMA.
(President of Cuban Republic in Throes of a Revolution.)

Bodies Horribly Mutilated.

The guards made the chief and his two companions a special object of attack, and all three received several bullet wounds and were horribly mutilated by machete cuts. Not one of the guards was wounded. The bodies of Bandera and his companions were placed in a wagon and taken to Havana, where an examination of the body showed that his principal wound was a severe machete blow on the head, which cut off his left ear and made an ugly incision in his face.

BLOCKHOUSE ON OUTSKIRTS OF CITY OF PINAR DEL RIO, CUBA, AROUND WHICH ONE OF FIRST BATTLES OF CUBAN REVOLUTION RAGED.



FAVORS REFORM SPELLING

PRESIDENT INDORSES THE CARNEGIE MOVEMENT.

Orders Adoption of System in All Official Documents of the Government.

Oyster Bay, N. Y. — President Roosevelt has indorsed the Carnegie spelling reform movement. He issued orders Friday to Public Printer Stillings that hereafter all messages from the president and all other documents emanating from the white house shall be printed in accordance with the recommendation of the spelling reform committee, headed by Brander Matthews, professor of English at Columbia university. This committee has published a list of 300 words in which the spelling is reformed.

This list contains such words as "thru" and "tho" as the spelling for "through" and "though." The president's official sanction of this reform movement is regarded as the most effective and speediest method of inaugurating the new system of spelling throughout the country. Not only will the printed documents emanating from the president utilize the reform spelling, but his correspondence also will be spelled in the new style.

Secretary Loeb has sent for the list of 300 words which have been reformed and upon its arrival will immediately order all correspondence of the president and of the executive force of the white house spelled in accordance therewith. As the spelling reform committee shall adopt new reforms they will be added to the president's list and also to that of the public printer.

While the order to the printer does not contemplate an immediate reform in the spelling of official documents from the executive departments in Washington, it is regarded that more than likely the respective heads of the department will fall in line with the president's ideas and have their official documents printed in the new spelling.

TAFT WANTS TO BE PRESIDENT

Secretary of War to Decline Place on Supreme Bench.

Washington.—William H. Taft, secretary of war, will formally communicate to the president in a short time that he does not desire the honor of an appointment to the supreme court bench. He will send notice in time for the president to make a selection before the fall term of the supreme court opens in October.

Mr. Taft's indorsement for the presidency by the Ohio Republican state convention is practically assured. He has been considered one of the most prominent possibilities by Ohio Republicans, and in view of Speaker Cannon's reiterated declarations that he would not be known as a candidate, the secretary's plan of action is considered most significant at this time.

The Ohio Republicans have been quietly booming Mr. Taft for the presidency for months. By every possible method they have been advancing his cause, even going so far, it is understood, as to solicit a public expression from him on the subject of his candidacy. Mr. Taft has fought shy of the subject, but the latest development places him more conspicuously before the public.

Death of Hanna's Brother-in-Law.

Cleveland, O.—Jay C. Morse, at one time president of the Illinois Steel company and brother-in-law of the late Senator M. A. Hanna, died here Wednesday of a complication of diseases. Mr. Morse was associated with the late Col. C. M. Pickands in an immense iron ore and coal business, and he amassed a large fortune.

SAYS REBATES WERE PAID.

Standard Oil and Railroad Company Indicted in New York.

Jamestown, N. Y.—The federal grand jury investigating alleged violations of the Elkins rebate law by the Standard Oil company, the Pennsylvania Railroad company, and the New York Central Railroad company in the state met here Friday and returned two indictments, one against the Standard Oil company, the other against the New York Central.

The charges against the Central are covered in a single count, although, according to the theory of the prosecution, the company equally is guilty with the Pennsylvania company in granting rebates. The charge of failure to file with the interstate commerce commission, as required by law, a schedule of rates, which evidence taken by the grand jury indicates, was maintained.

The Standard Oil company was again indicted on a charge of accepting unlawful and discriminating freight rates on shipments of oil over the Pennsylvania, the New York Central and the Vermont Central railroad companies.

The indictments are closely related to those found by the same jury two weeks ago against the Standard Oil company and the Pennsylvania in the matter of discriminating rates for oil shipped by the Standard from Olean to Burlington, Vt. All of such shipments were over the Pennsylvania from Olean to Rochester; over the New York Central from Rochester to Norwood, N. Y., and over the Vermont Central from Norwood, to its destination.

STORM DAMAGES GRAVEYARD

Cemetery Grounds Flooded and 200 Bodies Exposed to View.

Kansas City, Mo.—A terrific rainstorm prevailed in Kansas City and vicinity early Thursday. In Kansas City 5.93 inches of water fell, a record for the time, three hours and a half. Low lying lands were flooded and the police and fire departments were called upon to rescue persons from basements in Little Italy, in the north end of town, and in the east and west bottoms, where the water entered many small houses. Several downtown basements were flooded and goods damaged.

At Elmwood cemetery, five miles east of the business district the entire cemetery grounds were flooded, and in the lower ground a strong current was formed. This resulted in the washing out of dozens of graves. At least 200 bodies were exposed. Monuments were wrecked and other damage done.

LYNCHING JURY FAILS TO AGREE

Little Likelihood of State Continuing Case at Springfield, Mo.

Springfield, Mo.—The jury in the case of Doss Galbraith, the alleged leader of the mob which lynched and burned three negroes here in April last, and who was on trial charged with second degree murder, was discharged by the court Friday when it reported that its members were unable to agre.

After the jury was discharged its members freely admitted that the vote stood ten for acquittal and two for conviction. Twenty ballots were taken and there was no change after the first ballot.

It is not believed the state will try the case again.

Death Ends Suffering.

Tomahawk, Wis.—C. C. Ramsey, district superintendent for the United States Leather company, died. He was stricken blind Tuesday while seated at his office desk and Thursday he suffered a stroke of apoplexy.

CHAOS RULES IN CITY

REFUGEES IN VALPARAISO, CHILI, FIGHT FOR FOOD.

SUPPLIES INSUFFICIENT.

Cemeteries Destroyed and Authorities Unable to Bury Victims—Town of Quillota Sinks Out of Sight.

Valparaiso.—Chaos rules in Valparaiso and martial law is unable to keep order. The scores of thousands of homeles, famine stricken refugees fight in the streets for food.

The army and navy officers are working heroically to bring order out of chaos, but they are fearfully handicaped.

The injured are still without adequate medical care, in spite of the tireless energy of army, naval and private surgeons and nurses.

Food supplies are insufficient, but are increasing. The minister of the interior has ordered all ships in Chilian ports to proceed to Valparaiso with food and bring away refugees. A regular relief service has been established. Cattle shipments are on the way. Frontier train service has been established from Talca. Supplies of meat and milk are arriving regularly but not in quantities sufficient to prevent hunger.

Estimates of the number of dead still remain between 3,000 and 5,000. Twenty-eight bodies were found Wednesday under the stairway of the telegraph office.

Meat and Bread Scarce.

Meat and bread are scarce. Meat is now being distributed by the authorities. The grocers' shops that were not destroyed by the earthquake are now nearly out of stock. Canned meats, sardines, condensed milk and biscuits are much needed.

As a first installment the government has appropriated $4,000,000 for the relief of the destitute.

One of the greatest difficulties encountered by the authorities is the interment of the bodies recovered from the ruins, as all the cemeteries were destroyed. At the various temporary morgues heaps of coffins have accumulated, awaiting the designation of their place of burial. The work of recovering the bodies is being pushed to the utmost in order to avoid an epidemic.

The total number of corpses buried up to Tuesday, August 21, was 648.

The main post office has been reopened.

Every Wall Ruined.

At Llai Llai there is not a single wall in good condition. There were 30 persons killed there.

At Cabildo the railroad station was damaged.

At Quillota many buildings were prostrated.

The earthquake was severe at Concon and Colmo. The dead in those places number 25.

The work of bringing order out of chaos is progressing rapidly and the telephone and telegraph lines have been restored to Santiago. The postal system is in working order and mail is being delivered regularly.

Electric cars already are running between Baron station and Recro, and probably the opration of cars will be extended to Vina del Mar.

A movement is on foot to organize a company to facilitate the raising of the money necessary to reconstruct the city. It is proposed to advance the sums needed without interest for the first six months. The plan is to construct the new buildings of light materials and to lay out the streets so that they will have a uniform width of 20 meters.

The department of public works at Santiago has appropriated $100,000 for the construction of sheds to shelter the refugees from Valparaiso and elsewhere who continue to arrive there.

Earth Swallows 10,000.

Lima.—It is reported that Quillota, a city of 10,000 population, about 30 miles from Valparaiso, has sunk entirely from sight and that less than 100 of the inhabitants escaped.

Two Dead in Wreck.

Bristol, Va.—As a result of a washout a freight train on the Virginia & Southwestern railway ran off a trestle at Moccasin river at two o'clock Friday morning and the engine and eight cars loaded with coal were plunged into the river and two persons were killed.

Three Steel Workers Killed.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Three men are dead, two are in a serious condition and nine others were rendered unconscious by a blow-out of accumulated gas early Tuesday morning at the Eliza furnaces of the Jones & Laughlins Steel company, at Soho, this city.

Wants Boycotters Suppressed.

Hongkong.—The American consul general has sent a dispatch to the viceroy of Canton requesting him to suppress the Boycott association for the hindrance of American commerce.

SULLIVAN IS VINDICATED

ILLINOIS DEMOCRATS REFUSE TO OUST COMMITTEEMAN.

Nebraska Man Endorsed for the Presidency—State Ticket Named by Convention.

Peoria, Ill. — William Jennings Bryan indorsed as the democratic nominee for president in 1908, and Roger C. Sullivan, of Chicago, vindicated and the demand for his resignation as national committeeman made by Mr. Bryan from Europe voted down by 1,058 delegates to 570, was the outcome of one of the hardest political battles ever fought in the state Tuesday. From start to finish Sullivan and his cohorts completely dominated the state convention. From the election of ex-Justice Boggs as chairman to the defeat of the resolutions condemning Mr. Sullivan there never was a moment of doubt as to who controlled the gathering.

Incidental in its importance was the nomination of a slate of state officers. These nominations were made just preceding the Bryan-Sullivan fight and were as follows:

For state treasurer—N. L. Piotrowski.

For superintendent of public instruction—Caroline Grote.

For trustees state university—D. R. Cameron, J. S. Cuneo, C. D. Bourland.

The feature of the platform that almost ended in a riot was the indorsement of Bryan in these words:

"For president of the United States in 1908 the Democrats of Illinois, first and last, have but one choice, and that man is William Jennings Bryan."

This precipitated the one big row of the convention.

The principal feature of the platform is the indorsement of William J. Bryan for president, in the face of the Nebraskan's protest that he opposed such indorsement unless Sullivan was ousted as national committeeman.

MINERS KILLED IN EXPLOSION

Heroic Collier Meets Death Trying to Rescue His Corade.

Mahanoy City, Pa.—By an explosion of gas in the West Buck mountain gangway in the fifth level of the Vulcan colliery of the Mill Creek Coal company Tuesday, Charles Staukhus, aged 25 years, and John Haruka, aged 30 years, were instantly killed, five persons were probably fatally injured and about a dozen were overcome by after-damp. Stukus was killed by the first explosion and Haruka was killed as he was preparing to carry the body of Staukus to the gangway.

There were two explosions at intervals of ten minutes. Both did much damage to the mine, brattices being ripped away and timbers blown out along the gangway for a distance of several hundred yards. The fourth lift of the mine was completely wrecked.

AMERICAN NETS ARE DESTROYED

Fishermen Complain of Action of Canadian Cruiser in Lake Erie.

Washington.—Capt. Ross, chief of the revenue cutter service of the treasury department, Wednesday reported to Acting Secretary Murray of the department of commerce and labor, that he had received advices that the Canadian cruiser Vigilant was destroying the nets of American fishermen in Lake Erie.

The reports of the fishermen indicate that the nets were set well within American waters.

Complaints were filed by the fishermen with the American authorities. The matter will be reported to the state department and probably will constitute the subject of an exchange between the American and Canadian governments.

OHIO IS AFTER TWO-CENT FARE

Board Invites Passenger Officials to Confer on Reduced Rate.

Columbus, O.—The Ohio railroad commission will take up the question of applying the two-cent fare law to interstate traffic on Ohio roads at once.

The commission has called a conference of the passenger officials of Ohio railroads to be held in this city August 30, when an effort will be made to secure an amicable adjustment of the controversy.

Failing in this the commission will file formal complaint with the interstate commerce commission.

The Ohio railroads now base all interstate rates on the old rate of three cents a mile.

Factories Make Gains.

Washington. — Unequaled prosperity in the manufacturing industry of the United States for the calendar year of 1904 is shown in a census bulletin, which is compared with a similar census for the year 1900. The number of manufacturing establishments in the country, as shown by the last census, is 216,262, an increase of four per cent. over 1900. Capital increased during the five years from $8,978,825,200 to $12,686,265,673, or 41 per cent.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT,

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-class matter August 30, 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

Louis Gonyea is to be a candidate for renomination for sheriff of Polk County. Louis has filled the bill so well that he is not liable to have any opposition in his own party, but he had better keep his eye on Torkel P. Hoiland the politician from Lengby.

The primary election law was passed for the purpose of allowing the people to chose their candidates for office. Every voter should make it a point to be sure and attend the primary election on September 18th and vote for the candidates for the different offices that you would be willing to vote for in November.

John N. Kirsch publisher of the Crookston Daily Journal is a candidate for the nomination for representative from Polk County. Mr. Kirsch would no doubt make a good representative but he is not taking much pains to advertise the fact, and is liable to be defeated by the lack of advertising. As a rule a newspaper man believes in advertising but this seems to be a case of not practiceing what you preach.

H.E. Ives of The Spectator is one of the newspaper boys that believes in advertising. He is a candidate for clerk of court of this county and we venture that there are very few people in the county that he has not asked for their support through the colums of their local paper, and he is pretty liable to get that support, as there is no reason that he should not have it and the majoriety of the people are of the opinion that what is not worth asking for is not worth giving.

The settlement of these eleven towns will make a change in the political situation in this county that is liable to leave some of the officials that are basing their chances on the vote of two years ago, out in the cold. When that north easter strikes the county seat this fall there will be a shaking up that will be as much of a surprise to some of the political bosses as it used to be to the Crookston fellows when the eastern end of Polk County was first settled.

There is a large presentage of the settlers on these lands that are Skandinavians and as a rule they are republicans, and with the campaign that is going to be put up by that party this year, it is doubtful if there are many candidates on the democrat ticket that will land the plumb in November. It is somewhat discourgeing to see the weakness of the campaign that is being put up by some of the republican candidates for office and if they keep that gait up it is doubtful if the strength of the party can pull them through.

A. L. Cole, the Republican candidate for Governor, stands for the improvement and developement of Northern Minnesota. The carrying out of his policy will add to the value of farm property, putting money into the pockets of the farmers and others who are owners of real estate. The Cole idea will not only be profitable from a financial point of view, but it will also mean greater comforts of living, better roads, better public schools, ect. As the country develops, it will mean more colleges and seminaries. Governor Johnson stands for the re-election of Mr. Johnson—and nothing further that anyone knows anything of, unless it is the ambition of a bright and ambitious young politician to defeat the Republican nominee. There is no reason why any Republican should bolt the ticket this year.—Detroit Record.

We publish this week the announcement of A.L. Hanson of Ada, for state senator from this District. He is the first candidate for the legislature from this district that came out and made the promis to vote for the reduction of freight and passenger rates, the others dare not make a statement on this subject. Well we suppose Hanson will be defeated, as the railroad companys will spend money freely to defeat him as he is not the class of men they want in the legislaturs.

Republican State Ticket.

United States Senator—
Knute Nelson,
Douglas County.
Governor—
A.L. Cole,
Cass County.
Lieutenant Governor—
A.O. Eberhart.
Blue Earth County.
Chief Justice—
Charles M. Start,
Olmsted County.
State Treasurer—
Clarence Dinehart,
Murray County.
Secretary of State—
Julius Schmahl,
Redwood County.
Attorney General—
E.T. Young,
Swift County.
State Auditor—
S.G. Iverson,
Fillmore County.
Clerk of Supreme Court—
C.A. Pidgeon,
Wright County.
Railroad Commissioner—
C.F. Staples,
Dakota County.

PLUM PUDDING.

Plain Directions For Making This Christmas Luxury.

Place in a vessel one pound of beef kidney suet, very dry, free from fibers and chopped very fine; one pound of seeded Malaga raisins; one pound of currants, cleaned and washed in plenty of water; one pound of bread crumbs, sifted through a sieve; a quarter of a pound of lemon peel, chopped very fine; one pound of powdered sugar, four tablespoonfuls of flour, a quarter of an ounce of nutmeg and allspice, a pint of brandy and six eggs.

Mix the whole well together. Dip a strong cloth in cold water and wring it out to extract all the moisture. Spread it open on a table and butter it liberally with butter softened to the consistency of cream. Dredge over with sifted flour and shake the cloth to remove any excess of the flour that failed to adhere to the butter. Lay in the center of the cloth the prepared mixture. Form it in the shape of a ball and raise up the edges of the cloth, bringing the four ends together all around, so as to inclose the preparation well, then tighten and tie firmly.

Have on the fire a high saucepan three-quarters full of water. When this boils plunge in the plum pudding and let it cook for three hours. Then remove it and have it stand for five minutes before cutting the string. Undo the cloth carefully and invert the pudding on a hot dish. Sprinkle it with sugar. Pour over some brandy or rum and set it on fire. Serve immediately with hard sauce.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Lynch Law.

In an article in Law Notes on "The Origin of the Term 'Lynch Law'" mention was made of the fact that formerly the term "Lydford law" was used in the same sense in England. A North Carolina judge in a recent case quoted the following lines:

> I oft have heard of Lydford law—
> How in the morn they hang and draw
> And sit in judgment after.

They seem to show the existence of a similar summary punishment in England.

Unconscious Sarcasm.

A Scotch visitor to the Carlyles, in Cheyne row, was much struck with the sound proof room which the sage had contrived for himself in the attic, lighted from the top, and where no sight or sound from outside could penetrate. "My certes, this is fine!" cried the old friend, with unconscious sarcasm. "Here ye may write and study all the rest of your life and no human being be one bit the wiser."

Joining the Hunt.

Mrs. Impecunious—Here's a man suing for divorce because his wife goes through his pockets. What would you do, John, dear, if you woke up tonight and found me at your pockets? Mr. Impecunious—Get up and help you look.—Woman's Home Companion.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the paymen of five dollars which became due March 14th 1906, and is due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Martha Kolstoe, a single women, mortgagor, to Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, mortgagee, bearing date the 14th day of March, 1905, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of deeds of the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, on the 17th day of March 1905, at 4 o,clock, P. M. in Book 35 of Mortgages, on page 8 thereof, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the county of Polk, State of Minnesota, on the 14th day of August, 1906, at 8 o'clock A. M. in Book 116 of Mortgages on page 418: and whereas, pursuant to the terms and condition of said mortgage by reason of said default, the whole proncipal sum of mortgage, towit, thirty dollars, did on the 14th day of March 1906, become at once due and payable, and was so declared by said mortgagee: and whereas, there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of thirty dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of ten per cent per annum since March 14, 1906 and whereas, the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof:

Now, therefor, Notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveysd by said mortgage, to wit,:

Lots six (6) and seven (7) of section six (6) in township one hundred fifty one (151), north, of range thirty nine (39) in Polk County, Minnesota, and the east half of the south east quarter, (E.½ of S.E.¼) of section one (1) in township one hundred fifty one (151), north, of range forty (40), in Red Lake County, Minnesota,- which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Red Lake County, Minnesota, at the west front door at the courthouse in the City of Red Lake Falls, in said county and state on Saturday, the 18th day of October, 1906, at two (2) o'clock P.M. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of thirty dollars and interest as aforesaid, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and a reasonale attorney's fee as stipulated in said mortgage, the same being hereby claimed and stated to be the sum of twenty five dollars, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated August 22nd, 1906,

Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, Minn.
Mortgagee.
Chas. E. Boughton,
Attorney for Mortgagee,
Red Lake Falls, Minnesota.

Nilsson and Patti.

When Christine Nilsson, the great singer, was asked her opinion of various singers, she gave it very candidly of every one, including herself and Mme. Albani, but she never once alluded to Mme. Patti.

"You have not mentioned Mme. Patti," remarked the pertinacious interviewer.

"No," said Mme. Nilsson, "I have not. You are asking about singers. I do not regard Patti as a singer. I place her among the angels. A Patti only comes to a planet once during that planet's existence." Such an absence of stage jealousy has probably never been equaled.

Date Mark a Bagdad Malady.

Bagdad date mark is the name given to a mysterious disease that attacks nearly every one who stays in Bagdad for any length of time and is found also at Aleppo and other places in Turkish Asia. It is a sore that comes only once, but lasts a year, leaving a scar the shape of a date. Nearly all the natives are marked with it. No remedy has been found for it, but hyposulphite of soda seems to have some effect on the mark.

The Beauty of the Lilies.

"Er—Miss Hardy—Grace—do you not think that these valley lilies are very beautiful?"

"Not so beautiful as orange blossoms, Mr. Jones."

And, thus assisted and encouraged, he presently drifted out upon the wide, wide sea of wedded bliss.

Curious Almshouse.

The most curious almshouse in England is St. Mary's hospital at Chichester. There eight old ladies live actually in the church, which is a fine old building dating from 1680. It was originally a monastery, but when Queen Elizabeth came to visit there she turned it into an almshouse to endure as long as almshouses exist. The old ladies have two neat little rooms each down the sides of the main church, with windows looking out on the garden. They have each a coal supply, a kitchen range, water and gas. At one end of the church is the chapel, where daily services are held. The choir stalls are beautifully carved old oak, the original seats that the monks used. The church stands in a quiet little square.

A Sad Feature.

Jack—Engagement is off, eh? Has she sent him back the ring? Tom—No; that's what's bothering him. He owes money on that ring.—New York Press.

Wouldn't Miss It.

Maid—Are you at home to Mrs. Toner, mum? She's at the door. Mistress—I am if she has a new hat on—not otherwise.—Exchange.

Sweeping.

"I was just telling my daughter," said Mrs. Nexdore, "that it's a shame of her to play the piano on Sunday."

"Huh!" exclaimed Mrs. Peppery. "Why Sunday especially?"

Summons.

State of Minnesota, County of Red Lake. } S. S.

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA,

To Warlenty Warjnaroski and Mrs. Warlenty Wajnaroski, Defendant's.

You are hereby summoned to be and appear before the undersigned, one of the Justices of the Peace in and for said County, on the 30th day of August 1906, at 10 o'clock A.M., at my office in the Town of Highlanding in said County to answer to the complaint of Edward Singer Plaintiff, in a civil action, wherein the Plaintiff claim the sum of seventeen dollars and seventy two cents ($17.72), with intrest thereon at the rate of 6 per cent per annum from the 8th, day of November 1905. Should you fail to appear at the time and place aforesaid judgement will be rondered against you up on the evidence adduced by said Plaintiff for such sum as he shall show himself entitled to.

Given under my hand, and dated this 1st, day of August 1906

W. G. Hunt,
Justice of the Peace.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam August 17, 1906.

Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston Minn. August 13th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on September 25th 1906 viz;

Ole O. Vattendahl.

H.E. No. 713 Red Lake Series, for Lot 2, Sec. 27, Lots 7, 8, 10, 11, Sec. 28, Lot 1, Sec. 34, Twp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Torkel T. Laude, Sjur Stolas, Torger S. Dale, Andrew Ellingson all of Radny Minn.

R. J. Montague, Regster.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam August 17, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. August 11, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Reciver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on September 26 1906, viz:

Signe J. Sen.

H.E. No. 8356, Chippewa Series, for the N.E. ¼ Sec. 35, Twp. 152 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Sam Gunderson, Rasmus Nilsen Fore, Aasa Fore, John G. Lintvedt all of Lillo Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Probate Notice.

ESTATE OF ANTON W. SHOSTEN.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF RED LAKE IN PROBATE COURT.

In the Matter of the Estate of Anton W. Shosten, Decedent.

Letters of adminestration this day having been granted to Eva Shosten.

IT IS ORDERED, that the time within which all creditors of the above named decedent may present claims against his estate in this court, be, and the same hereby is, limited to six months from and after the date hereof; and that Friday the 11th day of January 1907, at 9 o'clock A.M., in the Probate Court Rooms at the Court House at Red Lake Falls in said County, be, and the same hereby is, fixed and appointed as the time and place for hearing upon and the examination, adjustment and allowance of such claims as shall be presented within the time aforesaid.

Let notice hereof be given by the publication of this order in THE SUNBEAM a weekly newspaper printed and published in said County as provided by law.

Dated August 11th 1906.

N.W. Tarrant,
[Seal] Judge of Probate.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION

First Pub. in The Sunbeam August 31, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land office at Crookston Minn. August 24th, 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the register and Receiver, of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on October 23, 1906 viz;

Nels Loiland.

H.E. No. 1181 Red Lake Series for the Lots 5, 6, 7, 9, S.W. ¼, S.E. ¼, Sec. 27 Twp. 152 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ben K. Kvestad of Highlanding Minn. Halvor Swanson, Ole N. Loiland, Oluf Hanson of Hilda Minn.

R. J. Montague Register

To Waterproof Canvas.

Scientific American gives this recipe for waterproofing for canvas: Soft soap dissolved in hot water and a solution of iron sulphate added. The sulphuric acid combines with the potash of the soap and the iron oxide is precipitated with the fatty acid as insoluble iron soap. This is washed and dried and mixed with linseed oil.

Masculine.

Mrs. Hix—Mrs. June strikes me as being entirely too masculine for a woman. Mrs. Dix—Yes, indeed. Why, every time she has an ache or a pain she makes as much fuss about it as a man would.

Discretion.

First Lawyer—It seems to me you let that last witness down pretty easily in your cross examination. Second Lawyer—I had to. He is my tailor, and I owe him a big bill.

When a man says, "Of course it's no business of mine," it is a sure sign that he is going to do the best he can to make it his business.

H. & B. MILLING CO.
BEST
VIVO
PATENT
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.
VIVO

VIVO

HANDLED BY ALL THE LEADING MERCHANTS OF THE ELEVEN TOWNS,

(Always Call For Vivo)

We pay the highest market price for all grain, at our mill in Thief River Falls, or at our elevator at Plummer, and always have on hand a compleat line of flour & feed at both points.

☞ Promt shipments made by boat to all points along the Red Lake River.

We solicit your orders.

Hanson & Barzen Milling Company.

THE MERCHANTS

State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds, Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.— J. A. Duffy, Cashier.

NORSK HANDEL.

DRY GOODS.

CLOTHING, SHOES, DRUGS

We carry a full and complete line of Groceries, Drugs & Patent Medicines.

☞ LOOK AT THIS. We pay the highest market price for, Hides, Wool, Seneka Root, Furs & All Farm Products

H.H. Finrow, Mg.

PLUMMER, MINN.

The Radny Store;

☞ THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE RADNY STORE.

John has, Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes.

A full and complete line of groceries.

Best brands of flour, at lowest market price.

.... .00..........

Call and see me for bargains, at Radny post office and store.

John Radneskie.

Too Serious.

While a great many persons probably take themselves too seriously, entertaining an altogether exaggerated opinion of their ability and worth, not many nowadays go to the extreme length of the German whom the English poet Coleridge met at Frankfort. He always took off his hat when he ventured to speak of himself. Were this practice to become general what a number of people would be permanently bareheaded!

Boarding a Hansom.

Have you ever noticed the right way to get into a hansom when two people are riding? Few persons know what to do. In nine cases out of ten the one who enters first seats himself on the off side. But this is wrong. If, on getting in first, you take the near seat, your companion can then enter in ease and comfort, which otherwise he could not.

Winding Your Watch.

The old superstitious belief that you will change your luck if you stop winding your watch at night and wind it in the morning may have some slight basis in fact, according to a jeweler, who says that the morning is the proper time to do the winding. This is not only because the hour of rising is for the average man much more regular than that for retiring, but even the soberest and most orderly of men are apt to relax and prone to carelessness at bedtime, when more or less worn by the wear and tear of the day. In this condition the winding is apt to be done in a jerky, irregular sort of way, or too far or not far enough. "Nine people out of ten wind their watches on going to bed," said the jeweler, "but if they would do it when they get up, at some regular point in the process of making their toilet, they would do it much better."—Philadelphia Record.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

VIVO flour is the best. Ask your dealer for vivo.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Ye editor made a hurry up business trip to Rhoda Wednesday.

Stephan Singer the Rhoda Merchant was transacting business here Thursday.

W.G. Hunt will leave on tomorrows boat for Thief River Falls to be absent until Monday.

Henry Castello and George Baird left yesterday to make a stake in the Dakota threshing fields.

Chris Larson the Anton dealer will pay you the highest cash price for cattle, see him before you sell.

Dan Patch passed up river yesterday on their way up to Red Lake with a load of supplies for that country.

Harvesting is about completed in this locality, and stacking and threshing will soon be the order of the day.

A complete new J. I. Case threshing outfit was purchased by parties living near Brunkeberg last week.

H.P. King and Roy West, of McIntosh were doing business in this locality Wednesday and made this office a pleasant call.

CATTLE WANTED, Highest market price paid for fat cattle, inquire at this office, or of Chris Larson at Anton Post office.

Rev. E.A. Mostue is building a large and substancial addition to his farm residence, Nels Olson is doing the carpenter work for him.

Mr. Morgan an uncle of Walt McAndress is stoping at his place this week looking after his choers, while he is at Thief River Falls.

Some of the settlers above Highlanding are complaining that the log booms are turning the water out onto their meadow lands.

P.C. Wold drove to Thief River Falls Wednesday with a load of girls. Miss Kuehnel was the oldest and we did not learn who was the youngest.

Peter Hedin living south of Kratka, was up Radnyway, last Sunday, looking up the prospects for getting a threshing machine to move into his neighborhood.

The Miss Duns and McMands, girls, who have been spending their summer vacation up here, returned to Thief River Falls on Wednesday, to be ready for the fall term of school.

We notice that one of our going lads took a hay rack in order to accomidate all the girls that wanted to go out riding with him last Sunday and he had it loaded to its full capasity.

Adam Jardahl, one of the old time residants of eastern Polk County, was a passenger up river on the last Mondays Flyer. We supposed he was in Canada, but Adam is liable to loom up any old place.

One of P. Sullivans horses got loose on Tuesday evening and helped himself to the feed; and got a severe founder. M.E. Hyland came over from Deer Park and bled him on Thursday and it is hoped that he will recover.

Mike McAndress drove up from Thief River Falls Wednesday to notify his brother Walt of the serious condition of their baby who was taken down there for treatment last week, Mr McAndress and Leonard left for Thief River at once.

Jack Frost made us his first visit of the season last night.

P.A. Rustad, is helping P. Sullivan in stacking grain this week.

The Homme Bros. who have land north from Highlanding will move their threshing rig up here from Equality Township.

Ole Vattendahl went down to the lost river country yesterday, where he will run a threshing machine for Torkle Lunde.

The Flyer was about two hours late last night, but Swanson was happy just the same, playing music when he passed here.

We dont like to be dunning our subscribers, but we must have part of our subscription list colected this fall, If you are owing from one to four yours please remit without further notice.

J. K. Wood,

COUNTY SURVEYOR, & CIVIL ENGINEER.

Will give all orders for Surveying prompt attention.

Office at Thief River Falls
Minnesota.

Wanted: Gentleman or lady with good reference, to travel by rail or with a rig, for a firm of $250,000.00 capital. Salary $1,072.00 per year and expenses; salary paid weekly and expenses advanced. Address, with stamp, Jos. A. Alexander, Subeam, Minn.

U.S. Mail,

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 8. 80 a. m. on Tuesday's Thurday's and Saturday's. & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 3. p.m.

Wm. G. Hunt, P.M.

LAND OFFICE BUSINESS.

U.S. Commissioner L. G. Browning with office located at Thief River Falls, is prepared to take homestead entries final proof etc., within the Crookston U. S. Land District.

office in News building, three doors south of the post office.

MONEY TO LOAN.

I have money to loan on real-estate at 7½ per cent. Payments at the land office made for you when you make final proof.

Special attention given to Notary Public work.

Applications to make final proof written free.

Stephen Singer,
Rhoda Minn.

Subscribe for The Sunbeam,

A LITTLE NONSENSE.

Sense of Justice Displayed by a Governor's Grandson.

The small grandson of Governor Cummins of Iowa, a handsome and precocious child, has displayed an early and inherent conception of justice, which is illustrated by the following incident:

The boy is not permitted to eat doughnuts, but when visiting in the kitchen of a neighboring relative the cook presented him with one of these delicacies and he proceeded to eat it with perfect enjoyment.

No suspicion of his indulgence reached the ears of his family, and all would have gone well had not an overpowering sense of his obligations mastered the culprit. Curious investigations were the natural outcome when he said his usual prayer that night and then hesitatingly added this brief but incriminating petition:

"And—and please bless Aunt Cora's hired girl."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Souvenirs.

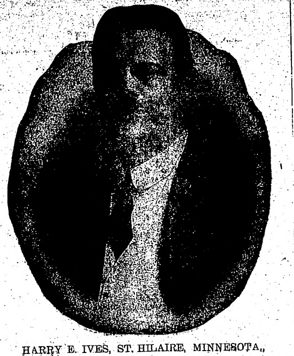
A visitor calling on an Irishman who had the credit of being a lively heckler at political meetings said, "What's that, Mike, that you have in the glass case?"

"Oh, that's the brick I got agin' my head at the last election."

"Oh! And what's that little flower on the top of it for?"

"That's the flower from the grave of the man who threw it."—London News.

Just as you are pleased at finding faults you are displeased at finding perfection.—Lavater.



HARRY E. IVES, ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA.,

Respectfully solicits your support and vote for the Republican nomination for Clerk of the District Court for Red Lake County at the Primaries, Sept 18. If nominated and elected will pledge a square deal to all parties and all men.

WHAT HAMSON STANDS FOR.

A Candidate for the State Senate Who Is Not Afraid to Tell the People How He Stands On Important Issues.

I favor and will support if elected the extension of the primary nominating system to include all state officers and United States Senator; the enactment of a reciprocal demurage law; prohibiting the issuing to and the use of railway passes by all State, Legislative, Judicial and County officials whether elective or appointive; reduction in freight, express and passenger rates; increasing the power of the Railroad and Warehouse Commission: thorough control and regulation of all corporations; taxing of corporation property in the same manner as other property; redistricting of legislative districts of the state so as to give to the northern part of the state its proper representation in the state legislature. Local aption by counties in the granting of licenses to sell intoxicating liquors; the enactment of a more stringent pure food law; liberal support of State Sanitarium for care and cure of consumptives; liberal support of schools, educational institutions, drainage, good roads, and for state developement; the safe guarding of state timber and mineral property; the re-electing of Knut Nelson as United States Senator. I will put forth my best efforts to secure the enactment of any other legislation that would be to the best interests of the people of the district and state.

On these principles and Promising to devote my best efforts to Promote clean and fair Politics, I respectfully solicit your good will and vote at the coming Primary election.

A. L. Hanson.
Ada, Minn.

Naturally.

Gunner—Yes, he is a champion golf player, and so is the girl he is going to marry. Not only that, the minister who will perform the ceremony is very fond of the game.

Guyer—Ah, I suppose he will be pleased to link them together.—Chicago News.

Bound to Crop Out.

"Yes, I believe I did say you were always lying about yourself."

"I'll have you to understand, sir, that I am not used to this kind of talk. I'm a gentleman, sir."

"There you go. Can't keep from it, can you?"—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Time to Get Busy.

Her Husband — I thought you were going to visit your mother?

His Wife—And so I am.

Her Husband—Well, you had better begin to pack your trunk at once. The train leaves in forty-eight hours.—Detroit Tribune.

Fixing the Blame.

"Do you believe in hoodoos?" asked the superstitious person.

"Well," answered the man who had failed to make good in a dozen different enterprises, "I've got to preserve my self respect, you know."—Detroit Free Press.

Immune.

"Young man," said the friendly adviser, "whatever you do, avoid debt."

"I guess that's what I'll have to do," was the answer, "unless my credit gets better." — Washington Star.

Not Always a Lobster.

"Do not judge a man too hastily when he gets into hot water," remarked the observer of events and things. "Others besides lobsters get in hot water."—Yonkers Statesman.

Diet and Digestion.

Abstemiousness in diet is very conducive to a good digestion. It is preferable to be a little underfed than at all overfed. Hence we come to one of the first causes of indigestion in the adult, too large a quantity of food. After an ordinary meal the food should all have left the stomach by the end of six or seven hours. If owing to an excessive quantity the stomach cannot deal with the amount some food remains in the stomach and ferments. This creates discomfort, pain, wind, nausea and perhaps vomiting, by means of which the abused stomach gets rid of its burden. If the sufferer is not thus fortunately sick the best thing he can do is to drink a large tumbler of lukewarm water, which will probably induce vomiting and so wash out the stomach. Half a teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda added to the fluid will cause still more relief. During the next twenty-four hours the lightest diet, such as a little tea and dried toast, some boiled rice, a little arrowroot or corn flour, should be taken.

Anxious.

"I hear that your wife has run away from you?"

"Yes. I've offered a reward for her capture, dead or alive."

"How much?"

"Ten dollars alive and a thousand dollars dead."—Judge.

60 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York

Branch Office, [illegible] F St., Washington, D. C.

Remember the dates-Sept. 3,4,5,6,7, and 8th.

That's the Holiday Week of the Year—The week of the Great MINNESOTA STATE FAIR.

Opening of the $100,000 Livestock Amphitheater on Monday morning Sept. 3rd. Dedication adress by James J. Hill,

Dan Patch and Cresceus, the two fastest stallions in the world, to go against their world's records Monday.

The greatest Live Stock Exhibition of the world—All the week. [illegible] of Pure Bred Cattle in the Amphitheater [illegible]

[illegible] Sensational Racing each day.

[illegible] Spectacular Fireworks. Racing, [illegible] Minneapolis Day. $5,000 Pacing Race on St. Paul Day. [illegible] Race—Six days—Every afternoon of fair week. High Class Speci[illegible] afternoon and evening. Demonstrations of all kinds of farm and Dairy Machinery—Daily. Premiums and Purses $65,644 50.

Half Fare Railroad Rates.

Tickets on Sale Saturday Sep. 1 Good returning to leave Cities until Monday Sep. 10th

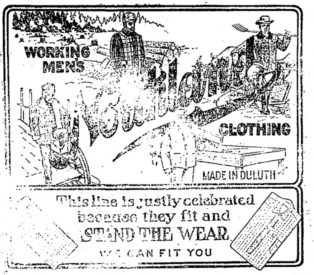
C. N. Cosgrove, Pres. E. W. Randall, Sec'y.

THE FIRST STATE BANK, OF THIEF RIVER FALLS. WILL LOAN YOU THE Money To Make Your Second Payment, or to make your final proof. Give us a call, as we give the best rates On Farm Loans.

Stephen Singer, Edward Singer,

SINGER BROS.

Dealers In,



WORKING MENS
CLOTHING
MADE IN DULUTH
This line is justly celebrated because they fit and STAND THE WEAR
WE CAN FIT YOU

Groceries, flour & feed.

Dry Goods, Boots & Shoes.

HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR FARM PRODUCE

Rhoda, Minn.

NEW STORE,

AT ANTON MINNESOTA.

Dry Goods, Goceries, Flour & feed.,

EXCLUSIVE AGENTS FOR THE CELEBRATED DE-LAVAL CREAM SEPERATOR, IN THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

Any Kind Of Stock Taken In Exchange For Goods.

Give me a call.

Located at Anton post office, on the Red Lake River, Eight miles east of Thief River Falls.

Christ Larsen, Proprietor.

BACKACHE IS KIDNEYACHE.

Get at the Cause—Cure the Kidneys.

Don't neglect backache. It warns you of trouble in the kidneys. Avert the danger by curing the kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills. J. A. Haywood, a well known resident of Lufkin, Tex., says: "I wrenched my back working in a sawmill, was laid up six weeks, and from that time had pain in my back whenever I stooped or lifted. The urine was badly disordered and for a long time I had attacks of gravel. After I began using Doan's Kidney Pills the gravel passed out, and my back got well. I haven't had backache or bladder trouble since."

Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

HE MADE THE OPPORTUNITY.

How Educator Succeeded in Desire to Address Students.

A distinguished educator of Boston, who once visited a western college during examination week, was, for some reason or other, not asked to address the students, as he had expected he would be. In chapel he was merely requested to lead in prayer, which he did in this wise:

"Be pleased, Father in Heaven, to guide the steps of the president of this college. Thou knowest that he was a clasmate of Thy servant, a graduate of the class of '84, taking high honors. Thine eye hath looked with favor upon the happy choice that resulted in his appointment, with the consent of the trustees, as the head of this institution. Thou knowest that the students of this college ought to look upon him as a friend as well as their president. Thou knowest that thy servant is well pleased with the high standards of scholarship here prevailing and with the righteousness and loyalty of the students."

Finally, to the intense delight of the students, the visitor concluded his prayer as follows:

"And I thank Thee for this opportunity to address the students of this college."

GIANT RADISHES OF THE EAST

There the Vegetable Grows to an Enormous Size.

Radishes in North China and in Japan are as important and ubiquitous a part of every meal as is bread in America. In both countries many millions of bushels of this vegetable are grown every year, and they are to be had at all seasons. It is thus easy to understand why these parts of the world grow the strangest and biggest radishes known.

The giants beside the little French Breakfast, our favorite American variety, are but babies beside the monsters they grow under the warm, moist influences of the oriental climate.

These radishes are grown on American soil from seeds imported by the United States department of agriculture from China. They take well to the American climate, and probably would have weighed five pounds when full grown.

When these fellows are grown in China they rapidly form a great brilliant red globe eight to ten inches in diameter and weighing sometimes 20 pounds. Another kind is snow white and grows a foot long, and still another is a brilliant green on the outside and a beautiful wine red when the skin is cut. Some of these strange vegetables are exceedingly delicate in flavor and texture when grown under favorable conditions.

GOOD NIGHT'S SLEEP.

No Medicine so Beneficial to Brain and Nerves.

Lying awake nights makes it hard to keep awake and do things in day time. To take "tonics and stimulants" under such circumstances is like setting the house on fire to see if you can put it out.

The right kind of food promotes refreshing sleep at night and a wide awake individual during the day.

A lady changed from her old way of eating, to Grape-Nuts, and says:

"For about three years I had been a great sufferer from indigestion. After trying several kinds of medicine, the doctor would ask me to drop off potatoes, then meat, and so on, but in a few days that craving, gnawing feeling would start up, and I would vomit everything I ate and drank.

"When I started on Grape-Nuts, vomiting stopped, and the bloating feeling which was so distressing disappeared entirely.

"My mother was very much bothered with diarrhea before commencing the Grape-Nuts, because her stomach was so weak she could not digest her food. Since using Grape-Nuts she is well, and says she don't think she could live without it.

"It is a great brain restorer and nerve builder, for I can sleep as sound and undisturbed after a supper of Grape-Nuts as in the old days when I could not realize what they meant by a "bad stomach." There is no medicine so beneficial to nerves and brain as a good night's sleep, such as you can enjoy after eating Grape-Nuts."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason."

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

The University.

On the 17th of September, the University of Minnesota will open its doors for its thirty-ninth year of instruction. The prospects for a large and increased attendance are reported to be unusually good. Dr. Richard Burton, formerly professor in English, and more recently lecturer on English, has accepted the call of the Regents of the University and will come back to the University to take charge of the department. Dr. Burton is enthusiastic in his work and an exceedingly popular lecturer, his coming back to the University will add strength not only to the department of English, but to the whole University as well. Dr. Albert Jenks, formerly an instructor in the University of Wisconsin comes to the University as assistant professor of Sociology. Dr. Jenks' special training has been along the line of ethnology, in which field he is an acknowledged authority and a voluminous writer. Dr. Jenks was chief of the ethnological department of the Philippine exhibit at the St. Louis exposition and was for three years a resident of the Philippines, while making a special study of Philippine ethnology.

The new college of education, which was authorized by the last legislature, has become an established fact, and offers, for the first time, carefully arranged courses especially adapted to the needs of teachers. The course in this college corresponds to the last two years of the regular college course, and is open to anyone who has had the requisite training. Dean George F. James will be assisted, in the special work of the department of pedaformerly state inspector of graded schools, and Professor Charles M. Holt, who has been an assistant in the department for several years. This college was organized in response to the demand of the teachers of the state and promises to fill a need which has been felt for many years.

Moscow at the Fair.

Hamline—Revolutionary times in Moscow is the theme for Gregory's wonderful pyrotechnical production of that title, which will be the feature of the evening program at the Minnesota State Fair this year. Over two hundred performers are utilized in the big Gregory production and the City of Moscow is represented by four acres of artistic scenery, realistically blended with a score of real buildings towering in the background. The costuming is superb and the entire spectacle is given with realistic effect.

During the gayer scenes of Moscow are introduced pretty ballets, sensational aerial and acrobatic specialties, imposing pageants, music, etc.

When the smoke of the burned city clears away comes the big feature of this gigantic and novel summer night show, in the $1,000 display of Gregory's Greater Fireworks, which concludes each performance. More and finer fireworks than have been witnessed in a lifetime make up one of these displays and are worth going many miles to see.

The state fair is held this year during the week of Sept. 3-8. Half fare rates on all railroads.

Caught in Quicksand.

Minneapolis—Caught in a rush of quicksand while working in a trench on the Soo, near Loretto, Albert Anderson, a laborer, met a horrible death.

Anderson was employed by the Moe Construction company, and with a party of workmen had been sent to the trench to drain off the quicksand, which has troubled the road for more than a year. While the men were working, one of the planks in the curbing broke, letting the sand and water in on them. There was a wild scramble in which all of the men except Anderson escaped.

News Notes.

St. Paul—Charles Knowlan is run over by a wagon and probably fatally injured.

St. Paul—Henry Dankert of Milwaukee is robbed and murdered in the railway yards.

St. Paul—The monument to the German-American veterans in the German Lutheran cemetery is unveiled.

Mankato—Two fields of wheat threshed by George Keith of Sterling yielded sixteen and twenty bushels of No. 1 wheat respectively.

Kasson—Roy Daggert, a farmer living five miles southwest of here, lost several valuable horses, killed by eating too much wheat.

Duluth—Shortage of cars is seriously interfering with the lake shipping business, and as a result the vessels are being held longer in unloading at the terminal points.

St. Paul—The state board of investment met at the capitol and approved loans of state funds to counties, school districts and municipalities, totaling $130,525.

Aitkin—W. A. Rathburn claims the distinction of being the only man belonging to a Texas regiment to attend the reunion at Minneapolis. He served two years in Company A, First Texas volunteer cavalry.

Nashwauk—Oscar Olson, thirty-five years old, was found dead from sunstroke at Snowball, near here. Nothing is known about the dead man's antecedents, but he is supposed to have a sister in Michigan.

St. Paul—President Stickney says the railway companies manipulate their tariff schedule now instead of granting rebates.

St. Paul—Milton L. Bevan, for many years a well-known and respected citizen, fell dead of heart failure at his home 1419 Langford avenue.

Rosetown—Charles Knowles, 14 years of age, living with his parents on a dairy farm, was probably fatally injured in St. Paul Sunday as a result of the rear wheel of a milk wagon passing over his foot and chest.

Minneapolis—Tom Dockery, the artful dodger of the Dockery gang that gave the police so much trouble several years ago, was arrested in St. Paul and held for the Minneapolis police. Dockery had been a fugitive from justice for two years.

ERRORS ABOUT THE WHITE HOUSE.

To the Editor:

I noticed somewhere recently—I would not say positively that it was in your columns—an article on the White House which contained several misstatements.

In the first place it was stated the White House was first occupied in 1809 and that its first occupant was President Madison. The fact is, its first occupant was President Adams, who took up his residence there in 1800.

The original mansion was begun in 1792. In 1814 it was burned by the British and rebuilt in 1818.

Another of the errors in the article referred to was the statement that ready-prepared paint is used on the White House to make it beautifully white.

I noticed this especially because I have used considerable paint myself and wondered that "canned" paint should be used on such an important building when all painters know that pure white lead and linseed oil make the best paint.

It so happened also that I knew white lead and linseed oil—not ready-mixed paint—were used on the White House, because I had just read a booklet published by a firm of ready-mixed paint manufacturers who also manufacture pure white lead. In that book the manufacturers admitted that for the White House nothing but "the best and purest of paint could be used," and said that their pure white lead had been selected.

Above all people, those who attempt to write on historical subjects should give us facts, even if it is only a date or a statement about wood, or brick, or paint, or other building material.

Yours for truth,

L

YOUNG COLONEL IN DILEMMA

Ways of War Were a New Thing to His Understanding.

At the Army and Navy club in Washington a number of veteran officers were telling stories, when Gen. Chaffee told this anecdote of Gen. Carr, who died in New York some years ago:

It appears that Gen. Carr, at the outbreak of the civil war, had left Troy to take command of a regiment. The engagement in which, as colonel, he first figured was at Big Bethel. His regiment had been halted for rest and refreshment in a pleasant place and had not yet experienced the excitement of a skirmish. It happened however, that confederates were in ambush in the immediate neighborhood and from a safe hiding place they opened fire on the northerners. Carr, so the story runs, instantly put spurs to his horse and dashed up to a group of officers. Excitement and bewilderment were apparent upon his young face as he approached the party.

"They are firing upon my regiment!" he shouted. "My God! Now what is to be done?"—Harper's Weekly.

His Only Concern.

A well known member of the New York bar, a man of most patronizing manner, one day met John G. Carlisle, to whom he observed loftily.

"I see, Carlisle, that the supreme court has overruled you in the case of Mullins versus Jenkinson. But," he added, in his grand way, "you, Carlisle, need feel no concern about your reputation."

Carlisle chuckled. "Quite so," he agreed. "I'm only concerned for the reputation of the supreme court."—Harper's Weekly.

Training School for Elephants.

There is a training school for elephants at Api, in the Congo State, where 28 elephants are taking lessons. The training operations have produced encouraging results, says the Tribune Congolaise.

Wives and widows use somewhat different tones in speaking of their late husbands.

DUBIOUS

About What Her Husband Would Say.

A Mich. woman tried Postum Food Coffee because ordinary coffee disagred wtih her and her husband. She writes:

"Hy husband was sick for three years with catarrh of the bladder, and palpitation of the heart, caused by coffee. Was unable to work at all and in bed part of the time.

"I had stomach trouble, was weak and fretful so I could not attend to my housework—both of us using coffee all the time, and realizing it was harmful.

"One morning the grocer's wife said she believed coffee was the cause of our trouble and advised Postum. I took it home rather dubious about what my husband would say—he was fond of coffee.

"But I took coffee right off the table, and we haven't used a cup of it since. You should have seen the change in us, and now my husband never complains of heart palpitation any more. My stomach trouble went away in two weeks after I began Postum. My children love it and it does them good, which can't be said of coffee.

"A lady visited us who was always half sick. I told her I'd make her a cup of Postum. She said it was tasteless stuff, but she watched me make it, boiling it thoroughly for 15 minutes, and when done she said it was splendid. Long boiling brings out the flavor and food quality." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Read the little book "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

BABY COVERED WITH SORES.

Would Scratch and Tear the Flesh Unless Hands Were Tied—"Would Have Died But for Cuticura."

"My little son, when about a year and a half old, began to have sores come out on his face. I had a physician treat him, but the sores grew worse. Then they began to come on his arms, then on other parts of his body, and then one came on his chest, worse than the others. Then I called another physician. Still he grew worse. At the end of about a year and a half of suffering he grew so bad I had to tie his hands in cloths at night to keep him from scratching the sores and tearing the flesh. He got to be a mere skeleton, and was hardly able to walk. My aunt advised me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I sent to the drug store and got a cake of the Soap and a box of the Ointment, and at the end of about two months the sores were all well. He has never had any sores of any kind since. He is now strong and healthy, and I can sincerely say that only for your most wonderful remedies my precious child would have died from those terrible sores. Mrs. Egbert Sheldon, R. F. D. No. 1, Woodville, Conn., April 22, 1905."

DIAMONDS IN UNITED STATES

Stones to the Value of $300 Found in Single Year.

Never in the history of the United States has there been such a demand for diamonds as there was in 1905. Large quantities were imported, but the country produced none.

In 1903 it produced diamonds to the value of $50, in 1901 it had an output worth $100, in 1900 its production was valued at $150, and in 1899 the country boasted native diamonds to the value of $300.

Diamonds have been discovered in the United States in four different regions, but their actual place of origin is unknown. All have been found in loose and superficial deposits, and all accidentally.

It is not at all improbable, however, that some day the original sources of this queen of gems may be discovered. The high price of diamonds has made the recent search for these precious stones in the United States and Canada keener than ever before.—Scientific American.

Alum Baking Powder Is Wholesome.

Dr. Herman Reinbold, the expert German chemist, in a recent official report concerning Baking Powders, declares that a pure alum baking powder is better and less injurious than the so-called cream of tartar powders. He says that if the quantity of alum contained in a sufficient quantity of baking powder for a batch of bread or cakes for an ordinary family, be concentrated to one mouthful of food, and taken into the stomach of any one person, no matter how delicate, it could do no harm. On the contrary, alum is wholesome in proper quantities. This is undoubtedly the reason the State of Missouri quickly repealed a law that prohibited the manufacture of the most wholesome of all baking powders. So much for Alum Baking Powders.

Strange Story—But True.

F. L. Vandegrift has a new story. It is illustrative of the marvelous fecundity of the English sparrow.

"I was pending Sunday with the Dumont Smiths, at Kinsley," said Van, in recounting his experience. "We had been up late the night before and I was a trifle drowsy. I sat out on the front porch listening to the church bells and gazing off into the illimitable space that lies between a shortgrass town and the horizon beyond.

"Presently I dropped my hat into a bed of virginia creeper and dozed off to sleep. I could not have slept more than an hour, for the children were passing the house on the way from Sunday school when I awoke. I rubbed my eyes and glanced over at my hat. In it sat an English sparrow brooding a setting of eggs. While I slept the sparows had built a nest in my hat, the mother bird had laid a full complement of eggs and had begun the work of hatching them."—Kansas City Journal.

Buyers' Excursions to Milwaukee.

The Jobbers and Manufacturers' association have arranged for another merchants' excursion to Milwaukee. Tickets will be on sale from September 1st to 9th inclusive, and good to return home September 3d to 19th.

Any merchant in the northwest can get the rate of one and one-fifth fare for the round trip for himself and wife and anyone actively interested in his business.

Buy tickets to Milwaukee at full fare and ask for a certificate (not a receipt) for fare paid. This will entitle you to return home for only one-fifth fare, after having certificate validated at secretary's office, 45 University building, any time within dates mentioned.

Take advantage of low fare and visit Beautiful Milwaukee.

England Mourns Dairy Butter.

The London Times asserts that genuine dairy butter is a thing past praying for. Four-fifths of the population of London, the Times asserts, have never seen it in their lives. Those who know what it is have great difficulty in procuring it, and cannot obtain it in many cases at any price. What is called genuine butter in London, the Times says, is blended and reworked butter.

California's New Idea.

A California ostrich farmer is about to open a branch office in London, where he will have a collection of ostriches, and incredulous customers will be treated to feathers cut direct from the backs of the ostriches, manufactured under the customers' eyes, and sold to them across the counter "at a price they never heard of."

Economy is the road to wealth. PUTNAM FADELESS DYE is the road to economy.

There is something wrong with the religion of a woman who never has a kindly thought of her rival.

Don't Get Footsore! Get Foot-Ease. A wonderful powder that cures tired, hot, aching feet and makes new or tight shoes easy. Ask to-day for Allen's Foot-Ease. Accept no substitute. Trial package FREE. Address A. S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

Beware of Servian Bank Notes.

There is dismay in the Servian ministry of finance. In the strong room in this department, in a specific safe, were stored the engraved plates from which Servian bank notes were struck. These plates were engraved in Paris and cost a sum of £1,600. All these plates have within the past few days been found to be stolen from the safe, without any visible sign of the safe having been tampered with.

THE WHITE RIVER COUNTRY.

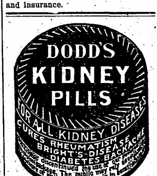
In the opinion of one who has traveled much and observed closely, the most truly and rightfully contented people in the United States to-day are the small landowners in what is known as the Upper White River Country, anywhere from Newport, Ark., to Carthage, Mo. They are contented because their surroundings are ideal and, until recently, the great, uneasy, disquieting world, with its artificial needs and inadequate compensations, has been to them but little more tangible than a dream. Here, still existent, and by reason of their very rarity at this day and time more delectable than in the past, are the conditions which have ever appealed with irresistible force to the independent-spirited Anglo-Saxon. Every man is the supreme ruler of his own little principality; acknowledging no master save the law—and possibly his feminine helpmeet; cringing to no employer; asking no favors from the world, save those that his neighbors freely extend and expect as freely in return. He lives in a latitude where the extremes of heat or cold are never known, and at an altitude that insures perfect health. The richest bounty of Nature has been showered upon him with unsparing hand, but it is a question whether he more than dimly realizes the fact. He accepts as a matter of course the fertile soil which produces in abundance every cultivable growth common to the north temperate zone, the surrounding forests of valuable woods and the underlying stratas of precious minerals; the springs and streams of translucent purity on every hand, the wealth of fish and game at his very door, such as less favored mortals annually travel hundreds of miles to find. He is contented, but small credit is his for that, for how could he well be otherwise than content? It is sad that such idealistic conditions may not continue, but it is written that the present possessors of this favored land must soon give place to others more appreciative of its incomparable features. A railroad has recently cut its way through the best of this region, and the unaccustomed rustle of bank notes and chink of coin will eventually tempt the hill-dweller to part with his birthright. So it has always been in the world's history—the good things that are ours without price invariably pass from our hands before we come to understand their value. The White River country will shortly be discovered anew by a class of immigrants better capable of judging its possibilities—the men who seek modest homes where the "lay of the land" will effectually prevent crowding by too close neighbors, where their cattle can fatten on free range, where the wealth of forest and mine awaits development by intelligent workers, and where the game and fish offer enjoyable recreation to all who have leisure and inclination for sport.

Schools Spreading in China.

A few years ago the foreign missionary schools were practically the only institutions in Foochow offering facilities for the acquisition of western learning. There are now at least 30 native schools fashioned after the foreign model. Foochow is a city of 600,000 inhabitants, and these schools embrace about 2,000 students. Posters placarded all over the city advertise the opening of various modern schools, which are springing up in every nook and corner of the place. Scarcely a week passes without the announcement of the opening of a new school.

French State Monopolies.

State monopolies are more than ever in favor in France as a means of raising revenue to the prejudice of private enterprise. A committee of the chamber of deputies has been appointed, with a foreign minister of finance as chairman, to collect information on the possible working of monopolies on sugar and petroleum refining, the rectification of alcohol, and insurance.



TUMORS CONQUERED

SERIOUS OPERATIONS AVOIDED.

Unqualified Success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the Case of Mrs. Fannie D. Fox.

One of the greatest triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the conquering of woman's dread enemy, Tumor.

The growth of a tumor is so sly that frequently its presence is not suspected until it is far advanced.

Mrs. Fannie D. Fox

So-called "wandering pains" may come from its early stages, or the presence of danger may be made manifest by profuse monthly periods, accompanied by unusual pain, from the abdomen through the groin and thighs.

If you have mysterious pains, if there are indications of inflammation or displacement, secure a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound right away and begin its use.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., will give you her advice if you will write her about yourself. She is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for twenty-five years has been advising sick women free of charge.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I take the liberty to congratulate you on the success I have had with your wonderful medicine. Eighteen months ago my periods stopped. Shortly after I felt so badly that I submitted to a thorough examination by a physician and was told that I had a tumor and would have to undergo an operation.

"Soon after I read one of your advertisements and decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. After taking five bottles as directed the tumor is entirely gone. I have been examined by a physician and he says I have no signs of a tumor now. It has also brought my periods around once more, and I am entirely well."—Fannie D. Fox, 7 Chestnut Street, Bradford, Pa.

EDUCATIONAL.

The Greatest Boarding College in the World

University of Notre Dame

NOTRE DAME, INDIANA

We guarantee two points: Our students study and our students behave themselves

18 Buildings 75 Professors 800 Students

Courses in Ancient and Modern Languages, English, History, and Economics, Chemistry, Biology, Pharmacy, Civil, Electrical, and Mechanical Engineering, Architecture, Law, Shorthand, Book-keeping, Type-writing.

SPECIAL DEPARTMENT FOR BOYS UNDER THIRTEEN

TERMS: Board, Tuition, and Laundry, $400. Send ten cents to the Secretary for Catalogue

YOU CANNOT

CURE

all inflamed, ulcerated and catarrhal conditions of the mucous membrane such as nasal catarrh, uterine catarrh caused by feminine ills, sore throat, sore mouth or inflamed eyes by simply dosing the stomach.

But you surely can cure these stubborn affections by local treatment with

Paxtine Toilet Antiseptic

which destroys the disease germs, checks discharges, stops pain, and heals the inflammation and soreness.

Paxtine represents the most successful local treatment for feminine ills ever produced. Thousands of women testify to this fact. 50 cents at druggists.

Send for Free Trial Box

THE R. PAXTON CO., Boston, Mass.

SICK HEADACHE

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively cured by these Little Pills.

They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.

SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature

Brent Good

REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

37,500,000

PEOPLE DIE EACH YEAR

In the United States, alone, more than a million die yearly from preventable diseases.

GOOD HEALTH

tells why these startling facts exist. GOOD HEALTH is the oldest health journal in the world, a big handsomely illustrated and ably edited magazine for the home. The price is one dollar a year. Single copies ten cents.

Send twenty-five cents and this advertisement for a trial three months' subscription.

GOOD HEALTH PUBLISHING COMPANY, BATTLE CREEK, MICH.

WINDMILLS

Ask for Catalog St-151.

Fairbanks, Morse & Co., St. Paul

WINTER Wheat, 60 bushels per acre. Catalogue and samples FREE. Salzer Seed Co. Box W.K. LaCrosse, Wis.

Historical Society

MINNESOTA
HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. VI. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, SEPT. 7, 1906. NO. 23.

News from New York

Interesting Gossip by Our Correspondent in Gotham—Obesity as a New Cause for Divorce—Many Illegal Separations During the Past 20 Years.

NEW YORK.—Young maidens, beware! If single blessedness does not appeal to you and you are contemplating matrimony, be careful and do not put on too much weight in your new home or you may be relegated to the ranks of the grass widow.

Why? Because obesity is now an officially recognized cause for divorce. Hereafter slender maidens may recall with a pang as they take the marriage vow that "Till death us do part" means "Until I get fat." And the well established tendency of American women to press the limit of comfortable plumpness may well become a shadow over many homes.

Fat as a cause for divorce was put into the records by Louis Link, a tailor, who was legally separated the other day from his wife by the supreme court.

According to the story of the Links—and husband and wife agree on that point—when Louis married Sarah 18 years ago she was fair to look upon, with a figure that was more like a Diana than a Venus. But, alas! time changes all things, and Sarah is no exception. From a willowy maiden she passed through the varying stages, becoming by turns plump, large, stout, fat, and finally obese.

Louis couldn't stand the last, and so he applied to his local rabbi for a divorce according to the Talmudic law. When he told the good man that Sarah had increased from 130 to 225, the decree was granted immediately.

Louis in his childlike simplicity did not await the formality of a divorce under the statute law, but immediately married a young woman whose embonpoint was in keeping with his taste.

Sarah went to court and had this second marriage annulled, and Louis and Sarah determined to try to live down the past.

"I spent hundreds of dollars," said Louis, "buying her anti-fat, but it only made her larger. When she grew to 250 pounds I could stand it no longer."

"Yes," said Sarah, "he got so he seldom took me to parties and balls, although I am very fond of dancing, and when we did go he refused to spiel with me. I could stand it no longer and I applied for a limited divorce. I got it."

Both admitted that maybe if Sarah should lose some of her fat they would be remarried.

MANY DIVORCES FOUND ILLEGAL.

ILLEGALITY
ROTTEN!
DIVORCE
TOMATOES

Speaking of divorces, amazing irregularities in many of the divorces granted in this city within the past 20 years have been discovered. So far there is a flaw in one divorce out of every five examined.

These defects were found by William H. K. Jarvis, of the census bureau, and his corps of 15 "divorce girls," sent from Washington for statistics of divorces. If made known they would make bigamists of many couples married in good faith and illegitimatize many children.

How much and how many of these discoveries will be made public depends largely on action to be taken by Mr. Jarvis. If he applies to the court for necessary data in thousands of cases an order may be granted to "unseal the papers."

From 1886 to 1896 divorces were granted in the superior court and in the court of common pleas here and in Brooklyn. The average was about 490 a year for the ten years. Since they were replaced by the supreme court in 1896 the divorce records of these two courts in New York county have been filed away in the county courthouse. Records of divorces since 1896 are kept by the county clerk.

The 15 examiners from the census bureau have reached the year 1887 in their examination and compilation. Already they have discovered that nearly 20 per cent. of the papers filed away are incomplete. They do not contain any final award or decree signed by a judge. Without this they are invalid.

It used to be the custom for many judges to announce their decisions from the bench, "Decree granted to the plaintiff" or "defendant," as the case might be. Then it was the duty of the attorney to prepare a formal decree, have this signed by the judge, and file it for record. Many lawyers neglected to do this.

Their unsuspecting clients since then have married again and raised other families.

As a matter of law, all such marriages are bigamous, and all such children of the second marriage—even though it was contracted in good faith—have no property rights.

The complications of this sort that will arise if the incomplete records are ever made public are matters of distressful conjecture.

"TOZER," PET OF THE BATTERY, MISSING.

"Tozer"—nobody knows where he got his name—has disappeared from Battery park. Tozer is a little half-breed fox terrier, and for years he has lived along the docks on South street by night, and in front of the barge office by day. Every policeman, every tramp, every longshoreman, every newsboy, and for that matter everybody who had business that took him to South ferry and South street more than once a week knew Tozer, for Tozer was the smartest, sleekest little tramp of a dog that ever begged a meal from a free lunch counter.

Tozer came to the Battery five years ago. "Dick" Ganley, one of the veterans of the police force, found him. Tozer was so hungry that he could hardly stand up, and Ganley hurried to a nearby delicatessen shop and got a banquet for the dog. Tozer ate until he almost exploded; then Ganley took him inside the barge office and showed him a horse blanket that wasn't in use. Five minutes later Tozer was sleeping the sleep of the just. When he awoke somebody called him "Tozer," and ever after that was his name. Ganley says the dog practically named himself.

One of Tozer's Battery park friends thinks Tozer went to the West Indies on a Nova Scotian schooner and that he will eventually show up again. Nobody believes he has been killed, except possibly by accident.

MANY SUPERSTITIOUS FOREIGNERS.

It will probably surprise many to learn that there are thousands of people in this city who believe in ghosts, witches, spooks and superstitions.

Director Smith, of Central park, called attention to one large body of the superstitious a few weeks ago when he protested in their behalf against the sale of the two donkeys in the zoo. He declared that if at least one of the donkeys was not kept on hand mothers of babies with whooping cough or threatened with that complaint would be after him tooth and nail. And why? Simply because if baby has whooping cough mother or nurse sneaks off with him to Central park and passes his wee body three times under and over the donkey's body in a circle. And, of course—the whooping cough disappears. It may take some time for the cure to be effected—but that is not the donkey's fault.

On the east side, and particularly among the foreign quarters, there are whole colonies which believe firmly in witchcraft. They have been reared in that belief and have a surprising knowledge about evil eyes and other things akin to the supernatural.

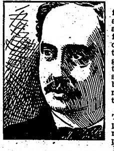
One woman, for instance, has slept under the bed instead of on it for over ten years; in fact, ever since she was told that some night a witch would come and cast a spell over her in her sleep. So she sleeps under her bed on the floor every night so that the witch cannot find her.

Mme. Ventaur, a Bohemian lady, has been working among this class of people for some time past in an effort to drive these foolish notions out of their heads. In her work she has encountered a great many strange cases.

Men and women go to her imploring her to remove the spell cast on them by the "evil eye." In some instances many months' work is necessary before these people can be convinced that there is no such power in existence.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

MAY GET BOTH NOMINATIONS



Theodore E. Burton, the leading congressman from Ohio, chairman of the committee on rivers and harbors, who recently returned from attendance on the interparliamentary arbitration conference in Europe, may have the rare distinction of being the nominee of both parties for reelection. If this should come about it will not be altogether owing to his personal popularity, although that is a large factor, but because the Democrats see no chance of defeating him and fear a possible fight for the honor of the nomination which might interfere with their hopes for success in the contest for other offices.

At a welcome home reception given by the Tippecanoe club in Cleveland Mr. Burton emphasized his stand for the meantenance of the right of individual judgment. He opposed the plan to have the Republicans rebuke Senators Foraker and Dick for their opposition to measures advocated by President Roosevelt by omitting the usual resolution of indorsement.

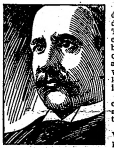
Mr. Burton is notoriously unsubmissive to the party lash. For example, Cleveland, the city which he represents in congress, is completely inoculated with the doctrine of rehabilitating the merchant marine by subsidies—Burton condemns the principle. Burton is unalterably opposed to a larger navy.

As a man, in stature, manner and temperament, Burton is much like John Sherman. He is now 54 years of age and his mustache is turning gray, while his hair is disappearing. He is six feet tall and slightly bent, but as youthful in manner as ten years ago.

Mr. Burton is a student, he is a bachelor and his half dozen rooms in Washington, where he lives alone, are packed with books and public and private papers. Even the gas range in the kitchen is usually smothered in literature and the pantry shelves are filled with it.

At the age of 13 Burton had read all of Shakespeare and was then within one year of college, when his strength gave way. Nevertheless, he graduated from Oberlin at 20. He remained with his alma mater at tutor in Greek and Latin and taught Homer and Cicero without text books. While studying Hebrew he suddenly turned to law and politics and thus altered his whole career.

HIS DECISION CAUSED A RIOT



Judge William Jay Gaynor, of Brooklyn, doubtless had no idea, when he handed down a decision that the all-powerful Brooklyn Rapid Transit company could not lawfully collect ten-cent fares to Coney Island, that the result would be a popular uprising against the illegal attempt of the company to collect that fare and that an all-day riot would occur in which 150,000 people would participate and two or three people be killed and a dozen injured. If he had known this it would have made no difference with him.

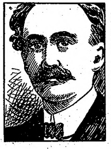
This is not the first time Judge Gaynor has caused a stir in Greater New York. He went against the leaders of his own party, smashing the rings right and left.

Judge Gaynor is no respecter of persons. When John D. Rockefeller was dodging the process servers by hiding in his mansion at Pocantico Hills, Judge Gaynor said in a public address that no decent man would dodge a subpena by hiding in his home and have his wife, his children and his servants lie repeatedly and say they did not know where he was.

"Would a decent man hurry into another state or go across the sea?" he asked, "or would he come forward like a man and say: 'I am here!' If he lied and sneaked away would not he be considered by the community as dishonest and dishonorable? Is he fit to mingle with honest people?

"No; he is all the more contemptible and guilty and no amount of church and Sunday school teaching can make such a character decent or respectable."

IS FIGHTING CORRUPTION RULE



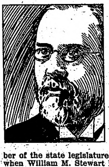
Ben B. Lindsey (that is how he signs his name), a Denver judge who started an investigation of the last election in which the city voted away $30,000,000 in gas, tramway and other franchises, finds himself up against one of the boldest cases of corporation rule in the history of the United States. Corporation attorneys had three times prevented the district courts from investigating these alleged frauds. Judge Lindsey ordered Sheriff Nesbet to organize an armed force and remove the ballot boxes from a warehouse in which they were stored. The sheriff was repulsed by guards. Through the efforts of the Honest Election league the judge obtained some of the boxes.

The wholesale corruption which now holds Denver in its grasp may be judged from the conditions found in one election precinct: Only five blocks, two covered by railway tracks. Only 129 men and women living in the precinct. Registered, 717; voted, 726, seven being for minority party; ballots all written in same hand. "Billy" Green, convicted for this fraud, put in jail a few weeks and then put on the detective force.

Judge Lindsey ordered four leading corporation managers to appear before him for investigation. They refused to testify and he sent them to jail. A district court judge was found who promptly released them. Judge Lindsey will continue to arrest them, but it will be an uphill fight against men who own courts, city administrations and election officials.

Judge Lindsey's great popularity in Denver is shown by the fact that when he ran for his position at the last election a year ago his opponent received but 15 votes to the judge's 61,000. Judge Lindsey is 36 years of age. The jude's demeanor is somewhat boyish, his voice is soft, but his sight is keen.

SENATOR BACKS A PRIZE FIGHT



George S. Nixon, United States senator from Nevada, who has volunteered to see that the Gans-Nelson prize fight at Goldfield on Labor day is "pulled off on the square," owes his start in life to an illness that took him to Nevada when a mere boy and owes much of his recently acquired millions to a little deal with a young gambler whom he aided when the gambler was in hard luck.

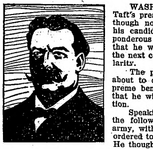
Nixon, at the age of 19, was a telegraph operator in New Castle, Cal., when a severe attack of malaria necessitated a change of occupation. He went to Reno, where he secured a position in the First National bank. Three years later he and others organized the First National bank of Winnemucca, of which he soon became president. He became interested in mining, cattle and sheep raising, was publisher of a daily paper and a politician. He was elected a member of the state legislature in 1891 and was soon recognized as a leader, and when William M. Stewart had served his last term as senator, Nixon was in a position which made him the logical successor.

Nine years ago, when Mr. Nixon was in his bank at Tonopah, a youth of rough and ready appearance entered and wanted to pawn a diamond ring for $25. Nixon hesitated, as he had never done that kind of business, but something in the man's appearance impressed him and he gave him the money.

The youth was George Wingfield, a boy from Oregon, who was more of a gambler than anything else. He wanted to make a try at mining, however, and the $25 helped him over a very tight place. He did not forget Nixon's kindness and when he had struck something good he wrote him of it and Nixon staked him.

Our Washington Letter

Story of Secretary Taft, Who Will Enter the Presidential Race—Comptroller to Rigidly Enforce National Banking Laws—Other Notes of Interest.



WASHINGTON.—The rumor of Secretary Taft's presidential ambitions is again broad. Although no authorized statement making known his candidacy has ever been given out by the ponderous head of the war department, the story that he will seek the Republican nomination at the next convention is circulated with great regularity.

The present rumor says the secretary is about to decline the offer of a seat on the supreme bench, made to him some time ago, and that he will then enter the field for the nomination.

Speaking of the big war the secretary recalls the following story: A certain colonel in the army, within two years of the retiring age, was ordered to the Philippines. He didn't want to go. He thought it ungracious on the part of the war department to send him so far away when he was almost ready to drop out.

His protests availed nothing, and as a last resort he had a few of his friends call on Secretary Taft and suggest to the secretary that it would be a very nice thing to allow the colonel, who had served the country well for so many years, to remain at home instead of shoving him off to the tropics.

Secretary Taft listened patiently. His friends made all the arguments about long and faithful service.

Then, as a clincher, one of them said:

"And, Mr. Secretary, you have lived in the Philipipnes and you know about the climate there. To be frank with you, the colonel is not well. He is getting very fat and we are afraid he can't live over there."

Taft took a slow survey of his own 300 pounds. Then he asked gravely: "Did Taft live?"

BLEW UP HIS OWN HOUSE.

The late Daniel V. Colclazier, whose death occurred the other day, was a conspicuous figure during the confederate attacks on Washington during the civil war. Mr. Colclazier and his family then lived on his farm not far from Fort Stevens. On the advance of the confederates he hastily brought his family to the city, and then immediately returned to the fort. By that time the guns of the fort were in action and the enemy was approaching. Mr. Colclazier, noticing a confederate ammunition wagon near his house and observing that one of the union guns was idle, went to the commanding officer and volunteered to work it, saying that he had had experience in that line as a militiaman. His offer was accepted and he trained the gun on his own house, which with a few shots was demolished.

When President Lincoln came upon the scene Colclazier being the only man not uniformed at the guns, the attention of the president was engaged and he, learning the circumstances of Colclazier's presence, the president directed him to call on the secretary of war the following morning. This Mr. Colclazier did and he was sent to Gen. L. C. Baker, who appointed him on his force of secret service men and one of the bodyguard of the president. Mr. Colclazier was made a sergeant.

On one occasion when Mr. Colclaizier was in this bodyguard, a week or ten days before the assassination of the president, he had an exciting time near the soldiers' home. Mr. Lincoln had just alighted in front of his summer residence and had scarcely taken two steps on the walk when a sharp report was heard. The mounted men with all haste rode in the direction whence came the report, but failed to come up with the party of would-be assassins, who rode down Seventh street into the city.

BANK LAW TO BE RIGIDLY ENFORCED.

TREAS. DEPT.
NATIONAL BANK

Directors of national banks who, by constantly ignoring the law, threaten the solvency of the banks with which they are connected, are to be made examples of by the treasury department. Hereafter the law regulating the making of loans by national banks is to be rigidly enforced and the first bank that willfully and flagrantly violates it will have its charter forfeited. This statement was made by a treasury official the other day while discussing the failure of a Massachusetts national bank.

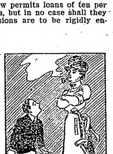
The downfall of this bank was due to an aggravated trouble of which a surprisingly large number of other banks are guilty—excessive loans to bank directors and officers.

The admission was made at the treasury department that two-thirds of the banks habitually disregarded the limitations of the law in regard to the amounts of loans that may be made. What is more, the department is regularly informed of these violations of law, which are duly reported to the controller of the currency by bank examiners. It has long been the custom of the controller's office to condone these unlawful acts, and beyond calling the offending banks' attention to the excess loans and perhaps an admonition to avoid a repetition of the offense, nothing is done.

In other words, the treasury department winks at violations of the law which every now and then wreck a bank. The only punishment that can be meted out to directors who imperil the safety of banks by lending amounts of money in excess of the lawful allowances, is to secure the forfeiture of their charters. This is a step which controllers of recent years considered too drastic to be taken, with the result that not a single bank has been subjected to anything more severe than a reprimand.

A new policy has been decided upon by Controller of the Currency Ridgely. Hereafter he will require banks to live strictly up to the law, and in order to convince the banking world that he is in earnest the controller will inflict the full penalty—forfeiture of charter—on the first bank whose directors willfully violate the law limiting the making of loans. A new law was passed at the recent session of congress, giving to the banks greater latitude in lending money. Prior to this enactment individual loans were restricted to ten per cent. of the capital of the banks. The new law permits loans of ten per cent. of the capital and ten per cent. of the surplus, but in no case shall they exceed 30 per cent. of the capital. These provisions are to be rigidly enforced.

STRANGE OCCUPATIONS OF WOMEN.



Someone with a talent for figures and an earnest interest in the sex has been raking over the last government census and extracting therefrom a bundle of statistics showing some of the strange occupations in which the women of our country are engaged.

A brief glance at this interesting list is enough to reform any mere man who might have thought that woman is a "frail critter," only fit for fancy feather stitching and similar dainty pursuits, and so entitled to the gentle consideration of the sterner sex.

The sex has surely "arrived" and no longer stands in need of protection when it is stated that about one-third of the adult women in the United States are earning their own living, not counting those who are surely earning a living after the good old orthodox fashion, in cooking, sweeping, sewing and spanking, and performing the other duties incident to raising broods of children and maintaining homes for husbands.

It is well known by this time that women have invaded the business world as stenographers, bookkeepers, confidential secretaries and what not; that they have become doctors, lawyers and ministers without number, and that thousands of them have achieved proprietorship in many lucrative branches of business.

Yet a glance at the official list of occupations in which thousands of others are gaining a livelihood is calculated to scare the breath out of sturdy manhood. Who, for instance, would imagine that there are feminine fishermen and oystermen to the number of 1,805 in the United States? That is the number according to the census schedule, and further than that, there are [illegible] stock raisers and drovers and 1,320 women are listed as "guides, [illegible], hunters and scouts."

CHANCE FOR CUBAN REBELS TO BACK UP

AMNESTY DECREE IS ISSUED BY THE SECRETARY ON ORDER OF THE PRESIDENT.

Simultaneously With Its Publication Loyal Troops Defeat Insurgents, Killing Seventeen Men and Losing One Man in Fight.

Havana, Aug. 28.—At the moment Monday when the government was issuing its proclamation offering pardon to rebels who would lay down their arms its forces were dealing the most telling blow that has yet been struck against insurgents in the field.

For several days it has been stated that Gen. Guzman's force of insurgents, which was variously estimated at from 200 upwards, contemplated an attack on Cienfuegos. Col. Valle with a detachment of rural guards and volunteers was dispatched to Cienfuegos for the purpose of engaging Guzman and breaking up the band. The encounter of the two forces resulted in the worst disaster which the insurgents have sustained up to this time. They lost 17 men killed and many wounded, while the loss to the government force was one man killed. The government is without further particulars of the fight.

Insurrection in Decline.

That the insurrection is in a shaky condition seems to be a fact, although the end may not be as near as members of the government profess to believe. Ex-Congressman Faustino (Pino) Guerra, the insurgent leader operating in the province of Pinar Del Rio, in a signed statement telegraphed to the press Monday night declares that he is as determined as ever that the last presidential election shall be annulled before there can be peace in Cuba. That Guerra's force of 2,000 men is well armed and supplied with ammunition and food is amply verified. Their greatest drawback now is the lack of money; but the people of the western part of Pinar Del Rio are furnishing them with all the supplies needed, taking in return therefore orders on the "Cuban government" and in many cases refusing to accept any consideration.

Regarding Amnesty.

The government's offer of amnesty is variously received. It is impossible to say what its effect will be upon those to whom it is addressed. Alfredo Zayas, president of the senate and leader of the liberal party, stated that he was unable to express any opinion as to whether the insurgents would grasp the opportunity offered them of surrendering, but said in his opinion as a lawyer, Secretary Montalvo could not legally issue such an order, for the constitution provides that only the president may make such a proclamation which must be countersigned by some member of the cabinet.

Secretary Maintains Legality.

Secretary Montavlo, on the contrary, stated that the offer of clemency was issued by the direct order of President Palma and also gazetted officially. The secretary added that the document was in reality an order of the secretary of the interior, issued by direction of the president to Gen. Dodriguez, commander of the rural guards.

The foreign element, including many Americans, criticise the offer of amnesty as a weak and disappointing action, showing a desire for peace at any price and a willingness to sacrifice the possibility of future security to a present expediency.

MELON PATCH RAIDS SERIOUS.

Seven Men and Boys Wounded, Three Perhaps Fatally, Near Boone, Iowa.

Boone, Ia., Aug. 28.—Seven men and boys were wounded, three perhaps fatally, Monday in fracases over raids on melon patches.

Newton Phipps, William Phipps and James Moreland, prominent farmers, were set upon and badly stabbed by a gang with whose members they had remonstrated for smashing melons on the Phipps farm. William Phipps probably will not recover.

Oliver Wright, Fred Phillips, Fred Morecow and George Webb, four boys, were discovered upon the farm of William Coleman. Coleman thought they intended to raid his melon patch and opened fire with a shot gun. All four of the boys were wounded, two perhaps fatally.

WIDER LOCKS FOR THE CANAL

Panama Waterway Plans Likely to Be Changed Some.

Washington, Aug. 31.—Locks for the Panama canal probably will be built according to the dimensions recommended by the majority of the consulting board of engineers, which favored the construction of a sea-level waterway, instead of the smaller type planned by the minority of the board. Under this change of programme the locks would be 100 feet wide, with usable lengths of 1,000 feet. The plans adopted by congress provide for locks 95 feet wide, with usable lengths of 900 feet. With this exception, it is said, the minority plans will be followed.

To Double Cotton Area.

Manchester, Eng., Aug. 30.—Sir Daniel Morris, imperial commissioner of agriculture for the West Indies, said the cotton area under cultivation there would be doubled next year.

PRISONERS TO CLEAN CITY

WILL BE PUT TO WORK AT PORT OF VALPARAISO.

Food Is Plentiful and Distribution Is Being Made to Needy, Under Supervision of Authorities.

Santiago, Chili, Aug. 29.—The prisoners in the Valparaiso jail, except such as are known to be dangerous and those who are serving second terms, have been set to work on the improvement of the port.

Commerce is picking up, and matters are beginning to move with regularity.

The government continues to buy building material for use in repairing public buildings.

The president eulogizes the work of the authorities in the procuring and distribution of food, of which there is an abundance. Distributions of provisions are made daily, but every able-bodied man is required to work.

It is believed that the number of wounded in Valparaiso will not exceed 700, most of whom are being cared for by their own people. It has been decided to remove the sick in the Valparaiso hospitals to Santiago. It is impossible to state exactly the number of casualties.

In a few days the railroad service between Santiago and Valparaiso will be restored to its normal footing. President Riesco believes that as a consequence of the preventive measures taken by the authorities immediately after the earthquake danger of an outbreak of sickness has been averted. The water supply of Valparaiso has been completely restored and the sewerage system soon will be reestablished.

Thousands of people are leaving Valparaiso for fear of a recurrence of earthquakes.

The rains having ceased most of the inhabitants of Valparaiso are taking up their abodes in the encampments, at least during the night.

REFORM SPELLING FOLLOWED

Secretary Taft Gets First Letter From President Under New Rules.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Secretary William H. Taft received the first letter from President Roosevelt written in accordance with the rules of the reformed spelling board. The letter was dictated Monday night and pertained to the business of the government, which fact rendered its publicaction impossible. All of the executive correspondence will be spelled in accordance with the recommendations of the reformed spelling board. The list of three hundred words which is the present accomplishment of this board, has been for several days in the hands of the president's stenographers and Secretary Loeb waited until Monday before putting the new spelling into effect, that all might have time to become familiar with the new rules.

GEN. MIN'S BODY IS INTERRED

Russian Revolutionists Fail to Keep Threat to Creat Disorder.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 29.—In spite of the threats of the revolutionists the transfer of the body of Gen. Min from Peterhof to St. Petersburg for interment in the regimental chapel of the Seminovsky regiment took place Tuesday without incident, though with imposing military ceremonial.

The body arrived here late in the afternoon, its departure from Peterhof having been preceded by another religious service at Peterhof, at which the emperor, empress and Grand Duke Nicholas again participated.

The casket was escorted to the barracks here by the entire Seminovsky regiment and by deputations from other guard regiments.

NEGRO ASSAULTS LITTLE GIRL.

Child of Employer in Precarious Condition From Attack by Farmhand.

Cairo, Ill., Aug. 28.—The five year old daughter of Edward Albright, a farmer near Bertrand, Mo., was assaulted Monday afternoon by Charles Goforth, a farm hand employed by her father. Goforth was captured in the Mississippi river swamps by farmers headed by Albright. Albright tried to kill Goforth and beat him terribly, but Goforth was rescued by deputies with bloodhounds brought from Charleston and placed in jail. The little girl is in a precarious condition.

EARL GREY SERIOUSLY INJURED.

Exploding Electric Light Bulb Sends Bits of Glass Into Governor Face.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 28.—Earl Grey, governor general of Canada, had a narrow escape from serious injury here about midnight Sunday.

Just before retiring an electric light bulb exploded full in his face and bits of glass were blown into his eyes, The right optic was closed and the services of a physician were required to bandage up his forehead.

His excellency appeared at Portage la Prairie Monday with a covering over his right eye.

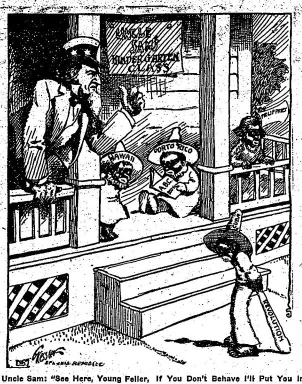
Roosevelt Felicitates Cable Opening.

Copenhagen, Aug. 30. — President Roosevelt has cabled to King Frederick through the American minister, his congratulations on the opening of the cable to Iceland.

Fire Renders 2,000 Homeless.

Kamysein, Aug. 30.—A disastrous conflagration has occurred at the township of Mordovo, near here. About 2,000 persons have been rendered homeless.

WARNING!



Uncle Sam: "See Here, Young Feller, If You Don't Behave I'll Put You In Here."

TEN MILLION TRUST CONCERN IS CLOSED

PRESBYTERIAN FUNDS TO THE AMOUNT OF $1,000,000 MAY BE LOST.

Death of Frank K. Hipple, President of Institution, Leads to Disclosure of Loose Methods in Loaning Money on Inadequate Security.

Philadelphia, Aug. 29.—The Real Estate Trust company organized in 1885, the depository for nearly a million dollars of the funds of the Presbyterian church, and holding $300,000 of the money of the city of Philadelphia and $175,000 of state deposits Tuesday closed its doors.

The failure was caused by heavy loans made by the late president, Frank K. Hipple, to Adolf Segal, a promoter, on insufficient security.

A desperate effort was made to save the institution by the board of directors through an appeal to the clearing house association, but that body declined to subscribe a guarantee fund of $7,000,000 because of insufficient security.

Liabilities $10,000,000.

The liabilities are placed at $10,000,000, with quick assets of $3,000,000, and doubtful collateral amounting to $8,000,000.

George H. Earle, Jr., president of the Finance company of Pennsylvania, was appointed receiver and in a statement to the public he expresses the hope that he may soon be able to recommend a plan to the depositors that will better serve their interests and terminate his services.

Regarded as Conservative.

President Hipple was always regarded as a conservative financier, but following his sudden death last Friday, an investigation by the directors developed the fact that his loans to Segal had been made regardless of proper security, and that he had made false statements to the directors of the bank's condition. Friends of the president express the belief that Segal exercised a hypnotic influence over Mr. Hipple.

SPEAKS ON HISTORIC GROUND

Mr. Fairbanks on Spot Where First Slavery Conflict Occurred.

Osawatomie, Kan., Aug. 31.—On the battlefield here, where half a century ago, the first armed conflict over slavery took place. Vice President Fairbanks Thursday delivered a stirring address to 6,000 persons. The occasion was the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Osawatomie, in which John Brown was a central figure.

Mr. Fairbanks was given a rousing reception at the train upon his arrival from the east. He was escorted to the Masonic Temple, where a reception was held.

Vice President Fairbanks spoke of the stirring times that led up to the border wars in Missouri and Kansas. He told of the effect of these early struggles upon the country's history and from them drew a lesson for future generations.

HETTY GREEN'S SON CAN'T RUN

Nomination for Governor of Texas Held to Lack Authority.

Austin, Tex., Aug. 29.—The attorney general of the state of Texas Wednesday rendered an opinion nullifying the nomination of E. H. R. Green, son of Mrs. Hetty Green, of New York, as the gubernatorial nominee of the Republican party. Because of a split in the party, separate conventions were held, one faction being known as the reorganized Republican party and the other as the regulars. Mr. Green was nominated by the reorganized faction.

STANDARD OIL TRUE BILLS

TEN INDICTMENTS RETURNED BY TWO GRAND JURIES.

Allege 6,428 Separate and Distinct Offenses of Receiving Rebates on Shipments From Railroads.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Ten indictments, charging 6,428 separate offenses of receiving rebates, were returned against the Standard Oil company by two federal grand juries Monday.

Each jury returned five indictments to Judge Bethea.

The possible maximum fine against the Standard Oil company is $64,280,000.

The charges—the most serious and the most numerous ever brought against the oil concern—will, it is thought, end in a complete revelation of the intrigues through which the oil company secures its freight and tank car reductions.

All of the offenses charged by the grand jurors arise from rebates given at the Whiting, Ind., refinery.

It is alleged that the Standard Oil company has been receiving, contrary to law, from 27½ to 33 1-3 per cent. reductions on the published prices that are applicable to independents.

The railroads accused, though not indicted, with the oil trust and the number of offenses named in the indictments are: Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, 544; Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, 1,800; Chicago & Alton, 984; Chicago & Alton, 1,053; Chicago & Eastern Illinois, Evansville & Terre Haute, Illinois Central and Southern railroad, 103; Chicago & Eastern Illinois and Evansville & Terre Haute, 1,915; Lake Shore & Michigan Southern, 25.

In a summary of the indictments made by District Attorney Morrison, it is shown that while independent oil refineries are made to pay the published interstate commerce scale of 18 cents from East Whiting to East St. Louis the Standard Oil company pays only six cents.

The rate to St. Louis is 19½ cents to the general shipper of oil.

The Standard Oil company, however, pays less than 7½ cents.

The indictments are expected by the federal prosecutors to prove the first effective move to stop the oil company's system of rebating and shutting off competition.

TELEPHONE OPERATOR KILLED

Young Woman Steps on Glass Floor and Is Precipitated to Basement.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 30.—Lena Jeffries, a telephone operator 23 years of age, in the employ of the Nebraska Telegraph company, was killed Wednesday by falling from the third story of the Douglas street exchange building.

Miss Jeffries was in the rest and cloak room, which is located on the third floor and which has a glass floor. One of the sections of glass was cracked. The young woman stepped on this defective portion and was precipitated to the basement, killing her instantly.

Brakeman Killed in Wreck.

New York, Aug. 30.—Charles Mahoney, a brakeman, was killed and two other trainmen were injured in a freight train wreck on the New York Central railroad at One Hundred and Seventy-fourth street and Park avenue Wednesday. The accident was caused by the train breaking in two and the rear portion crashing into the forward part.

Troops and Strikers Clash.

Madrid, Aug. 30.—Dispatches from Santander report serious conflicts with the troops and strikers and numerous casualties on both sides. Two brigades of troops have been ordered to the scene. Official circles fear an extension of the strike to other great cities. The government is making preparations to meet the situation.

THOUSANDS GREET BRYAN AT NEW YORK

GREAT CROWD GATHERS IN MADISON SQUARE GARDEN TO WELCOME LEADER.

Waving Flags and Wild Applause Mark the Entrance of Democracy's Idol, Who Expresses His Gratitude to the Throng.

New York, Aug. 31.—Such a welcome as seldom in this country's history has been accorded to a private citizen was given to William Jennings Bryan at Madison Square garden Thursday night in the celebration of his return from a year's absence, spent in foreign travel.

As the guest of the Commercial Travelers' Anti-Trust league, Mr. Bryan was greeted by more than 20,000 persons, who filled the great structure from floor to upper gallery.

At the same time the streets and avenues outside the garden were choked for blocks by other thousands who stood patiently for hours for the privilege of even a fleeting glance at the distinguished visitor.

Wave Flags and Cheer.

The interior of the garden was a waving sea of color. Every person in the audience had been provided with a minature American flag and every cheer from 20,000 throats was accentuated by the waving of 20,000 tiny staffs bearing the stars and stripes.

When Mr. Bryan entered the hall the proceedings which already had begun were brought to a temporary pause while for eight minutes volley after volley of thunderous cheers rolled through the great building.

When Chairman Tom L. Johnson in his introduction of Mr. Bryan referred to the guest of the evening as "the first citizen, if not the first official of the land—not yet the first official" and Mr. Bryan rose, the great gathering broke out in unrestrained cheering, while the band played "Hail to the Chief."

Greeting Affects Guest.

So touched was Mr. Bryan by the welcome, that as he stood waiting for the cheers to subside his eyes filled with tears and he strode nervously from side to side of the narrow platform.

"How can I thank you for this welcome home?" he said.

"My heart would be ungrateful if it did not consecrate itself to your service. It was kind to prepare this reception. It was kind of Gov. Folk to come here all the way from Missouri. It was kind of Tom Johnson, that example of the moral courage we so much need in this country, to lend his presence here.

"It was kind in you to fully recompense me in being absent so long from my native land. I thank you. I return to the land of my birth, more proud of my citizenship than ever before."

Cheer for Bryan.

When Mr. Bryan uttered his first words, "Mr. Chairman," there was tremendous applause. "Ladies and gentlemen," he continued, after "three cheers for William J. Bryan" had been called for and given, "how can I thank you for this welcome home? My heart would be flint indeed, if it were not touched by your demonstration. My heart would be ungrateful beyond measure if it did not in return consecrate itself to your service.

"It was kind in the Commercial Travelers' Anti-Trust league to propose this homecoming reception. It was kind in Gov. Folk to come all the way from Missouri to bring the testimony that he brings in his official career of love for civic purity, that he might join in this reception. It was kind in Tom Johnson, that example of moral courage, that we so much need in this country, to lend his presence to this occasion. Kind in the officers of this league to bring you here. Kind in Mr. Thomas to voice the welcome in words so generous that I could not admit myself worthy of them. Kind in you to so fully recompense me for any danger that I have encountered or any sacrifice that I have made in being absent so long from my native land.

"I cannot use a better phrase than the old simple one—'I thank you.'"

BAN ON DECEITFUL PRODUCTS

Labels on Packers' Goods Must Tell Exact Contents.

Washington, Aug. 31.—Nothing short of the placing upon meat products of labels which will not deceive the public was the ultimatum which Secretary Wilson delivered to 40 representatives of various packing houses who met here Thursday.

Hereafter, if packers want their goods accepted for interstate shipment, they must bear labels more specific than those used in the past. It will not do, for instance, to state merely that a package contains sausage. The label must distinctly describe the article and plainly show that the sausage is made entirely of pork, of pork and beef combined, or of other ingredients. The same rule will apply to other products.

The elimination of certain advertising features on the labels also will be insisted upon.

Oil Trust Appeals for Clemency.

New York, Aug. 31.—Standard Oil in a paid advertisement sent all over the country states the hostile attitude of the press and the attacks by grand juries everywhere has endangered the oil industry, and begs for a cessation of adverse criticism.

GAINED 34 POUNDS

Persistent Anæmia Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills After Other Remedies Had Failed.

"When I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills," says Mrs. Nathaniel Field, of St. Albans, Somerset county, Maine, "I was the palest, most bloodless person you could imagine. My tongue and gums were colorless and my fingers and ears were like wax. I had two doctors and they pronounced my trouble anæmia. I had spells of vomiting, could not eat, in fact, did not dare to, I had such distress after eating. My stomach was filled with gas which caused me awful agony. The backache I suffered was at times almost unbearable and the least exertion made my heart beat so fast that I could hardly breathe. But the worst of all was the splitting neuralgia headache which never left me for seven weeks. About this time I had had several numb spells. My limbs would be cold and without any feeling and the most deathly sensations would come over me.

"Nothing had helped me until I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, in fact, I had grown worse every day. After I had taken the pills a short time I could see that they were benefiting me and one morning I awoke entirely free from pain. The distress after eating disappeared and in three weeks I could eat anything I wanted and suffer no inconvenience. I also slept soundly. I have taken several boxes of the pills and have gained in weight from 120 to 154 pounds and am perfectly well now."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure anæmia because they actually make new blood. For rheumatism, indigestion, nervous headaches and many forms of weakness they are recommended even if ordinary medicines have failed. They are sold by all druggists, or will be sent postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

DONKEYS TURN UP TOES.

Don't Know Enough to Get In Out of the Rain.

The war department has learned through experience that the American donkey has not sense enough to live in the Philippines.

Some time ago, more in the nature of an experiment than for any other reason, the bureau of insular affairs sent a dozen American donkeys, commonly known as "burros," to Manila for use among the Spanish-speaking people. The natives did not take kindly to the new species, however, but rather looked at them from afar off.

Seven died. Such was the news received at the bureau recently. When the torrential rains set in the little animals were caught out in the open, and not knowing how to shelter themselves like the native beast of burden, seven docile, dumb beasts turned up their toes.

"They ought to die," said a war department official who has a deep interest in everything pertaining to the Philippines; "they ought to die if they don't know enough to get in out of the rain."

The Central American Soldier.

These barefooted soldiers are antagonists not to be despised. Nearly worthless in attack, they are nevertheless tenacious in holding a position, a trait that comes from their Spanish descent probably. In the Cuban campaign Gen. Garcia is said to have said in reply to the remark of an American officer: "The Spaniards never attack." This may have been true in the main, but the defense of the trenches at Caney showed that the Spaniards would hold a position with as much courage and tenacity as any other troops. The Central and the South Americans have not generally showed much steadiness in war, but there have been occasions when their conduct has been conspicuous for gallantry, and all the virtues which go to make up the stalwart soldier.—N. O. Times-Democrat.

Troubles of an Author.

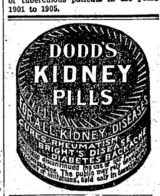
Robert Louis Stevenson's mother wrote in one of her letters from Samoa: "The people here are now discovering that Louis writes, as 'The Bottle-Imp' is coming out in the native paper, having been translated by Mr. C——. It is much appreciated, but leads to some curious results. For instance, the house in it somewhat resembles ours, and a good many of the natives suspect that Mr. Stevenson has the 'bottle' himself."

Long Journey for Pleasure.

Justus Miles Foreman has left New York for an extended journey, the itinerary of which includes Australia, New Zealand and the South Sea islands, and which is undertaken, he said, not to gain new literary material, but solely because he "wants to play a little."

Tuberculosis in Germany.

Under the workmen's sickness insurance law about $9,500,000 was spent in Germany in the treatment of tuberculous patients in the years 1901 to 1905.



Escaping by a Hair

By MAURICE SMILEY.

It was no evidence of any special shrewdness on my part that I knew what Wilson was watching the train for.

The papers were full of the details of Judson's last exploit. The trick he had turned on this particular occasion was the lifting of a tray of diamonds from the importing firm of Couvier Freres.

The police, spurred on by an unusually liberal offer of reward on behalf of the Brothers Couvier, had followed Judson pretty sharply and I knew that Wilson must have got some tip to the effect that Judson was going to take a train for a cooler habitat—most probably the 9:40 for the west.

Now, Wilson and I were rivals in a sort of professional way, and I determined that if I could prevent it he should not finger any portion of the 10,000 francs which had been hung up by the diamond firm. I therefore kept modestly in the background—no need to be to conspicuous in these matters—but at the same time kept a sharp eye on Wilson and his movements. We knew each other by sight, and I thought it only common prudence to conceal from him any fact which would lead him to suspect that I was connected or interested in any way with his mission. We had had a professional rub or two on former occasions, aud I knew with what I had to deal.

It just happened that I saw him get a telegram at the station office and that gave me two ideas which I proceeded to put into effect. One was to intercept the messenger boy attached to the office, and for a quid pro quo induce him to hand to Wilson this message, scribbled on a telegraph blank:

"Mr. Wilson: I forgot in my hurry to copy the message just delivered to you. Kindly return it to me for a moment and I will hand it to you at any time.—Mary Emerson, Operator."

Five minutes later the boy handed me the message Wilson had received. It read:

"Anderson says Judson will take the 9:40 train for Chicago. Will wear a long white beard.—Foley."

Foley was the chief. His dispatch threw new light on the Judson tip. So Anderson had turned against Judson, for whom I felt more than half sorry, as I knew him rather well. It happened that I was going to take the 9:40 train myself, and I determined to keep a sharp outlook for anybody with a long white beard. I was smooth shaven myself.

But the second idea. It was ridiculously easy to write a message myself, and my convenient messenger friend for another quid pro quo handed it to Wilson. My message ran like this:

"Made a mistake. Judson will leave on the 9:15 for Montreal.—Foley."

It was already 9:05 and Wilson had barely time to catch the 9:15 train, for he swallowed the spoon, hook and bait.

With Wilson safely side-tracked, I boarded my train with my eyes peeled. But I didn't see anybody with a long white beard, and I settled down for a good night's rest after I had made a thorough inspection of the entire train as I sauntered through it from the smoker to the rear Pullman. The chances were that Wilson would not be able to lay his hands on Judson this time.

"Message for Henry Wilson. Is Mr. Wilson in this car?

"Ah, yes, I guess that's for me," I remarked, casually, reaching out my hand for it as the conductor stopped at my berth.

The message was worth many times the half dollar it cost me. Of course it was from Foley. It read:

"Anderson makes complete confession. Says story of Judson being disguised was a blind. He will, so far as Anderson knows, be smooth shaven, as he does not suspect he will be followed, but thinks he has side-tracked us. Williams is at Buffalo, and will meet the train at Lee's Landing to be of any assistance he can in the matter.—Foley."

The plot was thickening! Williams was to meet the train at Lee's Landing, wherever that was. The chief fact of interest to me was that although I had successfully shunted Wilson off the trail of Judson so that he would not interfere with my plans for keeping him from fingering the reward, Williams suddenly loomed up, and Williams was even a more dangerous rival than Wilson.

"How far are we from Lee's Landing, porter?" I inquired.

"Next stop, sir."

Forty minutes and then if Williams could find Judson on the train it would be all off with Judson and my plans would be somewhat disarranged.

I started on another exhaustive inspection of the car, but there was nobody there whom I thought Williams would be likely to spot as Judson.

But there was a gentleman with a long brown beard, sitting all alone in one end of the car. A white beard might be dyed overnight.

Anyway, the sight of the beard gave me an idea.

I am naturally of a retiring disposition. Besides, I was on a trip for my health, in a sense, and I had taken a drawing room. Lee's Landing was less than 15 minutes ahead, and if anything was to be done, it must be done quickly.

"Would you mind stepping into my drawing-room compartment, sir?" I said in a weak voice as I bent over the brown-whiskered gentleman. I should have invited him to share a cigar, but he looked like a preacher, and I thought it would be safer to pretend that I was suddenly ill.

"Certainly, sir," he replied, rising and accompanying me to my drawing-room. Once the door was locked and there was something doing in two minutes.

"That's a very fine bunch of whiskers you have there, my friend," I said fiercely, "and I shall have to trouble you for them! Don't make any fuss now and you won't get hurt!"

The sheer absurdity of my words made him blink bewilderedly and before he got through blinking I had him tied hand and foot and two minutes later I had neatly snipped off his beautiful brown beard, leaving looking about as tough a looking customer as ever did the sky pilot act in a western mining camp.

I had become suddenly alive to the fact that a pair of whiskers was something that I needed in my business. I usually went provided with spirit gum and other toilet accessories, but I had neglected to grow a bunch of side whiskers or provide myself with a set of false ones. I didn't even have a falsetto voice. Anderson had told the first story all right, and Wilson would be looking for a man with long whiskers, but when Anderson welched the bobbies would be on the lookout for a smooth-faced man.

"Lee's Landing!" shouted the brakeman, as I stepped out of the drawing-room, to run plump into Williams, whom I spotted instantly.

"He's in the drawing-room there!" I whispered hurriedly in Williams' ear.

"Yes. This is Wilson! I am detailed on another lay; that's why you were wired to meet me. Grew these over night. Good luck."

Then half holding my whiskers with my hand to keep them from falling off, I pulled my hat down over my eyes and made my getaway.

It must have taken them some time to get the drawing-room door open. I didn't wait to see how they managed or to hear what the parson had to say by way of explanation.

But neither Wilson nor Williams caught me that trip, nor have they up to the present writing.

It wasn't a very close shave for the parson, but it was for me, all on account of that traitor Anderson. I just escaped by a hair—that is, by a conveniently large number of hairs, judiciously used.

Oh, yes, I was Judson. You have guessed that.

(Copyright. 1906. by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

AN OBSOLETE EASTERN RITUAL

Suttee Rite in Hindoostan Was Abolished Long Ago.

The other day a delicate, golden-browed East Indian woman appeared at Ellis island, shedding the light of her pathetic story before her to the effect that she was a widow, flying from the suttee rite, which hinges on the burning up of a widow on the same funeral pyre with her deceased husband. That business was all put a stop to something like 70 or 75 years ago, as it shocked the British sense of humanity and violated British ideas of the proper etiquette of the conjugal relation. No such rite has been performed in Hindoostan during that long interval, unless in secret and to satisfy some impulse of piety in wives to whom the custom had come down with all the sanctions of the 80,000, more or less, gods in the Hindoo pantheon, and who wanted to go the way their mothers went—a thoroughfare blocked up by a churlish government, with no sound ideas of religion and its accompanying rites. But it is quite clear that there cannot have been many such cases. The custom went into permanent desuetude a long time ago, and can only be restored by the lapse of the great oriental peninsula, if such a retrocession could be conceived, into its old-time conditions.

The repertorial chronicle in which the tale was given to the public said that the lady had been the wife of a parsee merchant, but the parsees are not burned up after, nor their wives before or after, death. On the top of Malabar hill, near Bombay, the chief seat of the sect, which in all the world amounts to only a handful, there is a tower of silence, open to the upper air, to which the remains of the dead are consigned, and the vultures, which hover about in clouds, their generations reaching back to Zorcaster and the Achaemenian dynasties, in a short time leave nothing of them but the bones. Such funeral customs did Zarathustra decree in far-off days near to the morning of the world. But in the faith of which he laid down the institutes, to endure almost with Sinai and Silcam's brook that flowed fast by the oracle of God, there has never been anything like the suttee ritual, and, of course, there never will be. The young woman may have many legitimate reasons for coming over here, and a gentle and generous hospitality may be invoked for her wherever she may go, but no sympathy need be claimed for her as a fugitive from the funeral pile of her husband. If her visit be with an eye to the variety stage, which may well be possible, she shows—or some one shows for her—a cultivated sense of the value of advertising. In such case the suttee story is as good as another, notwithstanding the flaws in its plausibility.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

Foot Ball.

Minneapolis.—The football schedule, for the coming season at the University of Minnesota, promises to be unusually good. The season will open with a game with Ames, on Northrop Field, on the 27th of October and will be followed by a game with Nebraska on November 3d. The game with Chicago will be played at Chicago on the 10th of November. Carlisle Indian School will be met on Northrop Field on the 17th and the season will close with a game with Indiana on the 24th of November. For the first time in seventeen years Wisconsin will not be met. The general opinion about the University of Minnesota seems to be that the schedule is in every way satisfactory and that the new rules which have come as a result of last spring's agitation will improve the game, by making it more open and interesting to spectators. The danger of injury, while not lessened by the change in the style of play, will be greatly reduced by the stricter enforcement of the rules provided for by the two-umpire system and the stricter regulations which specify what constitutes a foul, and the severer penalties for the infraction of the rules of the game. Lovers of the sport are likely to see one of the most satisfactory football seasons Minnesota has ever had.

Calves Play Havoc.

St. Paul.—Two husky calves, which had escaped from the wrecked stock train under the Third street bridge, made a dashing raid on the general offices of the Northern Pacific in the morning shortly after 5 o'clock. The building was left standing, but carpenters were busy all day restoring the interior.

Rendered frantic by their experiences in the railroad yards, the two calves tore down Broadway. The front doors of the Northern Pacific building were wide open, through which the excited animals rushed into the hall. They took a few hurried turns through the corridors of the first floor. One of them tried to break into the passenger department, and the glass on the door was shattered. The other in the meantime was busy bucking up against a window at the other end of the hall. Heavy wire netting prevented the calf from breaking through, but it was successful in smashing all the glass in the window.

Killed His Uncle.

Hampton.—Mistaken for a dog by his eleven-year-old nephew, Herman S. Hoffman, forty-two years old, was shot and instantly killed.

Hoffman was lying under a tree in the early evening, resting from a hard day's work in the harvest field. A white dog, which had displayed smyptoms of rabies had been prowling about the farm for several days and Lloyd Hoffman, eleven years old, had armed himself with a 22-calibre rifle with which to kill the animal if he got a chance.

In the dusk the boy mistook the prostrate form of his uncle for the mad dog and taking careful aim fired, the ball piercing the uncle's heart and causing instant death.

The boy is almost prostrated with grief over the sad accident.

Close Call.

Moorhead.—As the Great Northern train from Crookston rounded the curve to get on the main track the engineer saw a little way ahead what he supposed was a pile of ashes on the track. When within a few feet of the object the engineer was startled to note that what he supposed was an ash heap was in reality a man.

The engineer brought the train to a quick stop, not soon enough, however, to keep from striking the man, who, strange to relate, escaped with only slight injuries.

The man was picked up and taken to Moorhead. He gave his name as Siver Loakk and stated that he had fallen asleep while sitting on the railroad track.

Pigeons.

Duluth.—Presumably driven from the north woods by the numerous forest fires and the scarcity of water, the millions of wild pigeons that recently returned to Minnesota pineries after an absence of thirty years again are winging their way to the dense jungles of South America, where they are supposed to have had their habitat of recent years. The flight of the birds was watched today by many people in Duluth. Flock after flock of the birds went sailing by, apparently following the north shore until Duluth was reached and then winging their way southwesterly across the bay until lost to sight.

News Notes.

Minneapolis.—Sam Winter, colored, 52 years old, dropped dead in a saloon at 111 Nicollet avenue.

Owatonna.—The war for cheap and high class gas is still on in Owatonna and may be for some time, according to present indications.

Franklin.—M. M. Johnson, a leading farmer of Camp township, bordering on the Minnesota valley southeast of town, declares that during a rainstorm many small fish fell to the ground at his place. He threshed his grain that day and after the night's storm says the straw piles were covered with little fish.

St. Paul.—Mrs. P. Floody, president of Garfield Relief corps, has received a gavel of historic interest. The gavel comes from Rev. T. H. Haggerty of Ransom post, G. A. R., of St. Louis. This post has had many prominent men on its roll, such as Gen. William T. Sherman and Gen. U. S. Grant, and is probably one of the most famous of G. A. R. posts.

Rushford.—Robert McCormick, who wandered away from home, was found in a pasture about ten miles northwest of Rushford. It is thought his mind became affected from the excessive heat.

St. Paul.—Charles Steiger, Reany and Arcade streets, was hurt by falling from a bus at Lake Johanna. He had gone out with a party of young people in a tallyho and when near the lake, the vehicle swerved and Steiger fell to the ground.

Minneapolis.—Mrs. W. C. Anderson, 325½ First avenue S, attempted suicide in her room by taking a large amount of potassium permanganate.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Marquis di San Guiliano has been appointed Italian ambassador to England.

Troops and strikers have clashed with serious results in Santander, Spain.

Armogines Sanchez, a Pulujanes chief, has been captured by native Filipino volunteers.

Chili reports additional earthquake shocks at Tacna and Acra, extending to the Peruvian boundary.

Patrick Gallagher, of Chicago, was run down and fatally hurt by a St. Paul train near Elgin, Ill.

The Republican eighteenth congressional district convention of Ohio is deadlocked, after casting 65 ballots.

The body of Rear Admiral Train, who died in Chefu, China, was buried in the naval cemetery at Annapolis, Md.

William H. Maxwell, superintendent of schools of New York, has accepted membership in a simplified spelling board.

Estimates for the Panama canal appropriation for 1907 are now in preparation. About $25,000,000 will be needed.

As a result of Secretary Root's recent visit to Brazil that country has offered better coffee and sugar terms to the United States.

Edward Richmond, train robber from Indian Territory, was killed in the federal prison in Atlanta, Ga., when he attacked Guard Frey.

Imogene Reynolds, milliner, was killed and three others hurt by a collision of an automobile with a freight train near Toledo, O., last night.

The Pennsylvania and other roads, excepting the New York Central lines, will adopt new passenger rates based on the new Ohio two-cent fare law.

Jesuits are gathering in Rome for the election of a general of the order. Rev. Rudolph Meyer, lately of Chicago and St. Louis, is a possibility.

A strike of all the union bricklayers employed on the various stations and buildings of the New York Central in New York city has been ordered.

The Persian ambassador in Constantinople has made a demand upon the sultan to compel the return to Turkey of bands now invading a Persian province.

A painting by Trousett, showing Juinpero Serr, his officers and Indians at mass under a tree at Monterey, Cal., has been found in a hotel in Golconda, Cal.

A Republican of St. Mary's, W. Va., stamped a silver dollar, addressed it with red ink and sent it through the mails as a contribution to the Republican national campaign fund.

Surgeon General Walker, of England, who died recently, has bequeathed to the Lloyd library of Cincinnati his entire library and a valuable collection of manuscripts.

Plans are being made by the war department for instructing 40 men in taking finger prints for use in identification. This method of identification will be introduced at the army posts.

A man known to his companions as Joseph Fitzgerald, whose home is supposed to be some where in New York state, was shot down in a saloon in Pierre, S. D., by George Dabney, whose home is Atlanta, Ga.

PLOT TO INVOLVE COUNTRIES

Hostilities Between Mexico and United States Object of Dissenters.

Mexico City, Aug. 29.—Considerable interest has been aroused here by the publication of sensational articles in leading American journals depicting Mexico as on the brink of a revolution which is to take form at the first anti-foreign uprisings on September 16, national independence day.

This is alleged to be a part of the plot to involve Mexico and the United States in hostilities which is said to be the object of the conspirators.

High official authorities are behind the statement that there is absolutely no revolution impending and that public peace was never better assured in this country than now.

THE MARKETS.

	New York, Aug. 31.
LIVE STOCK—Steers	$5 90	@	5 75
Hogs, State	6 90	@	7 00
Sheep	4 00	@	6 00
FLOUR—Minn. Patents	4 20	@	4 40
WHEAT—September	78¾	@	78⅞
December	81¾	@	81⅞
CORN—December	53	@	53⅝
RYE—No. 2 Western.4	63½	@	64
BUTTER	18	@	23½
CHEESE	11½	@	12¾
EGGS	26	@	27
CHICAGO.
CATTLE—Choice Steers	$5 75	@	6 80
Common to Good Steers.	4 00	@	5 75
Yearlings	4 50	@	6 00
Bulls, Common to Choice	2 25	@	4 10
Calves	3 00	@	7 75
HOGS—Light Mixed	6 10	@	6 35
Heavy Packing	5 50	@	5 80
Heavy Mixed	5 90	@	6 15
BUTTER—Creamery	19	@	22
Dairy	17	@	20½
EGGS	12½	@	16
LIVE POULTRY	11	@	13
POTATOES (bu.)	47	@	50
WHEAT—September	70⅛	@	70⅜
May	73¾	@	74
Corn, September	48⅛	@	48⅜
Oats, September	29⅛	@	29⅜
Rye, September	55½	@	58
MILWAUKEE.
GRAIN—Wheat, No.1. Nor'n	$ 77	@	80
December	73⅛	@	73¼
Corn, September	48⅛	@	48⅜
Oats, Standard	30½	@	31
Rye, No. 1	59	@	59½
KANSAS CITY.
GRAIN—Wheat, September.	$ 63½	@	64
December	66½	@	66¾
Corn, September	42⅝	@	43
Oats, No. 2 White	30½	@	31
ST. LOUIS.
CATTLE—Beef Steers	$3 50	@	6 50
Texas Steers	2 25	@	5 10
HOGS—Packers	5 75	@	6 20
Butchers	6 00	@	6 25
SHEEP—Natives	3 00	@	5 60
OMAHA.
CATTLE—Native Steers	$4 50	@	6 25
Stockers and Feeders	2 75	@	4 40
Cows and Heifers	2 50	@	4 75
HOGS—Heavy	5 80	@	6 00
SHEEP—Wethers	4 80	@	5 50

OVER HOT EMBERS.

FIRE WALKERS TRUDGE WITHOUT VISIBLE HARM.

Strenuous Form of Worship and Devil Driving in India—Remarkable Feats Witnesesd by Travelers from the West.

A large trench is dug in front of the shrine, about 30 or 40 feet long and ten feet broad and two or three feet deep. During the morning this is filled with logs of wood and fagots, which are set on fire and by the evening become a mass of glowing, red-hot embers. After dark the people assemble with torches and tom-toms and music, and then some 30 or 40 people prepare to walk lengthwise over the embers. They are worked up to a great state of excitement by the tom-toms and shouts of the crowd, and then the whole 30 or 40 walk over barefooted, quite slowly and deliberately, in single file, headed by one of the "pujaris."

This custom of fire walking is quite common in Malabar. Kooriche, three miles from Tellichery, in the direction of the French settlement of Mahe, is a locality reputed for fire walking. Here a famous "pujari" by the name of Oochatta dwells. He actually sits on a heap of fire at an annual festival, but is said to be protected by the bark of the areca nut, which is known to be a bad conductor of heat. At the village of Putinam, 32 miles from Tellichery, in the Kaval Taluq, north Malabar, a weird ceremony is performed annually, at midnight, in connection with the worship of the village deity, when the "pujari," who goes by the name of Chamandy, throws himself incessantly on a heap of fire, about six feet high and fifteen feet broad, until he is able to knock every faggot down and level the whole heap with the ground. One end of a rope is fastened to his arms, while the other end is seized by two Malayali low caste men, who pull the "pjari" away each time he rushes on the heap of fire. Two women at the same time, with brooms bring the fagots together as they are knocked down by the "pujari" and endeavor to restore the heap of fire as it is being dismantled by him. The wood is the "puum," a hard jungle wood of the Malabar forest. When the whole heap is leveled with the groud the "pujari" brings this ceremony to a close.

Khaza Prabhu, a pepper merchant of Tellichery, who died a few years ago, and whose memory is still green, had a great name here for curing people who were possessed of the devil, and was a great fire eater to boot. He believed he was often summoned to the Sri Lakshmi Narasimha temple by the deity of this shrine to cure people troubled with the devil. Here he was wont to incarcerate many devils that were troubling the people of Tellichery, and every loose stone one notices in the temple precincts represents one such devil driven out of the human body and imprisoned by him. These stones are granite slabs, are generally three to five feet long and rest against a wall or tree.

In the temple of Malabar there are several deities, but the number must never exceed 39 in each. At Audaloor village, three and a half miles from Tellichery, one of the village deities, Davatha Issuran by name, committed atrocious sins and the other deities pulled out his tongue, and Angarakaram and Bappuran, two warrior deities, drove out the other deities from the temple, allowing only any number less than 40 to dwell in any one shrine. From this date Angarakaran, the warrior, carries a long sword, while Bappuran bears a sword and shield as well, and they are the principal deities worshiped during the ceremony of fire walking. Some of the minor deities are Muthupendalvyam Khandhakarnan and Kuttichathan, but all such are not propitiated excepting Vassurymara, the smallpox god; Chamandy, who puts devils into human bodies, and Illi and Makal—the mother and her two children of the jungles—who smite people with jungle fever.—Madras Didcesan Magazine.

His Choice for Dessert.

A story of a certain newspaper man and one of his pugilistic friends is going the rounds and making quite a hit with all who hear it. The two had been together all day and along abou' nine o'clock that evening the man who writes the news said: "Come and have lunch with me, Tommy." They ate and ate until the newspaper man could hold no more. He toyed with his table tools for a moment, and then he said to his friend:

"Well, what are you going to have for dessert?"

"W'at's dat?" asked the other.

"Why, something to end the dinner with," explained the newspaper man.

Then the pugilist did something unexpected. He picked up the bill of fare, scanned it as he picked his teeth, and finally exclaimed:

"Gimme a beef stew!"—Columbus Dispatch.

An Unfair Advantage.

"Mrs. Nagg is the most inconsistent woman I know."

"How's that?"

"She had the words 'Rest in peace' carved on her husband's tombstone, yet she visits the grave every day."—Translated for Tales from Meggendorfer Blatter.

Good-Hearted.

Boarder—I'll pay you very soon—I am going to be married.

Landady—Oh, don't do that, Mr. Hardup just on account of the few dollars you owe me."—Translated for Tales from Meggendorfer Blatter.

STORY OF "LUCKY" BALDWIN.

How He Got His Start in the Early Days of California.

In 1853, or more than a half century ago, a little party of gold seekers with a meager outfit of horses and wagons, started for California from the village of Racine, Wis., says Outing. In command of this adventurous expedition was a young man who took with him his wife and infant daughter. His name was E. J. Baldwin and he made a wise choice in shaking from his restless feet the dust of a tamer civilization. He needed a larger theater of action for his pent-up and surging activities. While trailing through the mountains of Utah the pioneers were attacked by Indians, who were beaten off during a six-hour fight in which young Baldwin killed their chief. After six months of hardship, the party reached Hangtown (later called Placerville) in California.

Here Baldwin tarried and began placer mining. He appears to have been no more than an ordinary red-shirted argonaut, meeting the ups and downs of mining luck, until the discovery of the Comstock lode at Virginia City. Thither he drifted and discovered that his natural bent was gambling with the mines that other men had opened. Amid a whirlwind of speculation, he fought his way with such success that he loomed from the smoke in a few months as "Lucky" Baldwin, the man who had cleaned up $7,500,000 in the gigantic deals in the stock of the Ophir mines.

San Francisco was the Mecca of those lucky sons of fortune who were rearing a great city by the Golden Gate. As a stock and mining speculator, "Lucky" Baldwin shone resplendent, but he was also a loyal son of San Francisco. He built hotels and theaters and business blocks, even while he was amazing that far from conservative community by madly freakish extravagances.

In the very lucid interval he bought all the Spanish grants he could find near Los Angeles and there spent a million in making this ranch of his not only a splendidly productive property, but also one of the most beautiful estates ever laid out in this or any other country. It was his hobby, his pet, and he planted miles of avenues with noble shade trees and made wonderful tropical gardens, so that today his home is surrounded by a paradise of vernal beauty.

WORK NECESSARY TO SUCCESS.

Labor in Boyhood of Advantage in Later Life.

Do you feel many days that you have had a hard time? Your hours are long. Your task is hard and wages small. The contents of your weekly pay envelope will scarcely carry you over the week. Sometimes you must wear patched trousers or a frayed coat. Your employer expects a great deal from you. Other fellows dress well and always have money. They have coddling fathers and mothers, while you toil six days a week to make a living, says a writer in the Valdosta (Ga.) Times.

Never mind, young man. You are ahead of the boy who has every luxury at home. You are getting experience that he must get somehow later on. Because, sooner or later, he must fight the real battle of life himself. And you have the advantage. While life has been made easy for him, he lacks drill and discipline which every life-soldier must go through. You are preparing yourself. He may go in without preparation and fail.

Work is a great blessing. You cannot see now, but some day you will say that you were fortunate in your boyhood days because you were compelled to work. Because you cannot get power to do things save by doing them. Look over the successful men you know. Get their history. Nearly every one was compelled to work in boyhood. They toughened their muscles by hard work, and sharpened their brains by looking out for themselves.

Work makes men. Luck usually fails. Pluck nearly always wins. To succeed in anything one must overcome obstacles. Force and fiber are built by hardships. Grit is as necessary in the making of a man as gumption. Hardships are not always handicaps. Often they are helpers. You will understand this better in 20 years. Meantime, permit one who has lived that 20 years and more to advise you in this.

Not Yet, But Soon.

One night, when "Charlie" Thorne was at the Boston theater, a considerable number of years ago, his brother Ed, whose "season" had not been prosperous, had managed to reach Boston, and being known to "Con" Murphy succeeded in passing that well-known "watch dog" of the stage door.

Charles was standing in the wings, and Ed had approached to within two or three feet of him, when a "super" passed between them, brushing against Charles in so doing.

Charles turned, and, seeing his brother standing there, asked: "Did you touch me, Ed?"

"No," said Ed, "I didn't. 'Charlie,' but I'm going to in a few minutes."

The City Man's Query.

Hi Squash—Yo'd died, Eb, ef ye'd bin over'n watched one uv them city fellers goin' over th' place yestiddy.

Eb Jay—What'd do?

Hi Squash—He looked all over th' place an' when he got dto th' hogpen he 'lowed he'd like t' see where we bred th' pig iron. An' I c'd hardly keep my boy from larfin' right in the durn fule's face."

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNN.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-Class matter August 30, 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

Governor Johnson is going up against a united Republican party, in this state this year, and he will note the difference between this year and two years ago, when the votes are counted next November.

Every legislative candidate upon the range is being asked to pledge himself to work, if elected for a change in the county division law, so that the question of division and the question of location of the county seat may be voted upon separately.—Duluth Herald.

A law of this kind would mean the division of Polk County at the following election.

W E. Rowe the popular attorney and ex-County Attorney of Polk, has filed on the democratic ticket for State Senator, in opposition to A. D. Stephens, who is sure of the nomination on the republican ticket, as he has no opposition. William has a strong republican majority to go up against in that county, but he is liable to make it interesting for the G.N. candidate.

While A.L. Cole has promised to champion the cause of the people to obtain a reduction of freight and passenger rates, the people should not support any candidate for the state legislature who is afraid to come out and let them know just how he stands on this important issue. We all know how L.C. Simons of Red Lake Falls and A.D. Stephens of Crookston stand on these matters, as they vote with and for the railroads every time.

Good Words From Cole.

The speech of A.L. Cole at Kenyon Minnesota at last tears away the veil that has hidden the man.

Since the convention in Duluth "the man" whom the people have desired to here above the assurances of the friends that surround him has at last spoken of himself. It was a masterpiece and includes some of the highest ideas of the modern state.

Read these ringing words from the republican candidate for governor of Minnesota, and see if you common railroad fair and freight payers would not like to give him your vote for Governor.

"I believe that most of the freight rates now collected in this state are already too high, and that the railroads of the state are making too much money, and I feel that it is my duty to state that, if elected, I shall do all in my power to cause them to be reduced to a point where they are equitable to both carrier and shipper."

"The practice of giving free passes to public officials and favored individuals not in the continuous employment of the railroad companies is vicious and harmful to the public welfare Therefore, I believe a law should be placed on the statute books prohibiting the giving or receiving of such passes, and this will open a way to the enactment of a law fixing a maximum price for the transportation of passengers at two cents per mile."

We do not remember of so strong a position being taken by a candidate for governor of this state, on public matters as is being taken by A.L. Cole. There is no hedgeing or attempt made to tickle the palate of the railroad or other corporations, but he comes out flat footed and says what he will do if elected and that speach will elect him for a certainty.

Ralph Green of Equality and E.L. Quist of Kratka, Political announcements appear in an other colum of this paper for Register of Deeds. Both are eastern Red Lake County men, and we hope to see them make a friendly campaign and the best man win out.

If the Representatives of the railroad interests of this state were asked to chose their state senators for the 61st and 62nd districts, they would say, "Give us A.D. Stephens of Crookston, and L.C. Simons of Red Lake Falls and we will ask for nothing more."

Judgeing from the election returns of two years ago, it seems to us that a candidate for county office on the democratic ticket would have pretty hard "sledding", without the support of Thief River Falls. We do not say this for the purpose of stirring up strife, or illfeeling, but because we believe it is the true situation, as this part of the county can not be depended on for many votes for the democratic ticket.

The Democrats are reported to have had a family row all among them little selves about who should try conclusions with the republican candidates for the different county offices this fall, and as a consequnce there are two filers for nearly all the county offices on that ticket. Watch the prediction of THE SUNBEAM.

The democrat that is defeated at the Primary will be the lucky one this year, as his successful opponent will go down to defeat in November by the overwelming vote of the republican nominee.

Political Announcements.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Registered of Deeds of Red Lake Co. and respectfully solicit the support of the votes at the Primary election Sept. 18th.

Ralph H. Green,
Equality Township.

Voters of Red Lake County,

I am a candidate for the republican nomination for Register of Deeds, and respectfully solicit your vote and support at the primary election, September 18th. I stand for a "Square Deal".

yours truly,
E. L. Quist.

Republican State Ticket.

United States Senator—
Knute Nelson,
Douglas County.

Governor—
A.L. Cole,
Cass County.

Lieutenant Governor—
A.O. Eberhart,
Blue Earth County.

Chief Justice—
Charles M. Start,
Olmsted County.

State Treasurer—
Clarence Dinehart,
Murray County.

Secretary of State—
Julius Schmahl,
Redwood County.

Attorney General—
E.T. Young,
Swift County.

State Auditor—
S.G. Iverson,
Fillmore County.

Clerk of Supreme Court—
C.A. Pidgeon,
Wright County.

Railroad Commissioner—
C.F. Staples,
Dakota County.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of five dollars which became due March 14th 1906, and is due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Martha Holstee, a single woman, mortgagor, to Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, mortgagee, bearing date the 14th day of March 1905, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of deeds of the County of Red Lake State of Minnesota, on the 17th day of March 1905, at 4 o.clock, P. M. in Book 85 of Mortgages, on page 8 thereof, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the county of Polk, State of Minnesota, on the 14th day of August, 1906, at 8 o'clock A. M. in Book 1[illegible] of Mortgages on page 418, and whereas, pursuant to the terms and condition of said mortgage by reason of said default, the whole principal sum of mortgage, towit; thirty dollars did on the 14th day of March 1906, become at once due and payable, and was so declared by said mortgagee: and whereas, there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of thirty dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of ten per cent per annum since March 14, 1906 and whereas, the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof:

Now, therefor, Notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to wit,:

Lots six (6) and seven (7) of section six (6) in township one hundred fifty one (151), north, of range thirty nine (39) in Polk County, Minnesota, and the east half of the south east quarter. (E.½ of S.E. ¼) of section one (1) in township one hundred fifty one (151), north, of range forty (40), in Red Lake County, Minnesota, which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Red Lake County, Minnesota, at the west front door at the courthouse in the City of Red Lake Falls, in said county and state on Saturday, the 13th day of October, 1906, at two (2) o'clock P.M. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of thirty dollars and interest as aforesaid, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and a reasonale attorney's fee as stipulated in said mortgage, the same being hereby claimed and stated to be the sum of twenty five dollars, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated August 22nd, 1906,

Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls. Minn.,
Mortgagee,

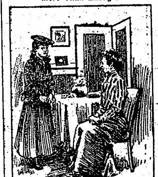
Chas. E. Boughton,
Attorney for Mortgagee,
Red Lake Falls, Minnesota.

Not Daunted.

"You will understand, sir," Dr. Price-Price began, "that I cannot undertake to cure your case without a diagnosis."

"That's all right," interrupted Nuritch haughtily. "I s'pose that's the medical word for 'fee in advance.' Name yer figger!"—Philadelphia Press.

More Than Enough.



"I fear you have not had enough experience."

"Not 'ad 'nuff experience? W'y, I've 'ad ten places in the last month."—London Tatler.

Almost an Insult.

"That suit you have on," said the chap who always talks whether he has anything to say or not, "is a dead ringer for one my brother has."

"Huh!" growled the fussy man. "What do you take me for—a clothes ringer?"—Houston Post.

Winding Your Watch.

The old superstitious belief that you will change your luck if you stop winding your watch at night and wind it in the morning may have some slight basis in fact, according to a jeweler, who says that the morning is the proper time to do the winding. This is not only because the hour of rising is for the average man much more regular than that for retiring, but even the soberest and most orderly of men are apt to relax and prone to carelessness at bedtime, when more or less worn by the wear and tear of the day. In this condition the winding is apt to be done in a jerky, irregular sort of way or too far or not far enough. "Nine people out of ten wind their watches on going to bed," said the jeweler, "but if they would do it when they get up, at some regular point in the process of making their toilet, they would do it much better."—Philadelphia Record.

Love's Excuse.

He—You passed me without speaking to me.

She—Oh, I must have been thinking about you.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam August 17, 1906.

Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston Minn. August 13th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on September 25th 1906 viz.:

Ole O. Vattendahl,

H. E. No. 713 Red Lake Series, for Lot 2, Sec. 27, Lots 7, 8, 10, 11, Sec. 28, Lot 1, Sec. 34, Twp. 152 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Torkel T. Lande, Sjur Stolas, Torger S. Dale, Andrew Ellingson all of Rainy Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam August 17, 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. August 14, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Reciver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on September 29 1906, viz:

Signe J. Sep,

H.E. No. 8356, Chippewa Series, for the N.E. ¼ Sec. 35, Twp. 152 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Sam Gunderson, Rasmus Nilsen, Fore, Aase Fore, John G. Lintvedt, all of Lillo Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register,

Probate Notice.

ESTATE OF ANTON W. SHOSTEN.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF RED LAKE IN PROBATE COURT.

In the Matter of the Estate of Anton W. Shosten. Decedent.

Letters of administation this day having been granted to Eva Shosten.

IT IS ORDERED, that the time within which all creditors of the above named decedent may present claims against his estate in this court, be, and the same hereby is, limited to six months from and after the date hereof; and that Friday the 11th day of January 1907, at 9 o'clock A.M., in the Probate Court Rooms at the Court House at Red Lake Falls in said County, be, and the same hereby is, fixed and appointed as the time and place for hearing upon and the examination, adjustment and allowance of such claims as shall be presented within the time aforesaid.

Let notice hereof be given by the publication of this order in THE SUNBEAM a weekly newspaper printed and published in said County as provided by law.

Dated August 11th 1906.

N.W. Tarrant,
[Seal] Judge of Probate.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION

First Pub. in The Sunbeam August 31, 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land office at Crookston Minn. August 24th, 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver, of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on October 33, 1906 viz:

Nels Loiland.

H.E. no. 1181 Red Lake Series for the Lots 5, 6, 7, 9, S.W. ¼, S.E. ¼, Sec. 27 Twp. 152 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ben K. Kvestad of Highlanding Minn. Halvor Swanson, Ole N. Loiland, Oluf Hanson of Hilda Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register

To Waterproof Canvas.

Scientific American gives this recipe for waterproofing for canvas: Soft soap dissolved in hot water and a solution of iron sulphate added. The sulphuric acid combines with the potash of the soap and the iron oxide is precipitated with the fatty acid as insoluble iron soap. This is washed and dried and mixed with linseed oil.

Masculine.

Mrs. Hix—Mrs. June strikes me as being entirely too masculine for a woman. Mrs. Dix—Yes, indeed. Why, every time she has an ache or a pain she makes as much fuss about it as a man would.

Discretion.

First Lawyer—It seems to me you let that last witness down pretty easily in your cross examination. Second Lawyer—I had to. He is my tailor, and I owe him a big bill.

When a man says, "Of course it's no business of mine," it is a sure sign that he is going to do the best he can to make it his business.

Chotohazree at the Gymkhana.

In "Modern India" the author, William Eleroy Curtis, records his meeting with the word gymkhana and "ventures to say that nobody who has not been in India can guess what that means."

And if you want another conundrum, what is a chotohazree? It is customary for smart people to have their chotohazree at the gymkhana, and I think you would be pleased to join them after taking the beautiful drive which leads to the place. Nobody knows where the word was derived from, but it is used to describe a country club—a bungalow hidden under a beautiful grove on the brow of a cliff that overhangs the bay—with all of the appurtenances, golf links, cricket grounds, racket courts and indoor gymnasium, and everybody stops there on an afternoon drive to have chotohazree, which is the local term for afternoon tea and for early morning coffee.

A man who covers himself with costly apparel and neglects his mind is like one who illuminates the outside of his house and sits within in the dark.

VIVO

HANDLED BY ALL THE LEADING MERCHANTS OF THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

(ALWAYS CALL FOR VIVO)

We pay the highest market price for all grain, at our mill in Thief River Falls, or at our elevator at Plummer, and always have on hand a compleat line of flour & feed at both points,

☞ Promt shipments made by boat to all points along the Red Lake river.

We solicit your orders,

Hanson & Barzen Milling Company.

THE MERCHANTS

State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds, Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.— J. A. DUFFY, Cashier.

NORSK HANDEL.

DRY GOODS.

CLOTHING, SHOES, DRUGS

We carry a full and complete line of Groceries, Drugs & Patent Medicines.

☞ LOOK AT THIS. We pay the highest market price for, Hides, Wool, Seneka Root, Furs & All Farm Products

N. N. Finrow, Mg.

PLUMMER, ... MINN.

The Radny Store;

☞ THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE RADNY STORE;

John has, Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes.

A full and complete line of groceries.

Best brands of flour, at lowest market price.

.. .00..

Call and see me for bargains, at Radny post office and store.

John Radneskie.

In Praise of Cockneys.

Cockneys are the best natured people under the sun. It is notorious that a big London crowd is of all crowds in the world the most harmless and the easiest to manage. But see them also in their ordinary collections, outside the gallery door of a popular theater or crowding in the carriages of an excursion train—what fun and kindness and wholesome give and take! A deliberately rude or offensive cockney is hardly to be met.—G. S. Street in Pall Mall Gazette.

The Mortality List.

Manager (of great exposition)—What alarms me is our mortality list. Assistant—Mortality list? Why, it's next to nothing at all! "I know better than that. More than one-third of the people that come through the turnstiles are deadheads."

The Gardener.

It is at once the joy and the despair of a gardener that his work is never done. His materials are growing, changing, ever varying things. This is an endless delight to a man who lives with his garden and watches his plans grow up. When he makes a garden for another it is a different matter. Then, after spending his best thought and skill, the garden must be turned over into the hands of the Philistine, who may, doubtless will, spoil his color effects, make gaudy what before was rich, introduce tawdry display where before was a sensitive delicacy. These are the things that try men's souls and will continue to try them until the owners of large places acquire some degree of sympathy with and understanding of art.—Century.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

VIVO flour is the best. Ask your dealer for vivo.

HORSES FOR SALE, at the Plummer livery barn.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Bids for carrying U. S. mail wanted. Inquire at this office, up to Sept. 13th.

Chris Larson the Anton dealer will pay you the highest cash price for cattle, see him before you sell.

Walt McAndress went down to St. Hilaire to help his brother Mike, do his threshing, returning today.

Mr. and Mrs E.T Emerson have been raising a splendid garden on their farm at Squix Bend this season.

Rev. E.A. Mostue has made two trips to Thief River Falls this week for building meterial for his new residence.

Miss Nelson of Highlanding who has been employed at Thief River Falls for some time, returned home Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacobson are rejoiceing over the arrival of a fine baby boy last week that came to stay with them 21 years.

CATTLE WANTED, Highest market price paid for fat cattle, inquire at this office, or of Chris Larson at Anton Post office.

Joe Maxwell of Kratka made this office a pleasant call last Saturday. He reports he has all kinds of garden truck for sale.

Mrs. Charles Robbecke of Thief River Falls, land lady of the Hotel Ogemah, came out yesterday for a couple of days visit with her friend Miss Kuehnel.

Chris Larson the hustling merchant and cattle buyer of Anton, was an overnight visitor here Monday, on his return from a cattle buying trip to the eastern part of the reservation.

Miss Mary Sullivan left for Thief River Falls last Saturday to attend the fall term of high school down there, she will stay with Miss Katherine Dunn, who is keeping house down there.

Bids for carrying the mail from Sumbeam to Lillo from Oct. 9th to June 30th next year are invited by the post office Department, all bids must be in this office by Wednesday evening Sept. 12th.

Rev. E.A. Mostue will hold religious services at the residence of Mrs. A.W. Shosten, at Highlanding next Sunday afternoon, at 1 o'clock P. M. services conducted in both Norwegin and English.

Owing to the logs running so thick in the river Oluf Snoback could not ferry his Oxen across the river last Saturday, and left them in Mr. Eves pasture. On Sunday morning the oxen took matters in their own hands and swam the river and took up quarters in Mr. McAndress pasture.

Ralph Green the popular Equality farmer and candidate for Register of Deeds of Red Lake County was at his political fences in this locality Tuesday, and made arrangements to let the people of eastern Red Lake County know about it by publishing his announcement in this paper.

E.L. Quist of Kratka, candidate for Register of Deeds made this office and Kuehnel a political call on Wednesday. The last seen of him he went west accompanyed by Miss Kuehnel and we expect the people living west of here will have the pleasure of hearing some strong political arguments.

When you get that big role from Dakota, or returns on that big cream shipment, remember the printer that has a long cold winter before him.

Wages are reported to be pretty high in Dakota this year and threshing hands are scarse. As high as $3 per day is being paid for common labores at some points.

E. L. Quist of Kratka reports that he has just completed the harvest and stacking of 220 acrs of wheat on his own and his fathers farms in Kratka Township, so you see some of the 11 township farmers are begining to go some.

The waregons and the rear of the big drive passed here Tuesday evening. There were 80 log drivers punching up the rear, and they made good time. It was some relief to see the river again free from logs as they have been pretty thick for the past two weeks.

Fornie McAndrees the eight months old baby boy of Mr. and Mrs. Walt McAndress, died at Thief River Falls on last Thursday morning after a two weeks illness. Funeral services were held at that place on Friday afternoon. He was a very bright boy and the parents are grief stricken by his early death. We join with the entire comunity in extending our sympathy to them.

News From Rhoda.

Primary Election is growing near and the few office seekers who have shown themselves personaly, may be assured that their time was well spent, when election day comes.

Martin Hyland left for his Gully farm Monday, where he expects to be threshing there upon this week.

The patrons of the Thief River Falls creamery, who sold their cream to Singer Bros., recieved 21 cents a pound for butter fat for the past month, and the farmers are jubilent over recievcing from two to six cents per pound for butter fat more than was paid in any of the surrounding counties.

Hunting is being the sport of the day.

G.A. Green of Crookston was among the traveling callers on Singers Bros., this week.

John Polbrook and George Singer were among the Plummer business visitors Monday.

16 cents for butter and eggs at Singer's store.

Wanted: Gentleman or lady with good reference, to travel by rail or with a rig, for a firm of $250,000.00 capital. Salary $1,072 00 per year and expenses; salary paid weekly and expenses advanced. Address, with stamp, Jos. A. Alexander, Sunbeam, Minn.

LAND OFFICE BUSINESS.

U.S. Commissioner L. G. Browning with office located at Thief River Falls, is prepared to take homestead entries final proof etc., within the Crookston U. S. Land District.

office in News building, three doors south of the post office.

MONEY TO LOAN.

I have money to loan on real-estate at 7½ per cent. Payments at the land office made for you when you make final proof.

Special attention given to Notary Public work.

Applications to make final proof written free.

Stephen Singer.

Rhoda Minn.

Subscribe for The Sunbeam.

Fixing the Blame.

"Do you believe in hoodoos?" asked the superstitious person.

"Well," answered the man who had failed to make good in a dozen different enterprises, "I've got to preserve my self respect, you know."—Detroit Free Press.

HARRY E. IVES, ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA.

Respectfully solicits your support and vote for the Republican nomination for Clerk of the District Court for Red Lake County at the Primaries, Sept 18. If nominated and elected will pledge a square deal to all parties and all men.

WHAT HANSON STANDS FOR.

A Candidate for the State Senate Who Is Not Afraid to Tell the People How He Stands

On Important Issues.

I favor and will support if elected the extension of the primary nominating system to include all state officers and United States Senator; the enactment of a reciprocal demurage law; prohibiting the issuing to and the use of railway passes by all State, Legislative, Judicial and County officials whether elective or appointive; reduction in freight, express and passenger rates; increasing the power of the Railroad and Warehouse Commission; thorough control and regulation of all corporations; taxing of corporation property in the same manner as other property; redistricting of legislative districts of the state so as to give to the northern part of the state its proper representation in the state legislature. Local option by counties in the granting of licenses to sell intoxicating liquors; the enactment of a more stringent pure food law; liberal support of State Sanitarium for care and cure of consumptives; liberal support of schools, educational institutions, drainage, good roads, and for state developement; the safe guarding of state timber and mineral property; the re-electing of Knut Nelson as United States Senator. I will put forth my best efforts to secure the enactment of any other legislation that would be to the best interests of the people of the district and state.

On these principles and Promising to devote my best efforts to Promote clean and fair Politics, I respectfully solicit your good will and vote at the coming Primary election.

A. L. Hanson.
Ada, Minn.

J. K WOOD,
COUNTY SURVEYOR, &
CIVIL ENGINEER.

Will give all orders for Surveying prompt attention.

Office at Thief River Falls
Minnesota.

U.S. Mail.

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 8. 30 a. m. on Tuesday's Thurday's and Saturday's. & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 3. p.m.

Wm. G. HUNT, P.M.

Naturally.

Gunner—Yes, he is a champion golf player, and so is the girl he is going to marry. Not only that, the minister who will perform the ceremony is very fond of the game.

Guyer—Ah, I suppose he will be pleased to link them together.—Chicago News.

Bound to Crop Out.

"Yes, I believe I did say you were always lying about yourself."

"I'll have you to understand, sir, that I am not used to this kind of talk. I'm a gentleman, sir."

"There you go. Can't keep from it, can you?"—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Time to Get Busy.

Her Husband — I thought you were going to visit your mother?

His Wife—And so I am.

Her Husband—Well, you had better begin to pack your trunk at once. The train leaves in forty-eight hours.—Detroit Tribune.

Diet and Digestion.

Abstemiousness in diet is very conducive to a good digestion. It is preferable to be a little underfed than at all overfed. Hence we come to one of the first causes of indigestion in the adult, too large a quantity of food. After an ordinary meal the food should all have left the stomach by the end of six or seven hours. If owing to an excessive quantity the stomach cannot deal with the amount some food remains in the stomach and ferments. This creates discomfort, pain, wind, nausea and perhaps vomiting, by means of which the abused stomach gets rid of its burden. If the sufferer is not thus fortunately sick the best thing he can do is to drink a large tumbler of lukewarm water, which will probably induce vomiting and so wash out the stomach. Half a teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda added to the fluid will cause still more relief. During the next twenty-four hours the lightest diet, such as a little tea and dried toast, some boiled rice, a little arrowroot or corn flour, should be taken.

Anxious.

"I hear that your wife has run away from you?"

"Yes. I've offered a reward for her capture, dead or alive."

"How much?"

"Ten dollars alive and a thousand dollars dead."—Judge.

60 YEARS' EXPERIENCE
PATENTS
TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.
Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.
A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.
MUNN & Co. 361Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

IF YOU WANT TO DO BUSINESS,
With The People Of Eastern Red Lake County,
YOU SHOULD ADVERTISE
IN A PAPER,
THAT THEY TAKE AND READ.
TRY "THE SUNBEAM" WITH AN AD. FOR RESULTS.

THE FIRST
STATE BANK, OF
THIEF RIVER FALLS, WILL LOAN YOU THE
Money To Make Your Second Payment, or to make your final proof: Give us a call, as we give the best rates
On Farm Loans.

Isadquan Singer, Edward Singer,
SINGER BROS.
Dealers In,

WORKING MENS
CLOTHING
MADE IN DULUTH
This line is justly celebrated because they fit and STAND THE WEAR
WE CAN FIT YOU

Groceries, flour & feed.
Dry Goods, Boots & Shoes.
HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR FARM PRODUCE
Rhoda, Minn.

NEW STORE,
AT ANTON MINESOTA.
Dry Goods, Goceries, Flour & feed.
EXCLUSIVE AGENTS FOR THE CELEBRATED DE LAVAL CREAM SEPERATOR, IN THE ELEVEN TOWNS.
Any Kind Of Stock Taken In Exchange For Goods.
Give me a call.
Located at Anton post office, on the Red Lake River, Eight miles east of Thief River Falls.
Christ Larsen.-Proprietor

THE CORPSE AND THE IRISHMAN.

By Charlotte O'Connor Eccles.

"Dan! Dan McCall!" cried a shrill, imperious, childish voice. "Oh, Dan, I'm so glad I've found you; I want you to tell me a story."

"Be this an' that, Miss Mary, but ye're the great young lady for shtories intirely. Did I iver tell ye o' the night I was lost in the bog, Miss?"

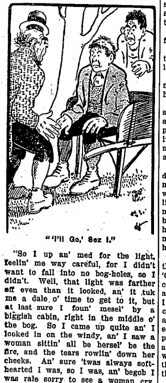
"No, Dan," cried the little girl, excitedly clapping her hands. "That's new; do go on."

"Well, sure it's a long time ago," said Dan. "'Twas in th' ould counthry—and I was just risin' twinty. An' whin I was young, Miss Mary, like many another, I always was terrible wild, an' nothin' I liked better than sportin' an divartin' meself, but, what I wint through wan night sobered me, so it did. My masther sent me over to Garraduff. An' Garraduff was a great house, intirely for the best ov atin' an' dhrinkin', an' I got there middlin' late.

"When I got to Garraduff there was great atin' and dhrinkin', an' the sarvints had got in Tommy Murray, the blind piper that used to play at the cross roads, an' there was dancin' goin' on in the sarvints' hall, an' maybe if it wasn't near 12 o'clock before I thought o' turnin' home.

"And whin they saw I was frightened to find how late it was, they all began tellin' me ov a short cut through the bog, an' told me I cudn't miss the way, not if I was blind o' wan eye, an' lame o' wan leg. So off I set, miss, an' rale lonesome it was, I whistelin' to kape me courage up. An' begob, Miss Mary, I wasn't gone wan half hour when a misht began to be, an' before long I found 'twas lost I was.

"Well, Miss Mary, to make a long shtory short, if I didn't see, quite suddint a light far, far away, for all the wurrld like a shtar, an' sez I to mesel', 'wherever that light is there's people, an' where's there's people they won't lave a poor gossoon out all night to be starved wid the cowld.'



"'I'll Go,' Sez I."

"So I up an' med for the light, feelin' me way careful, for I didn't want to fall into no bog-holes, so I didn't. Well, that light was farther off even than it looked, an' it tuk me a dale o' time to get to it, but at last sure I foun' mesel' by a biggish cabin, right in the middle o' the bog. So I came up quite an' I looked in on the windy, an' I saw a woman sittin' all be hersel' be the fire, and the tears rowlin' down her cheeks. An' sure 'twas always soft-hearted I was, so I was, an' begob I was rale sorry to see a woman cry, an' roun' I came an' knocked at the door.

"'Who's there?' she sez from inside.

"''Tis a poor boy, ma'am,' sez I, 'axin' yer pardon for disturbin' ye, but 'tis lost an' perishin' I am this cowld night.'

"'Go away from here,' sez she, 'an' go quick. There's no place for ye.'

"'Oh, for th' love o' hiven, ma'am,' sez I, 'don't say that. Sure 'tis deshtroyed I'll be intirely if ye don't take me in. Just open the dure an' luk at me, an' ye'll see 'tis a harmless craychure I am, that wudn't touch a hair ov yer head, so I wouldn't.'

"'Are ye sure yer alone?' says she.

"'I am, ma'am,' sez I.

"'An' did ye mate annywan as ye were comin' along?' sez she.

"'Not a mortchal sowl, ma'am,' sez I, 'barrin' a flock o' wild geese.'

"Well, Miss, afther this she opens the dure a little way, very timid, an' she peeps out an' sez:

"'I can't let ye in, an' I warn ye that yer in danger here.' sez she. 'But I'll give ye somethin' to ate,' says she, 'an' then ye'll go.'

"'Sure I don't want annythin' to ate,' sez I. 'A man can die but wanst, an' I may as well die inside as out.'

"So she half laughed, and sez she, 'Ye don't know what yer saying, nor what yer doin' naythur, an' yer askin' me to do a thing that may be me death. But come along, I'll take the chance and let ye shleep in the hay, but mind,' sez she, 'ye're to lie still, an' be off early in the morning before annywan is shtirrin.'

"Well, Miss Mary, she let me in to warrum mesel' be the fire, an' she giv' me somethin' to ate.

"Then she led me into the hayhouse that was nex' dure, an' just divided off from the kitchen by planks, an' I cud see a ray o' light through. Down I lay, Miss, on the hay, an' before ye could say snap I was fast ashleep.

"Well, I thought I hadn't but just closed my eyes when I hard th' awfullest row, Miss, that iver I hard in me life, going on in the kitchen.

"I put me eye to the crack, an' there I saw the kitchen was full of men all fightin' like mad, th' ugliest lot o' cushtomers that ivir I clapped me eyes on. It was somethin' about money I made out, an' dividin' it fair, an' wan sez to th' other, 'Sure, Mac, you killed him,' sez he, an' whin the min was rushin' at aitch other, the woman she catches hold o' two ov thim, and, 'For love o' hivin,' she sez, 'will yez shtop fightin'?' And then a man came forward an' he sez, 'The vanithee is right,' sez he; 'this fightin' is no good at all.'

"They shtopped fightin', an' afther a lot o' talk they bigan goin' off wan be wan till in th' end only the woman was left an' the two men she took hoult ov. Wan o' them, her husband belike, was a big, shtrong, grizzled fellow o' 50 or thereabouts, th' other was a shlip o' a young fellow about as ould as mesel'.

"''Tis a nice day's work ye've made ov it,' sez the woman to the two min, 'an' now maybe ye'll come to bed, for 'tis near mornin' it is,' says she.

"'Go to bed yersel' sez th' ould man. 'Sure we've work to do yit,' sez he.

"'Then if ye have,' sez she, 'I'll shtay an' see ye do it.'

"'Be off,' sez he, threatenin' her like wid his arm.

"So, begob, Miss Mary, she began to mount up the laddher to the loft, an' as she was goin', I saw her turn an' give such a fritened look as never was in the direction of where I was lyin'. Well, if the two murdherin' villyins didn't go out, an' I began to braythe freer, an' was just waitin' to let thim git clear away before I was up an' off for me life, whin, I declare to you, Miss, be the piper that played before Moses, me heart all but lepped out o' me body, for I hard thim at the dure ov the hayhouse.

"Well, I lay as shtill as a mouse, so I did, an' in they came an' fumbled about, an' ivery minnit mesel' thought they'd be on top o' me.

"'Where is that corpse?' sez th' ould fellow after a minnit.

"'I have him,' sez the son, an' wid that he claps his hand down on me leg.

"'Have him along,' sez th' ould man; 'do ye take his shouldhers,' sez he, 'an' I'll take his feet.'

"Well, Miss Mary, me darlint, I shtiffened mesel' out as like a corpse as ivir I cud, an' in me mind I began preparin' for death, an' iviry sin that ivir I done in me life kem into me mind; and I said acts ov contrhition as hard as ever I could.

"An' out they carried me, an' if they didn't lay me on a wheel-barrow wid me legs shtickin' out! I just opened wan eye, an' I saw that the misht had lifted, an' the night, or rather the mornin', though shtill dark, was clare, but I closed it pretty quick when I heard the young chap say: 'He looks mortal tall, doesn't he? I didn't think he was so big.'

"An' wid that off they wint through the bog, takin' turns in wheelin' me. 'Oh laws!' sez I to mesel', 'what's comin' now? What's comin' at all, at all?' An' iviry bog-hole we passed by I fairly peppered for fare they'd just chuck me in, but they didn't. An' at last they stopped. 'This'll do,' sez the ould boy. That minnit out popped a hare that they'd disturbed, an' she ran across his fut, an' he gave wan yell, an' the young chap dhropped the handles o' the barrow that suddint that I narely rowled out ov it.

"'What is it?' sez he, all thrimblin'. 'What is it?' an' he began thryin' to make the sign o' the cross.

"'Sure, nothin' at all,' sez the father whin he saw what it was. ''Tis only a hare,' sez he, 'that fritened me.'

"'Good hivens!' sez the son, 'sure I thought I saw this fellow movin', so I did.'

"'Not a move did he move,' sez the father, 'an' don't be makin' a bigger fool o' yerself than y'are. Where's the spade?' sez he.

"'Wars to the Queen o' Spain!' sez the young chap, 'but we forgot the spade.'

"'Why, ye thick-skulled young omadhoun,' sez the father, 'why didn't ye mind it? It'll be daylight before we know where we are,' sez he, 'an' the job not done. I suppose I must go for it mesel', sez he.

"'I'll be hanged if I'm goin' to shtay here wid it all alone,' sez the other. 'Do you shtay an' I'll go.'

"'I won't be left wid him nayther,' sez the father, an' on they wint, argifyin', for both of thim was onaisy, havin' a bad conscience. At last it was gettin' hated.

"'Well, if you won't go for the spade,' sez the father, 'an' I won't go, who the devil,' sez he—savin' your presence, Miss—'who the devil is to go?' Wid that, Miss Mary, I sat right up in the barrow. 'I'll go,' sez I, quite suddint, an' I looked at thim fierce, and stretched out me arrum.

"Well, they stud wan moment as if they were just turned into shtone, so they did, an' then they let a screetch out o' thim that ye'd hear a mile off, an' away they cut, runnin' as if th' Ould Boy himself was at their heels; an' I laughed, so I did, faith, to see the way they were in; but I didn't wait for thim to come back, but just ran for me life in th' other direction an' hid behind a turf shtack. An' soon 'twas dawn, an' afther wandherin' a bit I got back to the right road. An' sure that's all, Miss."

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

MIND AND MUSCLE RELATED.

Fear, Anxiety or Nervousness Fatal to Difficult Feats.

In all feats of skill the influence of the mind is most important. To perform in thoroughly good style any difficult feat of skill it is absolutely necessary that the mind must be free from fear, anxiety or nervousness. I knew once, years ago, a man who had been a bull fighter in Spain. During one of his glowing accounts of the sport I expressed my surprise that he should have left the life. His reply was: "One day I was about to enter the ring, and I had a little creepy feeling of fear. Then I stopped for good. The man who feels fear is sure to be killed."

And it is equally true that the man who fears is heavily handicapped, no matter what the contest may be. Anxiety and nervousness are closely akin to fear; and both are so powerful in their effect as to render it almost impossible for one to perform perfectly and difficult or delicate feat of skill. The man who is afraid or anxious or nervous is almost sure to fail.

All emotions when intense have a powerful effect upon the muscles. This is plainly seen in the tension of the muscles, clinching of hands and arms, as well as of the face in anger, in the spasmodic breathing of excitement, in the muscular weakness and trembling of fear, and in many other conditions that might be mentioned. Now, in feats of skill of whatever nature, whether balancing, juggling, marksmanship, tumbling, or shot putting, it is necessary that just the right muscles must be used at just the right instant, and to just the right degree. When, however, the muscles are disturbed by emotional excitement, such delicate adjustment is impossible, and the probable result is failure.

The mental state most conducive to success in games of skill is confident calmness. And by practice this state of mind may be made a habit—a habit most valuable in all game of skill, even in that game of skill called life.—Dr. W. R. C. Latson, in Outing.

HUMAN POWER OF RESISTANCE.

People Have Preserved Existence Under Wonderful Conditions.

The inhabitants of Paris once lived under Henry IV., during a siege, on the most repugnant meals. All grass which could be found, even that growing between the stones of the pavement, was cooked into soups. In a field oven erected especially for this purpose "delicious" pastries of ground bones were made up during the period of three weeks, and the necessary bones were obtained from a nearby cemetery.

What occurred during the siege of Paris in 1871 is still in mind. People ate almost all the animals of the zoological garden. One of the butchers sold monkey and urchin meat, and canal rat as well as dog meat became "classical." A baker's family consumed during the siege their entire shop—i. e., all their goods—and an aged tradeswoman stayed in her basement for 143 days, living during all that time on nothing but cheese. The polar explorers knew even worse meals. The pioneers of the pole considered raw fish and polar bear meat delicacies, and Nansen is authority for the statement that he and his men were exceedingly delighted when they succeeded in baking cakes with illuminating oil. From tarred rigging of the ship and from lichens which were found on the desolate rocks not infrequently the strangest soups were made.

In the year 1901 the well digger Simon of Bonneval, near Chartres, was entombed by fallen sand and remained so for five days, having nothing to eat or to drink. In 1897 some miners in Wales were rescued from an entirely flooded mine after ten days, still alive. The water had already risen to their chins. There are, however, still more remarkable cases. The London Philosophical Transactions told of a man who had stayed in a cellar, covered by the debris of the building, 24 days without eating and drinking. Italy, too, presents an instance; it is reported by Somio, the physician of the king of Sardinia: In Piedmont three women had been overtaken by an avalanche, and had been living, when they were rescued on March 19, 1755, under the debris of a stable for 37 days.—Harper's Weekly.

Hotel Has Private Rainstorm.

The latest hot weather innovation in Paris is a private rainstorm. While people in the streets are sweltering in the hot sun, guests at the Hotel Castiglione may now gaze from their windows on the big open court, and have all the cooling effects of a summer rainstorm. To make the artificial rainstorm complete the hotel management has placed in the center of the courtyard a gigantic umbrella, some 25 feet in diameter, under which the guests may read or drink without getting wet. The innovation is decidedly cooling, and is attracting considerable attention. The mechanism consists merely of pipes placed high above the court.

English Officials in India.

Britain uses only a handful of Englishmen in its India civil service to govern the hordes of natives in India. Says an authority: "Including military officers in civil employ and others, about 1,200 Englishmen are employed in the civil government of 232,000,000 of people and in the partial control of 62,000,000 more. On the average there are only four members of the ruling race for every million of its subjects. India is a government of Indians under British direction."

WOMAN AND HOME

For Hours of Recreation.

Children's "At Homes" a Good Idea of a Clever Mother Who Recognizes That Children Must Be Amused.

Realizing that an only child is at best a lonely little mortal, needing the companionship of children, a clever mother has devised this scheme for the entertainment and mutual good of the neighborhood children. Every mother knows that it is oftentimes very inconvenient to have other people's children running in and out at all hours and at all times, neither does she wish (if she has a conscience) to allow her young hopeful to go to "Johnny's house" when she is not absolutely certain that his mother will welcome the young visitor. But amusement is very essential to the coming men and women, so the following notes were sent to the respective mothers: "Frances and I will be at home every Tuesday afternon from three until five o'clock, and we will be glad to have 'Jack' and 'Jill' spend those hours with us." On these days, not having a nursery, valuable bits of bric-a-brac are put out of harm's way, and small chairs, tables and toys are given first place. Simple refreshments are served, the children doing honors. Sandwiches of entire wheat bread, cocoa, custards, wafers, prune whip, baked apples, and sometimes tiny cups of bouillon with alphabet letters are specimen menus. The mother keeps in the background as much as possible, allowing the children to be free from restraint.

This same mother also makes it a practice to invite some child to dinner each week, and these invitations are most eagerly accepted. At this meal the menu is planned as far as practical to meet the personal likes of the little hostess and the guest. Even four-year-old children like to be consulted, and will express a preference as to flowers, candles and kind of cake. It is a wise mother who early begins to cultivate the individuality and personality of her child, and the time is well spent.

An Arctic Luncheon.

Even tho' the "dog days" are upon us, there is not much less entertaining, but affairs are of a very informal character. This luncheon was most unique, and thoroughly enjoyed by the guests.

The chairs were covered with white, pictures of water and snow scenes adorned the walls, curtains were of white, and the table was a mass of glittering diamond dust, from which a large cake of ice rose as a centerpiece. Sweet peas and maiden hair ferns adorned the top. Little polar bears bore the place cards. Glass icicles hung from the chandelier. All the guests were requested to wear white, and be prepared to tell the coldest experience they had ever had. No one was permitted to mention hot weather, and a large palm leaf fan was attached to each chair. Thermomenters were numerous, with the mercury at zero. (They had spent 24 hours in the refrigerator.) A cold menu was served, and iced drinks passed as soon as the guests arrived.

For the Bachelor's Menu Cards.

The favors of this "stag" party were purchased of the host's sister, and she also made the place cards, which were pipe shaped and bore the following sentiments:

"Large was his bounty, and his soul sincere." Gray.

"A night we'll feast together." Shakespeare.

"Welcome ever smiles, and farewell goes out sighing." Shakespeare.

"Welcome the coming, and speed the parting guest." Pope.

"Bear welcome in your eye, your hand, your heart." Shakespeare.

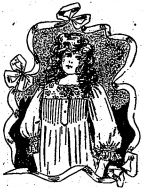
The favors containing hard candies were in shape of huge thimbles and spools of thread.

MADAME MERRI.

PRETTY FOR THE SMALL GIRL.

Comfortable Night Dress Without Over-Elaborate Trimming.

This is an easy and quickly made night dress for a young girl; it is pretty, without having a great deal of elaborate trimming. The square yoke is of piece embroidery; the nainsook or calico for the lower part is tucked to fit the yoke, the tucks being about five inches deep. The fastening is in the center front, under a box pleat. The sleeves are gathered into bands of insertion, edged with a frill of embroidery. Materials required: Three yards, 36 inches wide, one-half yard piece embroidery, one-half yard insertion, and one yard embroidery for frills.



PRETTY PARTY FOR BRIDE.

ique Affair Thoroughly Enjoyed by the Guests.

A very unique affair was given recently for a bride-to-be.

The guests were invited to a "linen shower," and were also told to be prepared to drink the bride's health in a toast.

After the arrival of the 20 guests and an exchange of greetings, the packages, which had previously been deposited on a small table, were opened. The hostess announced that a prize would be given for the most ornamental gift, and another for the most useful, and each guest was given a slip of paper and pencil upon which to vote.

The voting caused much fun and a general "mixing around." When the slips were counted, it was found that an exquisitely embroidered handkerchief had won the first prize for the most "ornamental," and a hemstitched washrag with the bride's monogram in one corner was voted the most useful."

Shortly after the prizes were awarded the guests were invited into the dining-room and seated at a long table. The bare mahogany board was laid with cluny lace over green. In the center, resting on a high old-fashioned cake stand, was a wedding cake covered with an elaborate icing and topped with white doves. At intervals, were placed four silver candlesticks with white candles and green shades.

At each plate was a little silver box in the shape of a heart. These were filled with rice, and when, a little later, the bride elect rose to respond to a toast, she was showered with the tiny emblems of good luck.

A delicious salad course, in which green, the color motif, and hearts, played a prominent part, was followed by ices. These were shaped as wedding bells, cupids and pierced hearts, and were accompanied by cakes as hearts, iced in white, and decorated with the initials of the bride and groom, interwoven, done in green.

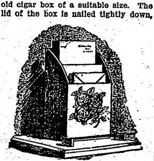
Following this the hostess rose, and in the silver loving cup which had graced her own wedding festivities, drank the health and happiness of the bride.

"Forewarned is forearmed," so the toasts went merrily around the table, and the affair broke up in showers of rice and a wealth of good wishes for the hostess.—L. M. Peeples, in Every day Housekeeping.

USEFUL TO HOLD STATIONERY.

Writing Adjunct Can Be Made Out of Old Cigar Box.

A useful stationery box to stand on a writing table can be made from an old cigar box of a suitable size. The lid of the box is nailed tightly down, and the upper portion cut away in the manner shown in our sketch, and a division made inside the box with a piece of stout cardboard. This is mounted on a square piece of wood, the edges of which are beveled.



When Double Plait Is Used.

The double box plait which runs down the back of so many seasonable skirts continues up above as a wide strap, over the deep waist belt of the dress, fastening on to the blouse beneath the bolero. A similar effect is given with the front panel on many princess gowns of fine summery materials.

Atmospheric Poisoning.

The protests against the automobile omnibuses of London have received a powerful reenforcement by a declaration of Sir James Dewar on the chemical basis. He is undoubtedly among the high chemical authorities of the world, and his condemnation of the motor buses and freight vans seems conclusive unless invention provides innocuous motive power.

Sir James Dewar states that the combustion of petrol or gasoline in these motors throws off vast quantities of noxious gases. Some of these are absolutely poisonous and all injurious. He holds that the air of London is bad enough already without the addition of carbonic acid gas, the sulphurous gases, and, worst of all, the asphyxiating carbonic oxide. Moreover, while he admits that science can improve motors, he declares that it is impossible for it to burn petrol and render the resulting gases innocuous.

MOTHER'S FAVORITE

Cuticura
SOAP
MEDICINAL
AND TOILET
PRICE 25 CENTS

For Baby's Skin & Scalp

Because of its Delicate Medicinal, Emollient, Sanative, and Antiseptic Properties combined with the purest of Cleansing Ingredients and most refreshing of Flower Odors.

Sold throughout the world. Cuticura Soap, 25c., Ointment, 50c., Resolvent, 50c. (in form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60). A single set often cures. Depots: London, 27 Charterhouse Sq.; Paris, 5 Rue de la Paix; Boston, 137 Columbus Ave. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props.
Send for "How to Preserve, Purify, and Beautify the Skin, Scalp, Hair, and Hands of Infants and Children."

SICK HEADACHE

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively cured by these Little Pills.
They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.

SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.
Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature
Brent Good
REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

When you buy WET WEATHER CLOTHING you want complete protection and long service. These and many other good points are combined in TOWER'S FISH BRAND OILED CLOTHING You can't afford to buy any other
TOWER'S FISH BRAND
A.J. TOWER CO BOSTON U.S.A.
TOWER CANADIAN CO LTD.
TORONTO, CAN.

SALESMEN WANTED.

We want a live, active and thoroughly experienced salesman in this locality with sufficient money to buy outright his first month's supply of our Simplicity Low Pressure Hollow Wire Gasoline Lights. A utility needed in every store and home and fully complying with insurance rules. To such a man we will give exclusive sales right and guarantee to refund money if goods not sold in 60 days. Further particulars on request. The Standard-Gillett Light Co., 930 N. Halsted St., Chicago, Ill.

WANTED—More View Agents. Business pays $200 per month. Farmers' sons, students and clerks preferred. STANDARD SCENIC CO., Kansas City, Mo.

Dynamos and Motors
Ask for Catalog St-154.
FAIRBANKS, MORSE & CO., St. Paul.

60 Bus. Winter Wheat Per Acre
That's the yield of Salzer's Red Cross Hybrid Winter Wheat. Send 2c in stamps for free sample of same, as also catalogue of Winter Wheats, Rye, Barley, Clovers, Timothy, Grasses, Bulbs, Trees, etc. for fall planting. SALZER SEED CO., Box W. L. La Crosse, Wis.

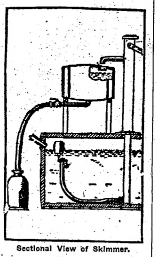
75 of the BEST POSTCARDS for $1. Trial assortment only sold to dealers. Address at once U. S. SOUVENIR POST CARD Co., 23 to 55 East 23rd Street, New York City.

THE DAIRY

COLLECTS SKIMMED MILK.

A Novel Pump Which Discriminates Between Cream and Milk.

The apparent ease in separating cream from the remaining skimmed milk is well illustrated in an apparatus recently patented by a Wisconsin dairyman. Expensive machinery and steam power are not necessary by this method. Instead, he uses a suitable reservoir in which the milk is allowed to settle a suitable time until the cream has formed at the top. Above the reservoir is an ordinary pump, the suction being on the bottom of the reservoir. Attached to the end of the pump is a rubber hose, a float keeping the free end of the hose a certain distance below the cream at the top of the reservoir. A discharge pipe, having a stop cock, is attached to the receptacle, from which the skimmed milk can be distributed to cans.



Sectional View of Skimmer.

WATER THE MILK.

But See That the Water Goes Through the Cow.

The dairy cow requires plenty of water. The dairy machine is run by water power; all the food consumed must be in solution before it can nourish the animal economy, and the milk itself is 87 per cent. water. Under ideal arrangements pure water is accessible to the cow at all times. She drinks little and often, in the aggregate, however, many gallons daily. The cows on succulent feed do not drink so much as those on dry rations, but likely actually consume more water when one considers the water content of the feed. This may explain somewhat the good results obtained by feeding roots. The succulent nature of the grass appeals to the cow's appetite and acts as a natural stimulant upon all the digestive and secretory apparatus. In winter time we may feed roots, beet pulp, apple pomace or vegetables to supply succulence. Silage, as generally made, is not juicy enough to balance against the rest of the usual ration.

SKIMMINGS.

The amount of feed required to mature a steer will bring much more if fed to produce dairy products.

If the butter is good, and can be delivered regularly, there will be no difficulty about selling it at a good price.

However careful one may be about everything in a dairy, if vile odors exist the milk and the butter will not be good.

It is a good plan to ceil the dairy barn with building paper. It keeps everything clean and free from seed and dust.

Cheese makers tell us this is the most satisfactory cheese year they have ever known—good flow of milk and high prices.

It may be set down as a fact that no dairyman makes uniformly good butter whose cows are strangers to good and wholesome food.

While it is not necessary or even always desirable to have the water very cold, it is of the very first importance that it be pure and wholesome.

If the cow's teats are muddy or covered with other filth they should be washed with water and then wiped dry before beginning to milk. Then milk with dry hands.

Bad water will make bad milk, no matter what the other food may be, and bad milk will make bad butter, no matter how well it is handled.

How long butter should be worked depends something upon the temperature, and firmness of the butter. If it is hard it takes more working. If should not be worked until waxy.

The Milk Scales.

The milk scales often act as a stimulus to the milkers. Once let the milkers become interested in watching the daily variations in the weights of milk and they will soon also begin to connect these variations either with variations in the quality and amounts of food given or with weather conditions or with care. This causes the study of the matter, and such study always results in good. The milk scales will often point out a poor cow where she was only suspected before.

A HEALTHY OLD AGE

OFTEN THE BEST PART OF LIFE

Help for Women Passing Through Change of Life

Providence has allotted us each at least seventy years in which to fulfill our mission in life, and it is generally our own fault if we die prematurely.

Mrs. Mary Koehne

Nervous exhaustion invites disease. This statement is the positive truth.

When everything becomes a burden and you cannot walk a few blocks without excessive fatigue, and you break out into perspiration easily, and your face flushes, and you grow excited and shaky at the least provocation, and you cannot bear to be crossed in anything, you are in danger; your nerves have given out; you need building up at once! To build up woman's nervous system and during the period of change of life we know of no better medicine than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Here is an illustration. Mrs. Mary L. Koehne, 371 Garfield Avenue, Chicago, Ill., writes:

"I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for years in my family and it never disappoints; so when I felt that I was nearing the change of life I commenced treatment with it. I took in all about six bottles and it did me a great deal of good. It stopped my dizzy spells, pains in my back and the headaches with which I had suffered for months before taking the Compound. I feel that if it had not been for this great medicine for women that I should not have been alive to-day. It is splendid for women, old or young, and will surely cure all female disorders."

Mrs. Pinkham, daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick and ailing women to write her for advice. Her great experience is at their service, free of cost.

'FRISCO'S CROP OF GENIUS.

Second Only to New York in Vigor and Freshness of Its Literature.

New York is of course the great American market for literary wares, says E. S. Martin in Appleton's Magazine. There is also a measure of hospitality shown to writers and their products in Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and Indianapolis.

But San Francisco for thirty years past has beaten all four of these subsidiary literary centers in the freshness and vigor of its inspirations.

It has had an ocean of its own to stimulate its imagination, a new country behind and about it and an adventurous and virile population that has liked to live its own life in its own way and dream and live its own romances.

It has had money, too. It has sent out its envoys to view the world (and a good many of them have stayed away), and because it has been one of the world's great starting places and landing places it has viewed habitually from its own doorstep pretty much every kind of human creature that has been worth looking at.

Altogether, San Francisco has been like no other city of our republic.

Sensible German Idea.

On continental railways and the Rhine steamers there is no miscellaneous scrambling for meals. Instead a steward goes through the train or boat and lists the people who want to eat. Each gets a number, and this insures a seat without crowding or delay.

Remarkable Fig Tree.

In the gardens of the Raby castle, Durham, England, is a fig tree which has a spread of branches from 20 to 24 feet. It was brought from Italy in 1786, and is kept under glass.

GOOD AND HARD.

Results of Excessive Coffee Drinking.

It is remarkable what suffering some persons put up with just to satisfy an appetite for something.

A Mich. woman says: "I had been using coffee since I was old enough to have a cup of my own at the table, and from it I have suffered agony hundreds of times in the years past.

"My trouble first began in the form of bilious colic, coming on every few weeks and almost ending my life. At every attack for 8 years I suffered in this way. I used to pray for death to relieve me from my suffering. I had also attacks of sick headache, and began to suffer from catarrh of the stomach, and of course awful dyspepsia.

"For about a year I lived on crackers and water. Believing that coffee was the cause of all this suffering, I finally quit it and began to use Postum Food Coffee. It agreed with my stomach, my troubles have left me and I am fast gaining my health under its use.

"No wonder I condemn coffee and tea. No one could be in a much more critical condition than I was from the use of coffee. Some doctors pronounced it cancer, others ulceration, but none gave me any relief. But since I stopped coffee and began Postum I am getting well so fast I can heartily recommend it for all who suffer as I did." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville." "There's a reason."

Deadly New Rifle.

Bullets from the new 30-caliber rifles of the United States army whirl with great rapidity. The rifling gives one revolution of the bullet about its axis in ten inches. At the muzzle the velocity of the bullet is 2,300 feet a second, which means 2,760 turns a second, assuming that the bullet does not strip in the rifling. The circumference of the bullet is .942 of an inch, which gives a peripheral velocity of 2,600 inches each second, or 13,600 feet a minute.

WILD WITH ITCHING HUMOR.

Eruption Broke Out in Spots All Over Body—Cured at Expense of Only $1.25—Thanks Cuticura.

"The Cuticura Remedies cured me of my skin disease, and I am very thankful to you. My trouble was eruption of the skin, which broke out in spots all over my body, and caused a continual itching which nearly drove me wild at times. I got medicine of a doctor, but it did not cure me, and when I saw in a paper your ad, I sent to you for the Cuticura book and I studied my case in it. I then went to the drug store and bought one cake of Cuticura Soap, one box of Cuticura Ointment and one vial of Cuticura Pills. From the first application I received relief. I used the first set and two extra cakes of Cuticura Soap, and was completely cured. I had suffered for two years, and I again thank Cuticura for my cure. Claude N. Johnson, Maple Grove Farm, R. F. D. 2, Walnut, Kan., June 15, 1905."

Crucial Test.

"Yes, the prisoner was a woman of extraordinary nerve. They tried in every known way to make her nervous."

"That so?"

"Yes. They shot off a gun unexpectedly, yelled 'Fire!' and told her a distant powder blast was an earthquake. Still she was unmoved. Then they liberated a mouse."

"I'll wager a bank roll against a stogie that the mouse made her nervous."

"Not at all. She only stepped on it and laughed."

"Great Jupiter! Such a woman as that wouldn't lose her nerve if the earth exploded."

"Oh, yes. One of the detectives stepped up and whispered in her ear that her hair had been mussed up for two hours, and then she collapsed."

North Dakota Solves the Adulteration Problem.

North Dakota seems to have found the key to the question, "How shall we protect the people from frauds in manufactured products?" A new law has recently gone into effect designed to make it impossible to deceive people into buying inferior and adulterated paint under the impression that they are getting real paint, viz.: pure white lead and linseed oil.

The North Dakota lawmakers did not attempt to absolutely prohibit the inferior pigments, or mixtures of pigments. They adopted the slogan, "Let the label tell," and then left to the people to buy whichever they wished.

Under this plan, if any one wishes to buy a mixture of rock-dust, ground quartz and other cheap elements which are found in many paints and so-called "white leads," no one can object; for they do it with their eyes open. But if they prefer genuine white lead and linseed oil, they can be sure of getting it, for none but the genuine article can bear a label which says "pure white lead."

In all other States mixtures are often sold as pure white lead which contain little—sometimes no—real white lead.

It would seem that were this same principle applied to food, beverages and all other prepared articles, where deception is practiced upon the buyer, the question would be solved. It would leave us free to buy what we pleased, but would protect us from unwittingly buying what we did not want.

FORCE ALL IDLERS TO WORK.

Scarcity of Labor in the Harvest Fields of the Northwest.

Idlers in southern Washington must either enter the harvest field or go to jail. The old blue law of New England that "he who will not work shall not eat" has been revived throughout the wheat belt of this state and northern Oregon at the instance of farmers whose chagrin upon having an offer of $3 a day and board rejected by loafers must be appeased.

Accordingly the town councils of Pullman, Colfax, Garfield, Pomeroy, Palouse and a half dozen other towns have rendered it possible to inflict double penalty for vagrancy, a fine and jail sentence of thirty days being imposed, and the prisoner being required to work on a specially provided rock pile in the broiling sun. The definition of the term "vagrancy" has been enlarged in its application in the wheat belt until it practically devolves upon the accused to show that he has some means of support involving some physical effort on his part, or if it is not "visible" to the police magistrate, the prisoner will surely be held for vagrancy.

The demand for help is almost a tragedy in some localities. Farmers, realizing that their crop will be practically ruined should it not be harvested within a brief time, make frantic appeals to any man or woman capable of wielding a pitchfork. They offer from $2 to $3 per day and board, and stipulate readily that the quality of the board shall rival that at Delmonico's, and the hired man can have the best bed in the house for the asking.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

WORN TO A SKELETON.

A Wonderful Restoration Caused a Sensation in a Pennsylvania Town.

Mrs. Charles N. Preston, of Elkland, Pa., says: "Three years ago I found that my housework was becoming a burden. I tired easily, had no ambition and was fading fast. My complexion got yellow, and I lost over 50 pounds. My thirst was terrible, and there was sugar in the kidney secretions. My doctor kept me on a strict diet, but as his medicine was not helping me, I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. They helped me at once, and soon all traces of sugar disappeared. I have regained my former weight and am perfectly well."

Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Beit's Deed of Generosity.

One of the many persons whom the late Alfred Beit had befriended repaid him with ingratitude and abuse. Later the ingrate fell on evil times. Though down in the gutter, he still had a little shame left and would not ask Mr. Beit for help. The South African diamond magnate sent for one of the unlucky one's friends and said: "Go and see So-and-So, ask if he wants any help, and give it to him, but don't let him think it is from me. I have had a difference with him and perhaps it would annoy him!"

All Chemically Pure.

The mistaken idea of a few years ago, about Alum in Baking Powders being injurious, no longer prevails, or scarcely exists. It is a well established fact by chemical analysis that Cream of Tartar being less volatile than Alum, when exposed to heat, is not entirely vaporized as is the case with Alum, but leaves a residue in the bread, which is injurious. Alum, on the contrary, is entirely evaporated while performing its function during process of baking, leaving no atom of injurious residuous substance. The words "Chemically Pure" erroneously used to designate Cream of Tartar from Alum baking powder is a misnomer. Baking Powder made of pure Alum is as chemically pure as made from pure cream of tartar. These words mean nothing more nor less than pure chemicals, and in no way can they imply that one baking powder is Alum and another Cream of Tartar. Alum has been declared to be wholesome; an established fact. Every large water system in the cities along the Missouri river use Alum in large quantities to purify the water before pumping it into their water mains for consumption. Cream of Tartar baking powder is perhaps good enough for any one; Alum baking powder is better, and very much cheaper.

Vanishing Rural Industries.

The gradual cessation, one after another, of the countryside industries is one of the principal reasons why the peasant owner has vanished from the land. Thatching and woodcraft have been killed by rural councils, with their craze for slated roofs, and by the substitution of other materials for timber. The cottager can no longer even burn wood, but must buy coal, since his fireplaces are not fashioned for the consumption of fagots.—London Estates Gazette.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES, are fast to light and washing and color more goods than others. 10c per package.

What a miserable crowd of pessimists we would be if we could see ourselves as others see us.

To keep your auto looking bright use the following mixture for all painted parts: Sperm oil, one-half pint; common vinegar, one-half pint; oil bergamot, one dram. Mix and rub with clean cloth. For all brass work use tripoli, one and one-half pounds; any lubricating oil, eight ounces; gasoline, three quarts. This is one of the best cleaners for all polished brass.

If you contemplate buying a medium priced automobile and want to be certain of securing a car suitable for touring on country roads, up hill as well as down hill, you will make no mistake in buying either a Buieck, Maxwell, Mitchell, Reo, Knox, Franklin or Queen. These range in price from $750 to $2,000.

False Alarm.

From the valley there came a cloud of dust and a distant rumble. The man of the stone age rushed up the mountain and perched himself on the highest peak.

"Shucks!" exclaimed the fugitive, as he slipped down to the valley again, "It is only a poor dinosaur roaming about for his breakfast. From the noise I thought it must be an automobile."

And the man went back to his peaceful occupation of hewing an apartment house out of a solid cliff.

W. L. DOUGLAS
$3.50 & $3.00 Shoes
BEST IN THE WORLD
W. L. Douglas $4 Gilt Edge line cannot be equalled at any price

To Shoe Dealers:
W. L. Douglas' Jobbing House is the most complete in this country
Send for Catalog

SHOES
ESTABLISHED 1876
CAPITAL $2,500,000

SHOES FOR EVERYBODY AT ALL PRICES.
Men's Shoes, $5 to $1.50. Boys' Shoes, $3 to $1.25. Women's Shoes, $4.00 to $1.50. Misses' & Children's Shoes, $2.25 to $1.00.
Try W. L. Douglas Women's, Misses and Children's shoes; for style, fit and wear they excel other makes.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer, and are of greater value than any other make.

Wherever you live, you can obtain W. L. Douglas shoes. His name and price is stamped on the bottom, which protects you against high prices and inferior shoes. Take no substitute. Ask your dealer for W. L. Douglas shoes and insist upon having them.
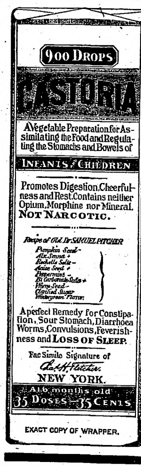
Fast Color Eyelets used; they will not wear brassy.
Write for Illustrated Catalog of Fall Styles.
W. L. DOUGLAS, Dept. 12, Brockton, Mass.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water



900 DROPS
CASTORIA
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS & CHILDREN
Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral.
NOT NARCOTIC.
Recipe of Old Dr SAMUEL PITCHER
Pumpkin Seed
Alx. Senna
Rochelle Salts
Anise Seed
Peppermint
Bi Carbonate Soda
Worm Seed
Clarified Sugar
Wintergreen Flavor.
A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.
Fac Simile Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
NEW YORK.
At 6 months old
35 DOSES—35 CENTS
EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
In Use For Over Thirty Years
CASTORIA
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

THE WINNING STROKE

If more than ordinary skill in playing brings the honors of the game to the winning player, so exceptional merit in a remedy ensures the commendation of the well informed, and as a reasonable amount of outdoor life and recreation is conducive to the health and strength, so does a perfect laxative tend to one's improvement in cases of constipation, biliousness, headaches, etc. It is all important, however, in selecting a laxative, to choose one of known quality and excellence, like the ever pleasant Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., a laxative which sweetens and cleanses the system effectually, when a laxative is needed, without any unpleasant after effects, as it acts naturally and gently on the internal organs, simply assisting nature when nature needs assistance, without griping, irritating or debilitating the internal organs in any way, as it contains nothing of an objectionable or injurious nature. As the plants which are combined with the figs in the manufacture of Syrup of Figs are known to physicians to act most beneficially upon the system, the remedy has met with their general approval as a family laxative, a fact well worth considering in making purchases.

It is because of the fact that SYRUP OF FIGS is a remedy of known quality and excellence, and approved by physicians that has led to its use by so many millions of well informed people, who would not use any remedy of uncertain quality or inferior reputation. Every family should have a bottle of the genuine on hand at all times, to use when a laxative remedy is required. Please to remember that the genuine Syrup of Figs is for sale in bottles of one size only, by all reputable druggists, and that full name of the company—California Fig Syrup Co., is plainly printed on the front of every package. Regular price, 50c per bottle.

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.
Louisville, Ky. San Francisco, Cal. New York, N.Y.

Russell Sage's Ghoul Proof Vault.

Any Person May Have One for $100, But the Disappearance of the Resurrectionists Has Lessened the Demand.

Boston.—One need not have the wealth of the late Russell Sage in order to purchase a ghoul-proof casket, for the same thing, or at least one equally burglar-proof, can be secured here for from $100 to $200. They are not in great demand hereabouts, for the same dangers do not exist as formerly, or exist at all, save for men of such prominence as this late eccentric millionaire. said a member of a prominent firm in speaking of this type of sarcophagus:

"I cannot see how any such sum as that mentioned in the newspapers could possibly be paid for a steel casket. They can be secured for a little over $100, and even if made to order could not be brought above a cost of $1,000. They are of simple construction, consisting only of a steel case which locks from within with spring locks. The ordinary kind cannot be opened without the use of a steel chisel, and then the heads of the bolts would have to be cut away.

"They are an absolute protection for such as possess the fear of body-snatchers, but they are not used very much here in the east. Now that the medical schools are well supplied, under the law, there is little incentive for this type of criminal to operate. In the south and west, however, they are in quite common use."

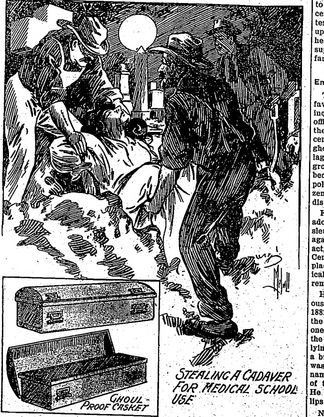
"Do you ever have a request for a casket which shall be provided with safeguards against burial alive?" was asked.

No More Burials Alive.

"No. Under our present methods burial alive is an impossibility. To be sure, there are some eccentric individuals who make odd requests, but in my long experience I have never come across one. This steel casket is as far as they ever vary in their expressed wishes."

A member of the local branch of the company, from whom it was reported the $22,000 casket was bought, also agreed that it would be impossible to expend this amount of money on the steel inclosure. He said:

"Our prices range from $100 to perhaps $500, and should such a thing be made to order, of heavier steel and with special arrangements, it might be brought up to over $1,000, but scarcely more. I have heard nothing to the effect that Mr. Sage's sarcophagus was bought of our firm, but if it was it is scarcely probable that any such price as this was paid for it."



GHOUL-PROOF CASKET

STEALING A CADAVER FOR MEDICAL SCHOOL USE

"Have you in ordinary use especial arrangements like electric bells or other means of safeguarding against burial alive?"

"No; although, of course, such things could be made, to supply a whim. The steel casket is common enough, especially in countries where there is a great deal of rain, or in remote regions where the grave cannot be watched."

If as big a sum as $22,000 was actually expended on the burial arrangements of Mr. Sage, it must have been in other directions than for the mere inclosure. Local undertakers doubt it, and maintain it is absurd.

Grave Robberies Common.

Although the danger from grave robbing never became so acute in Massachusetts as elsewhere, up to within 25 years the crime was of common occurrence here. But in New York a series of startling exposures revealed the fact that there was a well organized body of men engaged in the work of supplying medical schools with the necessary cadavers for dissection. Until 1883, when the so-called anatomy bill was passed in that state, there was but this one way in which bodies could be secured. The prices paid for them were high, and in consequence a group of men about Syracuse Medical college and the Buffalo Medical college did a thriving business as "resurrectionists." Of them all, no one was more famous than Dr. Hervey W. Kendall, who at last was mysteriously murdered.

In more ways than one Dr. Kendall was a remarkable man. His temperament was such that he seemed to delight in things that horrified other men. He was a student at the medical college, where he was known as a man who was not a brilliant student, but as one who could do things better than most men when he made up his mind to do so. To look at the man was to see that he was out of the common. One who knew him well described him as follows:

"If Hervey had lived in the days of pirates he would have been a rival to Capt. Kidd. In the first place, he looked the part. Nine out of ten men would turn to get a look at him on the street. Almost six feet tall, he was sinewy and lithe to a degree. There was not an ounce of fat on his body, and his muscles were magnificently developed. His neck was unusually long, and surmounted by a head that was remarkable. His forehead was high and intelligent, his eyes deep-set and sparkling black. A mustache of metallic blackness appeared blacker than it really was, by reason of his waxy complexion, which was almost corpse-like in its yellowish whiteness. This mustache, which was long and flowing, gave him an air of ferocity which was really startling. He wore in winter a long ulster that came almost to his heels."

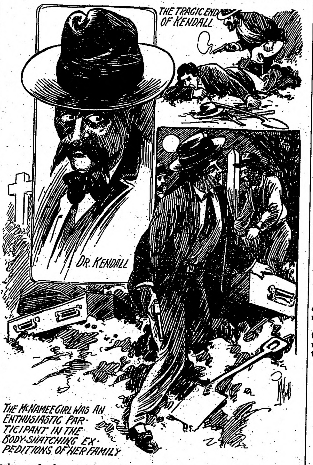
Skilled in Use of Weapons.

A glimpse of his living rooms in Warren street, Syracuse, was a revelation of the tastes of the man. The walls were hung with foils and a regular armory of weapons. An expert fencer and a dead shot, he led an existence that drew him away from all but a very few intimate freinds.

His skill with the revolver was noteworthy. As an illustration of this, an acquaintance of his said:

"I never knew a surer marksman; he was absolute lightning. On one occasion he and I were in the old medical college one night, and had to go downstairs into the cellar, where the cadavers were kept in huge barrels of brine. I went ahead, carrying a candle, while Hervey followed me. He had a cigarette in his right hand and a package in his left. When halfway down the stairs, in the inky blackness, I heard a noise in one of the coal bins. Almost before I had time to catch the gleam from a pair of yellowish eyes, and to realize it was a prowling cat, I heard the report of a revolver. I jumped, and when I recovered myself looked around, to see this man kicking aside the dead body of the cat. He was laughing at my fright."

To a man of this morbid nature and one who, moreover, was absolutely fearless and who courted adventure, this grewsome work of body snatching had its fascinations. It was illegal, and the best brains of the police force of the country were busy trying to stop it, which added another incentive to this man. It was a contest of mind and pluck, as he looked upon it. And so, while still a student, he organized a small gang of men who supplied cadavers to colleges even as far west as Michigan.



THE TRAGIC END OF KENDALL

DR. KENDALL

THE McNAMEE GIRL WAS AN ENTHUSIASTIC PARTICIPANT IN THE BODY-SNATCHING EXPEDITIONS OF HER FAMILY

Emptied Numerous Graves.

The poorhouse graveyard was their favorite hunting ground, and at the inquest over the body of Kendall an officer testified that he did not believe there were a dozen graves in the cemetery containing bodies. But these ghouls even visited neighboring villages and the aristocratic burying ground at Oakwood. So bold did they become, and so powerless were the police to check them, that many citizens buried relatives and friends in distant cities.

Kendall was suspected, but he adopted a hundred ruses to throw the sleuths off his track. Time and time again he was almost captured in the act, but always made good his escape. Cemeteries were guarded and patrols placed about tombs, but still the medical school was supplied, and Kendall remained at large.

His end was as tragic and mysterious as his life had been. On May 8, 1882, Thomas Powell, an attendant at the county courthouse, looked from one of the windows and saw through the morning mist the body of a man lying in an adjacent field. There was a bullet hole between his eyes, but he was still conscious. He gave his name, but refused to divulge the name of the man who had done the deed. He died a few hours later, with his lips still sealed.

Near him lay a piece of carpet, two shovels and a satchel containing a cant-hook, a rope, a dark lantern, a bit and stalk, a screwdriver and a burglar's jimmy. Whether he was shot in a quarrel with a pal or by a member of the vigilance committee which had been organized against the ghouls, no one knows. With his death, and the passage of a law giving the schools a legal means of securing cadavers, grave robbing ceased in Syracuse.

Family of Ghouls.

At about this time the country was startled by the weird story which followed the arrest of the McNamee family. Some three miles from the city there had lived for five years the father, two sons and a daughter. But little was known of them, although the neighbors frequently speculated on their means of earning a livelihood.

One night a farmer named Goodrich was returning to his home late from a visit to a distant relative, when he met in the dark road a team. The road was narrow, so that in passing he was able to see the occupants of the other vehicle. He recognized them as the old man McNamee and his daughter. He was somewhat surprised to notice that the girl was dressed in man's clothes, but still more surprised to see that a muffled figure sat between them. He stopped and asked a few commonplace questions, to which he received surly replies. At this point McNamee's horse started, and as he did so threw the hat from the head of the third figure. Goodrich nearly fell from his wagon as he recognized the set features of young Wilbur Hill, who had been buried a few days before.

Goodrich, pale from fright, hurried home and roused the neighbors. They opened the grave, which had but lately been filled, and found it empty. A search of the house of the McNamees revealed spades, ropes and all the other paraphernalia of grave robbing. Further investigation of the graveyard showed that many other bodies were missing, and some of these were later discovered at Ann Arbor Medical school. The McNamees were arrested and imprisoned after a speedy trial.

Demand for Steel Caskets.

The unearthing of another gang of ghouls in New York came about in a most dramatic way, and nearly drove one of the innocent participants insane when he discovered his sister's body on the dissecting table.

Such things as these were coming to light every month in the early eighties, and naturally created much fear in the hearts of every one in the state of New York. It was at about this time that the demand was made for a casket which would withstand the depredations of these fiends. At first a cast-iron box was made, but shortly after this the modern ghoul-proof receptacle was evolved, with springs which fasten securely on the inside. Strict laws and saner methods on the part of the medical schools in the east have made their use unnecessary here. But in the vicinity of smaller and less scrupulous colleges they are in constant demand.

FINEST BREAKWATER IN WORLD.

English Harbor Formed by Mile of Walls Costing $9,000,000.

The harbor of Plymouth, England, is protected by what is claimed to be the greatest breakwater in the world.

The main part is 3,000 feet long, with two arms at angles extending 1,000 feet, thus making it nearly a mile on its entire length. It stretches across the entrance to the bay, two and a half miles from the city, and receives the force of the gales that frequently come up from the southwest.

In the center is a fortress of iron and masonry, and at either extremity a lighthouse 68 feet high.

Nearly four and a half million tons of stone were thrown into the sea as a foundation for this breakwater during the 41 years that it was building from 1812 to 1852, and it cost $9,000,000, but it made the harbor of Plymouth one of the safest in England.

The city of Plymouth fills several valleys and covers several hills. It used to be written Plym-mouth. Nobody knows how old the city is.

A DEFINITION AND ITS APT ILLUSTRATION.

"Pa, what is a foregone conclusion?"

"Something that you know will happen before it does. For instance, it's a foregone conclusion that if your mother should come into this room now and see me with my feet cocked up and my cigar going nicely, as you see me, she would immediately think of something that— Ah, there she comes! Listen!"

"Henry," she said, "I wish you'd see if you can't do something to the dining-room window. I can't get it up or down. And when you get that fixed oil the hinge of the kitchen-door. It squeaks terribly."—Judge.

Discouraging to Goodness.

"I'm goin' to stop bein' kind and helpful to people," said little Johnny.

"How is that?" asked his mother.

"Well, it's this way; at school today I saw Tommy Jones putting a pin in the master's chair, so, just as the master was about to sit down, I pulled away the chair. The master sat down on the floor, and when he got up he licked me for pulling away the chair, and then Tommy Jones licked me for interfering. Yes, I'm goin' to stop helpin' people now."—Tit Bits.

Misunderstood.

"Every man ought to have his life insured."

"Yes, sir; that's right. I've always said that."

"You agree with me then?"

"I certainly do!"

"Then I may write out a policy on your life?"

"On my life? I should say not! I thought you said every man ought to have his wife insured."—Houston Post.

Too Good.

"Say, Bill, I think you are trying to boom our new ice plant a little too much!" called the head of the concern.

"What's the matter?" asked Bill.

"Why, there was a lady in here just now making a complaint," continued the head of the concern. "She said you had guaranteed that this ice wouldn't melt."—Detroit Free Press.

Didn't Have to.

"The audience didn't laugh at that story I told at all."

"Nope."

"That's mighty funny. I told that in the factory at noon and every one of my employes laughed immoderately at it."

"Yes, but you see, these people in the audience were not your employes."—Houston Post.

Very Little.

"'When an actor passes away,'" quoted Boothby Hamfatter, "'he leaves nothing behind him.'"

"Nothin'," assented the landlord of the one-night stand hotel, "exceptin' mebbe a trunk full o' rocks, an a rope ter show which winder he clumb uter."—Cleveland Leader.

A Combination.

The bathing girl's the game for me—
For wild beast hunts I do not care;
She's sport enough, because, you see,
She is both dear and bare!
—Cleveland Leader.

A GREAT SUCCESS.

Jack—So you attended a meeting of the Women's Auto club. How did it go?

Philomena—Splendidly. We ran down every member that wasn't there.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Brute.

"I'm saddest when I sing," she sang,
Clear rang the notes and high,
Her father from the other room
Responded: "So am I."
—Houston Post.

Enough for Him.

Athletic Enthusiast—Do you think you get exercise enough?

Stoutly—You bet I do! It keeps me scrambling to get a living!—Detroit Free Press.

Defined.

Knicker—What is the political situation?

Bocker—You need a rubber wagon to see which is the band wagon.—N. Y. Sun.

Agree and Disagree.

She—A man without any sentiment in him misses a good deal in life.

He—A good deal of trouble, yes.—Detroit Free Press.

A Difference.

"She's awful skinny, isn't she?"

"I should say not! She's willowy; that girl's dad has got money."—Houston Post.

HIS RUSH MESSAGE WAS VERY IMPORTANT.

A well dressed young man approached the desk in a telegraph branch office and wrote a message. Laying the pen down, he handed the message to the girl, according to "Modern Society," and said. "You can rush this for me, can't you?"

"Yes, indeed," replied the girl.

"It's very important," he went on. "I must have it rushed!"

"It shall go right through."

"All right," he said, turning away. "Be sure and rush it now."

When he was gone the girl showed the message to another operator standing near. "Look what is to be rushed," she said.

The message read: "Henry still loves his little wife and wishes she could be with him."

Losing Game.

Jinks—Ha, ha, ha! I feel jolly today. My daughter has stopped pestering me for a necklace. I happened to get an idea from a friend, and I acted on it—told her I had noticed that the prettiest girls were not wearing jewelry now.

Winks—By ginger! I'll try that dodge myself.

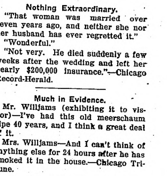
Jinks—the next day—Hello, Winks, did you try that anti-jewelry game on your daughter?

Winks—Y-e-s; and now my wife is raging around because she thinks I've been staring at pretty girls. I wish I'd bought the necklace.—N. Y. Weekly.

How Foolish.

There once was a lady named Dowd
Whose peek-a-boo waist was quite loud;
When she went out at night
The moon, at the sight,
Blushed deep and went under a cloud.
—Milwaukee Sentinel.

A UNION SHOP.



Nothing Extraordinary.

"That woman was married over seven years ago, and neither she nor her husband has ever regretted it."

"Wonderful."

"Not very. He died suddenly a few weeks after the wedding and left her nearly $200,000 insurance."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Much in Evidence.

Mr. Williams (exhibiting it to visitor)—I've had this old meerschaum pipe 40 years, and I think a great deal of it.

Mrs. Williams—And I can't think of anything else for 24 hours after he has smoked it in the house.—Chicago Tribune.

Effective Demonstration.

"Young man, have you the means, in any shape whatever, to support my daughter?"

"If you think I haven't, sir, just feel the muscles of these arms."

They were so tremendous, not to say terrific, that the stern parent hastily yielded his assent.—Chicago Tribune.

Heard on the Beautiful Shore.

Angrily the theologian fluttered his wings.

"And how did you get here?" he demanded of the humble savage.

"I took a correspondence course in piety," replied the child of the forest, producing his diploma.—Puck.

Unimportant Change.

A year later they again encountered each other by the sad sea waves.

"You haven't changed a bit since we were engaged last summer," he said.

"No," she replied, "only my name."—Chicago Daily News.

Wise Norah.

The Mistress—Norah, if you wish to keep your place you must not become familiar with the policeman on the block.

The Maid—All right, mem. I'll keep me place by makin' him kape his.—Chicago Tribune.

A Woman's Way.

Jack—I apologize sincerely for kissing you. Will you forgive me?

Jill—Never!

Jack—Was the act unpardonable?

Jill—The kiss wasn't, but the apology is.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

And More to Follow.

"The trolley car hath slain its thousands—," said the motorman.

"Yes," broke in the chauffeur, not without a touch of pride in his voice; "but the automobile hath slain its tens of thousands."—Puck.

Married Life.

Mrs. Knicker—So she has settled down to prosaic realities?

Mrs. Bocker—Yes; she has found it is harder to get a jewel of a cook than a solitaire.—N. Y. Sun.

MINNESOTA
HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

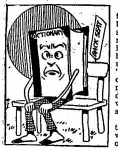
THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. VI. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, SEPT. 14, 1906. NO. 24.

News from Washington

Spelling Reform Order of the President Causes Agitation in Official Circles—Destruction of the Earth Prophesied—Condition of the Poor to Be Improved.



WASHINGTON.—There is considerable agitation in official Washington over the recent order by the president directing the use of phonetic spelling in all messages and other printed documents issuing from the White House. In addressing the order to the public printer the president has gone as far as he can to modernize orthography. He has instructed the public printer to "follow copy" and his cabinet officers will of course fall into line. They will have all the annual reports of division chiefs and other subordinates as well as their own prepared with the words spelled as the president has decided they should be.

The orthography advocated by Banker Matthews and in part approved by the president, while phonetic, possesses the combined advantage of brevity. It will save time in writing and typesetting, and will economize on the printing bill. In addition to the use of the contracted forms, "thru" and "tho," the past tense is obtained by a suffixed "t" instead of "ed," as "dasht" instead of "dashed," and silent syllables will be dispensed with, "catalogue" being spelled "catalog," for example.

In contemplating the introduction of the improved system in the various departments, the officials shake their heads in despair and point to the white-haired clerks. They appreciate the difficulty they are certain to encounter. There is a suggestion that the stenographers employed in the departments will find it necessary to organize a night school to master the new system.

The only encouraging part of the order is that the modernizing process is to be gradual. Should the changes in spelling be limited to easy stages of 100 words at the time, the stenographers and others who write the letters and prepare the departmental reports have some hopes of retaining their jobs and keeping out of an insane asylum.

DOOM OF CITIES PREDICTED.

Prepare for shocks. Prophet Edmund S. Stevens, of this city, has prophesied a long series of dreadful catastrophes which will culminate in the destruction of all the cities of the earth in the year of our Lord 1982.

Mother Earth is not of plumb, according to this prophet, and all the terrible earthquakes that have occurred and are yet to come are due to the fact that the earth is gradually resuming its proper position. When this stage of transition is reached there will be a new earth and a new heaven referred to in the scriptures.

The prophecy follows:

"CAUSE OF EARTHQUAKES.

"The earth is out of her place, or upright position. It is gradually resuming it. Whenever there is an accelerated or faster motion then in that period earthquakes occur. We are now in one of these periods, from Mont Pelee, 1900, to 1905. Again from 1925 to 1946 and again from 1965 to 2000 A. D.

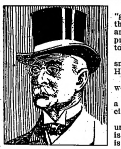
"In 1982 the earthquake is of such extent that all the cities of all the nations fall. From 2035 to 3144 A. D. the earth is in continual perturbation and in the latter year settles to its upright position. This brings in the new heaven and new earth. EDMUND S. STEVENS."

Prophet Stevens proves all his predictions by an elaborate collection of charts which are intelligible to him only.

Mr. Stevens said the first creation was 11,278,237 years ago. Noted scientists have stated it at about 11,000,000 years ago. Mr. Stevens says the scientists committed a "parachronism." He said further that he had "grasped this sorry scheme of things entire" that Omar Khayam wrote about. He has discovered the combination of how to measure years—no matter how far back or how far ahead—he has the combination of the safe of time.

"I have discovered the secret of the universe which has baffled scientists for all time; there is no doubt about that. I don't boast when I say this, but I just have, and that is all."

WHYTE A MODERN SPARTAN.



Senator Whyte, Maryland's picturesque "grand old man," who is occupying the seat of the late Arthur Gorman, had a birthday recently, and he is now in his eighty-third year. Whyte is probably the most remarkable man in Maryland to-day.

He has never tasted a drop of liquor nor smoked and has never been inside of a saloon. He is not a member of any club.

He defended 60 alleged murderers and all were acquitted.

He always rides in an ordinary day car on a passenger train and on the street cars in a city.

He framed the instruments on which the unique government of the District of Columbia is founded. He lives outside of Baltimore, yet is able to appear at a trial in Baltimore in the morning and be in Washington in time to answer to the noon roll call of the senate.

Twice chosen United States senator, he has also been governor, mayor, state senator, state representative, city solicitor, attorney general and state controller.

He was defeated for the United States senate by Gorman and then succeeded him. He was a member of the Maryland legislature when Gorman was a lad in Howard county.

He began the study of law while a boy, sitting on bags of burlap in a commercial house, where he worked from seven o'clock in the morning until ten o'clock at night. He has argued cases before courts in Annapolis, Md.; New York and Boston, within a period of two days.

He will never talk politics on Sunday.

He is unquestionably a gentleman of the old school.

He declines to use a typewriter, maintaining that a gentleman should not use a "machine" in corresponding with friends. He is one of the few senators still alive who voted in 1869 against giving the negro the right to vote.

He has but two older associates in the United States senate—both from Alabama.

OUR BLUEJACKETS BEST SHOOTERS.

American sailors are the best target shooters in the world according to our naval officers. While admitting that the record of the British ship Bruizer's six pounders, said to have made 46 hits out of 64 shots, shows excellent work, naval officers here are not inclined to give the palm to the British navy for accurate shooting. The record of the American navy shows that at least in one instance 22 hits out of 25 shots were made by a six pounder. In discussing the work of the Bruizer naval officers say that before they can make any accurate or valuable comparison between British and American marksmanship it will be necessary to know the size of the target, the rate of speed at which it was moving, and the actual time in which the 64 shots were delivered. The targets used by the British navy are considerably larger than those used on this side of the water.

The latest official statement regarding target practice, which covers the navy's work of last year, shows that since 1898 the size of the target has been reduced, the rapidity of firing has been increased, and the percentage of hits to shots risen from 40 to between 75 and 90 per cent. in main battery guns. The target has been reduced from 100 by 25 feet to 21 by 8 feet, and while a 12-inch gun was given five minutes for each shot it has this year made a record of three shots and three hits within one minute.

Naval officers point out that with the great improvement in the rapidity with which guns on American warships are loaded and discharged there has come a proportionate accuracy in shooting, so that 12 and 13-inch guns are not only fired 15 times as rapidly as formerly, but the percentage of hits has risen proportionately, making the efficiency of the individual gun at least 30 times what it was before.

Gossip About Chicago

Idle Chatter by Our Windy City Correspondent—Cause of Laziness Among City Officials—Khaki Summer Uniforms for Police—Postal Clerks Join Labor Union.

CHICAGO.—The lazy germ has been discovered. The insidious microbe that has filled the city hall with languor and laziness for lo! these many years is now known and the credit for its discovery belongs to Thomas Claffy, chief deputy sanitary inspector of the city.

Alone and single handed, one day recently, the intrepid inspector invaded the dark recesses of the dungeon under the black ruin that houses Mayor Dunne and the numerous other city officials, and amid curtains of cobwebs, poisonous gases and nauseating smells he made his discovery.

After an hour spent in this region he staggered into his office on the fourth floor, where smelling salts and other restoratives were applied and the inspector was finally able to gasp out the horrors he had experienced. He had faced death in many forms down in the dingy, dark cellar and came back firmly convinced that the city hall should be vacated at once.

Inspector Claffy relates that after penetrating the thick darkness of certain parts of the big, low cellar he encountered poisonous gases that came near asphyxiating him. Foul odors and nauseating smells emanated from open sewers and manholes. He was almost overpowered by these dangers and was made the recipient of hearty congratulations by his companions when he had told of the perils he had encountered.

For many years the people of Chicago have been endeavoring to discover the cause of the torpidity and listlessness of the city officials who have offices in the building. It has been a notorious fact that as soon as a man began to work for the city his active habits left him at once. Where he had formerly walked with a brisk and sprightly step he soon began to drag his feet as though he was shod with lead and all his movements began to lag and drag like a clock that is about run down.

And so things went on for years, and the day finally arrived when Inspector Claffy descended into the bowels of the earth and came back with the lazy germ in his possession.

SUFFERING IN THE "GHETTO" DISTRICT.

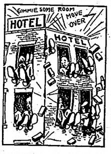
While the recent humid spell caused more or less suffering throughout the entire city, over in the crowded "Ghetto" district on the West side the agony was most intense. Afetr a hot and sweltering day in that district the night comes on torrid and almost unbearable.

The whole region appears to be one huge steamroom in a Turkish bath. Not a breath of air fans the locality. The atmosphere is thick and hot and heavy. The little frame buildings have absorbed the rays of the sun all day long and at night they seem to radiate this pent-up torridity like so many ovens. The streets and alleys are like avenues leading to bake ovens.

Night in that huddled community is different from night in another portion of the city. It is bad enough over near the lake front, where a wayward breeze once in awhile creeps across the sluggish waters and affords a moment of relief. It is hard enough to bear in comfortable flats, with baths and all the comforts of modern life, but down there, where baths are a luxury and where the people are packed in like sardines, it is a thousand times worse. Words fail to describe the conditions in the ghetto on a humid summer night. It is almost beyond the imagination to conceive of the suffering and the misery of that place. Old and young, the tiny infant of a few weeks and old people in their dotage, are all in the grasp of the heat, which seems to be a monster endeavoring to deprive these people of breath itself. It seems to have a hand on every throat and to be tightening its hold on every pair of lungs.

It is utterly impossible for these people to sleep within doors. They would suffocate, and so they seek relief from their hot and stuffy abodes out under the night sky. They overflow to the sidewalks, the roofs and fire escapes. They lie in picturesque attitudes in doorways, on stairways and on the earth in alleys. Children curl themselves up like kittens and sleep along the sidewalks. Groups of men and women nod and nap in the doorways of stores and up on the flat roofs of frame stores it is almost impossible to step without treading on sleeping persons after midnight has passed.

BUYERS CROWDING THE CITY.

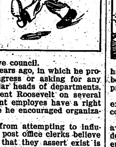


Within the last few weeks, Chicago has reached a stage in wholesale commercial activity that has carried its trade to a higher point than it has ever reached before. Thousands of buyers from the smaller cities and towns are thronging to the city by the trainload. Never before in the history of the city have such a vast number of retail men come from remote points in the south and southwest. This steady influx of buyers will in all probability keep up until the middle of October.

Several causes are ascribed for the unprecedented rush of country and small city storekeepers to Chicago. Railroads entering the city have been making special rates all summer long. People can come from New Orleans, Vicksburg, and Mobile and return for an unheard-of rate of $15. Retail dealers living along the Missouri river were given a rate of eight dollars for the round trip. Equally as low fares were made to other points, but the main feature of the railroads' inauguration was that a whole summer stopover was allowed. Railways have also been advertising Chicago as the greatest summer resort. The Commercial association has cooperated with the roads in this. The result is that not only do the buyers combine business with pleasure on their annual trip, but they have almost unanimously brought their wives and families with them.

The manager of a large wholesale house stated that the amount bought this year would exceed the best previous season by at least one-fifth. Although dry goods purchased predominate, buying is by no means confined to this line. Every conceivable article of merchandise is finding a market among the thousands of merchants of the south.

POSTAL CLERKS FORM UNION.



Representatives of post office clerks in six of the principal cities of the west met in convention here the other day are formed a national union under the auspices of the American Federation of Labor. The organization, which will be known as the National Federation of Post Office Clerks, is the first national labor union in America to be composed exclusively of government employes.

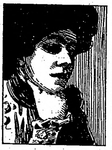
Delegates attended the convention from Chicago, Milwaukee, Louisville, Nashville, Salt Lake City and San Francisco. The post office clerks in St. Louis, Cincinnati, Indianapolis and several other cities are ready to join the movement as soon as the organization is fairly started. All of the branches that sent delegates to the convention are now chartered by the American Federation of Labor as local unions, and the movement to start the national has the approval of Samuel Gompers and his colleagues on the executive council.

The order issued by President Roosevelt three years ago, in which he prohibited government employes from petitioning congress or asking for any legislation in their behalf, except through the regular heads of departments, is largely responsible for the organization. President Roosevelt on several occasions has expressed the opinion that government employes have a right to join labor unions, and in his last annual message he encouraged organization among them.

At the same time the order prohibiting them from attempting to influence legislation has been allowed to stand, and the post office clerks believe that the only way they can adjust the grievances that they assert exist is by becoming a part of the labor movement and by having the American Federation of Labor stand sponsor for the remedial legislation desired.

Around the Metropolis

Interesting Gossip Gathered in New York—War On Between Mrs. Leslie Carter Payne and Miss Norma Munro—Lillian Russell to Enter Horse Racing Game.



NEW YORK.—The controversy between Mrs. Leslie Carter Payne, the actress, and Miss Norma Leslie Munro, the reputedly wealthy daughter of the late millionaire publisher, Norman Leslie Munro, continues to excite interest among the dilettante friends of these two women who have furnished more space, continuously, for the newspapers than probably any two other women in New York. Unquestionably there is a sentiment favorable to the actress' side of the question, for, while the emotional Mrs. Carter Payne is not intensely popular, the people who have been acquainted with the career of the two women in the present controversy are also conversant with the recent allegations made against Miss Munro by Mrs. Robert Osborn of playhouse and shirtwaist fame. Mrs. Osborn's experience with Miss Munro was so identical with that which Mrs. Carter Payne is experiencing that their mutual friends and that section of the public which has hung agape upon the published accounts of the quixotical lives these people lead are beginning to wonder if, after all, the strenuous Miss Munro is not a "hoodoo."

No room for doubt remains that Mrs. Carter Payne and her recent "dearest friend" are at daggers' points. Further sensational developments are promised when Miss Munro returns from Bar Harbor and Mrs. Carter Payne from Shelter island to their apartments adjoining each other in the building owned by the Munroe estate.

FRIENDSHIP BROKEN BY MARRIAGE.

It has been known ever since Mrs. Carter's romantic marriage to the young actor, William Louis Payne, that the alliance was bitterly resented by the exacting Miss Munro. That the two women, once like Juno's swans, "together always and inseparable," had separated has been known, too, for weeks to their mutual friends, but no one was prepared for the shock which followed the court action against the actress, brought in the name of Miss Munro's mother, who is executrix of the Munro estate.

This came like a bolt of lightning from a comparatively clear sky. Mrs. Leslie Carter Payne, in arrears for rent of her apartments on West Fifty-ninth street, owned by Miss Munro's mother, has been sued for back rent and served with papers in dispossess proceedings. Furthermore, the only thing that saved Mrs. Payne from ignominious ejectment was the haste with which she paid up.

Mrs. Henriette E. Munro's claim against the actress was for $1,593.52, the sum of Mrs. Payne's alleged indebtedness for five months as a tenant of the West Fifty-ninth street apartments.

When papers in the suit brought to secure this claim were served upon the actress there was an impromptu scene of emotionalism worthy the highest creative art of a Belasco. Mrs. Leslie Carter Payne fell into the arms of her youthful husband and shrieked her denunciations of Miss Munro. When sufficient strength returned Mrs. Payne hurried downtown in her automobile to the offices of her counsel, Edward Lauterbach. The lawyer was equal to the emergency, and within two hours the Munro proceedings had been dropped. Mrs. Carter Payne had settled, but she did not pay the full demand—only $825—insisting that she owed only three months' rent and defying the Munros to prove another penny against her. Lawyer Henry Bogert Clark, representing Mrs. Munro, thought hard for half an hour, then accepted the proffered compromise and dropped the legal proceedings.

As the case now stands Mrs. Carter Payne is free to remain in possession for the time being. But the matter will not rest here. Friends of both women agree that this clash is but the bugle call to battle; that Mrs. Carter Payne will speedily proceed to even up matters with Miss Norma, and that the latter will retaliate with a bomb loaded with secrets destined to scandalize white light circle.

assert that Miss Munro owes the actress $25,000 at the very least. Equally ardent supporters of Miss Munro insist that Mrs. Carter Payne owes Mrs. Munroe more than $10,000 in borrowed money.

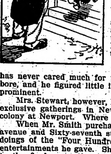
ATHLETES ARE POOR HUSBANDS.

Science has come forward with a new and striking statement, joining a fresh link to the chain of indictments against athletics carried to an immoderate degree. Once beyond the bounds of moderation, physical exercise and physical training, so this new statement says, not only weaken the heart for a lifetime, predispose to pneumonia, cause pulmonary tuberculosis, and make extra possible a dozen other ills, but they unfit a man for a husband.

"It will be found," says Dr. Robert E. Coughlin, of Brooklyn, in a series of papers he has written on the use and abuse of athletics and the deaths of athletes, "that comparatively few athletes marry. Of those that do, a small percentage have children, and a very large percentage are divorced by their wives."

Dr. Coughlin has been collecting statistics and following the careers of athletes for years. "In regard to the benefit derived from athletics," he says, "one has only to remember the physiology of exercise to become convinced of the fact that exercise, per se, may be very beneficial. The point to bear in mind is to advise the person to stop before fatigue becomes evidnt. We can do this readily when the athlete is interested in games for the mere exercise, but such advice cannot be offered when his aim is to excel in an athletic contest. Here is where athletics do great harm, and it would be a safe rule to advise against all forms of athletics in the nature of a contest. Athletics may be said to be beneficial until the heart begins to be markedly enlarged; this is the danger signal."

WEDDING MAY FOLLOW DIVORCE.



With the announcement that Mrs. Annie M. A. Stewart had obtained a divorce in Sioux Falls from William Rhinelander Stewart it became current gossip at once that Mrs. Stewart would soon be the wife of James Henry Smith, known as "Silent Smith," whose fortune is estimated anywhere from $40,000,000 to $100,000,000.

The divorce decree gives Mrs. Stewart the custody of her daughter, Anita, until the latter becomes of age. William Rhinelander Stewart, Jr., is given into the custody of the father.

The troubles between the Stewarts reached an acute stage some time after Miss Anita Stewart made her debut at a dinner dance given by the husband and wife in their town home on West Fifty-seventh street in January, 1905. This was the last social function given by the couple.

Mr. Stewart, who is a man of 54, is now at Bar Harbor. He is studious and serious, and he has never cared much for the frivolous side of life. Society to him was a bore, and he figured little in the entertainments where his wife was always prominent.

Mrs. Stewart, however, loved society. In the winter she was at all of the exclusive gatherings in New York, and she was prominent in the summer colony at Newport. Where society bored her husband, it was her life.

When Mr. Smith purchased the old William C. Whitney mansion at Fifth avenue and Sixty-seventh street and began to play a prominent part in the doings of the "Four Hundred," Mrs. Stewart aided him in the many costly entertainments he gave. She managed his dinners and dances, and just prior to the final separation of the Stewarts the millionaire bachelor and Mrs. Stewart were often together.

ROGER C. SULLIVAN SCORES W. J. BRYAN

MAKES LENGTHY REPLY TO DEMAND FOR RESIGNATION FROM NATIONAL COMMITTEE.

Openly States That Nebraskan's Speech at Chicago Banquet Teemed with Untruth and Evasion Regarding Facts and Events Treated.

New York, Sept. 8.—Roger C. Sullivan, member from Illinois of the Democratic national committee, Friday night issued a lengthy statement in which he replies to the recent attacks made upon him by Mr. Bryan. The following is an abstract of Mr. Sullivan's remarks:

"In his Jefferson club banquet speech at Chicago William J. Bryan again saw fit to make me the excuse for exploiting his new ambition to convert the Democratic party of the United States into an autocracy with himself on the dictator's throne. I regret that he has done so, as I would regret any incident or circumstance tending toward discord in the Democratic party.

"If portions of Mr. Bryan's speech mean anything, they mean that he would rather have his own way than have the Democrats elected to congres or any other office.

Invites Comparison.

'Insofar as Mr. Bryan's banquet speech applies to me personally, to my character, to my business, to my associates, to my Democracy and to my political acts, I welcome the issue, and on that issue I challenge Mr. Bryan to the proof of his truthfulness, his honesty and his sincerity—that sincerity which, he boasts, is his political asset. I yield to no man in my adherence to Democratic principle as laid down by the great founder, Thomas Jefferson. Judged by that standard, I invite comparison of my Democracy with Mr. Bryan's.

Says Bryan Is Evasive.

'The very first paragraph in Mr. Bryan's speech on me and on the Illinois situation contains a deliberate untruth. Practically every succeeding paragraph contains either a deliberate untruth, or an equivocation of the kind that we expect only from the shifty, word-juggling pettifogger. Mr. Bryan says he wrote me a letter asking me to resign in the interests of the Democratic party!' That is not true. Mr. Bryan knew it was not true when he said it. He never wrote me a letter. He did write a letter to Judge O. P. Thompson in which he told Judge Thompson to tell me that he, Bryan, wanted me to resign from the Democratic national committee."

Declare Fraud Charge Refuted.

Mr. Sullivan then declares that Mr. Bryan's assertion that he held his seat on the national committee by fraud was refuted two years ago at St. Louis by the national convention itself and that he, Sullivan, had not asked for an indorsement from the state convention instead of resigning in "the interests of the party," as Mr. Bryan said he had.

Denies Unseating Delegates.

"The discussion of that Springfield convention and its action from Mr. Bryan's side is always coupled with the innuendo that the elements of the party with which I was connected had perpetrated a fraud by unseating hundreds of legally elected delegates. That innuendo is false in inspiration and false in the suggestion it conveys.

Sullivan's View of Bryan's Career.

"Mr. Bryan says: 'My political asset is the confidence the people have in my sincerity.' Mr. Bryan has twice led the Democratic party to defeat, the second a worse defeat than the first. If he is proud of that evidence of the people's confidence in his sincerity he is welcome to it. But his boast of sincerity merits further consideration. He insinuates that I make money out of politics and that his sincerity therefore compels him to oppose my participation in Democratic affairs. The plain inference is that Mr. Bryan thinks it wrong to make money out of politics. This boast of his puts the stamp of insincerity all over him. If Mr. Bryan thinks it wrong to make money out of politics, he should quit making money. Mr. Bryan has not one dollar that he ever made out of anything but politics. He tried to be a lawyer; he was a failure at it. He tried to be a newspaper editor; he was a failure at that.

Politics as an Asset.

"He is now a man of property. As fortunes go he is a rich man. He made every dollar of his fortune out of politics as a stepping stone to the lecture platform. Mr. Bryan discovered many years ago that he could make his political prominence pay. He is a shrewd advertiser and in his way a clever business man. He has discovered that so long as he is a candidate for president and a possible nominee, gifted with the ability to weave flowing sentences into well rounded periods, the public will come to hear him at so much a head. He is in politics because it helps the gate receipts. Like the actresses who have discarded the stolen diamond dodge for the greater publicity of a divorce suit, Mr. Bryan will quit running for president and will quit politics just as soon as he discovers that some other form of advertising will bring more dollars to the box office when he is announced to appear on the stage."

Edward Returns to London.

Marienbad, Sept. 8.—King Edward Friday completed the cure and left for London.

EXTERMINATE CATTLE TICK

STATES COOPERATE WITH FEDERAL GOVERNMENT.

Financial and Other Aid Has Been Extended Department of Agriculture Officials in West and South.

Washington, Sept. 7.—The work of exterminating the cattle tick in the southern and some of the western states is progressing satisfactorily, according to a statement made by Secretary Wilson Thursday.

It began in Virginia and North Carolina, where, it was stated, cordial cooperation is being given the department both in money and the extension of state authority to the department's officials.

The appropriation for carrying on the work was $82,500.

Some of the states have not enacted laws extending financial and other aid to the government, but Secretary Wilson said that even with the sum available much progress will be made.

From California, Nevada, Oklahoma and Texas, he said, the reports already received give encouragement to the belief that in these states substantial progress has been made in exterminating the ticks.

CANNON CALLS GOMPERS CZAR

Expresses Sympathy with Efforts to Better Condition of Wageworkers.

Lewiston, Me., Sept. 6.—Speaker Joseph G. Cannon, in an address before a large audience at the city hall here Wednesday criticised Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor. Mr. Cannon said in part:

"On what meat does this new czar feed to make him different from other political bosses in this day of the decadence of bossism? He is president of the Federation of Labor, an honorable organization, which has accomplished much for the wage earner and is capable of accomplishing much more when properly directed.

"I have no prejudice against the Federation of Labor. My sympathies are with it in all efforts and struggles to improve the material condition and secure a larger share of the profits of production for the wage earners. I do not, however, believe in proscription in politics.

"I am opposed to Mr. Gompers' political methods of blacklisting men who vote as their consciences and judgment and the welfare of their constituents dictate."

WISCONSIN PRIMARY RETURNS

Davidson Leads Lenroot for Governor by Large Majority.

Milwaukee, Sept. 6.—The Davidson majority over Lenroot for the nomination for governor will be at least 45,000.

The vote on the Democratic candidates seem to indicate that Aylward and Blenski will lead the ticket. Aylward is gaining heavily with the later returns over Merton in the Ninth district.

The fight for congressmen is fairly definitely known, except in the case of Congressman Miner, whose district is so close that the official count may be necessary to decide who has won.

Congressman Babcock is safely nominated by 100 or more.

E. A. Morse has apparently won the contest in the Tenth district.

Congressman Jenkins is probably safe in the Eleventh district, though he had a close run.

INSANE MOTHER'S AWFUL CRIME

Decapitates Her Two Children with a Carving Knife.

Columbus Grove, O., Sept. 7.—Mrs. Henry Knippen, wife of a farmer living near Cloverdale, Putnam county, decapitated her two children, a boy aged three and a girl aged one and one-half years, and then went to the home of a neighbor and told what she had done and asked them to go and see the children. The boy's head was nearly cut off and the girl's head was completely severed and was found near the body. A carving knife was used. Th woman was discharged recently from the Toledo state hospital for insane.

Wisconsin Risk Probe Resumed.

Milwaukee, Sept. 8.—After a long recess of the Wisconsin insurance investigation committee, a portion of the committee got together again Friday to hear testimony of Thomas W. Spence, of Milwaukee, who was the legislative counsel for the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company during the session of 1901, and who received $11,000 for his services at that time.

Raid Six Moonshine Stills.

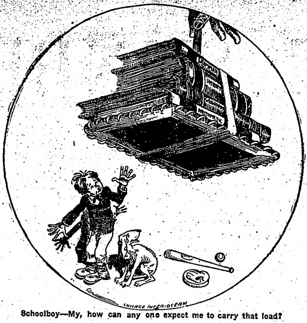
Mayking, Ky., Sept. 6.—The most important moonshine raid made in several years has ended with the destruction on Elkhorn creek of six large illicit stills and the capture of four desperate moonshiners. United States Marshal Robinson made the raid. They took their prisoners to Whitesburg for trial before United States Commissioner Baker.

Fatal Powder Explosion.

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 7.—Four cases of dynamite and 225 pounds of black powder exploded Thursday as a result of a fire in a miner's house at Republic, Ala., killing J. R. Bell, a miner, and his wife and injuring several others.

Mrs. Eliza Fairchild Wheeler Dead.

Easton, Conn., Sept. 7.—Mrs. Eliza Fairchild Wheeler, mother of Prof. A. M. Wheeler, of Yale, died here at the age of 101 years.



Schoolboy—My, how can any one expect me to carry that load?

STUDENTS WILLING TO GIVE UP STRUGGLE

RUSSIAN COLLEGE YOUTHS ARE DESIROUS OF RETURNING TO THEIR STUDIES.

Favor Abandoning Obstructive Attitude That Was Intended to Make Universities Hotbeds for the Revolutionary Propaganda.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 7.—At a meeting Thursday night of social democratic and social revolutionist university students it was decided not to oppose the reopening of the universities, which is scheduled for October 14, thereby furnishing a strong possibility that the paralysis of the educational life of the country which has lasted for two school years may soon be ended.

Want to Resume Studies.

Many revolutionary students favored abandoning entirely the obstructive attitude, reentering the universities and resuming their studies, instead of making the universities ment," which was the motive behind "temples for the revolutionary movement," which was the motvie behind the short and fruitless resumption of work in universities last year.

Among the student masses there has grown up a feeling of resentment against the tactics which are depriving them of education, and a determination to resume studies regardless of any strike decisions.

Boasts of Murder.

Among the arriving students, however, are many thorough irreconcilables, an extreme example of whom is an 18-year-old youth from Warsaw, who boasts that this summer he has killed 16 policemen.

Reports from Moscow, Odessa and other university centers are to the effect that an unprecedented number of prospective students have registered, owing to the accumulation consequent on the two years' stoppage of instruction.

To Execute Terrorists.

Warsaw, Sept. 7.—Much excitement has been caused here by the announcement in newspaper extras that an order had been given to try to execute revolutionists who might be caught red-handed.

Attempt to Liberate Prisoners.

Stopincy, Russian Poland, Sept. 7.—Revolutionists Thursday attacked the prison here with the purpose of liberating two political agitators who were confined here. A pitched battle followed, and after several rushes the attacking party gave up the attempt and withdrew, carrying off several wounded comrades.

HONOR FOR OHIO CONGRESSMAN

Civic Federation Recognizes His Efforts to Preserve Niagara Falls.

Philadelphia, Sept. 7.—The executive committee of the American Civic association Thursday elected to honorary life membership Congressman Theodore E. Burton, of Ohio. "in recognition of his services as chairman of the river and harbor committee in securing the congressional action which resulted in the preservation of Niagara falls." The only other honorary life member is President Roosevelt.

The committee decided to hold the next annual convention of the association in Milwaukee on October 24, 25 and 26.

Tuberculosis Congress Opens.

The Hague, Sept. 7.—The international conference on tuberculosis was opened here Thursday with a good attendance in the presence of Prince Henry of the Netherlands. The French foreign minister, M. Bourgeois, was appointed president of the Anti-Tuberculosis association.

Minor Defeated for Renomination.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 7.—Returns from the Ninth congressional district show that Gustav Kustermann, of Green Bay, defeated Congressman Minor for the Republican nomination at the primary election on Tuesday. Kustermann's majority is between 300 and 500.

STATE WINS BIG MINE SUIT

MINNESOTA COURT HOLDS LEASE LAW CONSTITUTIONAL.

Case Involving Title to Land Worth Millions Is Decided—Hill Holdings Affected.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 8.—The state supreme court Friday handed down a decision in the case of the state of Minnesota vs. Mabel C. Evans, upholding the decision of the St. Louis county court at Duluth, which held that the state law governing mineral leases is constitutional. This case involves the title to the famous Virginia Sliver mine, located on the Minnesota range and which is said to be worth several million dollars. The action was brought by the state against Mabel Evans, the holder of the lease, on the ground that mineral leases are invalid because school and swamp lands can only be sold at public auction. In this case the lease was taken out privately, there being but one party to make a bid on the lease.

The court, in its decision by Chief Justice Start, held that "on a full consideration of the question it is the opinion of the court that this mineral lease statue does not authorize a sale of any of the school or swamp lands of the state within the meaning of the constitutional prohibition; that it is constitutional and the leases are valid."

The court held that a lease to the mineral rights did not carry with it the title to the land, which was still vested in the state. Judge Start explained that while this view was rather far fetched, the court decided the question in this manner in order that the extensive business interests, involving an immense investment of capital, might not be seriously disturbed.

The decision affects all the mineral holdings of the United States Steel corporation, J. J. Hill's iron ore interests and many other small holdings.

SECRETARY ROOT COMING HOME

Expects to Reach Panama on the 16th on His Journey North.

Washington, Sept. 7.—A cablegram received Thursday from Secretary Root stated that he would arrive at Panama on the Charleston on the 16th instant and would cross immediately to Colon.

The swift triple crew cruiser Columbia is under orders to sail from New York to convey 100 marines to Guantanamo, where they will be placed at the disposition of Capt. Southerland, commanding the vessels in West Indian waters.

The Columbia will then take on board an equal number of marines who have been stationed on the Isthmus of Panama for some time past and are now at Guantanamo, awaiting transportation to this country.

After making this exchange the Columbia will proceed to Colon to meet Secretary Root's party. It is not yet known whether the secretary will board the vessel or will go north on the Charleston to San Francisco and return to Washington overland. But in any event his family will be taken on the Columbia.

Herman Oelrichs Buried.

New York, Sept. 6.—Herman Oelrichs, who died on Saturday at sea while returning to this country, was buried Wednesday. Religious services were held in the Oelrichs home, No. 1 East Fifty-seventh street, Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix, of Trinity church, officiating. About 50 of Mr. Oelrichs' business and social friends, besides the relatives, attended the services. Interment was in Woodlawn cemetery.

War on Russian Officials to Continue.

London, Sept. 8.—A dispatch to a news agency from St. Petersburg says that the social revolutionists, at a meeting held after the publication of the government programme, adopted a resolution to continue terrorism and to aim at the lives of the highest officials.

Unions for State Railways.

Liverpool, Sept. 8.—Without any discussion the trade union congress Friday unanimously instructed the labor members of parliament to introduce a bill providing for the nationalizing of all railways, canals and mines in the United Kingdom.

LITTLE PROSPECT FOR PEACE IN CUBA

GUERRA REFUSES TO CONSIDER TERMS FOR AN ARMISTICE WITH GOVERNMENT.

Instead of Seeking to End Insurrection He Blows Up Two Bridges, Cutting Railway Communication, and Attacks San Juan de Martinez.

Havana, Sept. 8.—All peace overtures are blocked by the refusal of Pino Guerra, the insurgent leader in Pinar del Rio province, to enter into any agreement for an armistice.

Guerra's answer to the government's announcement of its readiness to grant a ten days' armistice is the blowing up of two bridges on the Western railway, the cutting of railway communication beyond Pinar del Rio city and an attack on San Juan de Martinez.

It is believed here that San Juan de Martinez is in the hands of the insurgents and that the garrison consisting of 100 government recruits and a small force of mounted rural guards, has been defeated or captured.

Guerra to Continue War.

The fact that other leaders of the insurrection are willing to agree to an armistice can have little effect so long as Guerra is determined to prosecute the war, and there is slight doubt in any quarter that Guerra can control the situation in his region. His force is reported by all those who have visited him recently as ranging from 3,000 to 4,000 men, all of them well mounted and some of them well and others indifferently armed.

The government force opposed to him, which is under command of Col. Avalos, comprises about 1,000 men. It was reenforced by Lieut. Col. Clews with 150 men and three machine guns from Havana. Col. Avalos' force, with the exception of small detachments left at San Juan de Martinez and San Luis, is at Pinar del Rio city, but is without means of transportation to go to the relief of San Juan de Martinez. Not more than 400 of them are mounted.

Refuses to Accept Armistice.

Guerra refuses point blank to accept an armistice except on condition that the last presidential and congressional elections shall be annulled. That the government should consent to this is out of the question, and so every prospect points to the continuance of the war.

In connection with Pino Guerra's attitude it is notable that the liberals have grown more independent. They say that on account of the government's surveillance and prosecutions they will be longer held meetings and that it is useless to consider peace under the circumstances.

Conditions in Havana Province.

The conditions in Havana province outside the city, while better than those of Pinar del Rio province are not encouraging. Americans who have visited the camps of Col. Guas near San Antonio de Los Ranos and those of Col. Asbert, in the southern part of Havana province, have found them to be always peopled by several hundred men, all of them possessed of good horses, but usually indifferently armed.

Around Guanajay and Artemisa are many rural guards, but all the towns in that region are in wholesome fear of the insurgents. The latter do very much as they please.

WELL-KNOWN FINANCIER IS DEAD

Washington Banker Had Filled Many Positions of Honor and Trust.

Washington, Sept. 7.—Lewis Johnson Davis, a leading banker, society and club man, died Thursday at his residence in this city, aged 72.

For many years he had been associated with the firm of Lewis Johnson & Co., bankers and brokers, an institution established by his grandfather. At one time he was interested in the Washington City Savings bank.

He was a veteran of the civil war, and was identified with various charitable institutions. He also served as president of the Washington stock exchange, and for many years was chairman of the sinking fund commission of the District of Columbia.

He is survived by a widow, formerly Miss Margaret Jane Keller, of New York city.

SCENTS DOUBLE SUICIDE PACT

Man in Case Is Charged with Murder in the First Degree.

Wichita, Kan., Sept. 7.—Miss Dora Bright, aged 18, of Foster, Mo., who shot and killed herself in an apartment house several days ago, left a note which directed that her body and that of Ray Stevens, of Schell City, Mo., should be buried side by side.

On the theory that a suicide pact existed between the couple, the county attorney has sworn out an information against Stevens, charging murder in the first degree. Stevens is 32 years old.

Blamed for Wreck; Kills Self.

Mattoon, Ill., Sept. 8.—John C. Backus, assistant superintendent of the Central Illinois Traction company, committed suicide by shooting Friday, following the verdict of a coroner's jury fixing the blame for the wreck on the road two days ago in which the motorman was killed and several passengers seriously injured. His family lives at Ashland. O.

SICK FOR TEN YEARS.

Constant Backache, Dropsy and Severe Bladder Trouble.

Fred W. Harris, of Chestnut St., Jefferson, Ohio, says: "For over ten years I suffered from kidney disease. The third year my feet and hands would swell and remain puffed up for days at a time. I seemed to have a constant backache. Finally I got so bad that I was laid up in bed with several doctors in attendance. I thought surely I would die. I changed medicine and began using Doan's Kidney Pills when I was still in bed. The relief I found was so great that I kept on until I had taken about ten boxes. The kidney secretions became natural and after years of misery I was cured. I have increased in weight, and show no symptoms of my former trouble."

Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Many a man who asserts that he is not a hypocrite is so disagreeable that his acquaintances may wish he was.

THE CORNISH TIN DEPOSITS.

Great English Industry Still Capable of Big Production.

Though the Cornish tin deposits have been worked from the dawn of history, experts hold that vast quantities are still to be found in this metalliferous soil. In the past twenty years Cornwall has been badly hit by the development of tin mining in the Straits Settlement. The fall in the price of the metal caused the closing of many of the Cornish mines, and incidentally led to the migration of "Cousin Jacky," as the Cornish miner is known, to every quarter of the globe. It seemed indeed as if mining in the duchy had received a blow from which it could by no possibility recover. A few mines managed to survive, notably Dolcoath, which earned a modest profit even in the lean years when tin varied between £60 and £70 per ton. With the metal nearly treble that price, it is not surprising that speculators and prospectors are turning avid eyes to this westernmost county.

The enhanced price of tin is likely to be permanent, for it is due to natural, not artificial, causes. Tin is the rarest of all the metals, and the world's consumption has now outgrown the supply. The world's production has averaged, in recent years, 75,000 tons, of which more than one-half has come from the Straits Settlements. About 15,000 tons per annum come from the Dutch East Indies; 5,000 tons from Cornwall; 5,000 tons from Australasia, and a similar quantity from Bolivia. Tin is scarcely found at all in Europe or in the United States.

Hasty Nervous Chewing of Food the Cause of Dyspepsia

If your teeth are fit, chew, chew, chew, until the food is liquid and insists on being swallowed.

If teeth are faulty, soften Grape-Nuts with hot milk or cream, or allow to stand a minute soaking in cold cream.

"There's a reason," as follows:

Grape-Nuts food is in the form of hard and brittle granules, intended to be ground up by the teeth; that work not only preserves the teeth but brings down the saliva from the gums so necessary in the primary work of digestion.

Many people say (and it is true) that when they eat Grape-Nuts they seem able to digest not only that food but other kinds which formerly made trouble when eaten without Grape-Nuts.

Chew!!

"There's a reason" for

Grape=Nuts

JOHN A. JOHNSON IS RENOMINATED

BY THE DEMOCRATS IN CONVENTION ASSEMBLED IN MINNEAPOLIS.

Almost Exery County in the State was Represented by Full Delegations. Convention was Short and Harmony Prevailed.

Governor—John A. Johnson, of St. Peter.

Lieutenant Governor—L. G. Pendergast, Bemidji.

Secretary of State—P. M. Magnusson, St. Cloud.

State Auditor—A. Aarnes, Montevideo.

State Treasurer—David Evans, Tracy.

Attorney General—Thomas R. Kane, St. Paul.

Clerk of the Supreme Court—Fred E. Wheaton, Minneapolis.

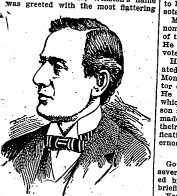
Railroad Commissioner—Captain Anton Schaffer, Rushmore.

Minneapolis, Sept. 4.—Governor Johnson and a ticket was put in nomination this afternoon by the democratic state convention, in session at the Bijou theater, Minneapolis. The convention was one of the shortest on record. In barely an hour after it was called to order, Governor Johnson had been renominated in an eloquent speech by W. S. Hammond of St. James.

The Bijou theater was filled to overflowing with delegates from all parts of the state when Frank A. Day, chairman of the state central committee, called the democratic state nominating convention to order at 12:10 p. m.

Mr. Day made no address in calling the convention to order and called at once for the reading of the call. On the motion of M. C. Brady of Minneapolis the call was dispensed with.

The next business being the nomination of a chairman, Mr. Brady, chairman of the Hennepin delegation, nominated F. G. Winston of Minneapolis. The mention of Mr. Winston's name was greeted with the most flattering applause. Mr. Brady's remarks were greeted with hearty applause as he offered Mr. Winston as a democrat of the democrats and a representative of the democracy of the entire state of Minnesota. Mr. Winston was accepted unanimously and was escorted to the platform by a committee consisting of M. C. Brady, Minneapolis; Mayor Cullom, Duluth, and Senator Hoard of Montevideo.



JOHN A. JOHNSON

Mr. Winston's speech was warmly received, and every mention of W. J. Bryan was greeted with wild applause.

After thanking the convention for the honor conferred upon him, and pointing to the Bryan reception in New York last Friday as an index to party harmony, Mr. Winston appealed for party harmony.

M. J. Kain of St. Paul was selected as secretary, and H. M. Wheelock of Fergus Falls as assistant.

When it came to the naming of the committee, Hennepin and Ramsey announced their selections, and St. Louis county offered Bert Fesler for the eighth district. Anoka county objected that St. Louis county was not the whole district. Several conflicting nominations were made. C. A. Quist moved that suggestions be handed in, and the chairman left to name the committee. Chairman Winston wanted the districts to caucus and select names. This was objected to, and Mr. Winston named the committee as follows:

First—H. L. Buck, Winona.
Second—Einar Hoidale, New Ulm.
Third—Albert Schaller, Hastings.
Fourth—D. W. Lawler, St. Paul.
Fifth—J. W. Bennett, Minneapolis.
Sixth—James R. Bennett, St. Cloud.
Seventh—J. M. Freeman, Renville.
Eighth—Bert Fesler, Duluth.
Ninth—Martin O'Brien, Crookston.

The convention ratified the selection by acclamation.

Johnson Nominated.

Johnson and good government was the warcry of the campaign offered by W. S. Hammond of St. James, who formally nominated Governor John A. Johnson.

In a few brief pointed remarks he placed Governor Johnson before the convention, and was greeted by storms of applause.

"Two years ago," said he, "we nominated a man whose character was stainless, whose ability was recognized. It was the unanimous choice not only of the delegates of that convention, but also of the people who elected those delegates.

"A marvelous campaign followed. The people of this state liked, trusted and elected him. They made no mistake, nor has he. He has done all and more than was promised. He has let light into dark places and has made a record second to none. We now have a clean insurance department, and all departments are on a business basis.

"We can do no better. We cannot go back. One hundred thousand voters are waiting to indorse our actions. Let the warcry be Johnson and good government. I nominate John A. Johnson to succeed himself."

C. D. Baldwin of Duluth was given the platform to make a formal seconding speech of the nomination of Governor Johnson. Both were greeted with the heartiest applause by the convention. The "Johnson and good government" was greeted with a storm of enthusiastic cheering.

Following the formal remarks of Mr. Hammond and Mr. Baldwin, Mr. Winston called Mr. Day to the chair and in a happy manner addressed a touching compliment to Governor Johnson.

"It needs no effort of mine to make Governor Johnson more loved or stronger with the democracy of Minnesota. I honor this man. Two years ago I canvassed this state for weeks with this man and I honor him. I have lived with this man and know him as few men know him. He is clean and safe and his nomination means cleaner and safer administration of the affairs of the state. He is a man who will measure his full six feet with any man."

J. C. Haynes, former mayor, added a few remarks

Locally the support of the Haynes crowd for Governor Johnson has been questioned and the former mayor sought the opportunity to square himself.

The greatest enthusiasm was manifested when the motion for the unanimous nomination of John A. Johnson was placed before the house for action. The entire convention rose in a body. Every man was on his feet cheering for Johnson. The demonstration lasted several moments and continued after the delegates had resumed their seats.

Another demonstraton broke loose when H. M. Russell of Beltrami county, who placed in nomination L. G. Pendergast of Bemidji for lieutenant governor, spoke of Johnson as a possible running mate for Bryan in 1908.

Judge Pendergast was nominated by a rising vote after an eloquent tribute to his services in the old First Minnesota.

Mayor J. E. C. Robinson of St. Cloud nominated Professor P. N. Magnusson of the same city for secretary of state. He was also nominated by a rising vote.

H. E. Hoard of Montevideo nominated for state auditor A. E. Aarnes of Montevideo, who has been county auditor of Chippewa county for ten years. He was seconded by Lac qui Parle, which guaranteed majorities for Johnson and Aarnes. The nomination was made, but while the delegates were on their feet a cheer went up, as the notification committee appeared with Governor Johnson.

Johnson Cheered.

Governor Johnson was cheered for several minutes. He was then presented by Chairman Winston and spoke briefly. He said in part:

Your committee has notified me that a second time you have placed me in nomination for governor. Two years ago I was given that nomination unsolicited and undesired. I pledged you then my best efforts. Your nomination was ratified at the polls. When I assumed the office I had but one purpose. That was to serve the people of the state to the best of my ability.

I will not review the work of the administration now. We are not ashamed of it, however. We have taught the timber thieves that it is not cheaper to steal than to buy timber. We have named a board of equalization which has done great things to make a proper adjustment of tax burdens. We have taken a hand in insurance reform. We have had a hand in securing a reduction in freight rates, and I believe we are entitled to the credit for it. It is significant that the only two general reductions in freight rates the state has ever had have been named under democratic administrations. If we may have state development it must be along this line.

I am not insensible of the honor you have paid me, and I hope and believe that your choice will be ratified at the polls.

In my past service I have done my best for the people of this state. My only regret is that I have not been able to reward all of you as you should be for your party services. If I am re-elected, as I expect to be, I will endeavor to repay you by giving the state during another two years the best administration of which I am capable."

Judge L. G. Pendergast, the nominee for lieutenant governor, was next introduced.

"I am sometimes surprised," said Mr. Pendergast, at the vitality of the democratic party. The old sage that said 'truth crushed to earth will rise again,' was right and that explains the strength of the democratic party that continues to rise at each contest as if victor.

'Right will always prevail. The principles of Lincoln and Jefferson were not so far apart. Both were right and true, therefore both have lived and will always live."

He put in a word for good roads and drainage as the enterprise most important to northern Minnesota.

For treasurer there was a contest between D. H. Evans of Tracy and A. M. Becker of Adrain. Becker's name was withdrawn, and Mr. Evans was named by acclamation. He responded briefly.

T. R. Kane of St. Paul was nominated for attorney general by James Manahan.

Empress Eugenie's Dresses.

Some recently published figures as to extravagance of American women in dress give interest to the statement of the Empress Eugenie to a friend in this country that but three times in her life did she wear a dress that cost as much as $200. Once it was for her wedding, once for the baptism of the prince imperial.

Explained.

An exchange asks: What becomes of all the pins? Why, they fall to the earth and become terrapins.—Atlanta Journal.

To Freshen Meats.

In warm weather meats may be freshened by washing in cold soda water before cooking, though washing of meat is detrimental to its quality and should only be done when necessity demands it.

Neglected Nevada.

A daily paper is responsible for the statement that a single county in Nevada, covering 16,000 square miles, has nowhere within its borders even a mission hall in which the gospel is preached, and yet it has a population of several thousand people.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

Lawyers Talk over New Code. A Boy Swings to the Grave. Floating Island Puzzles People.

St. Paul—The annual meeting of the Minnesota Association of Probate Judges was called to order in the rooms of the probate court. About twenty judges were in attendance. The session was taken up with routine business and an informal discussion of the probate provisions of the new code. "Reform in Probate Practice" will be the main topic for discussion today.

The following officers were elected yesterday: President, Judge Frankenberg, Fergus Falls; vice president, Judge Hughes, Mankato; secretary and treasurer, Judge Thorson, Glenwood; executive committee, Judge Bazille, St. Paul; Judge Wilson, Stillwater, and Judge Middelcoff, Duluth; Judge Edwards of Swift county and Judge Sharp of Norman county.

SWUNG TO DEATH.

Spencer Brook—Alica Foote, ten years old, met with a peculiar accident which resulted in her death at the home of her mother in this place.

The child had been amusing herself in a swing near the house. For the purpose of giving momentum to the swing a rope had been attached to a limb of a tree, with a loop at the end for a hand hold. The child was found by her mother handing to this rope, the noose of which was tightly encircling her neck. She was dead when removed.

It is conjectured that the child, who was alone in the yard, had been swinging and had grasped the rope in order to give herself a good start. Apparently she lost her balance, fell from the swing and the noosed rope slipped over her head and about her neck, causing death by strangulation.

FLOATING ISLAND.

Sauk Center—The people of this place are still exercised over the island which floated out a few days ago into Sauk lake. A large crew from the milling company has attached ropes to the floating mass, and with the aid of ropes is towing it up the lake. They are afraid, however, that a stiff south wind may spring up and greatly hamper their efforts. What disposition finally will be made of the island has not yet been determined upon. The milling company is anxious to get it away from its flumes, where it would work incalculable harm. Eventually it may be blown up with dynamite.

MAD DOG.

Hawley—Is the bite of a mad dog an accident or a contagious disease? This is a question which is worrying the county authorities here and which it is up to the town board to determine.

Recently two Finnish laborers in a railroad camp were bitten by a supposedly rabid dog. The matter was brought to the attention of the town board and that body requested the county authorities to send the men away for treatment. The latter refused, on the ground that the men were suffering from a contagious disease and that the expense of caring for them should be borne by the town. The two bodies have held several meetings, but as yet have been unable to reach an agreement. Meanwhile the Finns, who speak English, are unaware of the fact that they are in danger of hydrophobia.

Some fear is expressed that the men may go mad and attack some of their fellow workers.

HIGH WATER.

St. Peter—For the second time this summer the Minnesota river is on a rampage. Heavy rains throughout this section and at the headwaters have swollen its tributaries and for several days the stream has been rising rapidly, until it is higher than at any time this year.

Near New Ulm the river has left its banks and farmers in that vicinity report that their cornfields are submerged. In several instances the farmers who had their corn washed out during the June freshet but who replanted their fields will lose the second crop.

Last spring the river carried away part of its bank north of this city, partially undermining the highway leading to Ottawa and threatening to damage the new piece of track recently completed by the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha Railway company. To protect their grade from its inroads the Omaha officials decided to riprap the bank, but had been waiting for the water to recede before beginning operations. Conditions are now more serious than ever and the sudden rise of the river will probably hasten the work.

MINNESOTA ITEMS.

Northfield—Senator Moses E. Clapp delivered the opening address at the assembly of Carleton college on Sept. 12.

Minneapolis—A small blaze in the kitchen on the second floor of the West hotel caused some apprehension in the building.

St. Paul—The bowlers arrange for a mass meeting to boom St. Paul's campaign to secure the bowling congress in 1908.

Little Falls—Fire broke out in the Little Falls house, P. Meadwood, proprietor, at 1:35 a. m. Thursday and destroyed the roof of the building; also damaging the second floor. About twenty-five people were in the building at the time. All escaped. The cause of the fire is unknown. The fire was checked before much damage was done.

Beaudette—A Commercial club was organized this week, with the following officers: President, James A. Mathieu; vice president, H. V. Dyer; secretary, George E. Erickson; treasurer, Albert Berg; directors, O. F. Miller, Daniel Hyland, Thomas M. Cathcart, Edward Anderson and George P. Watters.

Belle Plaine—Andy Donovan, a stockholder in the Belle Plaine Canning company, has had injunction papers served on the company, restraining it from putting a mortgage on its plant.

St. Paul—A memorial to Bishop Thomas is dedicated at St. Paul's church.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Fire destroyed the A. L. Bartlett flour mill at Rockford, Ill. Loss, $25,000.

Milton Uldin, of St. Joseph, Mich., dived into a shallow pool and broke his neck.

James Hargis, noted feudist of Kentucky, will engage in the horse raising business.

Samuel J. Griffiths, 38, Terre Haute, Ind., dropped dead in the Grand hotel at Vincennes, Ind.

During a family quarrel at Pana, Ill., Joseph Kerr, 26 years old, shot and fatally wounded his father.

Napoleon Simand, manager of a Janesville, Wis., dry goods store, has been arrested on a charge of theft.

William E. Clark, 18, of Washington, believing he was destined to die of consumption, committed suicide by shooting.

Buenos Ayres police arrested Erik W. Ehrstrom, a Finn, charged with stealing $3,000,000 from a Russian corporation.

A team from the First infantry of the United States army won the national team shoot at the Sea Girt, N. J., tournament.

Because he had been defeated at the polls for the office of constable, I. T. Echais shot and killed himself at Cotton Plain, Ark.

Capt. Comly, of the Alabama, and Lieut. Pressey, of the Illinois, which ships were recently damaged in a collision, are to be court-martialed.

Three robbers tied Mrs. William Urban, of Tullytown, Pa., to a couch while they ransacked her home. They left the woman bound and gagged.

Charles Scott and M. H. Klinger, employes of the Alma company at Wellston, O., were fatally burned by a premature explosion of coal gas.

While temporarily insane Harry B. Pyne, Louisville, Ky., committed suicide in the presence of his wife by shooting himself and then cutting his throat.

The Springfield Baptist association in session at Pana, Ill., elected the Rev. E. K. Shult of Taylorville moderator and E. S. Walker of Springfield secretary.

New York police are searching for William J. Day, of Philadelphia, who disappeared in New York with several thousand dollars in money and jewelry on his person.

The warehouse and contents of the Howard Casey company, wholesale grocers at Mount Vernon, Ill., were totally destroyed by fire. Loss, $18,000. Insured for $15,000.

The bodies of Nellie Luebolt and her suitor, Harry Kelly, were taken from the lake at Newark, O., and the evidence shown the girl was murdered while defending her honor.

In recognition of his bravery in saving a little girl from drowning, Thomas J. Maloy of Cincinnati, O., has been rewarded with a purse of money by the citizens of Pittsburg, Pa.

Cured of leprosy, Mrs. Mary Barros has been discharged from the Massachusetts state leper colony on the island of Penikese. Mrs. Barros had been confined there two years.

Prof. John McHugh, formerly of Galena, Ill., where he had among his pupils Gen. Fred Grant, C. C. and H. H. Kohlsaat, George B. Swift and other Chicago men, is dead in Omaha, Neb.

John Polk, 81 years old, was found unconscious on the doorstep of his home near Cloverport, Ky. Inside the house his wife, aged 72 years, was found also unconscious, both suffering from starvation. They died within an hour of each other.

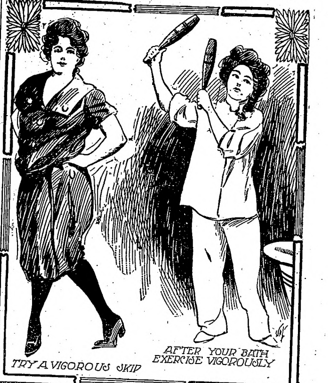
Government Official Dies.

Duluth, Minn., Sept. 8.—Judge J. L. McCreery, of Washington, member of the board of reviews of the United States department of the interior, died here Friday after an operation for appendicitis. He came west to attend the national encampment of the G. A. R., attended by his wife and daughters, Miss Flora McCreery and Mrs. Arthur B. Sperry, of Pittsburg. He published one of the first papers west of the Mississippi, the old Dubuque Herald.

THE MARKETS.

New York, Sept. 8.
LIVE STOCK—Steers	$5 00	@ 5 75
Hogs, State	6 90	@ 7 00
Sheep	4 00	@ 6 00
FLOUR—Minn. Patents	4 20	@ 4 40
WHEAT—December	80¼@	80⅝
May	83¼@	83⅝
CORN—December	51½@	51⅝
RYE—No. 2 Western	63½@	64
BUTTER	18 @	23½
CHEESE	11¾@	12¾
EGGS	26 @	27
CHICAGO.
CATTLE—Choice Steers	$5 65	@ 6 80
Common to Good Steers	4 75	@ 5 65
Yearlings	4 50	@ 5 75
Bulls, Common to Choice	2 25	@ 4 00
Calves	3 00	@ 7 75
HOGS—Light Mixed	6 15	@ 6 40
Heavy Packing	5 60	@ 5 95
Heavy Mixed	6 10	@ 6 25
BUTTER—Creamery	19 @	23½
Dairy	17 @	20½
EGGS	12½@	17
LIVE POULTRY	11 @	13
POTATOES (bu.)	47 @	50
WHEAT—September	69¾@	70¼
May	72⅛@	72½
Corn, September	72¾@	72⅞
Oats, September	47½@	47⅞
Rye, September	30 @	30⅛
	55 @	58
MILWAUKEE.
GRAIN—Wheat, No. 1 Nor'n	$ 76	@ 77
December	73¾@	72⅞
Corn, December	65⅝@	65⅞
Oats, Standard	31 @	32
Rye, No. 1	56 @	57
KANSAS CITY.
GRAIN—Wheat, September	$ 63 @	63⅝
December	65⅛@	65⅜
Corn, September	42 @	42½
Oats, No. 2 White	31 @	32
ST. LOUIS.
CATTLE—Beef Steers	$3 50	@ 6 50
Texas Steers	3 25	@ 5 00
HOGS—Packers	6 00	@ 6 30
Butchers	6 30	@ 6 40
SHEEP—Natives	3 50	@ 5 50
OMAHA.
CATTLE—Native Steers	$4 50	@ 6 60
Stockers and Feeders	2 75	@ 4 50
Cows and Heifers	3 00	@ 4 00
HOGS—Heavy	5 90	@ 5 95
SHEEP—Wethers	5 00	@ 5 35

Weight Reducing Programme



TRY A VIGOROUS SKIP

AFTER YOUR BATH EXERCISE VIGOROUSLY

"I am only a toilet specialist," said a Fifth avenue, New York, glass front business woman, pulling down her lace curtains and preparing to treat a patient. "But I know a thing or two.

"I could give lessons to many a doctor in reducing the weight and it would surprise a great many so-called regular practitioners if they knew what I know.

"We beauty women have a great deal to contend with. Women come to us weighing twice as much as they ought to weigh. They ask us to treat the complexion.

"'My face is as red as fire,' said a corpulent woman, blowing in here one of the days when the thermometer was over the hundred mark, 'and I want you to reduce the color. I don't like to have my face so red.'

"'I can't do anything for you, madam,' said I, 'unless you reduce your weight. You are way over the danger mark. You weigh almost 100 pounds more than you ought to weigh. Reduce your weight and the color will fade out of your face.

"She happened to be a sensible woman and she took my advice. She got to work at her figure and succeeded in reducing it. She took off more than 100 pounds. And when she had finished she was quite a pretty woman. Her figure was trim and her face was a normal color. You can't do much with a fat woman until you reduce her.

"My first advice to every woman who comes to me is to reduce the weight. Nearly all are too heavy and I frankly tell them so. Usually they are indignant and the majority tell me that it would be impossible. 'I am naturally fat,' they say. But I insist and after a little while they give in.

"When my patients bathe in the summer time I am always very particular to see that they get into a vigorous perspiration. All the pores of the skin must be open when one bathes. One must sweat profusely. The more one perspires the better. 'Sweat as hard as you can,' is my advice to the woman who wants to reduce.

"I advise two good baths a day. And both should be of a kind to wake up the skin. No matter whether they are hot or cold, one can take a little vigorous exercise afterward. And soon the perspiration will begin to run down the body. The woman who is reducing should buy a pair of Indian clubs. She can get inexpensive ones for a very little money and the lighter the weight the better for her. With these she can practice a few minutes after each bath. In this way she will be sure of getting in a glow. Her skin must be moist all over.

"Reducing the weight depends very largely upon what you eat. The fat woman will tell you differently, but she is mistaken. She grows fat because she eats a good deal of the wrong kind of food. She takes the things that are fat-producing. It is not so much the quantity of food that she eats as the kind of food she takes.

"The fat woman eats a great deal of ice cream. She loves all kinds of starchy foods. She revels in corn and other sugary vegetables and she likes potatoes and cheese and all the starchy things such as cereals, cream, milk, hot bread and butter and cake. It would seem as though some special perversity of taste kept her from eating the right kind of food.

"To make the fat woman happy give her something sweet. That is the only way to content her. She is uneasy until her appetite for preserves, pies, puddings and ice cream has been appeased.

"The thin woman, quite to the contrary, has a dietary of her own, and a wonderfully hygienic thing it is. Very often she is content at noon with a little of the white meat of fish and a cracker or two. She may take a tiny little cup of tea, perfectly clear, for she seldom puts sugar in her tea or her coffee.

"For breakfast the thin woman relies upon fruit. This she follows up with some poached eggs on toast. And this is all she wants. Often she takes dry toast and coffee and a little fruit. Almost any little thing is enough for her, yet she gets her full nourishment.

"When reducing one must also exercise. But exercise will hardly take off the fat. It is a very difficult way of reducing. You must work awfully hard for every ounce of flesh you take off your body. You must work as though you were working for a living. Your exercise ceases to become play and is downright hard work."

Some Novel Ways of Entertaining.

Little Aids for the Hostess Who Is Looking for Something New for Her Guests.

A Guessing Contest for Girls.

A dozen girls had congregated on the spacious porch of a hospitable home known in the town as the "half way" house, when the charming house mother said: "I wonder how many of you girls know the meaning of your names?" To the one guessing the most I'll give a basket of luscious peaches which just came in from the farm."

She then proceeded to read the following names with their meanings, which I have arranged, and these only as an example, for, by consulting the back of a dictionary, many more may be added so as to use the scheme for a larger party.

What girl's name means:
A lamb—(Agnes).
An angel—(Angela).
Free and open-hearted—(Frances).
The praise worthy—(Antoinette).
A gift or present—(Dora).
Steady, persevering—(Constance).
Full of light, radiant—(Helen).
The heavenly—(Celeste).
The Pearl—(Margaret).
Honor—(Nora).
A lady princess—(Sarah).
A star—(Stella).

A Clover Luncheon.

The invitations for this pretty affair were sent on green cardboard clovers, written with white ink; there were only six guests, and they were asked to wear shirt waist suits, so there was no formality. The table centerpiece was a glass bowl filled with pink and white clover blossoms with a profusion of the beautiful leaves. The tablecloth was sprinkled with clovers and clover chains made by the small daughter of the hostess went to the four corners of the table from the chandelier. The effect was lovely and so simple.

The place cards were white, with a four-leafed clover pasted on each. The first, course was fruit, then fish creamed in ramakins, Saratoga chips, pear salad, cheese wafers, olives, nuts, cheese balls with bar-le-duc. A sherbert, small cakes and iced grape juice completed the repast. After luncheon a long walk was taken through the fields to hunt four-leafed clovers. On the return tiny hot biscuit with clover honey were served on the porch with tea.

MADAME MERRI.

Care of the Feet.

Tender, smarting feet can well be numbered among the beauty ills. If possible have your shoes made for you and change them as often as you can. Wear fresh hosiery every morning, dusting them inside with equal parts of talcum powder and prepared chalk. Night and morning bathe the feet with warm water, to which a teaspoonful of baking soda has been added; afterward rub them with alcohol.

The Use of Whalebone.

When putting steel or whalebone into a bodice, bend them slightly at the waist before putting into casing. You will find the bodice will fit to the figure much better.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-class matter August 30, 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3. 1879.

Take Your Choice.

We are in reciept of a letter from D.C. Lighburn candidate for the state Senate from this district in which he complains about our article published last week stating that A.L. Hanson of Ada was the first candidate for the legislature that dared to come out and say that he promised to vote for a reduction in freight and passenger rates, and Mr. Lightburn says he was the first candidate to make this promise. Now if he did pledge himself to do anything of this kind he must have taken his printers devil down in the back room and whispered it to him. Now in order that our readers may understand this, we publish Mr. Lightbourns political announcement, which is supposed to be a request for the peoples votes.

"I am a candidate for state senator from this district, which comprises, Norman, Beltrami, Red Lake and Clearwater counties, and I respectfully solicit the support of the voters at the Republican primaries. If elected I pledge myself to vote for the re-election of Hon. Knute Nelson as U.S. Senator. I favor and will work for liberal state appropriations for drainage, good roads and bridges."

D.C Lightbourn.

Now as we want to be fair about this matter we ask our readers to read the above announcement and that of A.L. Hanson published in another colum and make up their minds which one of them are entitled to their support on the 18th of September. The Thief River Falls News took the lead in calling the candidates for the legislature on the carpet by stating to them that the people wanted to know what measures that they were going to support, if elected that were for the interest of the common people such as the reduction of freight, extension of the Primary election law to include state officers, and other legislation that was being demanded by the people.

But there has been silence deep and profound from them until Hanson spoke out, or in other words they expected the people to elect them to office and turn them loose in St. Paul this winter, to associate and be a fine fellow with the railroad lobbicst while their constituents paid the freight.

A Hot Time In Polk.

We understand that W.E. Rowe is going to put up a hard fight for the election for state Senator from the county of Polk, and that the people of the eastern part of the county are flocking to him, as the representative of the farming interests in opposition to the Great Northern Railroads best interests which would claim all of A.D. Stephens attention.

If Rowe wins out, which now looks probable, it will be a good rebuoke to the republican party in that county and give them to understand that it is dangerous to try to foist a corporation candidate onto the people.

We understand that A.D. Stephens nose increased in length a little when W.E. Rowe filed for state senator from that county.

Notwithstanding we have not a very large number of votes to be poled in these townships, on Sept. 18th, owing to such a large number of the settlers going to the Dakota harvest fields, yet it seems to us that a vote that is not worth asking for is not worth having and we prepose for one to not vote for any candidate on the primary election ballot that has not asked the people up this way for their votes, we have two gentlemen on this page who have asked the people for their support. H. E. Ives of St. Hilaire and Ralph Green of Equality.

Political Announcements.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Registered of Deeds of Red Lake Co. and respectfully solicit the support of the votes at the Primary election Sept. 18th.

Ralph H. Green,
Equality Township.

Voters of Red Lake County,

I am a candidate for the republican nomination for Register of Deeds, and respectfully solicit your vote and support at the primary election, September 18th. I stand for a "Square Deal".

yours truly,
E. L. Quist.

Republican State Ticket.

United States Senator—
Knute Nelson,
Douglas County.

Governor—
A.L. Cole,
Cass County.

Lieutenant Governor—
A.O. Eberhart.
Blue Earth County.

Chief Justice—
Charles M. Start,
Olmsted County.

State Treasurer—
Clarence Dinehart,
Murray County,

Secretary of State—
Julius Schmahl,
Redwood County.

Attorney General—
E.T. Young,
Swift County.

State Auditor—
S.G. Iverson,
Fillmore County.

Clerk of Supreme Court—
C.A. Pidgeon,
Wright County.

Railroad Commissioner—
C.F. Staples,
Dakota County.

Man Who Beheaded Charles I.

The mysterious masked man who beheaded Charles I. remains British analogue for the Man With the Iron Mask. Lilly, the lying astrologer, denounced Cornet Joyce at the restoration, but Joyce on the fatal 30th of January was not in favor with Cromwell. The parish register of Whitechapel records the burial in 1649 of Richard Brandon, the common hangman, and opposite the entry a contemporary hand wrote that "he cut off the head of Charles, the First." Brandon himself asserted that "they made him do it for £30," with which he drank himself to death.—Dundee Advertiser.

Drinking Hot Water.

Persons who have irritability of the heart should not drink hot water. Hot water will cause palpitation in such cases. Persons with dilated stomachs should avoid the drinking of hot water; persons afflicted with "sour stomachs," persons who have soreness of the stomach or pain induced by light pressure should also refrain from drinking it. Hot water will relieve thirst better than cold water, and for that purpose it should not be condemned, but hot water is an exeitant, and in cases in which irritation of the stomach exists it should be avoided.

Drudgery.

The everyday cares and duties which men call drudgery are the weights and counterpoises of the clock of time, giving its pendulum a true vibration and its hands a regular motion, and when they cease to hang upon its wheels the pendulum no longer swings, the hands no longer move, the clock stands still. —Longfellow.

A Protest.

The Lion—The leopard, you know, cannot change his spots. The Zebra—Well, I can't change my stripes either, but no one ever thought it of sufficient interest to make a proverb of.—Philadelphia Record.

Good Nature May Be Costly.

"Don't look so glum, Pilkerton. Use cheery words. They cost nothing."

"Cost nothing! If I speak ten cheery words to my wife, she asks me for some money."

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the paymen of five dollars which became due March 14th 1906, and is due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Martha Kolstoe, a single women, mortgagor, to Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, mortgagee, bearing date the 14th day of March, 1905, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of deeds of the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, on the 17th day of March 1905, at 4 o.clock, P. M. in Book 35 of Mortgages, on page 8 thereof, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the county of Polk, State of Minnesota, on the 14th day of August, 1905, at 8 o'clock A. M. in Book 116 of Mortgages on page 418; and whereas, pursuant to the terms and condition of said mortgage by reason of said default, the whole pronoipal sum of mortgage, towit, thirty dollars, did on the 14th day of March 1906, become at once due and payable, and was so declared by said mortgagee: and whereas, there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of thirty dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of ten per cent per annum since March 14, 1906 and whereas, the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof:

Now, therefor, Notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to wit,:

Lots six (6) and seven (7) of section six (6) in township one hundred fifty one (151), north, of range thirty nine (39) in Polk County, Minnesota, and the east half of the south east quarter, (E.½ of S.E. ¼) of section one (1) in township one hundred fifty one (151), north, of range forty (40), in Red Lake County, Minnesota, which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Red Lake County, Minnesota, at the west front door at the courthouse in the City of Red Lake Falls, in said county and state on Saturday, the 13th day of October, 1906, at two (2) o'clock P.M. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of thirty dollars and interest as aforesaid, and taxes, if any, on said premises and a reasonale attorney's fee as stipulated in said mortgage, the same being hereby claimed and stated to be the sum of twenty five dollars, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated August 22nd, 1906,

Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls Minn.

Mortgagee,

Chas. E. Boughton,
Attorney for Mortgagee,
Red Lake Falls, Minnesota.

Trouble For Government Clerks.

"Congress makes lots of unnecessary trouble for the government clerks," said a veteran employee, "but the worst case I know of occurred some years ago. A certain senator asked the comptroller of the currency to tell him how much stock a certain man had in a national bank. He was informed that such information was regarded as confidential and could not be given out."

"We'll see about that," said the senator, who was plainly disappointed and displeased.

"Several days later he secured the passage of a resolution calling upon the secretary of the treasury to furnish the senate with the names and holdings of the stockholders in all the national banks in the country. He really wanted to know only the interest of one man in a bank, but he knew that he couldn't get a resolution of that kind through the senate, so he included the stockholders in all national banks. It took the entire force of the comptroller's office several weeks to prepare the information, and when it reached the senate nobody paid any attention to it except the author of the resolution, and he merely looked at the mass of papers only long enough to see about the man he was after and then tossed the papers aside. It was an immense lot of work for nothing."—Washington Star.

The Abbe's Criticism.

An American lady residing in Rome presented to a friend, who is an abbe, an intellectual man and familiar with English, although no traveler, a copy of one of Mary Wilkins' New England stories.

"The author of this, my dear friend," she said, "is the best portrayer of New England character we have. No other writer has caught so well the charm of the place and the people. I hope you will like it."

The abbe took the book and thanked her. In a few days he came again and returned it gingerly, saying a word or two of thanks.

"Were you not pleased with the quaint portrayal of the life?" asked the lady.

"You say this is a faithful portrayal of life in New England?"

"Very faithful indeed."

The abbe sighed and said, with deep sympathy, "How sad!"—Reader Magazine.

The Curse of Shiftlessness.

Whether shiftlessness is a vice that is incurable or a habit that can be overcome, it is anyhow a condition that perplexes and irritates relieving officials. Shiftlessness is paying one's last 50 cents for a circus ticket without learning where tomorrow's breakfast is coming from. It is a refusal to repair the leak in the roof when the sun shines. It is killing the goose that lays the golden eggs. It takes no thought of the morrow. It never lays up anything for a rainy day. It always ignores opportunities. It prefers to rely on neighborhood bounty to hustling for itself. It won't work except under the pressure of necessity. It never gets ahead. —Hartford Times.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam August 17, 1906.

Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston Minn. August 13th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on September 25th 1906 viz:

Ole O. Vattendahl.

H.E. No. 713 Red Lake Series, for Lot 2. Sec. 27, Lots 7, 8, 10, 11, Sec. 28, Lot 1. Sec. 34, Twp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Torkel T. Lande, Sjur Stolas, Torger S. Dale, Andrew Ellingson all of Radny Minn.

R. J. Montague, Regster.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam August 17, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. August 11, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Reciver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on September 26 1906, viz:

Signe J. Sen.

H.E. No. 8256, Chippewa Series, for the N.E. ¼ Sec. 35, Twp. 152 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Sam Gunderson, Rasmus Nilsen Fore, Aasa Fore, John G. Lintvedt all of Lillo Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

probate Notice.

ESTATE OF ANTON W. SHOSTEN.

STATE OF MINNESOTA. COUNTY OF RED LAKE IN PROBATE COURT.

In the Matter of the Estate of Anton W. Shosten. Decedent.

Letters of administation this day having been granted to Eva Shosten,

IT IS ORDERED, that the time within which all creditors of the above named decedent may present claims against his estate in this court, be, and the same hereby is, limited to six months from and after the date hereof; and that Friday the 11th day of January 1907. at 9 o'clock A.M., in the Probate Court Rooms at the Court House at Red Lake Falls in said County, be, and the same hereby is, fixed and appointed as the time and place for hearing upon and the examination, adjustment and allowance of such claims as shall be presented within the time aforesaid.

Let notice hereof be given by the publication of this order in THE SUNBEAM a weekly newspaper printed and published in said County as provided by law.

Dated August 11th 1906.

N.W. Tarrant,
{Seal} Judge of Probate.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION

First Pub. in The Sunbeam August 31, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land office at Crookston Minn. August 24th, 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver, of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on October 23, 1906 viz:

Nels Loiland.

H.E. no. 1181 Red Lake Series for the Lots 5, 6, 7, 9, S.W. ¼, S.E. ¼, Sec. 27 Twp. 152 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ben K. Krestad of Highlanding Minn. Halvor Swanson, Ole N. Loiland, Oluf Hanson of Hilda Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register

To Waterproof Canvas.

Scientific American gives this recipe for waterproofing for canvas: Soft soap dissolved in hot water and a solution of iron sulphate added. The sulphuric acid combines with the potash of the soap and the iron oxide is precipitated with the fatty acid as insoluble iron soap. This is washed and dried and mixed with linseed oil.

Masculine.

Mrs. Hix—Mrs. June strikes me as being entirely too masculine for a woman. Mrs. Dix—Yes, indeed. Why, every time she has an ache or a pain she makes as much fuss about it as a man would.

Discretion.

First Lawyer—It seems to me you let that last witness down pretty easily in your cross examination. Second Lawyer—I had to. He is my tailor, and I owe him a big bill.

When a man says, "Of course it's no business of mine," it is a sure sign that he is going to do the best he can to make it his business.

Chotohazree at the Gymkhana.

In "Modern India" the author, William Eleroy Curtis, records his meeting with the word gymkhana, and "ventures to say that nobody who has not been in India can guess what that means."

And if you want another conundrum, what is a chotohazree? It is customary for smart people to have their chotohazree at the gymkhana, and I think you would be pleased to join them after taking the beautiful drive which leads to the place. Nobody knows where the word was derived from, but it is used to describe a country club—a bungalow hidden under a beautiful grove on the brow of a cliff that overhangs the bay—with all of the appurtenances, golf links, cricket grounds, racket courts and indoor gymnasium, and everybody stops there on an afternoon drive to have chotohazree, which is the local term for afternoon tea and for early morning coffee.

A man who covers himself with costly apparel and neglects his mind is like one who illuminates the outside of his house and sits within in the dark.

H. & B. MILLING CO.
BEST
VIVO
PATENT
98
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.
VIVO

VIVO

HANDLED BY ALL THE LEADING MERCHANTS OF THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

(ALWAYS CALL FOR VIVO)

We pay the highest market price for all grain, at our mill in Thief River Falls, or at our elevator at Plummer, and always have on hand a compleat line of flour & feed at both points.

☞ Promt shipments made by boat to all points along the Red Lake River.

We solicit your orders.

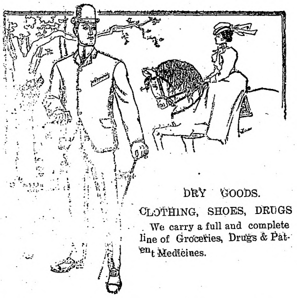
Hanson & Barzen Milling Company.

THE MERCHANTS State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds, Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.——

J. A. Duffy, Cashier.

NORSK HANDEL.



DRY GOODS.

CLOTHING, SHOES, DRUGS

We carry a full and complete line of Groceries, Drugs & Patent Medicines.

☞ LOOK AT THIS. We pay the highest market price for, Hides, Wool, Seneka Root, Furs & All Farm Products

H. H. Finrow, Mg.

PLUMMER, ... MINN.

The Radny Store:

☞ THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE RADNY STORE,

John has, Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes.

A full and complete line of groceries.

Best brands of flour at lowest market price

.... .00............

Call and see me for bargains, at Radny post office and store.

John Radneskie.

In Praise of Cockneys.

Cockneys are the best natured people under the sun. It is notorious that a big London crowd is of all crowds in the world the most harmless and the easiest to manage. But see them also in their ordinary collections, outside the gallery door of a popular theater or crowding in the carriages of an excursion train—what fun and kindness and wholesome give and take! A deliberately rude or offensive cockney is hardly to be met.—G. S. Street in Pall Mall Gazette.

The Mortality List.

Manager (of great exposition)—What alarms me is our mortality list. Assistant—Mortality list? Why, it's next to nothing at all! "I know better than that. More than one-third of the people that come through the turnstiles are deadheads."

The Fall of the Hennins.

The hennins or headdresses worn by ladies of the fifteenth century were in shape of horns and so long that a woman's face appeared to be in the center of her figure. The clergy condemned them and threatened the wearers with perdition, but for all that they were worn higher than ever. At last a strolling evangelist at Paris promised absolution to all who would destroy the hennins, and the mob went to work and wrecked the headdresses whenever they appeared in public. The hennins were trampled under foot and their wearers insulted all over Paris. Scores of lives were lost in the efforts of the cavaliers to defend the hennins from the rabble, but in vain, and the enormous headdresses disappeared, some other feminine absurdity taking their place.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

VIVO flour is the best. Ask your dealer for vivo.

HORSES FOR SALE, at the Plummer livery barn.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar, will bring relief to Asthma patients.

Henry Arndt and Miss May Arndt, visited at Germantown on Monday.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar, Do not wait get it at the first indication of a cough or cold.

Walter Robbecke and John Marland, of Thief River Falls were visitors at Kuehnel on Sunday last.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar, is a remedy that cures by removing the cause Try a 50ct. bottle.

A. Rollinsou and M.E. Hyland of Deer Park Township were transacting business here Tuesday.

Chris Larson the Anton dealer will pay you the highest cash price for cattle, see him before you sell.

The land is very dry here for plowing at the present time and our farmers would not object to a good sized rain storm.

Mrs. Robbecke of Thief River Falls who has been visiting at Kuehnel the past week returned home on Wednesday morning.

CATTLE WANTED, Highest market price paid for fat cattle, inquire at this office, or of Chris Larson at Anton Post office.

The country store keepers are doing all their toating from the railroads by team now, which has caused the Dan Patch boat to take a lay off.

Oluf Snoback and John Karline went down to Kratka yesterday to start ditching. The land is very dry for that kind of work at the present time.

H. T. McAnulty county superintendent of schools is looking up school matters in this locality this week and ocasianly nailing a board on his political fences.

Do not fail to attend the primaries next Tuesday and vote, for if you do not the howl will be raised next winter in the legislature, that the farmers do not care to go to primary election to nominate a ticket.

One of Kirkpatricks expressions Wednesday night was. "The republican farmer said in the last campaign, "I want a sound dollar that is good in Europe", but the farmer did not go to Europe, and the plug hat got the dollar. and the farmer got the "sound."

County superintendent H.T. McAnulty of schools was a pleasant caller at this office yesterday, allthough Mr. McAnulty has withdrawn as a candidate for the republican nomination, he will go on the ticket by petition and make an active campaign for his realection in November, and will recieve strong support from the eastern part of the county.

George Kirkpatrick gave a socialist speech at our school house on Wednesday evening. Mr. Kirkpatrick is a splendid speaker and entertained his audience for two hours, with his subject of what is the matter, and how to remedy it While we do not endorse his way of remedy, yet he made some good points that is liable to set the people to thinking. After his speech there was a socialist club formed. L. L. Quist of Kratka and, H.T. McAnulty superintendent of schools were present and enjoyed the lecture with us.

Legislat ive Timher.

We entend to publish our opinion in plain language, so the people can understand it and we can prove what we say.

Don't go to the primary election next Tuesday and vote for a man that has represented the corporations in the last two terms of the legislature, and then complain about high freight rates the next two years, but vote for a man that will represent the people, and has promised to reduce them. A.L. Hanson is that man.

The opponents of A.L. Hanson for state Senator from this district did not dare to publish their platforms. If they had the corporations would have withdrawn their support. When you see a man supporting Simons for senator, you can be sure that he is either afraid the railroad corporations are not skinning the people enough, and wants to help them get their representative in the legislature, or some of their "boodle" is talking.

It is the safest way to leave the ticket blank in the place where there are two candidates for one office, if you do not know either of them, for if you voto blind, you might be helping a man not entitled to your vote to defeat a good fellow for the position.

We have taken some pains to make inquireys about candidates for representative from this district, and find that J.J. Opsahl, of Bemidji is a man of about the same caliber as A.L. Hanson, and should recieve the support of the common people.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar, is a soothing, healing expectorant. It heals the inflamed and irritated surfaces. loosens the cough.

TURN OUT TO ELECTION;

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar, will cure your cough.

ECZEMA and PILE CURE FREE,

Knowing what it was to suffer, I will give FREE OF CHARGE, to any afflicted a positive cure for Eczema, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Piles and Skin Diseases. Instant relief. Don't suffer longer, Write F. W. Williams, 400 Manhattan Avenue, New York. Enclose Stamp.

Wanted: Gentleman or lady with good reference, to travel by rail or with a rig, for a firm of $250,000.00 capital. Salary $1,072.00 per year and expenses; salary paid weekly and expenses advanced. Address, with stamp, Jos. A. Alexander, Subeam, Minn.

LAND OFFICE BUSINESS.

U.S. Commissioner L. G. Browning with office located at Thief River Falls, is prepared to take homestead entries final proof, etc., within the Crookston U. S. Land District.

office in News building, three doors south of the post office.

MONEY TO LOAN.

I have money to loan on real-estate at 7½ per cent. Payments at the land office made for you when you make final proof.

Special attention given to Notary Public work.

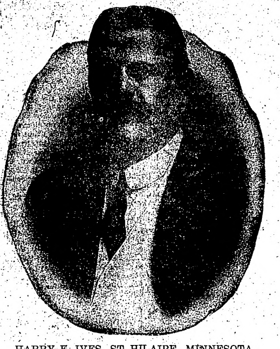
Applications to make final proof written free.

Stephen Singer.
Rhoda Minn.

Subscribe for The Sunbeam,

Eyeglasses and Romance.

It is curious to observe that even the greatest realists do not venture to bestow eyeglasses on their heroines. It is rather odd, too, seeing how many charming women do in real life wear them and are not debarred by them from the most dramatic careers and the most poignant emotions, but while the modern novelist has bestowed eyeglasses on everybody else he has not yet had the hardihood to put them on the nose of his heroine. Why?—Mrs. John Lane in London Outlook.



HARRY E. IVES, ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA.,

Respectfully solicits your support and vote for the Republican nomination for Clerk of the District Court for Red Lake County at the Primaries, Sept. 18. If nominated and elected will pledge a square deal to all parties and all men.

WHAT HANSON STANDS FOR.

A Candidate for the State Senate Who Is Not Afraid to Tell the People How He Stands

On Important Issues.

I favor and will support if elected the extension of the primary nominating system to include all state officers and United States Senator; the enactment of a reciprocal demurage law; prohibiting the issuing to and the use of railway passes by all State, Legislative, Judicial and County officials whether elective or appointive; reduction in freight, express and passenger rates; increasing the power of the Railroad and Warehouse Commission; thorough control and regulation of all corporations; taxing of corporation property in the same manner as other property; redistricting of legislative districts of the state so as to give to the northern part of the state its proper representation in the state legislature. Local aption by counties in the granting of licenses to sell intoxicating liquors; the enactment of a more stringent pure food law; liberal suport of State Sanitarium for care and cure of consumptives; liberal support of schools, educational institutions, drainage, good roads, and for state developement; the safe guarding of state timber and mineral property; the re-electing of Knut Nelson as United States Senator. I will put forth my best efforts to secure the enactment of any other legislation that would be to the best interests of the people of the district and state.

On these principles and Promising to devote my best efforts to Promote clean and fair Politics, I respectfully solicit your good will and vote at the coming Primary election.

A. L. Hanson.
Ada, Minn.

J. K WOOD,
COUNTY SURVEYOR, &
CIVIL ENGINEER.

Will give all orders for Surveying prompt attention.

Office at Thief River Falls
Minnesota.

U.S. Mail,

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 8. 30 a. m. on Tuesday's Thurday's and Saturday's. & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 3. p.m.

Wm. G. HUNT, P.M.

MARKS'S LUNG BALSAM, with TAR.

For the cure of all diseases of the lungs, throat and chest, as Cough, Cold, Asthma, Bronchitis La Grip and will Prevent consumption when taken in time.

Love's Excuse.

He—You passed me without speaking to me.

She—Oh, I must have been thinking about you.

A Conundrum For Cannon.

Speaker Cannon has received hundreds of telegrams from Oklahoma expressing the opinion of hundreds of people about him. This one, however, which he declares is the most remarkable inquiry ever propounded to an American statesman, he proposes to frame, "Shall Oklahoma, the gem of hope, be sacrificed on the Shylock of Despair?"—New York Times.

Diet and Digestion.

Abstemiousness in diet is very conducive to a good digestion. It is preferable to be a little underfed than at all overfed. Hence we come to one of the first causes of indigestion in the adult, too large a quantity of food. After an ordinary meal the food should all have left the stomach by the end of six or seven hours. If owing to an excessive quantity the stomach cannot deal with the amount some food remains in the stomach and ferments. This creates discomfort, pain, wind, nausea and perhaps vomiting, by means of which the abused stomach gets rid of its burden. If the sufferer is not thus fortunately sick the best thing he can do is to drink a large tumbler of lukewarm water, which will probably induce vomiting and so wash out the stomach. Half a teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda added to the fluid will cause still more relief. During the next twenty-four hours the lightest diet, such as a little tea and dried toast, some boiled rice, a little arrowroot or corn flour, should be taken.

Anxious.

"I hear that your wife has run away from you?"

"Yes. I've offered a reward for her capture, dead or alive."

"How much?"

"Ten dollars alive and a thousand dollars dead."—Judge.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE
PATENTS
TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.
Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.
A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.
MUNN & Co. 36 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

IF YOU WANT TO DO BUSINESS,
With The People Of Eastern Red Lake County,
YOU SHOULD ADVERTISE
IN A PAPER,
THAT THEY TAKE AND READ.
TRY "THE SUNBEAM", WITH AN AD., FOR RESULTS.

THE FIRST
STATE BANK, OF
THIEF RIVER FALLS, WILL LOAN YOU THE Money To Make Your Second Payment, or to make your final proof. Give us a call, as we give the best rates
On Farm Loans.

Gustav Singer, Edward Singer,
SINGER BROS.
Dealers In,

WORKING
CLOTHING
MADE IN DULUTH
This line is justly celebrated because they fit and
STAND THE WEAR
WE CAN FIT YOU

Groceries, flour & feed.
Dry Goods, Boots & Shoes.
HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR FARM PRODUCE
Rhoda, Minn.

NEW STORE,
AT ANTON MINESOTA.
Dry Goods, Goceries, Flour & feed.
EXCLUSIVE AGENTS FOR THE CELEBRATED DE LAVAL CREAM SEPERATOR, IN THE ELEVEN TOWNS.
Any Kind Of Stock Taken In Exchange For Goods.
Give me a call.
Located at Anton post office, on the Red Lake River, Eigh miles east of Thief River Falls.
[illegible] Proprietor

DEFECTIVE PAGE

The Household Devil of Sam Louie

By E. Spence De Pue

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

In the very heart of San Francisco in a certain breathing place called Portsmouth square stood little Quong Ling on a summer day.

Across the grass came another figure; a little taller, a little older than Quong Ling, and neither white nor Chinese, but a part of both. When it was directly behind the Chinese boy it shot out its hands and clapped them tightly over the other's eyes, and cried in a merry voice:

"Who?"

"Ming Foo, of course," was the prompt response.

They curled themselves comfortably on the grass, near the edge of the gravel path, content as two young animals.

"Here comes Sam Louie," cried Ming Foo, suddenly; "he's going to stop."

"Ho, little rascals, do you have naught to do but idle?" asked Sam Louie affably, as he paused a moment.

"Nothing, honorable friend, but to idle and tell stories."

"Well, if that be all, let this add to the pleasures of thy idleness; catch!" Cutting off a generous piece of sugarcane from one of the sticks he carried, he tossed it into the air and passed on.

For the time all else was forgotten in the pleasurable crunch of teeth upon the succulent cane. Forgotten till a fat, sleek Chinaman, in American apparel, and another Chinaman, with a great red scar across his cheek, passed by, and a word or so floated to the always wide-open ears of Ming Foo.

"Understand? There ought to be about three thousand dollars, and you must get every cent of—" That was all, but it was enough to arrest a pair of stout young jaws midway in the act of sending a set of white teeth into the juicy wood. Enough to cause Ming Foo to stare wonderingly after the retreating pair, and note that they settled themselves on a bench and that they were joined by a third Chinaman.

In the last arrival Ming Foo recognized a hatchetman of the Ping Kong tong. His eyes danced joyously, and thrusting his stumpy piece of cane within his blouse, he pulled Quong Ling's ear down close to his lips, whispered something, then scampered off and left the smaller boy wondering and watching the patched trousers as they disappeared around a corner.

Quong Ling's patience had become almost exhausted when one of the three men on the bench wandered off; in another moment the other two parted, going in opposite directions; and, as he held his gaze on the empty bench, he saw a battered cap and a close-cropped head rise from the low shrubbery just behind it.

"Oh, Quong Ling, Quong Ling, Quong-a-ling-a-ling," he sang, dancing around on the tips of his toes. "Big, biggest thing ever, eh? We're goin' to do a big thing to-night. Come 'long with me and I'll tell you all about it."

Then, with many gesticulations and contortions and swellings of the chest, Ming Foo told what he had heard as he lay in the shrubbery. How, on this night, the store of Mow Gum, for whom Sam Louie worked, was to be robbed; that it was to punish the proprietor for daring to cross the hatchet-man—in daring to refuse to bear false witness in some matter before the police, as well as to gain the money. That there were things and mysteries back of this—that it had to do with the tongs, and much more. So that in the end, Quong Ling quivered with the mystery and excitement of it, and Ming Foo, striking his robust little chest, fairly issed:

"Ain't it big? Ain't we goin' to stop ; ain't we goin' t' do more than big etectives would?"

When the smaller adventurer asked. How?" Ming Foo grew in stature as e exclaimed:

"Never mind! You come with me, I'll ow you! I'm white!"

Possibly it was owing to that little reak of white in him that the follow- g things happened. He was only 12, t he knew very much, and Quong ng was his devoted admirer.

There was no place in the quarter of ich Ming Foo did not have the run. ery opium joint was to him a home d a place to lay his head; every wnshop was his museum, and the eater was his especial place of patage; so that it was with no difficul- that he gained for himself and fol- er admission to this place of amuse- nt. He strutted across the stage and the dressing room behind, and got people's way, and bullied the actors, finally disappeared in the depths w—and the fact was not even no- d.

mong rows upon rows of masks— le heads, some of them, in fact— s of swords, miniature pagodas, nes and ancient armor, they re- undisturbed, and Ming Foo pulled hauled the things about until final- e found these articles he should —not a great deal, a papier mache of hideous design and extraordi- proportions and a few yards of w silk. Nor was the removal of things without detection in the lest degree difficult nor beyond his rces.

e next thing was surreptitiously ssess themselves of a bunk in the of Mow Gum's store without the ledge of Sam Louie. This also was plished, though barely before the rs were put up for the night.

er a long wait, Ming Foo cau- y put aside a corner of the mat lipped to the floor. Then he drew Ling down beside him and they listened a moment, reached into the bunk for the package which they had brought from the theater, tiptoed out of the sleeping room and made their way into the store.

"Here, this 'll do," Ming Foo whispered, selecting a place behind a low pile of boxes. "Now, let's tie this mask to you, and you are not to say a word till I tell you to squeal; then, do it as loud as you can; as loud as you can," he repeated, nervously.

The mask, which was almost three feet in height, had two green horns at its top. To each of the horns Ming Foo tied a little bunch of punks, which he lighted; as the pungent aroma floated through the room and mingled with the vegetable and animal odors, he gave three little perfunctory bobs of his head. Next he tied, as best he could in the dark, this high mask to the body of his assistant.

Shuffle, shuffle, approaching steps without came to their ears distinctly. In front of the door some one halted, and even to the spot where the trembling boys stood the low whisperings carried.

Rap, bang! The pounding of the door reverberated through the room like a clap of thunder.

"Who's there?" came from the inner room. With a lighted candle in his hand which showed his sleep-swollen face and eyes, Sam Louie came shuffling out.

"Who's there?" he demanded, suspiciously, as he laid a hand upon the bar of the door. Ming Foo could see, for he had climbed up a little way on the boxes for that purpose.

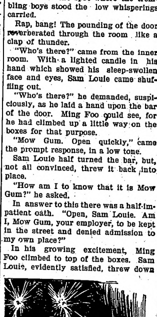
"Mow Gum. Open quickly," came the prompt response, in a low tone.

Sam Louie half turned the bar, but, not all convinced, threw it back into place.

"How am I to know that it is Mow Gum?" he asked.

In answer to this there was a half-impatient oath. "Open, Sam Louie. Am I, Mow Gum, your employer, to be kept in the street and denied admission to my own place?"

In his growing excitement, Ming Foo climbed to top of the boxes. Sam Louie, evidently satisfied, threw down the bar. The door flew open as though a pressure had rested against it all the while. Silently, almost instantly, four villainous highbinders swarmed through the opening. Now that it was too late, Sam Louie saw the awful mistake that he had made. He gave a low, animal-like cry; the candle clattered to the floor; he tried to turn and run, but a ready hand reached for him.



"A Devil! A Devil!" Howled the Others.

One of them pressed the sharp point of a knife against his throat.

"Where is the key? Key to the safe," another demanded.

"Press it in," was the command. The man with the knife dug it viciously into the prostrate man's neck.

The rather uncertain light of the street flickered in through the open door and made it all quite plain to Ming Foo.

"Now—when I say scream, do it loud," he whispered. Hoisting Quong Ling upon his shoulders he raised him till just the horns with the burning punks were on a level with the tops of the boxes.

"If he don't tell, drive the knife clear in," was the impatient command they heard, and it was instantly answered by a moan of pain from Sam Louie.

"Now!" prompted Ming Foo.

And such a scream as it was! A scream of screams, in which there was all the voice and all the terror of Quong Ling, who could see nothing, and who had frightened himself by his own voice.

"A devil! A devil!" howled the others, standing still to stare.

With a yell of fear from the intruders they scrambled and fell over themselves and each other in an effort to get into the street. Sam Louie had fainted, or he, too, would probably have gone.

Then came the triumphant hour of Ming Foo, for, calmly setting Quong Ling on the floor, he made haste to bar the door. Then he danced a mad, elfin dance and waved his battered cap aloft and shouted.

For many days yet to come it will be told how the household devil of Sam Louie came to his assistance and put to flight four of the most desperate fighters of the Ping Kong tong.

ONE WOMAN'S SOLUTION OF SERVANT PROBLEM.

"I have solved the servant problem," said the woman with the compressed lips and the determined eyes.

"You have?" asked the other person.

"I have. When things get to such a pass that the hired girls want three days out in the week, want the use of the parlor every other night and Sunday afternoon, want me to play soft love-songs while they are entertaining their beaus in the kitchen on other evenings, insist on the privilege of dictating what groceries and meats I shall buy, claim the right to wear my clothes and bonnets, dictate whether or no I shall keep a dog or a child, succeed in having my house decorated and furnished to accord with their tastes, and— Well, when things are as they are, I am just—"

"Not going to keep servants any longer?"

"Better than that. I am going to hire out as a servant and enjoy life!"—Judge.

Accepted With Thanks.

"That country bard submitted a poem called 'The Watermelon,'" said the snake editor as he filled his pipe with sun-dried tobacco. "You bet we accepted it in a jiffy."

"But I thought this paper didn't accept poetry?" ventured the caller.

The snake editor grinned.

"Well, it don't as a rule, but you see the poet brought around his nice juicy inspiration."—Chicago News.

Newspaper Doctoring.

Exchange Editor—I am very sorry, sir, but there is something the matter with the nerves or muscles of my face, so it nearly kills me to laugh, and I wish you would have some one else do the joke-clipping to-day.

Able Editor—Certainly. Give our humorist your shears, and you take his place and do the joke-writing until your face gets well.—N. Y. Weekly.

To Examine the Remains.

"Ten dollars and costs."

"All right, judge; now may I see the policeman who arrested me?"

"You wish to apologize to him for your conduct?"

"No; I merely wish to size him up in order to estimate what kind of a time I had last night."—Houston Post.

Particularly Impressed Her.

"You were at the concert last night, were you?" said the next door neighbor. "How did you like it?"

"It was splendid," said Mrs. Lapsling. "They played one overture, with a wabbly ghetto by the violinist, that was the finest thing I ever heard in my life."—Chicago Tribune.

His Justification.

Benedict Arnold had just betrayed West Point.

"I was trying," he explained, "to prevent the premature celebration of the Fourth of July."

Herewith certain lovers of quiet were fain to overlook the peccadillo.—N. Y. Sun.

Stoplate Again.

Mr. Stoplate—I think it must be time for me to go.

Miss Tersleep—Oh, no it isn't.

Mr. Stoplate—It's nice of you to say so, but—

Miss Tersleep—That time is past, and won't come again till to-morrow evening.—Cleveland Leader.

Incentive Gone.

Mrs. Blank—So you never offer to mend your husband's trousers any more?

Mrs. Tank—No. He got so he transferred all his money to his other pants' pocket before handing them to me.—Detroit Free Press.

Exception.

"We reap as we sow," said the moralizer.

"I never do," rejoined the demoralizer. "I'm an amateur gardener, you know."—Chicago Daily News.

ACME OF CONCEIT.

"Is he conceited?"

"Conceited! Why, he actually thinks he understands women!"—Topeka Journal.

Might as Well Have Married Him.

"What is she mad at him for?"

"He said he'd kill himself if she refused him."

"And she did and he didn't, eh?"—Austin Post.

Fortunatus.

Knicker—Has Jones got luck?

Bocker—Yes, he is the kind of fellow who can sow the wind and reap a cyclone cellar.—N. Y. Sun.

Expert Testimony.

Dottie—I wonder if a blonde is more attractive to men than a brunette?

Lottie—Ask Tottie—she's been both.—Cleveland Leader.

STOMACH PAINS

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Brought Relief, and Cure for Splitting Headaches as Well.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, a remedy which has been before the American people for a generation, is still accomplishing wonderful results as is evidenced by the following interview with Mrs. Rachael Gardner, of Wilsey, Kans.

"It was very strange," she says, "I never could tell what caused it and neither could anybody else. For a long time I had bad spells with my stomach. The pain would commence about my heart and was so deadly agonizing that I would have to scream aloud. Sometimes it would last several hours and I would have to take laudanum to stop it. Besides this I had a headache almost constantly, day and night, that nearly crazed me, so you see I suffered a great deal. And when I think of the agony I endured it still makes me shudder.

"'Doctors,' did you say? Their medicine made me sicker. I couldn't take it and I kept growing worse until a friend advised me to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I did. I began to feel better and was soon wholly converted to this wonderful medicine. It did me more good than I had ever hoped for. I kept on with the pills and now I recommend them to all who suffer."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured severe cases of indigestion, bloodlessness, influenza, headaches, backaches, lumbago, sciatica, neuralgia, nervousness and spinal weakness. The genuine Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are guaranteed to be free from opiates or any harmful drugs and cannot injure the most delicate system. At all druggists, or from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N.Y., postpaid on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50.

When Woman Isn't Young.

The report is that a local religious institution which is for "young women" has drawn the deadline of youth at 35. Every woman over that age will be marked 23 and requested to skiddoo. This is painful. It is unkind. What is worse, it is impracticable. We are glad the task is to be performed by women. No man nor set of men would ever have dared tackle such a problem—not they. This is simply another example of woman's inhumanity to woman.

We have been told for many ages that a woman is as old as she looks and a man is as old as he feels. Just now, we say it with regret, most women look like 60 and most men feel like Methuselah. But the general rule seems a good one. It is a plain, unpalatable fact that women will deceive as to their age as long as possible and then openly lie about it. There are many women who were born during the ravages of the civil war who still claim sweetly to be in the thirties.

Three Great Conversationalists.

The three greatest conversationalists with whom it has been my good fortune to come into touch were Mazzini, Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes and Bismark.

Of these, Dr. Holmes was the most spirited in the bel esprit sense; Bismarck the most imposing and at the same time the most entertaining in point of wit, sarcasm, anecdote and narrative of historical interest, brought out with rushing vivacity and with lightning-like illumination of conditions, facts and men.

In Mazzini words there breathed such a warmth and depth of conviction, such enthusiasm of faith in the sacredness of the principles professed and of the aims pursued by him, that it was difficult to resist such a power of fascination.—Carl Schurz, in McClure's Magazine.

Parasols for Parisian Horses.

The Paris jehu, not noted for the mercy he shows his horse, is of the opinion that the sunbonnet is too hot for the beast. Therefore, some of the drivers have provided their animals with parasols, strapped to their heads.

If Adam had eaten the apple first he would probably have declared that Eve dared him to.

HOW MANY OF US?

Fail to Select Food Nature Demands to Ward Off Ailments.

A Ky. lady, speaking about food, says: "I was accustomed to eating all kinds of ordinary food until, for some reason, indigestion and nervous prostration set in.

"After I had run down seriously my attention was called to the necessity of some change in my diet, and I discontinued my ordinary breakfast and began using Grape-Nuts with a good quantity of rich cream.

"In a few days my condition changed in a remarkable way, and I began to have a strength that I had never been possessed of before, a vigor of body and a poise of mind that amazed me. It was entirely new in my experience.

"My former attacks of indigestion had been accompanied by heat flashes, and many times my condition was distressing, with blind spells of dizziness, rush of blood to the head and neuralgic pains in the chest.

"Since using Grape-Nuts alone for breakfast I have been free from these troubles, except at times when I have indulged in rich, greasy foods in quantity, then I would be warned by a pain under the left shoulder blade, and unless I heeded the warning the old trouble would come back, but when I finally got to know where these troubles originated I returned to my Grape-Nuts and cream and the pain and disturbance left very quickly.

"I am now in prime health as a result of my use of Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Some musicians are able to borrow real money on their notes.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES color Silk, Wool and Cotton at one boiling, fast, beautiful colors. 10c per package.

Patience true is typifying, but it is also empowering. It does a work in us—a perfect worth.—Dr. McElveen.

We cannot expect the pleasure of friendship without the duty, the privilege without the responsibility.—Hugh Black, M. A.

Don't Get Footsore! Get Foot-Ease. A wonderful powder that cures tired, hot, aching feet and makes new or tight shoes easy. Ask to-day for Allen's Foot-Ease. Accept no substitute. Trial package FREE. Address A. S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

The natives of the Malay peninsula have in use the smallest current coin in the world. It is a sort of wafer, made from the resinous juice of a tree, and is worth about one-twenty-thousandth of a cent.

Anything but Friendly.

"You astonish me. Your engagement with Miss Welloph is broken, is it? Are the relations between you still friendly?"

"I should say not! The relations between us are her relations, and they're my bitter enemies."—Chicago Tribune.

TERRIBLE SCALY ECZEMA.

Eruptions Appeared on Chest, and Face and Neck Were All Broken Out—Cured by Cuticura.

"I had an eruption appear on my chest and body and extend upwards and downwards, so that my neck and face were all broken out; also my arms and the lower limbs as far as the knees. I at first thought it was prickly heat. But soon scales or crusts formed where the breaking out was. Instead of going to a physician I purchased a complete treatment of the Cuticura Remedies, in which I had great faith, and all was satisfactory. A year or two later the eruption appeared again, only a little lower; but before it had time to spread I procured another supply of the Cuticura Remedies, and continued their use until the cure was complete. It is now five years since the last attack, and have not seen any signs of a return. I have more faith in Cuticura Remedies for skin diseases than anything I know of. Emma E. Wilson, Liscomb, Iowa, Oct. 1, 1905."

Swords Into a Plow.

During the centennial celebration in Philadelphia in 1876 the members of the Universal Peace union assembled to celebrate the tenth anniversary of the foundation of the order.

A number of officers and descendants of officers gave their swords to be made into a plow as a symbol of peace. The weapons were afterward fashioned into a homely agricultural implement, which, however, instead of being a plow, took the shape of the ordinary field cultivator.

This cultivator may now be seen in the hall at Geneva, Switzerland. Over it is an inscription giving the history of the implement.

Nothing Succeeds Like "EGG-O-SEE."

The man who preaches the best sermon; the man who tells the funniest stories; the man who keeps the best store, or the man who makes the best goods, soon finds that people come to him. Merit is the best advertisement in the world. People speak well of things they know are good. They pass the good word along.

The best breakfast food is "EGG-O-SEE, for it contains all the life-giving properties of nature's best food, which is Wheat.

EGG-O-SEE is deeply in debt to the thousands of wives and mothers who use it in their homes, for these good women tell their neighbors about this great food.

Children and aged persons alike are friends of EGG-O-SEE.

Merit and common sense are things that advertise EGG-O-SEE most. EGG-O-SEE is cheap. A 10-cent package contains ten liberal breakfasts. EGG-O-SEE is sold everywhere. Grocers must keep it if they want to keep their good customers, for good customers insist on buying EGG-O-SEE.

The fact that no preparation, no cooking, is required, makes EGG-O-SEE very popular. Open the package; put in as much as you like in a dish; pour on milk or cream and eat. It is delicious. It is wholesome. It makes you strong.

A lot of interesting facts about EGG-O-SEE have been published in book form entitled, "—back to nature." This book also has a course of physical culture—fully illustrated. Any one wishing this book will receive it free by addressing EGG-O-SEE Company, 10 First St., Quincy, Ill.

Tact.

He had crossed her and she was in a dangerous mood.

"See!" she hissed, pointing her finger at him, "see how you have worked up my feelings. Why, I am purple with rage."

But the young man only smiled.

"So becoming," he mused, softly.

"What is becoming, sir?"

"Why, the purple. It just matches that purple waist you have on."

And the next moment she was all smiles and telling her girl friends that George was the cleverest chap in the world.

"Cut out hot cream of tartar biscuit" used to be a common, every-day remark among physicians when discussing items of diet for their patients. But alum baking powder biscuits are never mentioned in this respect. Why? Because it's the cream of tartar that is objectionable and injurious, and yet there are some people who to-day continue to use the old cream of tartar baking powder, and wonder why they are always ailing.

No Fear.

"Bridget," said Mrs. Hiram Offer, sternly, "on my way home just now I saw that policeman who was in the kitchen with you so long last evening, and I took occasion to speak to him—"

"Oh! shure, that's all roight, ma'am," interrupted Bridget, "Oi'm not jealous. Oi hov him cinched."

STOP, WOMAN!

AND CONSIDER THE ALL-IMPORTANT FACT

That in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private ills to a woman—a woman whose experience with women's diseases covers twenty-five years.

The present Mrs. Pinkham is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, and for many years under her direction, and since her decease, her advice has been freely given to sick women.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty impels them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probable examinations of even their family physician. It is unnecessary. Without money or price you can consult a woman whose knowledge from actual experience is great.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation:

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Out of the vast volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge that will help your case. She asks nothing in return except your good-will, and her advice has relieved thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.—Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Following we publish two letters from a woman who accepted this invitation. Note the result:

First letter.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"For eight years I have suffered something terrible every month. The pains are excruciating and I can hardly stand them. My doctor says I have a severe female trouble, and I must go through an operation if I want to get well. I do not want to submit to it if I can possibly help it. Please tell me what to do. I hope you can relieve me."—Mrs. Mary Dimmick, 59th and E. Capitol Streets, Washington, D. C.

Second letter.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"After following carefully your advice, and taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I am very anxious to send you my testimonial, that others may know their value and what you have done for me.

"As you know, I wrote you that my doctor said I must have an operation or I could not live. I then wrote you, telling you my ailments. I followed your advice and am entirely well. I can walk miles without an ache or a pain, and I owe my life to you and to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I wish every suffering woman would read this testimonial and realize the value of writing to you and your remedy."—Mrs. Mary Dimmick, 59th and E. Capitol Streets, Washington, D. C.

When a medicine has been successful in restoring to health so many women whose testimony is so unquestionable, you cannot well say, without trying it, "I do not believe it will help me." If you are ill, don't hesitate to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice—it is free and always helpful.

HAY FEVER

"Having used Peruna for catarrh and hay fever, I can recommend it to all who are suffering with the above diseases. I am happy to be able to say it has helped me wonderfully."

—Mayme E. Smith.

MISS MAYME SMITH,
444 E. Mound Street, Columbus, Ohio.

HAY FEVER is endemic catarrh. It is caused by some irritating substance in the atmosphere during the late summer months. It is generally thought that the pollen of certain weeds and flowers is the cause of it.

Change of locality seems to be the only rational cure. The use of Peruna, however, stimulates the nervous system to resist the effect of the poisonous emanations and sometimes carries the victim through the hay fever season without an attack of the disease.

A large number of people rely upon Peruna for this purpose. Those who do not find it convenient to change their location to avoid Hay Fever, would do well to give Peruna a trial. It has proven of priceless value to many people.

WHEN THE BED GOES 'ROUND

But Smith Was Too Wise to Wait on the Procession.

"That was an amusing story about the congressman who caught his bed the fourth time it came around. It reminded me," continued the narrator "of the first time I heard the bed phrase. It happened in Harrisburg, where I was then stationed, and it happened to a legislator whom I shall call Smith.

"At the first session Smith became famous for his ability to comfortably carry more liquor than any other man in the legislature. At the opening of the second session some Philadelphians got together and put up a job on Smith. They arranged relays, so that when one party had enough another should take hold, and thus keep going until they had Smith down and out. Well, they began with Smith one evening, and after two relays had succumbed their successors noted with much satisfaction that Smith was mixing his beverages—they didn't know that was his custom, and he fooled them all. The bout continued all night and all of the next day, and when the second evening came Smith was the only man able to get away unaided.

"Several days later I asked Smith how he got along after he reached his hotel. 'When I got into my room,' he replied, 'I saw a procession of beds coming in my direction. I grabbed the first one, fell into it, and woke up the next afternoon.'"—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

MEXICO'S VAST SODA LAKES.

The Government Will Not Dispose of Them to Anyone.

Mexico is the possessor of such vast and valuable soda lakes that the government refuses to dispose of them to anyone or at any price. President Diaz believing that they are yet to become sources of enormous income to the country, just as the nitrate of soda beds are to Chini.

At only one other place in the world is natural soda found under conditions which admit of industrial development, and even there it must be shipped hundreds of miles by rail and many tons of water must be evaporated by coal, to obtain a ton of the product.

But at the Bay of Adair, only a mile from the coast of Lower California, under the blazing sun of the desert, lie vast lakes of crystals of carbonate of soda, with the appearance of masses of snow and ice, but from which will be made millions of tons of soap and other millions of tons of glass.

The world's consumption amounts to hundreds of thousands of tons annually, and nearly all of it is manufactured from common salt with the use of expensive machinery, while at Adair bay nature does all the work in producing an article worth $75 per ton. It is estimated that there is enough soda on top of the ground to produce 100 tons a day for 75 years.

States of Brazil.

Politically, Brazil is divided into 21 states (including the federal district). but so unequal is the division that three of these embrace practically her entire lowlands, as well as a portion of the western uplands, and exceed in area the remaining 18, which lie within the highland region, except for their narrow margins upon the coast. These latter, however, contain more than 96 per cent. of the population.

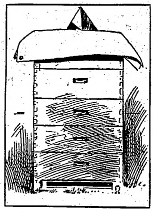
POULTRY
AND BEES

A MILLER TENT-ESCAPE.

Its Use and How to Take Surplus Honey Out of the Supers.

There are two ways of making a Miller tent-escape. The way I made mine, explains Fred A. Strohschein, in Farmers' Voice, is as follows:

First, a piece of wire cloth was cut 22x9½ inches. At the middle of one of the long sides a mark was made, and two marks five and one-half inches from each end on the other long side. Then a line was drawn from each of the five and one-half inch marks to the corners of the other long side. The wire-cloth is folded on these lines and sewn down with fine wire. (The wire-cloth can also be cut off on these lines, but the tent will not be as rigid.) After the first two folds have been sewn down the piece of wire-cloth is folded so it will have the shape of a pyramid. In order to fold properly, a line should be made with white chalk from the five and one-half inch marks to the center (mark) of the other long side and the wire-cloth folded on these lines. After the wire-cloth is folded the two sides that meet are sewn together with fine wire. (A hole large enough for bees to pass must be left at the top.)



Hive Fitted with Tent-Escape.

This wire-cloth tent escape must be fastened onto a piece of cloth (I used old flour sacks) large enough to hang down four or five inches on all four sides of a super. After a piece of cloth of the right size is spread on a table, the tent-escape is put on the center of it and marks made where the three corners of the tent come. Then, starting about one inch towards the center from the marks, the cloth is cut to the center. Enough of the three flaps of cloth is cut off so about two inches remain. The two inches left are sewed into the inside of the three-sided tent with string.

Dr. Miller, after whom the tent is named, and who first devised it, makes a hem on two ends of the cloth and fills it with small stones to hold down the tent in windy weather. But I prefer to insert a heavy stick into the hem (the same as in a window shade) for holding down the escape.

I will describe in a few words how the tent-escape is used:

After as many of the bees as possible have been driven down out of the super to be taken off (driven down with smoke, I mean), it is put on a bottom board and a Miller tent escape put over it, and the entrance below closed with a wire-cloth entrance closer which is made the same as an entrance guard.

The pile of supers can be eight or ten high, but the more supers the longer it takes for them to be freed of the bees.

The bees will pass out freely through the hole at the top of escape, but sometimes a bunch of outgoing bees will gather in the top of the escape and attract outside bees, which will then force their way into the pile of supers to fill themselves with honey and carry it into the hive again. The bees should be scattered with a few puffs of smoke, and all will be well again.

The supers should be put in a sunny place to entice out the bees, and they may also be hustled a little by blowing in smoke at the bottom of the pile of supers.

If a bunch of bees gather on the entrance closer below, it should be taken away and the bees shaken off, and, of course, the closer replaced again.

The pile of supers must be "bee-tight," so no bees can get in; especially so if there is no nectar to gather. If bees get a taste when surplus honey is taken off, one may have to stop operations for several days.

Work with Poultry.

Lice are the cause of much of the so-called cholera.

More attention to the feeding of fowls will give more profit in the returns.

Rub a leaky honey package with soap and see how quickly it will stop the leak.

Feeding an unbalanced ration means that a considerable part of the ration is wasted.

A bare yard without shade is fatal to ducks. Rip a couple of bran sacks and tack them on a frame three feet high if you can't provide any better shade.

The Age of Lead.

We are wont to speak of this era as the "age of iron," and there is no gainsaying that, industrially speaking, iron is a "precious metal."

Nevertheless, few people realize how useful, if not absolutely necessary, to modern civilization, is that other metal, lead. Soft, yielding, pliable, it is not much like its sister metal, but those distinguishing qualities are what give it such a prominent place in the arts and industries.

Modern plumbing, requiring many turnings and twistings, but withal tight joints, would be almost impossible without lead pipe. The greatest civilizing agent in the world—the printing art—is absolutely dependent on lead. Hand-set type, linotype "slugs," monotype type—all are made of compositions of which lead is the chief component—to say nothing of the bearings in the presses as well as all other kinds of machinery in which "babbitt" metal is used.

Solder is another lead product—what a field of usefulness that one form opens up.

Then there is the most important use of all to which lead is put—paint, that necessary material which keeps our houses looking pretty—inside and out—and preserves them from decay.

How many of us thank metallic lead for the comforts of paint? Yet the best house paint is nothing but metallic lead corroded by acid to a white powder known as "white lead." Of course, there are many imitations of "white lead," some of which are sold as white lead and some which are offered by the name of ready-prepared paint under the familiar pretense that they are "just as good" as white lead. But all good paint is made of the metal, lead, corroded and ground to a fine white powder and mixed with linseed oil.

White lead is also used in the coating of fine oil cloths and for many purposes besides paint.

"Red lead" is another product of metallic lead and is what is known as an oxide of lead, being produced by burning the metal. Red lead is the best paint known to preserve iron, steel or tin, and is used largely in painting metal structures, such as skyscraper skeletons, mills and bridges.

There are many other products of the metal lead, such as litharge, orange mineral, etc., which are essential to many of the arts in which we never imagine that lead would be of the least use.

Verily, we live in an age of lead as well as of iron.

Charged for Using French.

For speaking French to him, a landlord of a Duesseldorf hotel recently charged a guest extra in his bill.

Subject for Another Lecture.

"Oh, dear," exclaimed Mrs. Slapdash, when they were finally seated in the carriage, "I've only got one of my earrings on. I left the other on my dressing table."

"Huh!" grunted her husband, "just like my lectures on your carelessness—in one ear and out the other."

Seeking Only Bare Justice.

Creditor—So you've come around at last to pay me what you owe me, have you?

Debtor—Not at all—just the contrary. You made a statement at the club last night that I owed you 600 marks. As a matter of fact the accounts show I only owe you 560. I've come around to collect that balance of 40.

War on Liquor and Tobacco.

The Kansas Anti-Liquor Society has adopted a new plan to fight the liquor traffic. It is mailing free a recipe for the cure of the liquor habit. It can be given secretly in coffee or food. Also one for the tobacco habit that can be given secretly. The only request they make is that you do not sell the recipes, but give free copies to friends. Their address is Room 19, Gray Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

Lincoln as a Lawyer.

A leader of the Lincoln party told the other day in Philadelphia a story of the astuteness of Lincoln as a lawyer.

"When Lincoln was practising law," he said, "he had a case involving a disputed will. The opposition claimed the will was genuine and for several hours adduced proof of this. For Lincoln, who had to prove the will a forgery, things looked black.

"Lincoln, however, only called one witness, a retired paper manufacturer, renowned the country over for his wealth and probity.

"'Mr. Dash,' Lincoln said to this witness, handing him the disputed will, 'please hold that paper up to the light and tell us what is the water mark on it.'

"'The water mark of my own firm, Blank & Co.,' the witness answered.

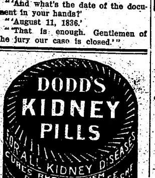
"'When did your firm begin to manufacture paper?'

"'In 1841.'

"'And what's the date of the document in your hands?'

"'August 11, 1836.'

"'That is enough. Gentlemen of the jury our case is closed.'"



Physicians Recommend Castoria

CASTORIA has met with pronounced favor on the part of physicians, pharmaceutical societies and medical authorities. It is used by physicians with results most gratifying. The extended use of Castoria is unquestionably the result of three facts: First—The indisputable evidence that it is harmless: Second—That it not only allays stomach pains and quiets the nerves, but assimilates the food: Third—It is an agreeable and perfect substitute for Castor Oil. It is absolutely safe. It does not contain any Opium, Morphine, or other narcotic and does not stupefy. It is unlike Soothing Syrups, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, etc. This is a good deal for a Medical Journal to say. Our duty, however, is to expose danger and record the means of advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge, Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health, by regulating the system—not by stupefying it—and our readers are entitled to the information.—Hall's Journal of Health.

900 DROPS

CASTORIA

A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of

INFANTS AND CHILDREN

Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral.
NOT NARCOTIC.

Recipe of Old Dr SAMUEL PITCHER
Pumpkin Seed -
Alx. Senna +
Rochelle Salts -
Anise Seed +
Peppermint -
Bi Carbonate Soda +
Worm Seed -
Clarified Sugar
Wintergreen Flavor.

A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.

Fac Simile Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
NEW YORK.

At 6 months old
35 DOSES – 35 CENTS

EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. B. Halstead Scott, of Chicago, Ills., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria often for infants during my practice, and find it very satisfactory."

Dr. William Belmont, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "Your Castoria stands first in its class. In my thirty years of practice I can say I never have found anything that so filled the place."

Dr. J. H. Taft, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria and found it an excellent remedy in my household and private practice for many years. The formula is excellent."

Dr. R. J. Hamlen, of Detroit, Mich., says: "I prescribe your Castoria extensively, as I have never found anything to equal it for children's troubles. I am aware that there are imitations in the field, but I always see that my patients get Fletcher's."

Dr. Wm. J McCrann, of Omaha, Neb., says: "As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine, and aside from my own family experience I have in my years of practice found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."

Dr. J. R. Clausen, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "The name that your Castoria has made for itself in the tens of thousands of homes blessed by the presence of children, scarcely needs to be supplemented by the endorsement of the medical profession, but I, for one, most heartily endorse it and believe it an excellent remedy."

Dr. R. M. Ward, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Physicians generally do not prescribe proprietary preparations, but in the case of Castoria my experience, like that of many other physicians, has taught me to make an exception. I prescribe your Castoria in my practice because I have found it to be a thoroughly reliable remedy for children's complaints. Any physician who has raised a family, as I have, will join me in heartiest recommendation of Castoria."

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS
Bears the Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

In Use For Over 30 Years.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

MAKE EVERY DAY COUNT—no matter how bad the weather. You cannot afford to be without a TOWER'S WATERPROOF OILED SUIT OR SLICKER. When you buy look for the SIGN OF THE FISH

TOWER'S FISH BRAND

A J TOWER CO. BOSTON U.S.A.
TOWER CANADIAN CO LTD. TORONTO CAN.

SICK HEADACHE

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively cured by these Little Pills.

They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.

SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature
Brentgood

REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

READERS of this paper desiring to buy anything advertised in its columns should insist upon having what they ask for, refusing all substitutes or imitations.

What Shall I Do for this strained muscle? RUB ON BRISKLY Johnson's Anodyne Liniment

It was originated 96 years ago to remove inflammation and take the soreness out of strains and bruises. 25c., three times as much 50c. All dealers. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

To prevent that tired feeling on ironing day—Use Defiance Starch—saves time—saves labor—saves annoyance; will not stick to the iron. The big 16 oz. package for 10c, at your grocer's.

W. L. DOUGLAS $3.50 & $3.00 Shoes
BEST IN THE WORLD

W.L.Douglas $4 Gilt Edge line cannot be equalled at any price

To Shoe Dealers: W. L. Douglas' Jobbing House is the most complete in this country Send for Catalog

SHOES FOR EVERYBODY AT ALL PRICES.
Men's Shoes, $5 to $1.50. Boys' Shoes, $3 to $1.25. Women's Shoes, $4.00 to $1.50. Misses' & Children's Shoes, $2.25 to $1.00. Try W. L. Douglas Women's, Misses and Children's shoes; for style, fit and wear they excel other makes.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer, and are of greater value than any other make.

Wherever you live, you can obtain W. L. Douglas shoes. His name and price is stamped on the bottom, which protects you against high prices and inferior shoes. Take no substitute. Ask your dealer for W. L. Douglas shoes and insist upon having them.

Fast Color Eyelets used; they will not wear brassy.
Write for Illustrated Catalog of Fall Styles.
W. L. DOUGLAS, Dept. 12, Brockton, Mass.

WELL GOODS
Ask for Catalog St-157.
Fairbanks, Morse & Co., St. Paul.

REAL ESTATE.

90,000,000 BUSHELS

FARMS WESTERN CANADA FREE

THAT'S THE WHEAT CROP IN WESTERN CANADA THIS YEAR

This with nearly 80,000,000 bushels of oats and 17,000,000 bushels of barley means a continuation of good times for the farmers of Western Canada.

Free farms, big crops, low taxes, healthy climate, good churches and schools, splendid railway service.

The Canadian Government offers 160 acres of land free to every settler willing and able to comply with the Homestead Regulations.

Advice and information may be obtained free from W. D. Scott Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada; or from authorized Canadian Government Agents—Chas. Pilling, Clifford Blk., Grand Forks, N. Dak.; J. M. Machlan, Box 116, Watertown, S. Dakota; E. T. Holmes, 315 Jackson Street, St. Paul, Minn.

VIRGINIA FARMS 5 to 5,000 acres at $4 acre up. Catalog free; large map 10c stamps. Southern Timber & Land Co., Inc., Petersburg, Va.

Cheap Rates to California and Mexico

Daily until October 31st. Colonists' tickets will be on sale to California and Mexico points at exceptionally low rates:

From \ To	San Francisco Los Angeles	Mexico City Gaudalajara
Chicago	$33	$32
St. Louis	$30	$27
Kansas City	$25	$24
Omaha	$25	$24

Through tourist sleepers from St. Louis and Kansas City on Tuesday of each week. You step into the cars at St. Louis or Kansas City and do not leave them until you reach San Francisco. Ask your nearest railroad agent for rates or address

W. S. ST. GEORGE
General Passenger Agent
580 Wainwright Building St. Louis, Mo.

W. P. LINDSAY, 378 Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

THE MKT

"To Mexico & California"

YOU CANNOT

CURE

all inflamed, ulcerated and catarrhal conditions of the mucous membrane such as nasal catarrh, uterine catarrh caused by feminine ills, sore throat, sore mouth or inflamed eyes by simply dosing the stomach.

But you surely can cure these stubborn affections by local treatment with

Paxtine Toilet Antiseptic

which destroys the disease germs, checks discharges, stops pain, and heals the inflammation and soreness.

Paxtine represents the most successful local treatment for feminine ills ever produced. Thousands of women testify to this fact. 50 cents at druggists.

Send for Free Trial Box
THE R. PAXTON CO., Boston, Mass.

WINTER Wheat, 60 bushels per acre. Catalogue and samples FREE. Salzer Seed Co. Box W. K. LaCrosse, Wis.

DASHING WOMEN OPERATE LOVE SYNDICATE IN NEW YORK

WINSOME "WIDOW'S" SPIDER WEB CAUGHT ONE HUNDRED RICH DUPES WHO WALKED INTO IT WILLINGLY.

One of the Victims Told His Story to the District Attorney and the Syndicate Came to an Untimely End—Secured $100,000 While It Worked.

New York.—If Robert Emmet Keene, actor, wit and adviser in the court of love operated by Mrs. Izella Brown and Mrs. George T. Verrault, had not used bad judgment and let James V. MacClellan, the obscure Philadelphia grocer, into the West Seventy-third street mansion, all the fuss about the love syndicate might have been avoided. It was Keene who used to determine which of the eager applicants for love honor should come in. When he passed favorably upon MacClellan he let in the man who, when ruthlessly rejected by the charming Mrs. Verrault, promptly went to the United States district attorney.

The extent to which the love syndicate operated has amazed the district attorney. It is calculated that in the three years during which the combine ensnared its victims more than $100,000 was taken from them. A census of the dupes shows that they range from prosperous store owners to millionaire Wall street financiers. Probably one hundred of them walked into the spider web.

Four women figured in the active work of the love trust. Mrs. Brown, shrewd and fascinating, was the schemer who kept the syndicate afloat. Mrs. Verrault was the official letter writer. It was she who sent the captivating love missives that won the hearts of the susceptible dupes. She attended to the correspondence of both herself and Mrs. Brown.

Daughter and Niece as Side Attractions.

The golden-haired daughter of Mrs. Brown was a conspicuous member of the combination. She did not make love to any of the men nor receive their attentions, but it was handy to have her around as milady's maid. The same interesting role was assumed by Mrs. Brown's beautiful niece, Miss Mary Mason. To the credit of Mrs. Brown, it may be said that she watched these two damsels with the eye of a hawk and never permitted the slightest indiscretion so far as they were concerned. The two girls when not engaged in the palace of love had the time of their lives in going about the country with Mrs. Brown.

The niece is the daughter of a struggling Boston storekeeper. He always held a high regard for his sister, and feeling that she could provide his daughter with better advantages than he was able to afford sent her to New York. Mrs. Brown's scheme to marry the girl to a New Yorker of wealth was given a rude shock when the girl eloped with a man she really loved. She met her husband while attending a regimental ball to which Mrs. Brown had taken her.

Gregory Allen, who was one of the butlers in the Brown-Verrault household, knew this young man and introduced him to the blue-eyed beauty. It was love at first sight. Three months from the day of the meeting Miss Mason broke away from the influence of the love combine. Gregory Allen had been very much smitten with Miss Mason himself. When she jilted him he got bravely over it and fell in love with Mrs. Brown's daughter Lillian. It is said they are engaged to be married.

Dashing Leading Spirit of the Love Trust.

Mrs. Brown, the guiding spirit of the love enterprise, is forty-two years old and has had a kaleidoscopic career. Her deep hazel eyes have a bewitching and dangerous softness. She has a subtle grace and dignity. Her hair is of the blazing peroxide variety. Tall and with a strikingly symmetrical figure, she is a woman who would immediately attract attention. There is a shrewd cast in her countenance, but it is tempered by the melting languor of her eyes.

It is easy to see from an observation of Mrs. Brown how she was able to hold men in her clutches. She is a woman of keen wit, a brisk conversationalist and one quick to take advantage of every slight opportunity. With her suitors she has been by turns affectionate, adoring, gracious and stern. She has a heart of steel, but her admirers never suspected it until they were violently jilted.

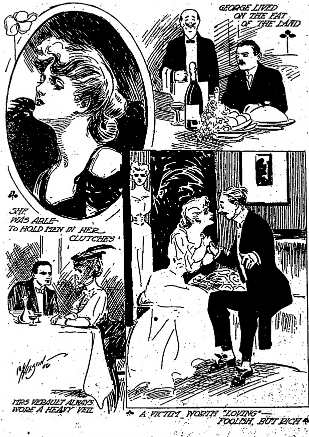
Mrs. Verrault is a woman of a softer type. Her deep dark eyes, rosy complexion and beautifully moulded face give her an atmosphere of dazzling charm. She is scarcely past thirty, yet she has broken hearts galore. Her chestnut-brown tresses contribute to her bewitching beauty. In manner she is the opposite of Mrs. Brown. She is at once impulsive, sunning and lovable. It is said that Mrs. Verrault actually fell in love with a few of her admirers, but she held herself in check because to love was not one of the principles of the extraordinary matrimonial syndicate. All her witcheries and graceful tricks of manner and speech were put forth to lead her victims on to their doom.

Youths Helped Along the Game of Cupid.

The youths who helped along the tricks of the love trust were scarcely out of their teens. Robert Emmet Keene, who for some time played small parts in Proctor's stock company, was the oldest of the croup. He was quick to see the opportunity offered by the matrimonial enterprise when first he was introduced into the household. Promptly giving up his stage career, he entered into the affairs of the syndicate with all the fervor of his ardent spirit.

In his position as butler many a generous tip came Keene's way. The enraptured suitors of Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Verrault regarded him as the court jester. Gregory Allen, who was an amateur sculptor, became associated with the matrimonial tricksters through his acquaintance with George T. Verrault, husband of the pretty brunette. He donned a uniform and helped Keene in his job as butler. Mrs. Brown's four brothers helped in many ways to keep the syndicate going.

George Mason was one of the promoters of the famous Kentucky Fuel and Alcohol company, which was one of the side issues of the syndicate. He made his father-in-law, William D. Angell, of Chicago, vice president of the concern without asking the old gentleman's consent. When the skyrocket company exploded, leaving a large number of financiers holding bogus stock, Angell felt like troucing his son-in-law, but never could find him.



GEORGE LIVED ON THE FAT OF THE LAND
SHE WAS ABLE TO HOLD MEN IN HER CLUTCHES
MRS VERAULT ALWAYS WORE A HEAVY VEIL
A VICTIM WORTH "LOVING"—FOOLISH, BUT RICH

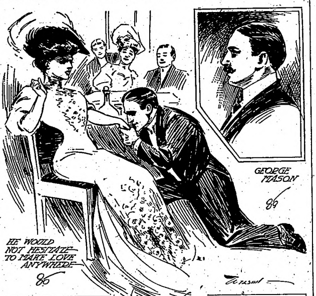
This chimerical concern procured its victims by advertising in newspapers and also through the means of the spiritualistic seances that were a part of the matrimonial plans.

Matrimonial Mansion Was Elaborately Fitted Out.

The matrimonial mansion was fitted out in a way calculated to inspire the dupes. Each room has a name according to the kind of paper on the wall. The parlor was the green room, because it had green paper with little splashes of pink. The library was furnished in red. All the books were of red. The library cost Mrs. Brown $15,000.

Mrs. Brown had a red room on the third floor which harmonized with her blond hair. Mrs. Verrault's boudoir was of a delicate pink.

Mrs. Verrault and Mrs. Brown were always very careful about receiving their guests. Each of the women would have three men a week calling upon them. If Mrs. Brown had a suiter who seemed to be particularly recalcitrant about buying extravagant presents, Mrs. Verrault, who was always able to corral the most obstreperous caller, would be called in to use her persuasive influence.



HE WOULD NOT HESITATE TO MAKE LOVE ANYWHERE
GEORGE MASON

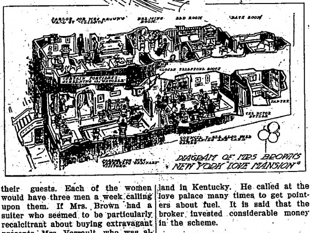


DIAGRAM OF MRS BROWN'S NEW YORK "LOVE MANSION"

Mrs. Verrault used to go out oftener than Mrs. Brown with the infatuated lovers. She would always wear a heavy veil and would tell her spellbound admirer that she did it to keep her wicked brothers from seeing her. These relatives, she said, were always trying to make trouble for her. They were scheming to get part of the estate left her by the rich husband she said had died. Often when out with one suitor, dining at a fashionable cafe she would be startled to find another sweetheart sitting idly at a nearby table. She would then hurry the dinner through on pretense of feeling faint and would hasten home with her escort.

Ingenuity Exercised in Receiving the Infatuated.

Both "widows" had to exercise some ingenuity in receiving the society women whom they had on their string. These members of the "400" they met through the medium of advertisements, and used them as a means of getting unlimited credit for expensive dresses. They had to arrange it so that these fashionables would call in the afternoon, for at night the parlors were given up to the explicit use of the love victims.

There were many exciting scenes at the front doors of the establishment run by the syndicate on West Seventy-third street and later at No. 323 West Eighty-second street. Disappointed lovers who had handed over to the syndicate much of their money used to storm on the front stoop and threaten to dynamite the mansion if their lady love would not see them. Roebrt Emmet Keene was quite diplomatic in handling these excited individuals and managed to save the house of love from an explosion.

The parlor in which the lovelorn admirers were received had a massive mantel adorned with gold ornaments. Upon it would be placed photographs of the callers, particular care being taken that the right picture was in the right place for the occasion. Count Zolinoff, the Fifth avenue delicatassen dealer, had his photograph taken in 57 different styles and would insist that Mrs. Verrault, whom he was courting, should have them all in plain evidence around the room.

"Don't you think I take a good picture?" he would ask.

"You're the sweetest thing in the world," Mrs. Verrault would reply. Then she would get the promise of another expensive present.

The old man who caused Mrs. Verrault the most annoyance by the persistency of his infatuation was Kiesler. He would not hesitate to make love anywhere. He showered kisses as well as presents upon Mrs. Verrault. When dining out he could not restrain himself in falling upon his knees at her feet and kising her hand. He would write the most gushing love letters of all the group of infatuated dupes.

"I find myself speaking your name when I awake," he would write, and then go into raptures over her beauty.

The burning love missives were a source of much merriment at the daily cabinet sessions of the love troupe. Actor Keene would read them with the greatest gusto and accentuate the most tender passages. Keen said the letters could be made into a thrilling love drama, and he had a good mind to do it himself.

The Wall street broker, F. J. Syme, whose name was used in connection with the fuel scheme, was an unwilling victim, it is said, of the syndicate. He fell in with the fuel idea, believing that the company had acres of fertile land in Kentucky. He called at the love palace many times to get pointers about fuel. It is said that the broker invested considerable money in the scheme.

Mrs. Verrault Had a Real Love Affair.

Among the real love affairs that Mrs. Verrault was interested in was one with a Boston lawyer. She was greatly attached to him. One day after he had failed to call around and see her at her Boston home she went to his office and created a scene. The lawyer ordered her out. The next day Mrs. Verrault was taken to a hospital. Her nerves were all unstrung and it was alleged she had taken bichloride of mercury in an effort to end her life.

McClellan, the Philadelphian, has been quite upset because of the fuss he has caused in having his erstwhile sweetheart arrested. The next day after Mrs. Verrault appeared in court MacClellan came to town and telephoned to the West Eighty-second street mansion. He got Mrs. Brown on the 'phone and told her he was sorry he had caused all the trouble. If Mrs. Verault would return the presents he had lavished upon her he would withdraw the charge.

"Go on, you fool!" was the snappy reply. "Mrs. Verault doesn't care what you do."

MacClellan, the picture of despair, hung about the house seeking a chance to speak to his lady love, but when Mrs. Verrault emerged from the mansion she swept by him as though he didn't exist.

The Philadelphia Lover Kicked Over the Traces

The wail of all the overthrown suitors has been that they lost so much money. It is this very thing that has given Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Verrault such keen delight. In one of her merry moods Mrs. Verault said:

"What a fine spectacle this is, all these men having me arrested because I was too sharp for them! They are fortune-hunters, and of a very low type. They are like the foreign noblemen who come over here to win rich American girls, but they go it on a cheap scale. They think the American women soft, and all they have to do is to look wall-eyed at them and they will break their necks to hand them money. They only called because they wanted to get homes where they wouldn't have to work. I really think that I have done a service to American women in showing these brutes up."

It Is.

"Gee! I had rotten luck to-day!"

"John, don't you think 'rotten' is a-er-rather rotten word for a father of a family to use?"—Houston Post.

IT MADE A DIFFERENCE WITH BEMIRED MIKE.

Two Irish telephone linesmen were returning from a day's pole-setting, and in crossing a bog one of them fell into a mudhole.

His mate ran to a near-by farmhouse and asked for a spade.

"What do you want it for?" asked the farmer.

"Shure, Mike is stuck in the bog, and I want to dig him out."

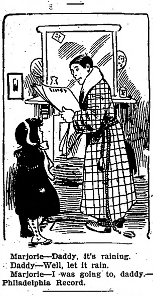
"How far in is he sunk?"

"Oh, up to his ankles."

"Begorra, then he can asily walk out," replied the farmer.

"Begorra, but he can't," retorted Pat; "he's in the wrong end up."—London Electric Magazine.

FAR BE IT FROM HER.



Marjorie—Daddy, it's raining.

Daddy—Well, let it rain.

Marjorie—I was going to, daddy.—Philadelphia Record.

Anecdote of Julius Caesar.

Once more the senate pressed about Caesar, offering him the crown, and once more he thrust it away.

A voice—'All hail!" Everybody hailed, violently.

A voice—"Now, Julius, if we hail, you ought to be willing to reign."

This was some 44 years B. C., or about 713 from the foundation of the city, yet the joke was deemed too ancient, even then, to be spread upon the official minutes.—Puck.

A Subtle Hint.

Mr. Whiffletree (with weekly paper)—Wall, by gum! A Pennsylvania farmer found six thousand dollars thet his wife had placed under the carpet before she died.

Mrs. Whiffletree—Well, I can't blame her fer bein' bound he wouldn't git it till he undertook tew beat the carpet.—Puck.

Unbusiness-Like.

Isaacs (recovering from operation)—Yes, he vas a gread surgeon all righdt; but it seems to me he takes desberate chances.

Cohen—In vat way?

Isaacs—Vhy, he vent righdt to vork on me vidout efen taking time to look up my standing in Pradstreet's!—Puck.

Early Explorations.

"Johnny, you have been very quiet for the last half hour," observed Mrs. Towne, who had been busy welcoming her brother just arrived on a visit. "What have you been doing, dear?"

"Me?" said Johnny, "why I've been going through Uncle Charlie's dress suit case."—Detroit Free Press.

He Was a Believer.

"Do you believe in hypnotism?" asked the fluffy-haired boarder who writes type between meals.

"Sure I do," answered the old bachelor at the foot of the mahogany. "Otherwise I couldn't explain to my own satisfaction why men get married."—Chicago News.

At Glenville.

"That trainer is a wonder. He can break a horse by driving him once around the track."

"That's nothing. Many a horse has broken me the same way!"—Cleveland Leader.

A Double Meaning.

"Here, here!" cried the policeman, grabbing the thief, "why are you chasing that man?"

"Oh," replied the burglar, facetiously, "I was just giving him a run for his money."—Detroit Free Press.

Thought Seriously.

"I thought you were thinking seriously about getting married."

"I was."

"Then why didn't you?"

"That's why."—Cleveland Leader.

Why Not?

Munn—I discovered a curious thing about one of my hens the other day. She eats tacks.

Chausen—And lays carpets?—Judge.

First and Last.

"Does your wife insist on having the last word?"

"Not particularly; she insists on having all of them."—Houston Post.

The Expert.

"Is Speedman a good chauffeur?"

"Good? Say! he caught a man yesterday that every motorist in the city has had a try at and missed."—Judge.

His Position.

Stella—Did he get on his knees when he proposed?

Bella—No, he stood pat.—N. Y. Sun.

WERE SURE TO QUARREL AND BE HAPPY.

Good Minister (a married man)—Do you wish to marry this woman?

Man—I do.

Minister—Do you wish to marry this man?

Woman—I do.

Minister—Do you like the city as a place of residence?

Man—No, I prefer the suburbs.

Minister—Do you like the suburbs?

Woman—No, indeed; I prefer the city.

Minister—Are you a vegetarian in diet?

Man—No; I hate vegetables. I live on beef.

Woman—I can't bear meat. I am a vegetarian.

Minister—Do you like a sleeping-room well ventilated?

Man—Yes, I want the window down summer and winter.

Minister—Do you like much fresh air?

Woman—No; it would kill me. I want all windows closed.

Minister—Do you like a light in the room?

Man—No; can't sleep with a light; want the room dark.

Minister—Are you afraid in the dark.

Woman—Indeed, I am. I have always had a bright light in my room.

Minister—Do you like many bedclothes?

Man—All I can pile on.

Minister—Do you?

Woman—No; they suffocate me.

Minister—I hereby pronounce you man and wife, and may every blessing and happiness in life be yours!—Tit-Bits.

Modern Journalism.

City Editor—Did you secure a detailed report of that prize fight for Monday's paper?

Reporter—First-class; chuck-full of horrible brutalities.

City Editor—Good! Tell the foreman to put it in the middle of the page, and then I wish you'd start out among the churches and get two or three good sermons to pack around it. We've got to keep our paper respectable, somehow."—N. Y. Weekly.

Safe From Cupid's Darts.

Visitor—at studio—I do not see how an artist could paint such beautiful woman without falling in love with her.

Great Artist—I assure you, madame, that while painting that picture I never once thought of love.

"Is it possible?"

"Yes. You see, the model was my wife."—N. Y. Weekly.

Wise Girl.

Edna—Did your father see your love letter from George?

Eva—Yes. He found it in the hallway. But I told him it was a letter on astronomy.

Edna—Astronomy? How could you tell such a fib?

Eva—That wasn't a fib, dear. You see, George put a lot of stars at the bottom for kisses.—Chicago News.

Progressing.

Tom—How are you getting on with Miss Slippery?

Dick—Great!

Tom—See much of her?

Dick—No, but I've got her mother and her father and her little brother down pat, and now I'm cultivating the dog. After that, getting her consent ought to be a cinch!—Detroit Free Press,

---

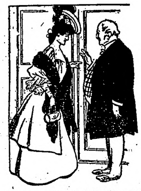
Table Talk.

"What is the difference between a portrait painter and a dull scholar?" asked the thin boarder.

"Have to give it up," replied the fat boarder, trying to fish a safety-pin out of the stew.

"One makes a study of faces, while the other makes faces at study." And then the table groaned.—Yonkers Statesman.

NOT IN TOUCHABLE MOOD.



"Do you know, I feel like asking you for a pound or two to go shopping with?"

"Do you? Well, just come round again in an hour or so when the feeling has worn off."

The Brute.

"I early became wedded to Art," boasted the prima donna who had just done a sample warble for the hard-hearted manager.

"Yes? And how long, pray, have you been a widow?"—Judge.

But Would He?

"If you were a girl which would you rather have—beauty or brains?"

"Money."—Houston Post.

A Newcomer.

"What makes you think he hasn't lived here long?"

"He says his credit is good."—Houston Post.

Historical Society

MINNESOTA
HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

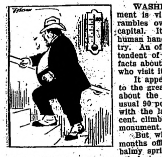
THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. VI. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, SEPT. 21, 1906. NO. 25.

From Nation's Capital

Figures Regarding Visitors to the Washington Monument—War Department Clerk Saves Nearly All His Salary—Insanity on the Increase.



WASHINGTON.—The Washington monument is visited by almost every sightseer who rambles over the beauty spots of the national capital. It is the highest place, erected by human hands, to be visited anywhere in the country. An official report just made by the superintendent of the monument tells some interesting facts about the tall pile of stone and the persons who visit it.

It appears that the whole number who went to the great monument during the last year was about the average for the last 17 years. The usual 90 per cent. of the visitors were inoculated with the lazy bug, while the remaining ten per cent. climbed the long stairway to the top of the monument. So far so good.

But when it comes to the classification by months officials balk at the figures. For in the balmy spring month of April, which had more visitors than any other month last year, fewer persons availed themselves of the stairway than in the hot, sultry, sticky month of August, when 3,514 persons out of a possible 12,330 climbed the endless stairs with the Affleck thermometer soaring around the 100 mark.

Official Washington ponders over this fact. Several state officials have stated in good set terms that more information is wanted in the next report. It is understood from high authority that the superintendent of public buildings and grounds will be asked to compile statistics the coming year on the avoirdupois of these persons who sightsee the top of the monument, with a view to explaining why, in the hottest month of the year, when Old Sol was sending his burnished shafts straight down into the Washington asphalt and concrete, that a 55 foot stairway looked better to humanity than an easy running electric elevator.

LIVES ON TWELVE CENTS A DAY.

Augustus Riley, a clerk in the war department, 74 years old, declares that he spends less than 12 cents a day for his living.

"My average expense every day for five years past has been less than 12 cents," said Mr. Riley, "and I have had plenty to eat. The system requires only so much. I sleep like a baby and at leisure I go for a several miles' stroll through the parks.

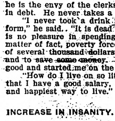
"I never get hungry; most people feel that way when their imagination runs away with them. I live on $4.11 a month and I have an itemized statement to prove it. My favorite dishes are apples, eggs and rice. I avoid meats and indigestible foods. They tear the vital organs up and put them out of use."

Riley saves 95 per cent. of his salary. He is a man of strong personality and is an excellent specimen of manhood. He is not a miser and he declares he abhors the life of a recluse. He says he lives well and he is the envy of the clerks who squander all their earnings and are heavily in debt. He never takes a drink and abhors coffee.

"I never took a drink in my life and I have never used tobacco in any form," he said. "It is dead easy to live a life of economy and thrift and there is no pleasure in spending all one's earnings in extravagant living. As a matter of fact, poverty forced a quiet life upon me. After being swindled out of several thousand dollars in my early life I decided to retrieve my losses and to save some money. Poverty brings good results at times. It did me good and started me on the right road.

"How do I live on so little? Why, that's simple. My restricted diet, now that I have a good salary, is simply a matter of choice. It is the healthiest and happiest way to live."

INCREASE IN INSANITY.



Statistics gathered by the census bureau tend to show that insanity is increasing in this country at a tremendous rate, but there may be explanations. The statistics just made public have, at first glance, an alarming aspect, which seems to indicate that insanity in this country has increased rapidly in the last quarter of a century. Whether this is so remains subject to further corroboration, for what the figures really show are the number of insane restrained of their liberty and cared for either by the state or by their own relatives in established institutions. Increase in the number of inmates at these places may therefore be interpreted from one point of view as proof that such unfortunates are now being given more humane attention than heretofore. The population of the country has increased by leaps and bounds until it has passed the 80,000,000 mark. As the number of capable and intelligent citizens has increased tremendously, it is by no means a startling fact that the number of incompetents is also greater.

There are some people who have made a study of their fellow beings who take the broad, general ground that everybody is to some extent, or on some particular subject, insane. This is, of course, a very broad application of the term, and does not meet the demands of the situation with sufficient definiteness to be final or all conclusive. Fortunately, census statistics do not bother themselves with individual peculiarities of a mild type, or their records would be impaired even more than they are at present by the great delay in their compilation.

The statistics which the census bureau is now giving to the country in this particular instance cover observations only to the last day of December, 1903. After a lapse of two years and seven months, it must be said, with all due deference to the hard-working experts engaged upon the task, that their compilations are more nearly historical than contemporaneous. Nevertheless, as these statistics are the newest production in their line, they are of much interest, notwithstanding their age. Thirteen years have elapsed since the preceding census of the insane was taken, and in that time the number of hospitals for their care has increased from 162 to 328, and the increase in inmates in the same time from 74,028 to 150,151. In 1880 the number of unfortunates under restraint in hospitals was only 40,942, showing that, on a basis of each 100,000 of population there has been an increase from 81.6 in 1880 to 118.2 in 1890, and 186.2 at the end of 1903.

THRIFTY ITALIAN EMIGRANTS.

All Italian immigrants, whether they come to the United States or go elsewhere, are expected not only to send their savings home but also to return to their native land, either when they have accumulated a comfortable bank account or at the end of each season. Official advices received at the state department, based upon information furnished by the Italian government, show that of the 726,331 emigrants who were given passports to leave the country during the year ending April 30, 1906, 316,797 came to the United States, an increase of 148,008 over the previous year.

Not only do the Italian laborers who go to England and other parts of Europe return home at the close of the season when outdoor work can be done but many Italians who come to the United States or go to South America also follow the same practice. The importance to Italy of this emigration can be appreciated by the statement that the laborers send home annually through the Bank of Naples alone more than $7,500,000. Last year Italian emigrants in the United States remitted $4,257,680, or 57 per cent. of the amount received from emigrants at that bank.

The government estimates that the total amount received from all emigrants amounts to $29.30 per capita.

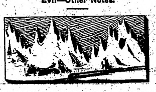
The proposed immigration law under consideration at the last session of congress caused the establishment of night schools throughout Italy to qualify the people to meet its requirements. The state department is informed that these schools have been discontinued because the authorities consider as past all danger the passage of a law requiring immigrants entering the United States to be able to read and write.

CONSULAR REPORTS

INTERESTING NEWS FROM MANY FOREIGN LANDS.

CROPS IN COLD ALASKA.

Arctic Climate Does Not Prevent the Growing of Vegetables—China Seeking to Curtail Opium Evil—Other Notes.



Many persons who have traveled recently in Alaska have returned with the impression that this distant northern possession of the United States is valuable only for fish, minerals and woods. Suggestion that agriculture is possible in that land of snow and ice is generally ridiculed. Nevertheless the latest publication of the department of agriculture is on the work of the Alaskan experiment station, prepared by C. C. Georgeson, in charge of the Alaskan work.

The report covers the operations at Sitka, Rampart, Cooper Center, Kenai and Fairbanks, and shows a remarkable amount of ingenuity in selecting and coaxing along the crops best suited to the short, uncertain summer of the far north. The work has met with many discouragements and setbacks. But on the whole it has been satisfactory enough and a good many of the mistakes made were the sort that were to be expected in dealing with an almost unknown problem. They can be rectified in the future and the writer makes the prediction that a large percentage of the $2,500,000 worth of produce imported in 1905 could be raised in the country.

Returns have not been available from all of the land offices, but it seems that ten offices report 280 homesteads taken up, and while a number of these probably were taken largely for the timber on them there has been enough done in the farming line to show that Alaska will produce many things besides minerals and will be able largely to feed herself. The total farm imports into Alaska last year were $3,340,899. Of this amount many things were like tobacco, rice, sugar and nuts, which essentially belong to the tropics. But of the products of the temperate zone there were $1,527,522 worth of animal products and $1,577,628 worth of vegetable products, and of these the larger portion can and eventually will be produced in the territory.

COMBATING OPIUM IN CHINA.

China has just revised and consolidated her native opium taxation. It amounts to 115 Peking taels per picul (about 66 cents per pound) on crude opium and double that amount on the prepared article, the grower's tax being abolished.

According to reports from Peking the government is anxious to curtail the use of opium, but is dependent for revenue to the extent of over $4,000,000 a year on the duties paid on imported opium. She cannot, in the present state of her national finances, witness without concern the disappearance of such an important branch of revenue. The imports of opium amount to 3,000 tons, while the native article is produced to the extent of 30,000 tons. Moreover, there is a great development in the use of morphia. The Japanese ship to China large quantities of cheap hypodermic syringes.

CHEAPER LIQUID AIR.

Reduced cost of liquid-air production is indicated by an article in the London Times. Recent experiments in England of an invention by Mr. Knudsen, a Dane, furnished liquid air at one-sixth of the present market price, and give promise of an ultimate low price of a fraction over two cents per gallon. The result is secured by purely mechanical means, without an atom of added chemicals. Atmospheric air is first purified and then compressed by stages to 2,500 pounds to the square inch. It is finally reduced to 125 pounds to the square inch, which then cools and liquefies the high-pressure air.

The oxygen gas produced by separating the nitrogen from the liquid air is claimed to be purer than by the old method, and can be supplied in the liquid as well as the gaseous form. One gallon of liquid air equals approximately 128 cubic feet of oxygen gas, which retails at six cents per cubic foot. The new price is one cent. Liquid air has been successfully used in coal mines as an explosive, being quite safe where fire damp and other explosive gases exist. Liquid oxygen is also used for welding steel pipes, boiler shells, and plates for shipbuilding instead of riveting.

That oxygen and nitrogen can be separated from liquid air and sold retail at $1.20 per gallon shows great comercial possibilities. The use of nitrogen for agricultural purposes opens yet another field. The maturing of liquors will be helped by liquid air, as also the preservation and purification of milk. As a motive power its use is considered to be quite practicable for small powers. The British government is already carrying out a number of experiments with a view to the utilization of liquid air for various purposes.

GOLD DREDGING IN KLONDIKE.

According to Consul Ravndal, the rich, early discovered creeks in the Klondike have by crude and wasteful methods been worked over. They now are being subjected to more scientific treatment under the new system.

It has proved eminently successful in the Klondike in spite of such drawbacks as difficulties of transportation, high cost of installation and operation, frozen gravel and short seasons.

Gold dredging in the north has passed the experimental stage and become an established and promising industry. Extensive areas of low-grade ground which have been lying idle, because under the former manner of mining the cost of extraction would equal, if not exceed, the returns, are being made productive through the use of dredges handling 3,000 or more cubic yards of dirt every 24 hours.

Aside from the Klondike output this year, it is said that Alaska will probably furnish some $20,000,000 of gold as against $14,500,000 for 1905, $9,000,000 for 1904 and $6,350,000 for 1903. It is pointed out that seasons of exceptional prosperity have followed each of the great gold finds of recent times—those of Australia, of California, of South Africa and of the Klondike.

So far most of the capital invested in dredging operations in the Klondike is owned by citizens of the United States and most of the gold cleaned up is sold in Seattle.

FINE DOCK FOR ENGLAND.

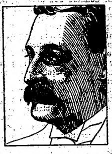
Consul W. C. Hamm, of Hull, says that the new dock at Grimsby, which has just been begun, will be the finest on the east coast of England, equipped with all modern improvements and capable of accommodating the largest vessels now afloat.

The new dock, when finished about five years hence, will be 1,100 feet square, with a bay or arm, 1,250 feet long by 375 feet wide, at the southwest corner. The main dock and arm will have an area of 38½ acres of water. Provision is made for future developments of three other bays, or arms, at the corners, bringing the total dock area to 71 acres of deep water. There will be 6,760 feet of quay space in the main dock, which will be brought up to 14,110 feet, when the four bays are completed. In all, 616 acres have been acquired for the dock, of which 79 acres will be water space, and the remaining 537 acres for land about the dock when completed. There will be a railway 4½ miles long, constructed from Immingham to the existing company's line at the Ulceby junction, and additional railway accommodation is to be provided by a light railway which will run from Grimsby to the dock site, which is already practically finished.

The depth of water in the dock will be 35½ feet below high water at spring tides and 32 feet below high water at ordinary neap tides. The entrance lock, which is to be funnel shaped, will be 850 feet long and 90 feet wide, with 47½ feet of water at high tides, 44 feet of water on the sill at neap tides, and 28 feet at low tides. Vessels of deep draft will thus be able to enter or leave at any state of the tide, as the deep-water channel of the Humber passes close to the entrance, and it will only be necessary to dredge for about 300 yards across the foreshore to gain access to it.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

ADOLPH SEGAL, PROMOTER



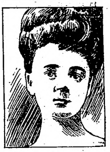
From soapmaker, working with his own hands over a hot caldron in a little basement, to multi-millionaire—this is the story Adolph Segal has written into the financial history of Philadelphia within 20 years. In the writing he has made chapters which cost the sugar trust a round million of dollars, that seasoned financier, J. Edward Addicks, a pretty penny, and finally sent to ruin one of the greatest financial institutions of the City of Brotherly Love, hurrying its president to the grave of a suicide.

Out of the failure of the wrecked Real Estate Trust company comes the tale of the almost marvelous methods of an Austrian immigrant, who, landing in this country possessed of $300 at the age of 26, claims $12,000,000 in his forty-sixth year, all acquired without the aid of capital other than a pleasant voice, a clear eye and a gracious personality.

Born in Austria, Adolph Segal spent his younger days in Paris, but of this period little is known by those who claim to be his closest friends, and he has writen no autobiography. It is said that he traveled in Europe and the far east and that he first came to California when he turned his face to the land of easy-money and get-rich-quick methods. In Philadelphia, 21 years ago, he boiled soap at the west end of the city. A year later he interested a soap-making concern to start him in business in a small way with labor-saving machinery, and while conducting this business he and an inventor perfected a wax paper of unusual quality. The patent was sold to the New York Paper company, Segal's share being $20,000. This was his first substantial start.

To enumerate the holdings of Adolph Segal would require columns. He is interested in railroads, steamboats, sugar refineries, match factories, soap factories, paper mills, lead plants, mines, construction companies and hotel and theater properties. In height he is about five feet ten inches, has a pleasing manner, a low voice; is, in manner, the personification of frankness and sincerity, and gives one the impression of being a musician. His wife is interested in literature, has the press club habit and is writing a novel. Segal denies that he is a financier of the frenzied order, and in describing his operations says: "The only difference between myself and Russel Sage is that Sage speculated in stock and I speculate in bricks and mortar. I have never yet touched the speculation ribbon of the brokerage game."

ACTRESS TO WED NOBLEMAN



From a household drudge to the footlight favorite and from there the fiancee of Hon. Henry Lyndhurst Bruce, eldest son of Lord Aberdare and lieutenant in a Hampshire regiment, has been the triumphant career of Camille Clifford, known in private life as Camille Otterson.

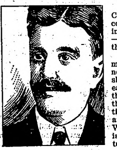
Miss Clifford's rise has been as steady as it has been spectacular. She was born in Sweden, and six years ago came to Boston and obtained employment as a domestic in the home of Mrs. John M. Schilling in Pontiac street. In 1901 Miss Ottersen became a seamstress in a Boylston street shop, and subsequently was taken as a "super" at the Park theater, later becoming a chorus girl.

Henry W. Savage discovered her theatrical possibilities, and engaged her for "The Prince of Pilsen" company, in which she figured as the typical New York girl. Two years ago she went with the troupe to London and created a sensation. Later she achieved success in "The Catch of the Season," and this year won additional popular favor in "The Belle of Mayfair." Miss Clifford is 21 years old.

Hon. Mr. Bruce was born in 1881. He says he is going into the motor car business. The Aberdare baronage dates only from 1873, the first holder of the title having been T. A. Bruce, lord president of the council in the first Gladstone cabinet.

The engagement has been announced by Bruce himself, and it is understood the wedding will be celebrated before the new year dawns. On two previous occasions it has been announced that the actress and the earl would wed, but until now both have made strenuous denials.

TO SUPPRESS SWEATSHOPS

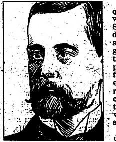


Chief Sanitary Inspector Perry L. Hedrick, of Chicago, says that the sweatship—in that city consisting of one or more tenement rooms, used indiscriminately for living and working purposes—is to be obliterated as an economic factor in that city.

Like some noxious weed that has only its most offensive sprouts nipped off while new nourishment has been given its roots, the sweatshop evil has grown larger and stronger with each succeeding year. Inspector Hedrick says that there are now between 2,000 and 3,000 of these pest spots in Chicago. With so few exceptions that they do not affect the total, all of them are located in the crowded ghetto district of the West side, where the poorest of Italian and Jewish families are crowded into the ramshackle two to four-story tenements.

After this season, if Mr. Hedrick procures the legislation which he has outlined from the general assembly and city council when they convene, these poverty-stricken persons will no longer be the only individuals within reach of the law and solely punishable for the sweatshops. The "tailors to the trade," whose little shops are centers of the webs that enmesh these poor homes, will also be criminally responsible for the conditions of the homes to which they send goods to be finished. The "tailors to the trade" do the machine work on the garments, and the finishing—stitching of certain seams, sewing on of buttons and buckles—is done in the sweatshops.

HEADS CHILI RELIEF WORK



Don Jerman Riesco, president of the earthquake-stricken republic of Chili, is directing the work of relief from the government offices in Santiago, his own residence being among those damaged by the shock. Although the terror, destruction and misery in his capital city are very great, he realized as soon as reports reached him that Valparaiso was in a much more serious plight. He at once dispatched as much of the fire department as could be spared to the southern city. He sent out a squadron of cavalry to repair the telegraph lines and restore communication with Valparaiso. He ordered mounted troops hastened south to restore order. He sent warships with food, clothing and supplies to the sufferers.

Don Jerman Riesco, who was elected president of Chili in 1901, is what is called in that country "a moderate Liberal." It is difficult to explain what the term means unless one is a resident of Chili and has knowledge of party politics in Latin America. Senor Riesco at the polls was supported by a majority of the Radicals and Liberals and by a part of the Conservative party. He is a relative of the former president, Senor Errazuriz, and was opposed in his candidacy by Don Pedro Montt, who had the support of the Clericals. To a large extent the church and its attitude makes and unmakes political parties in the Latin-American states. The general disposition of the priesthood to interfere with state affairs has given the party of President Riesco considerable prestige among those opposed to the union of church and state.

TAFT AND BACON EN ROUTE TO CUBA

PRESIDENT SENDS EMISSARIES TO ASCERTAIN CONDITION OF ISLAND AFFAIRS.

In Letter to Minister Quesada He Makes It Plain That United States Will Not Shirk Any Necessary Duty Imposed Upon It.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 15.—Secretary of War Taft and Acting Secretary of State Bacon will proceed at once to Cuba, acting under orders from President Roosevelt. Their mission is to attempt to restore peace, and to decide whether the United States shall intervene.

Mr. Taft and Mr. Bacon received their instructions after a conference at Sagamore Hill between the president, Mr. Taft, Mr. Bacon, Secretary of the Navy Bonaparte, and Senator Beverdige.

President Roosevelt Friday night addressed an important communication to Cuba.

It is addressed to the Cuban minister to the United States, Senor Quesada. It is an impassioned plea to Cuba to realize her responsibility as a self-governing republic and to restore people in the island.

President's Meaning Is Plain.

Her attention is called in no uncertain language to the responsibility which the United States bears to the island and the certainty that such responsibility will necessarily be exercised should peace not be preserved.

The president says he has certain information that the peace of the island is now menaced and that American property has been destroyed.

Taft Hurries to Washington.

The conference which resulted in the Cuban decision began at Sagamore Hill shortly after three o'clock Friday afternoon and continued until ten o'clock at night. At its conclusion Secretaries Taft, Bonaparte and Bacon left for New York and Washington.

Secretary Taft said as he left Oyster Bay that he had no idea as to the length of his visit to Cuba. He indicated that there would be no haste in the investigation, which would be made there.

Aside from this information no discussion will be divulged by those attending the conference, the statement being made that the letter of the president was intended to cover the whole Cuban situation so far as it was desirable to do so in the public print.

Cuban Congress Upholds Palma.

Havana, Sept. 15.—The extra session of congress called by President Palma completed at one sitting Friday afternoon the business for which it was sumomned, namely, the granting to President Palma of the fullest powers not already constitutionally possesed by the executive for carrying on the war, including the right to appropriate any public funds for war purposes; revoking appropriations voted at the preceding session of congress in order to permit the diversion of the moneys involved to prosecution of the war, and authorizing increases of the rural guards to 10,000 men and the artillery to 2,000 men.

This triples the former force of rural guards and doubles the artillery. These measures, which were combined in one blanket bill, were passed by party votes, the liberals and independents refraining from voting and the liberal nationalists voting with the moderates.

ANTI-JEWISH OUTBREAK LIKELY

Massacre Looked for in Warsaw on Hebrew New Year.

London, Sept. 15.—In a dispatch from Vienna to the Daily Chronicle it is stated that an anti-Jewish outbreak is likely to occur at Warsaw in the next few days. Fugitives, the dispatch says, have called on Herr Daszynski, a member of the Austrian reichsrath, requesting him to inform the European press that a massacre of Jews is preparing for the Jewish New Year, September 20.

Telegraphing to the Tribune from Cracow, under date of September 14, Herr Dasaynski, who is the leader of the Polish socialists in the Austrian reichsrath, says: "I am informed from a trustworthy source in Warsaw that the Russian government is organizing for to-morrow, or one of the following days, a massacre in the Jewish and working class quarters in Warsaw. Battalions of the most brutal soldiers have been drafted into the city from distant provinces, and the city has been planned into sections under military commands, to the total exclusion of all civil authority. The population is in a state of terrible panic."

Victim of Gasoline.

Owasso, Mich., Sept. 15.—Mrs. J. M. Ford, of Corunna, sister of United States District Attorney F. H. Watson, died from the effects of terrible burns received when by mistake she used gasoline to start a fire in the kitchen stove.

Killed by Explosion.

Mount Sterling, Ky., Sept. 15.—The boiler at the Rilley-Waters mill at Mariba, Menifee county, exploded Friday, killing instantly John Hale and Ross Byrd. Three others were burned so they will die. The mill was blown to pieces.

William J. Bryan has accepted an invitation to speak in Memphis the morning of September 25.

PICK HEARST FOR GOVERNOR

NEW YORK INDEPENDENTS SELECT EDITOR FOR CHIEF.

Democratic Offer of Fusion Is Spurned by Delegates, Who Name a Straight Ticket.

New York, Sept. 13.—In a harmonious and enthusiastic final session in Carnegie hall Wednesday night the state convention of the Independence League put into the field a straight ticket of state officers to be voted for at the coming election. The delegates cheered for 33 minutes when Mr. Hearst appeared on the platform to make a brief speech of acceptance. His address aroused much enthusiasm.

The convention drafted a reply to William J. Connors and other Democrats who had written suggesting possible fusion with the Democrats and suggesting that no nominations be made by the independents at this time.

The reply expressed thanks for the interest of the Democrats and sympathy for the rank and "file in their honest endeavor to wrest the Buffalo convention from the control of the bosses," but said the Independence League could not postpone the business it had been assembled to carry out.

The straight ticket was named without equivocation. The committee on resolutions had been entrusted with the task of hearing the claims of various candidates and naming a tentative ticket. Its reoprt was unanimous and so was the approval of the delegation.

The session was called to order at nine o'clock. Mr. Hearst appeared on the stage at ten o'clock and was cheered for more than half an hour. He spoke for ten minutes and the convention adjourned sine die at 10:43.

A tragic incident of the hour before the convention met, known, however, to but few of the delegates, was the sudden death oof Col. Theodore Mills, formerly of Texas, a delegate from the Fourteenth assembly district of New York, who escorted his daughter to her seat in the gallery and died of heart disease upon his return to the floor of the convention.

BODY OF MILLIONAIRE FOUND.

Missing Philadelphia Manufacturer Probably Committed Suicide.

Philadelphia, Sept. 15.—The body of Henry K. Wampole, the wealthy Philadelphia manufacturer of chemicals who had been missing for several days, was found in the East river, at New York. He had undoubtedly committed suicide.

Mr. Wampole's mind became unbalanced through worry over business entanglements. A trusted employe of the firm of Wampole & Co., in Canada, was short a large sum of money, and Mr. Wampole brooded over the matter until he became insane. While in New York last week in a hotel he eluded the vigilance of the trained nurse who was caring for him and drowned himself, the body not being found until Thursday night. Meanwhile the police were scouring the country for traces of him. Mr. Wampole was 57 years old.

MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP BEATEN

Proposition to Build Street Railway Defeated at Seattle.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 13.—Municipal ownership of street railways as represented in a proposal to bond the city of Seattle in the sum of $4,272,000, of which $1,172,000 was to be charged against the general fund of the city and the balance to be an indebtedness against 20 per cent. of the gross receipts of the system when in operation, was defeated at a special election held Wednesday.

Out of a total of approximately 13,000 votes cast, municipal ownership lacked 935 of a majority.

It was proposed to build a great municipal street railway system that would parallel and extend beyond the lines of the Seattle Electric Railway company, owned by Boston capitalists.

CONVICTS THREE OF LAND FRAUD

Oregon Jury Returns Verdict Against Three Prominent Men.

Portland, Ore., Sept. 14.—State Senator Franklin Pierce Mays, ex-Representative Willard L. Jones and George Sorenson stand convicted in the Blue mountain land fraud case.

The sealed verdict returned by the jury at 1:45 o'clock Tuesday morning was read in the federal court when it opened, finding all three defendants guilty of conspiracy to defraud, the government in connection with the creation of the Blue mountain forest reserve.

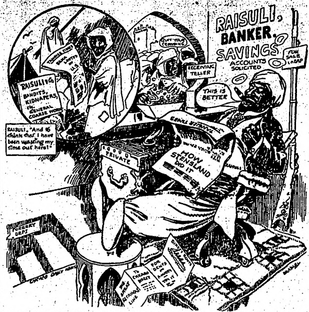
Revolutionist Deported.

El Paso, Tex., Sept. 15.—The Nogales Times says that Abram Jose Salcido, president of the Douglas junta of Mexican revolutionists, has been turned over by United States Immigration Inspector George Webb, at that place, to the Mexican authorities and taken to Hermosillo, capital of Sonora. He was deported, it is said, on the order of the secretary of commerce and labor on the grounds of being an undesirable foreigner.

Fatal Auto Accident.

New York, Sept. 12.—Mrs. Michael Kane and Mrs. James Quinn, crossing a street in Far Rockaway, were struck by an automobile. Mrs. Quinn died soon after being taken to a hospital. Her companion escaped with slight bruises.

THE MOROCCAN BANDIT MAY TAKE A HINT—



And Apply to His Business the Finer Methods of American Civilization.

M'KINLEY UNVEILING MARRED BY CROWD

WOMEN FAINT IN CRUSH OF MOB ANXIOUS TO GAZE ON MRS. LONGWORTH.

Panic Is Averted by Coolness of President's Daughter, Who Pulls Ribbons and Allows the Drape to Drop from Statue.

Columbus, O., Sept. 15.—With a panic threatening in a crowd estimated at 50,000 people, surging about the stand erected in the capitol grounds, frantic to secure a glimpse of Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, the president's daughter, the exercises arranged for the dedication of the McKinley monument were suddenly terminated Friday afternoon after the statue of the martyred president had been hurriedly unveiled by Mrs. Longworth.

The prompt action of the committee on arrangements was regarded as most fortunate, for the crowd was beyond control and the shrieking of women and children who were caught in the crush was rapidly working the crowd into a frenzy.

STATUE OF McKINLEY.
Unveiled by Mrs. Longworth at Columbus, Ohio.

Many women fainted and were carried out of the crowd by the police. Two were so badly hurt that they had to be removed in an ambulance, Mrs. Eliza Louisa Muhn, of 130 South Sixth street, who was trampled, and a colored woman. Both will recover.

Mrs. Longworth Cool.

Throughout the exciting scenes Mrs. Longworth remained cool and self-possessed, but afterward she said:

"It was the worst crush I ever witnessed. I have seen nothing like it in my trip around the world."

The McKinley monument stands at the west entrance to the grounds, facing the street, and the crowd was packed into this space between the speakers' stand and the monument. The exercises were set for 2:30, and began promptly.

Tries to Stop Crush.

The governor's voice could not be heard 20 feet away, however, on account of the din. The commotion then became so alarming that those on the stand asked Mrs. Longworth to come forward in the hope that a glimpse of her might satisfy the crowd. She came to the front of the stand and it was seen at once that something must be done and it was decided to unveil the statue at once.

Mrs. Longworth then pulled the ribbon attached to wires which drew aside the flags covering the statue. A man hoisted on another's shoulder grasped the ribbons and the wire and they were quickly torn into fragments by relic seekers.

ATTEMPT TO HOLD UP TRAIN

CONDUCTOR FOILS MASKED MEN NEAR PEORIA.

Quartette of Bandits Meet with Such Sturdy Resistance They Become Alarmed and Depart.

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 15.—Four masked men attempted to hold up passenger train No. 311 on the Rock Island road one and one-half miles north of Peoria, Friday night at ten o'clock, and but for the presence of mind of Conductor Robert Murray, who disarmed one of the men after being struck on the head, the passengers would have been robbed.

There were about 100 people on the train, which left Chicago at six o'clock.

Sheriff Potter and a force of deputies and Peoria policemen are searching the woods near the scene of the attempted hold-up.

The would-be robbers placed an obstruction of railroad ties on the track, which brought the train to a standstill. They then, at the point of revolvers, commanded the engineer and fireman to remain on the engine. Running back to the front end of the smoker they mounted the platform with drawn revolvers.

Conductor Robert Murray met them at the door. One of the bandits pushed a gun into his face. He struck the weapon up and knocked it from the man's hand. He was struck over one wrist and over the head with a club, but the robbers became alarmed at his unexpected resistance and fled.

The men are described as being about 25 or 30 years of age, all of slight build. All wore masks, but evidently were amateurs at the business.

A posse of deputy sheriffs and officers left the city in automobiles to search the vicinity of the attempted hold-up, but reported no captures.

One traveling man, representing a Peoria brewer, had on his person $3,500, the result of a day's collections, and sat near the front end of the smoker.

PRESIDENT COMMENDS LOSERS

German Yachtsmen Praised by Roosevelt for Being Sportsmen.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 15.—President Roosevelt placed himself on record Friday as an enthusiastic supporter of amateur sports. He also took occasion to weld a new link of friendship between the United States and Germany.

He did this by making the official presentation of the Roosevelt cup to the American Yacht club, the trophy which was won by the yacht Vim, of that club, during the recent international races off Marblehead, Mass., in which several German boats competed unsuccessfully.

The president commended the sportsmanship of the Germans. They had, he said, demonstrated that they could withstand the supreme test of sportsmen—they could lose gracefully. While the president congratulated the winning club most heartily, he said there was a note of regret in his indorsement because the Germans had lost. However, he felt great satisfaction that the yachts which had come across the ocean for the race had been "in the winnings" (referring to the one race won by a German yacht).

MISS ROOSEVELT IN ACCIDENT

President's Daughter, Thrown from Her Buggy, Escapes Injury.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 15.—While driving from Sagamore Hill to Oyster Bay Friday, Miss Ethel Roosevelt, daughter of the president, was thrown out of her buggy, her horse becoming frightened at an automobile.

The accident occurred near the residence of P. L. Fearn, where Miss Ethel stopped for a few moments to regain her composure.

She was not hurt and insisted on having her horse harnessed to another buggy and on driving back to Sagamore Hill.

Commander Elected.

Columbus, O., Sept. 14.—Col. W. H. Knauss, of Columbus, O., was elected commander-in-chief of the National Union Veterans' Legion Thursday.

FIGHT ON SULLIVAN NOT PERSONAL ONE

MR. BRYAN REITERATES OPPOSITION TO REPRESENTATIVES OF CORPORATIONS.

Declares Party Cannot Successfully Fight Trusts While Their Agents Hold High Places in the Democratic Councils.

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 14.—The reply of William J. Bryan to the statement of Roger Sullivan, of Chicago, was given out Thursday night. Mr. Bryan had said that he would not lower the discussion with Mr. Sullivan to one of personal controversy. The text of his reply follows:

"In his speech before the Jefferson club in Chicago on the evening of September 4, Mr. Bryan referred to the case of Mr. Roger Sullivan, Democratic national committeeman from Illinois. Mr. Sullivan has replied in a statement quite characteristic of the man and his methods, but he will not be permitted to lower this discussion to the level of a personal controversy. The public is not interested in Mr. Sullivan's views of Mr. Bryan any more than it would be interested in Mr. Bryan's views concerning Mr. Sullivan, were Mr. Bryan to deal with Mr. Sullivan's personality. Mr. Sullivan is the Democratic national committeeman from Illinois, holding his office by virtue of unfair methods. This matter was presented to the St. Louis convention and the evidence would have convinced the convention had not the delegates feared the effect of an adverse devision upon the presidential candidate whom they were pledged to support. If Mr. Sullivan disputes the assertion that a considerable majority of the delegates to the Springfield convention were opposed to him he can fight out the question with the Majority league of Illinois, which will doubtless accommodate him.

Question of Candidacy.

"As Mr. Bryan has not asked for a nomination and has not announced that he will be a candidate, he will not submit the question whether he should be a candidate to Mr. Sullivan or to any body of persons less numerous than the members of the Democratic party of the United States. Neither can the question as to whether Mr. Sullivan should be reelected to the national committee be submitted to the members of a convention already adjourned. Such a decision would have no binding force. The question must be submitted to the Democrats of Illinois when they meet to select delegates to the next national convention, and Mr. Sullivan will not be permitted to dodge the issue that is raised against him. He is officially connected with a favor-seeking, franchise-holding corporation, and the question is whether the Democratic organization should be paralyzed by the influence of men whose private interest make it impossible for them to be guardians of the public.

Must Bar Corporation Men.

"In speaking of the Sullivan case at Chicago, Mr. Bryan said: 'I hold that no man who is officially connected with a corporation that is seeking privileges ought to act as a member of a political organization, because he cannot represent his corporation and the people at the same time. He cannot serve the public while he is seeking to promote the financial interests of the corporation wi htwhich he is connected.'

"This is the issue. Before the trust question became the dominate one it was not so important what a man's corporate connections were, but when this question is the supreme question of the hour the party organization must be above suspicion, and the Democrats of Illinois and all other states are invited to inspect the connections of those who aspire to the position of party managers. The people cannot be fooled and the party that attempts to fool them is sure to learn of its mistake when the votes are counted.

"Mr. Bryan will urge the Democratic party to put itself in a position where it can fight boldly and persistenly for the regulation of such corporations as are not monopolistic and for the prevention of any private monopoly whatever. To this end, the organization must be composed of men who are free to act for the public and not tied by personal interests to corporations which are seeking favor at the public's expense."

HELD FOR ALLEGED LAND FRAUD

Man Arrested in Kansas City on Indictment Returned in New Mexico.

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 15.—Carl C. Young, traveling auditor of the Panhandle & Pecos Valley Land company, with offices in Kansas City, Roswell, N. M., Chicago and other cities, was arrested here Friday by a deputy United States marshal on an indictment returned in New Mexico in April last, charging him and others with being implicated in alleged government land frauds in that territory. Mr. Young was given a hearing before United States Commissioner J. H. Nuckols and released on bond for appearance before the federal court at Albuquerque at the fall term.

Stationary Engineers Meet.

Philadelphia, Sept. 12.—The twenty-fifth annual convention of the National Association of Stationary Engineers began in this city Tuesday. Nearly 500 delegates from all sections of the country are in attendance.

A NERVOUS WRECK

Mrs. Green Gained 26 Pounds and Recovered Her Health by Taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

General debility is a term that covers a multitude of cases where there is no acute disease, yet the patient continues to lose strength and the doctor's medicines have no apparent effect. This is the decline that leads to death if means are not found to check it. In a great majority of cases Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will check it and restore health and strength because they actually make new blood and so send renewed vitality to every organ and tissue of the body.

Mrs. S. A. Green, whose address is Box 29, R. F. D. No. 4, Franklin, Ga., says: "For three and a half years I suffered with weakness and nervousness, complicated with stomach trouble. At times I was confined to my bed for periods ranging from three weeks to two months and was under the physician's care most of the time for three years. I do not know the cause of my trouble but I was prostrated with weakness and, although I took a great deal of medicine, nothing seemed to give me strength. At times my stomach hurt me something fearful and my head often troubled me. I was sleepless and what sleep I did get did not refresh me.

"When I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, I weighed but 104 pounds. I knew I was so bad that a few doses would not cure me and I had patience. Soon the pills began to give me strength, my blood got in better condition, I could sleep well at night and help some with the housework. Now I weigh 130 pounds and think nothing of walking half a mile. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done wonders for me and the neighbors all know this statement is true."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N.Y.

SALESMEN WANTED.

We want a live, active and thoroughly experienced salesman in this locality with sufficient money to buy outright his first month's supply of our Simplicity Low Pressure Hollow Wire Gasoline Lights. A utility needed in every store and home and fully complying with insurance rules. To such a man we will give exclusive sales right and guarantee to refund money if goods not sold in 60 days. Further particulars on request. The Standard-Gillett Light Co., 930 N. Halsted St., Chicago, Ill.

Women Astronomers.

Mrs. Peton Fleming, who was recently elected a member of the Royal Astronomical society, is not the only woman who has succeeded in comprehending the mysteries of the heavens. Miss Henrietta Leavitt discovered 25 new variable stars some years ago. Lady Huggins diligently helps her husband, Sir William Huggins, in his astronomical observations. In their house in South London they possess a very finely equipped observatory, which contains the enormous telescope presented by the royal society to Sir William in recognition of the work accomplished by Lady Huggins and himself in astrophysics.

FINDS VIRTUE IN OLD CLOTHES.

Men's Garments Shaped to the Figure by Age Catch Artist's Eye.

To the eye of the artist the garments of the modern man are only tolerable when age has adapted them somewhat to the lines of the figure; to the average artist a new suit of clothes is an abomination.

"It is not only that new clothes are more ugly than old," said a knight of the palette who discussed the question; "to my mind no one can be properly easy or graceful in them.

"I never feel that I properly know a man until I have met him wearing an old suit. Certainly no man can possibly be his natural self in evening dress.

"I have noticed again and again how different the same people are when wearing different clothes. I went, for instance, to a large family gathering some time ago, and for some reason everybody had donned full evening dress. What a difference it made! We were all on terms of intimate friendship, but somehow the clothes brought in an element of coldness and formality. We all felt it—even the women, although, of course, the fair sex are not easily persuaded of the merits of well-worn garments. But no man who has discovered the ease and comfort of them will readily give them up. As for the artistic side of modern clothes, it only comes when they have mellowed by use!"

WELL PEOPLE TOO

Wise Doctor Gives Postum to Convalescents.

A wise doctor tries to give nature its best chance by saving the little strength of the already exhausted patient, and building up wasted energy with simple but powerful nourishment.

"Five years ago," writes a doctor, "I commenced to use Postum in my own family instead of coffee. I was so well pleased with the results that I had two grocers place it in stock, guaranteeing its sale.

"I then commenced to recommend it to my patients in place of coffee, as a nutritious beverage. The consequence is, every store in town is now selling it, as it has become a household necessity in many homes.

"I'm sure I prescribe Postum as often as any one remedy in the Materia Medica—in almost every case of indigestion and nervousness I treat, and with the best results.

"When I once introduce it into a family, it is quite sure to remain. I shall continue to use it and prescribe it in families where I practice.

"In convalescence from pneumonia, typhoid fever and other cases, I give it as a liquid, easily absorbed diet. You may use my letter as a reference any way you see fit." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville" in pkgs. "There's a reason."

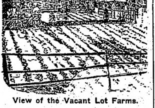
LOT FARMS IN BERLIN

UPWARD OF 1,000 OF THEM NOW IN CULTIVATION.

Started in 1900 with 94—Miniature Country Houses That Have Become the Scene of Healthy Activity and Innocent Pleasure.

New York.—The visitor to the German capital who is not satisfied with the beaten track of the guide book and the average sightseer may at this season of the year find in Charlottenburg or any of the outlying districts of the city a spectacle not only unusual and picturesque, but delightful from a sociological standpoint.

One comes across tracts of land slightly below the street level which are green with regular rows of vegetables or brilliant with beds of flowers. At one end of each garden plot is a simple little hut or a latticed arbor covered with vines. Men are busy with spades, women with rakes, children with sprinkling cans. Or they sit about a home-made table in the shade and sip their coffee and consume—as every genuine Berliner does—enormous quantities of cake. There is an air of contentment about the scene which is doubly refreshing after the sight of the bustling crowds, loaded with lunch baskets, that plod along the hot and dusty roads toward the beer gardens of the Grunewald. These people have no need to seek the open; they enjoy an outing on ground which is theirs.



View of the Vacant Lot Farms.

A number of societies which have at heart the health and the welfare of the people are the founders of the philanthropy which offers the workingman living with his family in a stuffy tenement a plot of ground, easy of access, where he can rest from indoor work by a little gardening. They took the cue from an exhibit at the Paris exposition of 1900, where the Ligue Francaise du Coin de Terre et du Foyer demonstrated the work of 60 corporations that have given to French laborers plots of ground where these people grow their own supply of vegetables and in doing so improve their physical well being and add to the few and simple joys of their life.

The German societies leased two tracts of unimproved land near a workingmen's district of Charlottenburg, subdivided them into 94 plots, and raffled them off among those who applied for them, families with many children being first considered. In the center of every garden plot was a playground for the little ones.

The societies started the work of preparing the ground and even furnished fertilizers and seeds. This being done, the plots were taken over and cared for by the families to whose share they had fallen. The enthusiasm and perseverance with which these city dwellers entered upon their farming was surprising.

Instead of crowding into a train or a tram bound for the pleasure resorts in the suburbs, these people place their youngest child, their tools and their lunch basket in the baby's carriage and set out early in the morning to spend their holiday in their own garden. There father and mother work or rest, and the children play in the open until late in the evening, when one can see processions of them returning to their city flats.

Nor is it only on holidays that they resort to their gardens. As soon as the warm weather has set in, the wives go there early in the afternoon, the children follow after school hours and the father joins the family on coming from his work. The principal meal of the family being taken at noon, it is quite possible for the family of a Berlin workingman owning such a garden to spend from five to seven hours daily in the open. When not busy caring for their potatoes, cabbages, cucumbers and other vegetables, the mothers sit in the shade of the arbors sewing, while the children romp about.

There is a spirit of emulation among the people which is encouraged by the patrons, who at an annual harvest feast view the results attained and join in the general merrymaking. It is their aim not only to promote the physical well being of the people, but to foster a feeling of neighborliness. To strengthen this spirit of solidarity and prevent an estrangement among the plot neighbors during the long winter, there is at least one meeting of a social nature on the grounds in the cold season.

This enterprise is hardly five years old, but the 94 plots originally given to the people in Charlottenburg have become upward of 1,100 in various parts of Berlin. Extraordinary reasons must prevail if any owner decides to give up his plot. When one of those rare cases occurs, there are hundreds of applicants eager to fill the vacancy. The people cling to the bit of ground as if it were a valuable old family place.

MONUMENT FOR HER DEAD

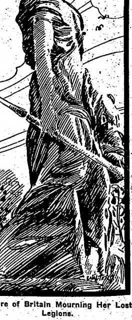


Figure of Britain Mourning Her Lost Legions.

Unlike the United States, by which battlefields are preserved and monuments erected to the heroes who fell for their cause, England is never in a hurry to honor her dead. The monuments erected on the battlefield of Waterloo are, with few exceptions, Belgian, German or French. Now England has been asked by Count Louis Cavens, owner of the farm of Mont St. Jean, to buy it and turn it into a park or historic museum in memory of Waterloo. But England wants none of it. The count has written some frantic letters to the London papers and there has been an anaemic subscription list, but they avail nothing. Besides, Englishmen have delved into records, and find the farm was not part of the field of Waterloo, but was the headquarters of the medical division and a long way in rear of the action.

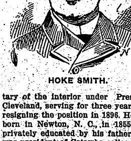
A really magnificent monument, however, has been erected recently to the British officers and men who fell at the great battle of 1815. It is not on the field of Waterloo, but in the cemetery of Evere, on the outskirts of Brussels. The monument is at the entrance of the cemetery. It consists of a large stone sarcophagus covered with a great cross. Over this tomb is the British flag in bronze, apparently ruffled by the wind. At the head stands a giant figure of Britania, her head bowed in woe. Around the tomb are three huge dying lions and between their figures, in seemingly abandoned piles, are broken guns and acoutrements, uniforms and the general debris of battle.

Bronze shields and slabs on the tomb record the names and regiments and heroes alike. At the back a flight of stone steps leads into the tomb. All the bodies possible were gathered from the field of Waterloo and interred in this tomb, the ground for which was given by the city of Brussels. It is an imposing monument and a magnificent piece of sculpture; in fact, one of the best of the Belgian sculptor, Count de Lalaing. The Americans who visit Brussels this year should not miss it.

HOKE SMITH FOR GOVERNOR.

Georgia Democrats Choose Ex-Cabinet Member for Executive Post.

Atlanta, Ga.—Hoke Smith, who has been chosen as candidate for governor by the Democratic primaries, is a well known attorney, who formerly was the owner of the Atlanta Journal, which newspaper he controlled from 1887 until 1898. Mr. Smith was secretary of the interior under President Cleveland, serving for three years and resigning the position in 1896. He was born in Newton, N. C., in 1855, was privately educated by his father, who was president of Catawba college, and at the age of 17 he moved to this state. For a time he taught school, meanwhile studying law, and after his admission to the bar he began practice in this city, which has been his home for several years. He was but 18 years old when he was admitted to the bar.



HOKE SMITH.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

Killed by Medicine.

Duluth—West end physicians declare that Arvid H. Johnson, six months old, whose death occurred Saturday, was slowly poisoned to death by the use of a patent medicine which contained morphine in too great doses for a child so young.

When the child was a few weeks old the parents received a sample of a patent medicine. The child became restless and the mother administered some of the stuff. It seemed to have little effect and the doses were increased to a teaspoonful instead of the six or eight drops called for on the label.

The child survived the continued administration of the drug for almost six months, but finally succumbed.

The physicians who attended the child before its death say that undoubtedly it died as the result of morphine poisoning, and insist that morphine should not be sold in any form except upon a physician's prescription. A resolution for an ordinance to this effect now is pending before the city council.

Horse Was Stubborn.

Rochester—Because the old family horse insisted upon taking the turn toward home and refused to be guided into another street, Paul Hargesheimer and John Rommel, Sr., were thrown from a buggy and sustained serious injuries. Rommel, going home from the state hospital, met Hargesheimer and invited him to ride. Hargesheimer lives a street beyond Rommel, but when the old horse came to the home street he turned into it. Rommel attempted to guide him straight ahead and the animal got "bucky," and backed the buggy into the curb, throwing the two men out. Rommel struck on his head and was rendered unconscious, sustaining severe bruises about the head and shoulder. Hargesheimer had several ribs cracked and badly sprained his right wrist.

War of the Lid.

St. Cloud—Another step has been made by Rev. C. W. Stark and other anti-saloonists to enforce the "lid" in St. Cloud, and this time Mayor J. E. C. Robinson's office is the storm center.

Anti-saloon men are jubilant over the fact that they have succeeded in interesting other than local officials in the fight to compel the strict observance of the Sunday closing law. This time Attorney General Young has been brought into the case.

On complaint of Rev. C. W. Stark and others the attorney general is complainant in impeachment proceedings against Mayor Robinson. The matter is brought up in quo warranto proceedings, and the mayor will be cited to appear in court and show cause why he should not be impeached for malfeasance in office.

Heavy Travel.

Minneapolis—Estimates furnished by railroad officials are that the approximate number of people hauled to the Twin Cities on account of the Minnesota state fair was 113,500.

There is no doubt that the cheaper rates granted to the Twin Cities on account of the G. A. R. encampment had some effect on travel to the state fair. But there was not the decrease that was expected in some quarters. In fact, all the railroads hauled more people last week than they did for the corresponding period of last year, and some of the estimates are based on probable increases on last year's figures. Two of the roads hauled in 2,000 to 2,500 more people than last year for the fair, and some of the roads had bigger increases.

Rates Made Known.

St. Paul—The Northern Pacific railroad has filed the original contract between that road and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul for carrying coal between Duluth and Hastings. The filing of this document, which gives the figures showing how much the Milwaukee pays the Northern Pacific for transporting coal, came as a surprise. The figures, which are an important factor in fixing the reasonableness of coal rates between the Twin Cities and Duluth, were not divulged by the commission.

Excursion Will Run.

Minneapolis—Jobbers' excursions to St. Paul and Minneapolis will continue to run this fall as originally arranged. The railroad officials are doubtful whether the new law does not prevent the granting of special rates to country merchants not obtainable by anybody else, but the excursions were arranged in good faith before the new law went into effect and it has been decided to run the jobbers' excursions as usual this year.

News Notes.

St. Paul—Frank Windish, eight years old, 249 Concord street, was badly burned about the feet and legs by gasoline. The flames spread to the house, which was slightly damaged before the firemen arrived.

Duluth—Earnest Mallory, twenty-six years of age, a cook coming from Mankato, surrendered himself to the police here today and stated that he had robbed a restaurant owned by S. T. Seaman of Mankato Aug. 27.

St. Paul—The board of public works favors the plan of rearranging Summit avenue in front of the new cathedral.

Washington—Herman Jacobs was appointed postmaster at Mayville, Mower county, Minn., vice Albert Loehrke, resigned.

Crookston—J. P. Booher brought down the largest game of the season yesterday, but it will cost him several hundred dollars. He accidentally shot a valuable horse belonging to A. J. Courette of this city.

Minneapolis—Shippers make strong protest against new merchandise schedule.

Austin—Mrs. W. H. Symes of Austin, Minn., jumped into the cistern at her home on South Main street late Thursday afternoon and only through the efforts of Claud Judd and several women in the neighborhood, was she saved from drowning.

Minneapolis—An unidentified man about thirty-five years old was picked up unconscious in an alley near Hennepin avenue and Fifth street, Minneapolis, and died at the city hospital several hours later without recovering consciousness.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

James A. Garland, New York financier and clubman, died at Hanover, Mass., of pneumonia.

Connecticut has a banner year in tobacco. Old growers say the crop is the best within their memory.

Gov. Chamberlain of Oregon has demanded reports from the railroads of his state under the laws of 1885.

Delegates from Guatemala, Salvador and Honduras have gathered at San Jose, Costa Rica, for a peace conference.

Twenty polish immigrants were bruised in a fight on the Atlantic steamer Graf Waldersee as it neared New York.

Judge Thomas H. Malone, one of the best-known jurists in the south, died at his country home near Nashville, Tenn.

H. G. Air, aged 33, formerly a traveling salesman for a Chicago firm, committed suicide with carbolic acid in St. Louis.

No definite date has been set for the second Hague conference, although it will probably be held in May or June next.

It is learned Mrs. Herman Oelrichs' visit to San Francisco is in connection with the sale of 60 blocks of land to E. H. Harriman.

In a formal note to France and other powers, Turkey draws attention to the warlike preparations which are going on in Bulgaria.

In the states of Oregon and Washington, which supply the world with cascara sagrada, practically no bark was gathered this year.

Secretary Root, during his visit to Lima, Peru, attended a festival at the university and was elected an honorary member of the institution.

Oscar C. Matthews, manager of the Royalton apartments in Forty-fourth street, New York, died of septic poisoning, said to have been induced by an inflamed tooth.

At the international homeopathic congress at Atlantic City, N. J., Sarah H. Hobson of Chicago asserted that hereditary consumption is curable under certain conditions.

A steamship service, subsidized at $100,000 a year, will soon start between British Columbia and Mexican ports. The steamers will connect with the Tehuantepec railroad.

The Alabama Democratic convention nominated John R. Tyson for chief justice of the supreme court and John H. Dowdell and T. C. McClellan for associate justices.

Prof. Lidue of Nantes, France, asserts that he has created vegetable life. From artificial cells developed from osmotic pressure he says he has grown plants three inches long.

Mrs. J. M. Ford of Corunna, Mich., sister of United States District Attorney F. H. Watson, died from the effects of burns received when by mistake she used gasoline to start a fire.

An explosion on the motor boat Mercedes on the Hudson river threw its three occupants, H. L. Bowden, the owner; Capt. James Barr and Charles Basle, engineer, into the water. The boat burned to the water's edge.

Ben Jordan and Carl Brown, both under 20 years of age, confessed that they derailed a St. Louis & San Francisco fast passenger train near Kosoma, I. T., July 29, when the fireman was killed and the engineer badly hurt.

Frank P. Smith of Topeka, Kan., who claims he is the missing brother of Mrs. Charles L. Fair, killed with her husband in 1902 in an automobile accident in France, has sued Mrs. Herman Oelrichs and Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., for his share of the estate.

Woman Slain in Her Home.

Philadelphia, Sept. 12.—Left alone with her infant child in the house in which she occupied rooms, Mrs. Morris K. Lewis, an attractive woman 26 years of age, the wife of a traveling salesman, has been brutally murdered. Her body, with a bullet wound in the throat, was found in a hall closet. The body bore evidence of a struggle. There is no clew to the murderer.

THE MARKETS.

	New York, Sept. 15.
LIVE STOCK—Steers	$5 00	@ 5 75
Hogs, State	6 80	@ 6 90
Sheep	3 50	@ 5 50
FLOUR—Minn. Patents	4 10	@ 4 35
WHEAT—December	77¼@	77⅝
May	83⅛@	83¼
CORN—December	51¾@	51⅞
RYE—No. 2 Western	63½@	64
BUTTER	18½@	25
CHEESE	10 @	12½
EGGS	12½@	30
	CHICAGO.
CATTLE—Choice Steers	$5 70	@ 6 80
Common to Good Steers	4 70	@ 5 70
Yearlings	4 50	@ 5 75
Bulls, Common to Choice	2 25	@ 4 00
Calves	3 00	@ 8 00
HOGS—Light Mixed	6 20	@ 6 45
Heavy Packing	5 65	@ 5 95
Heavy Mixed	6 15	@ 6 40
BUTTER—Creamery	19½@	23½
Dairy	16 @	20½
EGGS	12½@	17
LIVE POULTRY	11 @	11½
POTATOES (bu.)	45 @	50
WHEAT—December	72¾@	73⅜
May	75½@	76
Corn, September	43⅜@	43⅝
Oats, September	32½@	82¾
Rye, September	55½@	58
	MILWAUKEE.
GRAIN—Wheat, No. 1 Nor'n	$ 75 @	76
December	73 @	73½
Corn, December	42⅜@	42⅝
Oats, Standard	32¼@	33
Rye, No. 1	57¾@	58
	KANSAS CITY.
GRAIN—Wheat, September	$ 64⅜@	64⅝
December	66½@	66⅝
Corn, September	42¾@	43
Oats, No. 2 White	31½@	32
	ST. LOUIS.
CATTLE—Beef Steers	$3 50	@ 6 50
Texas Steers	3 25	@ 5 10
HOGS—Packers	6 00	@ 6 55
Butchers	6 40	@ 6 60
SHEEP—Natives	3 00	@ 5 75
	OMAHA.
CATTLE—Native Steers	$4 40	@ 6 40
Stockers and Feeders	2 75	@ 4 50
Cows and Heifers	2 50	@ 4 50
HOGS—Heavy	5 80	@ 6 10
SHEEP—Wethers	5 00	@ 5 50

Wheat in Western Canada

A Good Crop of Excellent Quality Has Been Raised This Year.

The grain crops estimates from the Canadian West make a range of from 87,000,000 to 115,000,000 bushels, and an accurate statement will be somewhere between these figures—probably not far from 90,000,000 bushels. This year a larger acreage was sown, estimated at an increase of from 18 to 20 per cent., and had the average yield of last year been maintained, the aggregate would assuredly have gone considerably beyond the 100,000,000 bushel mark. The exceptionally large influx of settlers was responsible to a considerable extent for much of the increased area, and, there can be no doubt, is also responsible for a part of the decreased average yield. The first crop raised by the new settler—often unacquainted with the conditions of western agriculture—is not usually prolific, and 1905-06 placed a very large number of amateur farmers behind the stilts of the plow; but they will learn, and learn fast, and with another season or two will help to raise the average instead of depressing it.

Of the estimates to hand, that of the Northwest Grain Dealers' association is the lowest: Wheat, 87,203,000 bushels; oats, 75,725,600 bushels, and barley, 16,980,600 bushels. The Winnipeg Free Press sent out five special correspondents, who returned after 20 days with a somewhat better report and gave reasons for the faith that was in them. They had traveled all through the spring wheat district; had driven 1,400 miles through the grain country, besides traveling thousands of miles by rail; and they had visited 93 localities and knew whereof they spoke. They reported: Wheat, 90,250,000 bushels, on 4,750,000 acres, with an average yield of 19 bushels per acre. The western division of the Bank of Commerce also investigated with the following result:

Alberta.

	Acres.	Yield. per acre.	Bushels.
Wheat	141,421	20	2,828,420
Barley	75,678	30	2,270,340
Oats	322,923	40	12,916,920
	540,022	—	18,015,680

Saskatchewan.

	Acres.	Yield. per acre.	Bushels.
Wheat	1,331,649	22	29,296,278
Barley	41,273	30	1,238,190
Oats	542,483	40	21,699,320
	1,915,405	—	52,233,788

Manitoba.

	Acres.	Yield. per acre.	Bushels.
Wheat	3,141,537	19	59,689,203
Barley	474,242	30	14,227,260
Oats	1,155,961	40	46,238,440
	4,771,740	—	120,154,903

Total.	Bushels.
Wheat	91,813,906
Oats	80,854,680
Barley	17,735,790

All of which goes to show that a wheat crop of nearly if not fully 90,000,000 bushels may be safely counted upon. This is less than was looked for by some enthusiastic western people, who maintained that increased acreage necessarily meant an increased aggregate. Still, 90,000,000 bushels of wheat is 6,000,000 better than what was looked upon last year as a good crop, and we do not think Western Canada has much cause to feel down in the mouth because the acme of its anticipations on the wheat crop may not have been realized. Taking one year with another, that country has demonstrated that it can be depended upon as a great wheat growing territory, and has to be reckoned with in the markets of the world.

The yield in oats has been increased this year by nearly 1,500,000 bushels, the aggregate estimate being 75,725,600, with the average at 41.2 bushels to the acre. The estimated crop of barley is placed at 16,980,600 bushels, which is a slight increase over the total of last year. Of flax the estimate given is 690,184 bushels, which is a material increase upon last year's figures.

Following are the figures in detail for wheat, oats, and barley in Western Canada for the three years last past:-

1903.

	Wheat.	Oats.	Barley.
Manitoba	40,116,878	33,035,774	8,707,252
Saskatchewan	15,121,015	9,164,007	685,593
Alberta	1,118,180	5,187,511	1,077,274
	56,356,073	47,387,292	10,450,119

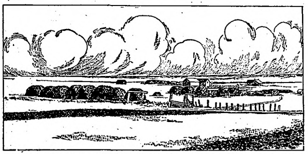
1904.

Manitoba	39,162,458	36,289,279	11,177,970
Saskatchewan	15,944,730	10,756,350	598,336
Alberta	786,075	5,609,496	1,608,241
	55,893,263	52,655,125	13,384,547

1905.

Manitoba	55,761,416	45,484,025	14,064,025
Saskatchewan	26,107,286	19,213,055	893,396
Alberta	2,297,524	9,514,180	1,773,914
	84,166,226	74,211,260	16,731,335

This year, the lowest returns, as we have stated, are estimated at: Wheat, 87,203,000 bushels; oats, 75,725,600, and barley at 16,980,600 bushels, which is very satisfactory, if not absolutely satisfying. To better appreciate this fact, all that is necessary to do is to go back 25 years in the history of Western Canada. At that time the agricultural product of the whole country was confined to Manitoba, and consisted of 1,000,000 bushels of wheat, on an acreage of 51,300 and 1,270,268 bushels of oats. The entire crop was at that time required for local purposes, and the export trade was an unknown quantity. To-day, allowing nearly 20,000,000 bushels of wheat for local consumption and seeding, there will be about 70,000,000 bushels for export, which at 70 cents per bushel will bring in outside money to the extent of nearly $50,000,000. The barley and oats exported are good for an additional $25,000,000, and the combined amounts, together with that received from dairying and other sources, are bound to make financial conditions very easy in the Canadian West until the next harvest matures.

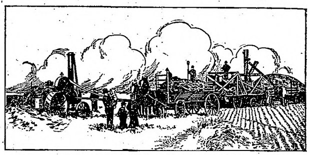


Wheat and Oat Farms, Elbow Valley, Twelve Miles West of Calgary.

In the last week of August a tour of inspection was made along the line of railway in the wheat area by the Northwest Grain Dealers' association and a number of American grain experts. What they saw convinced them that not only was the crop a good average one, but the quality of the grain grown was admittedly of the best quality, and more than one of the visitors stated that although the yield might have been larger, the quality could hardly have been improved. Speaking on this point, Mr. J. F. Whalley, the well-known wheat man of Minneapolis, said:

"The quality of the crop is excellent, and I think the average will be No. 1 Northern. I was up with the grain men two years ago, and I am very much struck with the improvement that has taken place in these two years. The growth is certainly marvelous; there is not a better country in the world than the Canadian Northwest."

The past few years, in which agriculture has been carried on to any great extent, have brought the problem of transportation very prominently to the front, and there is a railway development in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, such as has never been seen anywhere. There are at present over 6,000 miles of railway in operation in that country, and a conservative calculation of the lines now in course of construction places the extent at 5,000 additional miles; a large portion of which will be completed during the present year. This means the opening up of a considerably increased agricultural area, and there is every reason to believe that in a very few years the agricultural wealth of the country will be developed to such an extent that instead of "A Hundred Million Bushel Crop" it will not be out of place to refer to the crop as "500,000,000 bushels of wheat for export." This may look like drawing the long bow at the present time, but, in the light of what has been done by Western Canada in the past five or ten years, there is no limit that can be placed upon what may be done in the five or ten years immediately in front of that lusty young giant of the West.



A Still Better Outfit Seven Miles West of Morden.

An Odious Comparison.

"Doesn't Scrubbly look cheap beside that magnificent, well-dressed wife of his?"

"I should say so! He looks like a bar-tender's shirt-stud beside the Koh-i-noor."—Judge.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50.

Entered as Second-class matter August 30, 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

It seems to be an impossibility for Bryan to run for president, without opposition in his own party, as soon as he got things squared with Tammeny Hall, a new sore broke out in Illinois in the shape of the oppositions of Sullivan. Wm. certainly seems to have a rocky road to travel on his way to the presidency.

Of 22 votes cast at Tuesdays election in this township, L. C Simons recieved 1 and 1 in Deer Park township, and some of the people are wondering if he got them by a mistake of some of the voters, or they came from the powerful support of the Plummer Pioneer backed up by the Eleven Towns.

Wont it be fun next winter, when the reduction of freight and passenger rates comes up before the legislature, to hear A.D. Stephens the senator from Polk get up and tell the other members that his constitunts did not want any reduction of freight and passenger rates, as the farmers up his way were in sympathy with Jim Hill because his income was so small and that the people living in the eastern part of the county were well satisfied to pay 3 cts. a mile to ride standing up on the platform when they went to Crookston. Oh there is nothing like having a man in the legislature that is in sympathy with the poor railroad companys and can explain all these things, and the people of Polk could not get a better man for that purpose than A. D.

While the socialist speakers are fighting the trusts which is right and proper, they are engaged in building up a political trust, that may have to be put under government control. At at the close of each speach they form a club that requires each member to pay 15 cents per month to a general fund for the advancement of the interests of the party. Did you my socialist friend ever stop to consider what a tremendous amount of money this will make when it is all gathered together. If you remember the United States had to remove the enternal revenue tax soon after the war with Spain as the fund was getting to large, and if the socialist party continue their present methods it can be soon said that their income will be larger than that of the post office department.

Low Down Dirty Politicts.

The primary election is over and now comes the line up for the general election in November. While we have been somewhat interested in politicts the past few years we must certainly say that some of the candidates for office in this county certainly take the cake, for political deals, trades, and dodges, in fact any-"thing to get the coon"

We find on making inquiry that the method adopted by the candidates for county office two years ago were a disgrace to any party, that they expect to get their support from.

For example: Some of the candidates of different parties would have meetings and trade and the conversations in the deals would be something like this, you republicans take the County Attorneys office and give us democrats the Auditors office. Now you republicans take the Register of Deeds office and give us democrats the Sheriffs office and so on down the list. Now it seems to us that this is dirty politicts that is a disgrace to either Johnson or Cole the two leaders, of the two leading parties, in this state and a nominee on either party that has got so low down as to trade support of a candidate that is running on the same ticket that he is off to the opposit party to gain support for himself is not entitled to the support of any honorable party man. Let us have a clean campaign and may the best man win.

Haldor E. Boen the candidate of the socialist party for congress from this district, was nominated and elected by the peoples party to congress in 1892, but we never heard of Mr. Boen doing anything for the district, but he started a bank at Fergus Fails after he came out of congress, and it has never been a public ownership bank either, but the property of Haldor E. Boen. At that time we supported Boen because he belonged to what was then the populist party, but we have aged somewhat since that time and do not pay so much attention to the party name as we do to the man behind the gun and we are firmly of the opinion that Halvor Steenerson done more beneficial work for this district in the last term of congress, than Boen could do in twenty years.

* * * * * * * * * * * * * * * *

Republican State Ticket.

United States Senator—

Knute Nelson,
Douglas County.

Governor—

A.L. Cole,
Cass County.

Lieutenant Governor—

A.O. Eberhart,
Blue Earth County.

Chief Justice—

Charles M. Start,
Olmsted County.

State Treasurer—

Clarence Dinehart,
Murray County.

Secretary of State—

Julius Schmahl,
Redwood County.

Attorney General—

E.T. Young,
Swift County.

State Auditor—

S.G. Iverson,
Fillmore County.

Clerk of Supreme Court—

C.A. Pidgeon,
Wright County.

Railroad Commissioner—

C.F. Staples,
Dakota County.

Corroborative.

"This," exclaimed the orator, "is a decadent nation! As before the fall of Rome everything was rotten, so today in our erstwhile fair land everything"—

Just here an egg struck him fairly. His nostrils dilated.

"I desire," he continued, "before retiring to add that this egg is corroborative evidence."—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Case For Sympathy.

"I have three children, who are the very image of myself," said Jones enthusiastically.

"I pity the youngest," returned Brown quietly.

"Why?" asked Jones.

"Because he is the one who will have to resemble you the longest," said Brown.—Tit-Bits.

Unexpected.

"Can your wife make as good pies as your mother did?"

"Yes, indeed. Mother uses my wife's recipe."—Cleveland Free Press.

Assistant Fool Makers.

It doesn't take much of a girl to make a fool of any man. Nature did to much.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A man who covers himself with costly apparel and neglects his mind is like one who illuminates the outside of his house and sits within in the dark.

A Pessimist.

"Don't be too anxious to get a husband," said the wise matron. "Don't go around hunting for one."

"Think I should just sit down and wait for one, eh?" replied the maiden.

"Yes, for you'll sit up and wait for one often enough after you've got him."

Quite Natural.

Husband—What did you think when you heard the chandelier fall last night? Wife—Why, I thought you had been detained on business again and were getting upstairs as quietly as you could.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the paymen of five dollars which became due March 14th 1906, and is due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Martha Kolstoe, a single women, mortgagor, to Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, mortgagee, bearing date the 14th day of March, 1905, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of deeds of the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, on the 17th day of March 1905, at 4 o'clock, P. M. in Book 85 of Mortgages, on page 8 thereof, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the county of Polk, State of Minnesota, on the 14th day of August, 1906, at 8 o'clock A. M. in Book 116 of Mortgages on page 418; and whereas, pursuant to the terms and condition of said mortgage by reason of said default, the whole principal sum of mortgage, towit, thirty dollars, did on the 14th day of March 1906, become at once due and payable, and was so declared by said mortgagee: and whereas, there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of thirty dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of ten per cent per annum since March 14, 1906 and whereas, the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof:

Now, therefor, Notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to wit,:

Lots six (6) and seven (7) of section six (6) in township one hundred fifty one (151), north, of range thirty nine (39) in Polk County, Minnesota, and the east half of the south east quarter, (E.½ of S.E.¼) of section one (1) in township one hundred fifty one (151), north, of range forty (40), in Red Lake County, Minnesota, which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Red Lake County, Minnesota, at the west front door at the courthouse in the City of Red Lake Falls, in said county and state on Saturday, the 13th day of October, 1906, at two (2) o'clock P.M. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of thirty dollars and interest as aforesaid, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and a reasonale attorney's fee as stipulated in said mortgage, the same being hereby claimed and stated to be the sum of twenty five dollars, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated August 22nd, 1906,

Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, Minn.
Mortgagee.

Chas. E. Boughton,
Attorney for Mortgagee,
Red Lake Falls, Minnesota.

Corks For Bottle Stoppers.

The application of cork as a bottle stopper for liquid vessels is said to be of great antiquity. The earliest record extant of its use in Europe is that mentioned by Horace, who asserts that the Romans had cork as stoppers for their wine ampherae. Certain of the uses of cork were known to the ancient Greeks and Egyptians, but whether they used cork for stopping the mouths of their liquid vessels history does not say. It was not, however, until the year 1760 that the Spaniards first commenced to work their cork woods with some degree of regularity for the making of corks. Although perhaps corks were more or less in use from the time glass bottles were first invented, which Beckmann asserts to have been in the fifteenth century, yet it was not until two and a half centuries later that the Spaniards began to prepare cork for bottle stoppers, which they did in a forest situated at the northeast of the Tigueras, on the Muge. The cork industry has since gradually risen to be one of the first magnitude, its chief center in Spain being in Catalonia.

What the Teacher Must Do.

Knowledge is good, but wisdom is better. The college valedictorian, trained to take knowledge in rather than to impart it, may have much of it with but little wisdom. He may be able, as a teacher, to drill boys and girls in Greek and Latin declensions and cram them with facts, useful or valueless, but if he cannot produce in them what Spencer calls "pleasurable excitement" and interest he is a failure. His would be the sort of teaching that harps upon obedience and discipline and endeavors by force of rule and rod to oblige the pupil to study and learn. The will cannot be forced, but the real teacher knows well that it can be led. He remembers the remark of Rousseau that "the teacher's province is less to instruct than to guide;" that "he must not lay down precepts, but teach his pupils to discover them." This was the way of that great teacher, Agassiz, certainly.—Arthur Gilman in Atlantic.

Chotohazree at the Gymkhana.

In "Modern India" the author, William Eleroy Curtis, records his meeting with the word gymkhana and "ventures to say that nobody who has not been in India can guess what that means."

And if you want another conundrum, what is a chotohazree? It is customary for smart people to have their chotohazree at the gymkhana, and I think you would be pleased to join them after taking the beautiful drive which leads to the place. Nobody knows where the word was derived from, but it is used to describe a country club—a bungalow hidden under a beautiful grove on the brow of a cliff that overhangs the bay—with all of the appurtenances, golf links, cricket grounds, racket courts and indoor gymnasium, and everybody stops there on an afternoon drive to have chotohazree, which is the local term for afternoon tea and for early morning coffee.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam August 17, 1906.

Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston Minn. August 13th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on September 25th 1906 viz;

Ole O. Vattendahl.

H.E.No. 713 Red Lake Series, for Lot 2, Sec. 27, Lots 7, 8, 10, 11, Sec. 28, Lot 1, Sec. 34, Twp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Torkel T. Lande, Sjur Stolas, Torger S. Dale, Andrew Ellingson all of Radny Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Regster.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam August 17, 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. August 11, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention tomake final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Reciver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on September 26 1906, viz:

Signe J. Sen.

H.E. No. 8956, Chippewa Series, for the N.E. ¼ Sec. 35, Twp. 152 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Sam Gunderson, Rasmus Nilsen Fore, Aasa Fore, John G. Lintvedt all of Lillo Minn.

R. J. Montague, register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam August 31, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land office at Crookston Minn. August 24th, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on October 23, 1906 viz:

Nels Loiland.

H.E. No. 1181 Red Lake Series for the Lots 5, 6, 7, 9, S.W. ¼, S.E. ¼, Sec. 27 Twp. 152 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ben K. Kvestad of Highlanding Minn. Halvor Swanson, Ole N. Loiland, Oluf Hanson of Hilda Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register.

The Small Mouthed Bass.

The small mouthed bass fully deserves his reputation for being vigorous and gamy from infancy. He is extremely pugnacious by nature and has fighting tactics peculiarly his own which for strength, activity and craft are unequaled. I once took a bass four inches long on a spoon hook, the bowl of which was more than two inches long. This bass does not hesitate to tackle that terror of all other fish—the fierce and voracious pickerel. With his first dorsal fin rigidly set up, he lays off some ten or twenty feet and then makes a rapid dash right into and under the "long face," forcing him to clear out at once or ripping him so badly that he is hors de combat. The fact has been established that bass introduced into a pond containing pickerel will ultimately destroy the latter. The same fate awaits other fish, including trout.—Outing.

Wind Superstitions.

The Finns of Norway long entertained a traditional belief in the power of controlling the winds by a small rope with three knots tied in it. This popular superstition gave rise to the curious industry of making and selling these wind controlling ropes with magical knots to mariners and fishermen. It was believed that by unloosing the first knot a favorable breeze was secured, the second raised a strong gale and if the third knot was untied it would prove the prelude to a tempest. According to Ranulph Higden, the witches of the Isle of Man had a similar ancient practice of selling winds to sailors.

Apt.

Douglas Jerrold had a way of putting pat names to things. One of his remarks is given by George Hodder in "Manners of My Time." Jerrold was at a party one night where a doctor, who was tall and thin almost to emaciation, had for a partner a lady who was short and square in build. Turning to a bystander, he remarked, "There is a mile dancing with a milestone."

When Labor Did Not Tell.

A home missionary who visited Sing Sing prison took occasion to have a heart to heart talk with one of the convicts.

"Don't you know, my friend," said he, "that crime never brings success? It is only achieved by hard labor."

"I did six months of it at a stretch once, and I didn't come out no richer than I went in."

He Was Spurned.

"Believe me," said old Gotrox, "although I'm an old bachelor I'm sure I could learn to be a good husband. You know, a man is never too old to learn."

"Nor too old to yearn, perhaps," replied Miss. Pechis; "also I'm sorry to say you're not too old to spurn."—Philadelphia Press.

Always Something Lacking.

Love is like a waltz. It never quite fulfills all one expects of it. Either the man's lead is too fast or too slow, his hold too light or too loose, he stumbles over your gown or steps on your feet, and if everything else is right it is the wrong man.—Life.

Desperate.

Aunt Ruth—'Tis sad to grow old.

Her Niece—How much would you give to be as young as I? Aunt Ruth—I would almost submit to being as foolish.

H. & B. MILLING CO.
BEST
VIVO
PATENT
98
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.
VIVO

VIVO

HANDLED BY ALL THE LEADING MERCHANTS OF THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

(ALWAYS CALL FOR VIVO)

We pay the highest marke price for all grain, at our mill in Thief River Falls, or at our elevator at Plummer, and always have on hand a compleat line of flour & feed at both points.

☞ Promt shipments made by boat to all points along the Red Lake River.

We solicit your orders.

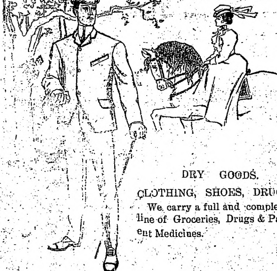
Hanson & Barzen Milling Company.

THE MERCHANTS State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payments. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds, Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.

J. A. DUFFY, Cashier.

NORSK HANDEL.



DRY GOODS.

CLOTHING, SHOES, DRUGS

We carry a full and complete line of Groceries, Drugs & Patent Medicines.

☞ LOOK AT THIS. We pay the highest market price for, Hides, Wool, Seneka Root, Furs & All Farm Products

H. H. Finrow, Mg.

PLUMMER, MINN.

The Radny Store:

☞ THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE RADNY STORE.

John has, Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes.

A full and complete line of groceries.

Best brands of flour, at lowest market price

.......00...........

Call and see me for bargains, at Radny post office and store.

John Radneskie.

In Praise of Cockneys.

Cockneys are the best natured people under the sun. It is notorious that a big London crowd is of all crowds in the world the most harmless and the easiest to manage. But see them also in their ordinary collections, outside the gallery door of a popular theater or crowding in the carriages of an excursion train—What fun and kindness and wholesome give and take! A deliberately rude or offensive cockney is hardly to be met.—G. S. Street in Pall Mall Gazette.

The Mortality List.

Manager (of great exposition)—What alarms me is our mortality list. Assistant—Mortality list? Why, it's next to nothing at all. "I know better than that. More than one-third of the people that come through the turnstiles are deadheads."

All a Matter of Doubt Anyway.

A young man from the south who a few years ago was so fortunate as to be enabled to enter the law offices of a well known New York firm was first intrusted with a very simple case. He was asked by the late James C. Carter, then a member of the firm, to give an opinion in writing. When this was submitted it was observed by Mr. Carter that, with the touching confidence of a neophyte, the young southerner had begun with the expression, "I am clearly of opinion."

When this caught his eye he smiled and said:

"My dear young friend, never state that you are clearly of opinion on a law point. The most you can hope to discover is the preponderance of doubt."—Success.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

VIVO flour is the best. Ask your dealer for vivo.

HORSES FOR SALE, at the Plummer livery barn.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar will bring relief to Asthma patients.

Pay up your back subscription.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar Do not wait get it at the first indication of cough or cold.

Jack Dunn returned from N.D. on Sunday last, He made a very successful falls work, as he did not loose a day for rainey weather during his absense.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar, is a remedy that cures by removing the cause. Try a 50ct. bottle.

Chris Larson the Anton dealer will pay you the highest cash price for cattle, see him before you sell.

Carl Jensen, the Kratka merchant bought a team of horses of Jim O'Brien on Monday last to use for a tote team.

Miss Amanda Dunn is taking a vacation from the Thief River Falls school to visit her parents this week.

CATTLE WANTED, Highest market price paid for fat cattle, inquire at this office, or of Chris Larson at Anton Post office.

Miss Auguste Kuebrel left today for Thief River Falls on a business trip. Miss Wolde will be chief assistant post master during her absence.

There is a green worm that is destroying the cabbage at a terriable rate this fall, and there seems to be no remedy for them, although salting the heads helps some.

Captain Fred Houg, of the Dan Patch while doing some repairing on his engine on last Monday, had a piece of steel fly and strike him in the eye, which he had to have removed by a doctor.

About all the Deer Park farmers are absent. in the Dakota harvest fields there only being 11 votes poled at the primary there Tuesday but Johnie will come marching home in time for the November election.

Some Deer Park children saw a big black bear this week, which they mistook for a big black dog until he began to walk on his hind legs, when the kids let a yell out of them and ran in one direction, and the bear in the opposit direction.

Thomas Jacobson tred to kill the worms on his cabbages by putting salt on them, and that night his neighbors cattle broke out of the pasture and eat them up, No doubte the cows relished them salted cabbage and apreaciated Toms efforts to fix up a good lunch.

The Eberhart steam boat is now at work above the big boom east of here picking up dead heads. It will improve the river for boat running if they can clear out all of them, as it gives a boat a pretty good jar to strike one end of a dead head that is sticking up while the other end is fast in the bottom of the river.

Our school board is having a lot of trouble in getting the seats for our new school house It seems the company they ordered from in Minneapolis did not have the goods on hand, but had to get them of another company, which has caused the delay, school can not now be got to running before the first week in October.

They Diden't Want John.

The A.D. Stephens political ring of Crookston backed by The Times of that city, did not leave a stone unturned to defeat John N. Kirsch, the publisher of the Crookston Journal for the nomination for representative of that district, which they succeeded in doing by a small margin, and why? Because they knew that John was a true representative of the people and might tell tales out of school next spring about the doings of the senatorial Representative of the G. N.

The First Heat Is Over.

This township only poled 22 votes at the last Tuesdays primary election. as there was to many of the voters absent in the Dakota harvest fields at the present time. The votes were divided as follows, 15 Rebublican, 6 Socilist, and 1 Democrat. Of the Republican votes, Hanson recived 10 for State Senator. Lightbourn 2 and Simons 1 Opsahl recived 10 votes for representative and McClaug 0. There was the usal number of mistakes in voting, two of the voters not voting on the legislatative ticket at all. Notwithstanding there was only two candidates to vote for, on the Socialist ticket our Socialist friends to the number of 6 thought it was their duty to start Haldor E. Boen on his race for congress, as he will still be running after November 6th, in fact he can keep running all winter if he wants to, but he will not slip into congress on a popular party wave as he did before.

Additional Locals.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar, will cure your cough.

A second hand cook stove and two sheet iron chimneys for sale cheap at this office.

Chris Larson the hustler from Anton was looking up cattle to buy in this locality last Tuesday.

Walt McAndress drove down to Thief River Falls Tuesday on a business trip, returning Wednesday.

John Radneski the Radny store keeper, was a down river passenger Thursday on his way to Thief River Falls.

Miss Christie and Bell Vattendahl were passengers down the river on Thursdays Flyer, on their way to Crookston, where they will work this fall.

It has not been a very prosperous fall for the Dakota card sharks, who follow up the laboring men to win their hard earned dollars, as the weather has been so fair there has been no time for playing cards.

The Dan Patch and Red Lake Flyer passed up the river this morning with a big Wanigon in tow, which will be used to bring down another drive from the upper river. Look out for logs soon, for they will be coming.

We are going to take orders for fruit trees and shrubery soon for next spring delivery. Do not order of strange agents that you will never see again, but get your trees of a man at home that you can enter your complaint to if anything is wrong.

A Wonderful Theory.

Gladys—I don't like this egg, auntie. It's not good. Auntie—Nonsense, dear! It was only laid yesterday. Gladys—Well, then, it must have been laid by a bad hen.

Still in the Future.

Cashier (coughing)—Pardon me, I did not catch your last name. Ethel (blushing)—I haven't caught it yet myself.—Cleveland Leader.

Disappointment on Both Sides.

"You said the house was only five minutes' walk from the station," complained the victim. "To say the least, I'm disappointed in you."

"And I'm disappointed in you," replied the agent. "I thought you were a very rapid walker."—Philadelphia Press.

MARKS'S LUNG BALSAM, with TAR.

For the cure of all diseases of the lungs, throat and chest, as Cough, Cold, Asthma, Bronchitis La Grip and will Prevent consumption when taken in time.

J. K. WOOD,

COUNTY SURVEYOR, & CIVIL ENGINEER.

Will give all orders for Surveying prompt attention.

Office at Thief River Falls Minnesota.

U.S. Mail,

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 8. 30 a. m. on Tuesday's Thurday's and Saturday's. & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 3. p.m.

Wm. G. Hunt, P.M.

MONEY TO LOAN.

I have money to loan on real-estate at 7½ per cent. Payments at the land office made for you when you make final proof.

Special attention given to Notary Public work.

Applications to make final proof written free.

Stephen Singer,

Rhoda Minn.

Subscribe for The Sunbeam,

Wanted; Gentleman or lady with good reference, to travel by rail or with a rig, for a firm of $250,000.00 capital. Salary $1,072.00 per year and expenses; salary paid weekly and expenses advanced. Address, with stamp, Jos. A. Alexander, Subeam, Minn.

LAND OFFICE BUSINESS.

U.S. Commissioner L. G. Browning with office located at Thief River Falls, is prepared to take homestead entries final proof etc., within the Crookston U. S. Land District.

office in News building, three doors south of the post office.

ECZEMA and PILE CURE FREE.

Knowing what it was to suffer, I will give FREE OF CHARGE, to any afflicted a Positive cure for Eczema, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Piles and Skin Diseases. Instant relief. Don't suffer longer, Write F. W. Williams, 400 Manhattan Avenue, New York. Enclose Stamp.

Out of the Public.

When I was a very little boy, writes Sir William Gregory in his autobiography, my grandfather, who was then undersecretary for Ireland, took me to the chief secretary's room in Dublin castle and formally introduced me to Lord Melbourne.

After I had been with him for some little time he said, "Now, my boy, is there anything here you would like?"

"Yes," I answered, pointing to a very large stick of sealing wax.

"That's right," said Lord Melbourne, pressing on me a bundle of pens; "begin life early. All these things belong to the public, and your business must always be to get out of the public as much as you can."—Pearson's Weekly.

Omens of Bricklayers.

Bricklayers believe it is unlucky to lay the top brick at the north corner of a building. Some of them would lose a day's pay rather than imperil their future by doing such a piece of work. A bricklayer often bricks up in the hollow of a wall a horseshoe with a cent tied to it. This he does for good luck. To lay the first and last brick of any building but a church brings good luck to the bricklayer. Churches are the luckiest buildings to work on; theaters are the unluckiest. It is bad luck to break a trowel.—New York Press.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York

Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

Why the Devil Has Cloven Hoofs.

Legends of the devil are quite common in Ireland, but the one which is most interesting and least known perhaps is that which tells why the prince of the infernal regions has split hoofs like those of a cow beast. Moore alludes to the legend in his story of St. Kevin and Kathleen at Glendalough. In that story Moore makes St. Kevin throw his former ladylove over the cliff in order to be rid of her importunities, but the peasants of the Glendalough district give the story a more poetical touch. They insist that it was not Kathleen that was thrown over the cliff, but that it was Satan, who had assumed the form of the lady in order to tempt the saint. The moment the prince of evil toppled over the edge of the yawning abyss he spread his batlike wings and sailed away in safety, much to the surprise of the holy saint. Later on the devil again attempted to lay a snare for St. Kevin, but the saint managed to get the arch fiend on holy ground, where, of course, he was helpless. While the devil was in this helpless condition Kevin sawed off his legs and attached cows' hoofs to the stumps. Since that day Satan has been cloven footed and will be until the end of time.

Echoes and Architects.

"It is possible to make echoes," said an architect. "It is, indeed, easier to make than to destroy them. In the past men built their great temples and cathedrals with no thought of acoustics; hence when the preacher preached echoes rolled freely amid the groinings of the roof, down the rows of sculptured columns and round and round the nave. With wires strung here and with tapestries spread there, many of the echoes of the old world buildings have been obliterated There are echo experts—builders acquainted with the science of acoustics whose specialty is echoes' destruction. Sometimes their tasks are hard. Today an architect takes thought of the echo. His building is constructed so as to exclude this intruder. And, knowing how to exclude it, he knows how to welcome it also. I have frequently in landscape work put up summer houses and arranged rocks so as to create an echo there."—Exchange.

Flogging.

Flogging, in public and otherwise, is not of mediaeval origin. In the middle ages ridicule and not physical suffering was the means employed for the correction of wrongdoing; hence the pillory, the stocks and the thewe—a chair suspended high over the heads of the crowd, in which women, generally scolds, were brought to a sweet reasonableness—but the whipping post belongs to the Tudor age. The Elizabethan servant question was met by flogging girls for idleness on Sunday morning. But it was in the Hanoverian period that flogging was carried to excess. As late as 1804 six women were publicly flogged in Gloucester, England, because they had been found begging.

European Jiu Jitsu.

A French teacher of boxing points out that an art of self defense approximately equivalent to jiu jitsu was known in Europe in the seventeenth century. Its principles are expounded in a work by one Nicolas Peters, published at Amsterdam in 1674 and bearing the lengthy explanatory title: "The art of wrestling and how one can protect oneself in all kinds of quarrels that may occur; how one can with agility and rapidity repel all unfair attacks and meet one's adversary with science." The work is illustrated. The author apparently anticipated many of the characteristic grips of the Japanese exponents of today.

An Island City.

Greater New York consists of forty-five islands. It might be called the Island City. Read the names of some of the larger: Manhattan Island, Long Island, Staten Island, Hart's Island, City Island, Riker's Island, North Brother Island, South Island, Blackwell's Island, Randall's Island, Ward's Island, Berrian's Island, Governors Island, Barren Island and Coney Island. Many small ones in Jamaica bay have large names. One inland island, Marble Hill, near Kingsbridge, has been made by the government channel cut through on the Harlem river improvements.

Usually Effective.

"Sometimes," said the merchant, "I feel like the poet who wanted a lodge in some vast wilderness. I yearn for solitude and silence."

"Well," replied his friend sympathetically, "it's an expensive taste to gratify, but you might start in by taking your advertisement out of the newspapers."—Washington Star.

A Trifle Better.

Professor—Pray excuse me for keeping you waiting for a few minutes, gentlemen. Unfortunately I have come without the manuscript of my lecture, but I have sent my little boy for it. Little Boy (entering the hall)—Mother says she can't find the manuscript of your lecture, but I've brought the book you copied it from.

Awful Thought!

Molly—Papa, I wish you'd close the door of your room when gentlemen are calling on me. Your snores are something fearful. Dad—Well, it won't hurt 'em. Molly—Perhaps not, but they might think it's hereditary.

The Benefit.

She—So you really imagine that smoking benefits you. He—I know it does. My mother-in-law leaves the room the minute I light my pipe.

It Looks That Way.

Apropos of the distinction between an amateur and a professional, is a man a professional if he marries for money?—Life.

IF YOU WANT TO DO BUSINESS,

With The People Of Eastern Red Lake County,

YOU SHOULD ADVERTISE

IN A PAPER,

THAT THEY TAKE AND READ.

TRY "THE SUNBEAM", WITH AN AD., FOR RESULTS.

THE FIRST

STATE BANK, OF

THIEF RIVER FALLS, WILL LOAN YOU THE

Money To Make Your Second Payment, or to make your final proof. Give us a call, as we give the best rates

On Farm Loans.

Stephen Singer, Edward Singer,

SINGER BROS.

Dealers In,

WORKING MEN'S CLOTHING
MADE IN DULUTH
This line is justly celebrated because they fit and STAND THE WEAR
WE CAN FIT YOU

Groceries, flour & feed.

Dry Goods, Boots & Shoes.

HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR FARM PRODUCE

Rhoda, Minn.

NEW STORE,

AT ANTON MINNESOTA.

Dry Goods, Goceries, Flour & feed.

Fine & Heavy Shoes, of best quality.

EXCLUSIVE AGENTS FOR THE CELEBRATED DE LAVAL CREAM SEPERATOR, IN THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

Any Kind Of Stock Taken In Exchange For Goods.

Give me a call.

Located at Anton post office, on the Red Lake River, Eigh miles east of Thief River Falls.

Chris Larson.-Proprietor.

AT THE PACK-MULE CLAIM

By PHILIP VERRILL MIGHELS.

Four men, bound hand and foot, were standing beneath a truss of the railway bridge, and above their heads four ropes came dangling down, each with a noose at the end. A grimly silent throng of cowboys and miners hedged them in.

One of the four, whose appeals and protests were of no avail, appeared to be the merest youth. He quaked with terror as the noose was deftly slipped about his neck.

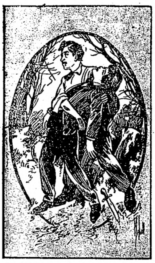
"Oh, let me go—let me go!" he sobbed: "I'm a girl—I'm only a girl!"

The man addressed and all the men who had a grip on the end of the rope, ready to pull at the signal, gaped with open mouths.

"Girl!" said Joe Merrill, the leader. "What are you doing here? How do you come with this gang of thieves?" He took off her small felt hat, and saw that her short, curly hair was as black as velvet.

The girl continued to cry convulsively. Merrill dropped her hat from nerveless fingers. His face became as gray as dust. "Slack up on the ropes!" he commanded hoarsely. "March them down to Pizen; they can tell their story there."

Falling behind the mob, which was moving away like a many-jointed creature, Merrill saw an opportunity to pause in a shadow and let them all proceed without him.



"Bronny!" She Cried, and Fainted in His Arms..

"She has come to hunt me up," he muttered. "But—I'm ashamed to let her know me—now."

The crowd of men with the captives had scattered when Merrill came to Pizen Spring, the town on the edge of the mines in the mountains and the cattle ranges in the valley.

The three men had been able to prove themselves miners and entirely innocent of the crime for which they came so near losing their lives.

The girl, who had fallen in with the miners by chance, had come to Pizen in search of her brother. Her name was Maggie Drew. Her stepfather, she said, had been dead a year; her mother was ill; the work of the ranch had devolved upon herself. She had heard that Bronson Drew, her brother, was in Nicoll Valley, and now that the step-parent was alive no longer, she had hopes that if she could find him he would willingly go back to the place. She had come in the dress of a boy because of its convenience and its suitability to her purpose. She had never seen nor heard from this brother during more than seven years of his absence.

As Merrill started to walk to his cabin that evening a man stepped out in the path before him.

"Evening!" he said, and made to pass.

"Evening, Bronson Drew!" replied the man.

He turned sharply. "Who told you that? Who are you?" he demanded. The voice sounded half familiar, but he could not recognize the bearded face in the shadow.

"Don't say a word," replied the stranger. "Come here a little and I'll tell you something about your sister. It's something you'll be glad to know."

There was ample acknowledgment of the name of Drew and his kinship with the girl in "Merrill's" silent compliance with the man's request.

He was on the alert for any suspicious movement, but he was entirely unprepared for a ruffian who glided behind them at the corner and dealt him a blow on the back of the head with a clubbed revolver. He sank without a sound to the earth.

When he regained his senses, Drew found himself lying on the dusty floor of a cabin. Dawn had broken, but the place was dark. He failed to recognize anything familiar, even as the light increased. A dull pain was throbbing at the base of his brain.

At length the door was opened; the man who had brought him to the place came quietly in.

"Good-morning, Bronson," said the man, as he noted the two brilliant eyes regarding his face. "Didn't know me, did you, when we met last night?"

Everything came back to the wounded man in a flash. He knew his assailant now—his step-father's son, Charlie Marshall, the creature who had broken up the home. He could make no reply, gagged and powerless as he was.

"Don't be a cur; speak up to your brother," taunted Marshall, grinning with delight. "Can't you get up and break my jaw, like you did before? No? Now that's a pity."

The man who was bound could see behind the scarred and bearded face, and he discovered again the malicious countenance of the boy he had met when his mother married Caleb Marshall and plunged them all in trouble.

Again he listened to the sneering taunts heaped by the interloper on his mother, his sister and himself; again he resented the intrusion of this human brute; again he fought the fight in which he nearly killed the fellow for an unbearable insult to Maggie.

As for Marshall, he had a plan concocted in his ingenious brain. He meant to possess the Drew ranch alone. His father was dead; Mrs. Drew-Marshall was ill; Bronson Drew was in his power, and Maggie—he was planning concerning the girl.

In the late afternoon he composed a note to Maggie Drew, urging that she come at once to render aid. This he signed with the name of his prisoner; and certain old-time pet names which he had heard frequently pronounced he employed to give his note a genuine flavor.

Then he walked rapidly up the ravine to a spring, where his horse was concealed in the willows, and rode away to the north.

Bronson Drew, half choked, cut by the ropes about his arms, famishing for water, was keenly alive to suffering.

Now an odor stole to his senses; it was faint and fleeting. Before he could catch it the air had diluted its essence. It came again—smoke! Something was burning!

Suddenly a slender flame went licking upward in a corner.

Drew was numbed with horror. To be roasted alive—this was to be his fate! He worked and wrenched at his fastenings madly.

A knot gave way. The rope was as good as broken. With a great contortion Drew squirmed himself free. He rolled over, got on his knees, and jumped, with his feet tied together and his hands behind his back through the door.

It was dark and early, the second morning after Maggie Drew's narrow escape, when a silent figure glided from the brush to the stable where "Merrill" kept his horse. He led the animal forth, saddled him hurriedly, and then proceeded to make him wet at a watering trough and to make him foam with soap. Next he took a piece of folded paper from his pocket and tied it to the stirrup.

Leading the horse across the road beneath the windows of the Russell house, where Maggie Drew was staying, the inhuman being cut a tendon near the hoof in the right foreleg of the horse, and thereby rendered him helpless. The agonized creature gave a shrill cry of pain.

Evidently satisfied, the man-form glided again to the brush and disappeared. At the second neigh of the helpless horse a window went up and Maggie Drew was looking forth. The pitiful horse-cry continued. Presently came a noise of shutting doors, and then the faces of the two Russell girls were also at the window.

"I know that horse is in pain," said the voice of Maggie. She soon came running out, half-clad and wrapped in a shawl. Her quick eyes rapidly took in the situation. She knew the horse could barely hobble, she thought he had come on a terrible chase. Then she found the paper at the stirrup.

One of the chattering girls brought a light and read the note which Charlie Marshall had written at the Pack-Mule claim.

Maggie made no sound when the end was reached.

She put on her boy's clothes as if by instinct. With the note in her shirt she ran to the shed.

She saddled an astonished broncho and like a spirit of the wind he shot away at the top of his speed.

A cry came floating down the gulch; then a series of yelps. She knew the voice of the timber wolf, when three or more are banded together, and the sound gave her a thrill of dread.

Almost immediately she raced about a curve, and felt that the wolves were near at hand. The light had increased. In a second she saw the animals, standing at bay before a man, who was bound hand and foot.

"Hi!" cried Maggie, instinctively, forgetting herself for the second.

"Maggie!" shouted the man, who had rubbed off the gag on the rocks.

That second Maggie slipped to the ground, fell headlong, regained her feet and went running back along the trail. She panted; her hat was gone; her knife was clutched wildly in her hand.

"Hi! Hi! Hi!" cried the girl again. The cowardly beasts ran a rod and stood to gather courage. Her knife slipped quickly across the ropes—her brother was free—to defend, to protect, to fight.

"Bronny!" she cried, and fainted in his arms.

Marshall, the hunted, rode like a fiend that night, to escape his pursuers, but they caught him in the Pack-Mule ravine and strung him up to the nearest tree.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

LEADS WORLD IN FIANACE.

France Succeeds England as a Result of South African War.

A writer in the Review of Reviews says that France is now playing the role of the world's banker. England lost her claim to the title when she went to war in South Africa. A generation ago one had to go to London to feel the pulse of the international money market. Today one makes a better diagnosis in Paris.

The strides toward financial supremacy which France is making have been most rapid in the last five years. In that time French investors have taken up many milliard francs of foreign obligations. They furnished Great Britain with much of the capital that went to finance the boer war; they loaned enormous amounts to Russia, practically supplying the money needed in the struggle against Japan; they provided Germany with 1,000,000,000 marks in 1904-5 to carry on her tremendous industrial enterprises; they took a liberal amount of the last Japanese loan, more than half of the Russian loan of last April and finally they supplied borrowers in the United States with fully $150,000,000 during the tight money period of last winter and are now financing the bond and note issues of some of our greatest corporations.

There is a great reservoir of free capital in France which is being tapped by the other thirsty nations and which in spite of the drain on it keeps well filled and shows no sign of exhaustion. The Bank of France, the largest hoarder of gold next to the United States treasury, has in its vaults today nearly $600,000,000 of the precious metal; two years ago it had $450,000,000 and in 1900, when Paris began slowly to forge ahead of London as the center of largest money supply, the institution held only $375,000,000.

How has France, a nation industrially inferior to Germany and with a commerce much below that of Great Britainn, gained such a power in world finance? The answer is, through her domestic economy. For frugality, thrift, intense application to the work in hand and the commendable ambition to carve from life's labors enough to make bright the inevitable rainy day and to cheer old age the Frenchman has no peer. To save is an inherited desire.

The poorest peasant in the least productive parish of the republic manages to put aside a little each year for a competency and the fishermen down on the Brittany coast would have starved a few winters ago, when the catch was almost nothing, had they not been able to draw from the savings of more fruitful years. Tens of thousands of small shopkeepers, innkeepers, scantily paid government employes are investors, and their combined savings have provided the funds to finance many a nation and carry it through a lean period.

The population of France is about 40,000,000 people, the wealth of France is nearly $45,000,000,000. This wealth is evenly distributed. The number of estates administered in 1904 was 394,787 and of these one-half were for values ranging from less than 10,000 to a little under $100,000. Only three were over $10,000,000.

DAY OF LARGE FEES.

Eminent Lawyers and Surgeons Receive Magnificent Sums.

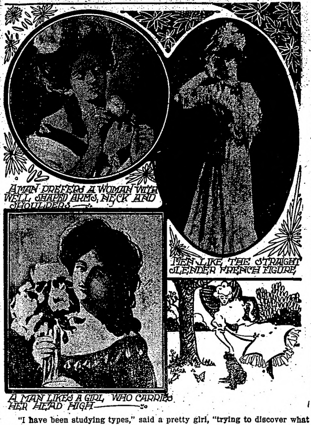
This is an age of great fees in law, in surgery, in science and even in diplomacy. These fees are not always paid by corporations or Indian tribes, says the Baltimore Sun. A few years ago (it was widely published at the time) a gentleman who was among the leaders of the New York bar received a fee of $100,000 for a legal opinion which he was able to give almost offhand. A question involving the status of a great enterprise was submitted to him in the form of a memorandum. He wrote his opinion in one word and it was sustained in the courts. This seems to be an absurdly large sum to pay for one word of legal advice. In another aspect, however, it was not excessive, for it enabled this company to establish itself in an impregnable position in the legal point of view and to continue its operations with the assurance that it could not be attacked successfully. At the close of the war between China and Japan eleven years ago the Chinese government needed the services of an able and experienced diplomatist to cope with the capable and up-to-date Japanese diplomats. It therefore engaged Mr. John W. Foster, a former secretary of state of the United States, to assist in the preparation of the treaty of peace. It is understood that the fee which Mr. Foster received from China was $150,000, a large sum, to be sure, but not out of proportion to the services he rendered. China was at the mercy of Japan, which was able to enforce its demands, both as regards territory and indemnity. By persuading the Japanese to modify their demands Mr. Foster was in a position to save China territory and treasure. It was a business matter throughout, and the Chinese government seems to have been thoroughly satisfied with the work of its American agent.

Presence of Mind.

"O, Charley, dear," exclaimed young Mrs. Spendit, as they sat together at the table, "where is the locket I gave you before we were married?"

And Charley with a guilty consciousness of the pawn ticket in his vest pocket answered glibly: "Well, dear, it is just as well to keep on the right side of these rich relatives, so I left it as a pledge of affection with my uncle just now."—Baltimore American.

The Women Men Like Best.



A MAN PREFERS A WOMAN WITH WELL SHAPED ARMS, NECK AND SHOULDERS
MEN LIKE THE STRAIGHT SLENDER FRENCH FIGURE
A MAN LIKES A GIRL WHO CARRIES HER HEAD HIGH

"I have been studying types," said a pretty girl, "trying to discover what kind of a woman a man likes.

"I want to be a popular girl, and I want to be a likable girl. And so I've taken up the study. What kind of a woman does a man like? That has been my text book.

"Thus far, judging right up to date, I would say that men like quiet women. They do not like chatty girls. They prefer to do the chatting for themselves. Wherever you see a quiet little puss in a corner you may be sure some man will find her out and talk to her. She has a perfect faculty for gathering the men around her.

"I should say, also, that men like a plump woman. There are men who prefer lean women, but it is only under compulsion.

"Men like bright, sweet, sentimental girls. They like girls who can sit out on the piazza railing and look at the stars. They don't want girls who fall in love with them or say sweet nothings. They can do that for themselves. But they do like girls of sentiment; they like girls who can appreciate a good thing and who like to be talked to and raved over.

"The man of to-day likes a healthy girl. He likes a well girl; he likes a girl with no ailments. There is no place for the sickly beauty in the love world of to-day.

"A man likes a girl who has tact. Tact is a wonderful thing. The girl who has tact is one who never treads upon one's corns, mentally speaking. She never mentions wrong subjects, and she doesn't ask you how old you are or questions you about your past.

"About physical peculiarities, the man of the season had real and very decided tastes. He likes the girl with a good complexion. No girl with a bad skin need apply. And none but she and her lavender chest can tell how she accomplishes it.

"The man of the season likes a girl with nice teeth. There is something very inviting about a row of pearls. The lips may not be correctly shaped, yet, if the teeth are white and even and fragrant, one can forgive a great deal. The mouth looks so sweet and captious.

"The man of the season likes a girl with a little waist. Say what you please about health and hygiene, preach till you're dead about physical culture and nature's true shape, the fact remains that a trim little waist is pretty.

"Men like girls who do not cry and who never get tired. It is distressing to take a girl upon a yachting cruise unless she can stand the gaff—so to speak. If she sobs in a squall and gets tired dodging the waves then she is no yachting girl for any man.

"Men like rich girls. There is no doubt about it. 'I like a rich girl,' said a man, 'because she is so comfortable in her ways. The poor girl has an anxious manner. But the rich girl, with half a million back of her, is comfortable. She feels at ease about her future. If more poor girls knew this it would be better for them. It isn't so much the money as it is the manner. Money gives manner.'

"Men like girls who have nice feet. Men cast their eyes downward at an early stage of the game, and they know a thing or two about she leather. The girl with lumpy, bumpy shoes seldom has a beau. The girl with the flat instep never has one. The girl who wears big, ugly shoes and whose laces are dull and gray is never troubled with sweethearts. And the girl whose shoes do not match her gown has very little chance this season.

"Men like a girl who can sit and do nothing. There has been too much of the ambitious female. They like a girl who can sit and think of nothing at all. They like the girl who is sweet and quiet, idle and amiable. They can do all the rest for themselves. Of course, there are other things that men like, but these are the principal ones."

Newest Novelties in Fashionable Footwear.

Some Exceeding Clever and Pretty Ideas Are to Be Found in the Stores.

Embroidered white linen shoes which match or nearly match the gown are the latest pretty extravagance of fashion. Chic and novel, the embroidered linen has taken the fancy of the "linen girl," until the Paris shoemaker who imports them has been promising to fill orders in shades of gray, tan, mauve, and pink and dark colors. These shoes have the modified French heel, which is broad compared to the Louis Quinze, and still sufficiently high for appearances. Glace kid shoes in red, violet, ruby, and champagne are coming in the empire shape, with a single strap and large buckle. Black glace kid in the same shape is most chic and popular when finished with a large silver or steel buckle, so that there never was time so opportune for getting out an old pair of heirloom buckles.

White and gray antelope is a dull finished kid which is taking the place of canvas in many of the better shops. Colored undressed kid and black in the same soft finish are coming again in sandal shape with several straps to be laced with ribbons to match. These, it is pointed out by the shoe man, give the foot a slimmer and daintier appearance than it possesses by nature. Both black and colored, one finished with a circular ornament of dull jet.

Evening shoes of regal splendor come in brocaded tissue of both gold and silver, and grosgrain silk is the material of a ballroom slipper. There is a yachting or deck shoe which comes without heels.

To Take the Proper Care of the Piano.

Some Very Simple Precautions That Will Add to the Life of the Instrument.

A pianoforte is peculiarly susceptible to atmospheric changes, and is quickly affected by damp or draught. For this reason an upright pianoforte should never be put against an outer wall, or one recently built, or be permitted to block a doorway. If an inner wall be not available the instrument should be placed at an angle to the wall, so as to jut partly out into the room, a position which has many advantages, notably in singing. The presence of damp is generally first noticeable by the notes continuing to sound after the fingers have been lifted from the keys, or by a general buzz when the instrument is played. Later the keys will stick down, or return slowly instead of quickly to their normal positions. When this happens the action should be lifted out and laid in front of a fire for several hours. Afterward benzine should be worked into the centers of the hammer shanks and movable parts; but this must be done away from the fire and in daylight, as benzine is highly inflammable. The action is easily lifted out, being only kept in place by buttons on either side, but care is necessary to clear the pedal rods. A pianoforte standing in a room in which a fire is rarely lighted should be covered with a blanket and flannel should be laid along the keys to prevent them becoming yellow.

The first cast-iron bridge in the world was the Coalbrookdale bridge, England, which was built in 1779.

Delicacy is to the mind what fragrance is to the fruit.—A. Poincelot.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES color more goods, per package, than others, and the colors are brighter and faster.

There ought to be some method of restraining people who dodge in order to avoid getting what is coming to them.

WOMEN'S NEGLECT

SUFFERING THE SURE PENALTY

Health Thus Lost Is Restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

How many women do you know who are perfectly well and strong? We hear every day the same story over and over again. "I do not feel well; I am so tired all the time!"

Miss Kate McDonald

More than likely you speak the same words yourself, and no doubt you feel far from well. The cause may be easily traced to some derangement of the female organs which manifests itself in depression of spirits, reluctance to go anywhere or do anything, backache, bearing-down pains, flatulency, nervousness, sleeplessness, or other female weakness.

These symptoms are but warnings that there is danger ahead, and unless heeded a life of suffering or a serious operation is the inevitable result.

The never-failing remedy for all these symptoms is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Miss Kate McDonald of Woodbridge, N. J., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:

"Restored health has meant so much to me that I cannot help from telling about it for the sake of other suffering women.

"For a long time I suffered untold agony with a female trouble and irregularities, which made me a physical wreck, and no one thought I would recover, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has entirely cured me, and made me well and strong, and I feel it my duty to tell other suffering women what a splendid medicine it is."

For twenty-five years Mrs. Pinkham, daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, has under her direction, and since her decease, been advising sick women free of charge. Her advice is free and always helpful. Address, Lynn, Mass.

A Positive CURE CATARRH

Ely's Cream Balm

is quickly absorbed. Gives Relief at Once.

ELY'S CREAM BALM
CATARRH
CURES COLD IN HEAD
ROSE-COLD
HAY-FEVER
DEAFNESS
HEADACHE
ELY BROS.
NEW YORK

It cleanses, soothes heals and protects the diseased membrane. It cures Catarrh and drives away a Cold in the Head quickly. Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. Full size 50 cts., at Druggists or by mail; Trial Size 10 cts. by mail.
Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

HAY FEVER

Should Hens

be helped to make a large egg yield? Why not, as well as helping cows to give extra milk?

SHERIDAN'S CONDITION POWDER

is a scientific medicine invented to enable hens get the full benefit from all kinds of food. It's the pioneer of tonics to make hens lay. In use over forty years.
One pack, 25c.; five, $1; two-lb. can, $1.20; six, $5.00. Express paid. At all dealers.
I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

SICK HEADACHE

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively cured by these Little Pills.

They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.

SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature

Brent Good

REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

90,000,000 BUSHELS

FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

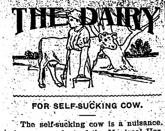
THAT'S THE WHEAT CROP IN WESTERN CANADA THIS YEAR

This with nearly 88,000,000 bushels of oats and 17,000,000 bushels of barley means a continuation of good times for the farmers of Western Canada.

Free farms, big crops, low taxes, healthy climate, good churches and schools, splendid railway service.

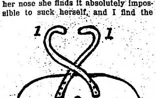
The Canadian Government offers 160 acres of land free to every settler willing and able to comply with the Homestead Regulations.

Advice and information may be obtained free from W. D. Scott Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada; or from authorized Canadian Government Agents—Chas. Pilling, Clifford Blk., Grand Forks, N. Dak., I. M. Machlan, Box 116, Watertown, S. Dakota, R. T. Holmes, 315 Jackson Street, St. Paul, Minn.



FOR SELF-SUCKING COW.

The self-sucking cow is a nuisance. A correspondent of the Montreal Herald has this to say about preventive methods: I have tried the spiked halter and the neck cradle, but have found that a determined cow was equal to circumventing either device. I have a cow now that has smashed up two neck cradles and to which a spiked halter proved useless, but since but since using the contrivance on her nose she finds it absolutely impossible to suck herself, and I find the benefit in the milk pail. The device is very simple and does not hinder the animal from feeding in the pasture. It consists of two pieces of iron (1) and a small piece of wood, (2). The iron is shaped like the orinary "humbug" to fit into the nostrils and the lower ends are screwed firmly to the wood. When fixed in the animal's nostrils the wood hangs down over her lips and prevents any attempt to take the teat in her mouth. I have found it an absolute preventative and don't think there can be any better contrivance of a simple nature.



To Keep Cow from Sucking.

PARAFINING CHEESE.

It Must Not Be Done Until the Cheese Has Done Shrinking.

Parafining is a profitable process, and is not likely to be abandoned. But there are things about it that must be learned. One of these is that cheese must not be parafined too quickly after coming from the hoops. In that case the shrinking of the cheese afterwards causes the parafine to crack and the air gets into the cracks and of course quickly dries out the cheese in spots. After coming from the hoops the cheese should be permitted to remain uncoated for about a week, according to the experiences of some cheesemakers. The parafining of cheese, says Farmers' Review, is to save the loss from shrinkage. Probably the cheese is better for retaining this moisture, as a dry cheese is not so desirable as a moist one. It is probable that the ripening will go on more uniformly in a moist cheese than in a dry one and that the curing will be more complete.

DAIRY NOTES.

Begin to feed those that are to be turned off.

It seldom pays to feed old animals for profit.

Now is the time to put old animals in condition to sell.

Use the test and know which are the best. Don't guess at it.

The best time to fatten is in warm weather; the best way, a little grain with the pasture.

Dry off the poor cows now and fatten them before the weather is cold. Be wise and keep only the best.

Are the cows well supplied with green fodder? If not you cannot expect them to keep up the supply of milk.

Keep the calves away from the torture of flies. Remember that the future prosperity of the dairy is dependent upon these calves.

I still see, in driving around the country, calves in the pig pasture. It is a loss to the owners, to say nothing of the suffering of the poor defenseless calves.

They should be protected from the torture of flies by the use of some good spray, and kept in out of the sun during the hottest part of the day.—Farm Journal.

FARM BITS.

In Germany 12½ per cent. of all the land cultivated is planted to potatoes. This is for human food, stock feeding and alcohol making.

Take advantage of rainy days and mend some of the harness. It is not safe to allow the harness to get weak.

The springs are low now. Good time to dig them out and make them larger and better. Stone them up, too, and put a good cover over them. I know of some good calves that have been drowned in open springs.

Fix up just the best you can when you go out driving. It makes the wife and children proud when they see "what a fine looking man father is."

Keep your eye out for a sapling that will make a good harness hook. Often, when in the woods, you may come across one. Cut it and take it home to be nailed up in the right place in the stable.

Best Time to Cut Timber.

The best time to cut timber to have it last and make the best of firewood and posts, is after the leaves get fully ripe and before the first frost. There is less sap in the wood then. Just cut it off the stump at this time of the year if you are in a hurry, and let it lie until you have time to trim it up.

THE YOUNG COW.

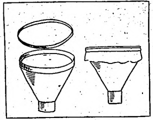
Judgment as to Her Value as a Milker Should Not Be Passed Too Early.

The young cow is an unknown quantity. No man living can tell the first year whether a cow is worth little or much. Some of the cows that have produced such small quantities of milk and butter fat that their owners have thought it wise to sell them have in later years developed into remarkable milkers. This fact is not only known to individual farmers, but has been demonstrated at our experiment stations. At the Michigan station one young cow that was a very small producer of milk and butter fat, and had more of the beef form than the dairy form, in subsequent years greatly changed her characteristics. As she grew older the beef form largely disappeared, and her form took on the wedge-shape peculiar to the dairy cow. She became a producer of milk in such immense quantities and of such richness that she obtained a national reputation.

In the early days of the Babcock test, many farmers disposed of young cows on the presumption that the test the first year had shown about what the cows would do in subsequent years. It was not long, however, before the professors of dairying and dairy experts everywhere began to advise the farmers against the practice. The young cow, if poorly fed, will develop but slowly (or not at all) into a good cow. If with her the old practice is followed of giving her only dry forage in winter and nothing but pasture grass in summer, it is doubtful if she will develop her full capacity for milk giving before she is seven or eight years of age. If, however, she is fed a good ration and one in accordance with the best scientific methods, she will develop about her full capacity by the time she is four or five years of age. It will take about three years of milking, says the Farmers' Review, to show what she is worth in any case. Our advice concerning the young cow is to give her a bountiful supply of feed, balancing up the concentrated foods with a large quantity of rough feeds, such as hay or silage, so that she will not overeat. There is no danger of an animal overeating if the bulky foods are in sufficient proportion. Danger only comes when she is allowed to eat a quantity of concentrated foods, or when she is given an unlimited quantity of green alfalfa, which is excessively rich in nitrogen.

A SANITARY MILK STRAINER.

Careful straining of milk is important if it is to be gotten to the dairy in the very best condition. One difficulty with many strainers, says the Farm and Home, is they are hard to clean and very unsanitary. The sketch shows a form of tin strainer over which a piece of cheese cloth is stretched which is easily cleaned and very simple to use. Two or three thicknesses of cheese cloth are pressed over the top of the funnel shaped tin and a ring, which is slightly larger, pulled down tightly to hold strainer cloth. This strainer will set comfortably in the can or other vessel and may be cleaned quickly and thoroughly.



Milk Strainer.

Feed According to Individual Needs.

Dairy cows should be fed according to their age, size and requirements. Large cows need more feed than the smaller ones and any cow in the flush of her milk flow needs more food than when she is only giving a limited quantity.

A Ruinous Policy.

Selling the whole milk off the farm is ruinous of fertility and can only be afforded when the receipts for the milk are so good as to afford a return to the land by the purchase of food for the stock or of fertilizers.

A Winning Combination.

The combination that wins is pure, well bred, well kept stock. These are important. But it is equally important to have the cows well trained. Milking habits may be ideal also.

The Young Cow.

A young cow should not be judged too hastily. She is not at her best with her first calf. If she has the right breeding, and the right feeding, she probably will come out all right with her second calf.

The Feeding of the Calf.

If a calf is fed skim milk, the butter fat should be replaced by something else. Otherwise an important element is lacking in its food, and it will be seen in its growth and maturity.

Cultivation of the Orchard.

Cultivation should be kept up during the life of the orchard, yet after trees are well established it is not so imperative. It is highly advisable to keep up high cultivation for at least the first four or five years.

Never send beets, turnips, radishes, etc., to market with quantities of soil adhering to them. It soils the hands of the buyer and the reputation of the seller.

FADED TO A SHADOW.

Worn Down by Five Years of Suffering from Kidney Complaint.

Mrs. Remethe Myers, of 180 South Tenth St., Ironton, O., says: "I have worked hard in my time and have been exposed again and again to changes of weather. It is no wonder my kidneys gave out and I went all to pieces at last. For five years I was fading away and finally so weak that for six months I could not get out of the house. I was nervous, restless and sleepless at night, and lame and sore in the morning. Sometimes everything would whirl and blur before me. I bloated so badly I could not wear tight clothing, and had to put on shoes two sizes larger than usual. The urine was disordered and passages were dreadfully frequent. I got help from the first box of Doan's Kidney Pills, however, and by the time I had taken four boxes the pain and bloating was gone. I have been in good health ever since."

Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Bismarck Hated Monuments.

Reinhold Begas, probably the greatest German sculptor, has passed his seventy-fifth birthday. Ten weeks before Bismarck's death Begas appeared at Friedrichsruh to get a final impression of Germany's most striking figure before beginning work on the great Bismarck monument voted by the reichstag. When Begas stated his mission Bismarck replied: "Gott, why do you wish to set me a great monument? Represent me as being on crutches!"

AWFUL PSORIASIS 35 YEARS.

Terrible Scaly Humor in Patches All Over the Body—Skin Cracked and Bleeding—Cured by Cuticura.

"I was afflicted with psoriasis for thirty-five years. It was in patches all over my body. I used three cakes of Cuticura Soap, six boxes of Ointment and two bottles of Resolvent. In thirty days I was completely cured, and I think permanently, as it was about five years ago. The psoriasis first made its appearance in red spots, generally forming a circle, leaving in the center a spot about the size of a silver dollar of sound flesh. In a short time the affected circle would form a heavy dry scale of a white silvery appearance and would gradually drop off. To remove the entire scales by bathing or using oil to soften them the flesh would be perfectly raw, and a light discharge of bloody substance would ooze out. That scaly crust would form again in twenty-four hours. It was worse on my arms and limbs, although it was in spots all over my body, also on my scalp. If I let the scales remain too long without removing by bath or otherwise, the skin would crack and bleed. I suffered intense itching, worse at nights after getting warm in bed, or blood warm by exercise, when it would be almost unbearable. W. M. Chidester, Hutchinson, Kan., April 20, 1905."

Sublime Faith.

Nothing short of true faith will separate a bald-headed man from the hard-earned price of a bottle of hair restorer.

How Rhodes and Beit Met.

Mr. Rhodes once told a circle of friends after dinner the story of his first meeting with Beit. "I called at Porges' late one evening," he said, "and there was Beit working away as usual. 'Do you never take a rest?' I asked. 'Not often,' he replied. 'Well, what's your game?' said I. 'I am going to control the whole diamond output before I am much older,' he answered, as he got off his stool. 'That's funny,' I said. 'I have made up my mind to do the same; we had better join hands.'" Join hands they did. Unlike Alfred Beit, Cecil Rhodes had small patience with arithmetical details. Once this characteristic involved him in a difficulty. Pitching a balance sheet into the pile of papers before Beit, he exclaimed desperately, "Here, you understand things; for heaven's sake tell me how I stand."

Laundry work at home would be much more satisfactory if the right Starch were used. In order to get the desired stiffness, it is usually necessary to use so much starch that the beauty and fineness of the fabric is hidden behind a paste of varying thickness, which not only destroys the appearance, but also affects the wearing quality of the goods. This trouble can be entirely overcome by using Defiance Starch, as it can be applied much more thinly because of its greater strength than other makes.

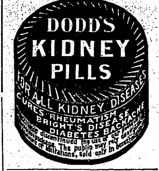
Neckties Women Buy.

Customer—Those are the fiercest looking neckties I ever saw. Why do you keep 'em?

Haberdasher—To sell.

Customer—Who on earth buys 'em?

Haberdasher—Women, to give to their husbands.



DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS
FOR ALL KIDNEY DISEASES
CURES RHEUMATISM BRIGHT'S DISEASE BACKACHE DIABETES

TOWER'S FISH BRAND

HOLD UP! and consider
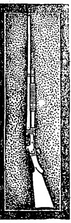
THE FISH BRAND POMMEL SLICKER
LIKE ALL TOWER'S WATERPROOF CLOTHING.
Is made of the best materials, in black or yellow fully guaranteed, and sold by reliable dealers everywhere.
STICK TO THE SIGN OF THE FISH
TOWER CANADIAN CO. LIMITED TORONTO, CAN. A. J. TOWER CO. BOSTON, MASS. U.S.A.

WHEELBARROWS and TRUCKS
ASK FOR FREE CATALOG ST-169
FAIRBANKS, MORSE & CO., St. Paul, Minn.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use } Thompson's Eye Water

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children
Bears The Signature Of Chas. H. Fletcher
In Use For Over Thirty Years
The Kind You Have Always Bought
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.



WINCHESTER
REPEATING SHOTGUNS
are strong shooters, strongly made and so inexpensive that you won't be afraid to use one in any kind of weather. They are made 10, 12 and 16 gauge.
A FAVORITE OF AMERICAN SPORTSMEN
Sold Everywhere.

WHAT JOY THEY BRING TO EVERY HOME

as with joyous hearts and smiling faces they romp and play—when in health—and how conducive to health the games in which they indulge, the outdoor life they enjoy, the cleanly, regular habits they should be taught to form and the wholesome diet of which they should partake. How tenderly their health should be preserved, not by constant medication, but by careful avoidance of every medicine of an injurious or objectionable nature, and if at any time a remedial agent is required, to assist nature, only those of known excellence should be used; remedies which are pure and wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, like the pleasant laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. Syrup of Figs has come into general favor in many millions of well informed families, whose estimate of its quality and excellence is based upon personal knowledge and use.

Syrup of Figs has also met with the approval of physicians generally, because they know it is wholesome, simple and gentle in its action. We inform all reputable physicians as to the medicinal principles of Syrup of Figs, obtained, by an original method, from certain plants known to them to act most beneficially and presented in an agreeable syrup in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to promote the pleasant taste; therefore it is not a secret remedy and hence we are free to refer to all well informed physicians, who do not approve of patent medicines and never favor indiscriminate self-medication.

Please to remember and teach your children also that the genuine Syrup of Figs always has the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package and that it is for sale in bottles of one size only. If any dealer offers any other than the regular Fifty cent size, or having printed thereon the name of any other company, do not accept it. If you fail to get the genuine you will not get its beneficial effects. Every family should always have a bottle on hand, as it is equally beneficial for the parents and the children, whenever a laxative remedy is required.

W. L. DOUGLAS
$3.50 & $3.00 Shoes
BEST IN THE WORLD
W. L. Douglas $4 Gilt Edge line cannot be equalled at any price
To Shoe Dealers: W. L. Douglas' Jobbing House is the most complete in this country Send for Catalog

SHOES
ESTABLISHED 1876
CAPITAL $2,500,000

SHOES FOR EVERYBODY AT ALL PRICES.
Men's Shoes, $5 to $1.50. Boys' Shoes, $3 to $1.25. Women's Shoes, $4.00 to $1.50. Misses' & Children's Shoes, $2.25 to $1.00.
Try W. L. Douglas Women's, Misses and Children's shoes; for style, fit and wear they excel other makes.
If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer, and are of greater value than any other make.
Wherever you live, you can obtain W. L. Douglas shoes. His name and price is stamped on the bottom, which protects you against high prices and inferior shoes. Take no substitute. Ask your dealer for W. L. Douglas shoes and insist upon having them.
Fast Color Eyelets used; they will not wear brassy.
Write for Illustrated Catalog of Fall Styles.
W. L. DOUGLAS, Dept. 12, Brockton, Mass.

SUMMER RASHES

Soothed by Baths with Cuticura SOAP
And gentle applications of Cuticura, the great Skin Cure, and purest and sweetest of emollients. For summer rashes, irritations, itchings, chafings, sunburn, bites and stings of insects, tired, aching muscles and joints, as well as for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair, and hands, Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are Priceless.
Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston.
Mailed Free, "How to Care for Skin, Scalp, & Hair."

$20
From St. Louis and Kansas City via M., K. & T. R'y
To Dallas, Ft. Worth, Waco, Houston, Galveston, San Antonio, Corpus Christi, Brownsville, Laredo, and intermediate points.
To El Paso and intermediate points $26.50
To Indian Territory, Oklahoma, and Northern Texas points, one fare plus $2.00, but no rate higher than . $20
Correspondingly low rates from all points: From Chicago, $25.00; St. Paul, $27.50; Omaha and Council Bluffs, $22.50.
Tickets on sale only on September 18th and October 2nd and 16th good thirty (30) days from date of sale, with liberal stop-over privileges in both directions.
Write for literature and full particulars
W. S. ST. GEORGE
General Passenger Agent, M., K. & T. R'y
Wainwright Building · St. Louis, Mo.
W. P. LINDSAY, 376 Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.
THE MK&T
"SOUTHWEST"

REAL ESTATE.
VIRGINIA FARMS 5 to 5,000 acres at $4 acre up. Catalog free; large map 10c. stamps. Southern Timber & Land Co., Inc., Petersburg, Va.

IOWA GIRLS till the WESTERN PLAINS as HOMESTEADERS

Sioux City, Ia.—Think of 125 human roses blooming upon the prairies of South Dakota!

With their pretty hands reddened and roughened by toil and their fair complexions exposed daily to the tanning winds, that number of real society girls from Des Moines and other Iowa cities are leading the strenuous life of the pioneer upon what was formerly the Rosebud Indian reservation.

Homebuilders in reality, every one of these enterprising girls secured a quarter section when that territory was opened to settlers two years ago. Now they have turned their backs upon the ballroom and the theater and are herding cattle, tilling the soil and living the actual life of the prairie pioneer.

While the majority are farming or raising cattle, others devote themselves to various enterprises. One is making money and winning a reputation through the practice of law; another has become a preacher; still others act as guides through the in- years ago hostile redskins were busy teresting country where only a few shedding the blood of whites.

Yet these girls, many of whom represent families of wealth, seem greatly pleased with their experiences. Moreover, they are besieged with proposals of marriage from the men on the reservation.

Perhaps it was a sudden freak of fancy that caused all these Iowa girls to apply for homesteads when the Rosebud reservation was thrown open to settlers.

They had read of the success of women who had staked claims in other sections. More than one poor girl secured an excellent farm or grazing acres when the government lands in Oklahoma and the Indian territory were thrown open.

Daughters of Wealthy Homes.

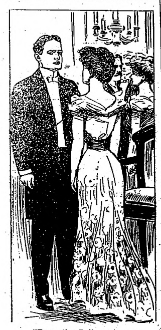
It is true that many of the Iowa girls already had comfortable—in some cases luxurious—homes, with fathers possessing bank accounts amply sufficient to meet all their needs.

What girl in this progressive age, however, is content to be entirely dependent upon others?

True, the laws governing the taking up of public lands provide that the claimant must actually reside upon, or "hold down," as it is termed, for a certain length of time the land thus obtained, and this provision doubtless caused many a pretty brow to pucker in perplexity and the pursing of many a pair of ruby lips.

Secure those homesteads, however, they would. When some of the bolder spirits announced that they proposed to become actual settlers in the new country—to be real farmers and ranchers—a thrill of approval ran through other breasts.

And that is why 125 of Iowa's most charming specimens of femininity are now wearing short skirts, stout boots and freckled faces as they "hold down" the claims they were fortunate enough to secure in the distribution of farms on the Rosebud.



"From the Ballroom to—"

"Back home" more than one society set is mourning the loss of a vivacious and popular member, and fashionable functions seem duller than before the exodus to South Dakota.

It is remarkable how those plucky young women have adapted themselves to the rather rough life of the prairie pioneers. Girls who in days gone by were shocked if the sudden departure of a servant made it necessary to wash the dishes or clean their rooms are tilling the soil or herding cattle with the nonchalence of an oldtimer.

Those who left handsome and well-appointed homes seem perfectly happy in the little 10x12 "shacks" that upon the majority of farms constitute the dwelling of the owners.

By rare good fortune in most instances and by clever trading in others nearly all these girls are in the same neighborhood. Iowana, as the colony is called, is near Philips, S. D., almost in the heart of the rich Bonesteel country.

An Iowa Colony.

While the entire territory "held down" by them covers many miles in extent, mostly all the girls have as neighbors some others "from back home," and this makes the situation exceedingly pleasant and companionable.

Numbers of them find it convenient to meet on Sundays to discuss the old life and to exchange recitals of experiences.

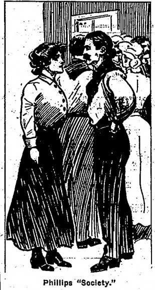
Now and then a dance is planned and is enjoyed immensely, although a prairie "shack," even with its furniture removed, does not afford a spacious ballroom.

More than in any other way—except in actual farm work—these dances illustrate the difference between the days past and those of the present.

When the girls first went to the Indian country many took with them the elaborate gowns and "fixings" that had been such a delight to the feminine heart and had turned the heads of young men before the exodus.

But of what possible use is a beautiful gown or a picture hat when one seldom sees anyone else—at least, no one except the farm hands—oftener than once a week, and where the prevailing style in feminine attire is a short skirt, a shirtwaist and a rough slouch hat?

To be sure, the men who gathered at the few functions in Philips or vicinity are greatly attracted by a gown with a train. But as a "hickory" shirt, corduroy trousers, a red handkerchief around the throat and a broad sombrero topping all is the fashion for them, articles of dreamy elegance appear incongruous as feminine apparel. So such costumes have disappeared and the transplanted daughters of Iowa are now dressing in the plain and sensible garments of the region.



Phillips "Society."

Would Make Good Wives.

Soon after these young women settlers made their homes on the Dakota plains United States Commissioner J. D. Kellar of Bonesteel visited Sioux City, Ia., and was reported in an interview as having remarked:

"The young man who wants a wife—young, intelligent, clever and the owner of a first-class farm—should start for Bonesteel and the Rosebud without delay.

"There are about 231 young women homesteaders in the reservation—about one-fifth of the entire number. They are just getting started on their spring work and the hired help problem is practically hopeless.

"Beyond doubt they are the best girls in the world, these capable, brave and energetic young women who are founding homes for themselves upon the prairie. Among them are women of social position and wealthy families, as well as former school teachers, stenographers, bookkeepers and other business girls.

"A third of them or more are college graduates; all have more or less money; every one is perfectly capable of making a good living for herself; every one has a good farm. In fact, they represent the finest 231 matrimonial opportunities I know of."

Perhaps Mr. Kellar's enthusiastic praise was widely read. In any event the homestead girls on the Rosebud have not been neglected in the way of proffered matrimony, and most of those in the Iowana colony can count their proposals by scores.

Among their neighbors—neighbors, in this sense, meaning other settlers within half a hundred miles—are, a number of single men who also seized the opportunity to acquire good farms at the hands of a generous government.

Many a Romance.

Romance finds a ready hospitality on the fertile plains of South Dakota, despite the unenviable divorce records of the state.

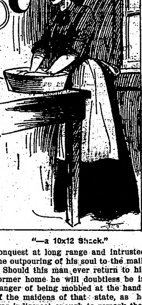
Several "matches" have been made through the agency of the claim shanty, and more than one Iowa youth has learned, when too late, that "absence makes the heart grow fonder"—but not always the absentee.

Among the girls who have taken up claims in the new country, one of the most popular is Miss Lottie Rogers, formerly of Ames, Ia.

She is the only daughter of a wealthy retired farmer, so that from the standpoint of financial necessity it was not incumbent upon her to undergo the hardships of the pioneer.

Happening to draw a homestead in a community almost entirely composed of bachelors, Miss Rogers had not been in her new home a month before she had received several proposals of marriage. Now, it is said, her victims number more than 100.

Her first proposal came from an Arkansas colonist who saw her soon after her arrival and who at once succumbed to her charms. Unlike most wooers from the ardent south, however, he conducted his campaign of conquest at long range and intrusted the outpouring of his soul to the mail.



"—a 10x12 Shack."

Should this man ever return to his former home he will doubtless be in danger of being mobbed at the hands of the maidens of that state, as he was indiscreet enough to remark that Arkansas girls "wasn't worth shucks."

Here is the first letter that Miss Rogers received, laying a palpitating heart and a quarter section of rich farming land at her feet:

"Dear Mis: Hev been lookin' in your direction and hev desired to ask you to mery me. I hev a good clame and all I nede is sum wun to make my shanty seme like home. these Arkansas girls ain't wuth shucks. plese anser soon. yure true friend."

Miss Rogers did not answer, for before she could concentrate her mind on this proffered good fortune she received several other proposals, and finally she determined to ignore them all. She has been visiting her parents in Iowa this summer, but she will return to her claim in the fall.

A $1,000,000 Heiress.

Then there is Miss Philippe Watrous, whose father owned a six-story busines block in Des Moines and is estimated to be worth $1,000,000. Miss Watrous became a guide shortly after she reached Bonesteel and conducted prospecting parties over the country that a few years ago was red with blood shed in battle with warring Indian tribes.

When she was allotted a claim and reached the Rosebud country she found that her farm was back in the foothills, 40 miles from the nearest railroad station.

She went out and looked it over, however, and was pleased with the prospect. Hiring two men to build her a "shack," she mounted a horse and rode back to Phillips to await the completion of her new dwelling.

One day at the post office in Phillips she encountered a young man just in from the east who was looking for a guide. At that time all the inhabitants of the hamlet who could leave their homes were out on the reservation, and Miss Watrous volunteered to take the young man and the party he represented to their destination.

Saved by Girl Guide.

There were two dozen members in the squad that started out the next morning with the Des Moines society belle at its head. In the afternoon a severe storm came up and the home hunters were forced to halt.

Early the next morning the journey was resumed. The first stream to which they came was out of its banks, while the bridge had been washed away. The only thing left was to ford it.

In this attempt the provision wagon, caught in an eddy, got away from the driver, the mules were drowned and the supplies lost. The drenched party managed to reach the opposite side. Then the intrepid girl guide took command.

She asked a man to accompany her and together they rode to an Indian tepee close by, where they obtained some cornmeal and "kinkinnick." The gruel made strengthened the half-famished women and children in the party and the company pushed on.

That night they struck an Indian settlement, where they stopped for rest and to make a hearty meal on the game which the Indians had killed. The second morning they resumed their journey and completed it without further adventure. For this service Miss Watrous later received a watch.

AN ESSAY ON WIDOWS BY ONE WHO KNOWS.

Widows exist in all countries, thus counterbalancing the matrimonial decadence which might otherwise result from timid men. Widows are clinging by temperament, and attach themselves readily to any object that can't help itself.

It is generally considered unlucky to meet a widow on a dark piazza by the light of the moon. In many countries to be kissed by a widow means endless trouble.

Widows are frequently accompanied by children whose number is constantly liable to increase. They roam at large over the principal sections, and no man is safe when they are near.

All the perfect men now dead have married widows, thus forming a continuous contrast to the miserable specimens who still live.

It has been said "beware of widows." But this is unnecessary. For no man can really help himself.—Life.

Even Here.

The old spotted cow was about to have her photograph taken by one of the summer boarders.

"Dear me," she whispered, "I—I feel so nervous."

"What seems to be the trouble?" queried the friendly sheep.

"Why,er—I am afraid my horns are not on straight."

Which goes to show that the weakness of the sex is even found in the mild-eyed cow.—Chicago Daily News.

Sorry He Spoke.

He—"I read today in a newspaper that the best 'emergency ration' for lifeboat men who have been out for many hours in the cold without food is chocolate.

She—Well, as we are going out in a boat, Fred, we might meet some of these poor men. Don't you think you'd better go back and get four or five pounds of chocolate creams?—Yonkers Statesman.

"Choo-Choo Cars."

To the joy of the proud mother the baby had spoken for the first time.

"What the little darling said was just grand," she replied to her friends.

"And of course he said 'goo-goo,' like all babies," chorused the friends.

"No, he said 'choo-choo.' I am sure he will grow up to be a railroad magnate."—Chicago Daily News.

Richman Penniless.

Returned Traveler—Mr. Richman could draw his check for a million when I left. How much money has he now?

Citizen—He hasn't any.

"Eh? Wha— Did he fail?

"No; he died."—N. Y. Weekly.

A Scaly One.

The Girl—How heavy is the mountain you speak of, professor?

The Professor—What a question, my child?

"I thought you said you scaled it. If you did, you ought to know."—Yonkers Statesman.

Making It Hot for Hubby.

Private Detective—Madam, here is my bill for shadowing your husband during the past four weeks.

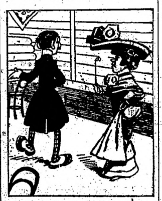
Suspicion Wife—Very well; present it to him. And go on shadowing him until you receive further orders from me.—Judge.

The Market.

First Citizen—How's the market?

Second Citizen—Summer resort men, preferred, 98 bid and 102 asked; common, 87 bid. Brisk trade in Summer girls, but market flooded—77 bid. Young widows lively at 35.—Puck.

Nor Would She Want To.



Bandy-legged Shopwalker—Walk this way, madame.

Lady—Heavens man, I couldn't walk that way if I tried 50 years.

Convincing Testimony.

Eva—And do you really think candy affects the heart?

Edna—I know it does. Why, every box that Jack brings me moves my heart a little nearer to him.—Chicago Daily News.

In New York.

"Can't you think of some unusual thing to do to-night—something we haven't done before?"

"We might spend the evening at home."—Life.

For Accuracy's Sake.

Tomdicken—Did you ever see Miss Plumpleigh in her new bathing-suit?

Harry—No; but I've seen most of her sticking out of it.—Judge.

How the World Pays.

Knicker—I think the world owes every man a living.

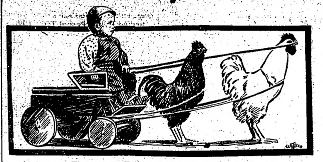
Bocker—Perhaps; but he has to take it out in trade.—N. Y. Sun.

Overcoming a Difficulty.

He—The banks say there is a scarcity of dimes.

She—Well, I can eat two and a half plates of ice cream.—N. Y. Sun.

Roosters That Really Drive Tandem



The Rooster Team and Their Youthful Driver.

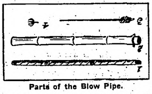
Who wants to race? Frank Robinson has issued a challenge to all chicken fanciers and is ready to match his team of roosters against all comers. Frank drives his roosters tandem, attached to a home-made wagon, and guides them with reins. They do not wear bits, but the forward ends of the reins are tied about the lower beaks of the birds. Progress with this unique team is not rapid, but the astonishing thing about it is that there should be any progress at all. Frank is only two years old, and he can control his unique tandem better than anyone else.

The training of the roosters to this, to them, unique task took a great deal of time and patience, says the N. Y. World. It may be said that impatience of any sort of restraint is the dominant characteristic of his lordship of the barnyard. Like the pig of tradition and experience, he is always willing and anxious to go in any direction but the right one. However, in this case he has so far given into the will of man that he stood patiently for his picture and then trotted off with every apparent willingness to go where he was wanted to.

THE BLOW GUN.

How to Make It So It Will Not Break.

I want to tell the boys how they can make a "blow gun," which can be used to shoot small birds with, says a writer in the Elmira Telegram. Get a glass tube about four feet long at any drug store. Wrap it with strips of cloth as shown in "1." This will act to prevent the tube from breaking. Get a piece of cane, such as fish poles are made from, and enlarge the center with a red-hot poker until you can slip the tube inside of it. Now, cut the cane off to the right length and secure tube inside with putty. Your blow gun will now be complete as shown in "2," but you have no bullets. For these you can use either peas, clay, tacks or arrows. An arrow can be made from a pin with the head filed off and some cotton bound on the back end so it will fit tight in the gun, as shown in "3," or you can take a tack (see "4"), and bind worsted around it just below the head and melt some wax on it. Shoemakers' wax rubbed on is best. This will fly straight and is a first-class missile. If a clay pellet is used you can stun small birds, but not otherwise injure them, so that, if they are picked up at once, you can often capture them alive.



Parts of the Blow Pipe.

It Looks Different in Print.

"Ma wants to know if it's too late to plant a can o' bulbs," said a small boy yesterday to W. H. Humfeld, florist, on East Ninth street.

"A can of bulbs?" asked the florist. "I suppose she can plant a can of bulbs 'most any time. What kind of bulbs does she want to plant?"

"She said something 'bout plantin' dwarfed ones."

"A dwarfed can of bulbs"—mused the florist, "a dwarfed—O, you mean dwarfed canna bulbs?"

"Yep; 'at's what I said."—Kansas City Star.

A City Maid.

She came up to the country
But a week or so ago,
This city maid who ne'er had seen
The fields where wild flowers grow.
And when she saw the cat-tails,
She cried: "Oh, do look, quick!
Who ever heard of sausages
A-growing on a stick!"

Can You Guess?

Which is the most religious state? —(Mass.)
Which is the cleanly state? —(Wash.)
Which is the most egotistical state? —(Me.)
Which is the sickliest state? —(Ill.)
Which is the medical state? —(Md.)
Which is the oldest state? —(Ark.)
Which is the most maidenly state? —(Miss.)
Which is the most paternal state? —(Pa.)
Which is the mining state? —(Ore.)

Will He Win? Sure.

If a man knows that his wife expects him to succeed, that she expects him to stand at his post and do his duty, no matter how hard it is, and that she will think him a coward if he gives up his job because the work was unpleasant, or there were difficulties in the way, it is easy to foretell what the future of that man will be.

THE HERD-BOYS RICHES.

His Greatest Treasure Was a Contented Heart.

German literature contains many beautiful pieces. Here is one:

In a flowery dell, a herd-boy kept his sheep; and because his heart was joyous he sang so loudly that the surrounding hills echoed back his song. One morning the king, who was on a hunting expedition, spoke to him and said: "Why are you so happy, dear little one?"

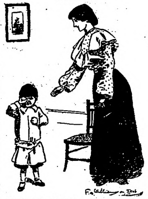
"Why shall I not be?" he answered. "Our king is not richer than I."

"Indeed!" said the king; "tell me of your great possessions."

The lad answered: "The sun in the bright, blue sky shines as brightly upon me as upon the king. The flowers upon the mountain and the grass in the valley grow and bloom to gladden my sight as well as his. I would not take a hundred thousand thalers for my hands; my eyes are of more value than all the precious stones in the world; I have food and clothing, too. Am I not, therefore, as rich as the king?"

"You are right," said the king, with a laugh; "but your greatest treasure is a contented heart. Keep it so, and you will always be happy."

THE OLD HEN, TOO.



Mother (to Bobby, who doesn't want to go to bed)—But, dear, remember that the little chickens go to bed early.

Bobby—Yes; but the old hen goes with them.

Not Closeted.

"Have they a family skeleton?"

"I should say so! You ought to see their daughter's elbows."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Ages of Birds.

The average ages recorded of some of the best known birds are given in the following: Blackbird lives 12 years; blackcap 15, canary 24, crane 24, crow 100, eagle 100, fowl, common 10, goldfinch 15, geese 50, heron 59, lark 13, linnet 23, nightingale 18, parrot 60, partridge 15, peacock 24, pelican 50, pheasant 45, pigeon 20, raven 100, robin 12, skylark 30, sparrowhawk 40, swan 100, thrush ten, and wren three years.

Was Afraid of Losing It.

George—The ring doesn't seem to fit very well, Clara. Hadn't I better take it back and have it made smaller?

Clara—No, George; an engagement ring is an engagement ring, even if I had to wear it round my neck.—Tit Bits.

Proof.

As small Tommy was about to climb into his chair at the dinner table his mother said: "Are your hands clean, dear?"

"'Course they are," answered Tommy. "If you don't believe it look at the towel."

◆ ◆ ◆

Modern Journalism.

City Editor—Did you secure a detailed report of that prize fight for Monday's paper?

Reporter—First-class; chuck-full of horrible brutalities.

City Editor—Good! Tell the foreman to pat it in the middle of the page, and then I wish you'd start out among the churches and get two or three good sermons to pack around it. We've got to keep our paper respectable, somehow."—N. Y. Weekly.

Probably Not.

"This poet says that there is in the mind of woman a multitude of thoughts which she cannot express."

"I'll bet he never roused his wife out to open the door for him at three a. m."—Houston Post.

Expert Testimony.

Dottie—I wonder if a blonde is more attractive to men than a brunette?

Lottie—Ask Tottie—she's been both.—Cleveland Leader.

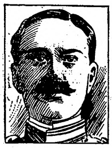
Historical
MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. VI. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, SEPT. 28, 1906. NO. 26.

Gossip from Washington

Interesting Items Gathered at the Capital—Social Leader of the White House Must Be a Single Man—Cleaning Up the Executive Mansion.



WASHINGTON.—It is openly declared that the president has decreed that the major domo of the White House must be a single man. Those who make this assertion point to the removal of Maj. McCawley, for nearly four years leader of social functions at the White House, who recently married the widow of Judge Davis, as their proof.

No recent White House announcement has created has as much comment and concern in official and high social circles as the order deposing Maj. McCawley. It was upon Maj. McCawley that most of the important details connected with the Roosevelt-Longworth wedding devolved. Maj. McCawley has held a much similar relative position in the White House under the Roosevelt regime as Harry Lehr holds in Mrs. Astor's "600." Without him no social function could have succeeded half so well. He is handsome, dashing, a divine dancer and as a cotillon leader his reputation in Washington is unequaled.

And now his romantic marriage at the height of his popularity to the widow of Judge John Davis, of the court of claims, has been followed by the much discussed official announcement transferring Maj. McCawley to the Marine barracks at Washington, and placing a new major domo at the White House.

"Beau Brummel is paying the penalty of getting married," is what official Washington is whispering. It should perhaps be explained that Maj. McCawley has long been honored with the title of the Beau Brummel of Washington, and very deservedly, too.

The incoming holder of that distinguished position is Capt. Frank McCoy, of the Third cavalry, now at Lewisport, Pa.

Maj. McCawley was an obscure officer in the Marine corps until a little more than four years ago, when largely through the record and high standing of his father, the late Col. McCawley, of the Marine corps, he was chosen aide to the president. Since then he has loomed high in the social firmament at the capitol.

Much interest has attended the courtship of Maj. McCawley and the famous beauty. Although Mrs. Davis is nearly 60 years old, her wonderful beauty, black hair and splendid carriage would lead an observer to place her on the sunny side of 50. She is extremely wealthy, having a fortune of several million dollars in her own right, and occupies a high position in the most exclusive social sets in Washington. Her name figures among the lists of the capital's most assiduous hostesses, and wherever she goes a murmur of admiration follows.

POLISHING UP THE WHITE HOUSE.

WHITE HOUSE

When President Roosevelt and his family come back to Washington they will find the White House as bright and clean as the proverbial pin.

For weeks the executive mansion has been closed to visitors and in the hands of workmen repairing and renovating the interior.

Congress at the last session appropriated over $50,000 for this work, and under the supervision of Col. Bromwell, superintendent of public buildings and grounds, every defect, inside and outside, has been noted and remedied.

The contractors have guaranteed the work for at least ten years. A new roof has been put on the entire building and the leaks in the wings and office building have been stopped. The state parlors on the ground floor have been redecorated, but the well-known Blue, Green and Red parlors still retain their colors, while in the East Room the prevailing tints are ivory and gold.

Upstairs on the second floor, where are the living rooms of the president's family, the same thorough renovation has been made.

The Prince of Wales room, which was occupied by the present king of England when he visited President Buchanan many years ago, has been transformed into a dressing room for the president.

OUR SOLDIERS WEAR GOOD SHOES.

"Uncle Sam keeps well in mind the saying, 'A man is not well dressed unless he wears a good pair of shoes,'" said a government inspector, "for he takes care that the army is fitted out with the most comfortable and nattiest of footwear. To be sure, he does not go in for upper jawed, flaring soles, or twisted, ugly toes, but he provides the finest of leather and insists that the boots for his soldiers shall be well made. His inspectors look after the shoes at every process in their manufacture, and any short cut of leather or negligently placed nails that might result in corns or sore feet are pointed out with condemning fingers and the boots are thrown aside.

"Once in awhile the style in army shoes changes and then a big batch of shoes will be thrown on the market, which merchants eagerly gobble up. The man who buys those shoes will not get a new style army shoe, but he gets the finest shoe on the market for high grade leather and good workmanship.

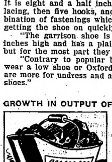
"The United States army marching shoe of to-day has a cap and is a shoe for a man to be proud of. The cap is not only over the toe, but across the heel, and it gives just that touch of ornamentation which the well dressed man likes.

"Its sole is only moderately heavy, and the leather is the best box calf. It is eight and a half inches high. It has five eyelets at the bottom of the lacing, then five hooks, and at the top of the shoe is another eyelet, a combination of fastenings which has been tried out and found to be the best for getting the shoe on quickly and for strength.

"The garrison shoe is built on similar lines, only it is six and a half inches high and has a plain toe. Some of them have caps at toe and heel, but for the most part they are plain.

"Contrary to popular belief, Uncle Sam does allow his soldier boys to wear a low shoe or Oxford, although it is never worn on the march. They are more for undress and are made of dongola kid and are called gymnasium shoes."

GROWTH IN OUTPUT OF COAL MINES.



According to the report of Edward W. Parker, statistician of the United States geological survey, the production of coal in the United States in 1905 amounted to 392,919,341 short tons, having a value at the mines of $476,756,963, surpassing in both quantity and value all previous records in the history of the country. Compared with 1904 the output in 1905 exhibits an increase of 41,102,943 short tons, or over 11 per cent. in quantity, and of $32,335,942, or over seven per cent., in value.

Of the total production in 1905 77,659,850 short tons were Pennsylvania anthracite, with a value at the mines of $141,879,000. The total production of bituminous coal and lignite was 315,259,491 short tons, valued at $334,877,963. The production of anthracite coal in Pennsylvania in 1905 was 4,503,151 short tons more than that of 1904, while the increase in the production of bituminous coal and lignite was 36,599,882 short tons. A portion of these increases in both anthracite and bituminous production is traced by Mr. Parker to the efforts of operating companies to provide a supply of fuel in anticipation of a suspension of mining in April, 1906, when the wage scale agreements in the organized coal producing states and the award of the strike commission in the anthracite region of Pennsylvania would terminate.

In each decade the output of the United States has been practically doubled. The report shows that there are 626,174 men and boys employed in coal mining in the United States.

The larger part of the increased production in 1905 is credited to the great activity in the iron industry, as is shown by the fact that the amount of coal made into coke increased from 31,278,537 to 41,412,323 short tons and that the larger increases were in the coking coal-producing states and those which furnished fuel to the iron furnaces.

FROM OTHER LANDS

INTERESTING INFORMATION BY FOREIGN CORRESPONDENTS.

LAUNDRIES IN FRANCE.

Modern Washing Machines Unknown—Peripatetic Bath Tubs—How Mosquitoes Choose Their Victims—Siberian Express.

Frankfort, Germany.

The following tells of the mosquito and the alleged preference of that sanguinary insect for colors and persons:

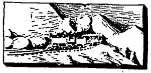
It is stated that the mosquitoes are strongly influenced in choosing their victims by the color of their clothes. In 1841 Spence found that a loose fabric of white threads kept mosquitoes away much more effectively than one of black threads. Joly observed in Madagascar that mosquitoes prefer to alight on black soil rather than on white sandy soil, and rather on black shoes and clothes than on white. The natives of Madagascar even suspend pieces of black fabric from the ceilings of their huts in order to attract the mosquitoes to it. Joly also found that light dogs were tormented less by mosquitoes than black ones, negroes more than Europeans. Similar observations were made in India. The Englishmen, Nuttal and Shipley, found that Anopheles maculipennis preferred colors in this order: Dark blue, dark red, brown red, black, gray, olive gray, violet green, light gray, pearl gray, pale gray, azure blue, ochre color, white, yellow. The malaria expert, Galli-Valerio, director of the institute for experimental hygiene and parasitology at the University of Lausanne, Switzerland, confirms these facts in his "Manuel pour la lutte contre les moustiques," just published, as a result of his own experiments. He states that in experiments with the Anopheles maculipennis and Anopheles bifurcatus, 119 settled down on dark colors and only 33 upon light ones. Similar results were obtained with culex pipiens and culex vexans; 349 preferred dark and only 120 lighter colors

Thus the chances of the number of mosquitoes' bites may be decreased by choosing light colors for our clothes, but they can not be avoided entirely. It is the same with all the remedies used in the open air. Tobacco smoke is the most efficient, but not at all infallible. Camphorated vaseline and other strongly smelling ointments rubbed on the hands are only efficacious until the odor has evaporated, which is done quickly on a hot day. The only certain protection is a veil of muslin gauze such as is worn by the Italian railroad watchmen and soldiers in the malarial zones.

The most rational way is to wage war against the larvae and eggs of mosquitoes which they deposit in swamps and stagnant waters. This is best done by means of a thin coating with petroleum. This should be the work of the municipalities of the state.

RICHARD GUENTHER.

TRANS-SIBERIAN EXPRESS.



Vladivostok, Russia.

Passenger service by the trans-Siberian route having been resumed, first by one weekly express, and, since July 6, by a second, travelers can now make the journey from Vladivostok to Moscow in eleven days and a half with only one change of cars—at Irkutsk. The trains leave Vladivostok on Mondays and Fridays at 8:03 a. m., connecting with the weekly mail steamers of the Russian East Asiatic company from Japan and China.

Both first and second-class cars give comfortable accommodations, the former being divided into compartments of two berths, while in the second-class compartments there are four berths. In the dining car attached to each train a table d'hote dinner is served in the middle of the day for 1½ rubles, about 77 cents, while in the morning and evening dishes meals may be ordered a la carte.

The rates from Vladivostok, including cost of berths, are as follows: To Harbin, first-class, $22.21; second-class, $13.87. To Irkutsk, first-class, $70.57; second-class, $44.88. To Moscow, first-class, $132.56; second-class, $86.91. To St. Petersburg, first-class, $128.42; second-class, $90.62.

Only 54 pounds of baggage may be checked free of charge by either first or second-class passengers. For excess baggage the charge is $1.38 per 9 pounds to Moscow, and $1.42 to St. Petersburg. Very large pieces can be carried in the sleeping cars, provided they are in the form of valises, etc.; and there are numerous racks in the corridors and elsewhere in which they can be kept out of the way. The baggage of western-bound passengers is examined at the station "Manchuria," and that of eastbound passengers at Pogranichnaya, or, if desired, at Vladivostok. Hitherto these examinations have caused little inconvenience.

R. S. GREENE.

LAUNDRIES IN FRANCE.

Rheims, France.

The following describes the methods of performing laundry work in France, and points out that American enterprise properly directed might introduce refrigerators, washing machines, and other modern articles that are used in the United States:

That a demand should be created in France for scores of articles of American inventive genius and mechanical skill is reasonable to suppose. For instance, the common household refrigerator so universally used in the United States is unknown in France. Only the very wealthy families can afford the expensive refrigerators to be had. It is the same with water filters—the plain people do not use them. Washing machines and clothes wringers, such as are in common use in the United States, are not known here. In fact, the conditions do not seem to be favorable for their introduction. The family wash in France is done away from the home, at one of the lavoirs publiques provided in every town and city.

Several bathing establishments in Rheims, and this is true of other French cities, have portable bath tubs, which are placed on two-wheel vehicles provided with a large iron boiler filled with hot water. As orders for baths to be delivered at the doors of the residences are received the boilers are filled with hot water and the bath-laden vehicles, each pulled by two men, start out for the delivery. The bath tub is filled with the hot water and carried into the residence, and while the family bath is going on the vehicle may fill another order, returning again for the tub, which is in regular commission as a visitor to the residences throughout the city. The price of a delivered-at-your-residence bath in Rheims is 30 cents, while at the establishment it costs 20 cents.

Rheims has a public bath in connection with the lavoirs publiques owned by the city, where the nominal charge of 4 cents is made for baths. There is a section for people having maladies, where sulphur baths are given at 6 cents each. There is a separate section of the same kind for women.

J. MARTIN MILLER.

GERMAN MEAT FAMINE

Bramburg, Germany.

The Statistical Correspondence for Prussia publishes a report on the slaughtering of animals during the second quarter of the year 1906. The figures show plainly that the meat supply difficulty still exists. Were the market to improve, the number of slaughterings, commensurate with the growth of the population, ought to show a decided increase; instead of which the comparison with the same quarter in 1905, in which it is well known the meat famine was quite severe, the grand total shows a decided decrease.

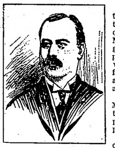
In the four years from 1901 to 1904 the total increase of calves and cattle raised in Prussia was only 56,367 head, which does not keep pace with the heavy increase of the population. The number of oxen and bulls raised increased only 0.9 per cent. Up to March 1 the deficit caused by the insufficient raising of stock could be covered by the importation of cattle, but with the new tariff imposing much higher import duties this source for supplying the need is greatly restricted.

The conditions are worse in the supply of hogs. In Prussia there were 62,409 fewer hogs slaughtered in the second quarter of 1906 than in the same quarter of 1905. The German empire at large has not yet published exact statistics for the same quarter, but it is not expected that figures will show an improvement on those quoted by Prussia. It is a fact that while in the first quarter of the year 1905 3,924,280 hogs were officially inspected for slaughter in the German empire, in the same quarter of 1906 the figures dropped to 3,237,079. This would seem to indicate that the meat famine in Germany has not diminished.

WM. BARDEL.

Round About New York

Information and Gossip Gathered by Our Correspondent—Tin Plate Magnate Weds Stage Favorite—Newspaper Man Wins Heiress—Motor Boating Becoming Popular.



NEW YORK.—Another stage beauty has captured the heart of a Gotham millionaire and retired from the glare of the footlights to the quietude of domestic life. This time it is Miss Mabel Carrier, who won the admiration of theater goers last season in "A Chinese Honeymoon," playing a minor part. Miss Carrier is now the wife of Daniel G. Reid, one of the prominent figures in New York's financial world, tin plate and railroad magnate, whose wealth is estimated at between $25,000,000 and $40,000,000.

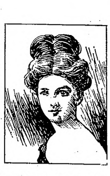
No formal announcement has been made by Mr. Reid of his marriage and the date on which the ceremony was performed has not been made public, but it is known that the wedding took place several weeks ago.

Mr. Reid's name has been linked with that of Miss Carter for the last year, but with characteristic secrecy he refused to let any of his friends know of his love for the beautiful young woman. His attitude in the matter recalled the manner in which he concealed the fact of his second marriage, in 1904, to Clarisse Agnew, a chorus girl of marked beauty, who died within a year after the ceremony.

The new Mrs. Reid is about 23 years old, and was born in Detroit. She is tall and statuesque, and strikingly handsome. Her stage career has been brief, her first engagement being with "A Chinese Honeymoon" last year. She next appeared in an important role in "The Runaways," and her last engagement was with the "West Point Cadet," which had a short life at the Princess theater in New York.

Mr. Reid is 48 years old, and has been married twice before. With William B. Leeds he organized the tinplate trust, out of which he made a fortune.

HEIRESS TO WED POOR MAN.



Speaking of weddings recalls the recent announcement of the engagement of Miss Margaret Chanler, the Astor heiress, to Richard Aldrich, of the editorial staff of the Times. Miss Chanler is following the lead of several other young women of fortune and social position in promising her hand in marriage to a man of no means, but possessed of brains. In the pursuit of his newspaper work Mr. Aldrich met and became acquainted with Miss Chanler.

The news of the engagement is somewhat of a surprise to many of Miss Chanler's friends, who had supposed that matrimony was a thought far remote from the mind of the active young woman, who always declared that she was wedded to philanthropy.

Miss Chanler, worth several millions in her own right, a great-great-granddaughter of the original John Jacob Astor, daughter of the late John Winthrop Chanler and sister of Mrs. John Jay Chapman, is a remarkable young woman. She is beautiful, tall, slender and stately, and instead of seeking the frivolities of the higher society, has devoted herself to the welfare of mankind, to the relegation of social gayety.

At the outbreak of hostilities between the United States and Spain Miss Chanler joined the Red Cross society, went to Cuba and later established a hospital in Ponce and nursed the ill and wounded soldiers, with no one to help her but one woman, Mrs. Anna Bouligny, of New Orleans. For her services Miss Chanler was presented by special act of congress in January, 1899, with a gold medal.

In 1900 she became the head of the Municipal League in this city and devoted her time and money to reform in politics. In August, 1900, Miss Chanler went to China to assist in the hospital relief work.

She has raised her voice frequently in public in behalf of woman's suffrage and performed patriotic work besides.

During the summer months it has been Miss Chanler's custom, among other charities, to throw open her mansion at 317 West Seventy-fourth street to sick children of the poor.

No date has been mentioned for the wedding, but it will probably take place early in the autumn.

CARRY BUSINESS TO LUNCHEON TABLE.

Those who take a casual view of the great restaurants in the lower part of the city at midday are likely to think that New York business men live in sybaritic luxury. The appointments of the tables, the excellence of the food and the leisurely dallying over coffee and cigars which have of late become concomitants of a luncheon might be taken to mean that the "quick lunch" habit had entirely disappeared and that men had taken to rational ways of eating.

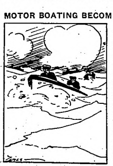
All of this looks well, but as a matter of fact the luncheon has become a business function, as much as any other duty connected with office or counting room. Over the tables, where napery and silver gleam, are discussed contracts and deals and margins. The restaurant for the time becomes a mart or a rendezvous, and everything is seasoned with shop.

New York men are taking more time over their luncheons because they have more business to transact or discuss at that hour.

Down at Delmonico's, of Beaver street, the coffee merchants, the dealers in commodities which fill the great warehouses, and often the men of Wall street meet and talk over the details of their business, often making hurried excursions to the ticker. In one of the smaller private rooms of downtown Delmonico's it is the custom of the head of a well known publishing house to meet the members of his staff and the executive heads of the various departments for a conference, talking over with them matters of policy while they discuss the menu.

Lawyers and their clients, merchants and customers, insurance agents, the heads of great business corporations may be seen in the principal restaurants, where they linger often for an hour or so to discuss their complicated affairs, in low, confidential tones.

MOTOR BOATING BECOMING POPULAR.



Motor boat enthusiasts are constantly increasing. Hundreds of the little crafts may be seen skimming the waters of the sound and harbor. There are so many of them now that all aquatic sports are undergoing a sea change.

Some motorboatiacs get the disease by first acquiring a catboat and others again are possessed with a mania for speed, acquired on land in an ordinary automobile. Few enthusiasts have started out deliberately to submit themselves to this strange fascination. They begin by spending money for sloops or cats and the microbe which fastens the motor boat habit on them seizes them about the time they buy a small auxiliary gasoline engine for their sailing craft. The sensation of going five or six miles an hour is exhilarating, and when the wind dies down and the canvas flaps the spell of going without the aid of Aeolus appeals to the enthusiast.

It dawns upon him that he does not need sails at all, and before long he is buying motor boats, trading motor boats and dreaming of the same.

Motor boats have several advantages over steam launches, for the owner may be in charge of it without having to obtain a license as engine driver. There is no waiting to get up steam, for a few twists of wheels and the turning of a switch are all the preliminaries necessary to cutting through the brine.

As farmers and slowgoing folks on land are distrustful of the automobile scorcher, so are the fishermen and the clam diggers inclined to look upon the owners of the motor boats as encroaching upon their rights. They declare that the odor of the gasoline, especially in shallow water, and the thrumming of the screw and the chug of the engines drives away the fish and disturbs even the peace of the clams in the mud. Nevertheless there are in the neighborhood of the metropolis hundreds of motor boats, and their number is constantly on the increase.

STORM AT HONGKONG DESTROYS SHIPPING

MANY VESSELS WRECKED BY GALE, WHICH DRIVES SHIPS AT WILL.

Wreckage and Debris Strew the Shores and Fill the streets, French Torpedo Boat Being Driven Ashore by the Wind.

Hongkong, Sept. 19.—A terrific storm broke suddenly here Tuesday afternoon lasting two hours and destroying innumerable native craft and causing much loss of life.

The harbor is literally strewn with wreckage and the streets of the city are blocked with debris.

An unknown steamer collided with the British steamer Strathmore, seriously damaging the latter.

The British steamer Loong-Sang collided with the British steamer Chip Shing, with slight damage.

The river boat Fatshank foulde the French mail boat Polynesian.

The British steamer Monteagle, the German steamer Signal, the German steamer Emma Luyken, the British steamer Changsha, the German steamer Sexta, the Kowloon ferryboat and a water boat were driven ashore.

The American steamer Sorsogon and German steamer Johanna are awash.

A Japanese steamer is stranded on Kellets island.

Warships Damaged.

The British river gunboat Moorhen is leaking badly, one French torpedo boat destroyer is ashore and two others dragged their anchors the entire length of the harbor.

The British steamer Empressor Japan, was saved by the Dock company's tugs keeping her steady.

The American steamer S. P. Hitchcock was driven high and dry on shore.

The British river steamers Kwong Chow, San Cheung and Sun Lee foundered. The French steamer Charles Hardouin was damaged. The little Chinese steamer Wing-Chai was beached.

Numerous steam launches and lighters foundered and most of the wooden piers on the water front were demolished.

Description of Hongkong.

Hongkong is an island situated in the China sea, off the coast of China, from which it is separated by a narrow strait. It was yielded to Great Britain by the treaty of 1842. The roadstead has a well-protected anchorage. Victoria, the capitol (itself commonly called Hongkong) is situated on a magnificent bay of the same name, setting up into the north side of the island. Hongkong is a great center of the foreign trade of China. Total exports are roughly estimated at $125,000,000 and imports at $100,000,000. As a British colony on Chinese soil it is the most important in its political and defensive problem, and is the headquarters of the military, naval and mercantile establishments. The population of Hongkong (the city) is about 275,000.

Hundreds Reported Killed.

Manila, Sept. 19.—Advices from Hongkong state that 100 lives were lost and millions of dollars' worth of damage was done during the typhoon. A late official estimate places the damage in the harbor of Hongkong at more than $1,000,000.

TWELVE KILLED IN BLOW-UP

Dynamite Explosion in Jellico, Tenn., Does Great Damage.

Jellico, Tenn., Sept. 22.—Twelve deaths, the injuring of scores of other persons and $500,000 damage to property were caused here Friday when a carload of dynamite standing on a track near the Southern depot exploded with a report that was heard for 20 miles.

Buildings were shattered in the business section of the town and nearly every piece of glass within a radius of one mile of the scene was broken.

The explosion occurred at eight o'clock Friday morning. The freight car, belonging to the Pennsylvania railroad lines, contained 450 boxes, about 20,000 pounds, of high explosives consigned to the Rand Powder company, at Clearfield, Tenn.

Two causes are assigned for the explosion. One is that three parties were shooting at a mark on the car and that a bullet entered the car and caused the explosion. The other is that while the car was standing on a side track a carload of pig iron was switched against it and that the impact caused the explosion.

Appeal to Supreme Court.

Washington, Sept. 21.—The appeal of Will D. Gould and David M. Goodwin in the cases in which they are charged with complicity in the Oregon land irregularities was docketed in the supreme court of the United States. The two men were taken into custody at Los Angeles and sought to avoid removal to Oregon by suing out a writ of habeas curpus in the district court for the southern district of California. That court denied the writ and the defendants bring the case to the supreme court on appeal.

Japs Kill Each Other.

Portland, Ore., Sept. 18.—S. Morriami and H. Miya, Japanese roommates, became involved in a dispute, the cause of which is unknown. Miya shot and killed Morriami, but was fatally stabbed himself.

ASK WARRANT FOR MORMON

COUNTY ATTORNEY IS CITED TO SHOW CAUSE.

Official Is Asked to Cause Arrest of President Smith on Charge of Polygamy.

Salt Lake City, Sept. 22.—Parley P. Christenson, county attorney of Salt Lake county, has been cited to appear in the criminal division of the state district court and show why he should not direct the issuance of a warrant for the arrest of Joseph F. Smith, president of the Mormon church, on a charge of sustaining unlawful relations with one of his five wives.

The citation was issued on the petition of Charles Mostyn Owen, who has been active in gathering testimony against Senator Smoot.

The complaint was based upon the fact that on May 21 last President Smith's forty-third child was born to Mary T. Schwartz Smith, the Mormon president's fifth wife, at her home in this city.

As witness to the fact the complaint cited the four other wives of President Smith and several apostles and leaders of the Mormon church, including Senator Smoot and Gov. Cutler.

Friends of Mr. Christensen charged that the filing of the complaint was an attempt on the part of the anti-Mormons to embarrass him in his candidacy for the Republican nomination for congressman. Christensen was defeated for the nomination in the convention by Congressman Howell.

REPORT OF GEN. FRED GRANT

Officer Recommends Legislation for Betterment of the Army.

Washington, Sept. 19.—Maj. Gen. Frederick D. Grant, commanding the department of the east, strongly recommends in his annual report some legislation which will prevent the exodus of enlisted men from the coast artillery. The shortage is now about 20 per cent. He says that the life for enlisted men is not very attractive in many of the smaller posts and they prefer service elsewhere. The report contains a number of recommendations relative to increasing the efficiency of the coast artillery as the defensive arm of the nation. Gen. Grant states that in his last report he said that fully 75 per cent. of the trials by courtmartial were due to the use of bad liquor, and this year he estimates that 90 per cent. of the troubles that occurred in the army are due to the use of such liquor. He believes that with the reestablishments of the canteen the influence of demoralizing resorts would be greatly reduced.

RULING ON RAILROAD RATES

Interstate Board Decides Cash Must Be Paid for Transportation.

Washington, Sept. 19.—The interstate commerce commission Tuesday rendered a most important decision in the matter of the applications from various railroads giving administrative construction to certain provisions in the railroad rate laws.

Briefly, they hold that with regard to payments for transportation, nothing but money can be legally received.

With regard to notices of changes in rates, the joint rate between two or more connecting carriers is held to be the legal rate, and any change requires 30 days' notice.

With regard to round-trip excursion rates, the commission makes three rulings, the most important being that these may be changed at one day's notice.

Easy with Carrying Concerns.

Austin, Tex., Sept. 19.—Attorney General Davidson has authorized District Attorney Moore to compromise the 49 cases pending against all the express companies doing business in Texas and the railroads over which they operate for alleged violation of the antitrust laws. The amount to be paid jointly is $40,000 and is to satisfy for both railroads and express companies.

Magoon Going to Philippines.

Washington, Sept. 18.—The secretary of war has made official announcement of the appointment of Charles E. Magoon, governor of the Panama canal zone, as vice governor general of the Philippines. Gov. Magoon will sail for the United States September 24, and as soon thereafter as he can arrange his affairs in the United States he will start for Manila.

New Lands Opened.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 19.—The president Wednesday issued a proclamation opening the Kiowa, Commanche and Apache Indian lands in Oklahoma. The interior department will announce the date for the reception of sealed bids under which the 505,000 acres of land are to be disposed of to homesteaders.

Insurance Commissioner Resigns.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 20.—A special to the Pioneer Press from Pierre, S. D., says:

Insurance Commissioner Perkins has tendered his resignation, to take effect October 1. Gov. Elrod has appointed Ben V. Doty to succeed him.

Mr. Perkins will engage in private business.

Will Meet in Minneapolis.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 20.—The National Dental association elected its officers for the coming year and selected Minneapolis and July 30, 1907, as the place and time for the next meeting.

MANY KILLED IN A RACE RIOT

THE CITY OF ATLANTA, GA., IN MIDST OF SCENES OF BLOOD AND CARNAGE.

The Whites are Stirred to Murderous Anger by an Epidemic of Assaults by the Negroes. Troops Called to Restore Quiet.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 23.—Reports are being received from the outskirts of rioting and of negroes being killed or driven from their homes.

Rumors have it that twenty-five to thirty negroes have been killed.

All is quiet in the central portion of the city but many loiterers are standabout the street corners awaiting developments.

The possibility of retaliation by the negroes is among the serious things discussed.

The troops are slow in mobilizing, and have not yet proved available.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 23, 1 a. m.—Ten negroes are dead and more than a score seriously wounded as the result of a race war that broke out here last night and was still raging at midnight.

Gov. Terrell has called out eight companies of the Fifth infantry and a battery of light artillery to quell the riots.

The entire police force both regulars and reserves and the fire department have been fighting the frenzied mobs all the evening without avail.

Negro men and women were ruthlessly pulled from street cars and even dragged from their homes by shouting, angry white citizens, and were beaten and kicked, and in some cases the captives were immediately hanged to the nearest trees or buildings.

For a time the blacks fought in selfdefence, but this only angered the mob the more, and after 10 o'clock the negroes yeilded to terror and sought nothing but to escape from their pursuers. Scores of them have fled from the city, and hundreds of others have been hidden by the police or given shelter within the walls of the police station and jail.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 23.—Twenty-four hours have passed since the serious race war began in Atlanta. In that period at least ten lives have been sacrificed, and the number of injured will be at least forty, several of whom cannot recover.

At 10 o'clock tonight the city is controlled by the police, aided by a number of state militiamen. Every part of the town is patrolled by the soldiers and the authorities seem to have the situation well in hand.

Gov. Terrell, who ordered seven companies of the state military service from points outside of Atlanta to aid the eight local companies, stands ready tonight to declare the city under martial law if the scenes of last night are repeated.

Numerous and persistent rumors are reaching the city of negroes attacking white persons and stoning street cars in the suburbs and outskirts of the city. These reports doubtless are false but several street cars arriving from their runs show broken windows while the crews are refusing to go out to night.

Can't Clear Streets

The larger part of the militia is concentrated in the downtown districts, Market and Decatur streets, both frequented by negrees, are crowed with white men. The troops are marching through the crowds constantly, trying to enforce the order of the mayor that he streets be cleared.

The efforts to clear the streets, however, so far seem to meeting with only fair success. Very few of the better class of citizens, who are not called out by necessity, are on the streets tonight.

Up to Sunday evening more than fifty arrests have been made of members of last night's mob, charging incitement to riot. Five hundred dollars bond has been required in each case.

No names of prominence are found on the list.

To Quit Cinder Path.

New York, Sept. 24.—Frank Waller, the runner from Milwaukee, who won the quarter-mile national championship at Travers Island, has announced his retirement from the cinder path. Waller has been running in opposition to the wishes of his parents, and of late the pressure has been so great that the crack westerner decided to quit.

Earl Grey Beached on a Yacht.

Victoria, B. C., Sept. 24.—Advices from Alert say that Lieut. Gov. Dunsmuir's yacht, with Earl Grey on board, is stranded high and dry on the beach at that point. Earl Grey and party were taken off by steam launches and sent on board the steamer Oidra, on which Lady Grey was traveling.

Death of Ex-Congressman.

Youngstown, O., Sept. 24.—Judge Jacob A. Ambler died in Canton at the home of his son, Judge R. S. Ambler. He was 77 years of age and had been ill but a few days of pneumonia. He was a member of the Forty-second congress from the Seventeenth Ohio district. He was the father of Judge B. S. Ambler, of Washington, who served on the bench in the Philippines; Judge Ambler, at whose home he died; Mrs. M. Mary McNab, of this city, and Mrs. F. E. McManus, of Upper Marlboro, Mass.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

The first consignment of this year's cotton from Oklahoma has been started for Japan.

The corner stone of the great irrigation storage dam at Roosevelt, Ariz., has been laid.

The national Red Cross society cabled $4,000 to Chili in aid of the sufferers from the earthquake at Valparaiso.

John F. Enright, of Janesville, Wis., has been appointed private secretary to Gov. Gen. Smith, of the Philippine islands.

Lieut. Col. John P. Wisser, of the coast artillery at the Presidio, San Francisco, has been appointed military attache at Berlin.

Henry Robinson, banker and manufacturer, died at Akron, O., of heart disease. He leaves a fortune estimated at over $1,000,000.

Milton M. Price, the commercial agent of the United States at Jeres de la [illegible]ra, Spain, is dangerously ill in a [illegible]ate hospital in Paris.

Texas has started its ouster suit against the Standard Oil company's Waters-Pierce Oil company and to collect penalties amounting to $5,228,400.

The steamer H. B. Tuttle broke in two at the stern and went to the bottom of Sandusky bay, just outside the channel. The captain and crew got ashore in lifeboats.

John Boyle, 14 months old, was found clinging, starved and emaciated to the body of his foster mother, Mrs. Catherine Bynam, in New York. The woman died several days before.

Gov. Jesse F. McDonald, of Colorado, called a dry-farming congress to be held in Denver November 22, 23 and 24. Representation is invited from all states west of the Missouri river.

It was announced in orders to the war department, Washington, that Brig. Gen. Samuel M. Mills, chief of artillery, will be placed on the retired list September 30 after over 45 years of service.

Charles Conley, the negro who attacked and seriously injured Mrs. Beatrice Frankish and her daughter, Miss Gussie Leitch, near Wilmington, Del., was sentenced to 50 years' imprisonment and to receive 30 lashes at the whipping post.

The sovereign grand lodge of Odd Fellows, now in session in Toronto, Ont., will meet in St. Paul next September. Discussion on establishing the degree of patriarchs militant as the fourth degree of the encampment was postponed till then.

Two fast mail trains on the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern road collided 45 miles east of St. Louis at Beckemeyer, Ill., internally injuring Thomas Bowman, an engineer, and Edward Hammersley, a fireman. Six other persons were hurt, none seriously.

John R. Pearson, for many years assistant to the president of the Indianapolis Gas company, was found dead at his home in Indianpolis, Ind. Mr. Pearson had been engaged recently in the construction of interurban electric lines in northern Indiana.

LINCOLN CONSPIRATOR IS DEAD

Man Who Aided in Plot to Abduct President Passes Away.

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 22.—Samuel Bland Arnold, who confessed that he was a party to the conspiracy to abduct President Lincoln, which culminated in the assassination of the president by John Wilkes Booth, died Friday at the home of a relative in Waberly, a suburb of this city. He was 72 years of age.

Arnold, with three others, was sentenced in July, 1865, to life imprisonment at the Dry Tortugas. All four were pardoned by President Johnson in 1869.

Thieves Invade Bavarian Mint.

Munich, Sept. 22.—The royal Bavarian mint was robbed Thursday evening of a sum equal to $32,500 in newly coined ten-mark pieces. The thieves got into the mint by creeping through a dry underground canal which had been opened for cleaning.

THE MARKETS.

New York, Sept. 22.
LIVE STOCK—Steers	$5 50	@ 5 75
Hogs, State	6 80	@ 6 90
Sheep	3 50	@ 5 50
FLOUR—Minn. Patents	4 10	@ 4 35
WHEAT—December	82⅞	@ 83¼
May	85¼	@ 85½
CORN—December	51	@ 51⅝
RYE—No. 2 Western	63½	@ 64
BUTTER	18	@ 24
CHEESE	11¾	@ 12
EGGS	21½	@ 22
CHICAGO.
CATTLE—Choice Steers	$5 75	@ 6 95
Common to Good Steers	4 70	@ 5 75
Yearlings	4 50	@ 5 75
Bulls, Common to Choice	2 25	@ 4 00
Calves	3 00	@ 8 00
HOGS—Light Mixed	6 20	@ 6 45
Heavy Packing	5 65	@ 5 95
Heavy Mixed	6 10	@ 6 40
BUTTER—Creamery	19½	@ 23½
Dairy	16	@ 20½
EGGS	12½	@ 17
LIVE POULTRY	11	@ 11½
POTATOES (bu.)	45	@ 50
WHEAT—December	75⅛	@ 75⅝
May	77¼	@ 78⅛
Corn, September	48¼	@ 48⅜
Oats, September	33½	@ 34¼
Rye, September	59½	@ 60
MILWAUKEE.
GRAIN—Wheat, No. 1 Nor'n	$ 78	@ 79
December	74⅜	@ 74⅝
Corn, December	45	@ 45½
Oats, Standard	34½	@ 35
Rye, No. 1	60½	@ 61
KANSAS CITY.
GRAIN—Wheat, September	$ 66¼	@ 66⅝
December	67⅞	@ 68
Corn, September	42½	@ 42⅝
Oats, No. 2 White	33½	@ 34
ST. LOUIS.
CATTLE—Beef Steers	$3 50	@ 6 50
Texas Steers	3 00	@ 5 10
HOGS—Packers	6 00	@ 6 55
Butchers	6 40	@ 6 60
SHEEP—Natives	3 00	@ 5 75
OMAHA.
CATTLE—Native Steers	$4 40	@ 6 40
Stockers and Feeders	2 75	@ 4 50
Cows and Heifers	2 00	@ 3 75
HOGS—Heavy	5 90	@ 6 20
SHEEP—Wethers	5 00	@ 5 50

MUST INTERVENE TO PROTECT CUBA

PEACE SEEMS FARTHER AWAY THAN WHEN THE AMERICAN AGENTS ARRIVED.

Messrs. Taft and Bacon Said to Have Practically Abandoned Hope of Finding Middle Ground on Which Leaders May Come Together.

Havana, Sept. 22.—Peace for Cuba unless accomplished through American intervention, seems to be further away than when Secretary of War Taft and Assistant Secretary of State Bacon began negotiations to harmonize the opposing factions.

The arrival here Friday of three of the largest United States battleships and two cruisers, in addition to those already here, has little effect on the insurgents in the field, and when the leaders of the revolution were apprised of the big squadron now in Cuban waters they greeted the information with Spanish expressions to the effect that "ships cannot come to the bush."

Moderates Willing to Yield.

A meeting of the executive committee of the moderate party was hastily summoned Friday evening, and it was voted unanimously to accept whatever disposition of the controversy Messrs. Taft and Bacon may decide upon, in the hopes that such a concession would induce the liberals to yield similarly. The latter, however, have as yet not signified a willingness to accept the decision of the American mediators.

Rumors of Resignations.

The rumor is abroad that President Palma, the members of his cabinet and the representatives and senators elected last December will resign, thus conceding practically all that the insurgents have been contending for, and opening a way for the settlement of the difficulty without American intervention. President Palma declined to be interviewed on the subject, and other members of the government stoutly denied the rumor.

The American peace emissaries will hear what the commanders of the insurgent forces have to say. Some of these are coming from Santa Clara. Pinar del Rio and Havana provinces. If they persist in the demands made in their letters to Messrs. Taft and Bacon the conferences will only increase the complications.

Advance Old Demand.

The arguments of the leaders of both the moderates and the liberals have been submitted and translated for future reference by Messrs. Taft and Bacon, but the latter said that nothing of a definite nature had been suggested by a hurried reading of the briefs. The mediators have sifted the grievances, and define them as a demand by the insurrectionists for new general elections and an absolute rejection of those demands on the part of the government.

Abandon Hope of Compromise.

Messrs. Taft and Bacon have practically abandoned hope of finding a middle ground, and fear that a decision in favor of either side would result in no more than temporary tranquillity for the island. It is their belief that American occupation is the only way to end the civil warfare, and it it not denied that intervention must be followed by American sovereignty. Secretary Taft has cabled to President Roosevelt regarding the gravity of the situation, and Mr. Roosevelt is expected to dictate the future programme of his commissioners.

TERRORIST IS SHOT TO DEATH

Man Suffering from Wounds Executed in Odessa Jail.

Odessa, Sept. 22.—The first field court-martial was held here Thursday, and a terrorist Jew named Tarle was sentenced to death and executed for the killing of a policeman.

The court consisted of six officers of the army, whose names are kept secret.

Tarle was in a pitiful condition when brought before the court from loss of blood from five wounds received before he was arrested. After being sentenced he was carried to the prison yard and tied to a post. His last words were curses and expressions of contempt for his captors. "You assassins," he cried, "you believe that with your organized attacks and field courts you can shoot down the whole of 'young Russia.' But be assured that there are bombs and revolvers enough to deliver this unfortunate country from your bloodstained hands. Now fire!"

Three volleys were fired and Tarle fell dead.

Kielce, Sept. 22.—For the first time in Poland a field court martial Friday tried, condemned and sent to execution two terrorists.

Only Two Reported Dead.

Fort Worth Tex., Sept. 20.—According to reports received here Wednesday only two are dead in the Rock Island wreck near Dover, Okla. A dozen persons are still missing, and as many are injured. Frank Cullen, of Detroit, floated down the stream three miles, and says he is sure several persons whom he saw in the water were drowned. Mail Clerk Owerton, while clinging to a farmhouse, floated down the stream seven miles.

Inaugurated at Manila.

Manila, Sept. 20.—James F. Smith was inaugurated governor general of the Philippines at ten o'clock Wednesday morning.

DOCTOR DESPAIRED

Anæmic Woman Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Recommends the Pills to All Others Who Suffer.

Anæmia is just the doctor's name for bloodlessness. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure anæmia as food cures hunger. They cured Mrs. Thomas J. McGann, of 17 Lincoln Place, Plainfield, N. J., who says:

"In the spring of 1903 I did my usual house cleaning and soon afterward I began to have the most terrible headaches. My heart would beat so irregularly that it was painful and there came a morning when I could not get up. My doctor said I had anæmia and he was surprised that I had continued to live in the condition I was in. I was confined to my bed for nearly two months, the doctor coming every day for the first few weeks, but I did not improve to amount to anything. Altogether I was sick for nearly two years. I was as weak as a rag, had headaches, irregular heart beats, loss of appetite, cramps in the limbs and was unable to get a good night's sleep. My legs and feet were so swollen that I feared they would burst.

"Before very long after I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I felt a change for the better. I have taken about twelve boxes and although I was as near the grave as could be, I now feel as if I had a new lease of life. I have no more headaches, the heart beats regularly, my cheeks are pink and I feel ten years younger. I feel that I have been cured very cheaply and I have recommended the pills to lots of my friends."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

EDUCATIONAL.

Money in Journalism

Learn to write for newspapers, magazines, etc., but start right. We teach you, by mail, Journalism in a practical, not theoretical, manner. Thousands of editors, reporters, storywriters, etc., a number of whom were our pupils, are now earning salaries of from $20 per week to $50,000 per year according to ability. You may accomplish as much. You can study at home. Write for free booklet, "Money in Journalism;" tells how to make it. UNITED PRESS ASSOCIATION, No. 573 Fillmore Street, SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA.

School for Policemen.

There is a policemen's college in St. Petersburg to train applicants for the force. It consists of a museum combined with the school, where the pupils make themselves familiar with the tools of criminals—jemmies, drills, chisels and contrivances for robbing collection boxes, a special field of Russian thieves. The Russian passport system is studyied in detail. The duties of the dvorniks, a sort of assistant police are taught. They keep watch on the residences, report on the habits of tenants, their visitors, examine the papers of new-comers, and direct them to report themselves at the police station.

Proved Effectual.

It is 900 years since the failure of a bank in China. On the last occasion when such an event happened, the emperor had the failure investigated, and found it had been due to reckless conduct on the part of the directors. He at once issued an edict that, the next time a bank failed, the heads of its president and directors were to be cut off. This edict, which has never been revoked, has made China's banking institutions the safest in the world.

Serve as Illuminants.

The fire-flies of Jamaica emit so brilliant a light that a dozen of them, enclosed within an inverted tumbler, will enable a person to read or write at night without the least difficulty. Indeed, it is an expedient to which many resort. These flies are in size as large as a common hive bee, and perfectly harmless. Their appearance in unusual numbers acts as a barometer to the natives, and is an indication of approaching rain.

THE WAY OUT.

Change of Food Brought Success and Happiness.

An ambitious but delicate girl, after failing to go through school on account of nervousness and hysteria, found in Grape-Nuts the only thing that seemed to build her up and furnish her the peace of health.

"From infancy," she says, "I have not been strong. Being ambitious to learn at any cost I finally got to the High School, but soon had to abandon my studies on account of nervous prostration and hysteria.

"My food did not agree with me, I grew thin and despondent. I could not enjoy the simplest social affair for I suffered constantly from nervousness in spite of all sorts of medicines.

"This wretched condition continued until I was twenty-five, when I became interested in the letters of those who had cases like mine and who were being cured by eating Grape-Nuts.

"I had little faith, but procured a box and after the first dish I experienced a peculiar satisfied feeling that I had never gained from any ordinary food. I slept and rested better that night and in a few days began to grow stronger.

"I had a new feeling of peace and restfulness. In a few weeks, to my great joy, the headaches and nervousness left me and life became bright and hopeful. I resumed my studies and later taught ten months with ease—of course using Grape-Nuts every day. It is now four years since I began to use Grape-Nuts, I am the mistress of a happy home and the old weakness has never returned." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. "There's a reason." Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

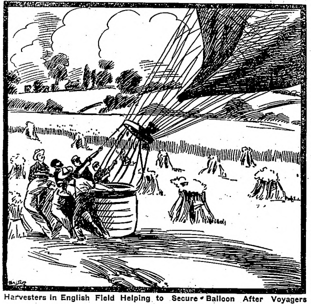
GROWING POPULARITY OF BALLOONING WITH SOCIETY

Clubs in England and France Which are Finding Recreation in New Diversion.

It is curious how often the old saying comes true, that "History repeats itself;" and this is most forcibly shown in the return to popularity of ballooning. In the eighteenth century we read a good deal of the delights of ballooning, both as a sport for men and women, and it has gone on ever since up to the last five years, when, on the formation of an English Aero club, the sport has been brought before public notice, and taken up by society in general. Some years before the formation of an English Aero club, France boasted of one composed of many hundreds of enthusiastic members, a great number of whom own private balloons.

Undoubtedly France offers more facilities for ballooning, in that it is not an island, and so there is more chance of making long journeys, as in the British Isles the wind is sure to take you in a very short space of time to the sea, while it is not always strong enough to insure a safe descent on the other side. In spite of this one drawback, England is a delightful place to balloon in for those who are content with a journey of a few hours; but if a journey running into days is contemplated, then it is necessary to go over to France and make a start from there, preferably from Paris, where every facility is offered to the aeronaut.

The most astonishing part of ballooning is the variety of temperature one is likely to encounter. It may be snowing on the earth, and yet, when the clouds have been passed through, one finds brilliant sunshine and blue sky above, while, looking down, the clouds appear as a great ocean. The illusion is very remarkable. Again, when descending in a snow storm, it appears to be snowing upwards, owing to the balloon falling faster than the snowflakes.



Harvesters in English Field Helping to Secure Balloon After Voyagers

To turn for a moment from the enjoyments of ballooning to its disadvantages, the most prominent one, to my mind, is the impossibility to steer a balloon, and hence one cannot reach a desired point unless the wind chooses to oblige you. There is no doubt that a "conveyance," be it aeroplane or balloon, will soon be invented, when this drawback will be overcome, but not without many experiments and possibly loss of life. The combination of gas and an electric spark is most dangerous, so we shall probably see the aeroplane taking the place of a gas-balloon in the near future.

Regarding the utility of balloons, this word can hardly be applied to them as articles of use for the general public, for the reasons before stated. Nevertheless, in the army they are of great service. In the first place, they have enabled people to get out of besieged towns; and secondly, by being sent up captive, a great area of country can be seen at one time.

To enjoy a balloon trip thoroughly one must be properly dressed for the occasion; for women, a short coat and skirt is the best thing to wear. It is not while actually in the balloon that the benefit of this attire is felt, but on descending, when nine times out of ten there is a walk of several miles to be done to reach the nearest railway station, while probably the balloon and basket have to be packed into the only available cart.

Perhaps the most enjoyable part of ballooning is what is known as "trailing." This consists of letting a rope about 250 feet long hang over the side of the balloon basket and trail over the country beneath, just touching the ground. To be so near the earth, and yet just to be able to sail over housetops and tree-tops, gives one the sensation the nearest akin to flying, as when one is soaring in higher altitudes one loses all sense of movement or judgment of distance. The entire absence of giddiness which seems almost incredible to those who have not tried ballooning is entirely due to this inability to measure distance. I suppose there is hardly ever a time on this earth when one could say there was absolute silence; it is either broken by the whistle of a locomotive or the bark of a dog, or maybe it is simply the breeze rustling the leaves of the trees. In the higher altitudes, however, the silence is complete indeed, and is one of the most noticeable things on a first balloon trip.

It may not be generally known that if a balloon is left to itself it will come down to earth of its own accord after a certain time, but it requires, of course, all the skill of the experienced aeronaut to effect a safe descent. The art in descending without an undue "bump," is to let out just the right quantity of gas and to check the fall of the balloon at the right moment by throwing out sufficient quantity of "ballast." Sometimes it is necessary to come down very fast—should, for instance, the sea suddenly loom in the distance—but there is nothing more unpleasant; so when any obstacle is sighted which necessitates descending, ample time to come down should be allowed, and thus insure a "soft" descent.

Another form of aerial navigation is the kite. This is being largely used for army purposes, being more compact than a balloon and requiring no preparation beforehand. When it is too windy to send up a captive balloon, a kite is of especial service, as the greater the force of the wind the greater the lifting power of the kite. On a windy day at Aldershot one often sees a man suspended some five or six hundred feet from the earth by a string of kites.

There are two most necessary things to impress on the novice—first, that on no consideration must he or she alight from the balloon when once inside without first giving warning to the rest of the passengers, and then he must alight without relaxing his hold on the side of the balloon-basket. Should he omit to do this, the balloon, relieved of so much weight, would shoot upwards at a far greater speed than is either safe or pleasant for the remaining occupants of the car.

The second point to remember is, when the balloon is descending for good, to raise the feet from the bottom of the basket by means of holding on to the ropes above with the hands, and keeping the knees bent until the balloon-car has received the first shock from contact with the earth.

The day may soon come when a balloon "garage" will be as necessary a part of one's house as a motor garage is at the present time.

VERA F. BUTLER.

His Usual Habit.

A local pastor tells the story, with one of his brother clergyman as the subject. It appears that when some men wish to "swear off" from the use of intoxicating liquor, they feel surer of themselves to take the pledge with a clergyman as witness. The pastor in question was awakened one night shortly after retiring by the frantic ringing of his doorbell. Hastily donning a few garments, he went to the door and admitted a rather dilapidated specimen of humanity, quite obviously endeavoring to recover from the effects of over-indulgence in the flowing bowl, or its modern equivalent, the bell-shaped glass.

"Wanter take th' plesh, pleash," he carefully articulated.

The clergyman hesitated, but finally decided that the man was penitent enough to realize what he was doing, and started to prepare the document.

"How long do you want to take it for?" he asked. "A year, or two years, or longer?"

The visitor looked at him in some surprise, and then replied, with evident feeling:

"Guess I'd besher take it for life Uzh'ly do."

The clergyman promptly declined to continue with the ceremonies, but preserved the story for relation at the next ministers' meeting.—Providence Journal.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

Congressmen Nominated.

Minneapolis—The following Republican congressmen are nominated:

First—James A. Tawney, Winona.
Second—J. T. McCleary, Mankato.
Third—C. R. Davis, St. Peter.
Fourth—F. C. Stevens, St. Paul.
Firth—F. M. Nye, Minneapolis.
Sixth—C. A. Lindbergh, Little Falls.
Seventh—A. J. Volstead, Granite Falls.
Eighth—J. Adam Bede, Pine City.
Ninth—Halvor Steenerson, Crookston.

Congressman C. B. Buckman conceded his defeat for the Republican nomination for congressman for the Sixth district and congratulated C. A. Lindbergh, who lands the nomination by about 1,250.

McCleary is renominated in the Second, but his majority is cut down to 1,200. Bede wins out nicely in the Eighth with a majority of nearly 4,000. Stevens wins over Rogers by a vote of 9,142 to 3,66 in Ramsey county and about the same proportion in the other two counties. In Minneapolis the count is not completed, but Frank M. Nye has a safe lead. W. H. Eustis and A. H. Hall are running about even and W. D. Washburn far behind.

Timber Sale.

Duluth—Forty-five million feet of timber will be offered at the annual sale of state timber which the state auditor will hold at the capitol on Oct. 11. A complete list of the timber was ready for distribution yesterday. Most of the timber is in Itasca and St. Louis counties.

The amount is not much more than half of what was offered last year, when 80,000,000 feet were sold at high prices. The amount last year was a little over the usual amount, however. The small amount offered this year is partly on account of the growing scarcity of timber. Although the timber is not all of the highest grade, it is expected that a great deal of it will bring fancy prices. Most of it is pine, but there is some spruce, tamarack, cedar and balsam.

The purchaser of this timber must pay 25 per cent of the appraised value before the close of the sale. If he fails to do this, the timber will again be put on sale. The permit to cut the timber is good for two years and the purchaser must give bond to pay the full price whether he cuts it or not, except that the timber board may grant an extension for one year.

Mother and Tot Burned.

Moorhead—With her two-year-old baby in her arms and her clothing enveloped in flames, Mrs. R. H. Ackley rushed out of her house screaming for help. Neighbors quickly responded and with great presence of mind snatched the burning clothing from the woman and took the child out of her arms. The flames were quickly extinguished, but not until Mrs. Ackley was severely burned.

Mrs. Ackley was preparing to clean some clothes and had placed a pan containing water and gasoline on top of the stove to heat. After the pan had been on the stove a while Mrs. Ackley lifted the stove lid to replenish the fire. Instantly there was an explosion and the woman's clothing was set on fire. The fire spread to the kitchen, and Mrs. Ackley, snatching up her child, which had been playing about on the floor, fled to the yard.

It is thought she will recover.

Killing the Animals.

Minneapolis—By order of members of the park board the smallest of the three bears at Minnehaha Park was shot yesterday morning. This bear had been sick for some time and all hope of curing it of its malady had been given up.

The fate of the other animals in the zoo at Minnehaha will remain undecided until after the conference between the park board and the Minneapolis Humane society to be held tomorow, but it is generally believed that the decision will be in favor of disposing of the remaining bears and all of the smaller beasts and abandonment of the zoo. Most of the members of the board desire to retain the deer, elk and buffalo, and it is believed that this will be found to be practicable, although the bear pit and the quarters of the smaller animals have been pronounced insufficient in size and otherwise unsuitable.

Burglars and Tricycle.

Crookston—It is now believed that the gang of burglars and safecrackers who have been operating in this part of the state go from town to town by means of a railroad tricycle which they have gained possession of in some manner. This would completely throw off the scent of the bloodhounds which have been used in a number of instances in an attempt to trace the robbers. Two men who were seen in Mentor just before the robbery of the bank there are said to have been seen later going down the railroad tracks on a tricycle which looked as if it might have been homemade. Chief Eck of this place states that it is his opinion that the robbers have a contirvance of this sort which can be taken apart and set up again with little trouble, and that they thus go back and forth on the railroad with little fear of pursuit.

News Notes.

St. Paul—The tourist business to the Northwest this season breaks records.

Sauk Center—Diphtheria in virulent form has appeared here. A 12-year-old son of O. H. Doolittle died last night. There has been but little exposure, though there is great anxiety.

Minneapolis—Anna Tripanier has brought suit in the district court against the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha Railroad company for $15,000 for personal injuries.

Bovey—While out rowing with several companions Samuel Manson, aged 35 years, suddenly rose and jumped into the river, disappearing from sight. His startled compaions thought he was playing a joke upon them but after he had been under for some time they made efforts to locate him, but without success. Later his dead body was recovered. It is not known what caused the suicide.

Lewiston—Only hard work by the volunteer fire department, aided by citizens' bucket brigades, saved this village from total destruction in an early morning fire which started in the elevator of E. J. Minges & Co.

BRIEF MINNESOTA ITEMS.

St. Paul—Eight personal injury suits against the street car company are filed in the district court.

Minneapolis—The governor suggests an inquiry to find whether the Minneapolis & St. Louis has granted rebates.

Mankato—Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Sparrow celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage.

Faribault—Maj. Chase makes the best record ever made on the 1,000-yard range at Seagirt.

St. Paul—St. Paul Christian Endeavor societies want 1909 convention.

Moorhead—A motor car got away from the driver and smashed in the front window of a saloon.

St. Paul—The charter commission favors abolishing the workhouse board.

Minneapolis — The immigration movement into the northwest this year breaks records.

International Falls—Ericsburg is the name chosen for the new town on Rat Root river on the new line of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg road.

Two Harbors—The first threshing machine on the north shore of Lake Superior has been ordered by the farmers of Maple Hill, in Cook county, just back of Grand Marais, the county seat.

Mankato—Deputy County Auditor C. L. Kennedy has a snowball bush in his yard that has blossomed for the second time this year. It is now covered with white blossoms.

Preston—Jesse Read, a colored man from Austin, is locked up in the jail here on the charge of stealing a horse and buggy and watch at Harmony.

St. Paul—As a result of a North Dakota holdup last week James O'Heagan was brought to the city hospital with a bullet hole in his left hip.

St. Paul—Through the efforts of the business league the Desmond Barrel company of Minneapolis has been located at 300-302 Chestnut street. They manufacture light barrels and are a growing concern.

Argyle—Lightning struck the residence of R. G. Marlette, stunning the inmates and splintering a chair, from which Miss Marlette had just risen, and killing a dog which lay on the floor beside the chair.

St. Paul—A. L. Cole, Republican candidate for governor, called on Secretary of State Hanson and filed his certificate of nomination and paid the $50 fee necessary to have his name placed on the ballot.

Minneapolis—Michael Maloney, who was injured at the government dam, died at the Cobb hospital. The body will be sent to Anoka for burial tomorrow. He is survived by a widow and three daughters, living at 2170 Marshall avenue.

Sauk Rapids—John Svedlins was engaged in piling lumber in the yard of the J. Neils Lumber company when a severe electric storm broke. Svedlins was struck by a bolt of lightning and was thrown from the pile of lumber on which he was working.

Duluth—News reached here last night of the death by drowning of Capt. L. Davidson, master of Standard Oil barge No. 86. According to Capt. Mulholland of the steamer Alva, which had the cargo in tow, Capt. Davidson fell overboard at a point about five miles south of Two Harbors.

Moorhead—Unless the city council decides to settle, a damage suit will be started against the city of Moorhead by Mrs. Magnus Johnson, who was arrested through a mistake of Officer Ben Elstad.

Glyndon—George Rentzel, of Little Rock was killed here at midnight while riding a brake beam on Northern Pacific train No. 4, having boarded the train at Fargo. His body was badly mangled. He had been a laborer on construction work in the neighborhood.

Crookston—Andrew Olson, an employe of Castle Bros., was instantly killed while working on one of their ditching contracts near Ada. The man was walking behind the sweep of a capstan to which four horses were attached when the sweep suddenly broke and flying back with terrific force struck Olson in the head, killing him instantly.

Scandia—C. W. Magnuson, general merchant here, has sold out his business to the farmers in this vicinity, and it is being made a part of the farmers' store at Lindstrom. C. A. Victor's big store and two elevators have been acquired in that village and a large business in potatoes and grain will be transacted at Lindstrom on the Northern Pacific railway.

Duluth—Capt. B. F. Howard, of Duluth, a prominent lake man, who has a small sawmill on the outskirts of Birdy, met with a terrible accident today. He put his right hand down to feel whether a moving saw was hot, and the teeth caught his coat sleeve and severed the arm at the shoulder. It is believed that he will survive the shock.

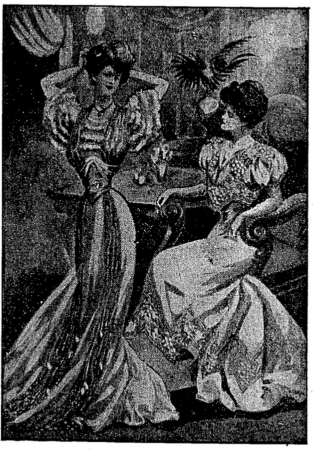
St. Paul—Safeblowers cracked the safe at Jacob J. Sauerwein's saloon, 961 Rice street, and escaped with about $171 in cash and checks. Sauerwein was unable to catch a glimpse of the men, but thinks there were two, as he heard voices in the saloon following the blowing of the safe.

Detroit—Edward Holmes, formerly postmaster at this place, and who mysteriously disappeared April 10, last, has returned here. He stated that the most of the time he had been away he spent in San Francisco, but declined to give out a formal statement as to his whereabouts.

St. Paul—Five railroads filed their annual reports with the state railroad and warehouse commission. All of them, except one small logging road, show good sized increases in earnings and incomes.

St. Peter—Another tragedy has been added to the melancholy record of "Lower Third," the ward of "violents" at the St. Peter state hospital for the insane. In a desperate encounter between two of the inmates Fred Strub received internal injuries which caused his death yesterday. He was terribly beaten with a heavy polishing block, and there was never the slightest hope for his recovery.

The Important Matter of Dress



EXQUISITE EVENING GOWNS.

(1) Of white Ninon. The sleeves and chemisette of chiffon. Gold tissue scarf.

(2) Princess robe of pale blue trimmed with raised embroideries in white silk.

The tailored coat and skirt in light weight cloths, mixtures, checks, stripes and plain goods will now have their innings. They will be the smartest form of street costume seen this fall. Such costumes depend entirely on their cut and finish for their beauty and smartness.

For these costumes, when worn by the women of moderate means, the old-time favorite blue serge will be found exceedingly desirable.

One recently seen had a short walking skirt, having a four-inch hem, and three inches apart—the first one three inches above it—two three-inch tucks. The skirt itself was a modified circular, close at the top. Down the center front was a tapering box plait four inches wide at the belt, by eight at the bottom, the plait taking in the tucked section. Across this plait were loops of blue silk braid, the braid being quite like a cord.

The Eton coat was close around the waist line, having a pointed double-breasted waistcoat of tan-colored cloth, closed by loops of the blue cord, and edged at the top and bottom by several rows of the braid set close together. This waistcoat pointed down a bit below the belt. The belt also tapered down in a point in the front, and up to the sides, where it was quite narrow, and the narrow width continued around the back. It was made of the blue braid set so closely together that it concealed the foundation. This belt was attached to the coat. There were serge revers turned back from the cloth vest, the widest part of the revers being a little above the waist line; from that point they slanted down abruptly to the belt.

The sleeves were full coat sleeves, ending a little below the elbows and having two velvet points overlapping each for cuffs.

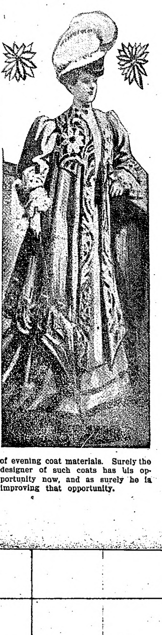
A gorgeous dinner gown in pale pink chiffon taffeta has lengthwise stripes of pink roses. These stripes are strips of satin ribbon set on, and they show half blown roses and buds in various shades of pink.

It is an Empire robe, the slight slanting in at the waist line being attained by box plaits in the soft chiffon taffeta that flare as they descend, ending at the knees.

The top of the robe has its neck cut square. Bands of white lace go over the shoulders near the thoat and extend to the bust line, and between them, in both the front and the back, are squares—not squares, for they are two inches longer than they are broad—of lengthwise tucked yellow chiffon, having three white lace insertions, and wider insertion at the top as a finish.

The sleeves are knife-plaited flounces of pink chiffon that begin at the lace bands going over the shoulders and end several inches below the curve of the shoulders, edged with white lace ruffles. These sleeves are cut to taper down to the center bust line, where the white lace straps to which they are attached end, and the under part is turned back and forms a drooping point across the side of the bust that extends to the underarm seam.

Artistic Wraps for Fall Wear



There seems little doubt now that the ideas embodied in the artistic wraps so popular during the summer time will find further expression in carriage and evening cloaks to be worn during the fall and winter.

Cloth, velvet and silk suitable for fall and winter wear are all now made in such soft and supple guise that they lend themselves readily to drapery and ample folds, and fur will but add richness to the models. For that matter, even sheer materials, such as crepe and mousseline and lace, are nowadays pressed into service for winter evening coats, and almost any one of the exquisite summer cloaks, save those of linen, might very well be copied for winter wear.

For daytime use the picturesque, voluminous cloaks in which the chic Parisians have reveled this summer appeal to but a small class. They belong to the women of luxurious carriages, of the dainty salons, of the innumerable frocks and hats and wraps, and they are appropriate only in such a rich setting.

The woman who walks, who rides on street cars, who climbs elevated road steps, who has few costumes, need not concern herself with Restoration and Louis XVI. and Egyptian wraps in planning her day-time toilets, but even she may give herself over to picturesqueness in the matter of an evening coat, and to-day any woman who makes even the smallest pretensions to being well dressed has her evening coat.

Surely never were materials better adapted to the purpose of that same evening coat than are the fabrics of to-day. The silks and velvets have lost their stiffness, while losing none of their richness and beauty, and lend themselves readily to every trick of drapery and graceful line. The erstwhile stiff and uncompromising broadcloth has become as supple as crepe, almost as lustrous.

And behind these heavier coat materials is the bust of soft shimmering silken stuffs included in the list of evening coat materials. Surely the designer of such coats has his opportunity now, and as surely he is improving that opportunity.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-class matter August 30, 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

And now the independant candidate is abroad in the land, without hone or party anything to get a vote.

Now that the primary is over, you can commence to get even with the other fellow. Bring up your horses for the second heat.

The last election raised a howl in Minneapolis for voting machines. They have them up at Thief River Falls in large quantities and they vote solid.

J. Adam Bede won out in his congressional fight in the 8th, but got a lesson that will make him remember that there is a place called Duluth, located at the head of the lakes.

The Republicans County ticket seems to be duite a strong one only the Skandinavian element is not represented quite enough on it, but if O'Brien will call himself O'Brienson it might even matters up a little.

The republican legislative nominees have completed their campaign in this district, and only have to wait until November for the voters to ratify their nomination, but the nominees for County office have a campaign to make and a rocky road to travel on their way to the County court house.

The primary election returns of Minneapolis show large republican gains over the vote of two years ago, but whether they are the genuine article, or democrats voting the republican primary election ticket, (owing to the strife for the republican nomination for mayer) will be known in November.

About all that Red Lake Falls got out of the nominations on the 18th was the Court commissioner, which looks to us to be a rather unfair division, so far as location is concerned. Laying party aside to vote for the man it leaves Thief River Falls with a candidate on both tickets for nearly all the county offices, with one extra thrown in on the socialist ticket for county treasure.

L.C. Simons has recieved payment in full from the voters of northern Clearwater County for turning them down on their ditch appropriation four years ago. The voters paid him in full the 18th, with Principle and Interest. The time is past, when a man can be elected to the legislature and not represent the people, as they are begining to look after their chickens after they hatch them out.

The last Primary election again demonstrated the fact that these elections is at the rong time of the year for the farmers to take part in the nomination of a ticket. If this law can not be changed so as to have this election held about the 1st of July, then it would be better to have it made so there would be no elections held in the farming districts, then we would know where we were at, as it is an impossiability to convince a farmer that it pays him to leave his wheat stacking, to go to election.

We expect to place the nominees of the republican party in our colums soon so the people can have an opportunity to get better aquainted with them. However the candidates may conclude, that they don't want to have their names known, but make a sort of a gum shoe campaign.

The solid endorsement of Hon. H. Steenerson for congressman from this district, will certainly be of great benefit to him in the next session of congress as the other members of the house will understand that the people are behind their congressman and that there is no complaint being made that he has not done the best he could to represent the best interests of his district.

Thomas Gerrio has made a splendid record as county attorney of this county, and the carefull tax payer will do well to retain his services for another two years, as he is not in anyway mixed up in the county seat removel schemes. There certainly will some questions come up in that campaign where it will be about as the county attorney seys as to who will pay some pretty large bills, the county, or the ones that kick up the muss.

We were always in favor of the dancer paying the fiddler and we are still of that opinion, and would consider it to the best interest of the tax payers to elect a man for county attorney that is not in the employ of either side in the county seat removel scrap.

* * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * *

Republican State Ticket.

United States Senator—
Knute Nelson,
Douglas County.

Governor—
A.L. Cole,
Cass County.

Lieutenant Governor—
A.O. Eberhart.
Blue Earth County.

Chief Justice—
Charles M. Start,
Olmsted County.

State Treasurer—
Clarence Dinehart,
Murray County.

Secretary of State—
Julius Schmahl,
Redwood County.

Attorney General—
E.T. Young,
Swift County.

State Auditor—
S.G. Iverson,
Fillmore County.

Clerk of Supreme Court—
C.A. Pidgeon,
Wright County.

Railroad Commissioner—
C.F. Staples,
Dakota County.

State Senator 61st Ditrict.
A. L. HANSON.

Representative 61st District.
JENS J. OPSAHL.

Diet and Digestion.

Abstemiousness in diet is very conducive to a good digestion. It is preferable to be a little underfed than at all overfed. Hence we come to one of the first causes of indigestion in the adult, too large a quantity of food. After an ordinary meal the food should all have left the stomach by the end of six or seven hours. If owing to an excessive quantity the stomach cannot deal with the amount some food remains in the stomach and ferments. This creates discomfort, pain, wind, nausea and perhaps vomiting, by means of which the abused stomach gets rid of its burden. If the sufferer is not thus fortunately sick the best thing he can do is to drink a large tumbler of lukewarm water, which will probably induce vomiting and so wash out the stomach. Half a teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda added to the fluid will cause still more relief. During the next twenty-four hours the lightest diet, such as a little tea and dried toast, some boiled rice, a little arrowroot or corn flour, should be taken.

Mixed Feelings.

The little girl who, after a drink of soda, declared that her nose felt as if her foot was asleep has evidently grown up and retained her happy power of expression, for evidently the young lady mentioned in Punch is the same person who drank bubbles when she was small.

The young woman was traveling in a coach as an elderly and somewhat sour looking man, in trying to open the window, pinched his finger nail severely.

"Oh!" exclaimed the lady, sympathetically. "How horrid! I always think anything wrong with one's nails sets one's teeth on edge all down one's back!"

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of five dollars which became due March 14th 1906, and is due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Martha Kolstoe, a single woman, mortgagor, to Merchants state Bank of Red Lake Falls, mortgagee, bearing date the 14th day of March, 1905, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of deeds of the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, on the 14th day of March 1905 at 4 o'clock, P. M. in Book 35 of Mortgages, on page 8 thereof, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the county of Polk, State of Minnesota, on the 14th day of August, 1906, at 8 o'clock A. M. in Book 116 of Mortgages on page 418: and whereas, pursuant to the terms and condition of said mortgage by reason of said default, the whole prancipal sum of mortgage, towit, thirty dollars, did on the 14th day of March 1906, become at once due and payable, and was so declared by said mortgagee: and whereas, there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of thirty dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of ten per cent per annum since March 14, 1906 and whereas, the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof:

Now, therefor, Notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to wit,:

Lots six (6) and seven (7) of section six (6) in township one hundred, fifty one (151), north, of range thirty nine (39) in Polk County, Minnesota, and the east half of the south east quarter, (E.½ of S.E. ¼) of section one (1) in township one hundred fifty one (151), north, of range forty (40), in Red Lake County, Minnesota, which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Red Lake County, Minnesota, at the west front door at the courthouse in the City of Red Lake Falls, in said county and state on Saturday, the 13th day of October, 1906, at two (2) o'clock P.M. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of thirty dollars and interest as aforesaid, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and a reasonale attorney's fee as stipulated in said mortgage, the same being hereby claimed and stated to be the sum of twenty five dollars, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated August 22nd, 1906,

Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls Minn.,
Mortgagee.

Chas. E. Boughton,
Attorney for Mortgagee,
Red Lake Falls, Minnesota.

Corks For Bottle Stoppers.

The application of cork as a bottle stopper for liquid vessels is said to be of great antiquity. The earliest record extant of its use in Europe is that mentioned by Horace, who asserts that the Romans had cork as stoppers for their wine ampherae. Certain of the uses of cork were known to the ancient Greeks and Egyptians, but whether they used cork for stopping the mouths of their liquid vessels history does not say. It was not, however, until the year 1760 that the Spaniards first commenced to work their cork woods with some degree of regularity for the making of corks. Although perhaps corks were more or less in use from the time glass bottles were first invented, which Beckmann asserts to have been in the fifteenth century, yet it was not until two and a half centuries later that the Spaniards began to prepare cork for bottle stoppers, which they did in a forest situated at the northeast of the Tigueras, on the Muge. The cork industry has since gradually risen to be one of the first magnitude, its chief center in Spain being in Catalonia.

What the Teacher Must Do.

Knowledge is good, but wisdom is better. The college valedictorian, trained to take knowledge in rather than to impart it, may have much of it with but little wisdom. He may be able, as a teacher, to drill boys and girls in Greek and Latin declensions and cram them with facts, useful or valueless, but if he cannot produce in them what Spencer calls "pleasurable excitement" and interest he is a failure. His would be the sort of teaching that harps upon obedience and discipline and endeavors by force of rule and rod to oblige the pupil to study and learn. The will cannot be forced, but the real teacher knows well that it can be led. He remembers the remark of Rousseau that "the teacher's province is less to instruct than to guide;" that "he must not lay down precepts, but teach his pupils to discover them." This was the way of that great teacher, Agassiz, certainly.—Arthur Gilman in Atlantic.

Chotohazree at the Gymkhana.

In "Modern India" the author, William Elero; Curtis, records his meeting with the word gymkhana and "ventures to say that nobody who has not been in India can guess what that means."

And if you want another conundrum, what is a chotohazree? It is customary for smart people to have their chotohazree at the gymkhana, and I think you would be pleased to join them after taking the beautiful drive which leads to the place. Nobody knows where the word was derived from, but it is used to describe a country club—a bungalow hidden under a beautiful grove on the brow of a cliff that overhangs the bay—with all of the appurtenances, golf links, cricket grounds, racket courts and indoor gymnasium, and everybody stops there on an afternoon drive to have chotohazree, which is the local term for afternoon tea and for early morning coffee.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION

First Pub. in The Sunbeam August 31, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land office at Crookston Minn. August 24th, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on October 23, 1905 viz:

Nels Loiland.

H.E. no. 1181 Red Lake Series for the Lots 5, 6, 7, 9, S.W. ¼, S.E. ¼, Sec. 27 Twp. 152 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ben K. Krestad of Highlanding Minn. Halvor Swanson, Ole N. Loiland, Olaf Hanson of Hilda Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register

The Small Mouthed Bass.

The small mouthed bass fully deserves his reputation for being vigorous and gamy from infancy. He is extremely pugnacious by nature and has fighting tactics peculiarly his own which for strength, activity and craft are unequaled. I once took a bass four inches long on a spoon hook, the bowl of which was more than two inches long. This bass does not hesitate to tackle that terror of all other fish—the fierce and voracious pickerel. With his first dorsal fin rigidly set up, he lays off some ten or twenty feet and then makes a rapid dash right into and under the "long face," forcing him to clear out at once or ripping him so badly that he is hors de combat. The fact has been established that bass introduced into a pond containing pickerel will ultimately destroy the latter. The same fate awaits other fish, including trout.—Outing.

Wind Superstitions.

The Finns of Norway long entertained a traditional belief in the power of controlling the winds by a small rope with three knots tied in it. This popular superstition gave rise to the curious industry of making and selling these wind controlling ropes with magical knots to mariners and fishermen. It was believed that by unloosing the first knot a favorable breeze was secured, the second raised a strong gale and if the third knot was untied it would prove the prelude to a tempest. According to Ranulph Higden, the witches of the Isle of Man had a similar ancient practice of selling winds to sailors.

Apt.

Douglas Jerrold had a way of putting pat names to things. One of his remarks is given by George Hodder in "Manners of My Time." Jerrold was at a party one night where a doctor, who was tall and thin almost to emaciation, had for a partner a lady who was short and square in build. Turning to a bystander, he remarked, "There is a mile dancing with a milestone."

When Labor Did Not Tell.

A home missionary who visited Sing Sing prison took occasion to have a heart to heart talk with one of the convicts.

"Don't you know, my friend," said he, "that crime never brings success? It is only achieved by hard labor."

"I did six months of it at a stretch once, and I didn't come out no richer than I went in."

He Was Spurned.

"Believe me," said old Gotrox, "although I'm an old bachelor I'm sure I could learn to be a good husband. You know, a man is never too old to learn."

"Nor too old to yearn, perhaps," replied Miss Pechis; "also I'm sorry to say you're not too old to spurn."—Philadelphia Press.

Always Something Lacking.

Love is like a waltz. It never quite fulfills all one expects of it. Either the man's lead is too fast or too slow, his hold too light or too loose, he stumbles over your gown or steps on your feet, and if everything else is right it is the wrong man.—Life.

For Its Vocabulary's Sake.

"Indirectly, more forcibly sometimes than directly," said a senator, "a man may be accused."

"Thus a good woman of Cincinnati called her cook one morning and said:

"'Mary, come and take the parrot out of the bedroom at once. The master has lost his collar button.'"

The Difference.

Mr. Wholesale—Want a job, eh? What can you do? Applicant—Nothing. Mr. Wholesale—Say, you don't want a "job." What you want is a "position."—New York Press.

The Way of the Law.

A man who goes to law may not be in the poor suitor class when he starts, but is liable to be before he finishes.—Washington Star.

Who rises every time he falls will sometimes rise to stay.—Morris.

Disappointment on Both Sides.

"You said the house was only five minutes' walk from the station," complained the victim. "To say the least, I'm disappointed in you."

"And I'm disappointed in you," replied the agent. "I thought you were a very rapid walker."—Philadelphia Press.

A Little Misunderstanding.

"Sir, your son's performance on the French horn is execrable. It will drive everybody from my house. You told me he was a teacher."

"I did not. I said he was a tooter."

Men are often capable of greater things than they perform. They are sent into the world with bills of credit and seldom draw to their full extent.—Walpole.

H. & B. MILLING CO.
BEST
VIVO
PATENT
98
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.
VIVO

Vivo

HANDLED BY ALL THE
LEADING MERCHANTS OF THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

(ALWAYS CALL FOR VIVO)

We pay the highest market price for all grain, at our mill in Thief River Falls, or at our elevator at Plummer, and always have on hand a compleat line of flour & feed at both points.

☞ Promt shipments made by boat to all points along the Red Lake river.

We solicit your orders.

Hanson & Barzen Milling Company.

THE MERCHANTS

State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds, Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.—

J. A. DUFFY, Cashier.

NORSK HANDEL.

DRY GOODS.
CLOTHING, SHOES, DRUGS
We carry a full and complete line of Groceries, Drugs & Patent Medicines.

☞ LOOK AT THIS. We pay the highest market price for, Hides, Wool, Seneka Root, Furs & All Farm Products.

H. H. Finrow, Mg.

PLUMMER, MINN.

The Radny Store:

☞ THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE RADNY STORE.

John has, Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes.

A full and complete line of groceries.

Best brands of flour, at lowest market price

Call and see me for bargains, at Radny post office and store.

John Radneskie.

In Praise of Cockneys.

Cockneys are the best natured people under the sun. It is notorious that a big London crowd is of all crowds in the world the most harmless and the easiest to manage. But see them also in their ordinary collections, outside the gallery door of a popular theater or crowding in the carriages of an excursion train—what fun and kindness and wholesome give and take! A deliberately rude or offensive cockney is hardly to be met.—G. S. Street in Pall Mall Gazette.

The Mortality List.

Manager (of great exposition)—What alarms me is our mortality list. Assistant—Mortality list? Why, it's next to nothing at all! "I know better than that. More than one-third of the people that come through the turnstiles are deadheads."

Corroborative.

"This," exclaimed the orator, "is a decadent nation! As before the fall of Rome everything was rotten, so today in our erstwhile fair land everything"—

Just here an egg struck him fairly.

His nostrils dilated.

"I desire," he continued, "before retiring to add that this egg is corroborative evidence."—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Case For Sympathy.

"I have three children, who are the very image of myself," said Jones enthusiastically.

"I pity the youngest," returned Brown quietly.

"Why?" asked Jones.

"Because he is the one who will have to resemble you the longest," said Brown.—Tit-Bits.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

VIVO flour is the best. Ask your dealer for vivo.

HORSES FOR SALE, at the Plummer livery barn.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar, will cure your cough.

M.E. Hyland of Deer Park was a business caller here yesterday.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar will bring relief to Asthma patients.

Pay up your back subscription.

This has been a fine season for the Dakota harvesters, as they have not lost any time.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar Do not wait get it at the first indication of cough or cold.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar, is a remedy that cures by removing the cause. Try a 50ct. bottle.

Chris Larson the Anton dealer will pay you the highest cash price for cattle, see him before you sell.

Miss Robbecke of Thief River Falls came on the Mondays boat and is visiting Miss Kuehnel this week.

Martin Hegstead of Gully has purchased the S.E. ¼ of sec. 36, Twp. 150, R. 39 and will make his home here.

Joseph Wikum of McIntosh has purchased land near Anton Post office and will make his home down there.

CATTLE WANTED, Highest market price paid for fat cattle, inquire at this office, or of Chris Larson at Anton Post office.

Ye editor made a hurry up trip to Crookston on Sunday and took in the editorial banquet at the Hotel Crookston on Monday night.

The homesteaders are returning from N.D. this week by the wholesale, having completed their falls work in the harvest fields.

Wait McAndress has been speeding the plow this week, and his farm begins to look like a place to raise a big crop next season.

Henry B. Castillo returned home from Dakota on Wednesday. He reports a prosperous seasons work out there having had $6 per day for his work.

We met our old friend Ole Olson at Crookston on Monday evening, and he has promised to write an article on the senatorial situation in Polk Co. which will appear in a week or so.

Our farmers are begining to take an active interest in stock raising and cream production, as it makes a steady cash income for that little monthly check from the Thief River Falls creamery comes very handy to pay the grocery bill.

Our school house seats seem to be still growing in the timber and our school will not be ready to start up next Monday. There is no complaint being made about the school board as they have done the best they could to get the seats here on time, but they seem to have got mixed up with a poor consern of a company.

Peter Hunstad, is building a large graniery on his farm west of Kuehnel, but don't seem to take any interest in enlarging his residence. Can it be possibie that Peat can resist all the charms of the fair maiden neighbors and still continue to egnore the divine teaching which says, "it is not good for man to live alone"

There are Others.

At the banquet at the Hotel Crookston last Monday evening, our Red Lake County speakers, could have created a better impression if they had not allowed that little county seat scrap to crop out. Mr. Grady of Red Lake Falls and Mr. Richardson of Thief River Falls had ought to understand that there are other people besides corner lot owners in them places, that are interested in the developement of northern Minnesota.

Knute is Coming.

Hon. Knute Nelson will address the voters of Red Lake County on the political issues of the day, at Thief River Falls on October 4th. This will be the opening of the republican campaign in Red Lake County, and "Now is the time for all true men to come to the aid of the party."

RURAL WATER SUPPLY.

Its Sanitary Condition Not What It Ought to Be.

When such great sums of money are being expended by city governments that the inhabitants of towns may have a sanitary water supply it seems strange that the supply in rural towns should receive little or no attention. This latter population may seem relatively insignificant, but it comprises about 40,000,000 souls. This means that those 40,000,000 people are drinking the water most available without a thought of its sanitary condition.

These various sources of supply, whether wells, springs or small streams, are similarly unreliable for furnishing drinking water. The statistics of mortality in the country are very indefinite, but even these show that the rural population is not as free from illness as it should be. And though everywhere the rural death rate is lower than the urban death rate, yet the lowering in the country has not been as great as in the city. An examination of typhoid statistics shows that the death rate of other diseases is generally lower in the country than in the city, but the prevalence of typhoid is almost equal to if not greater in the rural districts than in the cities.

Several instances have been reported which show the rural typhoid rate to be ten times greater than the urban rate for the same district. To particularize, a certain district in central Pennsylvania proves this fact. It is made up of a rural population with 100 inhabitants to the square mile. It is a region of fine farms, wild mountains and woods, country residences and picnic groves. And in this valley there has been as much typhoid fever as in the city of Philadelphia.

Sad as this condition is, there seems to be no remedy for it. The sources of a city water supply are few and the city government easily controls the conditions affecting it. But what can be done when the sources of supply are numbered by the thousands? A mint of money and an army of chemists would not be sufficient to give the same care to the country supply that is given to that of the city.—New York Herald.

SNOWSLIDES OF ROCKIES.

Peril of Mountains Takes Its Toll of Life and Property.

Every year the life of a miner in the high mountain regions is menaced by the avalanche or snowslide, and every year brings its list of casualities and of hairbreadth escapes. The story of snowslides would fill a book and would be a thrilling, tragic and in some cases a grewsome one.

Men have ridden hundreds of feet on the back of a snowslide and have escaped unhurt. Others have been caught and buried so deep and in such uncertain spots that their bodies have not been discovered until the melting of the snow in the following spring.

Some have been caught as they were walking, but a few steps from the boarding house to the mine, or while emptying a car on the mine dump. Not infrequently men have found themselves temporarily imprisoned by the entrance of the mine being closed by a slide while they were at work and have had to dig their way out.

A Chinese cook at one of the Idaho mines stepped outside his kitchen door for a moment and was caught and hurled with the slide 1,000 feet down the hillside and his body was not recovered till the following spring.

Such incidents denote the extreme suddenness, power and velocity of the slide. Little or no warning is given, a roar, a cloud of snow obscuring the sight of the real slide, and in a moment thousands of tons of snow, mingled with trees and debris, are shot down the gulch or the slope of a mountain as from the mouth of a cannon. In a few seconds all is over and the scenery of the little valley is completely changed.—Mines and Minerals.

A Desperate Case.

Walk O. Nights—Doctor, what is a simple remedy for sleeplessness? Doctor—Let the person count till he falls asleep. Walk, O. Nights—He can't count. It's the baby.

The honor we receive of those who fear and stand in awe of us is no true honor.—Montaigne.

MARKS'S LUNG BALSAM, with TAR.

For the cure of all diseases of the lungs, throat and chest, as Cough, Cold, Asthma, Bronchitis La Grip and will Prevent consumption when taken in time.

J. K WOOD,
COUNTY SURVEYOR, &
CIVIL ENGINEER.

Will give all orders for Surveying prompt attention.

Office at Thief River Falls
Minnesota.

U.S. Mail,

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 8. 30 a. m. on Tuesday's Thurday's and Saturday's. & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 3. p.m.

Wm. G. HUNT, P.M.

MONEY TO LOAN.

I have money to loan on real-estate at 7½ per cent. Payments at the land office made for you when you make final proof.

Special attention given to Notary Public work.

Applications to make final proof written free.

Stephen Singer.
Rhoda Minn.

Subscribe for The Sunbeam,

Wanted: Gentleman or lady with good reference, to travel by rail or with a rig, for a firm of $250,000:00 capital. Salary $1,072 00 per year and expenses: salary paid weekly and expenses advanced. Address, with stamp, Jos. A. Alexander, Subeam, Minn.

LAND OFFICE BUSINESS.

U.S. Commissioner L. G. Browning with office located at Thief River Falls, is prepared to take homestead entries final proof etc., within the Crookston U. S. Land District.

office in News building, three doors south of the post office.

ECZEMA and PILE CURE FREE,

Knowing what it was to suffer, I will give FREE OF CHARGE, to any afflicted a Positive cure for Eczema, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Piles and Skin Diseases. Instant relief. Don't suffer longer, Write F. W. Williams, 400 Manhattan Avenue, New York. Enclose Stamp.

Out of the Public.

When I was a very little boy, writes Sir William Gregory in his autobiography, my grandfather, who was then undersecretary for Ireland, took me to the chief secretary's room in Dublin castle and formally introduced me to Lord Melbourne.

After I had been with him for some little time he said, "Now, my boy, is there anything here you would like?"

"Yes," I answered, pointing to a very large stick of sealing wax.

"That's right," said Lord Melbourne, pressing on me a bundle of pens; "begin life early. All these things belong to the public, and your business must always be to get out of the public as much as you can."—Pearson's Weekly.

Omens of Bricklayers.

Bricklayers believe it is unlucky to lay the top brick at the north corner of a building. Some of them would lose a day's pay rather than imperil their future by doing such a piece of work. A bricklayer often bricks up in the hollow of a wall a horseshoe with a cent tied to it. This he does for good luck. To lay the first and last brick of any building but a church brings good luck to the bricklayer. Churches are the luckiest buildings to work on; theaters are the unluckiest. It is bad luck to break a trowel.—New York Press.

60 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam September 25 1906.

Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston Minn. August September 25, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before L.G. Browning U.S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota, on November 5th 1906, viz:

Fred Solie.

H.E. No. 530 Red Lake Series, for the N.W. ¼ Sec. 16, Twp. 154, N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Knut Rogness, Ole Wiseth, Pete Brevik, of Germantown Minn. Olef Arakre of Brunkeberg Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Regster.

Man Who Beheaded Charles I.

The mysterious masked man who beheaded Charles I. remains British analogue for the Man With the Iron Mask. Lilly, the lying astrologer, denounced Cornet Joyce at the restoration, but Joyce on the fatal 30th of January was not in favor with Cromwell. The parish register of Whitechapel records the burial in 1649 of Richard Brandon, the common hangman, and opposite the entry a contemporary hand wrote that "he cut off the head of Charles the First." Brandon himself asserted that "they made him do it for £30," with which he drank himself to death.—Dundee Advertiser.

Drinking Hot Water.

Persons who have irritability of the heart should not drink hot water. Hot water will cause palpitation in such cases. Persons with dilated stomachs should avoid the drinking of hot water; persons afflicted with "sour stomachs;" persons who have soreness of the stomach or pain induced by light pressure should also refrain from drinking it. Hot water will relieve thirst better than cold water, and for that purpose it should not be condemned, but hot water is an excitant, and in cases in which irritation of the stomach exists it should be avoided.

Drudgery.

The everyday cares and duties which men call drudgery are the weights and counterpoises of the clock of time, giving its pendulum a true vibration and its hands a regular motion, and when they cease to hang upon its wheels the pendulum no longer swings, the hands no longer move, the clock stands still.—Longfellow.

A Protest.

The Lion—The leopard, you know, cannot change his spots. The Zebra—Well, I can't change my stripes either, but no one ever thought it of sufficient interest to make a proverb of.—Philadelphia Record.

Good Nature May Be Costly.

"Don't look so glum, Pilkerton. Use cheery words. They cost nothing."

"Cost nothing! If I speak ten cheery words to my wife, she asks me for some money."

Naturally.

Gunner—Yes, he is a champion golf player, and so is the girl he is going to marry. Not only that, the minister who will perform the ceremony is very fond of the game.

Guyer—Ah, I suppose he will be pleased to link them together.—Chicago News.

Bound to Crop Out.

"Yes, I believe I did say you were always lying about yourself."

"I'll have you to understand, sir, that I am not used to this kind of talk. I'm a gentleman, sir."

"There you go. Can't keep from it, can you?"—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Time to Get Busy.

Her Husband — I thought you were going to visit your mother?

His Wife—And so I am.

Her Husband—Well, you had better begin to pack your trunk at once. The train leaves in forty-eight hours.—Detroit Tribune.

The Fall of the Hennins.

The hennins or headdresses worn by ladies of the fifteenth century were in shape of horns and so long that a woman's face appeared to be in the center of her figure. The clergy condemned them and threatened the wearers with perdition, but for all that they were worn higher than ever. At last a strolling evangelist at Paris promised absolution to all who would destroy the hennins, and the mob went to work and wrecked the headdresses whenever they appeared in public. The hennins were trampled under foot and their wearers insulted all over Paris. Scores of lives were lost in the efforts of the cavaliers to defend the hennins from the rabble, but in vain, and the enormous headdresses disappeared, some other feminine absurdity taking their place.

An Arabian Legend.

The Arabians had a tradition that when the devil started forth from his own place to the garden of Eden he was too lazy to walk and begged all the animals, one after another, to carry him. All refused except the serpent, which was then a quadruped and the most beautiful of all beasts. Yielding to the entreaties of Satan, the serpent took up the devil on its back and carried him the rest of the way, no one knows how far, and after the consequences of the devil's entry into the garden became apparent the angels were commanded to look up the serpent and punish it, so Michael cut off its legs, and it was doomed henceforth to travel about as best it could flat on the ground.

IF YOU WANT TO DO BUSINESS,
With The People Of Eastern Red Lake County,
YOU SHOULD ADVERTISE
IN A PAPER,
THAT THEY TAKE AND READ.
TRY "THE SUNBEAM", WITH AN AD., FOR RESULTS.

THE FIRST
STATE BANK, OF
THIEF RIVER FALLS, WILL LOAN YOU THE Money To Make Your Second Payment, or to make your final proof. Give us a call, as we give the best rates
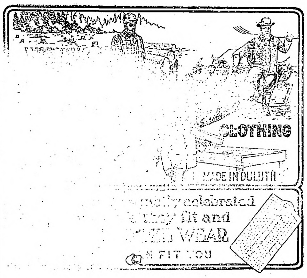
On Farm Loans.

Stephen Singer, Edward; Singer,

SINGER BROS.
Dealers In,



Groceries, flour & feed.

Dry Goods, Boots & Shoes.

HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR FARM PRODUCE

Rhoda, Minn.

NEW STORE,
AT ANTON MINNESOTA.
Dry Goods, Goceries, Flour & feed.
Fine & Heavy Shoes, of best quality.
EXCLUSIVE AGENTS FOR THE CELEBRATED DE LAVAL CREAM SEPERATOR, IN THE ELEVEN TOWNS.
Any Kind Of Stock Taken In Exchange For Goods.
Give me a call.
Located at Anton post office, on the Red Lake River, Eigh miles east of Thief River Falls.
Chris Larson, Proprietor

DEFECTIVE PAGE

THE LADY SHERIFF'S CAPTIVE

By W. W. HINES.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

Down the one street of San Carlos came a scurry of hot alkali dust, then the sound of two revolver shots, and a couple of cowboys from the Triple X ranch went tearing by on little, undersized cayuses that could run, and were then running, like, as Monty Jacobs remarked, "a couple of scairt jackrabbits."

"Red" Cutcheon was in company with his bosom friend and boon companion, "Slim Jim" Morley. With the annual round-up on the Triple X over, and with three months' pay in their pockets, the two were drinking in large drafts from the cup of pleasure afforded them by the pleasing practice of "shooting up" San Carlos. They were, or rather had been, drinking other things—many other things, but principally "mescal" whisky, which makes the brain feel like the interior of an active volcano.

Being "shot up" was an old story to San Carlos and its citizens. It was just one of those little occurrences which are none the less inevitable because slightly unpleasant. About once a month a delegation of two or more cowboys from the Triple X performed the operation, which consisted in getting very drunk and then riding up and down through San Carlos' main, and only, street, yelling at the top of their voices and firing their pistols.

But the "mescal" must have been worse than usual on this day, or else Red and Slim Jim had absorbed largely of it. Their spirits were too high to be satisfied with the harmless amusement of yelling and discharging revolvers into the air. They were "hunting trouble."

"Whoop-ee!" they yelled, as they drew rein in front of Jacobs' store. "Come out, you old Jew. We want licker."

Monty came. He was no coward, and besides he knew that the only danger lay in the fact that he might accidentally stop a bullet meant for another destination.

"You orter behave yourselves better, boys," said Monty, as he served the drinks they demanded, "we've got a new sheriff of Ranger county since you were here last."

"To Halifax with the sheriff of Ranger county!" said Red. "What's become of old Mike Callaghan?"

"Mike died two months ago," said Monty, "and the boys thought his widow needed the fees of the office, so what did they up and do but elect his daughter to the office. Some people said 'twarn't legal to elect a woman sheriff, but the boys said they didn't care two whoops in a hot climate whether 'twas legal or not. So you fellers had orter quit sich follishness as shooting up the town."

"Whoop-ee!" said Slim Jim Morley. "Hurrah for the new sheriff! Is she pretty?"

"Well, of course, there's difference of taste about beauty," said Monty cautiously. "But most of the boys swear as how she is the prettiest girl in Ranger county."

"Here's your money, you old Jew," said Red enthusiastically. "We're going 'round to call on the new sheriff. Where is she? At the court house?"

Monty had no hesitancy in answering in the affirmative, for he knew the boys would never think of harming a woman.

Yelling like wild Indians, and punctuating the yells with revolver shots, the mescal-crazed cowboys started at a gallop for the little red court house.

In front they drew rein with a final yell and a volley from their six-shooters.

Not a man was in sight. The whole town looked as though every one was indoors and asleep.

"Whoop-ee!" Bang! Bang!; "We want to see the new sheriff. Come out and arrest us, sheriff! Whoop-ee!"

The door in the front of the court house was quickly opened, and a young girl stepped out.

"Whoop-ee!" began Red and Slim Jim in unison. Bang! went a pistol in the hands of the girl.

Evidently the new sheriff took the duties of the office in dead earnest.

In each hand she held a heavy Colt's revolver, and she began firing deliberately, first with one and then with another. A bullet struck an adobe house on the farther side of the street, another kicked up the dust at the feet of Red's cayuse. A third stung the flank of Slim Jim's cayuse, and he started off on a gallop.

Not knowing the cause of his comrade's desertion, Red reviled him bitterly.

The sound of her own pistol shots was ringing too loudly in the sheriff's ears for her to hear this shout, but she recognized the fact that neither one of the two men had fired at her, and she began to wonder if she had not done wrong in sizing them up as desperadoes. Within the court house walls she had nerved herself up to the point of believing that the duties of her office required her to go out and subdue the outlaws with their own weapons. That they would refuse to meet her on equal terms, she never dreamed.

It was galling to her pride. Both men evidently regarded the whole affair as a huge joke. Her pistols were empty, and, according to Hoyle, she should have stepped inside the court house door to reload. Instead, she threw the two revolvers down on the floor at her feet and began crying bitterly.

Red scratched his head thoughtfully. Tears were something he could not understand. Dismounting, he threw the bridle rein over the pony's neck and walked over to the court house.

The girl continued to cry.

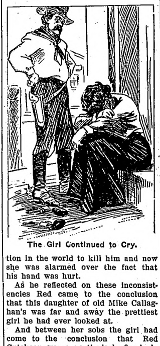
"Don't cry, ma'am," said Red. "There ain't no use for crying. It certainly was ornery for that pardner of mine to run away like he did, but you showed first-rate target practice—for a lady. See here, ma'am! You hit me once."

The girl looked up to see a big, lank cowboy extending a bloody hand, and shrank back, horror-struck.

"Yes'm," said Red cheerfully, not appreciating her attitude; "went right through the hand. You see them guns of your'n air too heavy for a lady. You orter had taken a rest on something. Shall I go back and let you try it over? I'll go fetch Slim Jim, too, if you want him."

"Oh, it's horrible!" said the girl, "all that blood! Are you badly hurt?"

There was anxiety in her tone, and Red hastened to assure her that a bullet through the hand meant nothing. Women were certainly peculiar. Five minutes before this girl had been shooting at him with the best intention in the world to kill him and now she was alarmed over the fact that his hand was hurt.



The Girl Continued to Cry.

As he reflected on these inconsistencies Red came to the conclusion that this daughter of old Mike Callaghan's was far and away the prettiest girl he had ever looked at.

And between her sobs the girl had come to the conclusion that Red Cutcheon was a particularly fine-looking specimen of the genus cowboy. Then to think of his gallantry in standing up and letting her shoot at him, for what he considered her amusement! She had read of deeds like this in old volumes of knight errantry, but she had never expected to meet it in real life.

"I was going to put you under arrest," she sobbed. "I was going to show people that a woman sheriff could do just as well as a man, and now—oh! oh! oh!"

"Don't cry, ma'am," said Red awkwardly. "I ain't got the least objection in the world to being arrested. If you'll give me a paper of some kind to old Gray Hopkins, the jailer, I'll go down right now and make him lock me up. I know he hates to have any prisoners in the jail, but you bet I'll make him take me in, or get every window in his old shack shot out."

"I don't want to lock you up now," said the girl. "I'll have to resign as sheriff, for I am not capable of filling the office."

"You ain't going to do no sich a thing, ma'am" said Red cheerfully and enthusiastically. "I'm going right down now and make old man Hopkins lock me up without any papers. But first off, I am going out and arrest Slim Jim Morley."

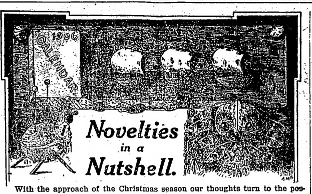
Slim Jim, meanwhile, had succeeded in stopping his cayuse when only a mile or so out of the village, and was already on his way back. He was at first somewhat averse to being arrested, but Red had the drop on him, and when the situation was explained to him, he fell enthusiastically in with Red's idea of forcing old man Hopkins to lock them up.

Three months afterward it became necessary for the citizens of Ranger county to elect a new sheriff.

"I move," said Monty, addressing the mass-meeting of the Democratic party, "that, as the present occupant of the office will no longer consent to hold it, the nomination be offered to Red Cutcheon. I may say that, although I have not been directly taken into the confidence of the parties, I have a straight hunch that the present occupant of the office will shortly become Mrs. Red Cutcheon. As for Mr. Cutcheon's fitness for the office, I can only call the attention of the citizens to the fact that he is probably the best shot in Ranger county. Eight times in the past five years he has passed my store on a galloping cayuse and, although very drunk on each occasion, he has never failed to break the two glass bottles in my window with two shots.

"I therefore propose that a vote of thanks for an unusually successful administration be tendered the outgoing tenant of the office, and that Mr. Cutcheon's nomination be made unanimous by a rising vote."

Both motions were carried without a dissenting voice.



Novelties in a Nutshell.

With the approach of the Christmas season our thoughts turn to the possibilities of holiday remembrances for our friends. Those that are made at home are always the most appreciated, and here are some suggestions that offer genuine novelties, of which the principal material for each is a nutshell of different kinds.

A calendar, of dark green cardboard, is ornamented by a row of tiny ships, made out of walnut shells divided into quarters. These dainty vessels are fitted with wee masts of wood and rigging of gold cord. The spreading sails are realistically represented by thin plates of mother-of-pearl, cut to the requisite shape. Pennons fly gaily from the mastheads, the ocean itself being composed of a strip of green metallic paper. The whole is suspended by green cord, passed through small shells glued into the top corners.

Often quaint and unexpected shapes of nuts themselves will suggest new ideas. For instance, a walnut endowed by nature with a perfectly flat back at once called up the picture of an owl's head. A few touches with a pyrographic-needle, a pair of black boot buttons (to serve for eyes), half a dozen feathers from the partridge hanging in the larder, a judicious dab or two of paint, another of liquid cement, and behold! the bird of night, flitting solemnly across the stained and polished surface of a post card case, on which a pale yellow crescent moon and sprinkling of stars have been appplied:

A useful trifle for bazaars or Christmas trees is contrived from a good-sized walnut, liberally pierced with holes, into which are inserted hat pins of different sizes. When neatly stained and varnished, fitted with four little sticks for legs, and green glass-headed pins for eyes, he appears quite a formidable "beastie" with his gaping mouth and bristling tail.

Advice to Women Authors.

Editors Always Looking for New Clever Aspirants—Opportunities to Write About Domestic Matters and Fashion.

BY MARGARET E. SANGSTER.

A clever girl who has received a passably good education, who is fond of books and who wants to earn a little money, sometimes decides that she will enter the lists and write a novel. She procures a supply of foolscap and sits down with a story in her head.

Nothing appears easier to the dreaming girl or to the girl who took prizes at school in the composition class. She means to write a book, and before she has finished the first chapter she sees herself in imagination famous and successful and the possessor of a fortune. Have there not been examples of success so swift, so dazzling, so almost miraculous that there is no reason for discouragement, but on the other hand, every reason for hope? What woman has done, woman may do. Has not our friend heard of the quiet little New England girl never 20 miles from her village until she had written a dozen short stories that fairly took the world by storm? Has she not heard of the southern girl brought up in her father's library and familiar from childhood with the picturesque literature of colonial life, the girl whose first novel was published in the Atlantic Monthly and whose work was known on two continents and brought her a golden harvest?

These and other examples flit before the busy brain and she feels in her inmost soul that she is as likely to reach the top of the ladder at a bound, as they were. So, filled with confidence, she begins to write.

There is never much difficulty about the first chapter. The pen flies over the paper and the hero and heroine with their attendants step briskly upon the stage. But unless the young author belong to the exceptionally gifted few, she soon encounters trouble. She does not know what to do with her people; they are puppets and wooden at that; they are not living and breathing realities, full of red blood and throbbing flesh as the characters are in the stories of novelists endowed with creative power. Before very long, if she is fortunate, our girl-writer realizes that it is not worth while to meander through 300 dull pages only to be rejected by the publisher in the end. If she does plod doggedly on, she may win her experience at a dearer rate.

Only here and there do we find those who have come into the world with the heaven-sent gift of the story-teller. Novelists are born, not made. All the teaching and training in the world never yet put a spark of the divine fire into the work of a romancer who had not the romance faculty in her soul. True, there are many abortive books published every season; more is the pity. The girl I am thinking of is too sensible to write a hopelessly dull book with her eyes open.

* * * * * *

Perhaps the better way is usually for the youthful aspirant to test her mettle by attempting to write short stories. There is a ready market for strong, bright and charming short stories in the monthly magazines, and the weekly periodicals. They sometimes find a place, too, in the daily newspaper. A story must have pith and point. It must have a clearly defined motive. It must have atmosphere and local color and above all, it must describe something in a manner so life-like that it takes rank above mere invention and carries with it a conviction of sincerity.

Not for imitation, but for study, the girl who thinks she can write short stories should read those of the popular writers of the day. Alice Brown, Mary Wilkins Freeman, Abby Roach MacGuire, Harriet Prescott Spofford, Margaret Deland and others will afford her excellent examples of finished art in story-writing.

Nothing is oftener heard than the woeful complaint that there is no room for a new writer. The fact is that editors are always on the lookout for new writers. The public clamors for novelty. There is, of course, a welcome for men and women whose work has distinction and whose style is of a certain fine individuality, but it is a gala day in an editorial office when a new star looms up on the horizon. Equally in the publishing world there is joy when the new novelist brings the product of genius to the front.

Editors and publishers not infrequently make mistakes. As every one knows David Harum was sent from one publisher to another, returning with polite notes of regret to its invalid author, until one reader was found who discovered its rare merits. I have personally known two instances in which books rejected by the readers of one publishing house, were recommended by those of another and being given to the world, rapidly ran through many successive editions bringing their authors fame and money and receiving notice among the best selling books of several seasons. I mention this in order that my aspiring author may not be too readily disheartened. If she have the stuff in her she will after awhile find somebody who has the witch hazel wand that divines genius and the helping hand that introduces it to the reading world.

Meanwhile, my advice is, read more than you write. You can hardly read too much. Read everything that interests you, travel, essays, biography and poetry, but do not too closely confine yourself to the successful writers of to-day. Draw from the deep wells of pure English furnished you by the standard authors of the language.

As for the pace at which successful writers work, there is no particular rule. Anthony Trollope wrote 250 words in less than a half hour and kept up that amount for hours at a time day after day, at home, in a stage coach, on a railway train, when visiting friends, and on board a steamer. George Eliot sometimes spent a whole day over a single page. There is no rule. But about the average person, particularly when beginning, it is generally true that easy writing makes difficult reading.

When your story or your book is written, have it copied legibly in typewriting, if possible, and send it fully stamped and with stamps added for the possible return of the manuscript, to the editor you have chosen. Write your name and address at the top of the first page. If you send a letter of explanation or introduction, let it go in the same inclosure and not separately. It is best to add nothing to the labor of the editor. Do not expect an immediate reply. From 14 to 21 days is the briefest limit in which the story of a volunteer can usually be examined. Remember that your work must enter into competition with that of skilled writers who have earned a claim on public attention, and whose work is often engaged months before it appears. Do not resent the printed slip which tells you that your manuscript is declined with thanks If there is anything in you and you persevere, you will one day receive not the printed slip, but the welcomed check which will be an omen of your happy future.

In many cases the aspiring author will win a measure of success earlier if she do not attempt imaginative work, but if, on the contrary, she writes clearly and lucidly about domestic matters, housekeeping, fashion, house-furnishing or some other practical topic of interest to the ordinary reader. She must carefully select the medium to which she sends her work.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

PHENOMENON.

"Ah, Touchem!" cried the man with the close-fitting eyebrows, "isn't this the most remarkable day you ever saw?"

"I see nothing unusual about it," replied Touchem.

"But haven't you noticed that it has had four afternoons, four nights and four mornings in it, and here we are on the fifth afternoon—all in the same day?"

"What!"

"Am I not right? You borrowed a ten of me this morning, or one of the mornings of this day, and told me you would pay me to-morrow, as sure as the sun rose on a to-morrow. So I cannot reason the thing out any other way."—Judge.

Parlor Car Diversion.

"Porter," said the fussy lady in the parlor car, "I wish you would open this window."

The lady in the seat directly across heard the request, and drew a cloak about her.

"Porter, if that window is opened," she snapped, testily, "I shall freeze to death."

"And if the window is kept closed," returned the other passenger, "I shall surely suffocate."

The porter stood timidly between the two fires.

"Porter," remarked the commercial traveler, "your duty is very plain. Open the window and freeze one lady. Then close it and suffocate the other."—Puck.

Rivals.

Gunner—Why are those ships acting so queerly out there in the bay?

Guyer—I don't know. They are sister ships, though.

Gunner—Well, that accounts for it.

Guyer—Accounts for what?

Gunner—Why, I bet they are flirting with that big man-o'-war over there.—Chicago Daily News.

Her Prerogative.

"No, I will never be a public speaker."

"It is easy enough."

"I wish you would tell me how."

"You should practice making speeches to your wife when you are alone together."

"You don't know my wife."—Houston Post.

The Fly in the Ointment.

Watt Smatter—How does your wife like the new flat?

Heezall Wright—She is delighted with it. She could be perfectly happy if it were not for the fact that there's a lot of families occupying the other apartments in the building.—Chicago Tribune.

A Man of Deeds.

"I know my rival has untold acres of real estate while I have nothing but the words in which I tell my love; but—"

"That will do, Mr. Slimpurse; I intend to marry a man of deeds, not of words."—Houston Post.

Not Romantic.

Mother—You shouldn't have laughed when Charlie was proposing.

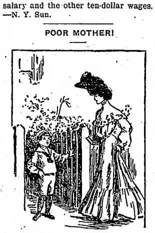
Dora—I couldn't help, it, mother; he was so scared his teeth chattered.—Detroit Free Press.

Remuneration.

Knicker—How are your boys getting on?

Bocker—One gets a five dollar salary and the other ten-dollar wages.—N. Y. Sun.

POOR MOTHER!



Caller—Is your mother at home, Johnny?

Johnny—Mother is ill, very ill. The doctor says she has got an eternal chill.—Scraps.

He Does.

"What looks more ridiculous than a peek-a-boo waist?"

"Well, a man in white canvas shoes, passionate socks and turned-up trousers, smoking a cigarette, crowds it mighty close."—Houston Post.

For All He was Worth.

"Yes," said the man who had failed in business, "I was trying to get into politics."

"And couldn't you?"

"No; politics got into me."—Houston Post.

Didn't Have To.

Dottie—Dick's an impudent thing, isn't he?

Lottie—Oh, I don't know.

Dottie—Didn't he try to kiss you?

Lottie—Not very hard.—Cleveland Leader.

Time's Healing Power.

"But she appeared to be heartbroken and said she could never love again."

"I know; but that was last week."—Houston Post.

PERUNA PRAISED.

MRS. ESTHER M. MILNER.

Box 321, DeGraff, Ohio.
Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.
Dear Sir:—

I was a terrible sufferer from pelvic weakness and had headache continuously. I was not able to do my housework for myself and husband.

I wrote you and described my condition as nearly as possible. You recommended Peruna. I took four bottles of it and was completely cured. I think Peruna a wonderful medicine and have recommended it to my friends with the very best of results.

Esther M. Milner.

Very few of the great multitude of women who have been relieved of some pelvic disease or weakness by Peruna ever consent to give a testimonial to be read by the public.

There are, however, a few courageous, self-sacrificing women who will for the sake of their suffering sisters allow their cures to be published.

Mrs. Milner is one of these. In her gratitude for her restoration to health she is willing that the women of the whole world should know it. A chronic invalid brought back to health is no small matter. Words are inadequate to express complete gratitude.

A GRATEFUL LETTER TO DR. HARTMAN

COSTLY CLOTHES FOR WOMEN.

Enormous Sums of Money Can Be Spent for Finery.

"As much as $80 a yard is often paid for gold and silver tissue—cloth of gold, as it is called, though it is not really," said a dressmaker, "cloth of gold at all. For cloth of gold, the real thing, is made of pure gold, drawn into fine wire, and then woven by hand. Such cloth was often used during the middle ages. It is now used only in Sumatra. Its cost is quite $200 a yard.

"That seems high, doesn't it? It is nothing, though, beside the cost of lace. A court train of moire antique, decorated with gold thread and pearls, was made in Paris for an American lady last year at a cost of $7,500.

"To the empress of Russia not long ago the nobles of the province of Kherson presented an ermine mantle worth $50,000.

"There are lace handkerchiefs worth $5,000. Even the thread of which lace is made comes ridiculously high. The fine hand-made thread used in the best Brussels lace is spun from flax grown at Rebecq-Rognon, and fetches, in good seasons, as much as $2,500 a pound."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Plumage of the Bluebird.

Of the male bluebird Thoreau said: "He carries the sky on his back." To this John Burroughs added, "and the earth on his breast." The bird's back, wings and tail, chin and throat are a vivid blue, while his breast and flanks are a chestnut brown and his abdomen a dirty white. The female is very much duller in coloring, often having a reddish tone that extends from the middle of the back over the shoulder. The Seminole Indians say that the male bluebird once flew so high that his back rubbed against the sky, which imparted to him its own azure tint. Returning to earth, his wife so admired his new coat that she determined to have a like one for herself and the next morning flew away to get it; but the day proving somewhat cloudy, the color given to her dress was not so brilliant as was that received by her mate

"Chili" or "Chile."

There have been many arguments during the last few weeks as to whether the name of the earthquake-smitten country should be spelled Chili or Chile. Chile is the Spanish and Chilean form. The name is commonly explained as an old Peruvian word for snow, the allusion being to the Andes; but "Chili" has also been identified as a native South American word, "chiri," meaning cold—which would make it really the "chilly" country. As to the meaning of "Andes," there is plenty of choice. The word has been variously interpreted as signifying the haunt of the tapir, the region of copper, the home of the Anti tribe and the site of the "Ondenes." Spanish gardens on the mountain terraces.

London Policeman Runs Amuck.

During one of London's recent hot days a policeman suddenly became crazed and drew his club and charged along the sidewalk striking right and left. He had cleaned two blocks before some of his comrades caught and overpowered him.

Swallowed by the Sea.

During 1905 there were wrecked, burned and foundered at sea 297 steam vessels, of a net aggregate tonnage of 253,611, and 296 sailing vessels of 214,600 tons.

A DANGEROUS PRACTICE.

Burning Off Paint Makes Insurance Void.

It seems that considerable danger to property exists in the practice of burning off old paint before re-painting. The question has long been a subject of debate in the technical journals, and now householders and the newspapers have begun to discuss it. Those of us who, with trembling, have watched the painters blow a fiery blast from their lamps against our houses, and have looked sadly at the size of our painting bill because of the time wasted on this preliminary work, are interested in the investigation by the Greenfield (Mass.) Gazette and Courier, which gives considerable space to the reasons for the practice, questions its necessity and suggests ways to prevent the risk of burning down one's house in order to get the old paint off. It says:

"There is a good deal of discussion among householders as to the desirability, in painting houses, of burning off the old paint, a practice that has grown very common of late in Greenfield and elsewhere. Insurance men are strongly opposed to this method. It makes void insurance policies for fires caused in this manner. Several houses in Greenfield have gotten afire as the result of this method, and in some places houses have burned as a result.

"It is undoubtedly true that when a house has been painted over and over again there comes to be an accumulation of paint in bunches. If new paint is put on top of these accumulations it is almost sure to blister. To burn it off is the quickest and cheapest and perhaps the surest method of getting rid of this old paint."

The Gazette and Courier quotes certain old patrons to the effect that accumulations of paint are unnecessary. These old-timers lay the blame partly on the painter who fails to brush his paint in well, partly on the custom of painting in damp weather or not allowing sufficient time for drying between coats, and partly to the use of adulterated paints instead of old-fashioned linseed oil and pure white lead. The paper says:

"Many of the old householders say that if care is taken at all these points it is absolutely unnecessary to have paint burned off. They advise that people who have houses painted should buy their own materials, and to have them put on by the day, so as to be sure to get good lead and oil. Of course the burning off of paint greatly increases the cost of the job."

The trouble householders everywhere have with paint is pretty well summed up by our contemporary, and the causes are about the same everywhere. By far the most frequent cause of the necessity for the dangerous practice of burning old paint is the use of poor material. The oil should be pure linseed and the white lead should be real white lead. The latter is more often tampered with than the oil. Earthy substances, and pulverized rock and quartz, are frequently used as cheapeners, to the great detriment of the paint.

Painters rarely adulterate white lead themselves and they very seldom use ready prepared paints—the most frequent causes of paint trouble. But they do often buy adulterated white lead because the property owner insists on a low price and the painter has to economize somewhere. The suggestion is therefore a good one that the property owner investigate the subject a little, find out the name of some reliable brand of white lead, and see that the keg is marked with that brand.

The linseed oil is more difficult to be sure of, as it is usually sold in bulk when the quantity is small; but reliable makers of linseed oil can be learned on inquiry, and, if your dealer is reliable, you will get what you want.

Pure white lead and linseed oil are so necessary to good paint that the little trouble necessary to get them well repays the house owner in dollars and cents saved.

Hunters Mauled by Lioness.

A fight between two hunters and an infuriated lioness is reported from British East Africa.

Messrs. Lucas and Goldfinch left Nairobi on a shooting expedition, and when five miles from the town the lioness was observed.

While the men stood at the edge of the thicket the brute pounced on Mr. Goldfinch and threw him to the ground. It bit him on the thigh before Mr. Lucas lodged a bullet in its neck.

Maddened by the wound, the animal turned its attention to Mr. Lucas, whose horse it felled and then pinned the rider to the ground, inflicting lacerations on his face and biting his right arm. He was saved by Mr. Goldfinch, who, sitting up, rolled the lioness over with a well-aimed shot.

The beast was about to spring on its victim again when another discharge from the same weapon proved fatal. The wounded men were taken back to town, where they received medical aid.

Unique Election Cry.

A wooden-legged candidate for the town council of Claston, Eng., urged his fellow artisans to elect him on the ground that a wooden leg in the council would be a pleasant variety among the wooden heads there now. "Vote for Peggy!" was his inspiring slogan.

New Mercury Deposit.

A new mercury deposit is said to have been discovered at Wiederschwing, in Carinthia, Austria, a little to the north of the district of Carniola, where similar deposits extend from Idria to Neumarkt. The deposit is thought to be extensive.

POULTRY AND BEES

STRAINING HONEY.

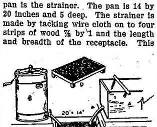
How to Arrange the Uncapping Tank, Strainer and Extractor.

It looks quite reasonable, writes a California bee keeper, that a method of manipulating bees or honey in one locality might not be suited to another in which the climate is altogether different. The apiarist who reads the up-to-date bee journals has access to a fountain of knowledge he can not afford to be without in these days of competition.

The method of straining honey is not one of much interest to the bee-men of this climate. Honey deposited in the large tanks used here settles at once. In a few hours every foreign substance is on the surface, where it can be skimmed off. Straining through cloth is out of the question.

I will give a method of my own, which some of my neighbors are adopting. The following sketch will be its best explanation.

A is the uncapping-box. It is one of McIntyre's make. B is the extractor. C is a pan which receives the honey from both A and B. Inside of this pan is the strainer. The pan is 14 by 20 inches and 5 deep. The strainer is made by tacking wire cloth on to four strips of wood ⅞ by 1 and the length and breadth of the receptacle. This strainer is raised from the bottom 2½ inches. Four blocks of wood, 1x1 and 2½ long, stand in each corner as its support. From this pan the honey flows through a two-inch pipe to the tank.



The Apparatus.

This method is simple, cheap and easily kept clean. You can have a number of these strainers. They make good covers for hives at the time of moving bees. The size, 14 by 20, just suits an L. hive. I change the sieve every half-day.

Mr. Holtermann is opposed to exposing honey to the air. "The aroma is lost," he says. It may be; but here our best honey is that which lies in the tank exposed to the sun's rays for the longest time. Had I tanks enough I would leave it all out until the close of the extracting season, simply covering the tank with a white sheet. After a week or so of exposure a scum resembling the white of an egg covers the surface one-fourth inch thick. I want this out of the honey before I can it up.—Gleanings in Bee Culture.

THE POULTRY YARD.

It Is Worth All the Trouble It Costs to Keep It Clean.

I have always found it quite easy to keep the hen yard clean, by taking matters in time. The usual method of handling the poultry yard is to let the fowls remain for months in one yard, and, by so doing, the grass is killed, blade and root. If the grass is continually eaten off, it insures a barren surface, and then, when the rains come, the whole mass becomes mud. The poultry paddle around in the mud and render the ground unfit for any kind of living thing to walk over. In addition, when the mud dries out, the place of the mud is taken by dust.

I have found that it is better to have a good sized poultry yard and divide it into two smaller yards. This makes it possible to keep something growing in one yard, while it is being eaten off in the other yard. I have found rape very serviceable to grow where the sod has been destroyed, as it can be planted at any time of year. It takes but a few weeks to produce plants large enough to count greatly in the supplying of feed. I have found also that on most soils one does not need to turn up the ground before sowing the rape seed. The rape seeds are firm and quite large, and if they are scattered over the bare ground they will send their roots into it and get a good start that way. In fact, I have sometimes had better results with rape on bare ground than when sown on mellow ground specially prepared for it.

Of all things, says the Farmers' Review, I prefer sod in the poultry yard. The sod does not produce so much food as does rape and some other plants, but the yards are clean, as the matted roots of the grass serve as a carpet. After a rain, when the new grass is shooting up, the yards are green and pretty. I had rather feed a little extra feed and have the yards and birds clean than get so much out of the soil in the poultry yards.

Growing Chickens for Market.

There is no better market poultry grown than either the Plymouth Rocks or Wyandottes, says Farm Journal. These two breeds have the yellow legs and the yellow meat that the consumer demands and pays more for because he believes such carcasses to be better than white meated ones. A point in favor of pure-brod chickens is that they make quick growth and at selling time are not an uneven bunch. This is especially so when the incubator is used in hatching.

COMB FOUNDATION.

Its Use Pays the Progressive Up-to-Date Bee Keeper.

It pays tho progressive bee keeper well to use comb foundation for his bees. On the frames in the brood chamber, by its use, one gets straight combs to start on, which is very essential to the proper manipulation of the bees. Bees put into an empty hive often start to build comb on two or three of the top bars of the frames at once. If these started combs are not side by side, but are a little distance apart, that is, one ahead of another, when the bees get close together in their building of these combs they will often bring them together so that they cross from the top bar of one frame to the top bar of another frame. Thus the combs are started across the frames and they will build all other combs in this hive like the ones started, so that all will be crossed and render the hive useless so far as a movable frame hive is concerned. The bees might just as well be in a common box hive or log gum until it comes to where the bees are to store the surplus honey, which should be, if for comb honey, in sections. If for extracting in frames just the same as in the lower or brood chamber.

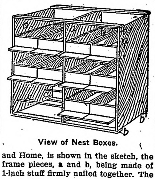
One not only gets the combs straight in the frames of the hive by the use of comb foundation, says J. W. Rouse, in Colman's Rural World, but if the frames are filled with full sheets of foundation, one will not have a large lot of drone comb in the hive. Where there is drone comb, when the queen comes to it in her egg laying, she only lays eggs in drone comb, which always produces drones. If large numbers of drones are reared in a hive they consume most or all of the honey until they are gone, as drones are always consumers in a hive and never producers. The bees will always manage to have some drone comb, even if they are compelled to tear down some worker comb to get a place to make the drone comb that is needed. for it is essential to have at least a few drones for the fertilization of any new queens. The bees only rear drones in the swarming season, and kill them all off as soon as the swarming season is over, unless the colony is queenless. In this case, the bees will not kill the drones at all until supplied with a queen. Nature seems to teach the bees the necessity of drones to propagate their species.

Thin foundation used in the sections not only induces the bees to go to work much sooner in the sections, but also gets the honey straight in the sections. It is estimated that it takes five to ten pounds of honey (according to conditions) to produce one pound of comb. That is, if the bees are in a rush during a good honey flow, they have tho advantage, as above stated, if they have combs already prepared or the foundation to commence on. Comb foundation is made from beeswax, and the impression of the cells is made on it by running sheeted wax between embossed rollers that make the impression of the cells just as the bees make it, and the bees start on this foundation and draw out the cells and add more wax, thus completing the comb. Bee keepers have found that it pays, and pays well, to use modern appliances.

MOVABLE NEST BOXES.

How They May Be Constructed So as to Be Easily Taken Out.

It is frequently desirable to have nest boxes which are readily removable and separate from each other. Such an arrangement, says the Farm and Home, is shown in the sketch, the frame pieces, a and b, being made of 1-inch stuff firmly nailed together. The wires, c, support the boxes and are firmly attached to the two ends and middle boards. Strips may be used in place of the wires if necessary.



View of Nest Boxes.

The nest boxes are made of one-half inch lumber and are 11 inches wide, 12 inches long and 5 inches deep. The bottom is made to project 6 inches, leaving a step for the hens to alight on. A space of 12 or 14 inches should be left between the wires so as to give sufficient room for the hens.

Pure Water.

Well water is good enough for fowls and is pure water within the meaning of the term. Fowls should not be given access to water that may have in it the germs of disease. When any contagious disease comes into a flock, the use of a common watering dish should be discontinued. There is no doubt that such a dish is a means of contamination. The methods to be used in such a case can be studied out by any intelligent person, and need not be enumerated here. Impure water is the conveyor of many diseases.

The Fall Whitewashing.

The fall whitewashing should now be done, and the roofs and buildings, in general, carefully examined. A stitch in time will save nine, and that will mean a great deal when it comes to take a hard winter into question.

WORST FORM OF ECZEMA.

Black Spotches All Over Face—Affected Parts Now Clear as Ever—Cured by the Cuticura Remedies.

"About four years ago I was afflicted with black splotches all over my face and a few covering my body, which produced a severe itching irritation, and which caused me a great deal of annoyance and suffering, to such an extent that I was forced to call in two of the leading physicians of my town. After a thorough examination of the dreaded complaint they announced it to be skin eczema in its worst form. They treated me for the same for the length of one year, but the treatment did me no good. Finally my husband purchased a set of the Cuticura Remedies, and after using the contents of the first bottle of Cuticura Resolvent in connection with the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, the breaking out entirely stopped. I continued the use of the Cuticura Remedies for six months, and after that every splotch was entirely gone and the affected parts were left as clear as ever. The Cuticura Remedies not only cured me of that dreadful disease, eczema, but other complicated troubles as well. Lizzie E. Sledge, 540 Jones Ave., Selma, Ala., Oct. 28, 1905."

A homely rich girl is prettier than a beautiful poor one—in the eyes of some men.

Money refunded for each package of PUTNAM FADELESS DYES if unsatisfactory. Ask your druggist.

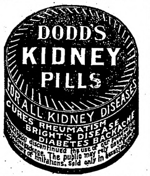
That things that are not so ill with you and me as they might have been is half owing to the number who lived faithfully a hidden life, and rest in unvisited tombs.—George Eliot.

Cheap Excursions South.

On the 1st and 3rd Tuesday of each month the Big Four Ry. will sell excursion tickets to most all point in Virginia, South Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia at rate of one fare plus $2.00 with return limit 30 days. Liberal stopover privileges. Write I. P. Spining, General Northern Agent, Big Four Route, 238 Clark St., Chicago, for further information.

Practiced What He Preached.

Rev. Denis P. O'Flynn, of New York city, used to say that priests ought to die poor and he practiced what he preached. Aside from a valuable library given to the Paulist fathers he has left no discoverable estate—no money in bank, no money in the rectory. "He died as poor as the proverbial church mouse," says his assistant, Father Corrigan. "What little insurance he carried will barely cover the funeral expenses. He never saved a penny for himself. After keeping the house on his meager salary he gave away all he had."



SICK HEADACHE

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively cured by these Little Pills.

They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.

SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature

Brent Good

REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

There is no satisfaction keener than being dry and comfortable when out in the hardest storm

YOU ARE SURE OF THIS IF YOU WEAR TOWER'S FISH BRAND WATERPROOF OILED CLOTHING

BLACK OR YELLOW

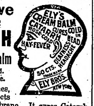
On sale everywhere

A. J. TOWER CO. BOSTON U.S.A. TOWER CANADIAN CO. TORONTO CAN.

A Positive CURE FOR CATARRH

Ely's Cream Balm

Is quickly absorbed. Gives Relief at Once.



It cleanses, soothes, heals and protects the diseased membrane. It cures Catarrh and drives away a Cold in the Head quickly. Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. Full size 50 cts. at Druggists or by mail; Trial size 10 cts. by mail.

Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

Tired, Nervous Mothers

Make Unhappy Homes—Their Condition Irritates Both Husband and Children—How Thousands of Mothers Have Been Saved From Nervous Prostration and Made Strong and Well.

Mrs. Chester Curry

Mrs. Chas. F. Brown

A nervous, irritable mother, often on the verge of hysterics, is unfit to care for children; it ruins a child's disposition and reacts upon herself. The trouble between children and their mothers too often is due to the fact that the mother has some female weakness, and she is entirely unfit to bear the strain upon her nerves that governing children involves; it is impossible for her to do anything calmly.

The ills of women act like a firebrand upon the nerves, consequently nine-tenths of the nervous prostration, nervous despondency, "the blues," sleeplessness, and nervous irritability of women arise from some derangement of the female organism.

Do you experience fits of depression with restlessness, alternating with extreme irritability? Are your spirits easily affected, so that one minute you laugh, and the next minute you feel like crying?

Do you feel something like a ball rising in your throat and threatening to choke you; all the senses perverted, morbidly sensitive to light and sound; pain in the abdominal region, and between the shoulders; bearing-down pains; nervous dyspepsia and almost continually cross and snappy?

If so, your nerves are in a shattered condition, and you are threatened with nervous prostration.

Proof is monumental that nothing in the world is better for nervous prostration than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; thousands and thousands of women can testify to this fact.

Mrs. Chester Curry, Leader of the Ladies' Symphony Orchestra, 42 Saratoga Street, East Boston, Mass., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"For eight years I was troubled with extreme nervousness and hysteria, brought on by irregularities. I could neither enjoy life nor sleep nights; I was very irritable, nervous and despondent.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended and proved to be the only remedy that helped me. I have daily improved in health until I am now strong and well, and all nervousness has disappeared."

Mrs. Charles F. Brown, Vice-President of the Mothers' Club, 21 Cedar Terrace, Hot Springs, Ark., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I dragged through nine years of miserable existence, worn out with pain and nervousness, until it seemed as though I should fly. I then noticed a statement of a woman troubled as I was, and the wonderful results she derived from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I decided to try it. I did so, and at the end of three months I was a different woman. My nervousness was all gone, I was no longer irritable, and my husband fell in love with me all over again."

Women should remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the medicine that holds the record for the greatest number of actual cures of female ills, and take no substitute.

Free Advice to Women.

Mrs. Pinkham, daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write to her for advice. Mrs. Pinkham's vast experience with female troubles enables her to advise you wisely, and she will charge you nothing for her advice.

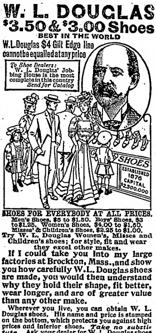
Ask Mrs. Pinkham's Advice—A Woman Best Understands a Woman's Ills.

W. L. DOUGLAS

$3.50 & $3.00 Shoes

BEST IN THE WORLD

W.L.Douglas $4 Gilt Edge line cannot be equalled at any price



To Shoe Dealers:

W. L. Douglas' Jobbing House is the most complete in this country

Send for Catalog

SHOES FOR EVERYBODY AT ALL PRICES.

Men's Shoes, $5 to $1.50. Boys' Shoes, $3 to $1.25. Women's Shoes, $4.00 to $1.50. Misses' & Children's Shoes, $2.25 to $1.00.

Try W. L. Douglas Women's, Misses and Children's shoes; for style, fit and wear they excel other makes.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W.L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer, and are of greater value than any other make.

Wherever you live, you can obtain W. L. Douglas shoes. His name and price is stamped on the bottom, which protects you against high prices and inferior shoes. Take no substitute. Ask your dealer for W. L. Douglas shoes and insist upon having them.

Fast Color Eyelets used; they will not wear brassy.

Write for Illustrated Catalog of Fall Styles.

W. L. DOUGLAS, Dept. 12, Brockton, Mass

90,000,000 BUSHELS

160 ACRES FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

THAT'S THE WHEAT CROP IN WESTERN CANADA THIS YEAR

This with nearly 80,000,000 bushels of oats and 17,000,000 bushels of barley means a continuation of good times for the farmers of Western Canada.

Free farms, big crops, low taxes, healthy climate, good churches and schools, splendid railway service.

The Canadian Government offers 160 acres of land free to every settler willing and able to comply with the Homestead Regulations.

Advice and information may be obtained free from W. D. Scott Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada; or from authorized Canadian Government Agents—Chas. Pilling, Clifford Blk., Grand Forks, N. Dak., J. M. Machlan, Box 116, Watertown, S. Dakota, E. T. Holmes, 315 Jackson Street, St. Paul, Minn.

Oh! What a Cold I HAVE.

You can quickly get rid of it by taking

Johnson's Anodyne Liniment

DROPPED ON SUGAR.

It's as much for Internal as External use, and for 96 years has been curing colds, coughs, croup, cramps and colic. Try it. 25 and 50 cents. At all dealers.

I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

LIVE STOCK AND MISCELLANEOUS ELECTROTYPES

In great variety for sale at the lowest prices by A. N. KELLOGG NEWSPAPER CO., 73 W. Adams St., Chicago

The New State of Oklahoma

Bigger than Missouri; as big as Ohio and Indiana combined, with a soil teeming with all the crops that any State raises, OKLAHOMA—the new State—is destined to occupy first rank in a few short years. Here at the present time over a million people are duplicating the life which is going on in Illinois and Indiana. Their houses, their towns and their schools are newer but in nothing else do their surroundings differ from those in our States. Their cities and towns are growing and expanding with the impetus of a fertile soil, and a pushing, wide-awake citizenship. Her settlers, mainly from the older States, see the virtue of encouraging enterprises of every kind and the needfulness of getting more and better facilities; of getting more hands to develop the country.

In brief, conditions to-day are simply these: OKLAHOMA is in need of nothing save people. More men are needed in the cities and towns; more farmers for the vast areas of unimproved land not now yielding crops of which it is capable. There are openings of all sorts, for farmers and artisans, for mills and manufacturing plants, for small stores of all kinds.

Your Opportunity Now

The opportune time is now while the land is cheap. The country is fast settling up. If you purchase land now you will soon see grow up around you a community of prosperous, energetic men who, like yourself, have seen the brighter possibilities of OKLAHOMA and have taken advantage of them.

On the First and Third Tuesdays of each month you can make a trip to OKLAHOMA exceptionally cheap. Round trip tickets good thirty—30—days will be sold by all lines in connection with the M., K. & T. Ry. at very low rates. From Chicago to Oklahoma City the rate is $24.55; from St. Paul, $26.25; from St. Louis, $18.30; from Kansas City, $12.25. The tickets permit of stop-overs in both directions via M., K. & T. Ry. If your nearest railroad agent cannot give you the rates, write me for particulars.

W. S. ST. GEORGE
General Passenger Agent
M., K. & T. R'y
Wainwright Bldg. St. Louis, Mo.
W. P. LINDSAY, 376 Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

YOU CANNOT CURE

all inflamed, ulcerated and catarrhal conditions of the mucous membrane such as nasal catarrh, uterine catarrh caused by feminine ills, sore throat, sore mouth or inflamed eyes by simply dosing the stomach.

But you surely can cure these stubborn affections by local treatment with

Paxtine Toilet Antiseptic

which destroys the disease germs, checks discharges, stops pain, and heals the inflammation and soreness.

Paxtine represents the most successful local treatment for feminine ills ever produced. Thousands of women testify to this fact. 50 cents at druggists.

Send for Free Trial Box

THE R. PAXTON CO., Boston, Mass.

WAGON SCALES

ASK FOR FREE CATALOG ST-176

FAIRBANKS, MORSE & CO., St. Paul, Minn.

HOW STENSLAND WAS CAPTURED

Story of the Pursuit and Apprehension of the President of the Wrecked Milwaukee Avenue State Bank of Chicago.

Run to Earth at Tangier, Morocco, the Man Chiefly Responsible for the Ruin of Thousands of Poor Depositors in His Institution Comes Back to the United States to End His Life in the Penitentiary—Days and Nights of Misery Since His Flight from Chicago.

Chicago.—The story of the pursuit and capture of Paul O. Stensland, president of the wrecked Milwaukee Avenue State bank, is one of the most dramatic in the history of those all too frequent events. Traced from this city to Tangiers, Morocco, he was apprehended there by Assistant State's Attorney Olsen, who was accompanied by a representative of the Chicago Tribune. Not less interesting is Stensland's account of the circumstances leading to the wrecking of the bank and the despoiling of thousands of depositors of the poorer class of the savings of their lifetime. Told in detail by the Tribune representative the story is as follows:

It was the old story of a woman scorned that led to the finding of Stensland's trail. One of his numerous friends who thought she had been shabbily treated put the authorities in possession of the first hint as to the fugitive's whereabouts. Her information was indefinite, but investigation proved its probable accuracy.

Finally, on August 13, it became certain that he was in Tangier and had been for 16 days. The facts were laid before State's Attorney Healy He was asked if he could send a man with a representative of the Tribune to an unknown destination, where it was expected to find Stensland or his trail. Mr. Healy accepted the proposition and Assistant State's Attorney Harry Olsen was ordered to meet the representative of the Tribune in New York on Monday, August 20. The next day Mr. Olsen and the Tribune man sailed on the liner Kaiser Wilhelm II.

Paris was reached Monday, August 27, and was left Tuesday at noon. Madrid was reached Wednesday afternoon, August 29, and Gibraltar 26 hours later. On Saturday morning, September 1, the boat was taken for Tangier, the Moorish city being reached early in the evening.

Back to Gibraltar.

All Saturday night and until four o'clock Sunday afternoon, September 2, the investigation proceeded. At every town Stensland's tracks were uncovered and the last clew pointed to the Grand hotel at Gibraltar. It was as follows: Assistant State's Attorney Olson had represented himself to the keeper of the hotel where Stensland stopped at Tangier as his son. Stensland, as has been stated, is traveling under the alias of P. Olsen. The names were the same and the two men do not look unlike. The hotel keeper believed the story, but could give no direct information as to Stensland's whereabouts.

As he was riding to the hotel at midnight after getting the governor of the French bank out of bed, a voice from a Moorish cafe sung out:

"I say, Olson, I think I know where your governor is."

We dismounted as the hotel man continued:

"You left the old man in 'Gib.' A friend of mine just come over on the night boat says he saw him at the Grand hotel."

When we left Tangier Sunday afternoon, September 2, for Gibraltar to run down the Grand hotel clew we left 25 Moorish and Arab scouts to guard all the entrances and exits.

Less than an hour after the Oldenburg, the German steamer bearing Stensland from the Rock to the Moorish coast, reached port our Arab chief of scouts sent a cable to us at Gibraltar announcing the arrival of the boat and the presence on board of the man we wanted.

Hired Special Steamer.

We began negotiations for a special steamer to bring us back to Tangier. Finally a small steamer was chartered and permission obtained from the officer of the guard to leave port.

At midnight we turned tail on the Rock and headed across the straits. It was four o'clock in the morning when we rounded Malabat Point and saw the red light above the gate of the city of Tangier.

The steamer Oldenburg lay half a mile off shore. We hauled alongside and asked if the passengers had landed. It was great relief to hear that they had not, as we feared that if so Stensland might have been warned and started for the interior. This would not have prevented his capture, but would have delayed it and made lots of trouble.

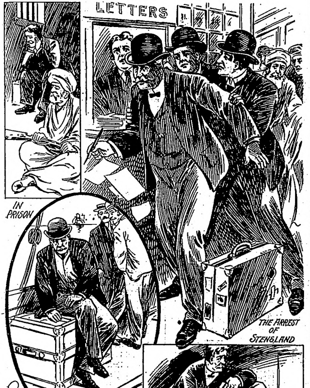
Stensland Comes Ashore.

Forty minutes later a boat put off from the German steamer and headed for the pier. In the stern sat Stensland, looking fat and hearty. He climbed up the steps to the wharf chatting gayly with four German fellow passengers.

We trailed slowly behind Stensland up the steep, hilly streets. When the British post office in Soko Chico square was reached Stensland entered.

"Any letter for P. Olsen?" he asked.

"No, sir."



"If any comes I want you to please forward it."

"All right, sir. Please write your forwarding address," said the clerk, pushing forward the book in which such instructions are written.

In a firm hand Stensland had written "P. Olsen, British post office," when Olson and I stepped up. I tapped him on the left shoulder and said:

"Write your own name, Stensland, and instead of 'Morgador,' where you think you are going, write it 'Chicago,' where you really are going."

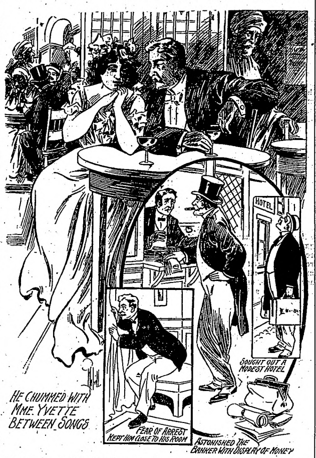
Then occurred a sublime flash of nerve on the part of the husky Norseman. Gripping the pen in hand and shaking as if with palsy he forced the pen across the paper and wrote "Mogador" after the name he had already written there before I had interrupted him. Then he turned like a wolf at bay, and, by a supreme effort retaining control of his voice and features, said:

"No, no, I think not. You cannot take me. I will not go."

"But you will go," he was answered. "Listen. You think this is a protected country. It is not. You made a big mistake. You will be arrested here, thrown into a Moorish prison, then taken aboard a United States warship and shipped in irons to the United States. The question is, do you want to go back as a gentleman or as a felon?"

Prisoner Is Obstinate.

Stensland was obstinate and declared we could not take him and that he would not go voluntarily.



HE CHUMMED WITH MME. YVETTE BETWEEN SONGS

FEAR OF ARREST KEPT HIM CLOSE TO HIS ROOM

SOUGHT OUT A MODEST HOTEL

ASTONISHED THE BANKER WITH DISPLAY OF MONEY

As a matter of fact, we had no legal right to stop Stensland. Technically we were guilty of kidnaping, and the situation began to look serious. The American minister could not order Stensland's arrest until he had received instructions from Washington. These had been cabled for the night before, but had not arrived. If Stensland had only known this he could have walked out and told us to go to blazes. He could not have escaped ultimately, but he could have caused us lots of trouble.

Just as we were about to take recourse to argument and threats, telling him we would follow him to the end of the earth and capture him eventually, salvation came from Minister Gummere. James Martin, of the American legation staff appeared with a note from the minister saying if I had notified the state department he would take the responsbility of detaining Stensland, pending advices from Washington.

By this time the fugitive banker had wilted and he agreed to return to America with us any way we chose without process.

During the long afternoon in the office of the American consul Stensland talked broken heartedly with us and finally made a full confession to Assistant State's Attorney Olson in my presence.

Puts Blame on Cashier.

He said: "I cannot understand how the shortage can be $2,000,000. To my certain knowledge my liability to the bank does not exceed $500,000. Anything over that must have been stolen by Hering.

"My indebtedness began a long while ago, in 1896. It was a small affair, a small amount, and God knows I never intended to steal. I was in a tight hole and needed money. I put my own note, genuine, not a forgery, in the box. Then it was suggested to me that the bank examiner would stand for it, and he did.

"I never threw away money in any direction in my life. I never spent over $5,000 a year. I always was a worker. I never loafed in my life. I always was the first man at the bank and the last to leave it.

"The money I took was invested, year after year, in an endeavor to make good. Every dollar went into real estate or business.

"They were bad investments and today I am arrested, a fugitive, with the certainty of a prison cell. And I am nearly 60 years old. God! God! God!"

As a matter of fact Stensland failed to take the most simple measures to hide his identity. In his trunk were found four volumes of Ibsen, all with Stensland's full name on the flyleaf. His key ring bore the tag of the Milwaukee Avenue State bank.

The most amazing blunder of all was across the end of his big trunk in white letters three inches high, "Paul O. Stensland."

"I did not notice this," said he "till crossing from Gibraltar. I was leaning over the rail of the upper deck and happened to look down on the main deck and saw my trunk with my full name staring me right in the face. I nearly fainted. I got down as soon as possible and sat on the name for the rest of the voyage."

Stensland's life of exile was hell on earth, according to Stensland. From the moment he left Chicago his every waking thought was pregnant with fear and his every sleeping moment filled with terrifying visions.

Stensland's Life in Tangier.

Stensland evidently thought himself absolutely safe from pursuit, or, like the majority of fugitives, became careless as soon as he set foot on foreign soil. The day after his arrival he amazed Proprietor Sterwind by exhibiting, as Sterwind said, "an awful lot of money and a great number of big bills."

When he dumped $12,000 on the counter the eyes of the clerk bulged out, and he called M. Gaurant, the governor, who questioned the prospective customer. Stensland, in answer to M. Gaurant's inquiries, said he came from America, and when further questioned as to why he carried money in such shape and had no letter of credit, said he thought he would get the worst of exchange and concluded it was best to carry currency.

Stensland soon became a conspicuous figure in Tangier. The Oriental hotel stands just between the Mosque Dramakebir and the Cafe Francaise. Stensland gave the mosque the cold shoulder, but the Cafe Francaise, the Cafe Imperial, and the Cafe Turkesque found a good customer in him. Every night he climbed the hills and wound his tortuous way through alley-like streets, from one to the other. Mme. Yvette, at the Francaise, was his favorite chanteuse.

Spanish Dancer His Favorite.

But his real favorite was Senorita Vittoria, a Spanish dancer from Seville, who performs with exceptional abandon the fandango at the Cafe Imperial. Her partiality for him aroused a feeling of jealousy in the breast of an Arab chief who enjoyed the smiles of the danseuse until Stensland appeared on the scene.

On Friday, September 6, instructions from the state department at Washington were received by Minister Gummere to surrender Stensland to the custody of "James Keeley and Harry Olson as the officially appointed agents of theUnited States." We gave a formal receipt for the prisoner, Stensland himself signing it as a witness to our signatures.

The first step after receiving the prisoner was to arrange for safeguarding him. Accompanied by an attache of the United States consular office, we at once rode to the Kasbah, which is the joint Moorish prison and administrative building. The basha, Sid Cador Belghasi, was found sitting in the messooar, or "salon of complaints," where he receives those who are wronged and want stern and instantaneous Moorish justice.

Through an interpreter we informed the basha that Stensland had been turned over to us and that we wished to make arrangements for porperly safeguarding him until the time of our departure.

The basha expressed great appreciation of the honor done him in asking his aid and said that a cell in the prison was at our immediate disposal, at the same time calling an officer of the guard to show it to us.

Declined Offer of Cell.

The cell was extremely uninviting, and we had heard horrible stories of what had taken place behind the ramparts of the Kasbah. We decided it would be neither humane nor politic to confine Stensland there, as Assistant State's Attorney Olson wanted to bring home a liveman, not a corpse.

Arrangements finally were made for a guard of six soldiers under the absolute orders of ourselves. Two were to be placed on the roof, two at the only door, and two inside. The prisoner was moved to his new quarters at once, there to remain until arrangements for transporting him to the United States had been made.

September 12 Stensland and his captors left Tangier for New York on a German liner which had called at the port by request of the state authorities at Washington.

THE ETIQUETTE OF CALLS.

A society for the suppression of the call ought to be forthwith established. The call is no longer necessary, and needs to be abolished.

Under the present system one lady may know another lady intimately. She may go shopping with her daily. She may dine at the same restaurant and in the same houses. She may play cards with her five nights a week. But if she does not return her formal call within a prescribed time, she is not to be recognized henceforth.

The origin of the formal call is lost in obscurity. Its lack of fitness or sense indicates that it may have arisen in the first lunatic asylum.

When about to make a formal call, the average woman puts on the best she has and walks, rides or otherwise propels herself to the home of the callee, purposely not acquainting her with her deadly design, in order to take her at as great disadvantage as possible. The callee keeps the caller waiting for ten of 15 minutes until she has put her best clothes on, inwardly excoriating the Fates because the parlor isn't dusted, and descends upon her visitor with an angel smile and a heart of wrath.

The visitor sits on the edge of a chair 15 minutes, admires the furniture and the view from the window and departs with an outward, "So glad you were home," and an inward, "That's over."

The callee is then It.

If she doesn't get back within a certain time her friends begin to greet her as if she had just stepped out of a refrigerator.

Friendship among women has never been a staple article of commerce. Perhaps when it is the call will be a thing of the past. We can only hope for the best.—Life.

Shipwrecked.

Morning came and still they had sighted no ship.

"I guess it is all up," said the skipper, grimly. "We are on our last legs."

"Worse than that, captain," chuckled the buffoon sea cook. "We are on our last bootlegs."—Chicago Daily News.

In After Years.

Smith—When Green was courting that young widow a couple of years ago he declared he couldn't live without her.

Jones—And did he marry her?

Smith—Yes; and now he's trying to get a divorce on the grounds that it's impossible to live with her.—Chicago Daily News.

Wouldn't Do.

Farmer Foddershucks — What ye goin' ter give our city cousin fer a weddin' present?

Ma Foddershucks—Well, I was thinkin' of a gold pie knife.

Farmer Foddershucks—Don't ye do it. Why, them city folks never eats pie with a knife nowadays.—Cleveland Leader.

Foolish Scientist.

"I see here," said Farmer Kornkob, who was reading the Weekly Screech, "that a scientist says the end of the world isn't far off."

"Nonsense, Hiram," retorted his wife; "he ought to know the world's round and hain't got no end."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

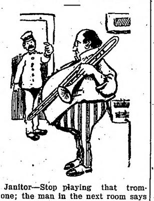
Jealous.

Tess—Oh, yes, the very mention of organized labor makes Miss Passay wince.

Jess—The idea! Why should it?

Tess—She hates to think of all the unions being formed throughout the country and none for her.—Tit-Bits.

WAS SORRY FOR HIM.



Janitor—Stop playing that trombone; the man in the next room says he can't read.

Dinkheimer—Ach, vot ignoranceness! I could read ven I vas fife years oldt!—Cincinnati Tribune.

Dead Broke.

Mrs. Stubb—This paper says when a man drinks it is always hard to break him.

Mr. Stubb—Nonsense! Drink will break a man quicker than anything in the world.—Chicago Daily News.

Looking Forward.

"But what does he live on?"

"He is living at the expense of a lawyer who expects to be employed to break his rich uncle's will when the uncle dies."—Houston Post.

Remuneration.

Knicker—How are your boys getting on?

Bocker—One gets a five-dollar salary and the other ten-dollar wages.—N. Y. Sun.

No Use for Them.

"Good friend," began the crippled beggar, "I have cork legs and—"

"No," growled the busy merchant, "don't need any to-day. Good-day."—Philadelphia Press.

NOT HOT ENOUGH.

They were sitting in the smoking room of the hotel, and the talk was about endurance as shown by men of the past and present. During a lull in the conversation a young commercial traveler said:

"Any man, if he has the will power, can endure pain or fatigue; I know I can."

There was silence for a moment, and an older man replied:

"I'll wager a dinner you can't hold your foot—boot on—in a bucket of hot water as long as I can."

The offer was taken and two buckets of hot water were brought in, as well as a kettle of boiling water to raise the temperature to the point of endurance. In went a foot of each contestant. Soon the young man's face began to pale, but the other called for more boiling water.

"What on earth is your leg made of, sir?" said the former, suddenly taking his foot from the bucket.

"Cork, sir—cork," was the cool answer, and the other felt that he had indeed lost.

FATHER'S FAVORITE.

"The music teacher has started the undertaker's little girl learning her first piece."

"Do tell! What is it?"

"Waiting at the church."—Chicago Journal.

Economical.

"Mother said she thought you were extravagant, Tom, but I proved you were not."

"You darling! How did you do that?"

"Told her you were with me two hours last night, and only kissed me once."—Tit-Bits.

Had Got the Bill.

"Don't you think my new gown is becoming?"

"Yes, and so am I."

"You becoming? What on earth do you mean?"

"Becoming Bankrupt." — Houston Post.

Generosity.

My husband is such a generous man."

"Yes?"

"Yes. I gave him a box of cigars for his birthday, and he only smoked one. He gave the rest to his friends."—Cleveland Leader.

Centenarians All Have.

"You ought to live to be a centenarian."

"Impossible."

"Nothing impossible."

"That is, for me; I haven't used whisky and tobacco ever since I was a boy."—Houston Post.

Proper Party.

"And now," said the young man who loved and won, "I suppose it's up to me to ask your father."

"Oh, that isn't necessary," replied the only girl; just put on a bold front and seek an interview with mother."—Chicago Daily News.

Uncle Jerry.

"There's one good thing about this hot weather," observed Uncle Jerry Peebles. "You can wear a shirt a whole week, if you like, and when you say you put it on clean this mornin' nobody knows whether you're lyin' or not."—Chicago Tribune.

Warm Times.

Stubb—I notice old Rounder don't take any more Turkish baths since he got married.

Penn—No. His wife keeps him in hot water all the time now.—Chicago Daily News.

Merely That.

"How will you have your eggs cooked?" asked the waiter.

"Some time before evening," said the man who has been waiting 15 minutes. "I expect to eat another meal to-day."—Chicago Tribune.

Wife Talks Early.

Agent—I want to sell you an alarm clock.

Married Man—No, thanks. There's buzzing enough in my ears in the morning without that!—Detroit Free Press.

The Gilded Age.

"She is now enjoying that rarest of all times, life's gilded age."

"You don't mean to tell me that the wonderful yellow of her hair is artificial!"—Houston Post.

Something Else.

"Do you ever eat veal?"

"No, I guess not. I used to think I did, however, until these packing house exposures."—Houston Post.

MINNESOTA
HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. VI. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, OCT. 5, 1906. NO. 27.

Gleaned at the Capital

Interesting Gossip from Washington by Our Special Correspondent —To Make Alcohol from Corncobs—Rare Act of Army Friendship—To Suppress Bell Ringing.

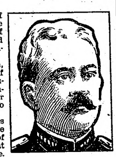
WASHINGTON.—The manufacture of alcohol may be revolutionized as the result of experiments which have been completed by the department of agriculture. The officials of the department have succeeded in making alcohol from corncobs and cornstalks at a cost so small that they believe it will prove of large commercial value and develop into a new industry. It is proposed at first to manufacture the alcohol as a byproduct in connection with corn-canning factories. In investigations which the department is making at Hoopeston, Ill., it has been proved that the large quantities of corncobs which every year go to waste can be converted into alcohol in sufficient quantities to justify the erection of a distilling plant.

The department sent two chemists to Hoopeston to make experiments at a large cannery there.

A statement concerning the experiments by one of the scientists of the department reads:

"Not only are the cobs a waste product but the irregular and spoiled ears of corn as well. Hand labor is as yet employed in the husking and all ears are put in, as the wage is based upon a measureful. As the measures of ears are emptied upon the conveyors the ears unfit for use are culled as they go by. These culled ears also are waste. The expense of bringing them to the point where they are cast aside is quite as much as the perfect ears. The addition of the corn on the cob adds further to the possibilities of alcohol obtainable from a ton of cobs and will have its influence in bringing the quantity to a greater figure."

THE SACRIFICE OF GEN. BELL.



In sacrificing promotion to the rank of major general in order that a friend may have the coveted honor, Brig. Gen. J. Franklin Bell, chief of staff of the army, has done an act unparalleled in magnanimity and generosity in American military records.

Brig. Gen, Jesse M. Lee, a civil war veteran, the only one left among the higher officers of the army, is to be retired by law early next January. There was a vacancy among the major generals when Lieut. Gen. Corbin retired the other day and Maj. Gen. MacArthur was promoted to succeed him.

Under the usual operation of the regulations Gen. Bell would have been advanced to fill the vacancy, thus giving him rank equal to that of any other officer assigned to departmental duty at Washington, a condition extremely desirable. But Bell stepped aside in favor of Gen. Lee so that the latter might retire with the higher rank. Gen. Lee has an excellent record, but has always refused to allow influential friends to intercede to hasten his promotion.

BELL RINGING MAY BE SUPPRESSED.

STOP YER RACKET!

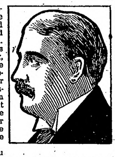
Shall church bells continue to peal in the national capital as in the good old times, or shall they be suppressed, is a question which the district commissioners have decided to take up for serious consideration, and all interested in it pro and con have been requested to submit their views.

The Koran says that bells hang on the trees of Paradise and are set in motion by wind from the throne of God as often as the blessed wish for music.

Many of the Christian churches of Washington have dispensed with steeple bells, and now nervous citizens are complaining that their peace and comfort are disturbed by those that remain.

Commissioner MacFarland, who is himself prominent in church affairs, has taken the initiative of bringing the issue for decision. He believes the time has come to enlarge the police regulations prohibiting noises, and in these days, when a timepiece can be found in nearly every household, he can see no good reason why notice of the approach of a service in church should be given by the loud ringing of bells.

STEVENS' UNAPPRECIATED PUN.



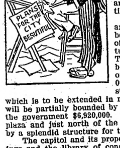
John F. Stevens, chief engineer of the Panama canal, has been in various limelights in the capital during the investigations, but he carried his point and has been told at last to go ahead and build the kind of canal he has advocated. He is a man to carry points when he makes them. He is an ideal engineer, rugged and strong, and every motion indicates unlimited reserve power. His face is rather handsome, but determination dominates, from the thick, dark hair and heavy eyebrows to the brief, strong mustache, over lips which close like a punctuation mark when he has said his say. He missed it once, however, and told the story as though he rather enjoyed it. He was sitting on the counter in a western grocery store when a cowboy came in, and taking him for a clerk, said: "Gimme some raisins!"

There had just been a couple of impromptu hangings in the next town, and looking up without moving the young engineer asked:

"Do you want the same kind of raisin's they had over yonder?"

The next instant he was looking into the business hole in the cowboy's shooter. He says that it was as big as a cannon, and he was getting ready to slide off and hunt for raisins when the proprietor came to the rescue, begging the cowboy not to spatter up his place. He took advantage of the pause to apologize.

MAKING A "CITY BEAUTIFUL."



ARCHITECT
PLANS FOR THE CITY BEAUTIFUL

More than $50,000,000 is now being spent upon buildings and bridges of a public character in and around Washington, and when work already undertaken has been completed, Washington will be without a peer as a city of architectural beauty. In addition to the projects amounting to more than $50,000,000 now decided upon and under way, improvements costing an additional $20,000,000 are projected.

When the senate and house office buildings are completed the plaza east of the capitol will be almost surrounded on its four sides by one of the most magnificent groups of public structures in the world, built of granite and marble. The north and south sides of this plaza will be bounded respectively by the senate and house office buildings, which together are to cost $7,000,000. The west will be bounded by the imposing structure of the capitol, the eastern front of which is to be extended in marble at a cost of $1,330,000. The eastern side will be partially bounded by the library of congress building, which has cost the government $6,920,000. The other blocks of ground east of the capitol plaza and just north of the library of congress, will ultimately be occupied by a splendid structure for the supreme court of the United States.

The capitol and its proposed extension, the senate and house office buildings and the library of congress will represent an expenditure by the government of $32,321,849, and this will make these structures the most costly marble frame in the world for so small a rectangle of foliage and grass.

Not far from this splendid series of buildings will be the new union railroad depot, which will front the plaza from Delaware avenue on the north at a cost of $12,000,000, with its approaches, making the five structures in this vicinity cost upward of $45,000,000.

IN FOREIGN LANDS.

INTERESTING INFORMATION BY OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

EFFORT TO RECLAIM LAND

Important National Movement Begun in Portugal—Natural Advantages Awaiting Development in Mexican State.

LISBON, PORTUGAL.

Portugal has started in on a system of land reclamation which, if as successful as it promises to be, must result in similar movements in various parts of Europe.

In the south of Portugal a serious attempt is being made with some chance of success to bring back into cultivation a large tract of land. This country being essentially agricultural, any steps to reclaim land that has gone out of cultivation, estimated at 4,314,000 hectares (about 10,000,000 acres), or 44 per cent. of the total area of Portugal, are a move in the right direction.

Some energetic members of society in the district of Serpa, in combination with the municipal authorities, have set to work upon 100,000 acres, dividing it up into allotments of 15 acres each and letting it at a nominal rent, calculated according to the estimated value of the land, which has, as it were, four classifications, the highest quit rent being placed at $3.20 and the lowest at 40 cents per allotment, free of local rates and taxes for ten years.

Quite a heterogeneous mixture of settlers has already taken possession of their tenements. Carpenters, masons, doctors, chemists, barbers, seamstresses, tailors, and even beggars, figure in the list.

One of the chief difficulties to be overcome before making the allotments was to deal with the proprietary rights of bee keepers, who centuries ago had certain privileges conferred upon them whereby they did a thriving trade in honey and wax. This trade has in later times diminished, owing to the destruction of the floral produce of the land, chiefly by firing when portions thereof were cleared for wheat and other cereals. Matters have been amicably settled for the bee keepers and the embryo agriculturists. The success of the scheme as far as it has gone has stirred the ambition of the residents in a large part of the north of Portugal, where a project on similar lines is being set on foot to bring back into cultivation something like half a million acres.

R. H. KINCHANT.

RESOURCEFUL MEXICAN STATE.

JALAPA, MEXICO.

This region is rich in resources and full of promise.

The State of Veracruz is now of great interest to foreigners and will be for years to come. It includes both temperate and tropical zones and extends from the gulf coast to a mountain elevation of 10,000 feet. Thus soil and climate are varied. The markets of Jalapa, 4,600 feet high, have in season apples, peaches, pears, quinces, plums, grapes, oranges, lemons, figs, melons, etc., of the temperate zone, and mangos, zapotes, chirimollas, papayas, breadfruit, cocoanuts, nanches, pineapples, coffee, etc., of the tropics.

The map suggests the ease and profit of railroad extension. The suggested Mexican link in the Pan-American system will doubtless be under construction soon. It will be built a few miles back from the coast along the foothills, tapping fertile and well-populated valleys, extending back into the sierras, opening and settling a most healthful and delightful region. The state lacks many things that are prime necessities elsewhere. There is need of good roads and city improvement crusades. In many sections carriages, two or four wheeled, are unknown. Enterprising automobile builders are eager to supply this territory.

J. B. RICHARDSON.

BAD TEETH OF SCHOOL CHILDREN.

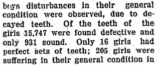
FRANKFORT, GERMANY.

The result of an examination of the teeth of the pupils of a school at Hochheide is very suggestive. Of the 1,020 children examined 482 were boys and 538 girls. The boys had 12,826 defective teeth and only 2,116 sound ones. Only 19 of the boys had perfectly sound sets of teeth, 397 sets were unfit for chewing food, with 192 boys disturbances in their general condition were observed, due to decayed teeth. Of the teeth of the girls 15,747 were found defective and only 931 sound. Only 16 girls had perfect sets of teeth; 205 girls were suffering in their general condition in consequence of decayed teeth.

The total result showed that 90 per cent. of all the teeth examined were defective; only 35 out of 1,020 children had sound sets of teeth. In 396 children a poor bodily constitution was due to poor teeth. The result shows that caries, or decay of the teeth, has extremely noxious consequences.

RICHARD GUENTHER.

COOPERATIVE FARMING.



SEVILLE, SPAIN.

Cooperative farming associations in Germany are interesting the Spanish people.

At the close of 1905, 17,162 cooperative farming associations existed in the German empire, comprising a membership of over 1,000,000 farmers; 16,230 of the above number of associations were confederated. Out of the 9,411 associations operating in Prussia 6,059 facilitated credits to farmers, 776 attended to the supply and demand, and 1,728 to dairying. In Bavaria 2,613 of the 3,294 associations dedicated their work to furnishing credits to agricultural undertakings, 234 to supply and demand, 247 to dairying, and 200 to various other purposes, all, however, fostering mutual assistance to husbandmen and thus redounding to their benefit.

The cooperative associations of credit expend loans amounting to, on the average, from $71,410,000 to $73,340,000 annually. In 1905 the cooperative bodies for the creation of demand purchased fertilizers, forage, seed, coal and other items amounting to $12,062,500. On the other hand, the centers of supply and dairying, which, in a comparatively short time, have entered a career of great prosperity, realized over $965,000 on their transactions.

CHARLES KARMINSKI.

Improvement in Photography.

An inventor has succeeded in evolving a novel improvement upon the ordinary celluloid film used for cinematographic purposes. The pictures are taken in a spiral manner upon circular glass plates, thereby enabling a long series comprising several hundred pictures to be obtained in a small space. The diameter of the plate is 15 inches while the photographs themselves do not exceed half an inch in length. In this way it is possible to record a story lasting about four minutes upon one plate.

Came Back on the Double.

"I believe," said the cheery philosopher, "that for every single thing you give away two come back to you."

"That's my experience," agreed Phamley. "Last June I gave away my daughter and she and her husband came back to us in August."

Wouldn't Be Wasted Time.

Even when a man has taking ways he might cultivate a few bringing-back ones.—N. Y. Times.

Troubles of the Great.

Dr. Samuel Johnson, finding himself in need of a little ready money, had applied to Boswell for the loan of a few shillings.

"You will not say anything about this in the book you are going to write about me, will you, Boz?" he asked.

"Not if you pay it back, doc," answered Boswell, making a memorandum of the amount.

Later in the day Dr. Johnson dashed off an immortal poem, which he hawked through the streets of London and sold for enough money to pay the debt.

This is why the incident now appears in print for the first time.—Chicago Tribune.

Before and After.

A man said to a friend one day:

"Do you think two can live as cheaply as one?"

"Before my marriage I thought they could," the friend replied.

"And afterward?"

"Afterward I found they had to."—Cassell's Journal.

Happenings in Gotham

The "Rector of Wall Street"

New York Financiers Converted by Wave of Religion—Big Pay Roll of City—Countess de Rilly Seeks Divorce—Big Bore Completed—Other Interesting News.

PEACE BE WITH YOU, LITTLE ONE WALL ST.

NEW YORK.—With the remarkable achievement of having converted Wall street to his credit, Rev. William Wilkinson, street preacher, has ended his labors in the financial district and will seek other fields for his evangelistic labors. While few have suspected the reformation that was going on among the men who promote trusts, water stocks and strip the fleece from the guileless lamb, it is said confidently that the work has been thorough and that Wall street has resolved to go and sin no more.

Men of millions as well as clerks, messenger boys and truckmen, went to old Trinty church to say farewell to Rev. Mr. Wilkinson, who has gained the title of "Rector of Wall Street," and he closed there one of the most remarkable missions ever known in New York or anywhere else.

For five days a week Rev. Mr. Wilkinson, who often calls himself plain "Wilkinson," has stood at the noon hour in front of the custom-house and those of every station in life have stopped in the midst of the temples of Mammon to listen to him. Bankers, brokers and merchants have sought him out after his services and have invited the evangelist of the street to their homes. They have taken him to luncheon, offered him the use of their offices and have done everything possible to help him.

Chief among those who have accorded recognition to the missionary is James Stillman, the president of the National City bank and one of the leaders of finance.

Following the lead of Mr. Stillman, others in the street did all they could to accord to the evangelist recognition and support. Hundreds of those prominent in the commercial and the financial worlds, now count themselves his parishioners. Protestants, Roman Catholics and Jews are all the same to him, and on his "attendance committee" the "Rector of Wall Street" has representatives of all races and all creeds.

Few who saw Rev. Mr. Wilkinson begin his missionary labors in the street would have believed that he would have obtained such a following. Those who are familiar with evangelistic work thought that he could not have chosen a less promising field, but in less than a week he had all Wall street listening to him. There is nothing of the hackneyed revivalist in his methods of preaching, and all his appeals were directed to reason and to the higher ideals of men.

CITY PAYS MILLIONS TO EMPLOYES.

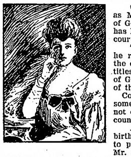
GOSH BUT THEY COME HIGH!
BILL FOR SERVICES RENDERED CITY EMPLOYEES

The city of New York has 60,948 employes on its pay roll. The total pay roll is $57,068,253.13. This fact appears from a report submitted to the board of estimate by the commission named by the mayor early in the year to reclassify and regrade all the employes in the city departments. The commission was composed of Joseph Haag, secretary of the board, and the various secretaries of the members of the board of estimate.

The report of the commission shows that the slackest sort of methods prevail in the establishing of titles and in the correspondence of the titles to the civil service regulations. The commission reports that the same position and grades have been created by the same departments several times since January 1, 1902, and that the titles created do not in many instances correspond exactly with the titles used in the civil service regulation, thereby creating much confusion.

Different salaries are being paid to persons holding the same title and performing the same grade of work. A general reclassification and regarding of the places of all departments is recommended, one of these being a chemist for the finance department at $3,000 a year. The corporation counsel wants a first assistant at $12,000 a year, four assistants at $10,000 a year, two junior assistants at $2,550 and two at $2,250. The commissioners of accounts want a chief engineer at $6,000 and an examining engineer at $3,500.

COUNTESS TIRES OF SECOND HUSBAND.



Countess Eugenia De Rilly, otherwise known as Mrs. George Shroter and presently the wife of George Shroter, mining expert of Denver, Col., has left Mr. Shroter and is about to appeal to the courts for a divorce.

The former countess left Mr. Shroter because he refused to spend his good money to redeem the de Rilly estate. The de Rilly properties and titles are regarded as an asset by the government of Greece, and the count, taking the official view of the case, had mortgaged them to the limit.

Countess de Rilly began a suit for divorce some little time ago in this city. The count did not contest and after the decree was granted the countess married Mr. Shroter.

According to the countess, Shroter is of noble birth and could have a German title if he cared to pay for it. Also according to the countess, Mr. Shroter refused to buy a German title or to settle the mortgages hanging over the de Rilly estate in Greece.

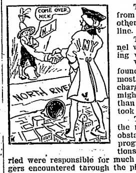
For a time Mrs. Shorter bore her tribulations in silence, but finally the refusal of her husband to buy anything in the way of a title angered her and she refused to accompany him about town.

She stated that he ate like a pig. That his "form" was distinctly bad, and that he bore no resemblance to a gentleman.

Mr. Shroter bore this for a time and then there followed a scene. The beautiful countess gathered up her dainty skirts and, leaving her magnificent apartment, took up her residence at the Hotel Seville.

It is said that she will remain there until she has made application for divorce, and is quite free to look for another title and some money.

BORE UNDER NORTH RIVER COMPLETED.



The first train to run under the North river from New York to New Jersey made its trip the other day, 6,000 feet from shore line to shore line.

The two ends of the great North river tunnel which the Pennsylvania road has been building were brought together.

When the two ends were connected it was found they met in perfect alignment, and the most sanguine anticipations of the engineers in charge of the work were realized. Indeed, it might be said that these anticipations were more than realized, for the running of the first train took place just one year ahead of scheduled time.

The rapidity of the construction work is all the more remarkable because of the unforeseen obstacles that were encountered as the work progressed. The divergent rock and soil formations through which the tunnel had to be carried were responsible for much unlooked-for trouble, together with the dangers encountered through the piercing of gas pockets and other natural hindrances.

There still remains much detail work to be accomplished, and it will be a long time still before the long tubes are ready for the regular traffic of the road, but the tunnel is an accomplished fact. For the first time a man can walk dry shod from Jersey to Manhattan.

The work has been under the personal direction of Charles M. Jacobs, chief engineer. It is said of him that he has had to do with the building of more tunnels than any man now living.

Some idea of the care they exercised may be obtained when it is stated that the meeting of the tubes proved the absolute flawlessness of their calculations regarding the grade, level and alignment of the tubes, which were driven simultaneously from both ends of the tunnel.

AMERICAN FLAG TO FLOAT OVER CUBA

INTERVENTION BY OUR COUNTRY BECOMES A FACT WITH TAFT AS GOVERNOR.

Marines Are Landed to Protect Treasury—Island Government Goes to Pieces in Spite of Roosevelt's Efforts.

Havana, Sept. 29.—American intervention in the affairs of Cuba will be formally declared by Secretary Taft today. Already United States marines have been landed here and are guarding the treasury building. It is believed that the absence of definite orders from President Roosevelt to take such a step is all that has deterred Secretary of War Taft from declaring intervention at once and announcing himself provisional military governor.

President Roosevelt's peace commissioners, although clothed with the fullest authority from him to take such action whenever it became obvious that the securing of peace by harmonizing the warring Cubans was impossible, have patiently withheld their hands before thus setting aside Cuban sovereignty until the last hope had disappeared. The stage of hopelessness was reached at a late hour Friday night when the great majority of all three of the political parties refused to attend the session of congress called to act upon the resignations of all the members of the government and declared definitely that they would have nothing more to do with the government of Cuba.

Prepare for Armed Intervention.

No sooner was the failure of the adjourned session of congress and the declared intention of the government officers no longer to serve reported to Secretaries Taft and Bacon than the preparations for armed intervention were put into operation. A telephone wire had been quietly laid from the American legation to the battleship Louisiana and as soon as the order was received from Secretary Taft 30 marines were landed at the captain of the port's wharf and proceeded quickly and quietly to the treasury building, where they went on guard.

In the meantime Capt. Albert R. Couden, commander of the naval force; Capt. Seaton Schroeder, of the battleship Virginia; Brig. Gen. Funston and Maj. Ladd were in conference with Messrs. Taft and Bacon completing plans for the guarding of the city and arranging for the ocupation.

Gen. Rodriguez, commander of all the Cuban armed forces, is acting in perfect harmony with the American commissioners and the rural guard can be depended upon absolutely to assist the provisional government in every respect.

Palma Refuses to Stay in Office.

Up to the time that congress took a recess at five o'clock Friday afternoon it was a day of waiting. After that hour various probabilities became certainties. By 5:30 President Palma definitely and firmly announced to his political followers that his resignation was absolutely irrevocable. Following this announcement the moderates held a long consultation at the residence of Senator Dolz, president of the senate, at which it was decided that no moderate should return to the session after the recess, thus precipitating a condition in which no provisional president could be elected. This throwing up of their hands practically gave over the control of affairs to the American commissioners.

Army and Navy Ready.

Washington, Sept. 29.—Both the war and navy departments have been practically on a war basis and Friday night many of the officers in the departments were open and advices from Cuba were anxiously awaited. The cruiser Des Moines was ordered from Havana to Cienfuegos to assist in protecting property at that point against the insurgents. This was the only naval order of importance during the day. The general board of the navy met again and was in session for several hours. In the war department there were many conferences, but few orders of consequence were issued, as the army is practically ready for any emergency and the hiring of transports is the only detail necessary to complete war preparations.

Indicted for Franchise Grab.

St. Louis, Sept. 29.—The grand jury Friday returned indictments against Robert M. Snyder, of Kansas City, charging bribery in connection with the passage of the Central Traction franchise bill through the municipal assembly in 1898, and former Councilman Frederick G. Uthoff, now of Denver, on the charge of having given perjured testimony on the same matter before the grand jury in 1902. The indictments followed Uthoff's appearance before the grand jury. Uthoff was arrested and released on $3,000 bond.

Two Switchmen Killed.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 29.—Charles S. Reed and Herbert G. Oldridge, switchmen employed in the yards of the Big Four railroad at Brightwood, were killed Friday in a collision between a switch engine and a coal car.

Gelatine Not Meat Product.

Washington, Sept. 27.—The secretary of agriculture decided that gelatine as now manufactured from hides and horns and other inedible portions of the animal is not a meat food product.

ADMITS SLAYING BROTHER

PERPETRATOR OF GOTHAM HORROR MAKES CONFESSION.

Stabs Victim While He Is Asleep, Then Cuts Off Head and Dismembers Body.

New York, Sept. 28.—Arma Aashjian, the Armenian who was arrested Wednesday night and charged with the murderer of his brother, Markar Markarian, confessed to the police Thursday that he killed his brother. He said that he threw his brother's head into the Hudson river.

Tashjian withstood the operation of the police inquisition system all night with some fortitude. At various times during the night he was shown long knives and asked if he cut up his brother with any of them. He was shown pictures of the dismembered parts taken in the morgue, and these he begged tearfully to have taken away. He did not otherwise seem disturbed by the ordeal, and steadfastly maintained his innocence. Finally Tashjian said to Police Inspector McLaughlin that he killed his brother because he was the "meanest and stingiest fellow" he ever saw. Last Saturday night, he said, he quarreled with his brother over money, and told him that he was too stingy to live, that he would be better off dead, that he made a god of his money, and that when he died he would try to take it with him.

"I made up my mind to kill him that night," said Tashjian. "He went to sleep, and I stabbed him in the neck while he was asleep with that knife," pointing to a knife found by the police. "I wanted to get rid of the body, so I decided to cut it up," continued Tashjian. "Between 12 and two o'clock I had him cut up. First I cut his head off, then his arms, and then his legs. I wrapped the trunk up, left the house with it, and threw it in the hole where it was found. Then I took the legs and arms and threw them into the cars. About five o'clock in the morning I put the head in a black colored valise, with a piece of iron, and threw it into the river. I took $65 of my brother's money. I am glad to tell you all, for it worried me a lot."

ESCAPES FROM ASYLUM IN AUTO

Woman Who Killed Mother Is Whirled Away in Motor Car.

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 28.—It was learned Thursday that Bertha Beilstein, a wealthy young woman of Allegheny, who has been confined in the insane asylum at Dixmont, Pa., since her conviction for the murder of her aged mother eight years ago, escaped from that institution last Sunday night, and her present whereabouts is unknown.

It is said she left by the fire escape and was whirled away in an automobile.

Without provocation the young woman shot her mother to death and then tried to kill herself.

Following the crime two other members of the family committed suicide.

Miss Beilstein was tried for murder, but was acquitted on the ground of insanity, and since that time had been confined in the Dixmont asylum.

ATLANTA RACE RIOTS QUELLED

Normal condition Restored—Twenty Victims of Orgy.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 27.—The race riot situation is in absolute control of the authorities and business has resumed normal conditions. The city schools are open and well attended and all manufacturing plants and factories, which have been suspended since Saturday, blew their whistles at six o'clock and began operations.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 26.—The known dead in connection with the riots here since last Saturday night number one white man and 18 negroes. To this number might be added the name of Mrs. Robert P. Thompson, an estimable white woman, who dropped dead Monday evening after seeing two negroes shot and beaten in front of her home.

Wooden Key Empties Jail.

West Bend, Wis., Sept. 26.—During Sheriff Held's absence three prisoners escaped from the county jail. They made a wooden key out of a leg of a chair, unlocked the doors and walked out. Where they got the tools to make the key is a mystery, but they left the wooden key in a door. Dan Ramsey, James Casey, and Thomas Clark, charged with firing into a crowd at a merry-go-round at Richfield, are the men who escaped.

Large Skyscraper Sold.

New York, Sept. 28.—The St. James building, at the southeast corner of Broadway and Twenty-sixth street, was transferred by the Security Trust and Life company of Philadelphia to the Pittsburg Life and Trust company for $3,150,000. The building, a 16-story structure, stands on the site formerly occupied by the St. James hotel.

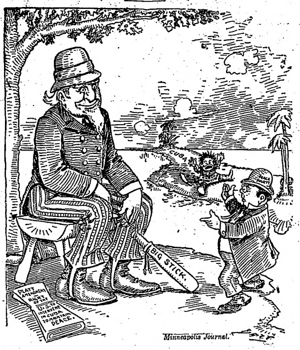
Mayor After Insurance Cash.

San Francisco, Sept. 26.—The board of supervisors adopted a resolution granting Mayor Schmitz permission to absent himself from the state for 60 days from Oct. 1. It is the purpose of the mayor to secure a settlement by foreign insurance companies and also to study municipal conditions in this country and Europe.

Duke of Fitz-James Dead.

Paris, Sept. 26.—The duke of Fitz-James, an indirect descendant of the Scottish royal family of Stuart, is dead at the Chateau de Montjustin, department of Haute-Saone.

TOO SMALL FOR U. S.



PLATT AMENDMENT RIGHT OF THE U.S. TO INTERVENE IN CUBA TO MAINTAIN PEACE.
BIG STICK.
CUBA
PEACE PARTY

Minneapolis Journal.

SIX DEAD IN WRECK NEAR DANVILLE, ILL

THIRTY-FIVE TO FORTY PERSONS SUSTAIN INJURIES IN THE SMASH-UP.

Train Crashes Through Open Switch, Hitting Freight Cars and Causing Fire to Spread to Coaches, in Which Passengers Were Burned.

Danville, Ill., Sept. 27.—Fast passenger train No. 8 on the Wabash railroad crashed through an open switch into a freight train near here Wednesday.

Last reports show six dead.

Probably 35 or 40 people were injured, most of them slightly.

The cause of the wreck as given by General Manager Henry Miller, of the Wabash road, was "accident caused by the crew of the freight train leaving the switch open." The dead:

Roster of the Dead.

Jonas S. Butler, of Peru, Ind., engineer of the passenger train.

A. W. Allison, fireman of the passenger train, Lafayette, Ind.

Edward Harding, mail clerk, Ivesville, Ill.

C. H. Karnes, mail clerk, address unknown.

Missing:

George Godaman, a stock raiser, of Springfield, Ill.

Arthur Shoemaker, 8-month-old boy.

Partly Consumed by Flames.

The bodies of the dead engineer and fireman were partially consumed bythe flames. A carload of paint attached to the freight train was burned, and it is in the wreckage near this car that George Godaman is believed to have been burned to death. A telegraph pole was burned, which crippled telegraph service and delayed information.

Mail Clerk Harding was pinioned beneath the mail car. He was roasted to death before he cauld be cut out.

Fire Adds to the Horror.

Fire spread with great rapidity from the baggage car to the passenger cars. The wreck was piled up in a heap of smoldering ruin, from which came the agonized shrieks and groans of the wounded. Heroic rescues were many, but it was a long time before assistance could be secured.

Injured Taken to Danville.

The injured are being given medical attention at St. Elizabeth's hospital. D. Hughes, head brakeman on the freight, was standing on the switch track in the path of the deflected passenger train, and was badly injured.

RULES ON CIVIL SERVICE LAW

Discharged Employes in Wisconsin Must Appeal to the Courts.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 28.—The attorney general has rendered an opinion to the effect that if a head of a state department discharges an employe, who is under civil service, and filed with the commission his reasons which, upon their face, constitute just cause for such removal, the commission cannot go behind such statement and reinstate the employe. The aggrieved employe must appeal to the courts if he wants to be reinstated.

Honor Heroic Wisconsin Pair.

Milwaukee, Sept. 29.—Miss Elsie Plantz, daughter of President Samuel Plantz, of Lawrence university, at Appleton, Wis., and Irwin W. Church, of Menominee Falls, are to receive Carnegie medals for saving lives of three Lawrence girl students last winter. The girls had broken through the ice while skating, and Miss Plantz and Church nearly perished in effecting a rescue.

Kills Wife and Himself.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—Charles G. Kline, an Evanston coal merchant, well known in the suburb, killed his wife and then instantly killed himself in their home early Friday. He used a shotgun as a weapon. Kline is believed to have been mentally unbalanced.

STENSLAND PLEADS GUILTY

CHICAGO BANKER SENTENCED TO TERM IN JOLIET.

Request for Quick Action Is Complied with, and Prisoner Is Rushed to Penitentiary.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—Stensland pleaded guilty before Judge Kersten early Wednesday afternoon and was sentenced to Joliet on an indeterminate sentence of from one to ten years. He was taken to the penitentiary at 2:30 p. m.

The looter reached Chicago at nine o'clock Wednesday morning and was hurried to the state's attorney's office in a carriage. There he told once more and in greater detail the story of the wrecking of the bank. He told the names also of those he claims to believe more guilty than himself, and reiterated that he had stolen "only" $500,000. His confession was taken down in writing and he signed it.

Stensland pleaded to two indictments, each charging embezzlement. The sentence under one is from one to five years; that under the other, from one to 14 years. The terms run concurrently, however, so the actual prison term will not exceed 14 years.

Immediately on Stensland's arrival in Chicago he underwent a searching questioning by State's Attorney Olson and others. His confession was taken down by stenographers, as a preliminary to the rapid-fire court proceedings.

NAME HEARST FOR GOVERNOR

New York Democrats in Convention Nominate the Publisher.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 27.—William Randolph Hearst was nominated by the Democrats for governor of New York at an early hour Wednesday morning by the decisive vote of 309 to 124 for William Sulzer. John A. Dix received 17 votes. Congressman Hearst had everything practically his own way, in spite of an extremely vindictive minority. Even Bourke Cockran, who was once Hearst's bitter opponent, fell in line and spoke in his behalf.

The platform adopted, while greeting the Nebraskan as a "great Democratic leader," fails to pledge him the New York delegation.

The platform denounces every socialistic proposition as a "step leading to despotism in government and servitude in labor."

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 28.—The Republican state convention met here Wednesday, nominated a state ticket, adopted a platform and then adjourned.

Charles E. Hughes, who conducted the insurance investigation before the legislative committee, was placed in nomination for the governorship by Job E. Hedges, of New York county. The nomination was greeted with tremendous enthusiasm. Senator Tully, of Steuben county, seconded the nomination, and it was made by acclamation.

Bad Blaze in Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 29.—An early morning fire Friday caused an explosion of oil in the building of the Pittsburg Plate Glass company, destroyed that building and communicated flames to a half dozen other buildings in the congested part of downtown district. A second explosion in the building where the fire originated resulted in the walls falling, and three firemen were hurt. The loss by the fire is about $200,000.

Cannon to Stump New York.

New York, Sept. 29.—Speaker Joseph G. Cannon, of the national house of representatives, will take the stump for Charles E. Hughes, the Republican candidate for governor. This was announced Friday at Republican state headquarters.

Poisoned Meat Crazes Thirty.

Berlin, Sept. 29.—A dispatch to the Tageblatt from Kattowitz, Prussian Silesia, says that 30 persons residing in the village of Zlobin, near Kattowitz, have suddenly become insane through eating poisoned meat.

TROPICAL STORM TAKES MANY LIVES

TERRIFIC HURRICANE CAUSES DEATH AND DESTRUCTION IN SOUTHERN CITIES.

Death List May Reach 100—Wind and Flood Devastate Mobile, Pensacola and Other Towns, Causing Loss of Millions.

Mobile, Ala., Sept. 29.—As a result of the gulf storm, which was central over this city, between 75 and 100 lives have been lost, fully two score vessels driven ashore or wrecked in various parts of the Gulf of Mexico, damage amounting to $4,500,000 has been done in the city of Mobile and to the extent of millions or more at outside points. No accurate estimate of the number of casualties can be made, and it is doubtful if it will be known for a week or more. Grave apprehension exists regarding the situation at Gulfport and Biloxi, where it is believed that many lives have been lost.

Heavy Damage to Shipping.

Moble's shipping suffered more than anything else. Many of the river boats are now beached or sunken, all complete wrecks. The docks and those of private corporations are fearfully wrecked. The revenue cutter Alert has gone down in Miline river.

Words cannot describe the terrors of the storm. During the hours between six p. m. Thursday and noon Friday, trees fell and roofs were crushed by hundreds. Through the streets, carried by the terrific wind, was hurled thousands of pieces of slate, and tin roofing, cornices, shingles and in fact all kinds of defastenings and windows smashed, as though of tissue paper. Many people were seriously injured and cut by the flying slate and tin.

Bayou La Batre Coden Delchamps, Theodore, Parkers, all in Alabama, situated along the line of the Mobile & Bay Shore railroad, have suffered great damage. These towns, besides being surrounded by extensive truck farms, are also popular summer resorts to northern people, as well as to Alabamians.

Big Ships Driven Ashore.

Friday afternoon the water rose until the districts of business presented an almost indescribable scene. Of the 50 or 60 big steamers and sailing vessels lying in the harbor, only about five or six are there now. They have been driven ashore and along the water front is a mass of wreckage of steamers, towboats, launches and sailing craft of all descriptions. Thirty fishing vessels in port have been destroyed or damaged and the three big fish houses with their wharves, are gone. Muscogee wharf and the Commandencia and Tarragona wharves of the Louisville & Nashville railroad are badly damaged. Great iron ships of 2,000 and 3,000 tons have been driven not only on shore, but have gone through houses a block from the water front.

Fine Park in Ruins.

Bienville square, one of Mobile's beautiful parks, of which Mobile is so justly proud, presents a ruined appearance. The bay shell road, one of the prettiest drives in the United States, is washed away in many places. At the extremity of bay shell road is a suburb of Mobile called South Eads. This too has been totally destroyed, only one small house out of seven or eight structures remaining.

Pensacola in Ruins.

Pensacola, Fla., via Flomaton, Ala., Sept. 29.—The worst hurricane to visit this city in its history raged here furiously all Thursday night and Friday with a gale still blowing. The city presents a wrecked appearance and the damage is estimated at $5,000,000. The loss of life will be heavy among the mariners, but thus far only one body has been recovered, a man named George Morgan, a fisherman. Other bodies are reported along the shore, but have not been recovered.

Every Business House Unroofed.

Every business house from the wharf on Palafox street to the Union depot has been unroofed, many plate glass windows broken, stocks badly damaged, and wires and poles all mixed up together. There are no electric light, cars or telegraph or telephone service. The track of the Louisville & Nashville railroad on the Pensacola and Atlantic division has been washed up for 30 miles and two engines and cars sent out to the quarantine station have been destroyed.

Acting Mayor Maura ordered every saloon closed Friday morning, and 50 extra policemen have been sworn in. The homeless families are housed in all portions of the city, but many will walk the streets without food or a place to sleep until something can be brought out of the chaos now existing.

Every house along the water front for a distance of ten miles has been destroyed, and the wonder is that the loss of life is not greater. The tracks of the Terminal railroad to the navy yard and Barrancas have all been destroyed, as also the trestles and bridges.

Taft to Speak at Milwaukee.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 28.—It was announced Thursday that the Wisconsin speech of Secretary Taft, opening the Republican campaign, will probably be made in Milwaukee instead of Madison, as at first planned, or if possible, during the first week in October.

Cure For The Blues

ONE MEDICINE THAT HAS NEVER FAILED

Health Fully Restored and the Joy of Life Regained.

When a cheerful, brave, light-hearted woman is suddenly plunged into that perfection of misery, the BLUES, it is a sad picture. It is usually this way; She has been feeling "out of sorts" for some time; head has ached and back also; has slept poorly, been quite nervous, and nearly fainted once or twice; head dizzy, and heart beats very fast; then that bearing-down feeling, and during her periods she is exceedingly despondent. Nothing pleases her. Her doctor says: "Cheer up: you have dyspepsia; you will be all right soon."

Mrs. Rosa Adams

But she doesn't get "all right," and hope vanishes; then come the brooding, morbid, melancholy, everlasting BLUES.

Don't wait until your sufferings have driven you to despair, with your nerves all shattered and your courage gone, but take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. See what it did for Mrs. Rosa Adams, of 819 12th Street, Louisville, Ky., niece of the late General Roger Hanson, C.S.A. She writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham;

"I cannot tell you with pen and ink what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I suffered with female troubles, extreme lassitude, 'the blues,' nervousness and that all-gone feeling. I was advised to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it not only cured my female derangement, but it has restored me to perfect health and strength. The buoyancy of my younger days has returned, and I do not suffer any longer with despondency, as I did before. I consider Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a boon to sick and suffering women."

If you have some derangement of the female organism write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for advice.

Offer Reward for Brigand.

The Russian government has offered a reward of 10,000 rubles for the capture, dead or alive, of Murad Kisilun, the famous Caucasus brigand. He is said to have killed over 300 Russian soldiers and policemen.

Cheap Excursions South.

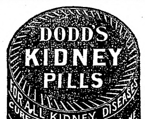
On the 1st and 3rd Tuesday of each month the Big Four Ry, will sell excursion tickets to most all points in Virginia, South Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia at rate of one fare plus $2.00 with return limit 30 days. Liberal stopover privileges. Write I. P. Spining, General Northern Agent, Big Four Route, 238 Clark St., Chicago, for further information.

Died in Westminster Abbey.

Henry IV. died in Westminster Abbey in 1413. It is claimed that from that time to this no life has ended there, except that of a minister named Shepherd, who dropped dead in the famous old sanctuary, just as he finished a speech, at a meeting recently held under the charmanship of the Dean of Westminster.

A Desirable Animal.

"Nussah," replied old Brother Bunkum. "Dar wa'nt no nigger festival uh-gwine on over in dat direction yiste'day afternoon. De repo't come to us dat a cullud man's mule had done whirled in and kicked de cullud man's yallah wife on de p'int o' de chin, uh-causin' of de lady to bite off an inch and a half of her tongue. And—uck! —de puhsession yo' seed was imposed of mar'd culled men uh gwine over dar to price dat 'ar mule. Yassah!—dat's what 't wuz."—Puck.



STAND FIRM
When you buy an
OILED SUIT
OR SLICKER demand
TOWER'S
FISH BRAND
Its the easiest and only way to get the best
Sold everywhere

SALESMEN WANTED.

We want a live, active and thoroughly experienced salesman in this locality with sufficient money to buy outright his first month's supply of our Simplicity Low Pressure Hollow Wire Gasoline Lights. A utility needed in every store and house and fully complying with insurance rules. To such a man we will give exclusive sales right and guarantee to refund money if goods not sold in 60 days. Further particulars upon request. The Standard-Gillett Light Co., 830 N. Halsted St., Chicago, Ill.

A Rich Man's Privilege.

By J. A. TIFFANY.

He had not known her more than a year; yet it seemed like a lifetime; for he felt that he had only begun to live since his first meeting with her. She had seemed like a child that night—she was ten years younger than he—and not many months out of college; but with all her girlish grace and freshness, her pouting, baby lips and clear, sweet voice, she had the poise and intellect of a woman of 30.

With him it had been a case of love at first sight—love hot, tempestuous, yet unselfish.

The introduction had come about accidentally. It was by the merest chance that he had met Dick Darlington that evening at Altman's restaurant. Darlington seemed to be one of a supper party of half a dozen men and women who had dropped in after the theater. Darlington had put out his hand and said:

"Hello, Brinsley! You are just in time to do me a favor. Special messenger here a minute ago with word for me to go up and see the old man to-night. You know I leave for Europe and a trip round the world for my concern to-morrow. I want to introduce you to my cousin, Miss Malcolm, and to get you to see her home."

A moment later, and Darlington was gone, leaving Brinsley with a young lady whom he immediately declared to himself was "simply divine."

For the last year Brinsley had been Miss Malcolm's shadow. His first advance had been to send her a magnificent bouquet, after he had known her a week. When he called in the evening he found her wearing one of his roses on her breast. She had smiled that enthralling smile of hers and thanked him prettily for the flowers.

From presents of flowers the way had been easy to automobile rides, opera boxes and suppers tete-a-tete. He had contrived to learn the date of her birthday, and when it came he had ventured to send her a present of a magnificent necklace.

She had met him that evening with a grave face and a constrained manner. He thought she was going to make him take his present back. She gave him a chair and seated herself in another near him.

"Mr. Brinsley," she said, "it was very kind of you to think of my birthday; but you have no—you ought not to send me such presents."

She took up the leather case that was lying on a table at her elbow; and he thought that she was going to hand it back to him. But she opened it, and apparently succumbed to the dazzling beauty of the gems.

"Oh, aren't they lovely!" she exclaimed. "It must be nice to be rich, Mr. Brinsley—if only for the pleasure that one can give to others. And then, too, the rich man has so many privileges. It's really terrible to be poor. I have only two thousand a year, for everything."

She toyed with the necklace for a moment, then closed the case with a sigh, and laid Brinsley's present back on the table.

"I don't know what makes you so good to me," she said, after a moment's silence on both sides.

Brinsley had been waiting for some such opening. He started to tell her that if he was good to her, it was simply because he loved her, but she had jumped up, exclaiming:

"Oh! I must show you my other presents—some of them very pretty, but none so valued as yours."

Once—it was at Christmas—he had kissed her. The impulse had been irresistible; but though Mollie had not made a fuss, he had not done it again.

A piece of mistletoe hung in the doorway between the two parlors; and as she came from the inner room, they met right under it. Suddenly he had put his arm round her waist, drawn her to him, stooped over and kissed her lips. It was entirely unpremeditated, but before their lips had met he was wondering what would be the consequence of his temerity. Then the contact had thrilled him. He felt that no penalty would be too great to pay for that momentary bliss. But instead of springing away from him, Mollie had laid her head on his shoulder, her breast pressing heavily against his, and for a brief second she had looked up at him under her long, drooping lashes, with eyes that seemed to confess a love long cherished, but studiously dissimulated.

Then she had disengaged herself and taken a seat with the table between them, and for the rest of the evening she had been the happy, light-hearted, inconsequential girl he had known for months back.

Once since that night he had tried to kiss her, but she had repulsed him gently, saying simply:

"No, please, Fred, you must not do that."

But he had loaded her with presents—presents of jewelry, of pictures, books and bric-a-brac; and they had gone everywhere and been seen everywhere together.

Brinsley had found the friendship of Mollie Malcolm so delightful that he had been afraid to put his fortunes to the hazard. He had shrunk from saying anything that might make it impossible for him to continue even in his present unsatisfactory relations with her.

But now—after a year of this platonic friendship—he felt that the time had come for him to speak out like a man, and to know his fate. He sent her a costly bouquet during the day, and in the evening went up to her apartment, faultlessly groomed and manicured.

Mollie became grave the moment she saw him, and he found it difficult to begin. After a few futile efforts on both sides to say something to put one another at ease, Mollie looked up with one of her old radiant smiles, and said:

"O, Fred! I have some news to tell you. Dick will be home next week."

"Dick?" Brinsley repeated, interrogatively. "Who is Dick?"

"Why, Dick Darlington," said Mollie, raising her eyebrows with a sort of aggrieved air.

"Oh, yes—your cousin. I remember, he introduced us; but, really, I had only a very slight acquaintance with Mr. Darlington—though, of course, I shall be glad to know him better for your sake, as he is your cousin."

"Well, he always calls himself my cousin, but, really, we are not so nearly related as that. You see, his father and my mother were cousins. The connection is very slight. But we are going to be married when Dick has been home a month."

Brinsley got out of the room and got home, somehow. He never remembered how. Nobody saw him for a week. Miss Malcolm never saw him again.

But on the morning of her wedding day she had a note from him. She read it with a smile, and sighed as she dropped it into the stove.

"Poor man," she said to herself. "It's too bad. Of course, if anything had happened to Dick while he was in Africa or any of those places, that would have made a difference."

They had been on their honeymoon a week, when one morning Dick Darlington looked up from the newspaper and said:

"Why, Mollie, Fred Brinsley is dead! He was buried yesterday. Died from an overdose of strychnia—must have been drinking heavily. And—what's this?—why, bless my soul!—he's left his fortune to you."

Mollie went over and sat on her husband's knee. She glanced over the paragraph that he had just been reading. Then, putting her arms round Dick's neck, she kissed him on the cheek and said:

"Poor Mr. Brinsley. It was an odd fancy, wasn't it—to leave his monoey to me. Well, dear, we can buy that old-fashioned mansion on the hill, now, that you have always admired so much."

(Copyright, 1906, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

SCHLEY IN ROLE OF HUMORIST.

How the Admiral Had His Quiet Fun With the Temperance Folk.

A prominent naval officer tells a story that exhibits Admiral Schley somewhat in the light of a humorist.

Some years ago Schley was in command of one of the old navy ships that was fitting out at the Brooklyn navy yard for a foreign cruise. Now, naval officers of the wardroom carry a lot of beer with them when they start on a cruise. They are not, as a rule, heavy drinkers, but they like beer at mess with their meals. This beer is taken on board in bottles packed in straw and placed in immense hogsheads.

It appears that a few days before Schley's vessel was to sail for a foreign station, a large party of Brooklyn Sunday school teachers visited the ship in a body. The party was much interested in watching the crew stow and break the stores.

On the main deck stood one of the big hogsheads packed full of beer bottles that had been emptied. This hogshead of empty bottles was about to be hoisted. There was no way for the uninitiated to tell whether they were filled or empty; but the Sunday school teachers immediately concluded that the bottles were loaded. Accordingly they regarded the hogshead with stern disapproval. After a hurried consultation they determined to send a delegate to the commander with reference to the hated hogshead.

"Sir," said the former to Schley, "it is a matter of deep regret that your vessel should carry such a huge quantity of intoxicants."

The quick-witted Schley knew at once that the hogshead was at the bottom of the trouble, but he did not "let on." So, when the emissary spoke of the many, many beer bottles he had seen, Schley exclaimed: "Why, it's simply shocking!" Then, with his visitor, he left the cabin and repaired to the main deck. "Bos'un's mate," he called out, "send me some deckhands at once." The hands were aft in an instant.

"Rig a tackle and dump that hogshead over the side," ordered Schley.

The sailors, who knew that the bottles were empty, were all grins, but in a jiffy they had the hogshead over the side into the water. The Brooklyn party looked on approvingly, and when the offending bottles had disappeared they gathered around Schley and told him what a noble example he had set for the men. Schley took it all with becoming modesty. For the fun he had out of it he paid a couple of dollars into the wardroom mess for the loss of the empty bottles, which should have been returned to the dealer.—N. Y. Times.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

The Duluth Bear Season Opens. Advocate Vegetable Coloring. A Higher Wage Rate.

Vegetable Coloring.

Minneapolis — Minnesota dairymen and buttermakers are still taking the lead; this time they are leading in the agitation for the use of vegetable color in butter and cheese. At present butter and cheese are the only articles of food exempted from the law prohibiting the use of coal tar colors. There is a movement, almost national in its character, against the inconsistency of permitting coal tar colors in dairy products when they are prohibited in other foods. There has been considerable agitation for legislation prohibiting coal tar dyes in all products, and it is probable that the Minnesota buttermakers will anticipate the action of the legislatures by beginning the use of vegetable colors.

Before the state fair this year E. K. Slater, dairy and food commissioner, asked several of the buttermakers who were to make exhibits to make two churnings, using the coal tar color in one and vegetable color in the other. The judges scoring the butter found the vegetable colored butter as good in appearance as the other, and it scored as high.

Plenty of Funds.

St. Paul—Minnesota's school fund is worth $2,975,185,50, according to the figures compiled at the state auditor's office. The cash, bonds and contracts belonging to the fund are worth $17,824,136.12. To this the auditor adds the appraised value of the unsold school lands, the 962,765 acres still owned by the state being valued at $5,175,050.47.

Their actual value, or what they would bring at a sale, is considerably larger than the appraised value. Then also the value of the minerals should be considered, but no estimate of their value can be made. They may be worth millions.

Texas is the only state that approximates Minnesota in its permanent school fund, but the impression some people have that Texas has a larger fund is not correct. The last report of the comptroller of the treasury of the state show the school fund to be worth $12,173,000.

Higher Wages.

A wage increase of 15 per cent for underground miners in the iron ore district and a 10 per cent increase for surface miners between 1904 and 1905 is noted in the mining report which Julius Moersch, statistician, has compiled for the biennial report of the state labor bureau.

The wages paid the miners varied from $1.50 for some unskilled labor, to $5 50, the price paid to steam shovel engineers in the surface mines. The general surface laborers received wages from $1.75 to $2.00, the principal wage being $1.95. The general underground laborers' wages varied $1 80 to $2.00. The average wage per day for the underground and surface miners is about the same per day, but the underground miners have the opportunity of working the entire year to offset the risk of working underground.

Duluth Bear Season.

Duluth—The bear season in Duluth has opened. One morning at about 11 o'clock a black bear cub made its appearance in the neighborhood of Eleventh avenue west and Third street, going west on Third street, just east of the Emerson school. The bear was seen by three of the residents of the district, who immediately gave chase.

The cub proved very lively when frightened and gave his pursuers a good run before they got within range for a shot. The bear was killed in front of the residence of C. H. Deppe, 112 West Third street, right across from the Emerson school, at 11:45, and the school children then leaving the building were given an object lesson in bear hunting which could be offered by perhaps no other city in the country.

Rattlesnakes.

Cannon Falls—A few miles south of this city is a rocky place in the woods, long noted as a breeding place for rattlesnakes. Many years ago Charles Elstrom and another man killed 116 of the reptiles in an afternoon. Other men tell of slaughtering by the score. A day or two ago Prof. A. W. Newman, superintendent of the Cannon Falls public schools, in company with one of his students, ran upon a nest of these rattlers in the vicinity of the old hatchery. They brought seven of the snakes home with them as trophies of their adventure.

News Notes.

Minneapolis—The new interstate law may knock out the merchants' excursions to the cities.

Fertile—A farmer named G. M. Tupper, living six miles west of here, lost his barn, granary and cattle sheds by fire. Several fine head of horses and several cattle and all the grain from this year's crop were consumed by the flames. The origin of the fire is unknown.

St. Paul—It is expected that the Twenty-eighth regiment at Fort Snelling will be among the first to be sent to Cuba in case of trouble.

Minneapolis—Robert Crawford won the interstate grand diamond medal oratorical contest held at Central Park Methodist church, St. Paul, under the auspices of the state convention of the W. C. T. U.

Little Falls—An unknown man fell from an extra freight at about 3 o'clock in the morning and was instantly killed. The accident occurred about half a mile east of Darling.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

The Dresdener bank, of Dresden, announced an increase of capital of $5,000,000.

An unknown man held up and fatally shot L. A. Silver, a business man of Laporte, Ind.

A meeting of the congress to discuss uniform divorce laws will be held in Philadelphia, Pa., November 13.

A sauerkraut festival was held at Ackley, Ia., attended by 10,000 persons of whom ate free kraut and wieners.

American and European capitalists are in a combination to finance a Brazilian coffee deal to the extent of $20,000,000.

The next term of the supreme court of the United States will begin a week from next Monday. The docket contains over 400 cases.

The Brooklyn Rapid Transit company has acceded to the demands of the elevated railroad motormen for an increase in wages.

Joseph Manna, eight years old, was killed in New York by a pistol which fell and exploded. Two other children also were struck by bullets.

The recent heavy rains have caused much damage to crops in vast portions of Mexico. The rains of the Pacific slope have been unusually heavy.

Motormen of the elevated systems of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company have asked for $3.50 a day, their old rate, and a strike is in prospect.

Alfred S. Brown, for many years an electrical engineer for the Western Union Telegraph company, died in New York. He began as an operator.

The entire force at the car shops of the Iowa Central railway, Marshalltown, Ia., struck. The men demand the removal of Foreman John Greene.

Representatives of the Order of Railway Conductors announce they have secured a substantial increase in wages from the Seaboard Airline road.

Edward Crummer, business manager of the Baltimore Sun for the last 25 years, died of heart failure. He had been connected with the Sun for 38 years.

A bridge over the tracks of the New York division of the Pennsylvania railroad at Thirty-first street and Columbia avenue, Philadelphia, collapsed. Six men were hurt.

The International Salt company raised its prices on all grades of salt approximately 60 cents a ton. This is said to be the third raise within a period of three months.

The state department at Washington has decided that the Island of Palmas, adjacent to the Philippine group and occupied chiefly by Dutch, is owned by the United States.

PRIVATE OHIO BANK IS CLOSED

Middleport Institution in Trouble—Big Sum Missing.

Pomeroy, O., Sept. 29.—The Middleport bank, a private institution at Middleport, O., failed to open its doors Friday. It is stated that all the deposits, amounting to $115,000, are missing and great excitement prevails. Most of the depositors are poor people and their deposits represented nearly all their savings. E. C. Fox, the president of the bank, has been located at Toronto, O., where his wife's people reside, and his arrest ordered. He is expected to be apprehended and brought back at once.

President Fox went away last Tuesday, leaving Vice President T. S. Armentrout in charge. An examination of the vaults after Fox had gone revealed $3,000 in cash and paper worth less than $50,000 on its face to account for the $115,000 deposited. Armentrout was formerly a Presbyterian minister at Galliopolis, and on the solicitation of Fox resigned the ministry the 1st of June, converted his property into $6,000 and entered the bank as an equal partner with Fox, perfectly unaware of its financial condition. He has lost his $6,000 and is now almost a physical wreck over worrying about the outcome of his new enterprise. Before leaving, Fox drew out all his personal deposit and that of his wife, whom he recently married at Toronto, O.

THE MARKETS.

New York, Sept. 28.

LIVE STOCK—Steers	$5 50 @	5 75
Hogs, State	6 80 @	6 90
Sheep	3 30 @	5 50
FLOUR—Minn. Patents	4 10 @	4 35
WHEAT	82⅞@	83⅛
May	85¼@	85½
CORN—December	51 @	51¾
RYE—No. 2 Western	63½@	64
BUTTER	18 @	24
CHEESE	11¾@	12
EGGS	21½@	22
CHICAGO.
CATTLE—Choice Steers	$5 75 @	6 90
Common to Good Steers	4 75 @	5 75
Yearlings	4 50 @	6 00
Bulls, Common to Choice	2 25 @	4 00
Calves	3 00 @	8 25
HOGS—Light Mixed	6 20 @	6 45
Heavy Packing	5 65 @	5 95
Heavy Mixed	6 10 @	6 40
BUTTER—Creamery	19½@	23½
Dairy	16 @	17
EGGS	12½@	17
LIVE POULTRY	11 @	11½
POTATOES (bu.)	45 @	50
WHEAT—December	75 @	75¼
May	79⅛@	79¼
Corn, September	46⅞@	47¼
Oats, September	33⅜@	33⅝
Rye, September	59½@	60
MILWAUKEE.
GRAIN—Wheat, No. 1 Nor'n	$ 79 @	81
December	75⅛@	75½
Corn, December	43¼@	43⅜
Oats, Standard	34½@	35
Rye, No. 1	63½@	64
Corn, December	43 @	43¼
KANSAS CITY.
GRAIN—Wheat, September	$ 68⅝@	68½
December	68⅝@	68¾
Corn, September	42½@	42⅝
Oats, No. 2 White	35 @	36
ST. LOUIS.
CATTLE—Beef Steers	$3 50 @	6 25
Texas Steers	3 00 @	5 10
HOGS—Packers	6 25 @	6 65
Butchers	6 50 @	6 65
SHEEP—Natives	3 00 @	5 50
OMAHA.
CATTLE—Native Steers	$4 40 @	6 40
Stockers and Feeders	2 75 @	4 50
Cows and Heifers	2 50 @	4 25
HOGS—Heavy	6 30 @	[illegible] 25
SHEEP—Wethers	5 00 @	5 50

THE WORLD'S NEED

A STICKLESS BUREAU DRAWER, SAYS MR. SNORTLY.

His Experience Has Shown Him How Much the Human Race Would Be Benefited by Such an Invention.

"A fortune, a large, a mountainous fortune," said Mr. Snortly, "awaits the furniture manufacturer who will put on the market a bureau with drawers that won't stick.

"As it is, I suppose that half the bureaus in the world have drawers that can't be opened without a struggle, that couldn't be entirely closed without a mall and that could not then be opened without an axe. I have one such bureau myself—a bureau with drawers that will never close entirely; a bureau that tries me sorely; and I am a man of even temper.

"If bureaus of this sort affect a man of my self-command in this manner, what must their effect be upon myriads of people of dispositions more excitable and explosive? See what trouble one of these sticky drawer bureaus has brought to a friend of mine:

"He was a nice man, but impulsive and somewhat given to self-indulgence, and he fought with himself until one after another he had cut out all his vices except swearing, and last spring he cut that out and came forth that strongest of all men, the man who has conquered himself. In that splendid strength he continued until day before yesterday, when he fell.

"On that day, confident of his own strength of mind, never doubting, never thinking of it in fact, he had become now as he supposed so settled in his power of self-control, he tried to get a collar out of his top bureau drawer.

"This drawer had stuck before, but up to that day he had always managed to open it somehow, and what was far greater, to keep his temper in opening it; but on that day it wedged and stuck and resisted in a manner that would have tried any man and that proved, alas! too much in the end, for my friend.

"For when the drawer wouldn't come, anyway, a cloud seemed to come over his mind, and he grasped the two handles of it with his two hands and planted his foot firmly against the face of the drawer below and pushed with that while he pulled on the drawer, viciously.

"The drawer did yield at last, but when that came the bureau went over under the pressure of the foot he had against it, and the heavily loaded drawer came down with its sharp back edge square on the toes of the other foot.

"All the neighbors said—the windows being opened everywhere, as at this season so that all could hear—that they had never heard anything like it, never; and my friend has got to move. All were willing to admit, when they learned the cause, that the provocation had been great, but they won't take another chance, and my friend must go.

"And all because of a sticky bureau drawer!

"Bureau builders! Think of the benefits you would confer upon humanity by making bureaus with drawers that would open and close easily! But I don't appeal to your philanthropic side. I appeal to your cupidity. A fortune, a Himalayan fortune, awaits the bureau builder who first puts on the market a bureau with drawers that won't stick."

Printing in Venice.

A new institution has just been founded in Venice for the revival of letters in that city, under the name of "L'Istituto Vento di Arti Grafiche." Its object is to promote printing in all its various branches and to restore an art which was once of such widespread fame in Italy. That Venice should be chosen as one of the spots for such a purpose is peculiarly appropriate, for, as is well known, it was in Venice that printing was most warmly encouraged and developed when, after its invention in Germany, it was introduced into Italy. No less than 164 printing presses were set up in Venice in the second half of the fifteenth century, and during the first 30 years that they were at work the number of books printed is estimated at 2,000,000. Aldo Manuzio settled in Venice in 1489, and lived and worked there till his death, in 1515. During those years he commenced the publication of the Aldine editions, which his descendants carried on after him, and which have made his name famous throughout the world of letters.

The Woman's Privilege.

"What are you looking so glum about?"

"Oh, my fiancee has changed her mind."

"Still worrying over that? It was fully two weeks ago since you told me she had broken off the engagement."

"Oh! it's been on and off again twice since then."

A Guess.

"Know anything about golf?"

"Not much. Why?"

"What' a bunker, do you know?"

"I suppose it's one of those cranks that simply live and sleep on the links."—Catholic Standard and Times.

He Couldn't Tell.

"What do you consider the six best books of the year, Mr. Ego?" asked the young woman.

"Well—er—really," replied Mr. Ego, the novelist, "I've written two books this year, you know."

TELEGRAPH OF THE KAFFIRS.

How Messages Are Sent Between Chiefs in Zululand.

Mention has been frequently made during the recent native troubles in South Africa of the "Kaffir telegraph," the strange system by which news of any importance is communicated from one extreme of the native territories to the other with almost incredible rapidity, and the working of which, it has been stated, is still a mystery to the white man.

This latter statement is scarcely correct. Numbers of up-country residents, traders, and the like are well acquainted with many of the ways in which communication passes from tribe to tribe.

When a chief receives a message he selects a fast runner, and gives him the words, and instructs this man to run in a given direction as fast as he can—horses are never used in this work—until he is exhausted. When he can run no longer he enters the nearest kraal, selects the chief man, gives him the words, and this man in his turn picks out his fastest runner, who at once starts off until he also is exhausted, when he acts in a similar way.

With relays of runners like this 100 miles can be covered in 24 hours.

The system of "calling messages" is largely used by the natives in war time. The air in South Africa is so dry that sound carries a very long way. Native messengers are stationed at the tops of hills to call messages to each other.

It is no exaggeration to say that they can make themselves heard and carry on conversation a quarter of a mile distant; but for obvious reasons they cannot be stationed so close together, so a system of signaling by smoke is carried on at night, but this means is not followed in such a case as I am trying to describe.

A white man named Groom had settled down among the Pondos and adopted their ways, and, except for the trifling difference of color, was to all intent a Kaffir himself. This man once, in answer to an argument which took place outside the store in Mt. Frese, offered to have a message delivered in Komgha, about 200 miles away, on the day after the one on which we were speaking, and a note was accordingly written to a storekeeper in that village and given him.

On the second morning a Kaffir walked into the store in Komgha and placed the paper in the storekeeper's hand and walked out; but we never found out how this had been accomplished.—London Field.

Foreigners Stick to Cities.

The commissioner general of immigration has made it apparent in his reports that the numbers and quality of the newcomers to our shores do not exhaust the problems of immigration. One of these which causes much trouble and embarrassment is the matter of distribution, it being claimed that the new swarms show a disposition to cling to the congested life of the cities. Professor Wilcox of Cornell university and a special agent of the United States census bureau whom we have recently quoted employed statistics to show that there is a general movement among immigrants away from the cities. On the basis of his figures it appears that nearly one-half of those who have arrived within the last five years are to be found outside the cities of 25,000 and over. Even without disputing his figures and statements they hardly strike at the root of the matter. With a foreign increment at the rate of about 1,000,000 a year it is becoming increasingly difficult each year to obtain help to gather the fruits of the earth. Whatever may become of these new recruits when they leave the large cities they appear to studiously avoid the fundamental industry of the country.—Boston Transcript.

Marriage Flight of Ants.

People living along the River Stour, at Sandwich, England, were the other day treated to a wonderful sight. Suddenly the stream, the shores and the streets of the town became covered with flying ants that seemed to be dropping like hail from the clouds. The phenomenon was a marriage flight of ants, such as always takes place in the summer. The ants thus swarming were young queens and winged males. In these marriage flights countless millions of ants take part, yet the noise of their tiny vibrating wings is scarcely as loud as the hum of a bee. So frail are their dense columns that a little puff of wind will disperse them out of sight.

Comparatively few of the myriads which come forth from their nests into the air live to enter a nest again. Practically all the males die, lonely and shelterless. The surviving queens found new communities, or, entering old nests, are at once taken care of by the workers, and start new colonies in their old nursery.

Tough Kid.

"That youngster of yours seems to be having his own way lately. You're not as strict with him as you were."

"No, it was a question of economy with me."

"Economy?"

"Yes; every month I used to have to buy myself a pair of slippers, and the boy a pair of trousers."

Nothing Else There.

When a fellow shaves himself," asked young Kallow, "is it necessary to shave up against the grain?"

"Why should you want to know?" asked Elder. 'You'll only have to shave down."

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-class matter August 30, 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

Do Clothes Make The Man?

The divorce courts have proven that it is unwise for a young women to marry a man simply because his appearance is good. Clothes make the man only as far as appearances go. They are a great and helpful asset to him who has brains to accompany them. In the eyes of some women an over-dressed man is the noblest work of God. They bury themselves in his appearance and give credit for good breeding, culture and wit that he is not entitled to.

All is fair sailing if his wardrobe is replete with the latest models of up-to-date clothes. His real intellect and his real breeding are covered by them. The women never stops to think how much valuable time and thought must be expended by the man who over-dresses. All of that time must be taken from intellectual pursuits, with the consequence that the man's mind runs almost entirely to viewing fashion plates.

Recently on a train running out of Duluth there were among the numerous other passengers a young commercial drummer who has fallen deeply in love with himself and a pretty little tailor-made women. On all of his trips this particular drummer makes it a point to single out some fair passenger for a traveling companion. In searching the train on the day in question his eyes fell smilingly on the pretty little creature before mentioned. She was seated alone. Right in front was a vacant chair and the young drummer fell into it with a reckless abandon that suggested wealth. He threw his hand over the back of the seat so as to give the pretty little woman a full view of his rhinestone ring. Believeing, as he does, that all women find him simply irresistable, he took the liberty to ask the young women if there was something she would like to read and at the same time handed her a copy of "Did She Ever Love Him?" by Peroxide Blonde, one of his favorite authors. She took the book and allowed him to fill the vacant seat along side of her. He got busy immediately, telling her, of his tremendous sales of dried prunes to the cross-roads Wannamakers and of the great swash he cut in social circles of all the "burgs" he visited She permitted him to have full swing in the conversation department, and it was not long before he had told all he knew.

She asked him for a photo of himself and as he always carries a dozen or so with him. just to make the trips more pleasant, he promptly presented her with one. He was surprised when she refused him a picture of her self, and after a few moments she picked up a collection of "Emerson's Essays" and begin to read. By some force unknown to him he was gently lifted out of the seat.

This week some of his companions on the road showed him a magazine containing a cut of himself, accompanied by a lengthy story dealing with the shape of his head and the directions of his ambitions.

The tailor made young women was a traveling representative of an Eastern publishing house.—The Duluth News Tribune.

Who Will They Elect?

We do not blame a man to work and vote for his own interest, and we certainly do not blame the Great Northern Railroad for desiring to have men in the legislature that will represent their interest, but this district gave them a cold shake at the primary and if our neighbors of Polk will give them an other hoist at the General election next month, by electing W.E. Rowe for state Senator, from that district we can say that we have a pretty able team from these two districts in the state senate. We do not wish to be understood as saying that A.D. Stephens is not an able man in a legislative body. for he is a dandy to mislead the people about drainage appropriations to benefit the railroad lands, while the people pay the freight.

If we presist in electing men of this kind to the legislature, it is not surprising that socialism is on the increase, and that the common people begin to look for a remedy.

The unpopularity of A D. Stephens in Polk county was demonstrated at the last primary election, for while Steenerson recieved 2226 votes, Stephens only recieved 1888. Both were running without opposition Steenerson for congress and Stephens for the state senate. The only difference being that Halvor, worked for the interest of the men that elected him and Stephens worked for the interest of the corporations, but we don't blame A.D. for working for his own interest, as he is largely interested in the town sites along the Great Northern railroad and it would be detrimental to his interest to have any reduction in freight and passenger rates.

The Republican county central committee met at Thief River Falls yesterday. There was no invertation extended to any one living on the eleven townships to attend, nor is there a member on the committee from the newly settled part of the county but they will probable allow us to vote next November.

* * * * *

Republican State Ticket.

United States Senator—
Knute Nelson,
Douglas County.

Governor—
A.L. Cole,
Cass County.

Lieutenant Governor—
A.O. Eberhart,
Blue Earth County.

Chief Justice—
Charles M. Start,
Olmsted County.

State Treasurer—
Clarence Dinehart,
Murray County,

Secretary of State—
Julius Schmahl,
Redwood County.

Attorney General—
E.T. Young,
Swift County.

State Auditor—
S.G. Iverson,
Fillmore County.

Clerk of Supreme Court—
C.A. Pidgeon,
Wright County.

Railroad Commissioner—
C.F. Staples,
Dakota County.

State Senator 61st Ditrict...
A. L. HANSON,

Representative 61st District.
JENS J. OPSAHL.

Autobiographies.

All autobiographies are lies. No man is bad enough to tell the truth about himself during his lifetime, and no man is good enough to tell the truth to posterity in a document which he suppresses until there is nobody left alive to contradict him.—George Bernard Shaw.

Woke Him Up.

Bashful Beaumont—Er—I—er—dreamt I—er—kissed you last night. What's that a sign of?

Modest Maiden—Well, it's a sign that you're more sensible asleep than awake.

They Fall Short.

Foreigner—Are the earnings of your household servants large as a rule?

American—No; not nearly so large as their pay.—Pittsburg Post.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of five dollars which became due March 14th 1906, and is due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Martha Kolstoe, a single women, mortgagor, to. Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls. mortgagee, bearing date the 14th day of March, 1905, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of deeds of the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, on the 17th day of March 1905, at 4 o.clock. P. M. in Book 35 of Mortgages, on page 8 thereof, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the county of Polk, State of Minnesota, on the 14th day of August, 1906, at 8 o'clock A.M. in Book 116 of Mortgages on page 418: and whereas, pursuant to the terms and condition of said mortgage by reason of said default., the whole proncipal sum of mortgage, towit. thirty dollars, did on the 14th day of March 1906, become at once due and payable: and was so declared by said mortgagee: and whereas, there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of thirty dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of ten per cent per annum since March 14, 1906 and whereas, the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof:

Now, therefor, Notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to wit,:

Lots six (6) and seven (7) of section six (6) in township one hundred fifty one (151), north, of range thirty nine (39) in Polk County, Minnesota, and the east half of the south east quarter, (E½ of S.E. ¼) of section one (1) in township one hundred fifty one (151), north, of range forty (40), in Red Lake County, Minnesota, which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Red Lake County, Minnesota, at the west front door at the courthouse in the City of Red Lake Falls, in said county and state on Saturday, the 13th day of October, 1906, at two (2) o'clock P.M. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of thirty dollars and interest as aforesaid, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and a reasonale attorney's fee as stipulated in said mortgage, the same being hereby claimed and stated to be the sum of twenty five dollars, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated August 22nd, 1906,

Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls. Minn.

Mortgagee,

Chas. E. Boughton,
Attorney for Mortgagee,
Red Lake Falls, Minnesota.

The Bloom on Fruit.

How many boys and girls know why plums, grapes and other fruits of that kind have bloom on them? Of course you know that the bloom is the whitish coating that a mere touch will rub off, leaving the dark skin of the fruit in view. This is a provision of nature for the protection and preservation of the fruit. It prevents dampness from accumulating on it and thus keeps it from decaying.

Where Boys Can't Smoke.

Among the countries which prohibit smoking by boys are Japan, where no person under twenty is allowed to smoke; Austria, Germany, Russia and Norway. Several British colonies have also passed laws against juvenile smoking, and there is every prospect of Great Britain following suit before long.

A Hard Road to Travel.

Teacher—What is the meaning of "crisis?"

Tommy—A turning point.

Teacher—Correct. Now write a sentence containing the word.

After some hesitation Tommy wrote, "They came to a crisis in the road."

King Edward's Horses.

King Edward's horses are all specially trained. Even in moderating their speed they undergo lessons. They are taught to trot, and trot with apparent spirit, but to put no more speed into it than if they were going at a walk.

Liquid Metal Polish.

Take eight ounces of Spanish whiting, which must be perfectly free from grit, and put in one quart of gasoline. Shake up the whiting and gasoline thoroughly. You will notice the whiting settles immediately, leaving the liquid as clear as water. To remedy this and, further, to make it a better polishing agent, add to each quart of the mixture thirty-two drops of oleic acid—no more, no less. Shake again, and the whiting will not settle. Apply to gold, silver, nickel, brass, glass or any kind of metallic surface with a piece of cotton flannel, rubbing well. Polish with a piece of same cloth.—Blacksmith and Wheelwright.

Waterproofing Dress Goods.

One of the most important processes used for waterproofing dress materials is on the lines of the old alumina process. In this case the factor used is rosin dissolved in a large bulk of petroleum spirit. The fabrics to be proofed are passed through a bath of this solution and dried to drive off the solvent. Following this, the goods are treated by pressing with hot polished metal rollers. This last process melts the small quantity of rosin which is deposited on the cloth and leaves each single fiber with an exceedingly thin film of rosin on it.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam August 31, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land office at Crookston Minn. August 24th, 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver, of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on October 23, 1906 viz:

Nels Loiland.

H.E. no. 1181 Red Lake Series for the Lots 5. 6. 7. 9. S.W. ¼, S E. ¼, Sec. 27 Twp. 152 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ben K. Kvestad of Highlanding Minn. Halvor Swanson, Ole N. Loiland, Olaf Hanson of Hilda Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam September 28 1906.

Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston Minn. August September 25. 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before L.G. Browning U.S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota, on November 5th 1906, viz:

Fred Solie.

H.E. No. 536 Red Lake Series, for the N.W. ¼ Sec. 16, Twp. 154, N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Knut Rogness, Ole Wiseth, Pete Brevik, of Germantown Minn. Olef Arakre of Brunkeberg Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Regster.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam October 5th 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. September 27th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L.G. Browning U.S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota on November 5th 1909 viz:

Christen H. Bjorke.

H.E. No. 637, Red Lake Series, for the Lots 3. 4. E½ S.W. ¼ Sec. 31, Twp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

John M. Johnson, Bernt Johnson, Ole Gsving, of Brunkeberg Minn. Gulbrand Granum, of Thief River Falls Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam October [illegible]

Department of the Interior, Land Office, at Crookston Minn. September 28th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L.G. Browning, U.S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota on November 5th 1906 viz:

Thom M. Thorsan.

H.E. No. 780 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 1, 2, E½ N.W. ¼ Sec. 7 Twp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ole H. Langlie, Jacob B. Nesheim, Carl J. Olson, of Brunkeberg Minn Aaron E. Abraham of Thief River Falls Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

Ready Wit Is an Advantage In This Jolly Game.

"What is my thought like?" is a good game, even if it is not particularly new.

Begin by asking each player in turn, "What is my thought like?" to which he must answer the first thing that comes to his mind, but it must be different from the answer given by the others.

You must keep a list of all the answers, and then, having announced what your thought really was, ask each player to tell you in what way your thought resembles the thing he gave in his answer.

For instance:

You ask, "What is my thought like?"

No. 1 replies, "Like a stove."

No. 2 replies, "Like a book," etc.

You then announce; "My thought was myself. Now, how am I like a stove?"

No. 1 replies, "Because you often go out."

You ask No. 2, "How am I like a book?"

No. 2 replies, "Because you are well read," etc.

This game is great fun.

What Is a Handkerchief?

The word "handkerchief" is a very queer one. A "kerchief" is a covering for the head, being made up of the words "cur," to cover, and "chef," the head. A handkerchief therefore is a covering for the head carried in the hand. A pocket handkerchief is still more inconsistent, for that word really means a head covering carried in the hand and kept in the pocket at the same time. There are lots of such inconsistencies in our language, and it is not to be wondered at that foreigners find it very hard to master.

Nonsense Rhyme.

Why not have a nonsense rhyme game some day? Give four players sheets of paper and pencils and offer a prize for the best nonsense rhyme composed in so many minutes.

You know how they go, as, for instance:

There was a young man of Bridgeport,
Who sat on the stove just for sport,
And, though he was burned,
No lesson he learned,
This eccentric young man from Bridgeport.

H. & B. MILLING CO.
BEST
VIVO
PATENT
98
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.
VIVO

VIVO

HANDLED BY ALL THE LEADING MERCHANTS OF THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

(ALWAYS CALL FOR VIVO.)

We pay the highest market price for all grain at our mill in Thief River Falls, or at our elevator at Plummer, and always have on hand a compleat line of flour & feed at both points.

☞ Promt shipments made by boat to all points along the Red Lake River.

We solicit your orders.

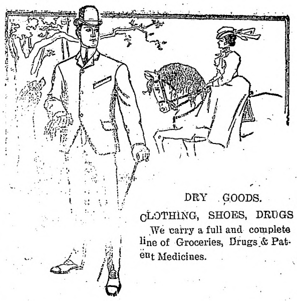
Hanson & Barzen Milling Company.

THE MERCHANTS

State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payments. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds. Long time and low rates, Call on, or WRITE US.——— J. A. DUFFY, Cashier.

NORSK HANDEL.



DRY GOODS.
CLOTHING, SHOES, DRUGS

We carry a full and complete line of Groceries, Drugs & Patent Medicines.

☞ LOOK AT THIS. We pay the highest market price for, Hides, Wool, Seneka Root, Furs & All Farm Products

H.H. Finrow, Mg.

PLUMMER, MINN.

The Radny Store:

☞ THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE RADNY STORE.

John has, Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes.

A full and complete line of groceries.

Best brands of flour, at lowest market price.

.......00.........

Call and see me for bargains, at Radny post office and store.

John Radneskie.

IF YOU WANT TO DO BUSINESS,

With The People Of Eastern Red Lake County,

YOU SHOULD ADVERTISE

IN A PAPER,

THAT THEY TAKE AND READ.

TRY "THE SUNBEAM" WITH AN AD. FOR RESULTS.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

VIVO flour is the best. Ask your dealer for vivo.

HORSES FOR SALE, at the Plummer livery barn.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar, will cure your cough.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar will bring relief to Asthma patients.

A good rain would be appreciated by the farmers to help out plowing.

Pay up your back subscription.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar Do not wait get it at the first indication of cough or cold.

Steffen Jardahl was a passenger on the train of M.E. Hyland from Thief River Falls yesterday.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar, is a remedy that cures by removing the cause. Try a 50ct. bottle.

Chris Larson the Anton dealer will pay you the highest cash price for cattle, see him before you sell.

M.E. Hyland and A Rollinson were doing business at Thief River Falls Tuesday and Wednesday.

Miss Robbecke of Thief River Falls returned home Wednesday after a weeks visit with Miss Kuehnel.

The lumber companys had a state boiler inspector up inspecting the boilers on their lake boats this week.

Miss Amanda Dunn returned to school at Thief River Falls on Wednesday, after a week at home with ma-ma.

Stephen Singer will make a flying trip to Red Lake Agency the first of the week to look after some colections up there.

CATTLE WANTED, Highest market price paid for fat cattle, inquire at this office, or of, Chris Larson at Anton Post office.

Conrad Olson the mail carrier from Thief River Falls to Erie says that the danger from prairie fires this fall is great and people should be careful about setting out fire, on windy days.

Halvor Homme came over from Equality yesterday to notify the farmers in this locality, that the Hommy Bros. were going to bring their threshing machine into the neighborhood Saturday.

Alfred Eve returned home from Dakota on last Sunday evening. He has been threshing for Wallace Grace near Crystal during the fall and reports a prosperous run for Mr. Grace.

W.A. and Nels Swanson returned home from the Dakota harvest fields Monday evening. They report a prosperous fall out there this year as the weather has been very fine.

Ray Arndt returned from Dakota Monday. Ray came very near an attack of tyhpoid, fever and spent a week in the Thief River Falls hospital but succeeded in getting the fever broken.

Mrs. Walt McAndress left for Rochester Minn, on last Saturday morning to visit her mother who is seriously ill. Mr. McAndress went with her as far as St. Hilaire returning home Sunday evening.

We could not spare the time to go to Thief River Falls yesterday to hear the speech of Knute Nelson, but are sure we missed a treat, as Knute is one of the best speakers in the state, to the plain people, as he does not use any highfloon language, but talks good plain english and common sense.

There seems to be quite a strife for county office, this fall "Get there, Elie," or the other fellow will win.

Fred Houg of the Dan Patch passed by here yesterday up river having had a stormy passage up this time.

Will Arndt returned from Milton N. Dakota yesterday, where he has been putting in the threshing season.

John Morgan an uncle of Walt McAndress from St. Hilaire was visiting him from Sunday to Wednesday of this week.

Crist Larson the Anton Cattle dealer and store keeper passed by this way Monday on his way to Wanke on a sheep and cattle buying trip.

A. Rollinson says that he was interviewed a large number of times about county seat removel during his visit to Thief River Falls this week.

The Red Lake Flyer made a through trip to the lake Monday to take the state boiler inspecter up, returning on their regular time Wednesday.

George Singer of Deer Park Township says the farmers down there are so well satisfied with their dealings with the Thief River Falls creamery on cream this season that they will all double their number of cows next season.

We present to our readers this week the advertisment of The Golden Rule Department Store, at Thief River Falls. Space forbids a full description of all the goods carried by this large house but give them a call when you are in town and look over their large store.

Now is the time to call a boat meeting of the share holders in the Red Lake River Transportation Co. and make some arrangements to build a boat for next season, or contract with D.N. Winton to carry the cream down the river to Thief River Falls next season. This matter should be started up at once and not wait until next spring.

Frank Jeffers.

I am asking for re-election to the office of Register of Deeds and would deeply appreaciate the support of the voters in all parts of the County

---

Having served one term as County Attorney, I am asking for a second term, and would deeply appreciate the support of the voters in all parts of the County.

THOMAS GERMO.

The Fall of the Hennins.

The hennins or headdresses worn by ladies of the fifteenth century were in shape of horns and so long that a woman's face appeared to be in the center of her figure. The clergy condemned them and threatened the wearers with perdition, but for all that they were worn higher than ever. At last a strolling evangelist at Paris promised absolution to all who would destroy the hennins, and the mob went to work and wrecked the headdresses whenever they appeared in public. The hennins were trampled under foot and their wearers insulted all over Paris. Scores of lives were lost in the efforts of the cavaliers to defend the hennins from the rabble, but in vain, and the enormous headdresses disappeared, some other feminine absurdity taking their place.

He who knows only his own side of the case knows little of that.—Mill.

Nobody can help being born, stupid, but anybody can help becoming stupider than he was born.—Lady Helen Forbes.

ALL YOUR FALL NEEDS,

Will be well taken care of, IF you come to the

GOLDEN RULE DEPARTMENT STORE,

THIEF RIVER FALLS.

Complete Departments, In CLOTHING, DRY GOODS, LADIES CLOKES, SHOES. Underware, Hats and Caps. all kinds Rubber goods, and Sheeplined Coats, and Don't Forget our GROCERY DEPARTMENT. We buy all kinds of farm produce.

O. J. SCHEI & CO., Props.

MARKS'S LUNG BALSAM, with TAR.

For the cure of all diseases of the lungs, throat and chest, as Cough, Cold, Asthma, Bronchitis La Grip and will Prevent consumption when taken in time.

Free To Women.

Our handsome catalog of Womens Cloaks, Suits, and Skirts sent free on request, showing all the latest styles. We manufacture our goods and sell direct to customers. Every garment sent subject to examination.

Write now.

MAIL ORDER GARMENT CO., 508 Century Bldg. Minneapolis, Minn.

J. K WOOD,
COUNTY SURVEYOR, &
CIVIL ENGINEER.

Will give all orders for Surveying prompt attention.

Office at Thief River Falls
Minnesota.

U.S. Mail,

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 8. 30 a. m. on Tuesday's Thurday's and Saturday's. & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 3. p.m.

Wm. G. HUNT, P.M.

MONEY TO LOAN.

I have money to loan on real-estate at 7½ per cent. Payments at the land office made for you when you make final proof.

Special attention given to Notary Public work.

Applications to make final proof written free.

Stephen Singer.
Rhoda Minn.

Subscribe for The Sunbeam,

Wanted: Gentleman or lady with good reference, to travel by rail or with a rig, for a firm of $250,000.00 capital. Salary $1,072 00 per year and expenses; salary paid weekly and expenses advanced. Address, with stamp, Jos. A. Alexander, Subeam, Minn.

LAND OFFICE BUSINESS.

U.S. Commissioner L. G. Browning with office located at Thief River Falls, is prepared to take homestead entries final proof etc., within the Crookston U. S. Land District.

office in News building, three doors south of the post office.

ECZEMA and PILE CURE FREE.

Knowing what it was to suffer, I will give FREE OF CHARGE, to any afflicted a Positive cure for Eczema, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Piles and Skin Diseases. Instant relief. Don't suffer longer, Write F. W. Williams, 400, Manhattan Avenue, New York. Enclose Stamp.

---

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

DESERT SHEEP HERDERS.

Their Lonely, Dreary Life Tends to Drive Them Crazy.

Do you realize what it means to watch 5,000 sheep alone in the desert? You have read weird, grewsome stories of the horror of the solitary lighthouse keeper's life, but compared to the days of the Mexican shepherd those of the average keeper of the light are filled with gayety and noise. Even with their one or two dogs the shepherds often go insane, and were it not for the company of their shaggy collies the lunacy among them would rise to an almost incredible percentage, if we are to believe those who have followed the sheep in the desert and therefore may be supposed to know.

Once in old Santa Fe, N. M., I met a man who for twelve years had followed the sheep. His work was done. All day long he sat in a chair in the rear of a little dobe store, crouched over, gibbering to himself, bleating—an idiot. He still saw his sheep swaying like a great white wave among the sagebrush, and ever in his ears sounded the killing monotone of their bleats. One boy, though fifteen years of age, is mentally no further advanced than the average child of five. His father is a shepherd, his mother died when he was four years old, and his father took him out upon the range. All his life has been spent among the sheep. He is one with them today.

How is it possible, then, you ask, that men are to be found willing to watch them? It is very easy. Sheep herding is a lazy job at best, and the "greaser" is the laziest creature on earth. For $20 a month he is willing to sit in the sand and listen to the never ending bleating until the little mind he has gives way and they fetch him in from the range insane. He is glad to take the chance for $20 a month.

The greaser is not the only shepherd in the west. On the vast ranges of Nevada and Wyoming you may run across an occasional college man tending the sheep. Once, indeed, a college professor, ill of consumption, undertook to follow 5,000 bleaters for the summer. In autumn they found him insane, on his hands and knees among the sheep, bleating with them. Day after day his eyes behold only a brilliant turquoise sky, in which hangs a sun of brass; an ocean sweep of sage flecked sand and a slowly moving, compact mass of sheep. His ears hear no sound save the steady "Baa, baa!" day and night, affecting him as the Chinese criminal of ancient days was affected by the regular tap, tap of a hidden drum.

And yet so long as the desert continues to provide food for the "bleaters" so long will shepherds go mad among the flocks, and for ten years the desert's greatest value to man has been the food it has offered the sheep, nor yet is the store depleted.—Pilgrim.

An Arabian Legend.

The Arabians had a tradition that when the devil started forth from his own place to the garden of Eden he was too lazy to walk and begged all the animals, one after another, to carry him. All refused except the serpent, which was then a quadruped and the most beautiful of all beasts. Yielding to the entreaties of Satan, the serpent took up the devil on its back and carried him the rest of the way, no one knows how far, and after the consequences of the devil's entry into the garden became apparent the angels were commanded to look up the serpent and punish it, so Michael cut off its legs, and it was doomed henceforth to travel about as best it could flat on the ground.

THE FIRST STATE BANK, OF

THIEF RIVER FALLS, WILL LOAN YOU THE

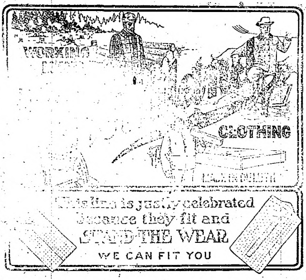
Money To Make Your Second Payment, or to make your final proof. Give us a call, as we give the best rates

On Farm Loans.

Stadquou Singer, Edward Singer,

SINGER BROS.

Dealers In,



Groceries, flour & feed.

Dry Goods, Boots & Shoes.

HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR FARM PRODUCE

Rhoda, Minn.

NEW STORE,

AT ANTON MINNESOTA.

Dry Goods, Goceries, Flour & feed.

Fine & Heavy Shoes of best quality.

EXCLUSIVE AGENTS FOR THE CELEBRATED DE LAVAL CREAM SEPERATOR, IN THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

Any Kind Of Stock Taken In Exchange For Goods.

Give me a call.

Located at Anton post office, on the Red Lake River, Eigh miles east of Thief River Falls.

Christ Larson, Proprietor.

The Captain of Thirteen

By JOHN AUSTIN SCHETTY

It was politics, purely! That is to say, Williams figured it out that Penfield was backed by political influence in his fight for the captaincy of Thirteen.

You see, Thirteen was an important station down in the heart of the city. There was a certain prestige attached to the captaincy there that any man in the service might envy. Williams had won his place by hard work and a record as a fire fighter second to none.

Penfield, on the other hand, was a comparatively new man. His house, Twenty-five, was a suburban station, situated in that part of the city where the streets ran into lanes and fields.

And then came the memorable fire at the old arsenal. It was a wild night in January and about 11, when the gong sent Williams and his men tearing into the night.

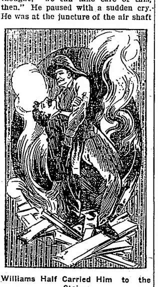
The wind was blowing a perfect gale, which whipped the flames to their task of destruction as though the arsenal were built of wood, instead of brick and stone.

Williams, in obedience to orders, had old Thirteen hauled over to protect the nearby hotel. Then, while the others fixed her up to the hydrant, he himself went into the place.

Stepping into the elevator he went up and made a brief tour of several of the higher floors.

"I've a mind to clear the place myself," he thought, dubiously. But first he determined to go to the top floor, 15 stories above the street. Here he found a staircase to the roof. Clambering out he traversed the broad, level space, and found it covered with embers that glowed as they came down upon it in a continual shower.

"I'll get a hose up here, anyway," he thought; "we can take care of this, then." He paused with a sudden cry. He was at the juncture of the air shaft with the elevator shaft, when a single spark rose up wavering like a glowing star and drifted off into the night. It was going up! Not coming down!



Williams Half Carried Him to the Stairs.

With a bound, Williams was on his feet and tearing across the roof and through the scuttle hole. Down to the end of the corridor he dashed. A man dressed in a bath robe emerged from a room on the corridor and stood gazing at him in wonder.

"Get into your clothes there, you!" he cried, harshly, "and get out of this floor quicker than lightning. This place is on fire!"

The man's eyes widened in sudden-comprehension, and with a yell of dismay he disappeared. The next moment Williams was in the elevator.

"Down!" he cried, "as fast as you know how! Get every one out of these floors as fast as you can, do you hear? This place is on fire! There's not a minute to lose!"

The operator's face blanched; he yanked the rope, and they went down like the wind. The captain was out like a flash, and, tearing through a side entrance, got to his crew in the street.

"Here, you fellows! Get that hose! Quick! Smith and Stevens, there's men and women on all those floors up there! Get them out, or we will have a hundred funerals on our hands."

The shafts were burning fiercely in unison, sending down sparks in plenty now.

"We must make a break for those upper floors,' said Williams; "there's people up there, I'm sure—in bed, some of 'em. They'll be cut of misery soon with that smoke; but there's just a chance for some of them if we hustle. Stay here for the present. I'm going up! Keep the water on the stairs!"

The next instant a stream of water shot trembling up to meet the flame above. There was a hiss and a resounding crash of glass, which came down in a hot rain upon the helmets of the men.

Meanwhile the captain had made his way to the upper stories. The murk and smoke were stifling, and presently the man fell over a heap of recumbent forms that lay huddled on the floor. None of them moved at the rude contact. There were half a dozen of them, and instinct told him they were dead! They had fallen, choked and stifled, almost at the threshold of safety in a wild rush for life. With clenched hands and burning eyes, the captain pushed on through the selfsame corridors he had trod in safety a few moments before. The fire had entered the rooms near the shaft, but the others were still safe, except for the smoke.

He could see the gas burning in some of them. A figure, head swathed in a wet towel, suddenly staggered toward him with a choking cry.

"Get me—get me—out of this!" it gasped, half articulately. "I—I—" Williams seized the man quickly, and half carried him to the stairs. When he got to safety more men were staggering up with hose. Murphy, the battalion chief, came up with a man whom Williams had never seen before.

"Penfield," he was saying, "you help Williams here. Get your men with a stream on that wall. Some dead, you say, captain?"

The latter hardly heard him. Instead, he was looking at Penfield. The eyes of the two men met for a moment in a sudden flash of mutual dislike, then Williams answered:

"There's at least six of them up there! No telling how many there may be higher up!"

Down below all was wild commotion now. Cries of women and hoarse shouts of men in a sudden panic came up in a medley of sound to where the firefighters stood. The guests, alive now to their danger, crowded hallways and stairways, while the elevator shot up and down until its top blazed into sudden flame, when it went down and stayed there. Police and firemen in the corridors sought to save the panic-stricken ones from themselves. Penfield hurrying away with his men, took one side of the shaft, Williams the other.

Williams, by a roundabout way, worked up to the next floor toward the street. Rooms were open, but no sign of life came from them. He was coming back, when he stumbled into some one who was feeling his way rather blindly. It was Penfield, and he carried an ax in one hand. As he saw Williams his face went into a scowl.

"You're the captain of Thirteen, aren't you?" he demanded.

"What of it?" tartly replied the captain.

"Don't talk to me, that's all!" sputtered the other, in causeless wrath.

"That's easy!" said Williams, "life's too short!"

"Oh, be d—d to you!" cried Penfield savagely, stumbling past him toward the glare.

At that moment something went wrong with the other hose. The men below yelled, and one of them started down to investigate. Penfield was nowhere in sight. In the few moments of inaction that followed, the flames on that side took a new lease of life, and with hiss and crackle leaped anew to their task of destruction. It was then Penfield suddenly appeared at a window in dangerous proximity to the flames. He leaned out into the shaft, and swore when he saw the predicament of his men.

There was a sudden tear and crack! Williams looked up, saw that the heavy elevator tackle had burned from its fastenings, and was coming down with all the impetus of its 15 stories' drop! Penfield, unheeding, choked with anger, leaned out farther.

"Look-out, men!" cried Williams. The men with one impulse drew back as the thing came down like a whirlwind, and fell, a tangled mass of cable and chain, far below. Penfield had disappeared! For a second every one gazed at the window in dismay.

"Did it take him down with it?" asked Hickey, voicing the fears of the rest.

"No!" cried Williams, in sudden comprehension, "but it's knocked him on the head into kingdom come! He's lying in that room, I'll bet! And that fire will be at him in a minute!" The others stood appalled. There was no way to get across that yawning space. To seek a way through the rooms would take too much time.

"Keep your stream over near that window," commanded the captain, suddenly. "Here, give me one, of those ladders!" Then they fathomed his purpose as he sought to lay it from window to window. It just measured the distance.

Another moment, and he was on it, crawling on hands and knees to the rescue of the man who had reviled him but a few moments before. He got to the window and stepped inside. His foot touched something soft. It was Penfield! The floor was hot beneath him.

Williams saw that he would have to carry him, and promptly set about it. By herculean effort, of which he was little conscious in the excitement of the moment, he got the wounded man on his back with his arms about his neck. Then slowly he clambered on to the ladder.

It was only a space of ten feet, but it seemed an infinite time before it was nearly covered. The rungs of the ladder cut into the rescuer's knees as he slowly worked his way over, but he held on like grim death until the others reaching him, drew Penfield in to safety. The chief himself came upon the scene just as this was accomplished.

"Your old tricks, captain," he said. "I hope he won't forget it."

When Penfield came to his senses and found what his rival had done, he had manhood enough to resign all further attempt to become captain of Thirteen.

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

For the Polished Floor.

Polished floors have come to stay. They are too hygienic, too easily cared for and too economical to be dispensed with now that we have learned it is possible to live without dust-raising, moth-catching and germ-spreading carpets.

The first thing in doing up one of these soft wood floors—hard wood should always be treated professionally—is to see that it is perfectly smooth and clean.

If it has already been painted or varnished remove the stains with strong liquid ammonia and a thorough scraping.

The floor should be rubbed smooth with steel wool, dipped in a bucket of warm water in which soapine has been dissolved. Do a board at a time. This will cut all grease and dirt. When the floor has been gone over remove the dust, and if there are any cracks fill them with putty. The floor is now ready for the filler. This may be purchased from any paintshop or department store, all ready to apply. It may have a little color mixed in it, or some of the stain, to imitate any wood desired, may be used.

Put on carefully with a flat brush, or a piece of cloth, working with the grain of the wood, and doing a board at a time.

When the floor is finished close the room for at least twenty-four hours—the longer it stands the better. At the end of that time pin a piece of carpet to a long-handled, weighted brush, and rub one or two boards at a time, till they are smooth and shiny.

If you do not use a weighted brush, a heavy iron covered with carpet or cloth makes a good but somewhat back-breaking polisher.

A second coat of filler and a second polishing will improve the appearance.

The floor may now be polished with boiled linseed oil and one-third turpentine. Rub the mixture in well with a cloth, and let it stand an hour or so to dry. Then polish with the weighted brush or iron.

In keeping a stained floor clean never use water on it. Remove all dust and rub in crude petroleum, giving it an extra rub after it has dried.

OF AID TO HOSTESS

SUGGESTIONS FOR NOVEL AND PLEASING ENTERTAINMENTS.

Much Amusement in a Watermelon Party—An Evening with Celebrities—Interesting to Prospective Brides.

Just as long as hot weather continues 'watermelon parties" will be one of the favorite methods of entertaining. The delicious fruit must be kept on ice at least 24 hours before serving, then cut it in fancy shapes and place on large platters. Have colored waiters dressed like real old-time plantation darkies, with a banjo or two; they will provide just the kind of entertainment for a party of this description. Of course their star song must be "Den, O Dat Watermelon." Ask each guest to count the seeds in their portion, the one obtaining the largest number to receive a prize; there must also be a souvenir for the person having the smallest number. For the latter take a small melon, cut off the top and scoop out the fruit, line with tin foil or wax paper and fill with bon-bons, then tie the top back on with pink and green ribbon. Fill tiny bottles with extract of peppermint, tie the corks in with narrow pink and green ribbon and put one at each place for a souvenir.

An Evening with Celebrities.

For this affair the hostess had saved pictures of famous people and mounted them on colored cardboard, then they were pinned on the wall and put in conspicuous places throughout the rooms. Each one bore a number which was duplicated in the catalogue which was handed to the guests as they entered the rooms. A very interesting time followed. There were some 30 pictures in the "Gallery," among them "Longfellow," "Queen Wilhelmina," "Alexandra of England," "Susan B. Anthony," "Mrs. Potter Palmer," etc. After the allotted time the correct list was read and prizes awarded for the best and poorest lists. When the refreshments were served, partners were found by piecing out the sections of "Mother Goose" rhymes.

For Prospective Brides.

The following information will doubtless be acceptable to many of our readers, others may like to cut it out for "future use." What the color of one's weding gown signifies:

Married in gray, you will go far away.
Married in black, you will wish yourself back;
Married in brown, you will live out of town.
Married in red, you will wish yourself dead.
Married in pearl, you will live in a whirl;
Married in green, ashamed to be seen.
Married in yellow, ashamed of your fellow;
Married in blue, he will always be true.
Married in pink, your spirits will sink;
Married in white, you have chosen aright.

Having selected the color of the wedding gown, next comes the choice of the all important day and again ancient lore comes to the front with this jingle:

Monday for health,
Tuesday for wealth,
Wednesday the best day of all;
Thursday for losses,
Friday for crosses,
Saturday no luck at all.

However, in spite of the dire fatality attached to "Saturday," modern brides have thrown superstition to the winds and it has become the most fashionable day for weddings, especially since the president's daughter chose it to wed the man of her choice.

Books for Children.

A correspondent asks: "Would it be out of Madame Merri's province to give me a list of books for children from ten years of age and older? I live in a country town and at the little library the books are not very up-to-date. I would like something instructive to read aloud.—"Rural."

Here is a list which has been passed on by a youthful reader and I gladly submit it to the department readers:

"Overhead, or What Harry and Nellie Saw in the Heavens," by Annie Moore and Laura D. Nichols.

"Underfoot" Sequel to "Overhead."

"Three Greek Children."—Alfred Church.

"Fairy Tales of Ireland."—Eytinge.

"Ungara, Tale of Esquimaux Life." —R. M. Ballantyne.

"Boy Travelers in the Far East."—Knox.

"Our Young Folks Abroad."—McCabe.

"Our Christmas in a Palace."—E. E. Hale.

"Girls Who Became Famous."—S. K. Bolton.

"Boys of Other Countries."—Taylor.

MADAME MERRI.

Latest Fashion Frills to Attain Popularity.

Attractive Striped Designs in Waist Flannels—Buttons of Carved Ivory and Tortois Shell—Cushion Embroidery.

One of the beautiful long motor veils is a useful thing for covering the havoc wrought in summer hats by sun and dust. Street hats are prone to shabbiness at this time of the year, but a delicate hued veil of silk mousseline gauze or chiffon, swathing the hat and with ends drawn forward over the shoulders or, in French fashion, falling down the back, will make the old hat last until the season is quite ended.

Buttons of carved ivory and of tortoise shell are particularly popular in Paris.

Many attractive striped designs are offered in waist flannels, the color scheme often including many colors but blending them into inconspicuous harmony.

Radiate is the latest variation upon radium silk.

Heavy cushion embroidery will be much used upon winter frocks.

Black silk laces are acquiring unprecedented prestige.

PLEA TO THE MOON

REAL MEANING OF THE PLACING OF A HORSESHOE.

Origin of Superstition Can Be Traced to That Source—For Protection Against Troublesome Evils.

There is a right way and a wrong in the picking up of a horseshoe. I was walking along with a country-bred boy along a Somerset lane and saw one lying in the crumbling summer rut. "There is a horesshoe," said I. The lad sprang forward, but stopped suddenly before his fingers touched the iron. "But I won't pick it up," said he, "or I shall spoil your luck." It may perhaps have been only a point of etiquette, but he assured me that a horseshoe of my finding could bring luck neither to him nor to me if he touched it before me.

The origin of this superstition, now lingering chiefly as a saying and a jest, is perhaps earlier than the horseshoe, and has nothing whatever to do with it. It was from the influence of the new moon that good was to be expected, and still there are some who turn the money in their pockets when they first see her in the sky. The early horseshoe was a simple crescent, and the superstition has lingered around an object that at first was only a convenient symbol.

It was to the protection of some moon goddess, therefore, that the householder first trusted when he kept the witch out of his dwelling by hanging a horseshoe on the door. Neither spell nor malignant wish, nor the power of the evil eye could cross the threshold in the presence of her symbol. Even the pixies, who brought a certain whimsical merriment into their practical joking, were no good in the face of that. Cheated out of their nocturnal rides they might as well retire underground at once if a horseshoe barred their entry to the stable.

For these troublesome elves, in days gone by, had a way of working the cattle by night for their own amusement, and when the good man came in the morning he found the poor beasts "all terrified like, an' out in a lather o' sweat." And they had even a worse trick than this. They would get at the good wife's vat and wantonly spoil the brew. To prevent this she drew with her finger two hearts, and a crisscross upon the mash, and thus the beer was saved. Whether crescent or cross, no matter. The pixies would slink away abashed by the sign of it.

To this day there are horseshoes on the doors of many cottages in quiet villages. Doubtless the cottagers do but put them up for a whim, or in the same half-jocular, half-serious spirit, yet with a secret satisfaction, too, in which so many of us perform obsolete practices "just for luck." And why not I, who find a secret delight in its forgotten significance?

It was rusty, with a crooked horse nail still hanging in one of the holes. There are some who think there is virtue in the rust. But that is nonsense. I polished mine until it was bright as the silver moon, and, indeed, might almost be mistaken for the medal sacred to Diana. There is a right way and a wrong in putting up the horseshoe on your door. One thing is thoroughly established; if you turn it upside down, it cannot hold your luck.

And where ought it to be placed? The old world folk often nailed it on the threshold. The growing moon has her horns always toward the left, and only on the wane does he point them to the right. I would have this a true crescent, waxing every day.—London Standard.

Only One Tarpon Left.

Of the two tarpon taken, one on July 27 last and the other on July 28, in nets in Sandy Hook bay, and brought thence to the New York aquarium, one still survives in captivity, the other, which was the one last taken, having died on August 5.

The dead fish was five feet long and weighed 60 pounds. The surviving tarpon, a beautiful specimen about four feet and a half in length, is now feeding and is apparently in good condition.

It may, after the manner of its kind, be found lying quietly in the water, but it is active, as is shown when it turns up its silver sides in making for the food thrown into the water for it. And it may be seen swimming around, sometimes following, seemingly, the eight foot sturgeon that is one of its companions in the great central pool, the big sturgeon seeming then to speed up a little, as if to evade the tarpon's pursuit.

Egypt's Landholders.

There are an enormous number of small landholders in Egypt, 5,000,000 acres being cultivated by over 1,000,000 landowners, of whom 6,000 are Europeans, owning, on an average, a little over 100 acres. Nine hundred and forty peasants hold under five acres each, or 23 per cent. of the whole cultivated land; while 12,000 men of means have holdings above 50 acres, their total being over 2,250,000 acres, or 44 per cent. of the whole; proprietors of between five and 20 acres having 21 per cent.

Parrot Fond of Music.

The parrot appreciates music more than any other of the lower creatures.

A KENTUCKY WOMAN

How She Gained Fifteen Pounds in Weight and Became Well by Taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Women at forty, or thereabouts, have their future in their own hands. There will be a change for the better or worse, for the better if the system is purified by such a tonic as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mrs. D. C. Wedding, of Hartford, Ky., writes as follows concerning the difficulties which afflicted her:

"I was seriously ill and was confined to my bed for six or eight months in all, during two years. I had chills, fever, rheumatism. My stomach seemed always too full, my kidneys did not act freely, my liver was inactive, my heart beat was very weak and I had dizziness or swimming in my head and nervous troubles.

"I was under the treatment of several different physicians but they all failed to do me any good. After suffering for two years I learned from an Arkansas friend about the merits of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I decided that I would try them. The very first box I took made me feel better and when I had taken four boxes more I was entirely well, weighed fifteen pounds more than when I began, resumed my household duties, and have since continued in the best of health. I have recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to many people on account of what they did for me, and I feel that I cannot praise them too strongly."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills restored Mrs. Wedding to health because they actually make new blood and when the blood is in full vigor every function of the body is restored, because the blood carries to every organ, every muscle, every nerve, the necessary nourishment. Any woman who is interested in the cure of Mrs. Wedding will want our book, "Plain Talks to Women," which is free on request.

All druggists sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, or they will be sent by mail postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N.Y.

A Positive CURE
Ely's Cream Balm
is quickly absorbed.
Gives Relief at Once.

CATARRH

ELY'S CREAM BALM CURES COLD IN HEAD CATARRH ROSE-COLD HAY-FEVER DEAFNESS HEADACHE ELY BROS. NEW YORK

It cleanses, soothes heals and protects the diseased membrane. It cures Catarrh and drives away a Cold in the Head quickly. Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. Full size 50 cts., at Druggists or by mail; Trial Size 10 cts. by mail.

HAY FEVER

Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

SICK HEADACHE

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively cured by these Little Pills.

They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.

SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

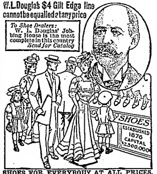
Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature

Brent Good

REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

W. L. DOUGLAS
$3.50 & $3.00 Shoes
BEST IN THE WORLD
W. L. Douglas $4 Gilt Edge line cannot be equalled at any price

To Shoe Dealers: W. L. Douglas' Jobbing House is the most complete in this country Send for Catalog



SHOES FOR EVERYBODY AT ALL PRICES.
Men's Shoes, $5 to $1.50. Boys' Shoes, $3 to $1.25. Women's Shoes, $4.00 to $1.50. Misses' & Children's Shoes, $2.25 to $1.00.
Try W. L. Douglas Women's, Misses and Children's shoes; for style, fit and wear they excel other makes.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer, and are of greater value than any other make.

Wherever you live, you can obtain W. L. Douglas shoes. His name and price is stamped on the bottom, which protects you against high prices and inferior shoes. Take no substitute. Ask your dealer for W. L. Douglas shoes and insist upon having them.

Fast Color Eyelets used; they will not wear brassy.

Write for Illustrated Catalog of Fall Styles.

W. L. DOUGLAS, Dept. 12, Brockton, Mass.

POULTRYMEN!

Do you want strong, healthy chicks?
Then mix with your feed

SHERIDAN'S CONDITION POWDER

The original medicine to make hens lay. Causes perfect assimilation of food, keeps poultry healthy, and increases egg production in fall and winter when prices are high. One pack, 25c.; five, $1; two-lb. can, $1.20; six, $5.00. Express paid. At all dealers.

I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

$25,000.00 FOR AGENTS. Pleasant work among your friends, frequent sales, large commissions, and big prizes for all. Address Dept. 15 X, 11 E. 24th St., N. Y. City.

IF YOU WANT to EARN MONEY

here is your chance. We offer $25,000 in CASH PRIZES for those who secure subscription for the two greatest magazine clubbing offers of the season, Success and Woman's Home Companion, each for a full year, $1 65; Success, Woman's Home Companion and Review of Reviews, $3.00. Prizes are in addition to a liberal commission on each order. These clubs almost sell themselves. Some earn $100 a week, many as much as $50. Can use all your time or a part of it. Write to-day for particulars, before your territory is taken, to SUCCESS MAGAZINE, 32 Washington Sq. E., New York City.

LUMBAGO AND SCIATICA

ST. JACOBS OIL

Penetrates to the Spot
Right on the dot.

Price 25c and 50c

Poacher Had Nerve.

Robert Jones, a Liverpool surgeon, tells of a patient who was an old poacher and who, while under the influence of cocaine during an operation upon the bones of a leg, regaled the surgeon with tales of his poaching exploits.

CURED OF GRAVEL.

Not a Single Stone Has Formed Since Using Doan's Kidney Pills.

J. D. Daughtrey, music publisher, of Suffolk, Va., says: "During two or three years that I had kidney trouble I passed about 2½ pounds of gravel and sandy sediment in the urine. I haven't passed a stone since using Doan's Kidney Pills, however, and that was three years ago. I used to suffer the most acute agony during a gravel attack, and had the other usual symptoms of kidney trouble—lassitude, headache, pain in the back, urinary disorders, rheumatic pain, etc. I have a box containing 14 gravel stones that I passed, but that is not one-quarter of the whole number. I consider Doan's Kidney Pills a fine kidney tonic."

Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Duse Refuses Jubilee.

Eleanor Duse, the famous Italian actress, has positively vetoed a plan to celebrate her jubilee as was done in England and France for Ellen Terry and Bernhardt. When the subject was broached to the signora she thanked her friends but declined the honor. She enjoys the distinction—almost unique in her profession—of shunning everything in the shape of publicity. As a general rule she also scorns the usual artifices of her sex on the stage in the matter of paint and powder, appearing almost as nature made her, rapidly graying hair and all.

BEES CLOSED A MINE.

Swarmed in Millions and Men Were Unable to Work.

There are instances in great number where mining operations were temporarily suspended by a shortage of funds or by water flooding the property, but it remained for Mohawk, a small station along the Southern Pacific, to furnish a new cause which is unique in the history of mining. The company affected owns the Red Cross mines in the Mohawk mountains.

Millions of bees, attracted by the water at these mines and forced from their hives in the mountains by the drought, took possession of the water supply, and their numbers were so great that it was found impossible to drive the swarms away. Consequently the mines have been shut down until the rainy season sets in, when it is hoped the bees will return to their mountain homes.—Sacramento Bee.

RIGHT HOME.

Doctor Recommends Postum from Personal Test.

No one is better able to realize the injurious action of caffeine—the drug in coffee—on the heart, than the doctor.

When the doctor himself has been relieved by simply leaving off coffee and using Postum, he can refer with full conviction to his own case.

A Mo. physician prescribes Postum for many of his patients because he was benefited by it. He says:

"I wish to add my testimony in regard to that excellent preparation—Postum. I have had functional or nervous heart trouble for over 15 years, and part of the time was unable to attend to my business.

"I was a moderate user of coffee and did not think drinking it hurt me. But on stopping it and using Postum instead, my heart has got all right, and I ascribe it to the change from coffee to Postum.

"I am prescribing it now in cases of sickness, especially when coffee does not agree, or affects the heart, nerves or stomach.

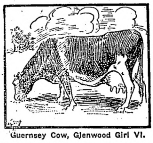
"When made right it has a much better flavor than coffee, and is a vital sustainer of the system. I shall continue to recommend it to our people, and I have my own case to refer to." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

A COW WITH A RECORD.

Noted Member of the Guernsey Family Which Has Numerous Progeny.

Glenwood Girl VI. belongs to one of the noted Guernsey families. Her mother, Glenwood Girl, was imported in her dam in 1883 and has given birth to seven daughters and four bulls. All of Glenwood Girl's daughters are alive except Glenwood Girl II., which had to be killed on account of an injury.

In every dairy herd there is usually some cow that is a great deal better than all the rest, one that is capable of producing large yields of milk and fat, and at the same time gives birth to many strong and large producing animals. The science of breeding lies in the judicious use that is made of the best blood in the herd. In order to obtain the best results, records must be kept of not only the amount of product yielded, but a breeding record, which should show the strong characteristics of the animal, as well as the weak.



Guernsey Cow, Glenwood Girl VI.

Glenwood Girl VI. is considered one of the best individuals of this family and her heifers are making good records and her bulls are producing some very fine stock. These facts all show that Glenwood Girl was a very prepotent animal and that she has transmitted to her daughters and bulls the same good trait.

Glenwood Girl VI. has a yearly record of 12,184 pounds of milk; average test, 4.69 per cent., and 572 pounds of fat, equivalent to 687 pounds of butter.

FARM SEPARATOR CREAM.

Can Be Delivered in Good Order by Proper Care.

The chief difficulty in the way of success in all creameries where the cream is collected instead of the milk is the difficulty of getting the cream delivery in a sweet, clean flavored condition. Patrons who deliver milk know that it must be delivered sweet daily, or at least six times a week in warm weather, in order to have it in a condition fit to make fine butter. On the other hand, cream will remain sweet for a longer time than milk, and most persons consider that it does no harm if the cream sours—in fact, it pays better to have it sour, because they receive a higher test for such cream from those creameries using the oil test. This is the chief reason why the oil test should be discarded in favor of the Babcock, which latter test places a premium on sweet cream.

In order to get sweet cream for creameries the two main requisites are to keep everything clean and to keep the cream as cold as possible until it is delivered at the creamery. The first requisite should be easy, but many persons fail here for the same reason that an old bachelor failed in getting good results in his cooking by following recipes in cookbooks. When some one asked him if he had ever tried any of the recipes for cooking, he said he had tried a good many of them, but never had good results. When asked why, he said they all began in the same way, "take a clean dish," and he couldn't do that very handily, consequently he gave up referring to cookbooks. The second requisite is gotten by having on hand a supply of ice or cold water. Ordinarily each and every patron ought to have a supply of ice for cooling cream. The subject may be summarized in the following, as presented by Prof. Dean in the Canadian Dairyman:

First—Clean the pails, cans and separator daily or twice daily.

Second—Cool cream to 50 degrees by the use of ice or cold water.

Third—Have rich cream testing not less than 25 to 35 per cent. fat.

Fourth—Fresh cream should not be added to older cream until after it is cooled to 50 degrees.

Fifth—Deliver daily or at least four times a week in warm weather. The cream can or tanks should be protected from sun, rain and dust while on the wagons.

Sixth—Proper weighing, measuring and sampling are essential for satisfaction among the patrons.

Seventh—Cream should be pasteurized and cooled at the creamery, especially in the fall and winter to remove objectionable flavors and to add keeping quality to the butter.

Eighth—Cooperation on the part of the drivers, patrons and creamerymen is necessary in order to improve the quality of the cream and butter.

Freak Ear of Corn.

A freak ear of corn is reported from Shelbyville, Ind. It is composed of about 200 small ears, each the size of a lead pencil.

The dairy cow is a great factor in every civilized country.

STILL ROOM FOR IMPROVEMENT

American Farmer Learning to Do Profitable Dairying.

In a recent conversation with the writer, Prof. Fraser said that the American farmer has not learned how to make the most out of his land and has not yet acquired the ability to make as much out of his cows as some of the European dairymen do. He declares that it is easily possible for the American cow owner to make twice as much milk and cream out of it as the average cow makes. This is a fourfold increase of the returns from an acre of land.

There is no doubt that the professor is right and that we can accomplish four times as much as we are doing now and with the same general expenditure. This is a remarkable statement, but it is one easy to prove. The average cow is a poor specimen of the bovine race, making less than 150 pounds of butter in a year. It is not a great stretch of the imagination to see every cow giving milk enough to produce at least 300 pounds of butter per year, or all cows giving enough to bring the average up to that point.

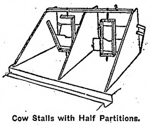
On the other hand, it is not an extravagant thing to believe that the time is coming when the average acre of land will produce twice as much forage as at the present time. In this country we have had such a superabundance of land that we have fallen into the habit of using it wastefully. Some of the pastures are in the condition in which they were when the timber was cut off. The soil has never been turned, and the wild grasses are the only ones to be found. It takes a good many acres of such land to support a cow, especially in a dry summer, such as this has been in some sections devoted to dairying.

It will require many years yet to awake our cow owners to the real conditions as they exist and to compare them with the conditions that may exist. Could we drop some of these cow owners down into the fields of Holland or Denmark, the impression might be sooner made. To do profitable dairying requires a weeding out process in our methods. The method that has been followed for two centuries of pasturing cows on any kind of pasture nature may give us should be abandoned. The old natural pasture does not produce enough feed even when it it is not overstocked, and it is frequently so badly overstocked that it will not produce as much as it might.

A HALF STALL FOR COWS.

Arrangement Which Some Dairymen Prefer to Old-Style Stalls.

Where a dairyman desires to use a cow's stall with stanchion and a half partition, the accompanying illustration will furnish a suggestion that may be valuable. Some have complained of the danger of cows stepping on each other with the half partition, but such accidents occur in exceptional cases only. The standing room for the cow varies according to the size of the animal, says Prairie Farmer, but there should be sufficient space so that the cow will not be obliged to step back into the gutter, and at the same time have space limited so that the droppings will readily fall into the gutter. For medium to large cows about five and one-half feet from the standing space is recommended.



Cow Stalls with Half Partitions.

SKIMMINGS.

American farmers should feed more bran.

The hand separator is now very popular and profitable.

Alfalfa will greatly change the cost of milk production.

If a man would have a first-class herd of cows he should raise them himself.

The pioneer always finds the cow a great help in obtaining food in an unsettled country.

A cow should not always be judged by what she is doing, but by what she might do if given a proper chance.

The average of our cows is too low in quality. We can improve it by continually disposing of the poorest.

Many a calf that would make a valuable cow is sent to the butcher because the owner could sell his milk at a good price.

Growth of Dairying.

The growth of dairying in all the civilized nations of the world during the past 25 years has been very great. The increase of population in the nations has made it desirable to produce concentrated foods that will keep for a long time. Dairy products in some of their forms can be kept for a long time, and up to a certain limit the keeping improves their digestibility. The development of dairying has been largely in the countries having a temperate climate, but the industry is gradually working toward the torrid regions. In the latter localities the problems connected with the keeping of milk are greater than in the colder localities, but the problems of feeding are fewer. The south will yet engage largely in dairying.

Dresses, Cloaks, Ribbons, Suits, etc., can be made to look like new with PUTNAM FADELESS DYES. No muss.

And no man realizes what a valuable asset a wife is until he has occasion to put his property in her name.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Chinese Send Much Money Home.

It is calculated that Chinese living and working in other countries now send home not less than $50,000,000 annually.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by his firm.

WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN,
Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75 cents per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Scorpions Cause Disaster.

Scorpions were to a great extent responsible for the recent bursting of the Kamalapuram tank in India.

There had been very heavy rains, but when an attempt was made to preserve the bank of the tank scorpions issued from crevices in the earthwork in such numbers that the attempt had to be abandoned. Over 30 laborers were stung.—Shanghai Mercury.

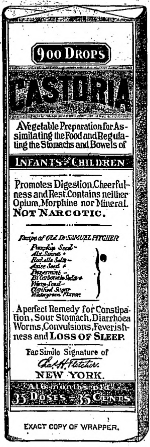
BABY'S TORTURING HUMOR.

Ears Looked as If They Would Drop Off—Face Mass of Sores—Cured by Cuticura in Two Weeks for 75c.

"I feel it my duty to parents of other poor suffering babies to tell you what Cuticura has done for my little daughter. She broke out all over her body with a humor, and we used everything recommended, but without results. I called in three doctors, they all claimed they could help her, but she continued to grow worse. Her body was a mass of sores, and her little face was being eaten away; her ears looked as if they would drop off. Neighbors advised me to get Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and before I had used half of the cake of Soap and box of Ointment the sores had all healed, and my little one's face and body were as clear as a new-born babe's. I would not be without it again if it cost five dollars, instead of seventy-five cents. Mrs. George J. Steese, 701 Colburn St., Akron, Ohio."

Aunt Mary's "Quiet" Funeral.

A dear old New England spinster, the embodiment of the timid and shrinking, passed away at Carlsbad, where she had gone for her health. Her nearest kinsman, a nephew, ordered the body sent back to be buried—as was her last wish—in the quiet little country churchyard. His surprise can be imagined, when, on opening the casket, he beheld, instead of the placid features of his Aunt Mary, the majestic port of an English general in full regimentals, whom he remembered had chanced to die at the same time and place as his aunt. At once he cabled to the general's heirs, explaining the situation and requesting instructions. They came back as follows: "Give the general quiet funeral. Aunt Mary interred to-day with full military honors, six brass bands, saluting guns."



900 DROPS
CASTORIA
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS & CHILDREN
Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC.
Recipe of Old Dr SAMUEL PITCHER
Pumpkin Seed
Alx. Senna
Rochelle Salts
Anise Seed
Peppermint
Bi Carbonate Soda
Worm Seed
Clarified Sugar
Wintergreen Flavor
A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.
Fac Simile Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
NEW YORK.
At 6 months old
35 DOSES – 35 CENTS
EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
In Use For Over Thirty Years
CASTORIA
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

How to Save DOLLARS in Cooking and Heating

It has cost many stove users HUNDREDS OF WASTED DOLLARS to find this out.

Cut out this Coupon and mail to us and we will solve this problem for you. You will get all this information FREE.

GARLAND
STOVES
AND RANGES
"The World's Best"

Sold by Leading Dealers Everywhere

FREE INFORMATION COUPON
WRITE PLAINLY and only on ONE SIDE OF THE PAPER.
Address Manager Advice Department
THE MICHIGAN STOVE COMPANY, Detroit, Mich.
Largest Makers of Stoves and Ranges in the World.
A STOVE or RANGE to meet the wants of all—also a complete line Garland Gas Ranges.
No attention can be given to your letter unless this coupon, fully filled out, is attached.

43
Send me free of charge your Stove Book on
Cast Ranges
Steel Ranges
Cook Stoves
Gas Ranges
Base Burners
Heating Stoves
Oak Stoves
Gas Heaters
Also your Expert Stove Advice free of charge.
Indicate this way (X) the kind of stove or range wanted.
My stove dealer's name
My Name
Address
State

REAL ESTATE.

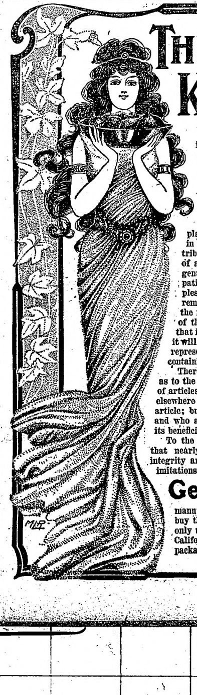
VIRGINIA FARMS 5 to 5,000 acres at $4 acre up. Catalog free; large map 10c. stamps. Southern Timber & Land Co., Inc., Petersburg, Va.

BOOKLET FREE telling about Texas farm lands, giving prices and products. Hundreds coming to Texas; send two cents postage. WILL H. EVANS CO., Bonham, Texas.

CREAMERY SCALES
ASK FOR CATALOG ST-171
FAIRBANKS, MORSE & CO., St. Paul, Minn.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

A. N. K.—G (1906—40) 2146.



THE LAXATIVE OF KNOWN QUALITY

There are two classes of remedies; those of known quality and which are permanently beneficial in effect, acting gently, in harmony with nature, when nature needs assistance; and another class, composed of preparations of unknown, uncertain and inferior character, acting temporarily, but injuriously, as a result of forcing the natural functions unnecessarily. One of the most exceptional of the remedies of known quality and excellence is the ever pleasant Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., which represents the active principles of plants, known to act most beneficially, in a pleasant syrup, in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to contribute their rich, yet delicate, fruity flavor. It is the remedy of all remedies to sweeten and refresh and cleanse the system gently and naturally, and to assist one in overcoming constipation and the many ills resulting therefrom. Its active principles and quality are known to physicians generally, and the remedy has therefore met with their approval, as well as with the favor of many millions of well informed persons who know of their own personal knowledge and from actual experience that it is a most excellent laxative remedy. We do not claim that it will cure all manner of ills, but recommend it for what it really represents, a laxative remedy of known quality and excellence, containing nothing of an objectionable or injurious character.

There are two classes of purchasers; those who are informed as to the quality of what they buy and the reasons for the excellence of articles of exceptional merit, and who do not lack courage to go elsewhere when a dealer offers an imitation of any well known article; but, unfortunately, there are some people who do not know, and who allow themselves to be imposed upon. They cannot expect its beneficial effects if they do not get the genuine remedy.

To the credit of the druggists of the United States be it said that nearly all of them value their reputation for professional integrity and the good will of their customers too highly to offer imitations of the manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., and in order to buy the genuine article and to get its beneficial effects, one has only to note, when purchasing, the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package. Price, 50c. per bottle. One size only.

Genuine—Syrup of Figs

"SAVED by a GIRL"

Once Again the Summer Girl Has Proved Herself a Real Heroine with a Remarkable List of Successful Deeds of Courageous Rescue.

Which is the braver—man or woman?

This is a question that nobody can answer, for the simple reason that it is impossible to tell to what degree of heroism either will go when occasion demands. A little girl of five, who under ordinary conditions would scream at the sight of a tiny flame, will dash through a conflagration to save the life of a baby brother who has fallen into the blaze.

A young woman daintily clad and afraid in her normal mood to go into the water without holding to the lifeline, will, forgetting self entirely, plunge into the stormy flood to rescue a drowning person as quickly as the trained life-saver.

Compared individually with members of the opposite sex, women today stand forth ahead, says the New York World. For instance, the summer girl and the summer man, classed together in ordinary affairs, are far apart when it comes to matters of heroism. It is the summer girl who shows "the real stuff" when it comes to a pinch.

All summer long there have been young women who have performed deeds of splendid daring. Many of them have not been reported in public print.

This attribute of bravery on the part of our women is not new. This summer's exhibitions of it are only new. And it is only meet that the story of some of them should be told again.

When young Earl Buckley fell from the pier into the sea at Island Heights, N. J., only Mrs. V. Floyd Campbell heard his cry. She screamed for help. Then, as she saw the lad rise and sink out of sight again, she plunged into the water. She was fully clothed and swam with difficulty. There was still enough life in the boy when she reached him and enough of desperate terror to make him very dangerous. He grabbed Mrs. Campbell, and with arms around her neck and legs twined about her body, clung with a death-grip.

Frantic Struggle for Life.

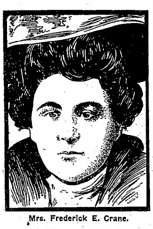
Then came a frantic struggle for life. She struck the boy in the face and tried to choke him. His weight and her heavy clothing bore them far under the surface. When they rose again she put forth all her strength to drag their weight nearer the shore, where the shallows would give her a foothold. Her efforts were successful and thus she brought the boy to land, and together they fell on the beach, exhausted.

At Lake Hopatcong Miss Edna Hartman saved the lives of four drowning persons on as many occasions. Miss Hartman is only 18 years old, very pretty and a splendid swimmer. Another heroine of Lake Hopatcong is Miss Effie Field, of Rutherford, N. J., who plunged into the water in her Sunday finery and rescued Walter Hutchinson, a 12-year-old boy, in the nick of time.

Mrs. Frederick G. Ware has just added another rescue to the 14 she has made in the nine years that she has lived near the canal at Ansonia, Conn. She has saved six boys, four girls, three women and two men from drowning. Her latest rescue, and one of the most difficult, was that of Mrs. Charles Cahill, who fell into the canal where the water is 12 feet deep. Mrs. Ware leaped in after her, fully dressed, and after a hard struggle in the presence of several men, who were too frightened to give aid, brought the unconscious woman to shore.

Saved Two from Death.

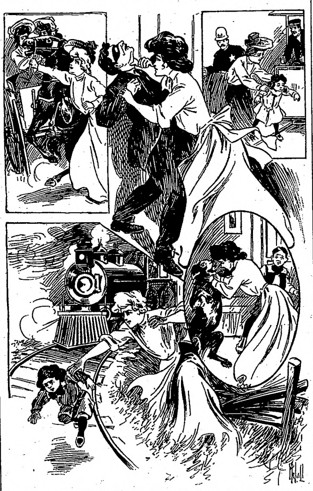
Then there was the brave rescue by Mrs. Frederick E. Crane, of Brooklyn, of her ten-year-old daughter and the latter's playmate, who together fell off a pier into deep water at Saybrook, N. J. She went in after them. Encumbered by her heavy clothing, she performed a great feat of physical prowess in bringing the two girls safely to land, where she herself sank exhausted from the shock and strain.



Mrs. Frederick E. Crane.

And not least among the water heroines is Miss Mamie Sheehan, of this city, who a few weeks ago plunged into the Navesink river and saved the life of James Edward Connolly, a retired merchant of Washington, and personal friend of President Roosevelt. Miss Sheehan swam a long distance to reach Mr. Connolly, who had fallen into the water from a canoe and could not swim. With consummate skill she brought him safely to land.

Miss Florence Bowen, a pretty Chelsea girl, saved the life of her six-year-old nephew when they were well out at sea. The little lad fell out of the boat in which the two were rowing and sank. When the child came to the surface he was some distance from the boat, and Miss Bowen saw there was not a moment to lose. She sprang into the water and swam to the youngster. She got a firm hold of him and piloted him back to the side of the boat.



Eleven-Year-Old Heroine.

And this brave deed was equaled, if not surpassed, by the achievement of little Mary Edick, age 11, granddaughter of United States Commissioner Shields, in saving the life of her playmate, Tommy Williams, age ten. It was in the Hudson river, off Grand View. Tommy had swam out into the river a long distance—much longer than he had ever attempted before—and then discovered, out there all alone, that his strength was failing. That discovery brought panic, and, with a scream for help, he sank. At first Mary, watching his pranks from the shore, thought he was still playing. When he rose to the surface only the back of his head showed, and again he disappeared. Instantly Mary dived from the pier and swam with all her strength toward the ripples. As Tommy came up she seized him by the hair. Holding him at arm's length and swimming, "sailor fashion," with the other hand, she made for the shore, crying for help. Mr. Edick heard her calls and helped her at the shore to take the unconscious boy from the water and to restore him to life.

The summer's deeds of the girl hero include the capture of many burglars. The record of her accomplishments in this line have made many a pretty story. The World Magazine has told how Mrs. Esther Evans, the plucky little janitress at the apartment house, No. 128 West Twenty-ninth street, has captured since June 29 seven burglars and turned them over to the police.

Seized and Held Burglar.

Then there was Mrs. Margaret Hayes, who found a man ransacking the rooms of a boarder at No. 907 East One Hundred and Sixty-fifth street. "What are you doing here?" she asked him. "I'm looking for a girl," he said. "What is that in your hand?" she asked, pointing to a gold watch. He dropped it and tried to push past Mrs. Hayes. Instantly she grabbed him by the throat. In the struggle the fellow dropped a "jimmy." Her calls brought aid, and the burglar was arrested.

But the interest always comes back most strongly to the woman who rushes voluntarily into danger to save the lives of others. Near Cedar Grove, N. J., a horse attached to a light runabout became frightened at a passing auto and dashed at high speed along the turnpike. In the carriage were two girls, and in her fright the one who was driving dropped the reins. The horse was on a dead run when it approached a field in which Miss Pauline Weiss was picking daisies. The two girls were clinging to each other and crying out in terror. Miss Weiss dropped her apron, half filled with flowers, vaulted over the four-rail fence and ran to the middle of the road. She seized the bridle of the horse as it got abreast of her, and held on, swaying back and forth and sawing on the bit, for more than a hundred yards.

Quite similar to this was the daring act of Mrs. George Corwin, of Stamford. She seized the bit of a frantic horse dashing toward a crowd in the main street of Bridgeport, and by her courage and presence of mind undoubtedly saved the lives or limbs of more than one person.

Miss Annie Barner hesitated not a moment to risk a horrible death under the wheels of a Pennsylvania railway train at Elizabeth, N. J., to save the life of two-year-old Edward Copeland, who had wandered to the track. The speeding locomotive was almost on him when Miss Barner climbed up the steep embankment, seized the child and drew him out of danger.

Fought with Mad Dog.

The terror that a mad dog inspires in the mind of a young woman did not cause Miss Anna Winters, 17 years old, to hesitate when the moment came to do a brave act. At her home in Prescott street, Jersey City, a mongrel dog which had been in the family for half a dozen years suddenly went mad. It pursued Anna's five-year-old brother Harry into the room in which she was sitting and had sprung upon the boy to bite him. Instantly the girl rushed to the child's assistance, drew the dog to herself, and a fierce fight for life ensued. The girl got her hands around the beast's neck and clung and choked him with a desperate grip. She held on until she had strangled him to death.

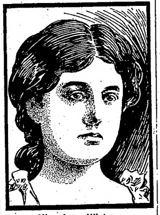
The summer has produced many little girl heroes. The prompt and brave action of 11-year-old Fannie Haskowitz, of No. 91 Hopkins street, Brooklyn, saved the life of her four-year-old sister Julia. The children were crossing the street, when a Sumner avenue care bore down on them. Fannie had crossed safely, when she saw Julia knocked down by the fender of the car and carried beneath it to the swiftly moving wheels. Fannie was instantly down at her little sister's side, dragging her forward and out until she had pulled her away from the wheels. Julia fainted, and when the ambulance came it was found that one of her legs was broken but her little-mother sister had saved her life.

A still younger heroine is Madeline Spinello, of New Haven, who rescued a little boy playmate who was drowning in the river.

Dragged Sister from Flames.

And think of Rena Etson, five years old, who walked into a fire in the street near her home at Battle Creek, Mich., and dragged her three-year-old sister from the flames. The brave deed was done with a cool deliberation not often found in older persons on similar occasions. She did not call out when she saw the danger to her little sister, "because she was afraid she would scare her to go further into the fire." The baby was scarcely injured, while the little heroine was severely burned about the face and chest.

Another "little mother" of five years, Hannah Lavin, of No. 774 East One Hundred and Fifty-seventh street, was left alone to care for her two baby brothers while the real mother went to market. When Mrs. Lavin returned there were fire engines and an excited crowd in front of the house and smoke was pouring from the windows of her flat. She swooned in attempting to make her way through the halls, suffocating with smoke, to the third floor, where she had left her children. But meanwhile little Hannah had worked her way out of the burning flat, little three-year-old Joe clinging to her skirts and the one-year-old baby in her arms, covered with an old shawl to shut out the sight and suffocating smell of the smoke. Willing hands were ready at the last flight of stairs to help the little heroine and her charges.



Miss Anna Winters.

VOTE-BUYING IN ENGLAND.

Bribery Rampant at the Close of the Eighteenth Century.

Votes have been purchased shamelessly and on a huge scale in British elections. An arrangement was once made in the borough of Wendover by which two candidates were to be elected after a distribution of £6,000 ($30,000) among the voters. The account reads: "This being settled a gentleman was employed to go down, when he was met according to previous appointment by the electors about a mile from the town. The electors asked the stranger where he came from. He replied, 'From the moon.' They then asked, 'What news from the moon?' He answered that he had brought from hence £6,000 to be distributed among them. The electors, being thus satisfied with the golden news from the moon, chose the candidates and received their reward."

At Hindon a man dressed fantastically as the dancing Punch called at the house of the voters and left behind him sums of five to ten guineas ($25 to $50)). Another device was to collect the citizens at the inns and hand them their reward through a hole in the door. For these offenses the house of commons passed a resolution that Hindon should be disfranchised, but so lax were the morals of the time—the close of the eighteenth century—that the resolution was never acted upon.

Again in 1859 the "Man in the Moon" turned up in Wakefield. He went about openly distributing money and did not appear to be in the least ashamed of his occupation. At Dublin, in 1868, a hole in the wall served the purpose of a distributing center for the £5 ($25) notes, while at Shaftesbury an alderman paid through a hole in the door of his office a sum of 20 guineas ($100) to each elector.

WRESTLING IN SCOTLAND.

Athletic Sport on the Famous Field at Grasmere.

The sports field at Grasmere lies at the foot of a characteristic ridge of fells, very narrow at the top and as steep nearly as the side of a house. As you sit in the grandstand this ridge rises up in front of you.

On the bare, precipitous slopes of it the guides' race is run. On the verdant lawn on which the grandstand is placed the wrestling matches are held and those spectators who are not in the stand make a ring around the lawn. There are coaches and carriages, too, all around, on which people sit and watch and have picnic luncheons, and it all looks rather like Lord's cricket ground reduced in size.

In Cumberland wrestling the fall is won directly a man is thrown to the ground. There is no need to pin the shoulders down as in Graeco-Roman wrestling. Here at Grasmere all is ended just when the Graeco-Roman catch-as-catch-canners would be getting to the serious work. Were it not so the Grasmere sports would last all the year round. As it was, several matches went on at the same time.

Many of the men had their tights embroidered with wonderful flowers or designs in silk or wool—the work of their women folk, who were now straining to get a glimpse of how the charm worked from the swaying ranks of the people around the ground.

Boys wrestled; men with white hair, who had gained in experience what they had lost in elasticity, wrestled. The boys seemed to be young Orlandos temerariously trying a fall with the Charleses of the profession, and who knows that there was not some Rosalind who saw it all dimly from the crowd and was ready to say afterward, "Sir, you have wrestled well and overcome more than your enemies."—London Standard.

JUST FOR LUCK.

Although his daughter was to wed
Pa disapproved the match,
Insisting that the Johnny was
Decidedly no catch.
Each argument his daughter raised,
With irony he met it;
"Don't ask for my approval, dear,"
He said, "for you won't get it."

"You'll wish us joy?" "I won't," he said,
And to his word he stuck;
"But, pa, just say you'll throw an old Boot after us for luck!"
"I don't mind that, for long ago
I really should have tried it;
I'll throw a big boot after him,
And keep my foot inside it."

Breaking the Compact.

Miffkins (to employer)—No, sir, I don't think there's anything unreasonable in my asking for an increase of my salary. You may remember you promised me a rise when I had been with you a year.

Employer—I know I did, but, hang it all, didn't I make it conditional upon your giving me every satisfaction?

Miffkins—And in what way, sir, haven't I given you satisfaction?

Employer (furiously)—Satisfaction, indeed! D'you call bothering me for more wages giving me every satisfaction, eh?

Brilliant Idea.

Hyker—Tapeleigh, the dry goods man, has a scheme that keeps his store filled with customers.

Pyker—Advertising scheme, eh?

Hyker—No, not exactly. He keeps a parrot just inside the door that exclaims, "Oh, what a pretty young lady!" every time a woman comes along—and, of course, the woman can't resist the temptation to go in and buy something.—Chicago Daily News.

Looking Forward.

The young man had just screwed up his courage to the point of asking the old man for the hand of his daughter in marriage.

"Have you given any thought to the future?" asked the old man.

"Oh, yes," answered the young man, "I joined the church last winter."—Chicago Daily News.

Statecraft.

"Tell the press censor to exercise more than ordinary vigilance over all the publications that come into the palace," said the czar.

"For any special reason, your majesty?"

"Yes. The fortune teller has warned me that I am liable to hear some bad news.—Washington Star.

Expecting a Call.

"Dear," said the physician's wife, "when can you let me have ten dollars?"

"Well," replied the medical man, "I hope to cash a draft shortly."

"Cash a draft? What draft?"

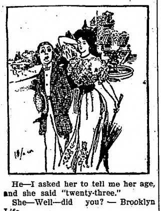
"The one I saw old Mr. Jenkins sitting in this morning."—Philadelphia Press.

Not Encouraging.

"I have called," said the party with the unbarbered hair, "to see if there is a vacancy in your joke department."

"There will be," replied the busy editor, "as soon as the office boy gets time to empty the waste basket."—Chicago Daily News.

SKIDOO.



He—I asked her to tell me her age, and she said "twenty-three."

She—Well—did you?—Brooklyn Life.

What?

The summer girl who wears her heart
Upon her sleeve in pleasure mute,
What does she with it when she bathes
In her scant, sleeveless bathing suit?

Explained.

"Your summer vacation must have agreed with you."

"What makes you think so?"

"You're so much fatter."

"No, I'm not. I probably look fatter because I'm so much shorter."—Cleveland Leader.

Something Else Just as Good.

"I want something to drink that will cure the hiccoughs."

"Haven't any of it in stock," replied the bartender, "but I've got some good old stuff here that will produce hiccoughs."—Houston Post.

A Stayer.

"Yes, while he was wealthy she was a great spender, but when he became poor she never left him."

"Guess that's the reason he stayed poor, isn't it?"—Houston Post.

Reform.

She—Will you stop smoking for my sake?

He—Of courses. I am perfectly willing to smoke for my own sake.—N. Y. Sun.

Couldn't See It.

"I can't see why my husband should be jealous of me."

"It is strange, isn't it, dear?"—Milwaukee Sentinel.

A SHATTERED DREAM.

"My darling," said her mother, "whatever is the matter?"

Between her sobs the young wife managed to say that her husband was a brute.

"I know he is," agreed her mother. "All men are. But what has he been doing?"

"Just because I wakened him for breakfast this morning he got terribly angry."

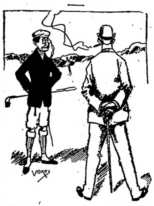
"That was nothing for him to lose his temper over."

"I know it. And he said he wouldn't have minded it if he hadn't been dreaming that for once in his life he had found a good cantaloupe, and he was just about to eat it when I called him."—Judge.

Silly Idea.

Because my friend was a chiropodist,
My wife thought it was proper to insist,
Whene'er he sat with us at meat,
On giving him corned beef to eat.
—Cleveland Leader.

NOT ALL ALIKE.



Enthusiastic Golfer—When you know that a man is a devotee of golf, you can be absolutely certain of his mental caliber and be assured—

Plain Man—Oh, come; I wouldn't say that. I don't doubt that some men play golf who are really quite sensible.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Not Always.

He paid his telephone bill to-day,
And his curses are loud and deep
At the maker of maxims, who used to say:
"Talk is cheap."
—Cleveland Leader.

Not Particular.

"These are hard lines," said the tourist, wearily, as he paused to look at the landscape. "Here I've climbed to the top of this mountain and forgot to bring my glasses with me."

"That's all right," said the guide. "I'd just as soon drink from the bottle."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Had Enough.

"Did you ever sit in Mabel's hammock?"

"Once."

"Only once?"

"Yes."

"What's the trouble?"

"Too much street lamp."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Useful in a Way.

"Why do you permit gambling houses to flourish at any time?"

"Why," answered the calculating politician, "so that we can have places to shut up when there is occasion for a reform demonstration."—Washington Star.

Possible Explanation.

The Maid (at the play)—I wonder why it is that stage villains always smoke so many cigarettes?

The Man—Oh, they evidently realize that it's them for the graveyard in the last act, anyway."—Chicago Daily News.

Wanted to Know.

"Say, paw."

"Well, son?"

"What is genius?"

"Genius, my son, is a certain form of madness."

"Then is that what's the matter with maw?"—Milwaukee Sentinel.

A Tightwad.

"John, is it true that money talks?"

"That's what they say, dear."

"Well, I wish you'd leave a little here to talk to me during the day. I'm getting mighty lonesome for some of that kind of conversation."—Houston Post.

Give Him Time.

"No one yet has said a good word for Russell Sage."

"Perhaps Richard Harding Davis will; he has just finished defending the character of Stanford White."—Houston Post.

In Her Opinion.

"Why is it," he asked, "that so many wives look like their husbands?"

"They don't," replied Mrs. Strongminde; "a good many husbands look like their wives, though."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Wayfarer.

Knicker—Did he leave any footprints on the sands of time?

Bocker—No; I understand he merely beat it.—N. Y. Sun.

The Natural Query.

"Bliggins says he is losing all faith in human nature."

"What kind of insurance did he have—life or fire?"—Washington Star.

Seeing Bad.

"I always try to paint things as I see them," said the artist.

"Don't you think you ought to quit drinking, old man?"—Milwaukee Sentinel.

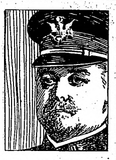
MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. VI. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, OCT. 12, 1906. NO. 28.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

COMMANDS AMERICAN ARMY IN CUBA

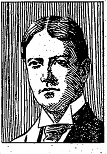


Gen. Fred Funston, who has gone to Cuba to advise with Secretary of War Taft, and who will command the American forces in Cuba, is well acquainted with conditions in the island, having joined the insurgents there in 1896 and fought 18 months against the Spaniards. Upon returning he was made colonel of the Twentieth Kansas volunteers and went to the Philippines, where for bravery he won a brigadier generalship of volunteers, and later distinguished himself by capturing Aguinaldo. In 1901 he was given the same grade in the regular army.

Gen. Funston was born in Ohio in 1865, and was taken to Kansas 12 years later by his parents. After studying in the Iola high school and Kansas State university he became a reporter, but soon abandoned the newspaper profession. Subsequently he was appointed commissioner by the agricultural department to report on Alaskan flora, and after camping for a winter in the Klondike country floated down the Yukon alone in a canoe. Then his military career began with the Cuban rebels.

Funston, when a member of the insurgent forces in the days of Spanish rule, became acquainted with the leading spirits of the island. These men are now divided into contending forces, some supporting the government. The general's acquaintance, his knowledge of the country and his familiarity with all the by-ways renders him especially qualified to go out into the country and sound what may be termed public sentiment. His experience also eminently fits him for command, for he can place troops where they will do the most good.

BRITISH PEER AS WALL STREET BROKER



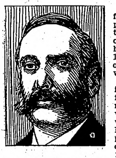
"A. K. Fairfax, New York," was the mark on a lot of baggage which arrived in New York by steamer from Liverpool, yet the owner is a direct descendent of one of the most famous houses of the British peerage, being none other than the Rt. Hon. Albert, Lord Fairfax, twelfth of the line of Fairfax.

The life history of Lord Fairfax is most romantic. The house dates back to 1627, the founder being the great Fairfax who was one of the few nobles who sided with Cromwell, and who held chief command at Marston Moor. His son was general-in-chief of the parliamentary forces and gained the great victory at Naseby. When the king came to his own the Fairfax of that day deemed it best to come to America, and about 1739 settled in Virginia, where he bought a tract of land comprising some 6,000,000 acres, and erected two mansions—Brevoir and Greenway Court—where he lived in baronial style. The present Virginia family home is Northampton, Prince George county, an estate of about 700 acres, being a part of the original Fairfax grant. Albert Kirby Fairfax was born there, as were his brother and three sisters.

Several years ago Albert went to New York and obtained a position in the banking house of Barring, Magoon & Co., in Wall street, with the intention of becoming a banker. In 1902 he went to London to represent an international banking concern and announced his intention of assuming his title. The British chancellor decided that he could exercise all the rights of his rank—attend coronations and various court functions, but could not have a voice in the house of lords unless he should become a British subject and be elected as one of the 16 Scottish peers. He preferred not to give up his American citizenship, however, and was satisfied to enter the house of lords on the same footing as the privy councillors and to sit in front of the throne behind the wool-sack, which he did on numerous occasions.

He attended the coronation of King Edward by special invitation and was extensively entertained by the peerage. He bore the title of Lord Fairfax, but drops it on returning to America. Mr. Fairfax is 36 years of age, but looks younger. He will become a member of the firm of William P. Bonbright & Co., Wall street brokers.

MAN WHO DEFEATED CHURCHILL



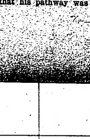
Charles M. Floyd, farmer, clothier and manufacturer, of Manchester, N. H., made his campaign on a platform of "a business administration" as against Winston Churchill's battle cry of "down with railroad domination." He owes his victory, which was won by a margin of but 17 out of a total of 799 votes, to the combination of all the opposition to Churchill, when there were four candidates.

Floyd is regarded as one of the public-spirited men of the state. He is essentially a boomer for his home town of Manchester, where he is a mighty factor in politics, being especially popular with the young men. He is 45 years of age and was born on the farm which he now owns near Drury. When he was a mere boy he was compelled to go to work to support himself and secured a position in the shoe factory owned by the father of Rosecrans W. Pillbury, the latter being one of Floyd's opponents in the contest for the nomination. Later Floyd learned the clothing business with his brother in Haverhill and then he went to Manchester, where he established a clothing business which has now become the largest in the state.

Floyd's entry into politics was as a member of the Manchester school board in 1898. He was elected to the state senate in 1899. At present he is a member of the governor's council.

Floyd is a firm friend of young men whom he believes to be striving to better themselves and he has put at least three of these through law schools.

RISE OF A NEW YORK DEMOCRAT



John H. O'Brien, fire commissioner of New York city through appointment by Mayor McClellan, has had a most spectacular rise from an alleged poolroom and bucket shop gambler in Buffalo to the real ruler of New York politics. As Mayor McClellan's right hand man he has been reaping a whirlwind of criticism for the wholesale gambling and corruption that were said to have prevailed in the metropolis while the mayor was in Europe.

John O'Brien first appeared as a formidable rival to the old leaders last winter when Mayor McClellan gave him a banquet at Sherry's. He was put forward as the mayor's candidate against Boss Murphy for the ruler of Tammany. "Big Tim" and "Little Tim" Sullivan, Comptroller Metz, Bird S. Coler and 50 other wigwam leaders attended and started the campaign which has now reached the mud slinging stage.

Concerning John O'Brien's "past" his rivals say that "before he entered the more profitable field of New York, where Mayor McClellan gave him a big red automobile and a uniformed fireman to drive him to the race track every day and enabled him to lose $600 a day on a salary of $600 a month, John O'Brien was known chiefly as an unpretentious gambler in Buffalo.

"For three years before he left Buffalo he had no occupation. He made dollar bets in cheap poolrooms. He patronized the bucket shops. After a run of luck his account with Demary, Heintz & Lyman, brokers, was wiped out. When he finally left town it was noised about that his pathway was strewn with unredeemed "markers."

FROM OTHER LANDS

INFORMATION GATHERED BY OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

SOME FACTS OF BOHEMIA

Is a Great Industrial Country and Not as Pictured in Romance—Increasing Demand for Wood a Serious Problem.

EIBENSTOCK, BELGIUM.

The demand for wood instead of diminishing, as was expected, when coal came in as a substitute, has gone on increasing until the question of a continued supply to meet the present rapidly increasing rate of consumption is a very serious problem.

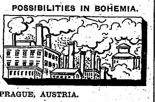
The coal mines of Belgium called for 1,742,740 square yards of wood for the various purposes to which wood is put in mines in 1903. Each year a renewal of old supports is taking place, and new ones are being put into new galleries. Railroads eat up enormous quantities of wood in cross ties. Add to these wood for excelsior, or wood-wool newspapers, bags, etc., and one will have tons running into the millions each year.

North America, Siberia, Africa, India, China, Korea and South America still contain great unutilized and almost unknown forests. Nevertheless, it would be well not to exaggerate the dimensions of these wood supplies. Many African forests are really composed of nothing better than thin bushes, and Siberia is already being systematically subjected to deforesting, which will also begin in Korea in the near future.

North America, however, once the possible wood storehouse for the world, has not enough wood to supply its own demand, notwithstanding its 506,555,000 acres of wooded area. Even now it is dependent upon Canada, which, with its 738,133,000 acres of forests, represents probably the largest single area of any country in the world. Canada sends its entire surplus to the United States. Although large territories of forests, especially in China, Korea, India and South America remain to be utilized, it is certain that the question of the future wood supply of the world, now attracting the attention of economists, will continue to excite great interest. The continuation of the present wood consumption, without comprehensive reforesting, will, within a century at the latest, result in a great and very important scarcity of the wood supply.

WM. C. TEICHMANN.

POSSIBILITIES IN BOHEMIA.



PRAGUE, AUSTRIA.

The Bohemia of real life as an entirely different sort of a place from the Bohemia of romance. There has been a disposition on the part of a great many people to regard the country as a romance land simply, to refer to it as such, thus neglecting the splendid trading opportunities offered by it to enterprising merchants and to manufacturers of many kinds of modern, time and labor saving machinery.

Bohemia is situated in the very heart of Europe, on the highway of commerce between its nothern and southern ports and eastern and western markets, a day's distance from the former ports and only a few hours from the principal cities of central Europe.

Bohemia is a land of extraordinary industrial activity, great agricultural wealth, considerable financial resources, and vast commercial possibilities; and the land contains one of the most industrious and highly educated people of the Old Continent, where all branches of education are far advanced.

Bohemia has a population of 6,318,697, or about 25 per cent. of the total population of Austria—26,150,708. This population is about 65 per cent. Czech and 35 per cent. German.

There is considerable rivalry between the two races, and this should be taken into consideration in dealing with them. The commercial men speak both languages, but generally prefer to be addressed in their own tongue, and, frequently, to deal with their own nationality. Of the foreign languages spoken, French seems the most popular with the Czechs and English with the Germans, but the younger generation is learning both languages, thus speaking for languages—German, Czech, English and French.

Bohemia covers an area of 20,061 square miles, or about 18 per cent. of the total area of Austria. The climate is about the same as that of New York. Of the 17 divisions of the Austrian empire the Kingdom of Bohemia ranks second in area but first in industry and commerce. It is also claimed that its land is very fertile and its people industrious. Of the population about 40 per cent. are engaged in farming and forestry, about 38 per cent. are employed in manufacturing and mining, eight per cent. in commerce, railroading, etc., and nine per cent. as laborers. Only about four per cent. of the land is not under cultivation. About one-third of the industrial or commercial firms in Austria are established in Bohemia, representing about 37 per cent. of the total Austrian industrial and mining interests and about 26 per cent. of its whole commerce. It may be added that Bohemia's contribution to the imperial revenue averages about 25 per cent. of the total amount of state taxes received. On taxes levied on real property (land, houses, etc.) the proportion is 22 per cent. and in personal income taxes, 23 per cent. In indirect taxes levied on beer, alcohol, sugar, wine, tobacco and mineral oil the proportion was about 27 per cent., giving a fair idea of the industry, wealth and consuming power of the population of the kingdom.

SLAVERY STILL IN EXISTENCE.

Practiced Under Another Name, But That Is All.

Slavery is still practiced by civilized peoples, points out Charles Edward Russell, in Everybody's. He writes: "Very curious observations pertain to the Anglo-Saxon practice in nomenclature by which a thing becomes something else if called by another name. Thus there is no Chinese slavery in South Africa, we are assured, because the conditions there are called 'coolie labor.' In Assam the employer holds over his employe in the tea fields every right that a resident of Alabama held over his negroes previous to 1863, but we must not call the condition slavery—it is 'indentured labor.' Queensland sugar planters used to hire ruffians to go in schooners among the South sea islands and capture the natives and bring them to the plantations to labor, but the men engaged in this pleasant traffic were not slave catchers; they were 'recruiters.' They used to bring their captures to shore in vessels so like the old slave ships you could hardly tell the difference, but the business they were engaged in was not slave trading; it was merely 'labor.'"

URBAIN LEDOUX.

Natives of the east coast of Africa do not object to the presence of the great white ant colonies in their neighborhood. The ants exercise great fertilizing power on the crops.

HAT MAKING IN ITALY.

NAPLES, ITALY.

Hat making in Italy is increasing steadily.

The exportation of straw hats is an important item in Italy's foreign trade balance. Of late years the manufacture of wool and felt hats not only covered the home consumption, but contributed to Italian exports. The finest hair hats are made in Alessandria and in Intra, on Lake Maggiore. Midium quality felt hats are made in Biella, Chiavazza, Andorno, Sagliano, Micca and Tarigliano.

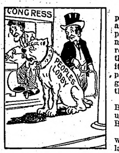
The town of Monza is the chief center for the manufacture of woolen hats. Here 14 factories were formed into a syndicate or trust which employs about 7,000 operatives. Of the Monza production, about $1,300,000 worth is annually exported, the chief customers being Roumania, Austria-Hungary and Switzerland. The daily production of Monza averages 150,000 hats. Factories manufacturing fine hats, composed of hair, for export trade, are in various cities. The straw hat manufactories of Tuscany, employing about 85,000 operatives, export to foreign countries over $5,000,000 in value. Most of these hats go to the United States. The town and vicinity of Carpi, in the province of Emilia, also manufacture straw hats, of which about $1,300,000 worth are shipped abroad. Our fine American-made soft hats should and would find as ready a sale as the Italian hats do in the markets of Europe if properly introduced.

R. GUENTHER.

An advertisement in the London Daily Telegraph intimates that "unless" a certain gentleman, "late of Dewsbury, who left in storage household furniture with the undersigned, fails to communicate within 21 days, the same will be sold at auction." What will happen if he does not fail to communicate remains to be seen.

At the National Capital

Interesting Gossip by Our Washington Correspondent—People's Lobby to Be Established—Senator Smoot Will Urge Reestablishment of the Army Canteen.

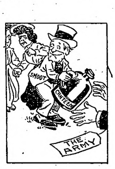


WASHINGTON.—Everybody except the people seems to have a lobby whenever any important interest is affected by legislation. Now it is proposed to locate here a bureau, headed and managed by men of unquestionable character and repute, which shall watch legislation with only the public interest in mind, analyze it, report on it, publish the facts about it, and employ such proper means as may be required to induce congress to legislate for the popular interest rather than for special interests.

The lobby was proposed originally by Henry Beach Needham, of this city, and has been taken up by such men as Mark Twain, Lincoln Steffens, Benjamin Ide Wheeler and William Allen White.

The People's lobby will have facilities for watching and studying legislation. Competent lawyers will examine and ascertain what the "jokers" are in legislation. Skilled observers will keep in touch with the operations of lobbying representatives of "interests." The results of all these inquiries will be given to the public. Publicity is to be the one weapon of the organization. The managers believe it is the most effective weapon, and potent to accomplish all the results.

SMOOT TO FIGHT FOR CANTEEN.

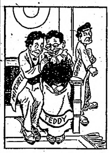


While the senate is deciding whether Senator Smoot, of Utah, shall retain his seat in that body the senator himself will be urging upon his colleagues the passage of a bill providing for the reestablishment of the army canteen, which he intends to introduce early next December.

"I have little reputation to lose among the women of the country," the senator says, "so it seems that I may as well be the champion of what each and every representative in congress believes should be done. I think they all agree with the officers of the army that the anti-canteen law is unwise. But because of public sentiment they all are afraid to come out and urge its repeal."

Any well defined effort to secure the repeal of the anti-canteen law is certain to bring down upon congress an avalanche of protests from the women of the country. It was the women who compelled the abolition of the canteen, and it is woman's influence that has deterred the congressmen from doing anything in the direction of its restitution as recommended by army officers.

POLITICS MAY SPLIT LABOR LEADERS.

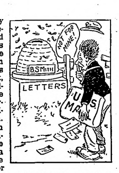


Officials of the American Federation of Labor believe that after election a distinct breach will be opened between President Samuel Gompers and John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers, and vice president of the Federation.

Friction between them that will develop into a breach is regarded as inevitable for the reason that Gompers is jealous of the growth of Mitchell as a political factor. Mitchell adheres to the Roosevelt school of politics, while Gompers is with the other faction.

There is no question among neutral members of the official body of the Federation but that Gomper's activity in this campaign is due to the fact that Mitchell made a success of his fight in behalf of Roosevelt. Mitchell's prominence in the labor field made him the man among organized labor most consulted by President Roosevelt and other public men. Although Gompers was the head of the organization, he was seldom consulted. It was always Mitchell, the vice president, who was called in to express the views of the Federation. He was called to the White House, took lunch there, and on one occasion was a dinner guest. Gompers, so it is said, saw his opportunity to come to the front in this congressional campaign by bringing forward the fact that congress had ignored the recommendation of the Federation, while the president and leaders in congress had given ear to Mitchell. That fact, it is believed, inspired the sudden activity with respect to the eight-hour law and the anti-injunction bills last spring.

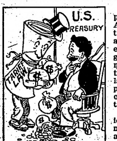
HUMORS OF RURAL DELIVERY SERVICE.



The establishment of new rural free delivery routes in various sections of the country is frequently attended with laughable incidents, and the narration of these tales from real life has been known to afford material for more than one after-dinner speaker. One such story has been related by members of a party of Washingtonians recently returned from the environs of Bucksport, Me., and those responsible for telling the incident claim now to be in full understanding of the reason for Denman Thompson choosing his characters for "The Old Homestead" from this old-fashioned region in the shade of Mount Katahdin.

It seems that a rural free delivery system was recently started with Bucksport as the center, and on one of the routes a member of the "Smith" family was among the first to put out a receptacle for his mail. The box happened to be a beehive, and Mr. Smith cut a slit in the top for letters and papers and nailed the whole on the upper step of an old stepladder. On the face of the "letter box" he inscribed his name in this fashion: "B. S Mith"—and so stood ready to receive communications from his friends. Unfortunately it happened that Mr. B. Smith had borrowed the beehive from a neighbor some two years before, and it goes without saying that the owner was not slow in claiming his property when it thus came to light. Now "B. S Mith" is without a mail box, but it is stated on good authority that he has never been known to receive a piece of mail oftener than once in six months, and that only an advertising circular.

WIPING OUT THE GOVERNMENT DEFICIT.



Probably the happiest man among the department officials in Washington at this time is Assistant Secretary James B. Reynolds of the treasury. Mr. Reynolds is a Massachusetts man, and his duties as assistant secretary give him especial charge of the customs branch of the government. Under the direction of Mr. Reynolds, the customs revenues are collected, and the intricate details of the operations of the tariff law are directed, in order to bring the greatest possible returns and safeguard the public interest, as well as domestic industries, from the attacks of ingenious and ambitious foreign traders.

Assistant Secretary Reynolds is of the opinion that his branch of the government is pretty nearly the whole thing at this time. The much abused tariff law, under the direction of the customs experts, is producing revenues sufficient to save the nation from a deficit. Last year the treasury balance on the right side of the ledger was a few millions, and this result was achieved following a year in which the balance on the wrong side of the ledger was upward of $30,000,000. Starting with the present fiscal year, a deficit of $6,000,000 or $7,000,000 showed up within a month as a result of an extraordinary draft to pay congressional appropriations. This deficit has already been practically wiped out and the indications are that Uncle Sam will have a snug balance at the end of the present fiscal year.

It is the customs business that is producing these desirable results. The duties upon imported commodities have brought into the treasury within a little more than two months $10,000,000 more than came in during the same period a year ago. This is the fact that causes happiness to Assistant Secretary Reynolds. He is able to show that while other receipts of the government have increased only two or three million dollars, a handsome showing is made by the customs branch under his management.

NEW ORLEANS SWEPT BY HUGE CYCLONES

THREE TORNADOES PLAY HAVOC WITH GROWING COTTON AND SUGAR CANE.

Six Lives Are Crushed Out, Nine Persons Seriously Injured, and Property to the Extent of $1,000,000 Is Damaged by Storm.

New Orleans, Oct. 6.—This region Friday was the center of cyclonic disturbances at least three of which were tornadoes and caused the loss of six lives with nine persons fatally injured.

About daylight heavy storms broke throughout the country within 100 miles west, north and east of New Orleans. At night reports of sugar cane and cotton crops blown down or sugar mills demolished came in from this entire section. The damage, including that done in New Orleans is placed at over $1,000,000.

The worst of the tornadoes was north of New Orleans, where between 5:30 and seven o'clock it devastated portions of three parishes. New Orleans was visited by another tornado and another passed northward of Biloxi on the Gulf coast.

The first tornado struck west of Baton Rouge parish about six o'clock, killing Mrs. Theodule Foret and her daughter, Mrs. White. Mrs. Foret's body was found in a field near her demolished house. Two children in Mrs. Foret's house were fatally injured, and five men were injured in the collapse of a sugar refinery on the St. Delphe plantation.

The city of Baton Rouge was slightly damaged. In St. James parish one woman was killed, while Mrs. H. R. Webber and daughter and Mrs. John Meyer and also a negro were reported fatally injured. Fifteen buildings were blown completely down in this parish.

Two Killed in Collapse.

At Pontchatoula, which the tornado reached about seven o'clock, George Hawes and son were killed in the collapse of their house and a daughter died of her injuries. One other child of Mr. Hawe was fatally injured.

A negro was also fatally injured there, besides injuries to a dozen other persons.

Another tornado struck New Orleans about eight o'clock. While no lives were lost here, property damage reached $500,000 and about 50 persons were injured, one fatally. Fully 800 buildings were damaged, about 75 of which were blown flat. Most of the demolished buildings were negro cabins, and it was here that nearly all the injuries occurred.

The path of the tornado through the city was about eight miles ling, entering from the Mississippi river at Audubon park and traveling northwest to Marengo and Carondelet street, and then after a circuitous course to Gravier and Magnolia street, it went northward out of the city. In places the storm's path was about 50 feet wide and only at two or three points did it reach a hundred feet in width.

Freak of Storm Cloud.

The tornado here appeared at a distance as a cloud sweeping along the surface of the earth. Its course was undulating, some buildings being skipped entirely as it bounded skyward. Frequently it demolished verandas and fences on one side of the street while not an object on the other was disturbed. The cloud occupied several minutes in crossing the city, and hundreds of persons who saw and heard it approaching had time to run out of its pathway. One exciting race of this sort was made by a Carondelet street car, which was loaded with passengers on their way to work. At Marengo street the motorman, realizing that a dangerous blow was approaching threw on full current. The flying car was less than half a block past the Jai Alai roller skating rink when that structure went down.

Girl Blown Across Canal.

Another street car was derailed by the wind. A small negro girl was blown so far across the new basin canal as to be rescued by persons on the opposite bank.

The saving of the Charity hospital from more than nominal damage was attributed to a big gas tank which stood between the hospital and the tornado. The tornado struck full against the tank, which withstood the shock, although its iron sides were dented by flying timbers. A curious fact is that the big tank marks the last place in the storm's pathway where serious damage was done and many eyewitnesses say it rose in the air and disappeared after striking this obstruction.

There were several forewarnings of the storm. Thursday night on Lake Pontchartrain a waterspout completely demolished a frame clubhouse belonging to the Anglers' club, tearing the place apart almost board by board.

Near Biloxi, Miss., the third tornado swept through the woods demolishing part of a lumber train and injuring two men.

Judge Lenient to Lawyer.

Springfield, Mo., Oct. 6.—James B. Dodson, a prominent lawyer and politician, was fined $400 by Judge Philips in the federal court for making false affidavits in cash entering government land. Judge Philips said that the fine was made light because of the lawyer's misunderstanding of the law and because the land had not been lost to the government.

FORCED TO DEPORT CHINESE

FISH CANNERY AGREES TO TERMS OF WOODSMEN.

General Fire Alarm to Notify Citizens of California Towns of Arrival of Undesirable Immigrants.

Eureka, Cal., Oct. 4.—The Starbuck-Tallant fish cannery at Port Kenyon agreed to immediately deport 27 Chinese from Humboldt county and not again to bring Chinese labor into the county.

Five hundred woodsmen convened at Fortuna Wednesday morning and demanded that a guarantee be given that by five o'clock the Chinese would be deported.

The directors of the cannery, seeing the determination of the people to eject the Chinese, declared that the cannery management would accede and an order was given to ship the Chinese at once.

Sheriff Lindsay, now at Pork Kenyon, will escort the Chinese to Eureka at once. The Chinese will be housed on Woodley island, Humboldt bay, until the north-bound steamer sails.

The citizens at Fortuna and the woodsmen of the country are quiet and orderly. All the saloons in Fortuna are closed.

A committee of Eureka citizens has appointed a vigilance committee to turn in a general fire alarm when a vessel enters Humboldt bay with Chinese passengers for this port. This action is to prevent any more attempts to bring Chinese or Japanese here.

FIVE KILLED IN RAILWAY WRECK

Special Carrying Soldiers Runs Into Passenger Train.

Lansingburgh, N. Y., Oct. 5.—Five passengers were killed outright and a score were injured in a rear-end collision between a regular passenger train and a military special on the Boston & Maine railroad, directly in front of Lansingburgh depot, north of Troy, about five o'clock Thursday.

The dead are:

F. L. Block, Peoria, Ill.
Mrs. Wallace E. Shaw, Bath, Me.
Mrs. —— Stevens, Boston, Mass.
Mrs. J. W. Dacey, Arlington, Mass.
Mrs. H. S. Poole, Concord, N. H.

One man's grief was pitiable. His name was J. W. Dacey, and he ran up and down the track crying for his wife. In a few minutes her lifeless form was identified. They had been married Wednesday night at Arlington, Mass., and were on their honeymoon, having planned an extended trip.

BISHOP WAS WRONGLY QUOTED

Williams, of Michigan, Corrects Report Regarding Sermon on Bible.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 3.—Bishop Charles D. Williams, of the Episcopal diocese of Michigan, Tuesday declared that he had been incorrectly quoted in the published report of his sermon Sunday to the Y. M. C. A. members, in which it was stated he said that the Bible as the word of God is the most prolific source of unbelief the church has to contend with.

"I am neither ultra-conservative, nor yet a Robert Ingersoll and I wish to emphatically deny the report," declared Bishop Williams. "I did say that a certain view of the Bible is a most prolific source of unbelief. To say that the Bible is the most prolific source of belief, I would be the rankest kind of a Robert Ingersoll. The Bible must be read thoughtfully and meditatively, and a man with a conscience will find the word of God in it."

ATTEMPTS MURDER AND SUICIDE

Drunken Husband Tries to Kill His Wife and Himself.

Litchfield, Ill., Oct. 4.—Lying side by side in the same ward at St. Francis hospital, this city, are Alonzo Curtis, a farmer, and his wife, waiting the result of the former's attempt at murder and suicide. Both are expectetd to die. Circumstances indicate that Curtis, a prosperous farmer, living three miles east of this city, returned home from Hillsboro in a drunken rage and attacked his wife with a butcher knife while she was still in bed.

IOWA W. C. T. U. REUNITED

Divided Sixteen Years Ago Over Question of Politics.

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 4.—By mutual agreement of separate conventions held in this icty Wednesday, two branches of the W. C. T. U., one known as the W. C. T. U. of Iowa and the other as the W. C. T. U. of the state of Iowa, were consolidated into one body.

They were divided 16 years ago by a dispute over the question of affiliation or nonaffiliation with the Prohibition party.

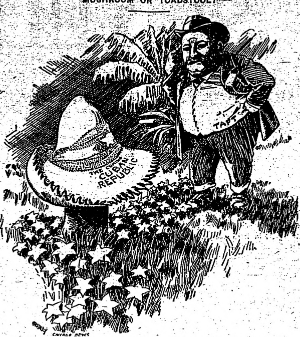
Federal Hearing Resumed.

St. Louis, Oct. 6.—The hearing of testimony in the suit of the government against the Terminal Railroad association, postponed from Wednesday because of Carnival week festivities Thursday, was resumed Friday. Julius S. Walsh, chairman of the board of directors of the Terminal association, who was in the stand when adjournment was taken Wednesday, continued his testimony.

Football Kills Another.

Toronto, Ontario, Oct. 5.—Cameron Paulin, 21 years old, died early Thursday at the General hospital from injuries received on university lawn yesterday afternoon while at practice with the Toronto university football team. His skull was fractured.

"MUSHROOM OR TOADSTOOL?"



Distinguished Tourist—"Wonder Whether That's Likely to Nourish or Kill a Boom."

CUBANS YIELD GUNS TO THE AUTHORITIES

INSURGENTS GIVE UP ARMS WITH BETTER GRACE THAN WAS EXPECTED.

Conduct of the Rank and File in Obeying Order to Disarm Is Cause of Gratification to Secretary Taft—Few Hold Back.

Havana, Oct. 6.—While the disarmament of the rebels will not be completed as soon as expected, it is now confidently expected that the entire operation will be finished early in the coming week, with the exception of Puerto Principe province, which has been less affected than any other province by the rebellion, but which is now a favorite region for marauding bands, which should more correctly be called bandits than rebels.

Although the surrender of guns has not been made compulsory, either by the provisional government or the disarming commission, rebel commanders have all given their followers to understand that it was expected and that the laying down of their arms was a matter of duty. The result of this has been that the number of rifles surrendered is larger, in proportion to the number of men disbanded, than the government expected. For instance, 800 rebels disbanded in Pinar del Rio province up to Friday, have turned in 600 guns. Gov. Taft regards this proportion rather better than the average, but reports from Santa Clara indicate that nearly all the guns of Gen. Guzman's command have been surrendered.

Transports Leave New York.

New York, Oct. 6.—The Ward line steamers Seneca, Niagara and Monterey, which were chartered by the government to transport troops to Cuba, sailed from New York Friday. While the destination of the steamers is not known, it is believed they will go to Newport News to embark troops. By Saturday night it is expected that six other transports will have sailed for Newport News to take on troops. They are the steamers Admiral Farragut and Admiral Schley, the Bergen, Mobile and Cubana and the Zalanda. On Monday it is expected that the transports Bayamo, Laupar and Jacob Bright will sail from New York. They are intended to carry principally mules and horses.

The employes at the army headquarters in this city have been working day and night for the last week hastening the preparations for the starting of those ships and hope to get them all away on schedule time.

Insurgents Retain Arms.

Santiago, Cuba, Oct. 6.—The mustering out of the revolutionists was completed Friday. The work was conducted by members of the disarmament commission. Only one-fifth of the men turned over their rifles, the others claiming that their guns were their personal property. Confidence has been largely restored and business has improved.

Secretaries' Wives En Route.

Washington, Oct. 6.—Mrs. Taft and Mrs. Bacon arrived in Washington from New York Friday, and will leave for Cuba via Tampa Saturday.

BRIDGE OVER FALLS COLLAPSES

One High School Student Killed When Crowded Structure Gives Way.

Menominee, Mich., Oct. 6.—While a party of 25 students of Oconto, Wis., high school were standing on a foot bridge at Oconto Falls, Wis., Friday watching the falls, the structure collapsed, hurling the whole party 40 feet into the stream.

William Ballou, aged 14 years, was killed and Viga Sentil, Hazel Denizen and Frank Donley seriously injured. Prof. Newcomb, the instructor, was badly hurt, and several others were slightly injured.

The bridge is 200 feet long, but the water in the stream is only three feet deep.

WOULD CURB BIG FORTUNES

PRESIDENT TO URGE REFORM IN MESSAGE TO CONGRESS.

Will Recommend Enactment of Inheritance Tax Law—Field Estate an Instance.

Washington, Oct. 5.—President Roosevelt has inserted in the preliminary draft of his forthcoming annual message to congress a recommendation that a law be passed imposing a national tax upon inheritances. The president first called public attention to this idea in his celebrated "muckrake" speech which he delivered at the laying of the corner stone of the office building of the house of representatives April 14 last.

Therein he expressed the view that ultimately the United States would have to consider the adoption of some such scheme as that of a progressive tax on all fortunes beyond a certain amount either given in life or devised or bequeathed upon death to any individual.

The president deeply regrets, for instance, that there was no such law to prevent Marshall Field from tying up his estate in the way he did. The Field fortune is regarded as having "swollen beyond all healthy limits" at the time of its creator's death. He thinks it will be a positive menace by the time it is turned over to the heirs.

If John D. Rockefeller and other wealthy men of the country should follow the example of Mr. Field there would develop, he thinks, an oligarchy of wealth which would bring disaster to the American people.

OPPOSES FEDERAL OWNERSHIP

President Scores Class Hatred, Rancor, Brutality and Mob Violence.

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 5.—President Roosevelt denounced government ownership of public utilities Thursday in his address at the dedication of Pennsylvania's $13,000,000 capitol. He also declared Wall street should not rule the nation.

The president was introduced by Gov. Pennypacker. Copies of his speech, which were distributed, showed the president had used the simplified spelling in writing it.

"It behooves us Americans to look ahead and plan out the right kind of civilization, as that which we intend to develop from these wonderful new conditions of vast industrial growth," said Mr. Roosevelt in his address. "It must not be, it shall not be, the civilization of a mere plutocracy, a banking house, Wall-stret-syndicate civilization; nor yet can there be submission to class hatred, to rancor, brutality and mob violence, for that would mean the end of all civilization.

"We need to check the forces of greed, to insure just treatment alike of capital and of labor, and of the general public, to prevent any man, rich or poor, from doing or receiving wrong, whether this wrong be one of cunning or one of violence."

DEAD AT BLUEFIELD MAY BE 70

Twenty-nine Bodies Have Been Recovered from Pocahontas Colliery.

Bluefield, W. Va., Oct. 6.—Twenty-nine bodies have been recovered from the west fork of the Pocahontas Collieries company mine at Pocahontas, Va., and a conservative estimate places the total number of dead at 70.

The rescuing party reached the scene of the explosion, but the immense amount of debris and wreckage has hampered the search for bodies. There is no evidence thus far of fire.

Raton, N. M., Oct. 6.—A disastrous explosion occurred early Friday in the Dutchman coal mine at Blossburg, a small camp five miles from Raton, in which 15 miners are supposed to have lost their lives. Three bodies have been recovered.

Sultan Receives Leishman.

Constantinople, Oct. 6.—The sultan Friday officially received Ambassador Leishman, who presented his credentials as first ambassador of the United States to Turkey.

NATION MUST BUILD, SAYS ROCKEFELLER

OIL KING ASSERTS WE ARE TOO YOUNG TO BEGIN TEARING DOWN.

"Frenzied Attacks" Denounced and Agents of the Law Scored—Declares Attack on Packing Business Hurtful in Foreign Markets.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 5.—"We are still too young a nation to begin tearing down. We must build up, build up, build up, for years to come. The very children in the schools should be taught the need of our development."

This defense of big corporations was the keynote of an important interview given Thursday by John D. Rockefeller.

Speaking further for the demand for government regulation of so-called private industries, Mr. Rockefeller said:

"If we limit opportunity we will have put the brakes on our national development. Will the individual strive for success if he knows the hard-won prize is to be snatched from his fingers at the last by his government?

"We are too young a nation, as I said, for this tearing down. Our position is by no means secure. It is like repeating A, B, C to say that we can not consume our total production. We must sell abroad or do less business. Reducing the volume of our production means less work, less wages, less business transacted, at the very least.

"It is checking our development instead of furthering it. Is it common sense, then, to handicap our export trade at home, to attack the good name of our business for the benefit of our foreign rivals?

Denounces "Frenzied Attacks."

"Is it common sense to tell our young men, on whom the future must depend, that they can hope for no other reward for carrying our commercial flag forward than frenzied attacks at home, and all the handicaps their own government can pile upon their business to satisfy the violent prejudice excited against them?"

French Hate Americans.

Speaking of his recent visit to France, Mr. Rockefeller said:

"The French people hate us and they will crush us if they can. They want our money. They want the patronage of our tourists. But they hate us. They never let slip an opportunity to take quick advantage of our mistakes. This is a struggle for supremacy. We must win, or they will, and there will be no quarter for us if they win.

"And now there is Japan, rising in the east to a power we can not estimate. We can not foretell what her competition will be; we do not know the resources of the new territory which she controls; we can not guess the commercial and industrial possibilities of the Japanese.

"At this critical stage we are giving the enemy ammunition to fire at us. He is quick to seize this advantage. Take the attack we made upon our own packing business, for instance. I know none of the men in the beef trade, I never dealt with them, nor was I ever associated even indirectly with their business or themselves. But it is safe to assume from the proportions of their industry that they are sound business men. And it is safe to assume, too, that no business could have been built to such proportions on such false principles, or by such unsound methods, as they were charged with.

"I do not believe there was a line of American goods sold abroad that was not injured, or an American agent doing business abroad whose work was not hampered by this."

EIGHT KILLED AT PHILADELPHIA

Gas Explosion in Subway Inflicts Heavy Property Loss.

Philadelphia, Oct. 6.—Eight men were killed and nearly two score of persons were injured Friday by the explosion of illuminating gas in the Market street subway at Sixth street.

High buildings were shaken by the force of the explosion and for a block on either side of the scene of the explosion nearly every window was shattered.

The street caved in, halting traffic and resulting in a suspension of business. Fire followed the explosion, but it did no damage to neighboring buildings. The loss, it is believed, will exceed $300,000.

HILLS SELLS MINING PROPERTY

Steel Corporation Secures Holdings of President of Great Northern Road.

New York, Oct. 6.—James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern railroad, sold 750,000,000 tons of ore to the United States Steel corporation Friday for $400,000,000.

There may be a few million tons of ore and a few million dollars more or less, involved in the sale, but it is the biggest transaction in the history of finance in this country since the formation of the steel corporation itself, and the whole gigantic deal was accomplished by five men in the space of a couple of hours.

Snowstorm in Colorado.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Oct. 5.—Colorado Springs Thursday experienced its first snowstorm of the season. Reports from the mountains indicate a snowfall of several inches. The first snowstorm of the season also prevailed at Pueblo.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Secretary Hitchcock has returned to Washington from his summer vacation at Monadnock, N. H.

Joliet, Ill., is to have a new $1,000,000 steel plant to be known as the Armor Steel & Foundry company.

Ninety families were driven out by a fire in the "leather district" of New York, and three firemen were hurt.

Upton Sinclair is to go on the stage as one of the characters in the dramatization of his novel, "The Jungle."

Stephen P. M. Tasker, of Philadelphia, and his young bride have crossed northern Labrador from Hudson bay.

Truman W. Newberry, assistant secretary of the navy, may be ambassador to Russia to succeed George V. L. Meyer.

Because he ran down Alderman W. G. Wilcox, John Goff, an Elgin (Ill.) autoist, was fined $11.60 by an Elgin justice.

The late Senator Gorman, of Maryland, did not die as wealthy as was supposed. His personal estate was only $612,406.

A fire that threatened serious damage broke out on the transport Thomas at Manila. It was extinguished without heavy loss.

Two Italian workmen were killed in a cave-in at the Goodale park intercepting sewer, Columbus, O. Three workmen were injured.

Charles E. Halliwell, first vice president of the American Tobacco company, and worth $20,000,000, married Miss Ruth Alice Cole, a nurse.

The will of George P. Lord, filed in Elgin, Ill., disposes of an estate of $65,000. The Elgin Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A. and Woman's club each receives bequests.

President Roosevelt appointed Charles H. Robb, of Vermont, to be a justice of the District of Columbia court of appeals, to succeed Justice Duell, resigned.

Mrs. Fred Pabst, widow of the former head of the Pabst Brewing company and daughter of Jacob Best, founder of the brewery, died in Milwaukee of pneumonia.

Secretary Wilson estimates from reports that 50,000,000 bushels of durum or macaroni wheat will be raised in the United States this year, chiefly in the northwestern states.

Ex-Alderman Henry Whitaker, who owns a livery stable in Hammond, Ind., assaulted Thomas Linn because Linn ill-treated one of Whitaker's horses. Linn's hip was broken.

The Panama canal commission is having difficulty in hiring Chinese laborers for canal work, owing to the prejudice against climatic conditions fostered by the French regime.

The secretary of the interior has withdrawn from entry all public lands within an area of 800,000 acres in the San Diego land district in California to be incorporated in the proposed San Diego forest reserve.

CANNOT RESTRAIN NEWSPAPERS

Court Rules Publisher Is Entitled to Print Whatever He Sees Fit.

Denver, Col., Oct. 5.—That newspapers cannot be restrained by courts of equity from publishing matter alleged to be libelous was the gist of a decision handed down by Judge John I. Mullins, of the Denver district court, when he dissolved the temporary restraining order issued against the Daily Mining Record of this city at the instance of G. G. Rice, a Goldfield, Nev., mining promoter.

If libelous matter is published in a newspaper the only recourse of the person or institution claiming to be damaged lies in an action for damages at-law, ruled Judge Mullins, who stated that according to his interpretation of the statutes no publisher could be enjoined from printing whatever he saw fit as long as he could respond to any suit for damages.

Shah of Persia Seriously Ill.

Teheran, Persia, Oct. 5.—The shah of Persia, Muzaffar-Ed-Din, is reported to be seriously ill.

THE MARKETS.

	New York, Oct. 6.
LIVE STOCK—Steers	$5 00 @ 5 75
Hogs, State	6 80 @ 6 90
Sheep	3 50 @ 5 50
FLOUR—Minn. Patents	4 10 @ 4 35
WHEAT—December	82¼@ 82⅝
May	85 @ 85⅝
CORN—December	52 @ 52⅛
RYE—No. 2 Western	68½@ 69
BUTTER	18 @ 24
CHEESE	12¾@ 13
EGGS	23 @ 24
CHICAGO.
CATTLE—Choice Steers	$6 00 @ 7 00
Common to Good Steers.	4 75 @ 6 00
Yearlings	4 50 @ 6 00
Buls, Common to Choice	2 25 @ 4 00
Calves	3 00 @ 8 50
HOGS—Light Mixed	6 20 @ 6 45
Heavy Packing	5 65 @ 5 95
Heavy Mixed	6 10 @ 6 40
BUTTERY—Creamery	19 @ 24½
Dairy	17½@ 21½
EGGS	15 @ 19
LIVE POULTRY	11 @ 11½
POTATOES (bu.)	40 @ 42
WHEAT—December	74½@ 75⅝
May	78⅝@ 79⅜
Corn, May	43¼@ 43⅝
Oats, May	35½@ 35¾
Rye, December	62 @ 62½
MILWAUKEE.
GRAIN—Wheat, No. 1 Nor'n	$ 79 @ 81
December	74¼@ [illegible]
Corn, December	[illegible]
Oats, Standard	34½@ 35
Rye, No. 1	63 @ 64½
KANSAS CITY.
GRAIN—Wheat, September.	$ 68¾@ [illegible]
December	71⅞@ [illegible]
Corn, December	37⅜@ [illegible]
Oats, No. 2 White	34½@ 35
ST. LOUIS.
CATTLE—Beef Steers	$3 50 @ 6 50
Texas Steers	2 75 @ 5 10
HOGS—Packers	6 00 @ [illegible]
SHEEP—Natives	3 00 @ 5 50
OMAHA.
CATTLE—Native Steers	$4 40 @ 6 20
Stockers and Feeders	2 75 @ 4 90
Cows and Heifers	3 00 @ [illegible]
HOGS—Heavy	6 00 @ [illegible]
SHEEP—Wethers	5 00 @ 5 50

Was Oldest Harvard Man

SOLE SURVIVOR OF CLASS OF 1832 EXPIRES AT BOSTON.

John Torrey Morse, Last of Class of Seventy-One Graduates, Passes Away—Short Biography of His Career.

Boston.—John Torrey Morse, the oldest graduate of Harvard university and sole survivor of the class of 1832, is dead. Mr. Morse was 93 years of age.

John Torrey Morse was born in Boston, March 27, 1813. Mr. Morse comes from a long line of Harvard graduates and Harvard students, and two generations have followed him in the same path of collegiate training.

To go no further back than 1737, when Ebenezer Morse, afterwards the Shrewsbury town minister, and the great-grandfather of John Torrey Morse, received his diploma, there is an unbroken line of six generations of the Morse family from that date down to the present time upon the student records at Harvard.

Dr. Eliakim Morse, the son of Rev. Ebenezer Morse, of Shrewsbury, was at college when the revolutionary war was begun at Lexington on April 19, 1775. Being a loyalist, young Eliakim left his studies and sought service in the ranks of the king's troops. But there is no evidence that the ardent young tory ever participated in a battle or inflicted much actual damage to the patriot cause.

After the war Eliakim Morse became a medical practitioner, reading medicine with his father, who seems to have been both a clergyman and a physician, and the former settled for a time at Woodstock, Conn.

Dr. Eliakim, however, soon returned to Boston, entered mercantile pursuits, in which he was successful, and the 1789 Boston directory has his place of business as a wholesale druggist at No. 4 Dock street.

The first line of Boston clippers to Liverpool and London is said to have been started by Dr. Eliakim Morse, in which enterprise he accumulated an ample estate, and his home at Watertown was one of the noted residences of the town. He lived to a great age, dying in 1859 with 99 years to his credit, and after passing the 90 mark it was no uncommon thing to see Dr. Morse riding his favorite horse between Watertown and Boston.

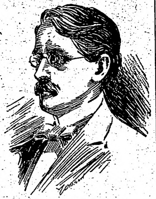
John Morse, the oldest son of Dr. Eliakim Morse, and the father of John Torrey Morse, graduated at Harvard in 1808, and he died a young man of only 28, in 1817.

John Torrey Morse fitted for college at the Old Round Hill school at Northampton, when it was under the direction of George Bancroft, the historian.

In the 1832 class at Harvard there were many men who afterward achieved distinction in their chosen walks of life. There were Henry W. Bellows and Samuel Osgood, the latter the class orator, and both were famed as Unitarian preachers in their day.

Josiah Quincy was the president of the college, and the Boston papers were so crowded with references to the policy of Andrew Jackson, that no mention, whatever, was made of the exercises on that day at Cambridge.

After graduation Mr. Morse, the subject of this sketch, embarked on a business career, since his life work, and he was the supercargo, in 1833, of the first shipload of ice that the Tudors consigned to the East Indies. Inheriting a large patrimony from his father's estate, Mr. Morse, in 1839, was married to Miss Lucy Cabot Jackson, the daughter of Judge Charles Jackson, of the state supreme court, and a Massachusetts jurist that has passed from the memory of the oldest lawyers at the local bar. Another daughter of Judge Jackson became the wife of Dr. O. W. Holmes, and the "Autocrat' 'and Mr. Morse were, therefore, brothers-in-law.



JOHN TORREY MORSE.
(Old Portrait of Oldest Harvard Graduate Who Died the Other Day.)

Since 1860, or for 46 years, Mr. Morse was a town resident at No. 153 Beacon street, being a pioneer in the new Back Bay section of the street, and Mr. Morse without doubt was the senior member of the Somerset club, the sole social, religious or philanthropic organization with which Mr. Morse, during his long career, seems to have been identified.

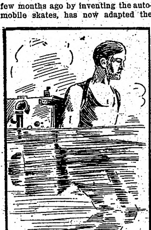
Of the three sons of Mr. Morse, E. Rollins Morse is a New York banker, Charles Torrey Morse resides at Beverly, and John Torrey Morse, Jr., is well-known as a biographer and historian, having written many books of interest and value in this line, and collaborating in some instances with Henry Cabot Lodge.

* * *

NEW AUTO SWIMMING DEVICE.

Invention of a Frenchman Is Also a Life-Saving Apparatus.

Paris.— M. Constanti, of Paris, who created somewhat of a sensation a few months ago by inventing the automobile skates, has now adapted the gasoline motor to another entirely new use in the form of a life-saving apparatus or automatic swimming device. The apparatus promises to provide excellent sport for bathers.



Auto Which Takes You for a Swim.

The motor is designed to work under water in all conditions. The main body, or case, consists of a light aluminum box about 20 inches high to be carried on the swimmer's back. It is just large enough to contain the motor and the rest of the apparatus. The propeller is mounted in the end of a crankshaft, and the latter is made to project out through a watertight packing in the side of the case. To protect the propeller from any shocks it might receive, it is surround- by a conical piece, carrying a wire gauze covering.

For cooling the motor cylinder, which is jacketed at the upper part, the water comes from the outside and leaves the box again through suitable openings on either side of the case. Gasoline is supplied from an aluminum tank fitted against the back of the case.

The swimmer is seated upon a projecting saddle formed of a metal plate covered with cork. The saddle is hinged to the box in order to fold it up when not in use, and at the outer end is attached an air-float which can be of any convenient size. Two straps are fixed to the upper end of the box so as to fasten it upon the swimmer's back. At the lower end the straps are fastened in place by a hook or a button projecting from the box. The storage battery and induction coil are stowed in the lower part of the case under the motor. In order to use the life-saving device, the swimmer first starts up the motor by means of the hand crank from the outside, and after seating himself on the saddle, puts the box upon his back, fastening it by means of the straps. After the air-bags have been filled up, he goes into the water. He regulates the speed of the motor by two rods which act upon the carbureter and on the ignition. Steering is done with the hands.

* * *

GIRL IS RURAL CARRIER.

Miss Pearl Lane, of Indiana, Successfully Takes Father's Place.

Morristown, Ind. — Morristown boasts of one of the very few women rural route carriers in Indiana. She is Miss Pearl Lane, daughter of John Lane.

For some time prior to 1903 John Lane was the carrier on rural route No. 3 out of Morristown, and was one of the most faithful and painstaking carriers that ever donned a uniform. Then his eyesight began failing him and it was not long until he found himself incapacitated for work. A delicate operation was performed on his eyes, but in time the old trouble returned and he found himself forced to give up his route.

He had a bright, intelligent daughter, Miss Pearl, and patrons of the route were practically unanimous in asking that she be appointed in her father's place. Postmaster Will Phillipy heartily agreed with them, and one day her commission arrived from Washington and she took up the mail sack and the reins.

That was nearly three years ago and Miss Lane has been the carrier on this rural route ever since. Her competency is evident from the fact that there has never been a complaint made against her services.

Bounty on Rats.

Owing to the danger of plague infection being spread by rats, the local authorities in most parts of Japan have for some time past been in the habit of paying three cents for every dead rat brought in. Enormous sums have been paid out, the town council of Osaka buying 1,993,886 rats in 17 months.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

Minnesota Pure Food Exhibit a Model—Blast Furnaces for the Range—Plenty of Money.

Minnesota a Model.

Minneapolis—Information received from the national pure food committee of the General Federation of Women's Clubs by the state dairy and food department states that the pure food exhibit which was secured from the Minnesota department has now been on exhibition in nine states, including New York, Missouri, Illinois, Ohio, Colorado, Kansas, Iowa and Indiana.

The whole exhibit, which is being sent around by the pure food committee, was made up by the Minnesota department. The exhibit consists of all sorts of samples of adulterated foods and is as large as the exhibit which the department showed at the state fair. The committee has a number of bookings for the future.

The committee in its next report to the federation will say:

"Minnesota has a new code, which has just gone into effect and promises to be most effective. Judging by the courtesy, ability and generosity shown our pure food committee by the state officials and by the local pure food committee, Minnesota has set the pace which it will be difficult for other states to follow."

The report criticizes the food laws and departments of almost every other state.

More Money.

St. Paul—The revenue fund of the state treasury is nearly a million richer than it was a year ago—$928,-875.81, to be exact. A year ago the statement of the state treasurer at the close of business on Sept. 30 showed a deficit in the revenue fund amounting to $873,138.70. The report made out yesterday, showing the condition at the close of the month of September, shows a cash balance of $54,737.11.

The total cash balance for all the funds in the treasury is almost a half million better than last year. Then it was $1,084,446.76, and this year it is $1,518,374.13. The cash in some of the trust funds is less than it has been at some previous dates on account of the large amount of money that has been loaned out to school districts, towns, cities and villages.

More Business.

Duluth—An increase in the number of manufacturing establishments and the number of wage earners in Duluth is noted in the annual report on factory inspection for 1906, which Julius E. Moersch has compiled for the biennial report for the state labor bureau. The inspection reports which include Procterknott, West Duluth and New Duluth, summarized for 1906, show 244 inspections, as against 236 in the preceding year, and a corresponding increase in the wage earners' total number from 875 to 8,802. The relation of the different classes of wage earners one to another, however, has changed. In 1905 one woman was employed to 6.6 men, while in 1906 it was one woman to 7.3 men, denoting a reduction in woman wage earners in favor of men.

Blast Furnaces.

Duluth—Immense blast furnaces for the reduction of ore will probably be installed in Minnesota by the United States Steel corporation as the result of its having leased the vast Hill iron properties in this state.

It has been demonstrated that the steel company can distribute its finished products in Minnesota much more cheaply than it can ship ore via the lakes and rail to eastern smelters, and the North Star state has excellent prospects of obtaining a most important industry by virtue of this saving.

Another argument favorable to the rumor that smelters will be established in Minnesota is the big market for rails and other finished products in the west and northwest.

Football.

Hamline—Minnesota football candidates have completed two weeks practice and those who have watched the men during that time are firm in the belief that when the season's games commence Minnesota will have the best team in the West. For wealth of material Dr. Williams could scarcely be better supplied. Nearly enough "M" men are back in the game to make up a full team and from the second team of last year comes a crowd of husky candidates that will make even the oldest veteran on the team hurry to keep his position.

News Notes.

St. Paul—Frank Lukaszewski, 851 Jenks street, accidently shoots himself and dies at St. Joseph's hospital.

St. Paul—The cornerstone of the Woodland Park Baptist church is laid with appropriate ceremonies.

Hermantown—Eli Libau, a farmer, and his twelve-year-old daughter were seriously injured in a runaway accident near their home. As they were driving to town the tongue of the wagon broke, frightening the horses and causing them to run away. The wagon went into the ditch, throwing out the occupants, breaking two of the father's ribs and the daughter's arm.

Granada—Angry citizens and farmers of this vicinity read the skidoo act to an elder of the Church of David, who invaded this region, and read it so forcibly that the parson was only too glad to get out of town with a whole skin.

Mazeppa—Lightning struck the large barn on the farm occupied by A. Gorman and it burned. The stock was saved but the contents of the barn were lost. There was no insurance.

Bemidji—Seventeen thousand men are wanted for work in the woods this winter by firms operating in and near Bemidji.

BRIEF MINNESOTA ITEMS.

Fort Snelling—Two battalions of the Twenty-eighth infantry are ordered to Cuba.

St. Paul—Geo. R. O'Reilly resigns his position as assistant corporation attorney.

Duluth—The state labor bureau reported on industries here and at smaller cities.

St. Paul—The Minnesota conference of the M. E. church opened at the Central Park church.

St. Paul—The park board asks the city council to remove the workhouse from the vicinity of Como Park.

Minneapolis—The state board of equalization considered the assessments of the private car companies.

Stillwater—Charles Jackson was found dead in the state prison at 3 o'clock this morning by the watchman on his rounds.

New Ulm—The district meeting of the Mankato district of the Evangelical association opened its thirty-ninth annual session in this city.

St. Paul—An amendment to the city charter is proposed providing that the cost of street sprinkling be assessed against the abutting property.

Luverne—It is apparent that Rock county will be swept clean of its hogs before winter sets in by hog cholera, which developed about a month ago.

Glyndon—While attempting to steal a ride on a freight train last night John Gilmartin of Chicago slipped and fell under the wheels, his right leg being severed near the hip.

Little Falls—The official canvass shows Congressman Buckman's defeat by 1,314 votes.

St. Cloud—C. D. Grinols succeeded James A. Martin as postmaster. Mr. Martin will engage in the practice of law.

Minneapolis—The state board of equalization increases the Minnesota real estate assessments $26,610,702.

Minneapolis—The public service corporations are given a hearing before the state board of equalization.

Washington—The new battleship Minnesota is well on its way to completion and will have its preliminary trial some time in October. The exact date is not yet fixed.

Duluth—David M. Devore, a well-known attorney of this city, is insane. He was placed under arrest today. Devore, at the primary election, opposed Senator George R. Laybourne in the Fifty-first senatorial district, but was overwhelmingly defeated.

Minneapolis—C. R. Field of Des Moines, Ia., was robbed of $25 while he was taking a bath in a Washington avenue south barber shop. He suspects a friend, who was with him in the tub, but who got through first and disappeared in a mysterious manner.

St. Paul—Alfred E. Devine, forty-six years old, long a member of the fire department, was found dead in his bed in a hotel at Eighth and Jackson streets.

Eveleth—A man supposed to be O. J. Hubbert was killed on the Duluth & Iron Range tracks at Allen Junction.

Duluth—John Wooding of West Duluth is projecting a new labor organization that is to be a rival of the International Longshoremen's association, especially on the Great Lakes.

Slayton—The summer hotel at Walhall was destroyed by fire. Loss $5 000, insurance, $2,000.

Winona—The Winona Bridge Railway company in its annual report to the state railroad and warehouse commission shows gross earnings from tolls amounting to $26,907, of which the share accruing to Minnesota is $12,800.

Duluth—The annual report of the Duluth & Northwestern shows gross earnings amounting to $183,266, all in the state. The operating expenses were $143,422. No dividends were paid, but after deducting taxes and interest on debt, the road had a surplus of $28,243 for the operation for the year.

Minneapolis—James Riley was arraigned in the police court on a charge of horsestealing and held to the grand jury in $500 bonds after waiving examination. He was accused of stealing a horse and buggy from Conrad Holgard.

White Bear—Chris Jensen's saloon, Cottage Park, was broken into early in the morning by two masked men and about $200, in addition to several dollars' worth of whiskey and cigars, was stolen. Thomas Ellison, the porter, who sleeps in the place, watched the proceeding from beneath the muzzle of a blue steel "44"

Dayton—One of the most remarkable family reunions ever held took place at the home of Mrs. John Bourgeous. There were present at the gathering Pierre Rouillard, who is in his 87th year, his 7 children, 46 grandchildren, 99 great-grandchildren and 6 great-great-grandchildren.

Minneapolis—Governor Johnson has an appointment on his hands at present, but it understood he will wait until after election before acting. Col. C. E. Bullard, commissioner of Itasca state park, has tendered his resignation to the governor, and has announced that he will move to Wadena as soon as his successor is named.

St. Paul—The receipts at the St. Paul postoffice for September were $80,219.20 as against $69,598.54 for September 1905, a gain of $10,620.66.

St. Paul—Howard Phyle's painting, "The Battle of Nashville," which he has been painting for the governor's room at the new capitol, arrived and will be hung up early this week. The three remaining paintings to occupy spaces in the governor's room are expected to arrive about Jan. 1.

Minneapolis—Senator Beveridge, in opening the campaign in Minnesota, declares for an aggressive policy in Cuba.

AN ELUCIDATION.

"Ah!" sighed the poet, "she comes and goes, uncertain, evanescent; now appearing, now vanishing; now charming us with her wiles and ways, and casting over our hearts the spell of her presence, luring us and leading us on to believe that she is ours forever; again hastening from us just when our clasp grows warm, just when we have come to know the dulcet sweetness of her voice; as fickle as a shadow, as—"

"What in the world is he talking about?" asked the large lady with the purple beads, in the rear seat.

"A cook, I think," offered the other large lady with the turquoise rings and the new lorgnette.—Judge.

Around.

"How is the arm you injured the other evening, Mr. Swift?"

"Oh, it is able to be around."

"Now, Mr. Swift, if you don't stop squeezing me I'll call mamma."—Houston Post.

Natural.

Did I not love my neighbor
As myself I'd be a churl;
Because you see my neighbor
Is a very pretty girl.

A QUESTION OF DOLLARS.

Jinks—Is Scribbler's new book out?

Winks—Yes, but I don't know now much.—Topeka Journal.

Look Ahead.

There's a sob and a sigh
And a doubt for to-morrow,
A cloud in the sky
And a cup filled with sorrow,
For the man who looks back
On the hopes that are dead,
Forgetting the ones
That are lying ahead.
—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Papa's Wisdom.

"What do you suppose your father would say if we were to elope?" asked the poor but proud young man.

"Oh," replied the pretty girl in the hammock, "he wouldn't say a word."

"Are you sure he wouldn't?" queried the y. m. anxiously.

"Yes," answered the p. g. "He'd simply move away and forget to leave his address."—Chicago Daily News.

Inexpensive, But—

Oldun—I just paid $50 for a new set of teeth. How do you like them?

Youngun—Oh, they look all right. But why didn't you call on Jones and get a full set inserted free?

Oldun—Why, I didn't know Jones was a dentist.

Youngun—He isn't, but he keeps a savage dog.—Chicago Daily News.

Those Dear Girls.

"I am not anxious to marry," said the girl who was beginning to be not so young. "I am fully able to fight life's battles alone."

"But how do you know that when you have never had an engagement?" asked the young widow.—Chicago Daily News.

In Explanation.

"Aren't you sometimes remorseful over the way you have crushed out your rivals in business?"

"My dear sir," answered the billionaire, "I did nothing to my rivals that they would not have done to me if they had thought of it first."—Washington Star.

Extremes Meet.

First Prisoner—What are you here for?

Second Prisoner—Fast riding. What are you here for?

"Slow riding."

"How's that?"

"I ran off with a bicycle."—Cassell's Journal.

Eccentric.

"What an eccentric person old man Wappleton is."

"Eccentric? I have never noticed anything queer about him."

"Haven't you? Why, he's always saying something good about somebody."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Place for Everything.

Patience—So you don't like frogs' legs?

Patrice—Oh, I think they're all right in their place.

"And where is their place, pray?"

"On the frogs!"—Yonkers Statesman.

Probably.

"The San Francisco Bulletin says that the average woman would rather have her husband pat her cheek than give her $1,000."

"Well, I guess the average husband would rather do it."—Houston Post.

Not Committed.

Subbubs—I thought you said the cottage was half a mile from the station.

Agent—Yis, but Oi niver said how far the station wor from the cottage.—N. Y. Sun.

JIM WAS WISE.

An excited, middle-aged lady bounced into the local police-station the other day and accosted the inspector on duty.

"Where's my Jim?" she demanded.

"Beg pardon, madam—dog, I presume?" said the officer.

"Don't you dare to presume nothing of the kind," snapped the lady. "Dog, indeed! No, sir, husband—my husband. He's missing, disappeared, decamped—"

"You don't say so!"

"But I'd have you to understand that I do say so, young man. How dare you sit there and flatly contradict a ratepayer—leastways, the lawful wife of one. I'll report you, sir. Do you hear that? I'll report you! Where's my husband?"

"My dear madam—"

"How dare you call me your dear madam? Do you think I come here to be insulted? I tell you my husband has decamped, and you sit there like a dummy! What do you think of that?"

"Well, madam," responded the polite inspector, "I haven't the pleasure of your husband's acquaintance, but I should say he's a very wise man. Constable Blunt, show this lady out."

Revenge.

The reporter had been sent to get an interview out of the noted burglar who had been caught in the act and was behind the bars at the police station.

"The boys say you put up a pretty stiff fight, Bill," said the reporter. "I'd like to have your version of the affair. It ought to make a good story."

"It'll make a good story, all right," sullenly answered Bill, "but I'll see you in Pittsburg before I'll give it to your paper. It was in your society columns that I saw the item that the Thompsons had shut up their house and gone away for the summer—and they hadn't."—Chicago Tribune.

Naturally She Was Surprised.

"Why, papa," said the fair girl, "wasn't that singular?"

"Wasn't what singular?" the old gentleman asked, as he examined the railway tickets which he had just purchased.

"The man at the window was actually polite, and he didn't seem to think it impertinent of us to want to ride on this road."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Almost Fearless.

"I want a woman to make balloon ascensions; she must be totally devoid of fear."

"I know just the woman you want."

"Is she fearless?"

"The only thing on earth that she fears is a mouse."

"We'll take her; we don't expect the impossible."—Houston Post.

Worked Before Eating.

"Do you ever take any exercise after a hearty meal, my man?" asked the lady at the back door, with an eye in the direction of her wood-pile.

"Do I?" replied the tramp between bites. "Why, ma'am, I've been walking all morning after this one!"—Yonkers Statesman.

True.

"Do you think women control their tongues better than men?"

"Sure. I never yet saw a man who could control a woman's tongue."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

A NATURAL INFERENCE.

Paddy—No, sorr, I can't swim.

Jones—Can't swim? Thought you said you were a Cork man?

Wasted Endeavor.

The waves keep breaking on the shore
With resonant and rhythmic stroke.
They still break on with ruthless roar,
Though all of us long since were broke.
—Washington Star.

The Pace That Kills.

"You were very successful in monopolizing your line of trade."

"I was," answered Mr. Cumrox. "I put in my life killing competition in order that the other members of my family might put in their lives killing time."—Washington Star.

Just Alike.

"There are 'lovers' leaps' all over the country, aren't they?"

"Yes, the aboriginal maiden was just like her civilized sister."

"In what respect?"

"She always jumped at the first chance."—Houston Post.

Different Methods.

She—I always judge a man by the looks of his shoes. Don't you?

He—Well, I think his head is something of an indicator.—Detroit Free Press.

Realism Overthrows Romanticism.

The Romantic One—How poetically beautiful is the evening dew.

The Practical One—Yes, you might call it the sweat on the brow of the hill.—N. Y. Sun.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT,

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-class matter August 30, 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn, under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

The county office campaign is on in Red Lake county, with evry one for himself,

St.Hilair Spectator: The indications are at present that there will be very little straight politices in Red Lake county until after the county seat question has been decided

There is not much prospect that the nominees of the Republican party on the legislative ticket, in this district will have any opposition next month, as there is no necessity for it, asthe fight was made at the primarys. This is not the case in Polk county where the state senator fight was not contested at the primary election, but they preposed to have an interesting little scrap at the general election next month.

There is two independant candidates in the field for Election to county office this fall, that will attract more that a passing notice, viz: Frank Jeffers for Register of Deeds, and H.T. McAnulty for superintendant of schools Both are well and favorable known throughout the county, and have held their possitions to the satisfaction of the people, and their re-election will depend largely on how strong a campaign is put up against them by the nominees of the republican ticket.

It is always amusing to us to see some of the young politicans on the county ticket, listen so patiently to the advice of the old heads when they tell them it is not necessary to spend money, to advertise in the local papers but just contribute a good campaign fund for general purposes, turn it over to the committee, (thats them) and they will manage the campaign. Well thay do manage it. That is they usually pocket the campaign fund and holler to the new office seeker to hustle and he will be all right. but when the returns comes in he finds he is skinned out of the office, and the other fellow elected, and the old heads jingle his money in their jeans and tell him that they don't see how it happened after the magnificent campaign he made. Well he gets the experience. The other fellow gets the office, and his old head campaigners get the money.

Let us suppose for a moment that the Democratic party was in power again and that they would enter upon the statutes those promises that they are making. What would be the result? They say free trade is a remedy for the trusts. They would put on the free list every article in which a trust is engaged. The result in this case would be that all the small institutions in the manufacture of trust made goods would go to the wall first and their employees would be driven to idleness and waht. The great trust would be the last to yield. When they did there would be nothing left to quarrel over. The remedy might be effective, but the cure would be worse than the trust, which gives employment to, its thousands at the best wages ever paid labor; enabling them to buy freely of the products of the field and forge. No, give us a better remedy.

The latest reports from Polk county are, that W. E. Rowe is quite sure to carry the City of Crookston for his election to the State Senate.

Hon. Halvor Steenerson will make two campaign speeches in each county in the Ninth congressional district during the campaign, and it is safe to say that whoever hears him will be convinced of his own and the party he represents sincerity in trying to legislate for the best interest of the common people.

When you hear a merchant say it dont pay to advertise, as people will find you without advertising, you can make up your mind that man is in the old rut, and his books are loaded down with a class of creditors that live merchants don't care to do business with, and they all find him all right. You bet they find him but the live man who pays cash goes to the live merchant who has told him through his local paper of what he has for sale, and the bargains he can give him.

* * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * *

Republican State Ticket.

United States Senator—
Knute Nelson,
Douglas County.

Governor—
A.L. Cole,
Cass County.

Lieutenant Governor—
A.O. Eberhart.
Blue Earth County.

Chief Justice—
Charles M. Start,
Olmsted County.

State Treasurer—
Clarence Dinehart,
Murray County.

Secretary of State—
Julius Schmahl,
Redwood County.

Attorney General—
E.T. Young,
Swift County.

State Auditor—
S.G. Iverson,
Fillmore County,

Clerk of Supreme Court—
C.A. Pidgeon,
Wright County,

Railroad Commissioner—
C.F. Staples,
Dakota County,

For Congress 9th District.
HALVOR STEENERSON
Polk County.

State Senator 61st Ditrict.
A. L. HANSON.

Representative 61st District.
JENS J OPSAHL.

How She Died.

A minor poet who talked of his lady's person being "curiously mix'd" would not be enthusiastically reviewed nowadays. But so startlingly beautiful was the lady in question, one Susanna Perwich, who died of rheumatic fever at Hackney on July 3, 1661, "in the flower of her age," that these lines in praise of her have not only been preserved, but they have even escaped classification with nonsense verse. This explanation is, perhaps, necessary before quoting the inspired account of her death:

> Behold, damp sheets
> Cling close about her in the bed,
> At which she, waking, said, "I'm dead!"
> Shall I the careless maid go blame
> And tell her what a horrid shame
> It is that by her negligence
> So choice a one is lost from hence?

—London Chronicle.

Dancing.

It is quite usual after a ball to find that the action of the heart shows traces of fatigue, particularly in delicate young women, who complain of a vague sensation of uneasiness, sadness and even of pain and are, in a word, in a peculiar condition that is not yet disease, nor is it health—much nearer the former than the latter. Diseases caused by dancing are commoner in women than in men. The most frequent are laryngitis, particularly in women who talk a great deal while dancing; colds, bronchitis and sometimes pneumonia and pleurisy. Dancing should be absolutely forbidden in all cases of consumption, which may assume a very rapid form from this cause. It is counter indicated as well in all cases of heart trouble.

Her Abilities.

"Do you believe there is anything in mind reading?"

"If there isn't, my wife's an awful good guesser. She never has to wait for me to do any confessing."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Kiss Feminine.

Brother—Which one of those Penton girls is it that you don't like? Sister—Ssah! Some one might hear you. When the crowd comes up I'll kiss her twice—Illustrated Bits.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of five dollars which became due March 14th 1906, and is due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Martha Kolstoe, a single women, mortgagor, to Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, mortgagee, bearing date the 13th day of March, 1905, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, on the 17th day of March 1905, at 4 o'clock P. M. in Book 35 of Mortgages, on page 8 thereof, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the county of Polk, State of Minnesota, on the 13th day of August, 1906, at 8 o'clock A. M. in Book 116 of Mortgages on page 418; and whereas, pursuant to the terms and condition of said mortgage by reason of said default, the whole principal sum of mortgage, to wit, thirty dollars, did on the 14th day of March 1906, become at once due and payable, and was so declared by said mortgagee; and whereas, there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of thirty dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of ten per cent per annum since March 14, 1906 and whereas, the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof;

Now, therefor, Notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to wit,:

Lots six (6) and seven (7) of section six (6) in township one hundred fifty one (151), north, of range thirty nine (39) in Polk County, Minnesota, and the east half of the south east quarter. (E.½ of S.E. ¼) of section one (1) in township one hundred fifty one (151), north, of range forty (40), in Red Lake County, Minnesota, which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Red Lake County, Minnesota, at the west front door at the courthouse in the City of Red Lake Falls, in said county and state on Saturday, the 13th day of October, 1906, at two (2) o'clock P.M. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of thirty dollars and interest as aforesaid, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and a reasonale attorney's fee as stipulated in said mortgage, the same being hereby claimed and stated to be the sum of twenty five dollars, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated August 22nd, 1906,

Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls Minn,
Mortgagee,
Chas. E. Boughton,
Attorney for Mortgagee,
Red Lake Falls, Minnesota.

The English Police.

In the conduct of the police department in an English city we find a striking comparison with our American notion of police work. In Manchester, as in London, the policeman is always the servant of the public. As in London, he carries neither club nor revolver. His duties are very nearly the same as those of a New York officer. It is in his method of doing his work that the striking difference lies. He is always quiet, always neat, always respectful, even deferential, in his treatment of the public. Such overbearing manners as we sometimes see in New York policemen would not be tolerated in Manchester—or in London, for that matter.—Success.

Origin of "Chauffeur."

There were chauffeurs long before automobiles. History tells us that about the year 1795 men strangely accoutered, their faces covered with soot and their eyes carefully disguised, entered by night farms and lonely habitations and committed all sorts of depredations. They garroted their victims, dragged them before a great fire, where they burned the soles of their feet and demanded information as to the whereabouts of their money and jewels; hence they were called "chauffeurs," a name which frightened so much our good grandmothers.—Paris Figaro.

Child Love.

Welcome to the parents the puny struggler, strong in his weakness, his little arms more irresistible than the soldier's, his lips touched with persuasion which Chatham and Pericles in manhood had not. His unaffected lamentations when he lifts up his voice on high, or, more beautiful, the sobbing child, the face all liquid grief, as he tries to swallow his vexation, soften all hearts to pity and to mirthful and clamorous compassion.—Emerson.

Merely a Precaution.

"Now, Lester," said the old codger, addressing his callow nephew in an admonitory tone, "it is as proper that you should pay the fiddler as it is to liquidate any other debt, but it's a fine exhibition of extry width betwixt the eyes to inquire the fiddler's price before the dance begins."—Puck.

Use your gifts faithfully and they shall be enlarged. Practice what you know and you shall attain to higher knowledge.—Arnold.

The Self Possessed Bride.

One is in the habit nowadays of seeing brides absolutely self possessed, almost jocose, laughing and smiling and nodding to their friends. Mothers and sisters never cry nowadays at parting.—Lady Violet Greville in Graphic.

Oddities.

Because a man cannot hear a dew drop is no sign that he is deaf, nor is it a sign of blindness because he never saw a horse fly, a board walk, a stone fence, a dog's pants, a rope walk or a clam bake.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam August 31, 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land office at Crookston Minn. August 24th, 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver, of the U. S. Land office at Crookston, Minn., on October 23, 1906 viz:

Nels Loiland,

H.E. no. 1161 Red Lake Series for the Lots 5, 6, 7, S.S.W. ¼, S.E. ¼, Sec. 27 Twp. 152 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ben K. Kvestad of Highlanding Minn. Halvor Swanson, Ole N. Loiland, Olaf Hanson of Hilde Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam September 28 1906.

Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston Minn. August September 25, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before L.G. Browning U.S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota, on November 5th 1906, viz:

Fred Solie,

H.E. No. 536 Red Lake Series, for the N.W. ¼ Sec. 16, Twp. 154, N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Knut Rogness, Ole Wiseth, Pete Brevik, of Germantown Minn. Olef Arakre of Brunkeberg Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Regester.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam October 5th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. September 27th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L.G. Browning U.S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota on November 5th 1906 viz:

Christen H. Bjerke.

H.E. No. 697, Red Lake Series, for the Lots 3, 4, E½ S.W. ¼ Sec. 31, Twp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

John M. Johnson, Bernt Johnson, Ole Gsving, of Brunkeberg Minn. Gulbrand Granum, of Thief River Falls Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam October 5th 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office, at Crookston Minn. September 28th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L.G. Browning, U.S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota on November 5th 1906 viz;

Thom M. Thorson,

H.E. No. 780 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 1, 2, E½ N.W. ¼ Sec. 7 Twp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ole H. Langlie, Jacob B. Nesheim, Carl J. Olson, of Brunkeberg Minn. Aaron E. Abraham of Thief Rivr Falls Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register

Nobody Was There.

To take the census of the British empire is a matter of difficulty in certain districts. A native official was ordered to take a census of what was known to be a populous village in Uganda. He returned with the report that there was no population, the explanation being that the inhabitants had fled on hearing of his approach. More precise instructions were given to him, and he paid another visit to the village. The result of his inquiry was given thus in the tabulated form: Number of huts, 257; inhabitants, men over eighteen years of age, 0; men under eighteen years of age, 0; women, 0; children, 0; total, 0.

Luxury In Bottles.

One of the many little signs of the growing luxury of the times is to be seen in the drug stores nowadays where there is kept in stock a supply of bottles for the ordinary run of household remedies with cut glass stoppers and the names of the drugs either ground on the glass or having a regular druggist's label of gilt on a white ground. These bottles are fairly expensive, for ones of pint size cost about a dollar, and from that figure they run down to 50 cents. It is another sign of the times that one of the regular labels kept in stock on these bottles is "peroxide."—New York Press.

Modest Oyama.

Self depreciation seems to be a common virtue of military heroes in Japan. In his parting address to his officers on the breaking up of the Manchurian army Marshal Oyama says, "That I, in spite of my defective ability, have been enabled to avoid any signal failure must be primarily ascribed to the loyalty and fidelity of the officers and soldiers under my command." Surely modesty could go no farther.

The House of Commons.

It was customary at one time when any important measure was under discussion to call the names of all members of the house of commons, with a view to securing a full attendance. Although a motion has been made for it, however, a call of the house has not been known since 1836, and consequently the custom has fallen into desuetude.

H. & B. MILLING CO.
BEST
VIVO
PATENT
98
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.
VIVO

VIVO

HANDLED BY ALL THE LEADING MERCHANTS OF THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

(ALWAYS CALL FOR VIVO)

We pay the highest marke price for all grain, at our mill in Thief River Falls, or at our elevator at Plummer, and always have on hand a compleat line of flour & feed at both points.

☞ Promt shipments made by boat to all points along the Red Lake river.

We solicit your orders.

Hanson & Barzen Milling Company.

THE MERCHANTS

State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds. Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.——— J. A. DUFFY, Cashier.

NORSK HANDEL.

DRY GOODS.

CLOTHING, SHOES, DRUGS

We carry a full and complete line of Groceries, Drugs & Patent Medicines.

☞ LOOK AT THIS. We pay the highest market price for, Hides, Wool, Seneka Root, Furs & All Farm Products

H.H. Finrow, Mg.

PLUMMER, ... MINN.

The Radny Store;

☞ THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE RADNY STORE.

John has, Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes.

A full and complete line of groceries.

Best brands of flour, at lowest market price

.... .00..........

Call and see me for bargains, at Raday post office and store.

John Radneskie.

IF YOU WANT TO DO BUSINESS,

With The People Of Eastern Red Lake County,

YOU SHOULD ADVERTISE

IN A PAPER,

THAT THEY TAKE AND READ.

TRY "THE SUNBEAM", WITH AN AD., FOR RESULTS.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

VIVO flour is the best. Ask your dealer for vivo.

HORSES FOR SALE, at the Plummer livery barn.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar, will cure your cough.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar will bring relief to Asthma patients.

Pay up your back subscription.

Our school commenced last Monday with E. A. Mostue as teacher.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar Do not wait get it at the first indication of cough or cold.

Andew Ellingson the Higlanding merchant came over Sunday to look at the threshing machine.

Ray Arndt has been treating his house to new paint this week, which adds much to its apperence.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar, is a remedy that cures by removing the cause Try a 50ct. bottle.

Chris Larson the Anton dealer will pay you the highest cash price for cattle; see him before you sell.

Ausmond Hoomy the Erie carpenter is assisting Rev. E. A. Mostue on his new residence this week.

Alf Eve made a business trip to Thief River Falls on Tuesday, returning home to day.

CATTLE WANTED, Highest market price paid for fat cattle, inquire at this office, or of Chris Larson at Anton Post office.

James Colman returned from N.D. last Saturday, and will go with the Hommy Bros. threshing rig the rest of the fall.

James O'Brien and Peter O'Toole drove a bunch of cattle to Thief River Falls last Saturday for Chris Larsen the Anton dealer, returning home Monday.

Special Star mail rout Inspector Smith was up here on last Tuesday to look over the route from here to Lillo. He was driven out by Joe Marrset the popular liveryman and horse dealer, of Plummer.

Edward Singer and Henry Peterson, returned home from Ardock N.D on last Friday evening. They report a very prosperous fall out there with good crops, good wages, and good weather.

Tore Moen and Ole Nesland returned from N. D. last Monday haveing compleated their falls threshing out there. Mr. Moen dropped a big dollar at this office so the rays of "The Sunbeam" would shine on him for an other year.

P. C. Wolde showed us a fine sample of corn on last Sunday, that he raised on breaking this season, which he calls the "Debs" corn. The ears are well filled and ripened, which proves that corn can be successfuly raised in this part of the country.

The Dan Patch, and Red Lake Flyer, boats passed by here this morning running a race down the river. The "Dan" was in the lead throwing the water so high that Ole Peterson could hardly see, while Swanson was trying to put on sail to try to catch the flying Dan Patch.

The Hommy Bros. moved their threshing rig up from Equality last Saturday and have been doing the threshing on this side of the river. They will cross to the other side on the Sullivan ferry and do the threshing on the High Landing side next week. Their machine seems to be doing good work and giveing good satisfaction to the farmers.

Hans Quam and family returned from Dakota yesterday.

Post master Singer imforms us that the Rhoda post office has been designated as a money order office, on its merits for large amount of business done during the past year.

James Colman threshed with Albert Bakkens rig in N.D., this fall and reports that they made a big falls run, clearing about two thousand dollars.

Walt McAndress had quite a long sieg of threshing for a small job, the machine and crew coming on Saturday afternoon and, owing to bad weather remaining until Tuesday evening to do five hours threshing.

FOR SALE: One pair of work oxen four years old, well baoke to harness. One work horse, gentle and a good single driver, weight about twelve hundred pounds. One full blooded short horn cow, milk strain, 7 years old. One short horn hieffer calf, four months old, on easy terms, or at a discount for cash. For further particulars, see or write J. A. Hendicks, at Fosston Minn.

Request For Votes.

I am asking for re election to the office of Register of Deeds and would deeply appreaciate the support of the voters in all parts of the County

FRANK JEFFERS.

Having served one term as County Attorney, I am asking for a second term, and would deeply appreciate the support of the voters in all parts of the County.

THOMAS GERMO.

Mohammedan Sects.

Mohammedans divide themselves into two principal sects—Shiah and Sunni, the Persians representing the bulk of the former, the Turks of the latter. The chief points on which they differ are the condition of the soul after death and the succession of caliphs. "The Sunni belief is that there is one immortal God, whose works are without beginning or end, and that he will be visible to the souls of the blessed, while the Shiahs deny the immortality of the soul and maintain that the coexistent principles of Zoroaster will forever contend for the mastery." With regard to the prophet's successors, the Sunnis claim that the lawful successor of Mohammed was Abu Bekr and after him Omar, Osman and Ali, nephew and son-in-law of Mohammed. The Shiahs, however, reject the first three and hold that Ali was the only legitimate successor. Shiahs pray but three times a day and enjoin pilgrimages to Nejef, Kerbela, Kazimain, Meshed (Persia), Samara and Kum as well as to Mecca and Medinah. Sunnis make pilgrimages only to the two latter cities and pray five times a day. From this it can be readily understood that the circumstances of the Turks being in possession of the shrines of Nejef (Meshed Ali), Kazimain and Kerbela is most displeasing to devout Shiahs.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Stay With It.

The first day mother sent me to school I went home at recess, thinking school was out. As I have grown older I find that a whole lot of people did the same thing, and the sad part of the affair is that too many of us never went back. In life be careful that you don't go home at recess. If you start to learn a trade or profession, stay by it and master it. Don't chase away at recess. If you have a business, attend to it. Don't go home at recess. This going home at recess has sent many a business man into bankruptcy. It has caused mothers' tears to flow and mother hearts to ache. It has made crusty old bachelors and sour old maids. It has filled worlds with ignorance and made barren deserts of fertile plains. Going home at recess means that you have fallen asleep at the switch and your train has plunged into the ditch. Always stay until school is out.—Osborne County (Kan.) Farmer.

The Air of London.

There is no fresh air in the heart of London, according to the conclusions of a recent investigator. He says: "No evidence of ozone was anywhere apparent except at Brownswood park, in the northeast. It was from the northeast quarter the wind was blowing, and the air had lost all trace of ozone before it had reached Hyde park. At Bushey park, although practically a country district, no ozone was present in the air. London had not only abstracted the goodness out of the air that swept over it, but had added to it the exhalations from the breath and bodies of millions of human beings and of tens of thousands of animals. Persons living within a one or two mile radius of Charing Cross cannot have fresh air entering their dwellings at any time."

Ill fortune never crushed that man whom good fortune deceived not.—Ben Jonson.

ALL YOUR FALL NEEDS,

Will be well taken care of, IF you come to the

GOLDEN RULE DEPARTMENT STORE,

THIEF RIVER FALLS.

Complete Departments, In CLOTHING, DRY GOODS, LADIES CLOKES, SHOES. Underware, Hats and Caps. all kinds Rubber goods, and Sheeplined Coats, and Don't Forget our GROCERY DEPARTMENT. We buy all kinds of farm produce.

O. J. SCHEI & CO., Props.

MARKS'S LUNG BALSAM, with TAR.

For the cure of all diseases of the lungs, throat and chest, as Cough, Cold, Asthma, Bronchitis La Grip and will Prevent consumption when taken in time.

Free To Women.

Our handsome catalog of Womens Cloaks, Suits, and Skirts sent free on request, showing all the latest styles. We manufacture our goods and sell direct to customers. Every garment sent subject to examination.

Write now.

MAIL ORDER GARMENT CO.,
508 Century Bldg. Minneapolis, Minn.

J. K. WOOD,
COUNTY SURVEYOR, &
CIVIL ENGINEER.

Will give all orders for Surveying prompt attention.

Office at Thief River Falls
Minnesota.

U.S. Mail,

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 8. 30 a. m. on Tuesday's Thurday's and Saturday's. & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 3. p.m.

Wm. G. HUNT, P.M.

MONEY TO LOAN.

I have money to loan on real-estate at 7½ per cent. Payments at the land office made for you when you make final proof.

Special attention given to Notary Public work.

Applications to make final proof written free.

Stephen Singer,
Rhoda Minn

Subscribe for The Sunbeam,

Wanted: Gentleman or lady with good reference, to travel by rail or with a rig, for a firm of $250,000.00 capital. Salary $1,072 00 per year and expenses; salary paid weekly and expenses advanced. Address, with stamp, Jos. A. Alexander, Sunbeam, Minn

LAND OFFICE BUSINESS.

U.S. Commissioner L. G. Browning with office located at Thief River Falls, is prepared to take homestead entries final proof etc., within the Crookston U. S. Land District.

Office in News building, three doors south of the post office.

ECZEMA and PILE CURE FREE.

Knowing what it was to suffer, I will give FREE OF CHARGE, to any afflicted a positive cure for Eczema, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Piles and Skin Diseases. Instant relief. Don't suffer longer. Write F. W. Williams, 400 Manhattan Avenue, New York. Enclose Stamp.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Oct. 12th, 1906.

Department of the Interior.

Land Office at Crookston Minn. September 20th; 1906.

Notice is hereby given that OLOF SNOBACK of Rhoda Minn., has filed notice of his intention to make final Commutation proof in support of his claim viz: Homestead Entry No, 1216 Red Lake Series made July 26th 1905, for the S. E. ¼ Section 32 Township 153 N. Range 40 W., and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on November 16th 1906,

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Audreas Christiansen, George Singer, Stephen Singer, Knut K. Olson, all of Rhoda Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Egyptian Styles of Writing.

The Egyptians had four separate and distinct styles or forms of writing—the hieroglyphic, the hieratic, the enchorial and the Coptic. The hieroglyphic was probably in use as early as the year 4000 B. C. and at first was made up entirely of pictures. About the year 2000 B. C. the hieratic form or style was introduced. In this the picture hieroglyphics were greatly simplified, finally developing into forms purely linear. The enchorial form of writing was in use among the Egyptians from about the year 700 B. C. until about the year 200 A. D. and was still a further simplification of the earlier forms, which finally developed into the alphabetic form known as the Coptic.

The Horse's Failing.

Hans, the ruralist, was in search of a horse.

"I've got the very thing you want," said Bill Lennox, the stableman—"a thoroughgoing road horse, five years old, sound as a quail, $175 cash down, and he goes ten miles without stopping."

Hans threw his hands skyward.

"Not for me," he said, "not for me. I wouldn't gif you 5 cents for him. I live eight miles out in der country, und I'd haf to walk back two miles."—Norman Voice.

Getting Specific.

Bifferly—When you and your wife were first married you used to call each other "birdie," didn't you? McSwat—Yes. Bifferly—Do you still do it? McSwat—Well, I call her a parrot and a magpie, and she usually refers to me as a jay.—Exchange.

Naturally.

Gunner—Yes, he is a champion golf player, and so is the girl he is going to marry. Not only that, the minister who will perform the ceremony is very fond of the game.

Guyer—Ah, I suppose he will be pleased to link them together.—Chicago News.

Bound to Crop Out.

"Yes, I believe I did say you were always lying about yourself."

"I'll have you to understand, sir, that I am not used to this kind of talk. I'm a gentleman, sir."

"There you go. Can't keep from it, can you?"—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Time to Get Busy.

Her Husband — I thought you were going to visit your mother?

His Wife—And so I am.

Her Husband—Well, you had better begin to pack your trunk at once. The train leaves in forty-eight hours.—Detroit Tribune.

THE FIRST
STATE BANK, OF

THIEF RIVER FALLS. WILL LOAN YOU THE Money To Make Your Second Payment, or to make your final proof. Give us a call, as we give the best rates

On Farm Loans.

Stephen Singer, Edward Singer,

SINGER BROS.
Dealers In,

WORKING MEN'S CLOTHING

This line is justly celebrated because they fit and STAND THE WEAR

WE CAN FIT YOU

Groceries, flour & feed.

Dry Goods, Boots & Shoes.

HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR FARM PRODUCE

Rhoda, Minn.

NEW STORE,

AT ANTON, MINNESOTA.

Dry Goods, Goceries, Flour & feed.

Fine & Heavy Shoes, of best quality.

EXCLUSIVE AGENTS FOR THE CELEBRATED DE LAVAL CREAM SEPERATOR, IN THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

Any Kind Of Stock Taken In Exchange For Goods.

Give me a call.

Located at Anton post office, on the Red Lake River, Eigh miles east of Thief River Falls.

Christ Larsen.-Proprietor.

Love in a Motor-Car.

By RALPH HENRY BARBOUR.

Hubbard shifted to the low speed and drew up in front of the hotel steps. There was a livery outfit there already, but Hubbard shouted it out of the way and took his place at the entrance. Hubbard's sole companion, Billy Stone, climbed out of the car carefully and sprang up the steps.

As Hubbard calmly lighted a cigarette a very charming voice rippled from the steps. He glanced around, prepared, in fact rather anxious, to have his senses ravished by visions of feminine loveliness, and he was not disappointed. A girl all in white came down the steps. At the lowest step she turned and Hubbard saw that she was accompanied by two older ladies.

"You and auntie had better sit back, Mrs. Perry," directed the girl in a rippling voice. "I'm going to get in front."

Hubbard stared. Around to the back went the trio. Bill Stone had left the door open and in climbed the stoutest of the three. It speaks well for Hubbard's presence of mind that he was out on the ground like a shot and was helping the second of the elderly pair into the car before the exhaust had chugged thrice.

"Where to, please, miss?" asked Hubbard, trying to look as much like a chauffeur as possible.

"Didn't they tell you at the stable?" she asked, settling herself in the front seat by his side. "We want to go over to Magnolia to the Oceanview."

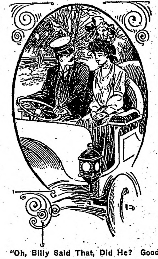
"I thought it was Magnolia," he said promptly, as the car shot forward, missed the telegraph pole by three inches and shot down the hill, "but I like to be sure, you know."

"You needn't think I'm frightened; I've gone twice as fast as this old car ever could go; but I don't like hills."

"Well, for a livery car, miss, this one can hike along quite smartly," he said, deferentially. "And when we get over on the Magnolia road I'll let her out, if you like."

"Thank you," she answered indifferently, wondering the while why she should want to make a good impression on this chauffeur, and feeling rather contemptible because she did, "I should like to see what it can do."

Really he didn't look the least bit in the world like a hired motor car man, she thought. And he had three awfully interesting looking rings on his sunburned hands. Then, too, he was frightfully handsome, with stunning features and steely eyes and an expression that suggested calm fearlessness, capability and—yes, positively—audacity.



"Oh, Billy Said That, Did He? Good for Billy!"

She dropped her eyes, felt a blush creeping into her cheeks and broke into rather incoherent questions as to the process of drying and salting fish. He didn't know a great deal about it himself, but what he told her was undeniably interesting even if it sometimes ran wide of the facts. By the time they were rumbling through Gloucester each was very much interested in the other.

At the Oceanview, to the crowded veranda of which fashionable hostelry he swung up dashingly at break-neck speed, the ladies alighted and he was instructed to wait for them while they made a call.

An hour later—when they had threaded their way skillfully down the drive—she asked:

"Have you been doing this long?"

"Doing—?"

"Running automobiles," she explained.

"Oh, yes, I have—about three years."

"Are you—are you making a profession of it?"

"Well, to an extent, yes," he replied; at least that was about his mother's idea of it, he reflected amusedly.

She asked questions about the machine, and Hubbard did his best to be interesting, and was so successful that when they were once more inhaling the aroma of drying fish she was almost sorry.

"I wish," he ventured when the end was in sight, "I wish you would allow me to take you out again before long. You see, there's lots worth seeing."

She turned and held a hurried consultation with the others. Then,

"Could you come for us to-morrow afternoon?" she asked.

"Yes, miss. At what time?"

She agreed to say two.

Hubbard was relieved to find that Stone was not in sight about the hotel when they drew up. If only Billy could be kept out of the way!

The next afternoon the big blue Farwell chugged up to the Harborside.

Hubbard waited ten minutes, and then, just as he had decided to send word to the ladies, his heart gave a bound. Through the front door stepped the girl. It was all right! He leaped out of the car, raised his cap and—found himself staring at Billy Stone.

There he stood, smiling at the car and pulling the end of his ridiculous brown mustache. Hubbard groaned. But—well, he would carry it off as best he might. He tried to get Billy's eye, but Billy wouldn't look. What did it mean?

"The others aren't coming to-day," said Miss Carson. "And so you can drive it as fast as you like. Can't he, Billy?"

"Certainly," answered Billy, but without enthusiasm. Hubbard ground his teeth over that "Billy." It sounded so very chummy! He bowed and held out his hand to help her into the front seat, but she drew back, stifling a little smile, and:

"I shall sit back to-day," she said, with dignity. "Come on, Billy."

Well, they went to Rockport and they came home again. It was a very uninteresting ride.

When they rolled into Gloucester Miss Carson asked him to stop at one of the stores for a moment. She alighted and Billy announced his intention of seeking a book store and buying some magazines. Hubbard felt instinctively that he had gone for candy. He waited glumly. But almost instantly Miss Carson returned.

"They haven't got what I want," she said, despairingly.

"If you will get in," said Hubbard, "I will take you to another store around the corner. They have everything there."

"But Mr. Stone?"

"We'll come back for him."

"We-ll, all right," she consented.

As they passed the next corner there was a hail and Hubbard had a fleeting glimpse of Billy Stone, his arms piled high with packages.

"Isn't the store a long way off?" she inquired uneasily, when they had left the main street and were speeding up a hill.

"Some little distance," answered Hubbard.

"Where are we going, please?" she asked presently, with cold dignity.

"Anisquam. It's about three miles over here. It's very interesting, Miss Carson."

"Mr. Hubbard!"

"Yes?" But he didn't look around.

"I want you to turn instantly and go back to Gloucester!"

"Not until you've promised to go out riding with me the day after to-morrow and every second day thereafter during your stay here and in the mountains."

"What? Are you crazy?"

"No, Miss Carson, not at all."

"Then what do you mean?" she demanded, "by asking me such a thing? Take me home at once. If you don't I shall call for help."

Hubbard stirred uneasily. She was taking it much worse than he had expected her to. Something was wrong somewhere.

"The idea!" she continued scathingly. "I shall report you to your employer!"

He turned and looked at her in bewilderment.

"My employer?"

"Certainly. I shall tell them at the stable how you have forcibly compelled me to listen to your insults and—"

"I beg your pardon, but hasn't Billy told you?"

"Billy? Mr. Stone? Told me what?" she asked more quietly, somewhat impressed by his expression and manner.

"Miss Carson, I'm going to make a clean breast of it and throw myself on your mercy," he said. And he did so, to her mingled confusion and mirth. When he had finished—

"And Billy lied, didn't he?" she asked, thoughtfully.

"Well, Billy wasn't taking any chances."

"What do you mean?" she asked, innocently.

"I mean that Billy didn't want anyone to help him at his job."

"Job? What job?"

"Admiring you, Miss Carson."

"Oh! I—now can't we turn back?"

"Of course. I have your promise?"

"Don't be foolish!"

"But have I?"

"Mr. Hubbard, it is very, very late."

"And it's getting later."

"You're awfully mean!"

"And I'm getting meaner." He turned and surprised a smile on her lips.

"You're awfully silly—and stubborn," she laughed.

"Well, I'm stubborn, I'll grant you. And unless you want to see Anisquam from top to bottom, and portions of Bay View, and Lanesville, and—"

"Oh, stop, please! I—I promise!"

The machine stopped instantly.

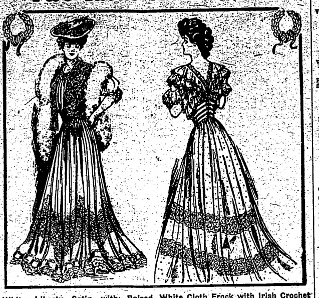
"Thank you," he said earnestly. His right hand swooped down on one of hers and squeezed it ecstatically.

"There!" she said to herself, with a gasp, as they swung around and started homeward in the face of a glorious sunset, "I knew all along he was just that sort!"

But she didn't seem to care.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

Two Ideas from Paris.



White Liberty Satin with Raised White Pastilles, Insertion of Heavy White Lace.

White Cloth Frock with Irish Crochet Jacket and Incertions.

The Home.

To remove the squeak from a wicker chair or settee, chalk the parts upon which the friction falls.

Cane-seated chair bottoms that have sagged may be made as tight as ever by washing them with hot water and leaving to dry in the open air.

If a bedstead creaks at each move of the sleeper remove the slats and wrap the ends of each in old newspapers. This will prove a complete silencer.

Varnish and paint stains in coarse fabrics can be removed by first saturating with turpentine and then washing. Ivory knife handles that have become yellow can be restored to their former whiteness by rubbing with turpentine.

To prepare feathers for pillows place the feathers in a large tub and pour over them two pounds of quicklime thoroughly dissolved in two gallons of water. The feathers should be allowed to remain in the tub five days.

To clean the inside of the cookstove soak some corncobs in coal oil. Place two or three cobs under the top lids and under the oven, then close dampers and light the cobs. They will burn the soot out clean. A damp day is the best time, as then danger of fire is less.

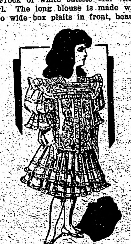
Iron rust, it is said, may be removed by tying a little cream of tartar in the stained spot before putting the article to boil. If this does not succeed, thicken lemon juice with equal parts of salt and starch, add some soft soap, apply the mixture to the cloth, and lay it in the hot sun. If the first application does not remove the spots, repeat until they have entirely disappeared.

If there is any fear that a bed not usually slept on is damp, put a bright looking-glass between the sheets and cover it up. In a few minutes examine it. If its surface is dimmed there is cause for uneasiness. If a bright looking-glass is not at hand a tumbler warmed and turned upside down will answer the same purpose.

To clean a library properly one should have a real reverence for books. After the furniture is all removed from the room and the floor has received the attention to be given it, then turn to the books. Take one shelf at a time. Wipe each book as it is removed from the shelf; have a small hair dust brush and with this brush the tops, sides and bottom of the books. Be very particular to replace the volumes in the proper order. Nothing exasperates a book lover more than to have well-arranged shelves mixed up by house-cleaning methods.

CHILD'S FROCK OF BATISTE.

Frock of white batiste for little girl. The long blouse is made with two wide box plaits in front, beautifully embroidered and bordered with ruffles of Valenciennes lace.



The square yoke is made with groups of tucks and Valenciennes insertion, as is also the little double skirt. The short, puffed sleeves, with their caps and frills, are also trimmed with Valenciennes lace and insertion.

OF AID TO HOSTESS.

SUGGESTIONS FOR NOVEL AND PLEASING ENTERTAINMENTS.

Innovation at a Recent Boston Wedding—Lottery Bag Game Amusing to Both Grown-Ups and Children—Maizepop Party.

A Bridal Breakfast.

A recent Boston bride carried out the wedding bell idea in a most effective manner. A cluster of five bells, made of wire and covered with ferns, were suspended over the dining-room table by white satin ribbons. The rims of the bells were of white carnations, the clappers were of white rosebuds. At each plate the guests found their names inscribed on white cards decorated with a hand-painted spray of maiden hair ferns and in the upper left hand corner a tiny bell was tied with a bow of white ribbon. These bells may be purchased by the dozen or hundred, and are called costume bells.

The ice cream was frozen in bell shaped molds, with a spray of orange blossoms at the top, and instead of the regulation square cake boxes for souvenirs, they, too, were bell shaped, with the initials of the bride and groom in green and white tracery. The ceremony was performed under a huge veil, and the aisle was formed by a bevy of young maids who held ropes of smilax instead of the customary ribbons.

A Lottery Bag.

This is a game enjoyed by children or grown ups, and proves an entertaining feature for a party. Provide a large vase, with a neck which will admit the hand, or a bag with a draw string. Fill this receptacle with peanuts. Pass slips of paper to the guests and ask them to write down the number of nuts, which they think they will draw out in one handful.

Each takes a turn, and then puts down the actual number drawn out. The one who comes the nearest the first number receives a prize, and the person furthest away from the original guess receives a consolation prize. Serve salted peanuts, the "Jumbo" variety, peanut butter sandwiches, a salad and peanut ice cream.

Peanuts strung with beads make effective portieres. For people who really like peanuts, a soup made by adding the crushed milk to a cream soup is very delicious, and serve it as a first course in bouillon cups.

A Maizepop Party.

The very latest invention for autumn entertainments is the "Maizepop" party. It has an exceedingly novel sound, but it is only the English for "popcorn."

Just recently our popcorn has been introduced into England by two enterprising Americans under the name of "Maizepop," and is being received with great eclat. In consequence, our plebeian popcorn has taken a decided rise in artistic circles.

Send out the invitations in green crepe paper ears of corn. For decorations the red and white ears of corn hung in festoons over grills and doorways are very effective. Pass each guest an ear of corn with a wooden plate, such as grocers use, let them shell and count the grains, keeping account of the number, then pour the contents into a large receptacle. Each person makes a guess as to the number, the one coming nearest gets a prize. Then have poppers for the men, and some shelled popcorn. When a good sized bowlful is popped, give each a needle and thread with ribbons of different colors, a half-inch in width. The girls make watch chains for the men, and the men make necklaces for the girls by sewing grains of popcorn to the ribbon. Partners are found for refreshment or for whatever contest the hostess has provided by matching a necklace and ribbon.

For refreshments serve a cream corn soup, cornmeal gems, bowls of mush with cream, parched, salted and buttered corn, instead of nuts.

MADAME MERRI.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES produce the brightest and fastest colors with less work and no muss.

People with real troubles never advertise them.

Hurt, Bruise or Sprain
St. Jacobs Oil relieves from pain.

Those men who ride on the water wagon get some awful jolts.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Ghastly Foreign Pun.

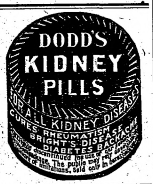
Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, the noted American clubwoman, has been received abroad by royalty, and some of the foreign papers have the temerity to declare that she has a proverbial right to look at a king.

Hard-Working Chinese Official.

Everybody in China works hard, even those who have reached the highest positions. It is related of a member of the Chinese cabinet that he left home every morning at two o'clock, as he was on duty at the palace from three to six. As a member of the privy council he was engaged from six to nine. From nine until 11 he was at the war department, of which he was president. As the member of the board of punishment he was in attendance from 12 till two, and as a minister of the foreign office he spend every day from two till five or six there. In addition he frequently served on special boards or commissions.

Not What He Was Used To.

Ever since John D. Rockefeller became an honorary member of the American Press Humorists' association stories more or less apocryphal have been afloat regarding him. It is beginning to be suspected that some of them have been invented by his fellow humorists. One of the latest refers to an occasion last summer when he entertained a lot of slum children at his stock farm near Cleveland. Mr. Rockefeller gave each of them, among other things, some milk to drink, part of it at least being the product of a $2,000 prize cow. "How do you like it?" he asked when they had finished. "Gee, it's fine!" responded one little fellow, who added after a thoughtful pause: "I wisht our milkman kep' a cow!"



DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS
FOR ALL KIDNEY DISEASES
CURES RHEUMATISM
BRIGHT'S DISEASE BACKACHE
DIABETES

SICK HEADACHE
CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.
Positively cured by these Little Pills.
They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.
SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.
Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature
Brentgood
REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

He Knows the kind of Waterproof Oiled Clothing that stands the hardest service
Do You Know?
TOWER'S FISH BRAND
Made for all kinds of wet work or sport
SOLD EVERYWHERE
A J TOWER CO. BOSTON U S A
TOWER CANADIAN CO LTD TORONTO CAN

NERVOUS DEBILITY

A Scranton Woman Tells How Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Made Her Well and Strong.

Nervous debility is the common name for what the doctors term neurasthenia. It is characterized by mental depression, fits of the "blues," or melancholy, loss of energy and spirits. The patient's eyes become dull, the pink fades from the cheeks, the memory becomes defective so that it is difficult to recall dates and names at will. Some of these symptoms only may be present or all of them. The remedy lies in toning up the nervous system and there is no medicine better adapted for this purpose than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

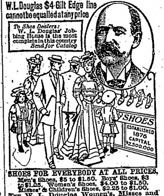
Mrs. Jane J. Davies, of No. 314 Warren street, Scranton, Pa., says: "Some years ago I became greatly reduced in health and strength and my nervous system became so debilitated that I felt wretched. I could not rest or sleep well at night and woke up as weary and languid in the morning as I was when I went to bed. My head ached in the morning and often there was a pain in my right side which was worse when I sat down. My nerves were on edge all the time, every little noise bothered me and I was generally miserable. Then I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, as my husband had taken them with good results, and they did wonders for me. Now I have no more pain in my side, no more headaches, I sleep well and feel strong and able to do my work."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cured Mrs. Davies and they can do just as much for other weak, pale, ailing men or women who are slipping into a hopeless decline. They strike straight at the root of all common diseases caused by poor and impoverished blood.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N.Y.

YOU CANNOT
CURE
all inflamed, ulcerated and catarrhal conditions of the mucous membrane such as nasal catarrh, uterine catarrh caused by feminine ills, sore throat, sore mouth or inflamed eyes by simply dosing the stomach.
But you surely can cure these stubborn affections by local treatment with
Paxtine Toilet Antiseptic
which destroys the disease germs, checks discharges, stops pain, and heals the inflammation and soreness.
Paxtine represents the most successful local treatment for feminine ills ever produced. Thousands of women testify to this fact. 50 cents at druggists.
Send for Free Trial Box
THE R. PAXTON CO., Boston, Mass.

W. L. DOUGLAS
$3.50 & $3.00 Shoes
BEST IN THE WORLD
W.L.Douglas $4 Gilt Edge line cannot be equalled at any price
To Shoe Dealers: W. L. Douglas' Jobbing House is the most complete in this country Send for Catalog



SHOES FOR EVERYBODY AT ALL PRICES.
Men's Shoes, $5 to $1.50. Boys' Shoes, $3 to $1.25. Women's Shoes, $4.00 to $1.50. Misses' & Children's Shoes, $2.25 to $1.00.
Try W. L. Douglas Women's, Misses and Children's shoes; for style, fit and wear they excel other makes.
If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W.L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer, and are of greater value than any other make.
Wherever you live, you can obtain W. L. Douglas shoes. His name and price is stamped on the bottom, which protects you against high prices and inferior shoes. Take no substitute. Ask your dealer for W. L. Douglas shoes and insist upon having them.
Fast Color Eyelets used; they will not wear brassy.
Write for Illustrated Catalog of Fall Styles.
W. L. DOUGLAS, Dept. 12, Brockton, Mass.

Wood Sawing Outfits
ASK FOR FREE CATALOG ST-172
FAIRBANKS, MORSE & CO., St. Paul, Minn.

$25,000.00 FOR AGENTS. Pleasant work among your friends, frequent sales, large commissions, and big prizes for all. Address Dept. 15 X, 11 E. 24th St., N. Y. City.

REAL ESTATE.
VIRGINIA FARMS 5 to 5,000 acres at $4 acre up. Catalog free; large map 10c. stamps. Southern Timber & Land Co., Inc., Petersburg, Va.

How to Save DOLLARS in Cooking and Heating
It has cost many stove users HUNDREDS OF WASTED DOLLARS to find this out.
Cut out this Coupon and mail to us and we will solve this problem for you. You will get all this information FREE.
GARLAND STOVES AND RANGES
"The World's Best"
Sold by Leading Dealers Everywhere
FREE INFORMATION COUPON
WRITE PLAINLY and only on ONE SIDE OF THE PAPER.
Address Manager Advice Department
THE MICHIGAN STOVE COMPANY, Detroit, Mich.
Largest Makers of Stoves and Ranges in the World.
A STOVE or RANGE to meet the wants of all—also a complete line Garland Gas Ranges.
No attention can be given to your letter unless this coupon, fully filled out, is attached.
42
Send me free of charge your Stove Book on
Cast Ranges
Steel Ranges
Cook Stoves
Gas Ranges
Base Burners
Heating Stoves
Oak Stoves
Gas Heaters
Also your Expert Stove Advice free of charge.
Indicate this way (X) the kind of stove or range wanted.
My stove dealer's name
My Name
Address
State

ALASKAN CABLE IS BUSY.

Line to Be Duplexed and 200 More Miles Added.

Few people who have not been over the ground have any conception of the wonderful development of Alaskan interests and trade. For instance, the commercial receipts from the Alaskan cable and telegraph lines for the month of July amounted to $24,000. The rapid increase in the demands upon the system will be met by the government by duplexing the cable.

The cable ship Burnside, which is to install the duplexing apparatus at the Alaskan end of the cable, will carry about 200 miles of new cable for the extension of the service to Ketchikan. This extension will be effected by tapping the lines from Sitka to Juneau at Cape Fanshaw. From that point a branch line will be extended down the Wrangel, then to Hadley on Prince of Wales island, and then to Ketchikan, which is only 60 miles from Fort Simpson, the English town which is to be the terminus of the Grand Trunk and Pacific railroads.

It is believed that this additional 200 miles of cable will largely increase the cable receipts, as it taps a country rich in mines, fishery and canning industries and greatly in need of daily communication with the United States. It is expected that this new line will be completed by November 1.—Pilgrim.

TIRED BACKS.

The kidneys have a great work to do in keeping the blood pure. When they get out of order it causes backache, headaches, dizziness, languor and distressing urinary troubles. Keep the kidneys well and all these sufferings will be saved you. Mrs. S. A. Moore, proprietor of a restaurant at Waterville, Mo., says: "Before using Doan's Kidney Pills I suffered everything from kidney troubles for a year and a half. I had pain in the back and head, and almost contmous in the loins and felt weary all the time. A few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills brought great relief, and I kept on taking them until in a short time I was cured. I think Doan's Kidney Pills are wonderful."

For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

HAD IT ALL FIGURED OUT.

Couple Not Only Were Going to Live, But Become Rich.

Lord Sholto Douglas, who was arrested recently in Maine through an error, was congratulated at a Portland hotel on the courtesy he had shown in pardoning the erring Maine police.

"Why shouldn't I pardon them?" said Lord Douglas, laughing. "They did their duty. Their calculations were wrong, that is all.

"I admit that their calculations were absurdly wrong. They reminded me of a young lady I used to know when I lived in the west.

"This young lady, whose family was well to do, announced to her father one night that she was going to marry a penniless man.

"'If you marry him,' her father grumbled, 'how on earth will you live?'

"'Oh,' said the girl, confidently, 'we have figured that all out and it is very simple. You know that black hen I bought last week?'

"'Yes. What of it?'

"'Well, I have consulted the best poultry circulars, and they all agree that a good hen will raise 20 chicks a year. That means that next season I shall have 21 hens. These at the season's end, each having raised her 20 young, will give me 420 in all. The next season there will be 8,400, the next 168,000, and the next 3,360,000. Just think of that! With chickens at 50 cents apiece we will then be worth $1,685,000. So you see, papa, you needn't worry about us.'"

LOOSE TEETH.

Made Sound by Eating Grape-Nuts.

Proper food nourishes every part of the body, because Nature selects the different materials from the food we eat, to build bone, nerve, brain, muscle, teeth, etc.

All we need is to eat the right kind of food slowly, chewing it well—our digestive organs take it up into the blood and the blood carries it all through the body, to every little nook and corner.

If some one would ask you, "Is Grape-Nuts good for loose teeth?" you'd probably say, "No, I don't see how it could be." But a woman in Ontario writes:

"For the past two years I have used Grape-Nuts Food with most excellent results. It seems to take the place of medicine in many ways, builds up the nerves and restores the health generally.

"A little Grape-Nuts taken before retiring soothes my nerves and gives sound sleep." (Because it relieve irritability of the stomach nerves, being a predigested food.)

"Before I used Grape-Nuts my teeth were loose in the gums. They were so bad I was afraid they would some day all fall out. Since I have used Grape-Nuts I have not been bothered any more with loose teeth.

"All desire for pastry has disappeared and I have gained in health, weight and happiness since I began to use Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Get the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

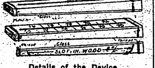
POULTRY AND BEES

MEASURING BEES' TONGUES.

A Simple and Automatic Device for That Purpose.

I have an instrument for measuring the length of bees' tongues which is a success, as it is comparatively accurate and takes but little time to use it. The idea is original with me, but I do not know whether the principle has been used before or not, writes a correspondent of Gleanings in Bee Culture.

I take a piece of fine-grained wood, about six inches long, one inch wide, one-fifth inch thick at one end, and two-fifth at the other end, and make a saw-kerf through it, through the thin way of the block. The saw-kerf is one-sixteenth inch wide, very smooth, and extends the length of the block except one-half inch at each end. The slot should be made with a small circular saw.



Details of the Device.

Take a piece of window glass, six by one, and put the crowning side next the block, and tie it tightly with linen thread around the glass and block at each end past the slot in the block. But before tying on the glass measure very accurately the thickness of the block near the thin end, and make a mark across the block just where it is twenty-five-one hundredths inch thick, also make a mark across it near the thick end where it is thirty-five-one hundredths inch thick; now divide the space between these marks into ten equal spaces, making marks across the block with the point of a knife. Number the marks with a lead pencil from 25 to 35, then tie the glass on over the marks and figures as described. Now put it in a vessel with some beeswax and set it on the stove and melt the wax, and let it soak into the wood 15 minutes or so. After you have drained the wax out of the groove, scrape the remaining wax out of it with a stick and it is ready for use.

To use it, fill the groove with honey; place it on the flight-board of a hive whose bees' tongues you wish to measure (there should be but little or no honey coming in at the time). The bees will eat the honey out of the groove as far as they can reach, in half an hour or so. You can then take the instrument, and, by looking at the glass side, you can see how far the bees have licked the honey off the glass, and the mark at this point will indicate the length of the tongue in one hundredths of an inch.

Of course, the bee's jaws will go into the groove some distance, I think about nine-one hundredths inch; but you can get the relative length of the tongues, which is good enough for practical purposes.

POULTRY ON THE FARM.

They Should Be Considered Part of Money-Making Equipment.

The farmer that looks upon poultry in the same light as he looks upon any other part of his farm equipment is in a good way to make money out of his birds, declares the Farmers' Review. It is unusual, however, to find a farmer that will not neglect his poultry in preference to anything else on the farm. The farm fowl can most easily make money for her owner, as it does not require a large average production of eggs to net her owner at least one dollar profit during the year. Under existing prices this will be done, if the average production is about 100 eggs, which is a low average on which to figure.

Where the fowls are kept properly and properly weeded out, so that the old hens do not become the major portion of the flock, the average production of eggs can easily be made 125. These figures sound small, for many claim averages of from 150 to 200 per year per hen, but we do not believe that these are fair averages. The average for the farm flock is much lower than the average for carefully handled flocks, on which most of such figures are based. It is true, however, that if old birds are excluded it is common to get about 125 eggs per fowl. The extra 25 eggs per fowl are all profit. They do not count very much on one fowl, but on the entire flock they make a good showing, as the money they represent may be added to the profit figured on the 100 eggs.

THE HENNERY.

Hustling hens are the ones to lay eggs for hatching business birds.

Luck has never yet and never will glut the poultry market with first-class eggs or fowls.

Any old hen can lay in the spring, but for winter business when eggs are high it takes the hen planned for in advance to do the trick. Now is the time to plan hens for next year.

A Massachusetts poultryman informed me last winter that he had lost no chicks by hawks and crows since he had kept a small flock of guineas, though losing many before. Their strident voices seem to disconcert the feathered marauders.

THE MOULTING SEASON.

It Is a Time of Severe Drain and Testing Upon the Fowls.

At no time during the year are fowls under so heavy a drain upon their vigor as during the moulting season. At this period, if there is any weakness among individuals of the flock, it is pretty sure to manifest itself. Unless the fowls receive proper food and attention, poor after results may follow in lack of egg production, or weakness in the chicks from that stock the following year. Fowls are also more susceptible to the attacks of lice and mites during this time.

During the moult, egg production falls off, or practically ceases for awhile. Owing to the decrease in egg production, there is sometimes a tendency toward a diminished interest in the poultry on the farm, and they are left pretty much to themselves, and yet at no time can right care and attention be bestowed to better advantage than during the moulting season.

Fowls on free range are able to do with less attention than those in yards, because of the variety of food they pick up, in the worms and insects, says Orange Judd Farmer. Still, they would do much better for their owner, if he gave them more attention. It is well to remember which hens moult early, and dispose of the late moulting birds when the time comes to kill or sell.

I find that by keeping the fowls in a fairly warm house and feeding well with the right kind of food at about moulting time, that they will moult easily and at the right season. Fowls that roost on trees or in sheds exposed to the winds, are apt to moult much later. I believe forcing an extra early moult has grave disadvantages. The production of an entirely new coat of feathers requires the consumption of a great deal of the right kind of food. Of this food, I consider sunflower seeds and beef scraps or insects, worms, etc., highly important. Sunflowers are easily grown, and their seed can be used to great advantage during the moult. The oil in the seed is considered good, not only for the growth of feathers, but also to put upon these a fine gloss without giving the creamy tinge, in white varieties of fowls, which corn is apt to cause at times. Fowls in yards should have plenty of meat, either in the form of scraps or meal during this period; those on free range do not need so much.

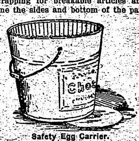
During the moulting season, heavy feeding can be given with little danger of any of the fowls becoming too fat, and will have a tendency to make them moult freely, easily and quickly. I do not mean by this to keep the fowls yarded and feed heavily with corn as the principal food, for this also will tend to make them moult late, but by giving them a variety of grain, oats being especially good in this respect, and the foods mentioned above best results are obtained.

The main things to bear in mind are to have the fowls in a comfortable, warm house, to feed well, to let them get insects, etc., or supply this animal food with meat in some form, to feed sunflower seed or else small quantities of oil meal, to use oats with the other grains, and carefully to watch the fowls during the time, and notice which moult early or late, and help those that moult hard by penning them by themselves and giving them special attention.

SENSIBLE EGG CARRIER.

A Chocolate or Broken Candy Pail Proves the Safest.

A chocolate or broken candy pail, that can be had for ten cents at any grocery store, makes an excellent egg carrier when treated in the following manner: Take a sheet of the corrugated brown paper board used as wrapping for breakable articles and line the sides and bottom of the pail, as shown in the cut. Then cut circles from other pieces of the same material to use between each layer of eggs, smaller circles for the bottom, increasing in size as the top is approached. Eggs can be gathered from the nests in such a pail, and carried to market, with reasonable assurance that few, if any, breakages will occur, says the Orange Judd Farmer. The cost of the whole will be but a trifle. The corrugated paper can be obtained in large sheets from grocers, to whom it has come packed about breakable goods.



Safety Egg Carrier.

Roughly Handled Hens.

It has been our experience that hens that have been roughly handled are of little value for laying purposes. The writer has more than once purchased on South Water street, Chicago, hens that seemed to be in good shape for laying. Yet these hens would not lay till months after and some of them seemed to have abandoned the laying business altogether. The nervous system of the hen seems to be very delicate, and the kind of shaking up they get in the great markets often destroys their usefulness for future laying. On the farm rough handling may have the same effect, but we are unable to so readily detect its results.

NO REST NIGHT OR DAY.

With Irritating Skin Humor—Hair Began to Fall Out—Wonderful Result from Cuticura Remedies.

"About the latter part of July my whole body began to itch. I did not take much notice of it at first, but it began to get worse all the time, and then I began to get uneasy and tried all kinds of baths and other remedies that were recommended for skin humors; but I became worse all the time. My hair began to fall out and my scalp itched all the time. Especially at night, just as soon as I would get in bed and get warm, my whole body would begin to itch and my finger nails would keep it irritated, and it was not long before I could not rest night or day. A friend asked me to try the Cuticura Remedies, and I did, and the first application helped me wonderfully. For about four weeks I would take a hot bath every night and then apply the Cuticura Ointment to my whole body; and I kept getting better, and by the time I used four boxes of Cuticura I was entirely cured, and my hair stopped falling out. D. E. Blankenship, 319 N. Del. St., Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 27, 1905."

AT THE SUMMER HOTEL.

Experience of Winston Churchill Familiar to Many.

Winston Churchill in an address that he made in Concord recently praised the New Hampshire farmer.

"Ours," he said, "is a state fitted above all others for a summer resort. New Hampshire, with its superb climate, its mountains, its lakes and forests, will in a generation or two be one great pleasure ground—a vast park, dotted with beautiful villas, to which will come each summer families from all parts of America.

"In anticipation of this many farmers are learning to conduct hotels. They are building cottages for summer visitors. Some of them, too, are taking boarders.

"And I am glad to say that the New Hampshire farmer is in a position to take boarders, because, unlike the farmers in other states that I could name, he does not send all his good things to the city. I once boarded at a fine big farm, but the fare was wretched—canned vegetables, condensed milk and so on.

"'By Jove,' I said one morning at breakfast, as I pushed my egg cup from me, 'these eggs are really not as fresh as those I get in New York.'

My farmer host snorted.

"'That's rank prejudice on your part, Mr. Churchill,' he said. 'It's from New York that all our eggs come.'"

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
Sold by all Druggists, 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

"Soap Weed" of the Southwest.

Greatest, as well as most common, of all cacti is the "soap weed," which grows wherever cacti grow, and which is man's only friend in the great southwestern deserts of the United States and in Mexico. It furnishes always a quantity of water when cut. As its name indicates, it can be manufactured into a soap, perhaps the least alkaline soap ever made, even though the weed itself may grow in the center of an alkali desert. Beer is brewed from it, the Indians make a hemp-like fiber from it and horses and men can eat parts of it if the spines are cut away. Also when it shoots up its one great arm skyward it tops that arm with one of the most gorgeous flowers in the world.

Cheap Excursions South.

On the 1st and 3rd Tuesday of each month the Big Four Ry. will sell excursion tickets to most all points in Virginia, South Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia at rate of one fare plus $2.00 with return limit 30 days. Liberal stopover privileges. Write I. P. Spining, General Northern Agent, Big Four Route, 238 Clark St., Chicago, for further information.

Expert with Bow and Arrow.

Nero Perry, an old Chickasaw freedman, who lives on Caddo creek, in the Chickasaw nation, supports himself by hunting game with a bow and arrow. Though 76 years old, he can send an arrow into a squirrel in the tallest tree. Perry went to the Chickasaw country in 1838 from Mississippi with Jim McLish, his old master. They settled on the banks of the Caddo creek, where they built the first house erected in the Chickasaw nation. Here they lived until 1861, when McLish died, then the old place reverted to Perry, and there he still lives.

Washing Windows.

The method of washing windows has changed very much of late. Have a pail of lukewarm suds made from Ivory Soap. Dip a soft cloth in the water; squeeze almost dry, and wipe the glass off. Then polish with chamois as it leaves no lint and does the work with more ease.

ELEANOR R. PARKER.

Remarkable Double Wedding.

A remarkable double wedding has been celebrated in a Viennese church. A manufacturer named Muller married a widow, while at the same time his son married the widow's daughter. Thus the father becomes the father-in-law of his own son, and the mother also the mother-in-law of her daughter.

WHO SHE WAS

SKETCH OF THE LIFE OF LYDIA E. PINKHAM

And a True Story of How the Vegetable Compound Had Its Birth and How the "Panic of '73" Caused it to be Offered for Public Sale in Drug Stores.

This remarkable woman, whose maiden name was Estes, was born in Lynn, Mass., February 9th, 1819, coming from a good old Quaker family. For some years she taught school, and became known as a woman of an alert and investigating mind, an earnest seeker after knowledge, and above all, possessed of a wonderfully sympathetic nature.

Yours for Health
Lydia E. Pinkham

In 1843 she married Isaac Pinkham, a builder and real estate operator, and their early married life was marked by prosperity and happiness. They had four children, three sons and a daughter.

In those good old fashioned days it was common for mothers to make their own home medicines from roots and herbs, nature's own remedies—calling in a physician only in specially urgent cases. By tradition and experience many of them gained a wonderful knowledge of the curative properties of the various roots and herbs.

Mrs. Pinkham took a great interest in the study of roots and herbs, their characteristics and power over disease. She maintained that just as nature so bountifully provides in the harvest-fields and orchards vegetable foods of all kinds; so, if we but take the pains to find them, in the roots and herbs of the field there are remedies expressly designed to cure the various ills and weaknesses of the body, and it was her pleasure to search these out, and prepare simple and effective medicines for her own family and friends.

Chief of these was a rare combination of the choicest medicinal roots and herbs found best adapted for the cure of the ills and weaknesses peculiar to the female sex, and Lydia E. Pinkham's friends and neighbors learned that her compound relieved and cured and it became quite popular among them.

All this so far was done freely, without money and without price, as a labor of love.

But in 1873 the financial crisis struck Lynn. Its length and severity were too much for the large real estate interests of the Pinkham family, as this class of business suffered most from fearful depression, so when the Centennial year dawned it found their property swept away. Some other source of income had to be found.

At this point Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was made known to the world.

The three sons and the daughter, with their mother, combined forces to restore the family fortune. They argued that the medicine which was so good for their woman friends and neighbors was equally good for the women of the whole world.

The Pinkhams had no money, and little credit. Their first laboratory was the kitchen, where roots and herbs were steeped on the stove, gradually filling a gross of bottles. Then came the question of selling it, for always before they had given it away freely. They hired a job printer to run off some pamphlets setting forth the merits of the medicine, now called Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and these were distributed by the Pinkham sons in Boston, New York, and Brooklyn.

The wonderful curative properties of the medicine were, to a great extent, self-advertising, for whoever used it recommended it to others, and the demand gradually increased.

In 1877, by combined efforts the family had saved enough money to commence newspaper advertising and from that time the growth and success of the enterprise were assured, until today Lydia E. Pinkham and her Vegetable Compound have become household words everywhere, and many tons of roots and herbs are used annually in its manufacture.

Lydia E. Pinkham herself did not live to see the great success of this work. She passed to her reward years ago, but not till she had provided means for continuing her work as effectively as she could have done it herself.

During her long and eventful experience she was ever methodical in her work and she was always careful to preserve a record of every case that came to her attention. The case of every sick woman who applied to her for advice—and there were thousands—received careful study, and the details, including symptoms, treatment and results were recorded for future reference, and to-day these records, together with hundreds of thousands made since, are available to sick women the world over, and represent a vast collaboration of information regarding the treatment of woman's ills, which for authenticity and accuracy can hardly be equaled in any library in the world.

With Lydia E. Pinkham worked her daughter-in-law, the present Mrs. Pinkham. She was carefully instructed in all her hard-won knowledge, and for years she assisted her in her vast correspondence.

To her hands naturally fell the direction of the work when its originator passed away. For nearly twenty-five years she has continued it, and nothing in the work shows when the first Lydia E. Pinkham dropped her pen, and the present Mrs. Pinkham, now the mother of a large family, took it up. With women assistants, some as capable as herself, the present Mrs. Pinkham continues this great work, and probably from the office of no other person have so many women been advised how to regain health. Sick women, this advice is "Yours for Health" freely given if you only write to ask for it.

Such is the history of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; made from simple roots and herbs; the one great medicine for women's ailments, and the fitting monument to the noble woman whose name it bears.

NO MORE MUSTARD PLASTERS TO BLISTER.
THE SCIENTIFIC AND MODERN EXTERNAL COUNTER-IRRITANT.
CAPISICUM
VASELINE
EXTRACT OF THE CAYENNE PEPPER PLANT

A QUICK, SURE, SAFE AND ALWAYS READY CURE FOR PAIN.—PRICE 15c.—IN COLLAPSIBLE TUBES—AT ALL DRUGGISTS AND DEALERS, OR BY MAIL ON RECEIPT OF 15c. IN POSTAGE STAMPS. DON'T WAIT TILL THE PAIN COMES—KEEP A TUBE HANDY.

A substitute for and superior to mustard or any other plaster, and will not blister the most delicate skin. The pain-allaying and curative qualities of the article are wonderful. It will stop the toothache at once, and relieve Headache and Sciatica. We recommend it as the best and safest external counter-irritant known, also as an external remedy for pains in the chest and stomach and all Rheumatic, Neuralgic and Gouty complaints. A trial will prove what we claim for it, and it will be found to be invaluable in the household and for children. Once used no family will be without it. Many people say "it is the best of all your preparations." Accept no preparation of vaseline unless the same carries our label, as otherwise it is not genuine.

SEND YOUR ADDRESS AND WE WILL MAIL OUR VASELINE PAMPHLET WHICH WILL INTEREST YOU.

CHESEBROUGH MFG. CO.
17 STATE STREET, NEW YORK CITY

Enameline STOVE POLISH
NO DUST DIRT SLOP SPILL
NO SMOKE SMELL MUSS OR SPATTER

A Positive CURE FOR CATARRH
Ely's Cream Balm
is quickly absorbed.
Gives Relief at Once.

ELY'S CREAM BALM
CATARRH
CURES COLD IN HEAD
ROSE-COLD
HAY-FEVER
DEAFNESS
HEADACHE
50 CTS.
ELY BROS.
NEW YORK

It cleanses, soothes, heals, and protects the diseased membrane. It cures Catarrh and drives away a Cold in the Head quickly. Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. Full size 50 cts. at Druggists or by mail; Trial size 10 cts. by mail.
Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

HOW can I ever do my work
when my muscles are all inflamed with Rheumatism?
Johnson's Anodyne Liniment
Rubbed on Briskly
will remove the inflammation, limber up the muscles, and make you good as new.
25c., three times as much 50c. All dealers.
I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

DEFIANCE STARCH easiest to work with and starches clothes nicest.

GERONIMO TELLS the STORY of his LIFE

Geronimo, untamed man killer, unreconstructed savage, wily, bloodthirsty and cruel, now an aged, hopeless, helpless, dying prisoner, has told the complete story of his life. His autobiography, which has been edited for him by S. M. Barrett, with full permission and consent of the war department, is about to be published. It makes a long, weird and intensely interesting story, as will be noted by portions reproduced here, says the New York Herald.

Mr. Barrett, after gaining the confidence of the old Apache, led him to tell of his birth, his early days and his warfare on other Indians and palefaces.

Of his battles with Miles and Crook, of what he calls the injustice done to the Indian, the old savage writes:

"Perhaps the greatest wrong ever done to the Indians was the treatment received by our tribe from the United States troops about 1863. The chief of our tribe, Mangus Colorado, went to make a treaty of peace for our people with the white settlement at Apache Tejo, N. M. It had been reported to us that the white men in this settlement were more friendly and more reliable than those in Arizona, that they would live up to their treaties and would not wrong the Indians.

"Mangus-Colorado, with three other warriors, went to Apache Tejo and held a council with these citizens and soldiers. They told him that if he would come with his tribe and live near them they would issue to him, from the government, blankets, flour, provisions, beef and all manner of supplies. Our chief promised to return to Apache Tejo within two weeks. When he came back to our settlement he assembled the whole tribe in council. I did not believe that the people at Apache Tejo would do as they said and therefore I opposed the plan, but it was decided that with part of the tribe Mangus-Colorado should return to Apache Tejo and receive an issue of rations and supplies. If they were as represented, and if these white men would keep the treaty faithfully, the remainder of the tribe would join him and we would make our permanent home at Apache Tejo. I was to remain in charge of that portion of the tribe which stayed in Arizona. We gave almost all of our arms and ammunition to the party going to Apache Tejo, so that in case there should be treachery they would be prepared for any surprise. Mangus-Colorado and about half of our people went to New Mexico, happy that now they had found white men who would be kind to them, and with whom they could live in peace and plenty.

Claims Comrades Were Slain.

"No word ever came to use from them. From other sources, however, we heard that they had been treacherously captured and slain. In this dilemma we did not know just exactly what to do, but fearing that the troops who had captured them would attack us, we retreated into the mountains near Apache Tejo.

"During the weeks that followed the departure of our people we had been in suspense, and, failing to provide more supplies, had exhausted all of our store of provisions. This was another reason for moving camp. On this retreat, while passing through the mountains, we discovered four men with a herd of cattle. Two of the men were in front in a buggy and two were behind on horseback. We killed all four, but did not scalp them; they were not warriors. We drove the cattle back into the mountains, made a camp ,and began to kill the cattle and pack the meat.

"Before we had finished this work we were surprised and attacked by United States troops, who killed in all seven Indians—one warrior, three women and three children. The government troops were mounted, and so were we, but we were poorly armed, having given most of our weapons to the division of our tribe that had gone to Apache Tejo, so we fought mainly with spears, bows, and arrows. At first I had a spear, a bow and a few arrows, but in a short time my spear and all my arrows were gone. Once I was wounded, but by dodging from side to side of my horse as he ran I escaped. During this fight we scattered in all directions and two days later reassembled at our appointed place of rendezvous, about 50 miles from the scene of this battle.

Fought With Rocks and Clubs.

"About ten days later the same United States troops attacked our new camp at sunrise. The fight lasted all day, but our arrows and spears were all gone before ten o'clock and for the remainder of the day we had only rocks and clubs with which to fight. We could do little damage with these weapons, and at night we moved our camp about four miles back into the mountains, where it would be hard for the cavalry to follow us. The next day our scouts, who had been left behind to observe the movements of the soldiers, returned, saying that the troops had gone back toward San Carlos reservation.

"A few days after this we were again attacked by another company of United States troops. Just before this fight we had been joined by a band of Chokonen Indians under Cochise, who took command of both divisions. We were repulsed and decided to disband.

"After we had disbanded our tribe the Bedonkohe Apaches reassembled near their old camp, vainly waiting for the return of Mangus-Colorado and our kinsmen. No tidings came save that they had all been treacherously slain. Then a council was held, and as it was believed that Mangus-Colorado was dead I was elected tribe chief."

Geronimo then relates the tale of his capture by American scouts, of his imprisonment for four months and his subsequent release. He continues:

Feared Further Imprisonment.

"In the summer of 1883 a rumor was current that the officers were again planning to imprison our leaders. This rumor served to revive the memory of all our past wrongs—the massacre in the tent at Apache Pass, the fate of Mangus-Colorado, and my own unjust imprisonment, which might easily have been death to me. Just at this time we were told that the officers wanted us to come up the river above Geronimo to a fort (Fort Thomas) to hold a council with them. We did not believe that any good could come of this conference, or that there was any need of it, so we held a council ourselves and, fearing treachery, decided to leave the reservation. We thought it more manly to die on the warpath than to be killed in prison.

"There were in all about 250 Indians, chiefly the Bedonkohe and Nedni Apaches, led by myself and Whoa. We went through Apache Pass, and just west of there had a fight with the United States troops. In this battle we killed three soldiers and lost none.

"We went on toward Old Mexico, but on the second day after this United States soldiers overtook us about three o'clock in the afternoon and we fought until dark. The ground where we were attacked was very rough, which was to our advantage, for the troops were compelled to dismount in order to fight us. I do not know how many soldiers we killed, but we lost only one warrior and three children. We had plenty of guns and ammunition at this time. Many of the guns and much ammunition we had accumulated while living in the reservation, and the remainder we had obtained from the White Mountain Apaches when we left the reservation.

"The troops did not follow us any longer, so we went south almost to Casa Grande and camped in the Sierra de Saharipa mountains. We ranged in the mountains of Old Mexico for about a year, then returned to San Carlos, taking with us a herd of cattle and horses.

Horses and Cattle Seized.

"Soon after we arrived at San Carlos the officer in charge, Gen. Crook, took the horses and cattle away from us. I told him that these were not white men's cattle, but belonged to us, for we had taken them from the Mexicans during our wars. I also told him that we did not intend to kill these animals, but that we wished to keep them and raise stock on our range. He would not listen to me, but took the stock. I went up near Fort Apache and Gen. Crook ordered officers, soldiers and scouts to see that I was arrested. If I offered resistance they were instructed to kill me.

"This information was brought to me by the Indians. When I learned of this proposed action I left for Old Mexico, and about four hundred Indians went with me. They were the Bedonkohe, Chokenen, and Nedni Apaches. At this time Whoa was dead, and Naiche was the only chief with me. We went south into Sonora and camped in the mountains. Troops followed us, but did not attack us until we were camped in the mountains west of Casa Grande. Here we were attacked by government Indian scouts. One boy was killed and nearly all of our women and children were captured.

"That night we held a council of war; our scouts had reported bands of United States and Mexican troops at many points in the mountains. We estimated that about two thousand soldiers were ranging these mountains seeking to capture us.

Interview with Gen. Crook.

"Gen. Crook had come down into Mexico with the United States troops. They were camped in the Sierra de Antunez mountains. Scouts told me that Gen. Crook wished to see me and I went to his camp. When I arrived Gen. Crook said to me, 'Why did you leave the reservation?' I said: 'You told me that I might live in the reservation the same as white people lived. One year I raised a crop of corn, and gathered and stored it, and the next year I put in a crop of oats, and when the crop was almost ready to harvest you told your soldiers to put me in prison, and if I resisted to kill me. If I had been let alone I would now have been in good circumstances, but instead of that you and the Mexicans are hunting me with soldiers.' He said: 'I never gave any such orders; the troops at Fort Apache, who spread this report, knew that it was untrue.' Then I agreed to go back with him to San Carlos.

"It was hard for me to believe him at that time. Now I know that what he said was untrue, and I firmly believe that he did issue the orders for me to be put in prison or to be killed in case I offered resistance.

"We started with all our tribe to go with Gen. Crook back to the United States, but I feared treachery and concluded to remain in Mexico. We were not under any guard at this time. The United States troops marched in front and the Indians followed, and when we became suspicious we turned back. I do not know how far the United States army went after myself and some warriors turned back before we were missed, and I do not care.

Capt. Lawton in the Field.

"Soon Gen. Miles was made commander of all the western posts, and troops trailed us continually. They were led by Capt. Lawton, who had good scouts. The Mexican soldiers also became more active and more numerous. We had skirmishes almost every day, and so we finally decided to break up into small bands. With six men and four women I made for the range of mountains near Hot Springs, New Mexico. We passed many cattle ranches, but had no trouble with the cowboys. We killed cattle to eat whenever we were in need of food, but we frequently suffered greatly for water. At one tme we had no water for two days and nights and our horses almost died from thirst. We ranged in the mountans of New Mexico for some time; then, thinking that perhaps the troops had left Mexico, we returned. On our return through Old Mexico we attacked every Mexican found, even if for no other reason than to kill. We believed they had asked the United States troops to come to Mexico to fight us.

"South of Casa Grande, near a place called by the Indians Gosoda, there was a road leading out from the town. There was much freighting carried on by the Mexicans over this road. Where the road ran through a mountain pass we stayed in hiding, and whenever Mexican freighters passed we killed them, took what supplies we wanted and destroyed the remainder. We were reckless of our lives, because we felt that every man's hand was against us. If we returned to the reservation we would be put in prison and killed; if we stayed in Mexico they would continue to send soldiers to fight us; so we gave no quarter to any one and asked no favors.

"After some time we left Gosoda and soon were reunited with our tribe in the Sierra de Antunez mountains.

Skirmishing Every Day.

"Contrary to our expectations the United States soldiers had not left the mountains in Mexico, and were soon trailing us and skirmishing with us almost every day. Four or five times they surprised our camp. One time they surprised us about nine o'clock in the morning, captured all our horses (19 in number) and secured our store of dried meats. We also lost three Indians in this encounter. About the middle of the afternoon of the same day we attacked them from the rear as they were passing through a prairie—killed one soldier, but lost none ourselves. In this skirmish we recovered all our horses except three that belonged to me. The three horses that we did not recover were the best riding horses we had.

"Soon after this scouts from Capt. Lawton's troops told us that he wished to make a treaty with us; but I knew that Gen. Miles was the chief of the American troops, and I decided to treat with him.

"I sent my brother Perico (White Horse) with Mr. George Wrattan on to Fort Bowie to see Gen. Miles and to tell him that we wished to return to Arizona; but before these messengers returned I met two Indian scouts —Kayitah, a Chokonen Apache, and Marteen, a Nedni Apache. They were serving as scouts for Capt. Lawton's troops. They told me that Gen. Miles had come and had sent them to ask me to meet him. So I went to the camp of the United States troops to meet Gen. Miles.

Gen. Miles' Promises.

"When I arrived at their camp I went directly to Gen. Miles and told him how I had been wronged and I wanted to return to the United States with my people, as we wished to see our families, who had been captured and taken away from us. Gen. Miles said to me: 'The president of the United States has sent me to speak to you. He has heard of your trouble with the white men, and says that if you will agree to a few words of treaty we need have no more trouble. Geronimo, if you will agree to a few words of treaty all will be satisfactorily arranged.'

"Then he talked with me for a long time and told me what he would do for me in the future if I would agree to the treaty. I did not hardly believe Gen. Miles, but because the president of the United States had sent me word I agreed to make the treaty and to keep it. Then I asked Gen. Miles what the treaty would be. Gen. Miles said to me: 'I will take you under government protection. I will build you a house. I will fence you much land. I will give you cattle, horses, mules and farming implements. You will be furnished with men to work the farm, for you yourself will not have to work. In the fall I will send you blankets and clothing, so that you will not suffer from cold in the winter time.

"'There is plenty of timber, water and grass in the land to which I will send you. You will live with your tribe and with your family. If you agree to this treaty you shall see your family within five days.'

Agreed to Make Treaty.

"I said to Gen. Miles: 'All the officers that have been in charge of the Indians have talked that way, and it sounds like a story to me; I hardly believe you.' He said: 'This time it is the truth.' I said: 'Gen. Miles, I do not know the laws of the white man, nor of this new country where you are to send me, and I might break their laws.' He said: 'While I live you will not be arrested.' Then I agreed to make the treaty. Since I have been a prisoner of war I have been arrested and placed in the guardhouse twice for drinking whisky.

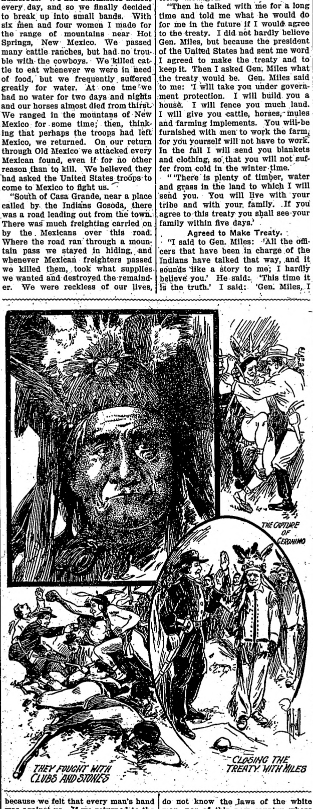
"We stood between his troopers and my warriors. We placed a large stone on the blanket before us. Our treaty was made by this stone, and it was to last till the stone should crumble to dust; so we made the treaty, and bound each other with an oath.

"I do not believe that I have ever violated that treaty, but Gen. Miles never fulfilled his promises.

"When we had made the treaty Gen. Miles said to me: 'My brother, you have in your mind how you are going to kill men, and other thoughts of war; I want you to put that out of your mind and change your thoughts to peace.'

"Then I agreed and gave up my arms. I said: 'I will quit the warpath and live at peace hereafter.'

"Then Gen. Miles swept a spot of ground clear with his hand and said: 'Your past deeds shall be wiped out like this and you will start a new life.'"



THE CAPTURE OF GERONIMO
THEY FOUGHT WITH CLUBS AND STONES
CLOSING THE TREATY WITH MILES

LITTLE MEN and Little WOMEN

BOB CASE'S TRIUMPH.

Story of a Cripple's Dream That Came True.

Baseball was in the air. And no wonder, for it was the afternoon of the great game between the Easts and the Wests, rival teams who for generations of Hillsdale boys had battled hard against each other. A low-lying common a short distance from the town had always been the field of action.

Bobby Case, a cripple, was the first boy on the diamond. He walked from base to base and lovingly touched them with his foot. He was discouraged. "Gee, I wish I could play just once. It's such a bully day, too," he said. He then looked across the field. Not a boy was in sight, and he gave a sigh of relief. How ashamed he would have been to have let the fellows know he had come early just to touch the bases. Bobby had never expressed a wish to the boys that he wanted to play ball, or even dreamed of doing so.

Presently the noisy whistling and calling announced the Easts and Wests and their respective admirers. The opposing teams were well matched. Enthusiasm reigned supreme. But Bobby sat silent on the fence. He was called "hon. sub." for the Easts. There was a little argument, and the game started. The Wests had scored and the Easts had failed. Then the Easts held first place, and then by some mysterious chance the game became a tie.

"If I could play just once," thought poor Bobby.

It was Jim's turn to bat. The boy's freckled face was flushed with excitement; he understood that so much depended upon him. He grasped the old worn bat firmly in his dirty hands. He paused, then, strangely attracted toward Bobby, he looked at the little fellow. The longing in the boy's face stirred within Jim's heart a deep understanding that startled him in its intensity. He dropped the bat, and held out his hands toward the boys.

"Boys," he said, "I can't bat. And, say, let Bob Case bat in my place."

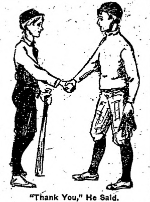
There was a deep silence. Such a thing had never before happened in the annals of Hillsdale's baseball history. The game tie! Did the law allow such a queer thing?

"Why?" stammered the captain of the Easts.

"Oh, Bobby can bat," replied Jim, wondering at his audacity in the face of possible defeat. "Ive 'seen him bat, heaps of times, practicing in his dad's orchard." And this was true: "I say, fellows, he's a sub; so it's all square, you know."

"Your arm tired?" jeered the Wests' bleachers.

In the meantime Bobby sat, confused, on the fence. He was strangely happy to know that he had even been considered by Jim, for he had no hope that his wish could be gratified.



"Thank You," He Said.

"I'll risk Bobby," continued Jim. "Please, fellows, say 'yes.' I'll run for him, too."

"Go ahead!" shouted the Wests.

"All right," answered the Easts, confidently.

Another brief discussion of ways and means and Bobby was given a place of honor. Enthusiasm and disapproval were shown by the audience. But Bobby was confident. He would show his comrades his worth. He assumed the air of a professional, even though it was his first public appearance.

"Let her go!" he called.

One strike, one ball—two balls, three balls, two strikes. Bobby was still alert and confident. The bleachers became suddenly interested. One of the boys called out: "Casey at the Bat," then the others echoed the words. This encouraged Bobby; it was like his dream. Then Jim had said he could bat. The pitcher paused, measuring his opponent. Then Bobby hit. Such a ball—nothing like it in the annals of the Easts' history. Jim was on second, third. What were the Wests doing, and where were their quick plays? The boys were wild. Jim had touched the home base. The Easts had won.

"Casey at the bat!" the boys called over and over again. Even the Wests were obliged to acknowledge that Bobby was a "blinger."

Bobby stood, bashful and very happy, receiving the homage of his friends. They no longer considered him a "girl boy." He had had his chance and was now a "Casey at the Bat." The lonely practice days in his father's orchard had proved of some avail. He could bat. The Easts had won, and he had helped.

"Thank you," he said, holding out his hand to Jim.

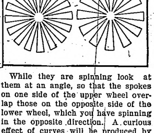
"Casey at the bat" still clings to Bobby Case. Though he cannot always play, the honor of that one day makes him happy and proud.—Detroit Free Press.

THE MAGIC WHEELS.

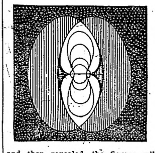
The magic wheels are made out of cardboard, and should be about an inch in diameter, with at least eight spokes. They may be shaped like either No. 1 or No. 2, and no rims are necessary, as it is the spokes that produce the desired effect.

When the two wheels are ready, take a thin piece of wood, an inch and a half in length, and run it through the center of the two wheels, allowing them to remain near the opposite ends of the stick. This forms a sort of teetotem.

Start the wheels spinning on the ends of the stick, so that one wheel is above the other. If the wheels are white, they must spin against a dark background; if they are colored, they must be against a white background.



While they are spinning look at them at an angle, so that the spokes on one side of the upper wheel overlap those on the opposite side of the lower wheel, which you have spinning in the opposite direction. A curious effect of curves will be produced by this, and they will take somewhat the form of No. 3. By moving the position of the eye, up and down, so that more or less of the spokes are first hidden and then revealed, the figures will change, making an endless variety of curves.



You may produce a similar effect by using only one wheel and spinning it under a strong lamplight, or in the sunlight, when the shadow will act at the second wheel. Other curious effects may be produced by spinning the two wheels at different velocities.

AN INTELLIGENT TRAMP CAT.

The little black and white kitten which has claimed the Central police station as its home since it wandered into the officers' room one stormy night several months ago, is declared by the officers and men to be the most intelligent cat in Louisville and has won their affection as perhaps no other cat could do, says the Louisville Courier-Journal. Puss' chief claims to the consideration and admiration of the policemen lies in her pronounced aggressive qualities, which however, are only exhibited when dogs of the nondescript variety emerge from the alley at the side of the police station and attempt to force their acquaintance upon her or attempt an exploration of the subterranean passages of the city hall.

When one of the unwelcome visitors comes within puss' reach there is a hiss and snarl, the flash of a white, outstretched paw and a badly frightened dog slinking off down the alley. Puss loses no time in instituting hostilities against her enemies, and dogs large and of forbidding appearance, who formerly frequented the neighborhood of city hall square, now give that region a wide berth at night, for it is between midnight and the dogwatch that puss keeps her vigil. When not engaged in keeping curs away from the station house, puss generally may be found curled up and purring contentedly in the lap of one of the officers.

"Old John," the negro janitor of the station, who usually begins his daily routine at two o'clock in the morning, has trained the kitten to awaken him at that hour each morning. This the kitten accomplishes by licking his face, and when he feels its soft, warm touch on his cheek he knows that it is time to get up and doing, for the officers' and station keeper's rooms must be cleaned and put in order before the day squad comes on duty.

During his night vigil, John Heinzman, the station keeper, insists that he finds the kitten excellent company when there are few calls for the patrol wagon, and there is little to claim his attention. Puss' favorite couch is on the telephone exchange board, and she will lie there contentedly for hours when not awakened by dogs or calls on the telephone, at which her fur bristles with interest until the patrol wagon has proceeded on its way.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. VI. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, OCT. 19, 1906. NO. 29.

Gossip from Washington

President Resumes Work at White House After His Summer Vacation—Death Calls Col. "Ike" Hill—Special Attorneys to Fight Trusts.

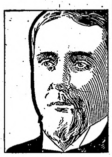
WHITE HOUSE
T. ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON.—President Roosevelt, sunburned and in fine health from his vacation, is again at his usual round of duties at the White House. The day after his return from Sagamore Hill he was at his office about nine o'clock and began work while a procession of laborers were pushing wheelbarrows filled with gravel up a gangway to the White House roof and dumping it almost over his head to be used in roofing the west wing of the building. Although a small army of men has been working on the building since July it is not yet fully repaired.

The president weighs over 200 pounds but his flesh is firm and hard from outdoor living and exercise. He was in the best of spirits and before the cabinet met he received numerous visitors. Among these was Admiral Cali, of the Italian warship Fieramosca, and two of his officers accompanied by the American naval aid at the White house, Lieut. Commander Keys. The president greeted the Italian officers cordially, told them he knew the history of Italy and greatly admired the king. Members of congress were scarce, owing to the fact that the new rate law compels all to pay fare.

Usually the Roosevelt children return from Oyster Bay with a procession of new pets. This time they brought only the old ones, including Rollo, the big Newfoundland dog; Skip, the bear dog, and the horses. Slippers, the six-toed cat, passed the summer in Washington and was greatly rejoiced at the family's return.

PASSING OF A NOTABLE CAPITAL FIGURE.



In the death of Col. Isaac R. Hill, known for generations back as "Ike Hill, of Ohio," the house of representatives has lost its most unique character. Col. Hill had been a unique figure in national and Ohio politics for two decades. Always a stanch Democrat, he associated himself actively with its party history, more especially in his home state. For years his peculiar personalty of form and vernacular have impressed the delegates to nearly every party convention, both national and state. He came to Washington originally when John G. Thompson, of Columbus, was made sergeant-at-arms of the house of representatives, and has been attached in some capacity to the lower branch of congress ever since.

Many are the stories that have been printed about "Ike" Hill. In fact, so constantly has he been in the public eye that there are really few good ones that remain untold.

In conversation Hill was as picturesque in the use of language as he was dignified in dress and carriage. He was original and quaint in his remarks, as witness the expression, "mark my words, young fellow, before next grass," etc., when he meant to say something would occur before springtime.

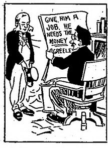
A new preacher had come to Newark at the time Col. Hill was a candidate before a primary and the colonel never tired of telling how he made the acquaintance of the gentleman of the cloth. "I was walking down to the polls," he said, "when I came up to this stranger. He says to me: 'Good sir, I'm a newcomer to your bustling town. I have always felt it to be my duty to interest myself in the political affairs of the community in which my lines have been cast. I am the new minister of (naming the church) and am on my way to the primaries. I understand there is a candidate named Ike Hill, who is unregenerate, a gambler, liberal in every sense, and in every way unfitted to receive the suffrages of a sovereign people. What do you know about him?'

"I didn't waste no words, but said to this immaculate gentleman: 'Sir, I am the identical son of a pirate,' or words to that effect."

For years no political convention in Licking county or in Newark was complete without Hill. He took a hand in state politics, too, and was for years state central committeeman in the Seventeenth Ohio district for the Democrats.

Though Col. Hill from the age of 20 was always in politics, yet he never ran for office but once, and then he failed. This was away back in the early '70s, in Licking county, when there were ten candidates for the office of county sheriff. "Ike" Hill stood next to the top of the list, but was beaten by Ed Williams. He made a vow then never to "run" for another office, and he kept it.

ODD HISTORY IN OFFICIAL FILES.



GIVE HIM A JOB. HE NEEDS THE MONEY
GREELEY

There is some queer history locked up in the files of the various government departments. A few days ago the appointment clerk of the treasury department unearthed a letter written by Horace Greeley in 1865 recommending Cornelius Vanderbilt for appointment as a member of the cotton claims commission.

The photographer of the treasury department has a negative made of Gen. Grant when the latter was beardless. It requires a second look to detect any of the familiar features of the silent soldier.

In the bookkeeping division of the office of the auditor for the post office department is a record and all the correspondence relating to the shortage in the accounts of Abraham Lincoln as postmaster at New Salem, Ill. Mr. Lincoln's shortage was not large and was promptly paid.

On file in the treasury department is an application for promotion filed while John Sherman was secretary of the treasury. It bears the following indorsement from Secretary Sherman:

"Promote this man $200 a year, as he was useful to me in my race for the senate."

In another department is a copy of a land warrant and a receipt attached in the handwriting of Lafayette acknowledging the donation of land and money made by the United States on the occasion of his visit to this country following the revolutionary war.

FRAUDS IN LETTER BOXES.

"The reason why postmasters in large cities exercise care in the renting of letter boxes to patrons," said a post office official, "is because, unless the applicants are known or identified to the postmasters, they might rent boxes to persons in fraudulent occupations.

"The post office department has accomplished great reforms within recent years toward the stamping out of fraudulent concerns, who used the mails to reach their victims, but there is one abuse which has not yet been reached, mainly for lack of suitable legislation, and that is the private letter box.

"Postmasters are required to cause the applicant for a box in the city post office to certify over his signature that the box shall not be used for the promotion of any fraudulent purpose or in pursuance of an illegal business. They also require him to furnish his address, business in which he is engaged, if any, as boxes are often rented to persons not engaged in business and to women whose correspondence is large, and to give a reference. It has not been found that this rule is oppressive or obnoxious to any person who does not desire to use the box for an improper purpose, but it has been found that it shuts out a great many persons who wished a box for illegitimate purposes.

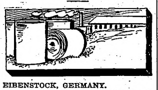
"The private letter box should be abolished and the attention of congress ought to be called to its abuse in large cities. It is often impossible to locate persons engaged in conducting fraudulent and unlawful correspondence through the mails. For a small sum these individuals can rent a box in some store, usually a cigar or stationery store, through which to receive letters addressed to them, instead of having them addressed and delivered to their places of residence from the city post office."

IN FOREIGN LANDS.

INTERESTING FACTS GLEANED BY CORRESPONDENTS.

CONSUMPTION OF PAPER

United States is World's Largest Producer and Probably Largest Exporter—Asphalt Mining an Old German Industry.



EIBENSTOCK, GERMANY.

The Revue Scientifique, of Paris recently discussed the consumption of paper by the principal nations of the world as reflecting modern progress of civilization because of its extensive use for printing purposes. It places the United States in the front rank as the greatest paper-producing country of the world, with an annual output of 639,734 tons (avoirdupois). Germany follows with an annual production of 393,683 tons, England 246,051, France 196,942, Austria 147,706, and Italy 123,026.

One American corporation is declared to be the greatest paper manufacturing enterprise in the world, possessing 31 factories with 96 continuously running machines, the company using almost as many machines as are operated in Italy and the Netherlands altogether, and its annual production exceeds that of all the paper factories in Austria-Hungary and almost equals that of all the British ones. Its capital amounts to more than $110,000,000. While America leads in production, Germany has become the largest exporter of this article, with 51,000 tons annually, England following with 49,210, the United States 16,880, and France 13,090. The United States export goes principally to South America, but also to Canada and Australia. Notwithstanding its large production England remains a good buyer, having imported 147,706 tons last year.

Regarding the direct consumption of paper it is an interesting fact that the United States leads with an annual figure of 38.6 pounds per capita, England coming next with 34.3, Germany 29.98, France 20.5, Austria 19, Italy 15.4, Servia showing the lowest European figure, 1.1; India shows only 0.22 and China 1.1 per capita. Nearly half of the paper manufactured in the world is used for printing purposes. Twenty per cent. is absorbed in the trades and industries. Almost an equal proportion is applied for official and school purposes. The remaining ten per cent. serves the demand for private use.

WM. C. TEICHMANN.

GERMANY LEADS IN CHEMICALS.

The importance of the chemical industry of Germany is evident by the statement of the London Commercial Intelligence that Germany produces annually a million tons of sulphuric acid and half a million tons of soda.

As to pharmaceutical products, the quinine alone exported from the Fatherland is valued at about $3,333,000, and antipyrine and antifebrine at an equal amount. The colors, acids, and chemical manures exported are valued at about $166,000,000. "One may then asssert without fear of contradiction," said a manufacturer in speaking of the results achieved, "that to-day Germany furnishes five-sixths of the dyes used in the whole world."

The secret of German success lies in the fact that they have an army of scientific men from which they are now reaping the benefit of years of work and expenditure. At one plant alone no less than 190 chemists work all the year in search of new products. The advantage of combination is also stated by a German chemical manufacturer, who merged his interests with another factory and effected great savings. Thus the two factories do not compete abroad. One has branches at Lyon and Riga, the other at Creil, Moscow, Augsburg, and Milan. One of the factories gave up the production of acids and salts, securing them from the other where they were produced much cheaper.

A competent authority states that the 9,000 factories and 200,000 workmen engaged in the chemical industry of Germany will this year turn out products of which the value will be about $357,000,000, and that the value of chemical exports will probably establish a record. And yet this industry is scarcely 30 years old. In fact, a German manufacturer stated that "30 years ago England was mistress of the market for salt and alkalies, as well as for coloring matter extracted from coal tar; to-day Germany is at the head of all the manufacturing nations of the world, not only for dyes but for chemical and pharmaceutical products."

INGENIOUS DIVING MACHINE.

Joseph Restucci, a mechanical engineer of the Royal Italian Marine, has recently invented a new diving machine, which has proved a success in experimental tests made with it in deep-sea diving.

The machine is constructed of iron one centimeter (three-eighths of an inch) in thickness, and is large enough to contain a man standing upright, leaving him a certain amount of liberty of movement. The form of the machine is cylindrical, with the upper part shaped like a spherical hood. The front of this hood is furnished with magnifying glasses to permit of exploring the bottom of the sea.

Two especially ingenious arms in bronze are attached to the machine, the forepart of each being articulated, to enable them to take the place of human arms. The right arm is terminated by a hand possessing fingers, which work exactly like the fingers of a human being. The left arm is finished with a pair of scissors and nippers. The interior of the machine contains a small electric lamp, capable of illuminating a certain space under the water. The diver communicates with the ship escorting him by means of a telephone. A special arrangement for furnishing air permits him to remain under water for a long time. The Restucci machine has already proven its value, for by means of it a Russisan ship with a large amount of gold on board, sunk near Balaklava during the Crimean war, has been discovered.

J. J. BRITTAIN.

A Wiser World.

"Do you think the world is any wiser for your having lived in it?"

"Yes," answered Mr. Dustin Stax. "These investigations of my business have taught the world things about insurance that it never dreamed of."—Washington Star.

A Success.

"Did your vacation do all you expected it to do for you?"

"Yes; it took every cent I had saved during the winter."—Houston Post.

The Usual Variety.

Jaggles—Is his flying machine a success?"

Waggles—Half-way so. It always comes down flying.—Puck.

THE EATING HABIT.

About once a month somebody rises to protest with genuine pathos against the public use of toothpicks. It is a very familiar and ancient topic, upon which there is only one opinion, and yet it is made to cover a series of soulful letters when the correspondence ball is set a-rolling. Those whose feelings are often sorely hurt relieve themselves by thus telling what they think, and then there is comparative calm until new protests are registered. There is, however, a more serious subject for discussion and one that is too often overlooked. It is the prevailing and growing habit of eating in public. Those who claim to have given deep thought and sleepless nights to this problem insist that eating should be conducted as privately as the care of one's teeth. They go further. They declare that it is merely a relic of barbarism for men and women to sit down publicly and masticate at one another between old jokes and morsels of gossip. Of course, those who insist upon the abolition of public dining are right in saying that such a step would go a long way toward abolishing the toothpick nuisance. But that, they declare, would be only an incidental gain. They can trace the progress of public dining and supping from early cannibal functions of great political and social importance down to the present era of table d'hote mysteries.

Fefused the Paper.

"Pa," said Johnny, "that poem sister Jane wrote is no good."

"How do you know?' 'queried father."

"Because," said Johnny, "I tried to feed it to the goat, and he wouldn't eat it."—Detroit Free Press.

Better Than a Tightwad.

"I know I am an awful spendthrift; but will you marry me if I'll reform?

"No, indeed; but I'll marry you if you won't."—Houston Post.

It Always Pays.

One of the reasons why sin is so attractive is because it is so well advertised.—Life.

Our New York Letter

Interesting Gossip Gathered Around Gotham—Bank for Women Only Is Opened—City Drinks a 21-Mile River Daily—Autos Have Transformed Upper Broadway.

LET ME HAVE 38 CENTS PLEASE

NEW YORK.—New York's very latest innovation is "My Lady's Bank," the only exclusive woman's bank in the country. Women with coupons to clip, fair depositors with rolls of bonds and notes as big as dress patterns, have opened accounts with the new bank.

This distinctly feminine institution is the financial stepchild of the Day and Night bank, corner of Fifth avenue and Forty-fourth street, which opened last May. The new bank is under the same management and housed in the same building.

Mrs. Anna Rice, a clever little English woman, who has been in charge of the woman's department of the Night and Day bank, will attend to the depositors in the new bank. Mrs. Rice's experience gives reassurance to the timid in banking transactions. She is a veritable guide book of information. She can tell just how many crowns, marks, and pence you can get for good American money if you are going abroad; she can give you the addresses of Fifth avenue's fashionable milliners, dressmakers, and hairdressers (this, she has discovered from past experience, goes with any woman's banking business, and the hundred and one important things that women want to know. In a recent report she said in part:

Women of wealth don't like to be delayed in maknig deposits. Women of small means are the same. Women, not being as strong as men, don't like to stand in line with them for fear of a struggle for their possession.

The same is true of women with large and small accounts when they come to draw money.

Depositing or taking out money is an inspiration with women. They are afraid of changing their minds after they have decided. Delay in the line unnerves them.

The only man in the bank will be Robert J. Phair, the teller. Mr. Phair has had 15 years' experience with the woman's department of the Fifth Avenue bank, and he explained his new position by the modest assertion that he "understood women." In his banking experience Mr. Phair has handled the fortunes of New York's wealthiest women, and declares he likes to transact business for them. "If women don't know," said Mr. Phair, "they learn quickly, and they are clever in business matters."

BIG RIVER OF WATER USED DAILY.

William B. Ellison, commissioner of water supply, gas and electricity, has been "taking account of stock" in his department. This department is one of the few in the city that makes money, the revenue for a year having been $10,065,000, while the commissioner had to expend of that $6,215,000. Improvements costing $20,000,000 are now being made, or about to be begun, including filtration works, which will cost about $12,000,000 and filter all New York city's water.

New York's water would make a remarkable river. The amount daily consumed is about 500,000,000 gallons, making about 182,500,000,000 gallons in one year. In weight the daily supply represents 2,100,000 tons, and its volume is such that it would flood a street 60 feet wide to a depth of ten feet for a distance of 21 miles.

This enormous daily consumption constantly increases, said the commissioner. Much of it has to be pumped to reach the distributing reservoirs. In Brooklyn, Queens and Richmond the whole supply has to be pumped. This requires 58 stations, burning more than 100,000 tons of coal a year.

Distribution of the water is through about 2,000 miles of mains from 6 to 60 inches in diameter. To these mains are attached 293,945 taps and more than 25,000 hydrants for fire engines, while 50,172 meters are installed to measure the water supply. For the high pressure, or so-called salt water system, 78 miles of mains from 8 to 24 inches in diameter will be laid and will have 2,012 hydrants. A fire can be immediately checked without the aid of fire engines.

UPPER BROADWAY NOW GARAGE ROW.

Upper Broadway, between Forty-second street and Seventy-second street, has been named Garage row by the automobilists. In the last two years automobile garages have strung up there at a great rate. Most of the ground which the garages now occupy was vacant lots a couple of years ago, some with squatters' shanties on them. Then one automobile manufacturer erected a temporary garage above Fifty-ninth street. It was a hit from the start and other manufacturers followed suit and erected garages.

At first the garages were only temporary affairs, the majority being only two stories high. As business increased substantial buildings took the place of the temporary ones. Each builder tried to outdo his rivals in the appearance of his garage, with the result that some of the garages resemble private dwellings more closely than business buildings.

When all of the available vacant ground was utilized the manufacturers were forced to look elsewhere. Some of them bought up buildings which were being used for other branches of business and transformed them into garages. One of them transformed a livery stable into a garage, while another purchased a flat house, and after overhauling the entire lower part turned it into a garage.

Most of the garages are four or five stories high, with a deep cellar for storing gasoline and oil, where electric sparks or fire can't get at them. The buildings are all of fireproof construction, with steel frames and concrete floors.

In some of the streets off that part of Broadway there is so much auto traffic through them daily that the asphalt is stained a dark brown from the oil and grease which drip from the machines.

LAMB AND MUTTON.

Talking of new bread, one is irresistibly reminded of the schoolboy—no relation whatever to Macaulay's—who announced his intention of sitting up all night with a loaf of bread to see at what moment it became stale. It is certain that the loaf we left new at supper time is invariably stale when we meet it again at breakfast, and the difference is no slight one, though the psychological moment at which staleness began will probably never be determined until we have learned to determine the precise period in a man's life when he ceases to be called a young man. Another problem of the kind is suggested by new and old potatoes. One goes away for one's summer holiday, and leaves new potatoes in every London shop; one comes back, ever such a short time after, and all the potatoes are old. This is not a problem that can be solved out of London, because in the country the potatoes are always last year's, at least.—London Chronicle.

Reynard as a Mouser.

The fox is an excellent mouser. He will lie and watch for a field mouse in the long grass like a cat, pounce upon it, kill it with a bite and lay it on one side until he has caught another, when, picking them all up, as many as he can carry in his mouth, he will canter away with them to serve them out to the cubs. This fact was confirmed by witnesses in Scotland who were examined by a committee of the board of agriculture when taking evidence on the occasion of the plague of field voles on the lowland sheep farms in 1893.

Cause and Effect.

Higgins—Old Gotrox is a distant relative of yours, isn't he?

Wiggins—Yes; and the richer he becomes the more distant he is.—Chicago Daily News.

Yes, Indeed.

"Her bathing suit covers her from top to toe."

"She is very modest."

"Yes; and very unfashionable."—Houston Post.

STANDARD LOSES POINT IN COURT

EVIDENCE SHOWING RELATIONS OF SUBSIDIARY COMPANIES TO PRESENT CONCERN.

Documents Certified by Secretary of State of New Jersey Permitted to Go to Jury Despite Protest of Attorney for Defendant.

Findlay, O., Oct. 12.—The Standard Oil company had another bad day of it before the United States district court here Thursday. First of all, the court admitted evidence showing that the Standard Oil company of New Jersey was the link that bound together a number of producing companies, and, secondly, the president of the Manhattan Oil company, under assurance of immunity from prosecution, admitted that it only sold oil to the Standard company, that in one field it paid five cents more a barrel for crude oil than in other fields and that the purpose of this was to "meet" competition.

Owned by English Concern.

President F. T. Cuthbert, the man given immunity by the court, said that the Manhattan Oil company of Ohio was owned by the General Industrial Development company, limited, of London, England, and that the company, which buys and pipes crude oil, does not compete with the Standard but does compete with independent companies.

Mr. Cuthbert said he had been president since 1903. He knew nothing about the English company; had never seen anyone connected with it, but had corresponded with J. W. F. Rancis, its secretary, and W. W. Johnston, its managing director, whose addresses were London. He remits money to them.

Sold to Ohio Company.

Explaining the nature of business done by the Manhattan in answer to questions, Mr. Cuthbert said that before he became its president the company did a general oil business, that it owned producing properties, pipe lines and a refinery at Galatea, O. It had disposed of all but its pipe line to the Ohio Oil company, but he did not know who was now operating the refinery at Galatea. The Manhattan company now does exclusively a pipe line business. In doing it it buys the oil of the producer, transports it to storage stations and sells it to S. P. Trainor, purchasing agent for the Standard, who also buys oil from Joseph Seep, treasurer of the Buckeye Pipe Line company.

In what is known as the South Lima field, where the Manhattan and Buckeye pipe lines both buy oil, the price paid to the producer is five cents a barrel less than in the North Lima field, where what are regarded as the independent companies make their purchases.

Standard Loses Fight.

The day began with an extended argument by counsel as to the admissibility as evidence of documents certified to by the secretary of state of New Jersey showing the corporate powers of the Standard Oil of that state and the seven annual reports since those powers were increased. The court ruled the evidence in.

Just before Mr. Cuthbert was put on the stand the state had Frank C. Shank, deputy county auditor of Hancock county, sworn. He identified several tax certificates on file in the auditor's office showing that Theodore M. Tolles of 26 Broadway, New York, was tax agent for the Standard Oil company of Ohio, the Buckeye Pipe Line and the Ohio Oil company.

FORMER REBELS LAUD YANKEES

Plan Farewell to Taft and Bacon to Show Appreciation of America.

Havana, Oct. 12.—An immense crowd of liberals, mostly negroes, from all parts of Havana and its suburbs, met Brig. Gen. Arenciba and other returning ex-rebel chiefs at the terminus of the Western railroad Thursday evening and escorted them across the city to the liberal headquarters, where there was a general jollification.

Upon arriving at liberal headquarters the rooms were found filled with people. Various addresses were made expressing satisfaction at the results of the revolution and lauding American intervention. The speechmaking continued at intervals until a late hour Thursday night. Uproarious applause greeted the speech of Jose Castellanos, who advocated bidding farewell to Messrs. Taft and Bacon with a big demonstration in order to impress them with the fact that the liberal party appreciated the dealings of the United States with Cuba, and to cause President Roosevelt to realize the sympathy of the liberals with American endeavors. Senor Castellanos said, in conclusion, that the American commissioners must leave Cuba carrying no doubt of Cuba's affection for the nation and people who twice had freed the Cubans from the yoke of tyranny.

Alleged Smuggler of Chinese Caught.

Halifox, N. S., Oct. 13.—A man who admitted he was James B. Lehnemann, for whom the United States immigration officials have been searching in connection with the smuggling of Chinese into the United States, disclosed by the recent seizure of the schooner yach Frolic at Providence, R. I., was arrested here Friday. The prisoner is being held pending instructions from the United States.

COLD WAVE EAST AND SOUTH

BREAKS ALL RECORDS FOR SEASON IN MANY PLACES.

Telegraph and Telephone Wires Are Down and Communication Is Generally Interfered with.

Washington, Oct. 12.—A cold wave swept over the east and south Thursday and broke all records for this season in many sections, but at night the weather bureau announced that while the temperature would rise "only slightly" Friday, there will be warmer weather Saturday, and by Sunday seasonable temperatures will again prevail east and south.

In many sections the severe cold snap was accompanied by snowfall and a storm of snow and sleet that raged in upper New York state particularly, caused great damage, wrecked telegraph and telephone lines and interfered with other traffic.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 12.—Fourteen inches of snow has fallen in this city since Wednesday afternoon, when the worst October storm in the history of the city began. Had the snow been dry this community would be helpless to-day, but, fortunately, the snow has melted rapidly.

The storm extended over western New York, western Pennsylvania, and a large portion of Ontario. Telegraph wires are unworkable east of London, Ont., and west of Montreal.

COTTON IS DAMAGED BY FROST

Oklahoma and Indian Territory Report Yield of Half Bale Per Acre.

Guthrie, Okla., Oct. 12.—Advices from important cotton sections of Oklahoma and Indian Territory are to the effect that the crop was materially damaged by the frost. The crop was practically made, but much of the cotton has not yet matured, and the plant in that stage will be killed. A conservative estimate gleaned from the reports places the yield at one-half bale per acre.

Cotton markets in the two territories are flooded and gins are working night and day to dispose of the offerings. Seed cotton in many places is lying on the ground at the mercy of the weather. There is $350,000 worth of the baled product in the local compress.

FARMERS OPPOSE FREE SEEDS

Urge Congress to Use Money for Agricultural Investigation.

Rock Island, Ill., Oct. 12.—Free distribution of seeds by congressmen was frowned upon in a resolution adopted by the Farmers' National congress Thursday. It recommended that money thus spent be devoted to investigating agricultural methods in foreign lands and introducing them here through agricultural schools.

Other resolutions urged the consolidation of third and fourth-class mail matter with a reduction in the rate to eight cents per pound.

A proposition was advanced for the federation of all agricultural societies in the United States.

HEAVY SNOWSTORM IN INDIANA

Seven Inches of Beautiful at Laporte Is Doubled at Stillwell.

Laporte, Ind., Oct. 11.—The record in Indiana for early snowstorms was broken Wednesday when, according to the government observer here, six inches of snow fell during the day.

At Stillwell, seven miles suoth of Laporte, the fall was the heaviest in this section, measuring 14 inches on the level. Running of railroad trains and electric cars was affected.

Hanging at Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 13.—"Thank God I am a soldier for Christ. I am ready and willing to meet my blessed Saviour. Everything is well with me." These words had hardly fallen from the lips of Daniel Francis, the condemned murderer Friday, as he stood on the scaffold in the county jail, when the trap dropped beneath his feet and he shot into eternity. The trap was sprung a few seconds after 11 o'clock, and at 11:14 Francis was pronounced dead by the jury of physicians.

Fresh Boxer Troubles.

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 11.—Fresh outbreaks of Boxers are reported in north China in districts west of Peking, according to mail advices received here. Mr. Stephenson, a missionary at Tsouinpsieu, Sophingchua, writes that Boxers have been drilling in the hills near there for months and recently attacked Tsouinscen.

Lawyer a Suicide.

Stamford, Conn., Oct. 10.—Nathaniel R. Hart, a prominent lawyer, was found dead in his office Tuesday, having shot himself sometime during the night. Mr. Hart formerly was assistant United States district attorney, and was about 55 years old.

French Parliament to Meet.

Paris, Oct. 13.—The cabinet has decided to convoke parliament for Oct. 25. The greater portion of the session will again be devoted to the vexed church and state separation question.

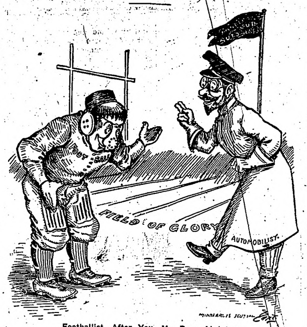
Wounded Editor Dies.

Warsaw, Russian Poland, Oct. 11.—John Gadomski, editor of the Gazeta Polska, who was shot by bandits, died Wednesday morning.

Pope Again Reported Ill.

London, Oct. 13.—It was reported here late Friday afternoon that the pope's condition has again become very grave.

DRESSED TO KILL.



Footballist—After You, My Dear Alphonse.

REJECTED SUITOR MURDERS TEACHER

TRAGEDY ENACTED IN SCHOOL ROOM AT CLEVELAND BEFORE BOYS AND GIRLS.

Fourth Cousin Bent on Marrying Comely Woman Meets Refusal with Bullets from Pistol and Later Commits Suicide.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 11.—While sixty school children were looking on, Harry Smith, aged 25, son of a Warrensville farmer, Wednesday shot and killed Miss Mary Shepard, a teacher, 22 years old, and, after eluding a posse which planned to lynch him, killed himself. Smith had tried to win the girl's love and had been rejected.

The murder aroused South Euclid, where the tragedy occurred. Smith left the scene of his crime, fled to neighboring woods, watched from his hiding place the gathering of the posse and then took a street car home. Hardly had he reached his house when the crowd, in which were three policemen and several deputy sheriffs, came up.

Saves Self from Mob.

Smith walked about the house, refused to reply to the questions of his parents and sisters, and, going to the rear of the place, drew a revolver and sent a bullet through his brain. As the shot was fired the posse was within 50 feet of him.

There is but one explanation of the crime—that Smith had fallen in love with Miss Shepard, had been partly successful in his suit for a time, then had seen the girl's affections cool, and finally had been rejected. He was the young woman's fourth cousin and had known her well for many years. Miss Shepard was attractive and she had scores of friends and admirers. Smith apparently was jealous of some suitor he felt was received with more favor than he.

Three weeks ago Smith went to Miss Shepard, though she endeavored to avoid him, protested against her treatment of him and begged her to give him another chance.

Gives Suitor No Hope.

The young woman was firm. She showed dread of seeing Smith and told him it was her hope she would not encounter him again. The young man went away in silence. He made no threat.

A few days later friends of the school teacher told her they had heard stories that young Smith was despondent and that it was reported he intended to do some desperate act. Miss Shepard apparently was not worried and took no precautions.

Smith brooded over his unhappiness. His parents found him sullen, gloomy and discontented. He refused to discuss with them his trouble and grew angry when they quietly asked him about it. Wednesday morning he seemed more cheerful, as though the load had been lifted from his mind, and his parents believed he had regained new interest in life.

Shortly after the noon recess at the South Euclid school, when the children had reassembled, Miss Shepard heard a rap at the door. She walked to the door, which opened into a small anteroom, and stood face to face with Smith.

Smith shoved open the door and strode into the schoolroom.

"Will you marry me?" he cried.

Miss Shepard made no answer. She seemed to realize that he was halfcrazed and that she was in danger. He reached for his revolver and the girl put up her hands to her face as if to ward off a blow.

Smith drew the revolver and with the muzzle only a few inches from Miss Shepard's face fired twice. Both bullets entered the young woman's head and she dropped to the floor, dead.

Shipload of Cotton Burns.

Bremen, Germany, Oct. 13.—Three thousand bales of cotton which arrived here from Savannah Oct. 8, on the British steamer Turkestan, were destroyed by fire Friday.

POLICE FIGHT WITH BANDITS

DESPERATE ENCOUNTER OCCURS AT TOLEDO, O.

One Policeman Is Fatally Shot and Two of the Highwaymen Are Injured.

Toledo, O., Oct. 13.—A desperate encounter between policemen and three holdup men took place early Friday at Main and Front street, East Toledo.

One of the policemen, Joseph Schlagheck, was fatally shot and two of the highwaymen were hurt.

The third man, known as Blackie, escaped and almost the entire police force is searching for him.

Christ Peterson, Neil Myers and the man known as Blackie held up F. H. Carnell, an insurance agent, and after nearly choking him to death, robbed him of $45.

He notified the police and Patrolman Schlagheck and Peter Deannee ran the holdup men down. As soon as the latter saw they were cornered they started shooting.

The first shot caught Schlagheck in the chin, knocking him completely around. As he whirled three more shots struck him in the back. Deaunnee drew his weapon. His first shot broke Myers' wrist. Then Deunnee grabbed Peterson and quieted him with his club. Meanwhile Schlagheck had sunk to the ground and Blackie, whose bullets had hit him, escaped. Meyers and Peterson struggled like fiends, but Deunnee got in front of both and held them at bay with his revolver till the patrol wagon reached the scene.

BURIED YOUTH IS STILL ALIVE

Wheeling Boy Supposed to Be Dead Returns Home.

Columbus, O., Oct. 13.—A telegram to the Dispatch from Wheeling, W. Va., says: Harry Bishop, a Wheeling boy, who was supposed to have been murdered on the wharf a week ago, returned home Friday, and his father fainted away when he appeared. A body supposed to have been Bishop's was found in the water, and buried in the family tomb after the coroner had returned a verdict of murder, and after the insurance company had paid the insurance on Bishop's life. Bishop says he was at Kittaning, Pa., when the supposed murder occurred. The identity of the dead has not been established.

WOULD STOP GRAIN GAMBLING

Farmers Ask Law to Prohibit Puts and Calls and Future Deals.

Rock Island, Ill., Oct. 13.—The Farmers' National congress Friday adopted a resolution demanding the passage of a law prohibited dealings in futures and puts and calls, and denying the use of mails and telegraph wires for quotations of stocks.

It also went on record in favor of a separate bureau in the department of agriculture for dairy industry, reciprocity treaties with countries that are largely consumers of agricultural products, and government aid for highway improvement.

WORLD'S SERIES CONTEST TIED

Chicago Nationals Win Game from Americans with One Lonely Tally.

Chicago, Oct. 13.—"Nick" Altrock, the Chicago American league pitching star, had one bad inning in Friday's game with the Nationals, when the latter scored one run on a single, two sacrifices and another single. "Three-Fingered" Brown held his opponents to two scattered hits and a whitewash. Each club has won two games in the series for the world's championship. The team winning four games will fly the bunting.

Morton Calls on President.

Washington, Oct. 13.—Paul Morton, president of the Equitable Life Assurance society and former secretary of the navy, called on the President Friday. He reached the executive office about the time the cabinet was assembling and renewed his acquaintance with the members.

A TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE.

How a Veteran Was Saved the Amputation of a Limb.

B. Frank Doremus, veteran, of Roosevelt Ave., Indianapolis, Ind., says: "I had been showing symptoms of kidney trouble from the time I was mustered out of the army, but in all my life I never suffered as in 1897. Headaches, dizziness and sleeplessness, first, and then dropsy. I was weak and helpless, having run down from 180 to 125 pounds. I was having terrible pain in the kidneys, and the secretions passed almost involuntarily. My left leg swelled until it was 34 inches around, and the doctor tapped it night and morning until I could no longer stand it, and then he advised amputation. I refused, and began using Doan's Kidney Pills. The swelling subsided gradually, the urine became natural, and all my pains and aches disappeared. I have been well now for nine years since using Doan's Kidney Pills.

For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

With the exception of the stage villain every man has his good points.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

But the man who thinks he has a will of his own is apt to marry a woman who knows she has a won't of her own.

Wild Animals on the Ocean.

A scientist has made some interesting observations as to the love of different wild animals for the sea. The polar bear, he says, is the only one that takes naturally to the sea, and is quite jolly when aboard ship. All others violently resent a trip on water. The tiger suffers most of all. Horses are very bad sailors, and often perish on a voyage. Elephants do not like the sea.

Lower Animals in Sickness.

Man might often take from the lower animals a lesson as to the care of himself when ill. All sorts of animals suffering from fever eat little; lie quiet in dark, airy places, and drink quantities of water. When a dog loses his appetite he knows where to find dog grass, which acts as a purgative and emetic. Sheep and cows, when ill, seek certain herbs. Any animal suffering from chronic rheumatism keeps as far as possible from the sun. If a chimpanzee be wounded he has been seen to stop the bleeding by a plaster of chewed-up leaves and grass.

WHAT WE OWE TO INSECTS.

They Are of the Greatest Benefit to Growing Flowers.

Prof. Darwin said that if it had not been for insects we should never have had any more imposing or attractive flowers than those of the elm, the hop and the nettle. Lord Avebury compares the work of the insect to that of the florist. He considers that just as the florist has by selection produced the elegant blossoms of the garden, so the insects, by selecting the largest and brightest blossoms for fertilization, have produced the gay flowers of the field. Prof. Plateau, of Ghent, has carried out a series of remarkable experiments on the ways of insects visiting flowers. He considers that they are guided by scent rather than by color, and in the connection he is at variance with certain British naturalists. Whatever may be the attraction in flowers to insects—as yet, it appears undefined—it is certain that the latter visit freely all blossoms alike, making no distinction between the large, bright-colored ones and the less conspicuous blossoms like those of the currants, the lime, the planetree, the nettle and the willow.

RUN DOWN FROM GRIP

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Have Cured This Form of Debility in Hundreds of Cases.

"Four years ago," says Mrs. F. Morrison, of No. 1922 Carson street, South Side, Pittsburg, Pa., "I took a cold which turned into the grip. This trouble left me all run down. I was thin, had backache much of the time, had no appetite, my stomach was out of order and I felt nervous and unstrung.

"While I had the grip I had a doctor, but I really suffered more from the condition in which the influenza left me than I did from the disease itself. I felt generally wretched and miserable and the least exposure to cold would make me worse. I couldn't seem to get any better until I began to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I very quickly noticed a benefit after I began taking them and they restored me to good health and strength. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a wonderfully good medicine. Thanks to them I am now in fine health and have had no return of my former trouble. I recommend the pills to everyone who is ailing and take every opportunity to let people know how good they are."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cured Mrs. Morrison because they actually make good, red blood. When the blood is red and healthy there can be no debility. The relation between the blood and nervous system is such that the pills have a very decided action upon the nerves and they have cured many severe nervous disorders, such as partial paralysis, locomotor ataxia and St. Vitus' dance, that have not yielded to ordinary treatment. Their double action, on the blood and on the nerves, makes them an ideal tonic.

All druggists sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, or they will be sent by mail postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

Tricks of Smugglers.

Double-bottomed bottles and other vessels are common contrivances for smugglers. In order not to awaken suspicion they are usually filled with some beverage, beer or wine, and this is duly declared by the man in charge of the vehicle in which they are carried. At the present time, however, the officers are never deceived by the double-bottomed bottles, nor, for that matter, by the hollow horse collar, which at one time was a favorite dodge for the alcohol smuggler.

WOMEN WHO CHARM

HEALTH IS THE FIRST ESSENTIAL

It Helps Women to Win and Hold Men's Admiration, Respect and Love

Woman's greatest gift is the power to inspire admiration, respect, and love. There is a beauty in health which is more attractive to men than mere regularity of feature.

Mrs. Chas. F. Brown

To be a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband, should be a woman's constant study. At the first indication of ill-health, painful or irregular periods, headache or backache, secure Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begin its use.

Mrs. Chas. F. Brown, Vice-President Mothers' Club, 21 Cedar Terrace, Hot Springs, Ark., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"For nine years I dragged through a miserable existence, suffering with inflammation and female weakness and worn out with pain and weariness. I one day noticed a statement by a woman suffering as I was, but who had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I determined to try it. At the end of three months I was a different woman. Every one remarked about it, and my husband fell in love with me all over again. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound built up my entire system, cured the trouble, and I felt like a new woman. I am sure it will make every suffering woman strong, well and happy, as it has me."

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, bloating (or flatulence), displacements, inflammation or ulceration, that "bearing-down" feeling, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, or nervous prostration may be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

SICK HEADACHE

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively cured by these Little Pills.

They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.

SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

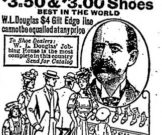
Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature

Brent Good

REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

W. L. DOUGLAS
$3.50 & $3.00 Shoes
BEST IN THE WORLD
W.L.Douglas $4 Gilt Edge line cannot be equalled at any price

To Shoe Dealers: W. L. Douglas' Jobbing House is the most complete in this country. Send for Catalog



SHOES FOR EVERYBODY AT ALL PRICES.
Men's Shoes, $5 to $1.50. Boys' Shoes, $3 to $1.25. Women's Shoes, $4.00 to $1.50. Misses' & Children's Shoes, $2.25 to $1.00.
Try W. L. Douglas Women's, Misses and Children's shoes; for style, fit and wear they excel other makes.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer, and are of greater value than any other make.

Wherever you live, you can obtain W. L. Douglas shoes. His name and price is stamped on the bottom, which protects you against high prices and inferior shoes. Take no substitute. Ask your dealer for W. L. Douglas shoes and insist upon having them.

Fast Color Eyelets used; they will not wear brassy.
Write for Illustrated Catalog of Fall Styles.
W. L. DOUGLAS, Dept. 12, Brockton, Mass.

IF YOU WANT to EARN MONEY

here is your chance. We offer $35,000 in CASH PRIZES for those who secure subscription for the two greatest magazine clubbing offers of the season, Success and Woman's Home Companion, each for a full year, $1.65; Success, Woman's Home Companion and Review of Reviews, $3.00. Prizes are in addition to a liberal commission on each order. These clubs almost sell themselves. Some earn $100 a week, many as much as $50. Can use all your time or a part of it. Write to-day for particulars, before your territory is taken, to SUCCESS MAGAZINE, 25 Washington Sq. E., New York City.

GET RICH If you are a young man willing to rough it a little come to San Francisco and receive the highest wages paid anywhere on earth. Jobs for everybody and no questions asked if you are willing to do a fair day's work for more than a fair day's pay. For particulars address BUREAU OF PUBLICITY, Room 514 Union Trust Bldg., San Francisco.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use } Thompson's Eye Water

WIFE'S SUCCESS KILLED LOVE

Dissensions, Misery and Divorce the Result of Husband's Wounded Egotism.

Average Man Must Be the Bread-Winner and the King or the Domestic Structure Is in Danger of Collapse—The Case of Burr Nichols and His Gifted Wife.

Shattered Romance of Two Artists Seems to Prove That a Woman Must Beware of Becoming More Famous Than Her Husband, in His Chosen Line of Work.

Jealousy, dissensions, misery and divorce. Are these the inevitable consequences when a wife is engaged in the same life occupation as her husband, when their lives move on parallel lines and with parallel ambitions, and when it is possible that the work of the wife exceeds in merit that of the husband?

So it would seem from the unhappy marital history of Mrs. Rhoda Holmes Nichols, a history in which art and jealousy crept in at the door while love flew out through the window.

Her divorce has just been recorded in the New York supreme court.

It is not an altogether unusual thing nowadays for a wife to outdo her husband at his chosen occupation. In almost every instance where this occurs misery is the consequence.

Men do not like to have wives smarter than themselves, or more artistic, or wiser in a business way, or who win praise for doing things for which praise is usually accorded a man, declares a writer in the New York World.

Let a woman bake a fine pie, or do a fine bit of embroidery, or hem or stitch, or sew or keep a neat house, and the husband will listen to the world's praise of her with complacent satisfaction.

But let her keep to the kitchen, if you please, or play the piano in the parlor, or mother the children in the nursery, or do anything but step over the line of demarkation where he is boss.

He is the bread-winner and the king. Those in his kingdom must be weaker than himself and dependent upon him, or the whole domestic structure falls and there is no more happiness in the world.

ARTISTIC JEALOUSY CAUSES SEPARATION.

So it was with Mrs. Rhoda Holmes Nichols, who now has her own studio, her own children, and her own lonely course in life, separate and distinct from that of her divorced husband.

Before Rhoda Holmes married she was known as now as a water-color painter of much merit. Her pictures were sought by dealers and connoisseurs, who paid good prices for them.

Being an artist, she naturally became well known in the New York artist colony around Fifty-seventh street and Eighth avenue. She was pretty and popular and good.

Miss Holmes was not only a painter, but even after she began to sell her pictures she continued to be an enthusiastic student.

She went to France and Italy, where she studied art in the best schools. She was successful there, and eventually went to South Africa and Asia for landscapes.

Still heartfree and winning her own way in the world, she settled down in Florence, where the air is the very breath of art, and where the sky is as tender as the eyes of love.

Here in the course of her work she met a young painter named Burr Nichols. He, too, was a fine artist, and their mutual tastes drew them much together.

It is strange that the very traits and characteristics and the mutual likes which give birth to love should in the end be the means of its death and funeral. The young artists did not dream of the truth of these things. How could the art from which love sprang be its murderer? Neither did they reck of the future when they became engaged. Was there not the magic of love in their brushes? Were they not bohemians enough to face the future with light hearts? Could they not paint the tearful eyes away from the face of sorrow, and put the cap and bells on the picture of poverty? On these fundamental beliefs they were married.

Nichols, like his wife, was a fine painter. They lived an ideal life in their studio. They painted together, talked together, planned together, living and dreaming for each other.

Ah, what a little fraud love is after all! He had fired the last arrow in his quiver when he shot them through the hearts, and then he left them, deeming his duty done.

The Nichols artist family was increased by two lovely children as time passed, and their happiness increased accordingly.

DECIDE AMERICA IS BETTER FIELD.

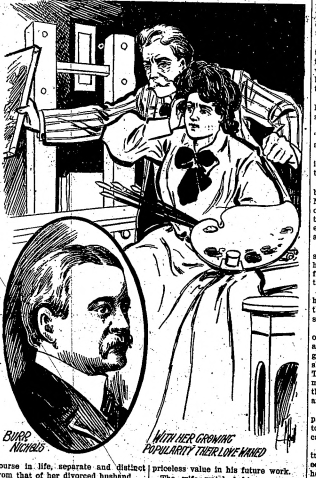
While they were prosperous and contented in Florence they at last decided that they could better themselves in this country.

They came accordingly and settled down in the studio quarter in New York. They continued their successful career, disposing of their pictures as fast as they could paint them. They were happier than most married people. They made friendly criticisms of each other's work, adopted each other's suggestions, were forbearing and forgiving, as men and wives should be.

In 1897 Mr. Nichols began a picture which, as it developed and the inspiration took wings within him, he resolved to send to the Paris Salon. As the idea grew his work became more painstaking. Should he succeed, the added incentive as well as the prestige it would give him would be of priceless value in his future work.

The wife watched his work with the greatest solicitude and pride. She encouraged him and gave him loving and unstinted praise. She put her own brush by to watch his. To her his work afforded a period of self-abnegation in which all her being was wrapped up in his.

Eventually the great painting was finished. With the utmost care they packed it and sent it off to the Paris Salon.



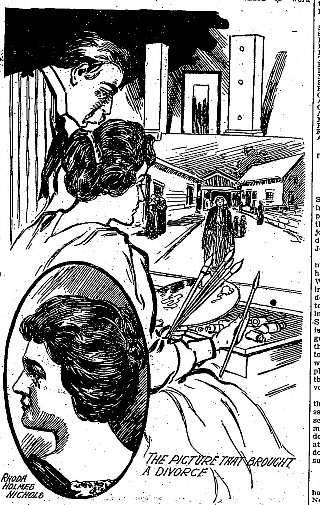
BURR NICHOLS
WITH HER GROWING POPULARITY THEIR LOVE WANED

Then followed a period of deep anxiety in which two souls joined. Impatiently they awaited the issue. In a month the answer came. The picture had been accepted and would be displayed "on the line."

Joy reigned in the Nichols household. They would now paint with a deep and strong foundation of success under them. The Paris Salon had spoken and the Paris Salon was mighty. The picture had secured "honorable mention."

The husband resolved to paint another picture for the following year's Salon. The wife would try it, too, she said. Was not her husband's success her own? If she should succeed, would not her success be gracious in the eyes of her lond and master?

Mr. Nichols smilingly gave his assent to the plan and they set to work with light hearts. Mrs. Nichols could only paint between the intervals of caring for her children, but she went at the work with a light heart, hoping against hope for success.



RHODA HOLMES NICHOLS
THE PICTURE THAT BROUGHT A DIVORCE

The two painters wrought and labored side by side. They saw their separate efforts grow from mute outlines, and take form and shape according to their ideas.

FIND HAPPINESS IN COOPERATION.

Up to this time not a cloud had marred their domestic sky. They were happy, with the careless happiness of children. Their art was a joy—a play to them.

And so they played together until the paintings were finished. In order to insure separate consideration they were packed and shipped in separate boxes to the Paris Salon, where sit the world's arbiters in art.

In due time Mrs. Rhoda Holmes and Mr. Burr Nichols received their respective verdicts.

For Mrs. Rhoda Holmes it was: "Painting accepted and given honorable mention."

For Mr. Burr Nichols it was: "Painting judged unworthy; hereby returned."

Here fell the shadow, if we are to believe those who sympathize with Mrs. Nichols. Here entered the note of discord. Here was the parting of the ways whereby two souls became estranged, through the life of earth and the eternity of heaven.

With the wife's joy was a feeling of sincere sorrow for her husband. He had worked so hard. He had hoped for so much. Why could not both of them have won?

Although the shadow was in his heart, the husband spoke bravely of the future. "Let us try it again, he said; "we may both win next time."

And so they went to work for a second trial. Side by side they painted as before. But now there stood a ghost between them—the impalpable shadow of jealousy and discontent. The wife, perceiving this, grieved much over it. The husband, imagining things that were not, grew gloomy and taciturn.

In due time the two pictures were packed in separate crates and shipped to Paris and in due time the answers came back.

His answer was a box with his picture, returned with a due acknowledgment; hers an acceptance with honorable mention.

Then, say Mrs. Nichols' friends, the man's nature seemed to change entirely. He became grumpy and cross. Nothing seemed to please him. The iron had entered his soul. The wife had outdone the husband in his chosen sphere of life. Oh, strange phase of a man's nature which makes such a thing unforgivable!

Some old philosopher has called love "the egotism of two." The egotism of Burr Nichols had received a fatal blow, and under that blow love withered. There was no more peace, no more happiness in the household. Seeing this, the children were silent and miserable.

But the last straw came when Mrs. Nichols' picture, her famous "Scarlet Letter," received encomiums on both sides of the Atlantic. The husband had never done anything like it.

After a year of trouble the couple separated, the husband going away and the wife remaining to work out her own career.

Thereafter her existence was peaceful, if lonely. There was but one easel now, and one painter. There was but one ambition, and that was the support and education of her children. Art for art's sake was no more. Love for love's sake was a farce.

The woman continued to work bravely. She could have gone to France or Italy, where her young artist days were passed, but she preferred to remain in this country and educate her children. She took a studio at East Gloucester, Mass.

In her artistic career she won eleven medals. She had shown pictures at the exhibition of the Roman Water Color society in 1883; she was hung on the line at Turin, Milan, the Royal academy at Paris in 1900, at the Chicago and Pan-American expositions, at Atlanta, Nashville, Cleveland and the Boston Triennial in 1896.

She is a member of many art clubs and societies and was for nine years vice president of the Water Color club of New York, is a member of the National Arts club, the American Water Color society, the New York Water Color club, the Barnard club, Pen and Brush, the Woman's Art club, the American Society of Minature Painters and an associate member of the Woman's Art Club of Canada.

MUTUAL HAPPINESS IN CHILDREN'S LOVE.

For eight years Rhoda Holmes Nichols has never ceased to struggle. She has earned a fair competence and has led a retired life, but gradually she is learning to be happy again—happy in the love of her children, which knows no distrust or jealousy.

The other day the curtain fell on the last act in this strange marital drama.

Mrs. Rhoda Holmes Nichols received a decree of absolute divorce, carrying with it the legal custody of the children, and authority to resume her maiden name.

Incompatibility was the cause given, but the divorce papers are sealed.

Mrs. Rhoda Holmes is still young and much of life is yet before her. But it is doubtful if she will ever again regard love as anything but a mirage of the youthful brain, an unsubstantial dream, the flesh tints laid upon the bones of an awful skeleton.

But the experience of Mrs. Holmes is not singular. So long as man's nature remains unchanged, just so long will he demand the leadership of the family, both mentally and physically. The spiritual crown he accords to woman without question.

Moral: Do not beat your husband at anything he may undertake.

Free Beds for Cats.

In an animal hospital in Philadelphia there is a free bed for cats, endowed by a servant, Ruth Darling, who died in that city some years ago. She had always liked animals, and left her savings to provide free treatment of ailing pets in the Maher animal hospital, where it takes the form of a commodious iron cage with the inscription "The Ruth Darling Bed" on it in gold letters. This bed has always a long list of cats waiting to be treated. During one year as many as 56 were cared for.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

State Fair Finances.

Hamline—The board of managers of the state fair held a meeting at the fair grounds. The meeting was to talk over the outlook for the next fair and needed improvements to be suggested to the coming legislature. It was decided that the course of the board cannot well be mapped out until it is known whether the legislature intends to arrange for the talked-of Minnesota semi-centennial exposition in 1908.

The board authorized the making at once of some minor improvements, roofing of machinery sheds A and B, resurfacing of the main avenue thru the grounds, betterments in the St. Paul fire department building, and the erection of a new speed barn.

A partial report of the finances of the association was presented as follows:

RECEIPTS.

State appropriation	$4,000.00
Stall rent	1,351.46
Forage	2,101.40
Privileges	26,064.40
Races	9,886.25
Tickets	137,404.72
Rents	220.00
Interest	1,360.11
Minnesota Livestock Breeders	88.50
Shorthorn Breeders	2,137.50
Butter and cheese sold	1,008.25
Official program	2,643.89
Advertising in premium list	604.20
Old checks uncalled for	17.68
Accounts refunded	40.78
Material sold	149.98
Refund on lots redeemed	133.62
Fines collected	156.25
Allemania bank dividend	.58
Total receipts to date	$189,369.49
Railroad tickets to be collected	15,000.00
Total receipts	$194,369.49

Officially Spanked.

St. Paul—The first official licking in St. Paul's schools since the new licking rule went into effect has been pulled off, and Supt. S. L. Heeter did the job himself. It is said that the job was well done, and if further evidence is needed a certain boy in the Jefferson school may be consulted.

The boy had a number of black marks checked up against him and he continued so rebellious that C. D. Welch, principal of the school, called in the mother to see what could be done. The mother wanted the boy to be good, and a stormy scene was in progress in Mr. Welch's office when Supt. Heeter called. Now Mr. Heeter is something of an athlete, with a good, strong right arm. He took in the situation at a glance, and turning to the mother asked whether she would prefer to have her boy disciplined in the old-fashioned way rather than turned out of school. The mother voted for discipline.

It is not necessary to go into all the harrowing details, but it may be said that one boy of the Jefferson school is probably still taking his meals off the mantel shelf. He has decided to be a good boy in the future; at least he doesn't want to be caught doing anything bad while the new superintendent of schools is in town.

Narrow Escape.

St. Peter—Algot Lundberg, a farm hand employed by Swen Anderson of New Sweden township, had a miraculous escape from death. He was drawn into the cylinder of a threshing machine, but the injuries he received were comparatively slight.

When the accident occurred Lundberg was standing on a footboard directly over the cylinder, the board broke under his weight and dropped him squarely into the mass of revolving teeth. His fellow workmen fully expected to see Lundberg ground in atoms, but by the merest chance the machine had been slowed down for a moment, and the engineer was able to stop in promptly.

Both of Lundberg's shoes were stripped from his feet, and the teeth on the cylinder caught and crushed one of his heels. Had the separator been running at the usual rate nothing could have prevented the man from being torn and mangled beyond recognition.

Lid at Owatonna.

Owatonna—The "lid" is on in Owatonna and the people are sitting up and rubbing their eyes. Not only has the "lid" been pushed down hard on the saloons, but it has struck with corresponding force on numerous places of business in the city.

A notice has been sent out to all tobacco dealers that hereafter they shall not sell to any pupil of any school in this city, nor to any other person under the age of eighteen years, any tobacco nor give to them any cigarette papers. And the offenders are warned that they will be punished to the full extent of the law; those who do in some manner obtain the necessary "makings" are likewise warned that they will be given five days in the city bastile if they shall be caught smoking on the streets. A noticeable decrease in the sale of tobacco has resulted.

In a Wolf's Den.

St. Joseph—After being lost for two days, during which time the entire countryside turned out to join in a hunt for her, four-year-old Margaret Schweitzer, daughter of a well-to-do farmer of Brockway township, was found unharmed in a wolf's den in the forest near here.

The child was well and apparently contented, but scolded her rescuers for having driven away the "nice little doggies" with which she had been playing.

NEWS NOTES.

St. Paul—The golf season at the Town and Country club closes with a "swatfest."

Minneapolis—A sister's search for her missing brother ends at a pauper's grave.

St. Paul—St. Paul holds the record among American cities for September building activities.

Alexandria—Carl Peterson, eight-year-old son of John Peterson, caretaker at the Minnesouri club, was shot and fatally wounded accidentally by his twelve-year-old brother.

Minneapolis—The Omaha road filed a new tariff with the state railroad and warehouse commission on coal rates from Duluth, Ashland, Washburn, Itasca and Superior to points in this state, the changes being cuts to meet those of the Great Northern at competing points in the southwestern portion of the state.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Fanatical nomad bands have been mobilized in southern Morocco and are already in armed rebellion.

The cruiser Charleston reached San Francisco and will take the place of the Chicago as the flagship of the Pacific squadron.

Rev. Dr. Donald Morrison told the Indiana synod of the Presbyterian church it cost $620 to convert a sinner in Indianapolis.

William F. Milne, whose home is believed to have been in San Francisco, committed suicide in a hotel in Washington street, New York, by shooting.

Thirty yards of the Paris Metropolitan subway near the Buttes Chaumont park suddenly caved in. Buildings were hastily and safely evacuated.

Miss Jessie Dicker, of Napoleon, O., took poison and died. Orson Broka has been arrested and charged with murder for buying the poison for her.

Maj. J. H. Stine, president of the United States Historical society and historian of the Army of the Potomac, died suddenly at his home in Washington.

J. P. Engel, of San Francisco, has informed the city officials that he has data showing the city owns 27 acres of land in the middle of the Fair estate property.

Beli Betsanki died in the Belmont Air Lock hospital, New York, from the bends. According to physicians, his death was due to leaving the air locks too quickly.

An American railroad constructor has expressed a willingness to accept an appointment as assistant chief engineer of the Hankow railway for $25,000 in gold per annum.

Mrs. Jesse E. Webb, of Smithville, Mo., finding her boy husband a consumptive, shot him and then killed herself. They had agreed to die together. He will recover.

Sibly college, Cornell university, was damaged by fire to the extent of $5,000. The building was saved from destruction by the efforts of the fire department and students.

The Lebaudy airship has been sent to where it will be employed as a school balloon, Chalais, department of Charante, France, to train crews for France's aerial war flotilla.

Acording to an order just issued by the war department state fish and game laws are not operative on a military reservation over which the United States has exclusive jurisdiction.

Baron Moncheur, the Belgian minister, called on the isthmian canal commission at Washington and obtained copies of the proposed canal contract for the use of Belgian contractors.

Women and girls to the number of 250 in a five-story brick building in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn escaped by fire ladders when the building caught fire. The loss is estimated at $50,000.

RURAL CARIERS PICK CHIEF

F. L. Lindsey, of Georgia, Elected President of National Association.

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 13.—At the closing session of the National Association of Rural Mail Carriers Atlanta, Ga., won out for the next convention over Milwaukee, after a hard fight. A resolution was adopted depriving former carriers of the right of membership, allowing them simply honorary privileges.

The following officers were chosen: President, F. L. Lindsay, Georgia; vice president, H. B. Crum, Michigan; secretary, P. E. Cowell, New Hampshire; treasurer, J. D. Williams, Pennsylvania. Executive committee: M. H. Hepner, Ohio; C. Chacoy, Kansas, and J. H. Johnson, New Hampshire.

Suicides at New York.

New York, Oct. 13.—William F. Milne, whose home is believed to have been in San Francisco, committed suicide in his room at Smith and McNeil's hotel, in Washington street, Friday by shooting. Milne had been living at the hotel since July 31 last. He was 65 years old.

THE MARKETS.

New York, Oct. 13.

LIVE STOCK—Steers	$5 00 @ 5 75
Hogs, State	6 80 @ 6 90
Sheep	3 50 @ 5 50
FLOUR—Minn. Patents	4 10 @ 4 35
WHEAT—December	81⅞@ 82⅛
May	84½@ 84⅝
CORN—December	58¾@ 58⅞
RYE—No. 2 Western	68½@ 69
BUTTER	18 @ 24
CHEESE	12¾@ 13
EGGS	23 @ 24

CHICAGO.

CATTLE—Choice Steers	$6 25 @ 7 30
Common to Good Steers	4 85 @ 6 25
Yearlings	4 50 @ 6 25
Bulls, Common to Choice	2 25 @ 4 00
Calves	3 00 @ 8 00
HOGS—Light Mixed	6 40 @ 6 60
Heavy Packing	6 15 @ 6 40
Heavy Mixed	6 30 @ 6 40
BUTTER—Creamery	19 @ 23½
Dairy	16 @ 21½
EGGS	15 @ 25
LIVE POULTRY	11 @ 11½
POTATOES (bu.)	34 @ 43
WHEAT—December	74¼@ 74⅝
May	78¾@ 79⅛
Corn, May	42⅞@ 43⅛
Oats, May	34⅛@ 34⅝
Rye, December	62 @ 63

MILWAUKEE.

GRAIN—Wheat, No. 1 Nor'n	$ 78 @ 80
December	74⅛@ 74½
Corn, December	41⅞@ 42⅛
Oats, Standard	34¼@ 34⅝
Rye, No. 1	64½@ 65

KANSAS CITY.

GRAIN—Wheat, December	$ 68⅜@ 69
May	72½@ 72⅝
Corn, December	37¼@ 37⅜
Oats, No. 2 White	33 @ 34

ST. LOUIS.

CATTLE—Beef Steers	$3 50 @ 6 50
Texas Steers	3 00 @ 5 10
HOGS—Packers	6 30 @ 6 60
Butchers	6 45 @ 6 55
SHEEP—Natives	3 00 @ 5 50

OMAHA.

CATTLE—Native Steers	$4 40 @ 6 30
Stockers and Feeders	2 75 @ 4 50
Cows and Heifers	2 50 @ 4 25
HOGS—Heavy	6 10 @ 6 30
SHEEP—Wethers	5 00 @ 5 25

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-class matter August 30. 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

The Socialist are offended because their nominee for Governor and the democratic nominee have names so near alike that large numbers of the Socialist are liable to vote the democratic ticket, by mistake.

We are creditabley imformed that one of the nominees on the Republican ticket, for office, in this county is doing what he can to get votes for Johnson for governor. How is that for Red Lake county politicks?

If the honerable republicans of Thief River Falls want to refute the story being sown broadcast over this County, that there is an attempt being made by them to "loot" the treasurey for county seat removel, let them disprove it by casting their vote for Thomas Germo. "By their works ye shall know them."

The Democratic State Committee seems to have got terriably excited because the socialist labor party have nominated John W. Johnson as their candidate for Governor. They claim the socialist Johnson has no show of election but he is liable to confuse the voter who is only looking for a man named Johnson to vote for. Give all the Johnsons a chance, but if you are affrald of making a mistake and vote for the wrong Johnson, you can vote for Cole, then you are sure of being right.

The editor of the Thief River Falls News has his war paint on and his "tomahawk" ground to feather edg going after the scalp of county auditor Ford. just because he took sides with Red Lake Falls on the county seat removel deal, which is right and proper, as a county official is not elected by the people to favor any faction or side, but to represent all the people of the County, but in the same issue of his paper he makes a frantic appeal to the voters of the County, and Thief River Falls in particular, to vote solid for E. M. Stanton for county attorney of Red Lake county, a man who has been the paid attorney and the attorney of record for Thief River Falls ever since the county seat removel case started. Now Mr. Voter if we are going to fire out the county seat removel candidates for office who had we better commence on, Stanton or Ford?

We publish, in an other colum the answer of Thomas Germo, to the charges brought against him by the news papers? of Thief River Falls regarding the redistributing of this County. We put the question mark on newspapers for the reason that the newspapers of that place refused to publish any explanation from Mr. Germo, nothwithstanding he offered to pay full legal rates for doing the work.

Now we want to say that we have not taken any sides on the county seat removel in this County, although we have been father in favor of Thief River Falls, but it begins to look to us as if they had a hen on the nest of the taxpayers of the county, in the election of their county seat removel attorney for County attorney.

It now looks to us as if it would be the safest plan for the tax payers to elect a man for this importent office who has not been mixed up in the county seat removel scrap, then if Thief River and Red Lake Falls want to dance let them pay the fiddler.

GERMO ANSWERS.

Thief River Roorback Gets An Undercut.

For the benefit of those who erroneously charg that I wantonly caused the so-called redistricting case to be coutinued over to the April term of the supream court, I herewith append written instructions from the County Commissioner, covering the question:

"Thos Germo, Co. Atty.

Dear Sir: We, as County Commissioners of the County of Red Lake, hereby request you to enter into a stipulation with the plaintiff's attorney in the case of Borcher vs. Wm. C.L. Demann, at als, as board of County Commissioners of Red Lake County to affect that the appeal in said action now pending in Supreme Court be tried and heard at the April, 1907 term thereof.– Dated Sept. 4th, 1906.

(Signed), Wm.C. L. Demann.
Louis Falardeau.
O. J. Johnson.

Here, then we have the direct written request by the majority of the Board of County Commissioners, which in the eyes of all justice loveing and fairminded people should absolve me from any blame, if blame there is, in the premises. The position taken by those who cavil, criticise and abuse me, those who distort the facts, or have had the facts distorted to them, is singulary unjust and unreasonable. It is indeed, equivilant to holding that I should be held responsiable for the action of the Board, which is as rash as it is impossiable. The functions of the two offices are so entirely different, and I have no more right to enroach upon their office than they have a right to enroach upon mine.

It is my duty to act as the legal adviser to the County officials and to prosicute cases in behalf of the County and in the name of the State. In short, I am by virtue of my office, the attorney for the County officials, and corollary, the County and County officials are my clients.

We now come to the meat in the nut, and it is this: Evry lawyer knows, and evry layman ought to know, that an attorney is governed by the wishes of his client as to when to begin prosecution, and after having begun, he is further governed by the wishes of his client in the matter of prositcuting the same as expeditiously as possiable, as well as in the matter of consenting to continuance. This no new doctrine, and the attorney who would refuse to be so governed would soon find himself without a client.–Yours for fair play and a square deal all around,

Thos. Germo.

It is amusing to read in one coulum of the Crookston Times about loyal republicans, when they are pushing A. D Stephens for State Senator, then in the next colum give A. L. Cole, the Republican nominee for Governor a sly stab in the back.

Magnet Power.

The lifting of massive iron and steel plates weighing four, six and twelve tons by magnetism is now done every workday in a number of large steel works. The magnets are suspended by chains from cranes and pick up the plates by simple contact and without the loss of time consequent to the adjustment of chain and hooks in the older method. It is also found that the metal plates can be lifted by the magnets while still so hot that it would be impossible for the men to handle them. A magnet weighing 800 pounds will lift nearly five tons.

A man who covers himself with costly apparel and neglects his mind is like one who illuminates the outside of his house and sits within in the dark.

Republican State Ticket.

United States Senator—
Knute Nelson,
Douglas County.

Governor—
A.L. Cole,
Cass County.

Lieutenant Governor—
A.O. Eberhart,
Blue Earth County.

Chief Justice—
Charles M. Start,
Olmsted County.

State Treasurer—
Clarence Dinehart,
Murray County.

Secretary of State—
Julius Schmahl,
Redwood County.

Attorney General—
E.T. Young,
Swift County.

State Auditor—
S.G. Iverson,
Fillmore County.

Clerk of Supreme Court—
C.A. Pidgeon,
Wright County.

Railroad Commissioner—
C.F. Staples,
Dakota County.

For Congress 9th District.
Halvor Steenerson
Polk County.

State Senator 61st Ditrict.
A. L. Hanson.

Representative 61st District.
Jens J. Opsahl.

Great Writers Not Correct Writers.

There is not a single great author in our literature in whose works numerous errors have not been pointed out or thought to be pointed out. They are charged with violating rules involving the purity if not the permanence of the language. A somewhat depressing inference follows from the situation thus revealed. The ability to write English correctly does not belong to the great masters of our speech. It is limited to the obscure men who have devoted themselves to the task of showing how far these vaunted writers have fallen short of the ideas of linguistic propriety entertained by their unrecognized betters. As a result of these critical crusades there is no escape from the dismal conclusion that the correct use of the language is not to be found in the authors whom every one reads with pleasure, but is an accomplishment reserved exclusively for those whom nobody can succeed in reading at all.—Professor Thomas R. Lounsbury in Harper's Magazine.

Squirrels Are "Handy."

The handiness of the squirrel is something extraordinary in the animal world. He sits up on his hind paws and uses the fore paws in many ways just as a man does. He strikes with it and wards off a blow from another, and squirrel quarrels rarely go further than attempts to cuff each other like children. A lady who lives in our county and who is the protector of squirrels in that region told me that she had contrived a little rack to be filled with nuts, so that they came to the opening singly, one dropping into the place as another was taken out, and this was fixed by her window so that she could watch the squirrels come. One day a squirrel took the last nut and was quietly eating it on the window bench when another came and, finding none in the rack, went up to the eating squirrel and gave him a deliberate box on the ear and went away.—W. J. Stillman in Century.

All the News.

A wise editor says: "A man told us the other day that we did not publish all the things that happened. We should say not. In the first place, there is somebody else depending on us for a living. If we printed all that happens we would soon be with the angels. In order to please the people we must print only the nice things said of them and leave the rest to gossip. Yet it's a fact we don't publish all the news. If we did wouldn't it make spicy reading? But it would be for one week only; the next week you would read our obituary. All the news is all right when it's about the other fellow."

Japanese "Silent" Music.

A curious ceremony is performed in Japan by the court musicians at certain Shinto festivals. Both stringed and wind instruments are used, but it is held that no sound should be allowed to fall upon unworthy ears, and, as some of the ears present might be unworthy, all the motions of playing are gone through by the musicians, but not a single sound is heard. This strange custom dates back many generations, but since the advent of civilization has rapidly lost favor.

Two Kinds of Reading.

If we make the pages of our books merely a sort of pleasant maze in which to set our minds to wandering during idle hours we in reading shall have acquired a pastime that is usually harmless. But there is a vast difference between such a way of spending our time and the reading that teaches us to think as the greatest and wisest men and women have thought. Words stand in our minds for certain ideas or images. From what we read we learn to make these plain or hazy, clearly drawn pictures or carelessly executed sketches, and thus our powers of thinking are directly trained by our method of reading.—St. Nicholas.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION

First Pub. in The Sunbeam August 31, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land office at Crookston Minn. August 24th, 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on October 23, 1906 viz:

Nels Loiland.

H.E. no. 1181, Red Lake Series for the Lots 5, 6, 7, 9, S.W. ¼, S.E. ¼, Sec. 2 Twp. 152 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ben K. Kvestad of Highlanding Minn. Halvor Swanson, Ole N. Loiland, Oluf Hanson of Hilda Minn.

R. J. Montague Register

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam September 28 1906.

Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston Minn. August September 25, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before L.G. Browning U.S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota, on November 5th 1906, viz:

Fred Solie.

H.E. No. 536 Red Lake Series, for the N.W. ¼ Sec. 16, Twp. 154, N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Knut Rogness, Ole Wiseth, Pete Brevik, of Germantown Minn. Olef Arakre of Brunkeberg Minn.

R. J. Montague, Regster.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam October 5th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. September 27th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L.G. Browning U.S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota on November 5th 1906 viz:

Christen H. Bjerke.

H.E. No. 697, Red Lake Series, for the Lots 3, 4, E½ S.W. ¼ Sec. 31, Twp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

John M. Johnson, Bernt Johnson, Ole Gaving, of Brunkeberg Minn. Gulbrand Granum, of Thief River Falls Minn.

R. J. Montague, register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam October 5th 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office, at Crookston Minn. September 28th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L.G. Browning, U.S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota on November 5th 1906 viz:

Thom M. Thorson.

H.E. no. 780 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 1, 2, E½ N.W. ¼ Sec. 7 Twp. 158 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ole H. Langlie, Jacob B. Nesheim, Carl J Olson, of Brunkeberg Minn. Aaron A. Abraham of Thief River Falls Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Oct. 12th, 1906.

Department of the Interior.

Land Office at Crookston Minn. September 26th, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that OLOF SNOBACK of Rhoda Minn., has filed notice of his intention to make final Commutation proof in support of his claim viz: Homestead Entry No. 1216 Red Lake Series made July 26th 1905, for the S. E. ¼ Section 32 Township 153 N. Range 40 W., and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on November 16th 1906;

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Andreas Christiansen. George Singer, Stephen Singer, Knut K. Olson, all of Rhoda Minn.

R J. Montague, Register.

Doomed the Colonel.

Emperor William I. of Germany was a strict disciplinarian. One day during the maneuvers of the army a cavalry regiment charged at a strongly intrenched and embattleried village, of which the garden walls were lined with marksmen. "Look, look!" exclaimed the Russian representative. "That regiment is lost." "No," was the emperor's calm reply, "this regiment isn't, but the colonel certainly is." And, sure enough, at the close of the maneuvers he was placed on the retired list.

Two Kinds of Boys.

"My son got brain fever from studying too hard," said one mother to another, trying to repress a thrill of intellectual pride.

"That's bad, but my boy broke his leg and two ribs in his first game of football," replied the other, with motherly gratification.—Baltimore American.

The Rainy Day.

A well known artist recently received a letter from a chap who has regularly made it a practice to borrow money of him. In this letter the chap who is always in financial difficulties surprised his correspondent by saying:

"This time I have decided to reverse the usual order of things, and, instead of borrowing from you, I inclose herewith $50, which I am going to ask that you will lay aside for me for a rainy day."

But the artist couldn't find any remittance in the letter. He searched for it on the floor, under the table—in fact, everywhere he thought he might have dropped it. Then quite accidentally he turned over the sheet on which the letter was written and discovered this postscript:

"I've just looked out of the window and find it's raining like the very deuce!"—Collier's.

H. & B. MILLING CO.
BEST
VIVO
PATENT
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.
VIVO

VIVO

HANDLED BY ALL THE LEADING MERCHANTS OF THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

(Always Call For Vivo)

We pay the highest marke price for all grain, at our mill in Thief River Falls, or at our elevator at Plummer, and always have on hand a compleat line of flour & feed at both points.

☞ Promt shipments made by boat to all points along the Red Lake River.

We solicit your orders.

Hanson & Barzen Milling Company.

THE MERCHANTS

State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds. Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.——

J. A. Duffy, Cashier,

The Radny Store:

☞ THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE RADNY STORE.

John has, Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes.

A full and complete line of groceries.

Best brands of flour, at lowest market price .... :00.............

Call and see me for bargains, at Radny post office and store.

John Radneskie.

IF YOU WANT TO DO BSINESS,

With The People Of Eastern Red Lake County,

YOU SHOULD ADVERTISE

IN A PAPER,

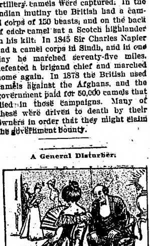
THAT THEY TAKE AND READ.

TRY "THE SUNBEAM", WITH AN AD., FOR RESULTS.

The Camel as a Soldier.

The camel is a good soldier, says a London writer. It may be stupidity, and it may be bravery, but a camel is as steady under fire as a tower. The Persians mounted small cannon on the backs of their camels and called them zambwahs, or "little wasps." This fashion was adopted in India, and after the battle of Sobraon 2,000 of these artillery camels were captured. In the Indian mutiny the British had a camel corps of 150 beasts, and on the back of each camel sat a Scotch highlander in his kilt. In 1845 Sir Charles Napier had a camel corps in Sindh, and in one day he marched seventy-five miles, defeated a brigand chief and marched home again. In 1878 the British used camels against the Afghans, and the government paid for 50,000 camels that died in those campaigns. Many of these were driven to death by their owners in order that they might claim the government bounty.

A General Disturber.



She—Mrs. Neverest just told me she had been away for complete rest.

He—Well, I hope no one else has been to the same place on that errand.—Judy.

Why Pay Cash

WHEN YOU CAN BUY ON

Easy Credit Terms

PIANOS $124.75 UP.

ORGANS $10.00 UP.

SEWING MACHINES $7.50 UP.

STOVES and RANGES $2.10 UP.

HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE Of all kinds at 60 cents up.

IRON and STEEL SAFES,

TYPEWRITERS and OFFICE FURNITURE From $6.25 up.

We are the largest manufacturers on earth, have unlimited capital and sell direct from the workshop to the fireside on EASY MONTHLY PAYMENTS to honorable people in all parts of the world. No other manufacturer will let you use the goods for years while slowly paying for them.

Write for Information and Free Catalogue

THE ENGLEWOOD CO.

Consolidated Factories

51-63 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill., U. S. A

A Story of Sir Robert Ball.

Sir Robert Ball, the noted British astronomer, on one occasion went to a remote town in Ireland to lecture on his favorite topic. Arriving at the station, he looked for the expected conveyance, but found none. After all the other passengers had disappeared a man stepped up and said; "Maybe you're Sir Robert Ball?" On receiving an affirmative reply the man hastily apologized, saying, "Sure, your honor, I'm sorry I kept you waiting, but I was tould to look for an intellectual gintleman." Sir Robert thought that under the circumstances it would be better not to inquire what was the man's idea of intellectuality.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

No snow in Northern Minnesota yet.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

VIVO flour is the best. Ask your dealer for vivo.

HORSES FOR SALE, at the Plummer livery barn.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar, will cure your cough.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar will bring relief to Asthma patients.

Father Adolph, of Thief River Falls held religious services at the residence of P. Sullivan Wednesday last.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar Do not wait get it at the first indication of cough or cold.

Walt McAndress, has been enlargeing his celler this week to give acco nidaton to his big crop of potatoes,

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar, is a remedy that cures by removing the cause. Try a 50ct. bottle.

Miss Auguste Kuehnel is having a new well dug on her farm this week. Jack Dunn is doing the work for her.

Paddy Sullivan is doing qiute a rushing business now days in ferrying politicans accros the river, "You are all right, 25 cents please."

CATTLE WANTED, Highest market price paid for fat cattle, inquire a this office, or of Chris Larson a Anton Post office.

Mikel Homme and J. S. Jacobson, of McIntosh, were doing colection business in this locality Tuesday, and made this office a pleasant call.

The Hommy Bros., are working eastward with their threshing mchine and expect to reach the eastern line of the reservation next week.

George Singer the Deer Park farmer, politican and creamery man was transacting business at the Browman Auction sale in the town of Lambert Monday.

James Colman, P. Sullivan Pete O'Tool, Henry Arndt, and James O'Brien will leave for a hunting trip up by Germantown tomorrow. They expect to bag what wild ducks and geese there is loose up in that part of the Country.

We have had sickness in our dog kennel this week, our dog Bounce having an attact ofcolic, caused by eating to many field mice, which the cat Topsy catches in large numbers. We treated him with Marks Kill Pain, which undoubtly saved his life.

Fred Richards, candidate fo superintendant of schools, on the republican ticket was interviewing the voters in this locality last Saturday, and made this office a pleasant call. Mr. Richards seems to be a very fine man and to be well qualified for the position he seeks.

Charles W. Johnson the Rhoda barber and all around good fellow returned home to Deer Park last Saturday, still single and happy, after nearly a year spent among the charming maidens of Illinois. We don't claim to know much about love or politicts, but we believe now would be the right time for the Deer Park girls to put on their brightest smile and say, "How do you do Mr. Johnson, you are back again from Illinois, that state of the homley big footed girls, and we was not at all surprised when we heard you were still single". Then draw a long sigh, and say, "Oh Mr. Johnson, is it not awful lonesome batching and living alone." If that don't catch him we give up the case.

FOR SALE: One pair of work oxen four years old, well baoke to harness. One work horse, gentle and a good single driver, weight about twelve hundred pounds, One full blooded short horn cow, milk strain, 7 years old. One short horn hieffer calf, four months old, on easy terms, or at a discount for cash. For further particulars, see or write J. A. Hendicks, at Fosston Minn.

POLITICAL PICK-UPS.

Fred Richards is putting up a good clean campaign for election for superintendant of schools on the republican ticket.

We shall have somemore to say on the County attorneys fight next week, for when we see a woodchuck in the wood pile we usualy pull him out.

The Crookston Daily Journal are running a continued story, entitled A. D. Stephens record as state Senator, which had ought to make very interesting reading, just at the present time.

We could not understand what made the strong southwest winds last week, but we were informed they were caused by Frank Jeffers making a "whirlwind campaign" for his re-election for Register of Deeds.

Dan Linnihan our popular Sheriff was up this way yesterday summoning jurymen for the fall term of court, and putting a few rails on his political fences. Mr. Linnihan has only had one term in office and has proven himself to be a faithful and honerable official, and certainly is entitled to one more term, and about the only reason given for putting him out is that another man wants his place, which we believe will not be satisfactory to the majority of the voters on November 6th,.

Request For Votes.

James E. Ford,

Candidate for re-election as County Auditor of Red Lake County, has done his duty as a public official.

VOTE FOR HIM NOV. 6th,

FRED RICHARDS.

Black River Township.

Republican Candidate for Superintendant of Schools.

Respecitfully Solicits your vote and suppor November 6th,.

DAN LINNEHAN,

Sheriff of Red Lake County,

Candidate fbr re-election.

Your VOTE, and Support Respectfully Solicited.

I am asking for re-election to the office of Register of Deeds and would deeply appreaciate the support of the voters in all parts of the County.

FRANK JEFFERS.

Having served one term as County Attorney, I am asking for a second term, and would deeply appreciate the support of the voters in all parts of the County.

THOMAS GERMO.

In Praise of Cockneys.

Cockneys are the best natured people under the sun. It is notorious that a big London crowd is of all crowds in the world the most harmless and the easiest to manage. But see them also in their ordinary collections, outside the gallery door of a popular theater or crowding in the carriages of an excursion train—what fun and kindness and wholesome give and take! A deliberately rude or offensive cockney is hardly to be met.—G. S. Street in Pall Mall Gazette.

The Mortality List.

Manager (of great exposition)—What alarms me is our mortality list. Assistant—Mortality list? Why, it's next to nothing at all! "I know better than that. More than one-third of the people that come through the turnstiles are [illegible]"

ALL YOUR FALL NEEDS,

Will be well taken care of, IF you come to the

GOLDEN RULE DEPARTMENT STORE,

THIEF RIVER FALLS.

Complete Departments, In CLOTHING, DRY GOODS, LADIES CLOKES, SHOES, Underware, Hats and Caps, all kinds Rubber goods, and Sheeplined Coats, a Forget our GROCERY DEPARTMENT. We buy all kinds of farm produce.

O. J. SCHEI & CO., Props.

MARKS'S LUNG BALSAM, with TAR.

For the cure of all diseases of the lungs, throat and chest, as Cough, cold, Asthma, Bronchitis La Grip and will Prevent consumption when taken in time.

Free To Women.

Our handsome catalog of Womens Cloaks, Suits, and Skirts sent free on request, showing all the latest styles. We manufacture our goods and sell direct to customers. Every garment sent subject to examination.

Write now.

MAIL ORDER GARMENT CO.,
508 century Bldg. Minneapolis,
Minn.

J. K WOOD,
COUNTY SURVEYOR, &
CIVIL ENGINEER.

Will give all orders for Surveying prompt attention.

Office at Thief River Falls
Minnesota.

U.S. Mail,

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 8. 30 a. m. on Tuesday's Thurday's and Saturday's. & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 3. p.m.

WM. G. HUNT, P.M.

MONEY TO LOAN.

I have money to loan on real-estate at 7½ per cent. Payments at the land office made for you when you make final proof.

Special attention given to Notary Public work.

Applications to make final proof written free.

Stephen Singer.
Rhoda Minn.

Subscribe for The Sunbeam,

Wanted: Gentleman or lady with good reference, to travel by rail or with a rig, for a firm of $250,000.00 capital. Salary $1,072 00 per year and expenses; salary paid weekly and expenses advanced. Address, with stamp, Jos. A. Alexander, Sunbeam, Minn.

LAND OFFICE BUSINESS.

U.S. Commissioner L. G. Browning with office located at Thief River Falls, is prepared to take homestead entries final proof etc., within the Crookston U. S. Land District.

office in News building, three doors south of the post office.

"ECZEMA and PILE CURE FREE.

Knowing what it was to suffer, I will give FREE OF CHARGE, to any afflicted a Positive cure for Eczema, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Piles and Skin Diseases. Instant relief. Don't suffer longer, Write F. W. Williams, 400 Manhattan Avenue, New York. Enclose Stamp.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam October 19th 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. October 17th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that ALFRED T. RICE of Germantown, Minn., has filed notice of his intention to make final commutation proof in support of his claim, viz: Homestead Entry, No. 1151, R.L.S. made April 24, 1905, for the S.W.¼ Sec. 20, Twp. 154, N. R. 40 W and that said proof will be made before the Register and Reciever of the United States Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on December 4th, 1906.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz;

Teresa O'Reilly, Kathleen A. Daley, John O'Reilly, John Connacker all of Germantown Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam October 19, 1906

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn. October 17th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that JOHN CONNACKER, of Germantown Minn., has filed notice of his intention to make final commutation proof in support of his claim, viz: Homestead Entry No. 701, Red Lake Series, made October 5th 1904, for the S.E.¼ Sec. 28, Twp. 154 N. R. 40 W., and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the United States Land Office, at Crookston Minn. on December 4th 1906.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Alfred T. Rice, Teresa O'Reilly, John O'Reilly, Kathleen A. Daley all of Germantown Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam October 19, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. October 17th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that KATHLEEN A. DALEY, of Germantown Minn., has filed notice of his intention to make final commutation proof in support of his claim, viz: Homestead Entry, No. 785, Red Lake Series, made October 26th 1904, for the S.W.¼ Sec. 28, Twp. 154 N. R. 40 W., and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the United States Land office at Crookston Minn. on December 4th 1906.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Albert T. Rice, Teresa O'Reilly, John O'Reilly, John Connacker all of Germantown Minn,

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub in The Sunbeam October 19th 1906

Department of the Interior. Land Office, at Crookston Minn. October 17th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that TERESA O'REILLY of Germantown Minn., has filed notice of his intention to make final commutation proof in support of his claim, viz: Homestead Entry, No. 784, Red Lake Series, made october 26th 1904, for the S.W. ¼ Sec. 27 Twp. 154 N. R. 40 W. and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the United States Land office, at Crookston Minn. on December 4, 1906.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Alfred T. Rice, John Connacker, Donald O'Brien, Kathleen A. Daley all of Germantown Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

A Two Edged Cure.

A story is told of the wonderful cure from deafness of a patient who was recommended to hear a Wagner opera and to sit near the orchestra by the trombones. The physician accompanied his patient and sat beside him. Suddenly, while the crash of the instruments was at its loudest, the deaf man found he could hear. "Doctor," he almost shrieked, "I can hear!" The doctor gave no sign that he noticed the remark. "I tell you, doctor," repeated the patient in ecstasy, "you have saved me! I have recovered my hearing." Still the physician was silent. He had become deaf himself.—Harper's Weekly.

THE FIRST
STATE BANK, OF

THIEF RIVER FALLS, WILL LOAN YOU THE Money To Make Your Second Payment, or to make your final proof. Give us a call, as we give the best rates

On Farm Loans.

Isnadyan Singer, Edward Singer,

SINGER BROS.

Dealers In,

WORKING MENS
CLOTHING
MADE IN DULUTH

This line is justly celebrated because they fit and STAND THE WEAR

WE CAN FIT YOU

Groceries, flour & feed.

Dry Goods, Boots & Shoes.

HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR FARM PRODUCE

Rhoda, Minn.

NEW STORE,

AT ANTON MINNESOTA.

Dry Goods, Goceries, Flour & feed.

Fine & Heavy Shoes, of best quality.

EXCLUSIVE AGENTS FOR THE CELEBRATED DE-LAVAL CREAM SEPERATOR, IN THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

Any Kind Of Stock Taken In Exchange for Goods.

Give me a call.

Located at Anton post office, on the Red Lake River, Eigh miles east of Thief River Falls.

Christ Larsen, Proprietor.

A Marriage of Convenience

By H. H. LERSNER

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

It was generally conceded that Bab Leslie was the handsomest girl within her circle—but vain to a degree; never making any attempt to interest those with whom she came in contact socially—relying absolutely on her extreme good looks to court popularity.

Nevertheless, she had an ardent admirer, James Lyle, a fine, manly fellow, young, stalwart and possessed of a genial nature, not so situated, however, as to be able to give her a home such as she anticipated.

Bab held a remunerative position with a large corporation in an official capacity, and although she derived an income far in excess of the work demanded of her, she was discontented with her lot, probably due to the fact that she had too much leisure, giving her ample time to conjure foolish notions.

She longed to be mistress of a fine home, with all the charming accessories that accompany luxurious environments.

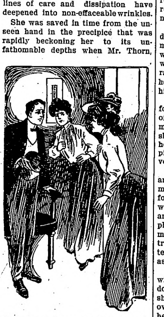
James loved Bab dearly, and urged her to become his wife.

"I can see no future but the care of a home, donning a wrapper and apron for the convenience of performing household drudgery, and never showing my good looks to advantage," she languidly replied.

James coaxed and pleaded, but of no avail. Bab's vanity excelled her discretion. James was compelled to accept the inevitable and discontinued his courtship.

Through meeting many gentlemen in a business capacity, Bab was much admired. Gifts of value were lavished unremittingly on her, and unusually extravagant amusements were thrown in her path. The home of her parents was fading rapidly from sight. Bab was traveling at a rapid pace the road that is bright and luring while youth holds sway, but tramples one under foot when the lines of care and dissipation have deepened into non-effaceable wrinkles.

She was saved in time from the unseen hand in the precipice that was rapidly beckoning her to its unfathomable depths when Mr. Thorn, a prosperous merchant past middle age, sought her hand. She eagerly accepted his offer, and in a very short time was wed and established in a magnificent home. She moved in a different sphere, and her ambition was gratified.



"You Here, James, at This Hour?"

After seven years of incessant pleasure and excitement, Bab became a widow, with three little ones to love and care for on a reduced income. She had spent money with a lavish hand, and friends were numerous—but all too late realized how empty her gay life had been. She was compelled to curtail expenses, move to a small apartment, and was able only to employ one maid.

Belle, the new servant, proved to be a jewel. Educated, and with more than the ordinary amount of attractiveness. Too proud to work in a factory, and preferring a home to store employment, she made every effort to please. One of her many duties was to take the children out each pleasant afternoon, the outing giving them all a rosy, healthy color, which poor Bab no longer possessed, she remaining indoors doing the duties incumbent upon housekeeping, rather than walking out with the perambulator and exposing herself to the gossip of past friends.

It was a summer day—weather was humid — children were fretful, and Bella, exhausted from the strenuous labors imposed upon her. Mrs. Thorn was observant enough to notice her maid's indisposition, and knowing full well her invaluable services, and how she could ill afford to part with her, she called in a friendly tone: "Belle, you may go out for the remainder of the day. The change will no doubt do you good."

"Thank you, Mrs. Thorn," Bella gratefully answered, "I am quite tired to-day. I shall take a short trip out of town to visit a cousin whom I have not seen for a long time, but I will return before you retire."

In a very short space of time Bella appeared ready for her journey—really looking weary. She wore a simple frock of pink and white muslin, caught here and there with tiny bows of pale pink ribbon. She could boast of a fine, clear complexion, and a mass of wavy reddish brown hair which she had to-day arranged artistically in a coil at the nape of her neck, with a black bow entwined, and resting lightly on her head a soft white chip hat, which her deft fingers had gracefully maneuvered until it conformed very attractively to the contour of her oval face. The straw was partially hidden by small white and pink blossoms and harmonizing ribbon; she presented a picture of refinement and simplicity that many a girl in her station who affected tawdry raiment might envy, and, indeed, a lass of far loftier station would perforce of her daintiness, give her more than a passing glance.

Mrs. Thorn recalled her girlhood and sighed as she bid Bella a pleasant afternoon.

It was evening of the day in question. Children had been put to bed; after much coaxing and promises of goodies on the morrow they fell fast asleep. The dinner dishes having been disposed of, and all irksome duties performed, Mrs. Thorn prepared to discard her wrapper and apron and rearrange her hair, which had become disheveled; but before she had been able to do anything, the bell rang; she hesitated—not having time to make herself presentable, the ringing of the bell again caused her to hasten to the door.

"You," she gasped—"James Lyle—Whatever brought you to visit me here?"

"I, oh, I've called to visit you and your husband," he managed to stammer.

"Come in, James, and make yourself at home. I am practically alone just now, my maid is out. Think of it, you find me so." She blushed, for she recalled all too well her reason for refusing him. "James, I'm a widow now. Hadn't you heard?"

"Indeed," responded James, "I didn't even know the name of the man you married." He not realizing what a stupid blunder such a reply was. Bab, however, was so embarrassed and mortified at the condition he so surprisingly found her in the his remark passed unnoticed.

The evening went all too quickly for Bab. She felt a certain amount of discomfort attired in such habiliment, but in her inmost heart hoped she might yet win James back to love her, forgetting in her new-found happiness she was handicapped by three very young babies.

Seven years of unrelaxed gayety and her present cares had aged her most perceptibly. James was dumbfounded at the change time had wrought in her. He was restless and ill at ease—not being able to compliment her, and fearing each moment he might commit himself irretrievably. He begged to be excused, telling Bab she looked a trifle tired—as he modestly put it.

"But, James," she pleaded, "you will surely call soon again. Now, don't say no," said Bab, teasingly, as she observed his hesitancy, "think it over, and I will anxiously wait to hear from you. I am very lonely, and your presence will cheer me and give me courage."

With a half promise James was about to depart, when Bella opened the door.

"You here, James, at this hour," Bella almost screamed, and took his hand. "What can have happened?" Bella was scarlet with excitement. She certainly looked enchanting.

James looked from Bella to Bab. Such a contrast. There was joy in his eyes. Bab saw it in a twinkling. Her indignation knew no bounds. She resented the deception of his visit in a fire of speech. Turning to Bella she snapped: "You may look for another position when your month is up, and you, James Lyle, don't ever cross my threshold."

"Bella," said James, addressing her, gently, "you will leave at once, and you shall have a position as mistress of my heart and home."

Tolstoi as a Shoemaker.

"These shoes were made by Tolstoi, the greatest literary genius of the age."

The shoes, framed in oak, hung over the mantel—a coarse pair of cowhides, with hob nails. The speaker who was a famous manufacturer of shoes, went on:

"When I was in Russia I visited Tolstoi. I told him of my admiration for his books, and I watched him at his cobbling. He works, you know, three or four hours a day on the bench.

"I found that he worked too slowly to make a living as a shoemaker. Furthermore, I found that he would have been incapable of turning out dress shoes. The coarse, heavy boot of the peasant was all Tolstoi was equal to, and, though he labored fiercely—for he wanted, of course, to show off before an experienced shoemaker like me—I had to tell him that he'd have had difficulty in getting a journeyman's job anywhere.

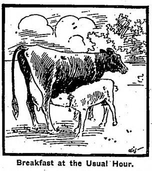
"Tolstoi presented me with a pair of boots over the mantel, and I presented him with some money for his poor. I also taught him a quicker way to wax-end a thread than the old-fashioned one he used."

THE FAMILY COW.

"Brindle" Asks for Little in Return for All She Gives.

Many who live on small country places are deterred from keeping a cow by the mistaken idea that she requires too much room or care. Brindle needs no more space for her comfort, and less of your time, than even the small poultry yard. It is more important that the family should be supplied with clean, pure, wholesome milk than any other article of food.

All that is necessary is a dry, well-lighted stall, five or six feet wide and a few feet longer than the animal. A tight manger and a gutter to receive the droppings are essential. Then by all means fasten her with a chain tie or swinging stanchion, that she may have freedom to use her all-cleansing tongue. Plenty of clean bedding—shavings are best—plenty of absorbents in the gutter, with some slaked lime occasionally as a deodorizer, complete the sanitary furnishings.



Breakfast at the Usual Hour.

For grounds, a cow needs but a small yard for exercise. Keep it filled with the leaves and rakings from the lawn to prevent it from becoming muddy. These make good mulching later.

Grazing is best in summer, if it can be had, and green crops cut and fed are a good substitute. Oats and field peas, planted to secure a succession, will serve the purpose. There are always roadsides and odd corners that a cow can graze down, and the lawn may be sparingly utilized. When the pasturage begins to fail, the grain ration must be started to maintain a full milk flow.

Feed what you can produce or buy to best advantage in your market. Simply stated, the balanced ration means the proper ratio between the fat-forming and bone-and-muscle-making elements of the feed stuffs. The amount and proportion of grains and roughage depend on the cow, and must be determined by experience. The winter feed should consist of about ten or 15 pounds of mixed grain and 20 to 30 pounds of hay and roughage. Mixed timothy and clover hay is better for cows than clear timothy. Alfalfa hay is better than either, as it furnishes more of the muscle-forming elements so hard to get in the winter season. Roots are fine to supplement the dry winter feed.

Grooming is necessary not so much for the cow's welfare as for the good of the milk. The amount of dirt that will find its way from the ungroomed cow's body to the milk pail is simply astonishing. A vigorous use of the curry comb and brush each morning, followed by a wet sponge or damp cloth before milking, will effectually prevent the dirty sediment so often found in the bottom of the milk pitcher. Grooming is doubly necessary in winter, when the cow is stabled.

Wetting Silage a Success.

Two years ago I filled my silo in the ordinary way and about seven inches of the surface spoiled. On the sides and corners at least twice as much rotted. The past year only three inches on the top and five at the sides and corners spoiled. The silage immediately under the spoiled portion was a better quality than any I had ever put up, in fact, about perfect. This smaller loss, says the Illinois correspondent of Orange Judd Farmer, was due to wetting the silage as it came from the cutter. I attached a hose to the water tank and arranged it so that the water would fall upon the cut corn just as it came from the silage cutter. Sufficient was applied to thoroughly wet all the fodder. This method is much easier than raising the water in pails and distributing it in that way. I believe that this wetting of the corn is an important factor in the making of silage.

DAIRY NOTES.

Nothing but pressed tin is good enough to hold milk and cream.

Tenacity in milking is the most essential element of profit in the dairy cow.

The flavor of butter is affected by feed and cleanliness, not by the breed of cows.

The pasteurizing of milk sold for consumption extends its keeping qualities about 12 hours.

The corn crop can be made most useful and valuable to the dairyman by putting it into a well built silo.

Pasteurization will not remove dirt from milk or cream. The best way is to keep the dirt out in the first place.

Succulent feed for winter for milch cows, fattening cattle, sheep swine or other stock, is best furnished by the silo.

DISFIGURED WITH ECZEMA.

Brushed Scales from Face Like Powder—Under Physicians Grew Worse —Cuticura Works Wonders.

"I suffered with eczema six months. I had tried three doctors, but did not get any better. It was on my body and on my feet so thick that I could hardly put a pin on me without touching eczema. My face was covered, my eyebrows came out, and then it got in my eye. I then went to another doctor. He asked me what I was taking for it, and I told him Cuticura. He said that was a very good thing, but that he thought my face would be marked for life. But Cuticura did its work, and my face is now just as clear as it ever was. I told all my friends about my remarkable cure. I feel so thankful I want everybody far and wide to know what Cuticura can do. It is a sure cure for eczema. Mrs. Emma White, 641 Cherrier Place, Camden, N. J., April 25, 1905."

LITTLE THINGS AND BIG.

Differentiate Between the Essential and the Non-Essential.

Little things are often of great importance, but when they are so they are not little. The pinion of a watch wheel, for example, in one sense is little, in another sense it is not so at all; for when it is not perfectly adjusted, the watch is worthless for timekeeping. It is not size that makes a thing little or great, but its relation to the end for which a number of things are combined. If a thing is essential it is important. Because so many of the people who are always preaching the importance of little things fail to discriminate between the little and the non-essential, they often make a wretched mess of the management of their own and other people's affairs. Theoretically, if every factor that contributes to a result is perfect, the result will be perfect; but practically, for want of time, strength and opportunity, the efficient man is compelled to neglect some things for the sake of others; and, in order to do this and yet secure the main end, he has to discriminate between the essential and the non-essential. The one who is thoroughly imbued with the false doctrine of the importance of little things, spends his strength without discrimination, and usually succeeds in missing the main chance.—The Watchman.

COPPER SAFE FROM LIGHTNING.

Belief Firmly Held in Many Parts of the Country.

"This matter of superstitions is a queer thing," said the man as he carefully avoided walking under a ladder, "for even those of us who are skeptics have at least one superstitious failing, and mine is walking under ladders.

"In the country this summer I met a new one, which was firmly believed in by several farmers, and that was that a thunder storm never passed over a copper mine or copper vein. The old fellow who told me about it pointed out again and again that although black clouds might roll up and lightning flash, the storm always went around a certain spot in his farm.

"Such actions on the part of a thunder storm could mean but one thing, he said—that there was a copper vein there. So sure was he of it, that he was putting by a little each year to have the spot investigated to see if there was copper enough in it to work."

More Than Society Butterflies.

These are the days when women of national celebrity vie with each other in housewifely accomplishments. Mrs. Philander C. Knox has just dispatched to Mrs. Roosevelt a firkin of butter, made with her own hands, at the Valley Forge farm. Mrs. Roosevelt has sent delicious brandied cherries to her intimates, and to the Episcopal Home for Old People in Washington. Mrs. Bonaparte, wife of the secretary of the navy, has preserved some toothsome mangoes.

NO DAWDLING.

A Man of 70 After Finding Coffee Hurt Him, Stopped Short.

When a man has lived to be 70 years old with a 40-year-old habit grown to him like a knot on a tree, chances are he'll stick to the habit till he dies.

But occasionally the spirit of youth and determination remains in some men to the last day of their lives. When such men do find any habit of life has been doing them harm, they surprise the Oslerites by a degree of will power that is supposed to belong to men under 40 only.

"I had been a user of coffee until three years ago—a period of 40 years —and am now 70," writes a N. Dak. man. "I was extremely nervous and debilitated, and saw plainly that I must make a change.

"I am thankful to say I had the nerve to quit coffee at once and take on Postum without any dawdling, and experienced no ill effects. On the contrary, I commenced to gain, losing my nervousness within two months, also gaining strength and health otherwise.

"For a man of my age, I am very well and hearty. I sometimes meet persons who have not made their Postum right and don't like it. But I tell them to boil it long enough, and call their attention to my looks now, and before I used it, that seems convincing.

"Now, when I have writing to do, or long columns of figures to cast up, I feel equal to it and can get through my work without the fagged out feeling of old." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

STIFFNESS, STITCHES, LAMENESS, CRAMP, TWISTS AND TWITCHES, ALL DECAMP WHEN YOU APPLY
ST. JACOBS OIL
THE OLD-MONK-CURE
TRADE MARK
PRICE 25 AND 50 CENTS

Treasures for the Louvre.

Attention is called by the Travelers' Gazette to recent acquisitions by the Louvre, notably of a life size bust in chalk, primitively colored, of the hermit king of the eighteenth dynasty, Akhoumalon, or Amenophis IV., one of the strangest figures in the long line of the Pharaohs. The bust is a remarkably fine specimen of the art of the period, and is well preserved. Besides this, there are four sepulchral urns in blue porcelain from the tomb of Rameses II. In these urns was found, besides funeral linen, certain organic matter, which is being chemically examined.

Adopt American Ideas.

The Russian military authorities are considering the adoption of khaki uniforms, the czar having been especially interested in one recently worn by an American army representative at St. Petersburg. The military authorities are also considering American accoutrements, including web cartridge belts and cavalry saddles, with a view to their adoption.

DODDS KIDNEY PILLS
FOR ALL KIDNEY DISEASES
CURES RHEUMATISM BRIGHT'S DISEASE BACKACHE DIABETES

A. N. K.—G (1906—42) 2148.

A Positive CURE
CATARRH
Ely's Cream Balm
is quickly absorbed.
Gives Relief at Once.
It cleanses, soothes heals and protects the diseased membrane. It cures Catarrh and drives away a Cold in the Head quickly. Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. Full size 50 cts., at Druggists or by mail; Trial Size 10 cts. by mail.
Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.
ELY'S CREAM BALM CURES CATARRH ROSE-COLD HAY-FEVER COLD IN HEAD DEAFNESS HEADACHE ELY BROS. NEW YORK
HAY FEVER

EGGS
at 50 cts. a dozen pay.
Why not get them in fall and winter when prices are highest by using
SHERIDAN'S CONDITION POWDER
the scientifically prepared poultry tonic? First in the market and in use forty years to make hens lay. Helps poultry to get full benefit of all kinds of food, makes chicks grow rapidly and keeps them healthy. One pack, 25c.; five, $1; two-lb. can, $1.20; six, $5.00. Express paid. At all dealers.
I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

SALESMEN WANTED.
We want a live, active and thoroughly experienced salesman in this locality with sufficient money to buy outright his first month's supply of our Simplicity Low Pressure Hollow Wire Gasoline Lights. A utility needed in every store and home and fully complying with insurance rules. To such a man we will give exclusive sales right and guarantee to refund money if goods not sold in 60 days. Further particulars on request. The Standard-Gillett Light Co., 930 N. Halsted St., Chicago, Ill.

INDEPENDENT LIGHT PLANTS
Ask for Catalog ST-177.
FAIRBANKS, MORSE & CO., Minneapolis.

$25,000.00 FOR AGENTS. Pleasant work among your friends, frequent sales, large commissions, and big prizes for all. Address Dept. 15 X, 11 E. 24th St., N. Y. City.

How to Save DOLLARS in Cooking and Heating
It has cost many stove users HUNDREDS OF WASTED DOLLARS to find this out.
Cut out this Coupon and mail to us and we will solve this problem for you. You will get all this information FREE.
GARLAND STOVES AND RANGES
"The World's Best"
Sold by Leading Dealers Everywhere
FREE INFORMATION COUPON
WRITE PLAINLY and only on ONE SIDE OF THE PAPER.
Address Manager Advice Department
THE MICHIGAN STOVE COMPANY, Detroit, Mich.
Largest Makers of Stoves and Ranges in the World.
A STOVE or RANGE to meet the wants of all—also a complete line Garland Gas Ranges.
No attention can be given to your letter unless this coupon, fully filled out, is attached.
42
Send me free of charge your Stove Book on
Cast Ranges — Base Burners
Steel Ranges — Heating Stoves
Cook Stoves — Oak Stoves
Gas Ranges — Gas Heaters
Also your Expert Stove Advice free of charge.
Indicate this way (X) the kind of stove or range wanted.
My stove dealer's name
My Name
Address
State

WINCHESTER
Loaded Black Powder Shells
"NEW RIVAL"
Hard, Strong, Even Shooters,
Always Sure Fire,
The Hunter's Favorite, Because
They Always Get The Game.
For Sale Everywhere.

ENGLISH AS SHE IS SPELLED.

"I am not a spelling reformer," said Senator LaFollette, of Wisconsin, in the Woman's Home Magazine, "but a friend of mine named Turner nearly made one out of me once.

"Turner and I were traveling together. We came to a certain hotel and there, to my amazement, the man registered:

"'H. C. Phtholognyrrh.'

"'What is the matter with you?' I exclaimed. 'Why do you adopt that remarkable alias? Have you committed some crime?'

"'No, indeed,' said Turner.

"'Then why don't you register your own name?' said I.

"'That is my own name,' he answered. 'Phtholgnyrrh—Turner. That's my name.'

"'Well,' I said, 'I can't see how you make "Turner" out of "Phthologynyrrh." What is your object, anyway, in using such a peculiar spelling?'

"'Oh,' said my friend, 'when I used to register plain "Turner" I attracted no attention. Now, though, my name excites a great deal of wondering comment. People study it. They ask one another what my nationality can be. Even now, you will notice, there is a little crowd buzzing over the register. "Phthologynyrrh" is good English spelling for "Turner," too. In the "phth" there is the sound of "t" as in "phthisis." In the "ole" there is the sound of "ur" as in "colonel." The "gn" is "n" as in "gnat." Finally, in the "yrrh" there is the sound of "er" as in "myrrh." There you have it. Phthologynrrh—Turner.'"

The World as It Is.

A world without mistakes and without suffering would be a world without real men and women, without literature, without music, without painting or sculpture, and without love, and even without history, for history is a record of struggles toward better and higher things. Without obstacles to overcome and errors to correct men and women would lapse to a level with beasts mentally. Intellectual and spiritual development would die of something akin to fatty degeneration. The races would perish of ennui or insanity. After all, it's a pretty fair sort of a world as it stands. —Louisville Courier-Journal.

KING OF SAFE-BREAKERS.

Marvelous Delicacy of Hearing Possessed by Milner James.

"Milner James was the most artistic safe-breaker in the business," said Lecocq the detective. "He is dead now. He opened in his time over 700 safes without tools or gunpowder solely by working out the combination with his delicate and patient fingers.

"'It took me a year,' he once said, 'to learn the trick of picking combinations. I studied all the locks there were and I had three safes of different makes to practice on. The ear is the most important factor in my method and it must be held tight against the safe door on a line with the tumblers. When the knob of the lock is turned slowly and one of the tumblers reaches the notch corresponding to the first number of the combination the tumbler will fall with a little click. Care must be taken not to displace this tumbler. You keep on trying the knob back and forth gently till each of the tumblers drops. Then the door opens. Hardly one man in a thousand has an ear delicate enough for this work and to be a success at it you've got to give up tobacco and alcohol.'"

Open Air Work for Women.

Mrs. A. G. Conreid operates a ranch in Colorado where wild flowers are collected and pressed for use in souvenirs and menu cards. The work being in the open air, it has proved popular among teachers and other women suffering from nervous troubles, as it gives them a chance to earn a living and to regain their health.

To Give Work to Russian Company.

As nothing came of the attempt last year to raise in Balaclava bay the British ironclad with her treasure during the Crimean war, the Russian admiralty officials at Sebastopol now propose to intrust the task of bringing up the treasure to a Russian salvage syndicate.

INTERESTING CONTEST.

Heavy Cost of Unpaid Postage.

One of the most curious contests ever before the public was conducted by many thousand persons under the offer of the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., of Battle Creek, Mich., for prizes of 31 boxes of gold and 300 greenbacks to those making the most words out of the letters Y-I-O-Grape-Nuts.

The contest was started in February, 1906, and it was arranged to have the prizes awarded on Apr. 30, 1906.

When the public announcement appeared many persons began to form the words from these letters, sometimes the whole family being occupied evenings, a combination of amusement and education.

After a while the lists began to come in to the Postum Office and before long the volume grew until it required wagons to carry the mail. Many of the contestants were thoughtless enough to send their lists with insufficient postage and for a period it cost the Company from twenty-five to fifty-eight and sixty dollars a day to pay the unpaid postage.

Young ladies, generally those who had graduated from the high school, were employed to examine these lists and count the correct words. Webster's Dictionary was the standard and each list was very carefully corrected except those which fell below 8000 for it soon became clear that nothing below that could win. Some of the lists required the work of a young lady for a solid week on each individual list. The work was done very carefully and accurately but the Company had no idea, at the time the offer was made, that the people would respond so generally and they were compelled to fill every available space in the offices with these young lady examiners, and notwithstanding they worked steadily, it was impossible to complete the examination until Sept. 29, over six months after the prizes should have been awarded.

This delay caused a great many inquiries and naturally created some dissatisfaction. It has been thought best to make this report in practically all of the newspapers in the United States and many of the magazines in order to make clear to the people the conditions of the contest.

Many lists contained enormous numbers of words which, under the rules, had to be eliminated "Pegger" would count "Peggers" would not. Some lists contained over 50,000 words, the great majority of which were cut out. The largest lists were checked over two and in some cases three times to insure accuracy.

The $100.00 gold prize was won by L. D. Reese, 1227-15th St., Denver, Colo., with 9941 correct words. The highest $10.00 gold prize went to S. K. Fraser, Lincoln, Pa., with 9921 correct words.

A complete list of the 331 winners with their home addresses will be sent to any contestant enquiring on a postal card.

Be sure and give name and address clearly.

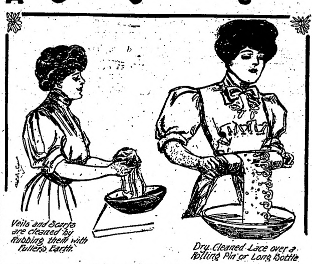
This contest has cost the Co. many thousand dollars, and probably has not been a profitable advertisement, nevertheless perhaps some who had never before tried Grape-Nuts food have been interested in the contest, and from trial of the food have been shown its wonderful rebuilding powers.

It teaches in a practicable manner that scientifically gathered food elements can be selected from the field grains, which nature will use for rebuilding the nerve centres and brain in a way that is unmistakable to users of Grape-Nuts.

"There's a reason."

Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich

ANY SOILED CLOTHES TO CLEAN?



Veils and Scarfs are cleaned by Rubbing them with Fuller's Earth.

Dry Cleaned Lace over a Rolling Pin or Long Bottle

When Fuller's earth is employed for silk, use a very soft brush, a piece of flannel or toweling dipped in the powder. The soil on straw hats rubs off when a stiff brush dipped in the earth is applied. Grime and finger marks go under its persuasive influence, and it does not leave the hat yellow as gasoline or acids do when exposed to the air and sun. Ten cents' worth is sufficient to clean a large leghorn.

Feather boas that carry a limp air may be freshened by shaking them over a basin of steaming water which contains a liberal amount of salt.

To clean gloves, white or faint color, draw them on your hands and apply in the same manner as you would soap. Remove the gloves, turn inside out and shake; several times will be sufficient to remove the dust that has sifted its way through the meshes to the underside.

The average parasol at this time looks as though it required the cleaner's touch. With Fuller's earth or gasoline at hand most any kind of sunshade may be renovated, when it has not been allowed to accumulate too much soil. Chiffon, linen or silk are cleaned with Fuller's earth applied with brush. Nothing is quite so efficient for renovating chiffon as Fuller's earth, because it does not rob it of its delicacy or disturb the eveness of the surface.

Laces are beautifully cleaned with gasoline. Fill a bowl half full of it. Place the lace in it, sousing it up and down until the worst of the soil has been removed. Have another bowl directly at your service, and give the lace another plunge. Then as quickly as possible, before it has time to dry, wrap it around a rolling pin or a long narrow glass bottle of good size. Pull the points out and fasten carefully with pins.

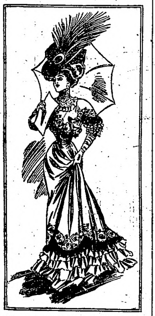
LACE MUCH WORN.

FILMY GARMENTS JUST NOW THE MODE IN PARIS.

Cool Season Has Had Little Effect on Fashion — Flower-Laden Hats Everywhere Seen in the Gay Capital.

The ultra-fashionable Parisienne delights in trailing her lace-laden skirts in the old-fashioned gardens of historic country houses. With her floating scarf of embroidered gossamer and her plumed hat she is part and parcel of an exquisite picture—and she is well aware of the fact.

For a garden party at an old chateau she will wear a much more elaborate, and at the same time a much more simple toilet than for an afternoon gathering at a place like Trouville or Biarritz, writes Idalia de Villiers. The finest muslins and laces, adorned with pale-hued ribbons and crowned by flower-laden hats, these are the materials from which garden-party toilets are evolved.



Robe of White Gauze with Wreaths of Hand-Painted Roses and a Silk Fringe, Underskirt of Pleated Muslin.

Then again the laces! At the fashionable seaside resorts one saw quantities of Irish lace, Venetian guipure and an effective make of Brussels lace in a pale shade of biscuit; for garden parties at the chateaux the finest makes of muslins and laces are brought into use.

The toilets are still white and elaborate but—with a great difference!

Some of the afternoon dresses prepared by Paquin and Rouff for country house wear are as fine in texture as the wings of Queen Mab; exquisitely soft Indian muslin, half silk and half finest thread, with flounces of point d'Alencon and insertions of Valenciennes; the skirts moderately trained and the bodices a mass of fairy-like lace; at the waist a soft sash of gray-blue or blush rose crepe de chine, with fringed and embroidered ends.

A costume of this order is always mounted on an underdress of crepe de chine or mousseline de soie and worn over a plaited silk underdress. It is not considered at all "correct" to mount muslin or even crepe de chine on silk, direct. Some supple material must be placed between to give the soft effect which is considered so essential.

Gloves Give Idea of Woman's Character.

One of the Most Important Accessories of the Costume, and All Too Often Neglected.

It is said you can read a woman's character by her gloves.

It is said that the French woman dons her gloves in her bedroom, that the English woman puts hers on in the hall, and that her Scotch sister draws hers on in the street.

It is safe to say that the American girl, being complex and of many whims, follows all three plans, according to circumstances.

Without question the place to put on one's gloves is in the house.

Even if it were not for the appearance of dressing on the street, the hands are freer when properly clad.

The sight of a woman endeavoring to put on a pair of gloves while she is holding up her gown, carrying an umbrella and a shopping bag is the sort of picture that causes angels to weep.

There is nothing that will so rudely destroy the atmosphere of feminine daintiness as soiled gloves.

In the city, where the air is filled with destroying grime, white gloves are almost an impossibility after the first wearing.

The woman who wears white gloves while shopping is a sublime personification of feminine madness.

There is the foolish woman who will pay all sorts of prices for her gowns, but will economize on her gloves, wearing the cheaper kind that are baggy and strained, that split and cause all sorts of discomforts, and which refuse in the rudest kind of way to button at the wrist.

The poor, foolish women of this type hold up their skirts with the greatest inconvenience possible and never enjoy the perfect satisfaction of feeling thoroughly well groomed.

There is the wisest kind of wisdom in a plain tailored gown, with good gloves and good shoes, rather than an expensive frock and cheap accessories.

Unless one follows the first idea, one is sadly out of the picture.

For the Tea Table.

A pretty addition to the tea table, that is a novelty as well, is the screen of perforated metal that is placed about the alcohol lamp. These little screens are about six inches high and are hinged, quite like miniature fire-screens. The open-work design is elaborate and the workmanship on many is really exquisite. They are made in both burnished copper and silver and are used for chafing dishes as well as tea kettles. Whether they are very useful or not is a matter of small consideration. They are certainly pretty enough to become popular.

Coaching China.

Very attractive is some yellow pottery exhibited in the shops. Each piece is rimmed with a plain silver band and decorated with a quaint old English coaching scene in black lines. The most characteristic pieces are the huge punch bowls and mugs, although included in the china are dinner plates, platters, etc.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES do not stain the hands or spot the kettle, except green and purple.

And the man who trusts in the Lord never has occasion to cancel his membership in a "don't worry" club.

Another International Exhibition.

An international exhibition of fine arts and horticulture will be opened at Mannheim, Germany, on May 1, 1907, on the occasion of the third centenary of the foundation of that town.

Sheep-Killing Parrot.

The kea is a greenish-brown parrot of New Zealand, which is as dangerous to the sheep of that country as wolves would be. These carnivorous birds fasten themselves on the backs of grazing sheep, tear through wool and skin to the kidney fat, which they devour, leaving the unfortunate animal to perish in agony.

STATE OF OHIO, CITY OF TOLEDO, } ss.
LUCAS COUTY.

FRANK J. CHENEY makes oath that he is senior partner of the firm of F. J. CHENEY & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of CATARRH that cannot be cured by the use of HALL'S CATARRH CURE.

FRANK J. CHENEY.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D., 1886.

{ SEAL } A. W. GLEASON,
NOTARY PUBLIC.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by all Druggists, 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Animals Do with Little Water.

There are some animals which rarely drink; for instance, the llamas, of Patagonia, and certain gazelles of the far east. A number of snakes, lizards and other reptiles live in places devoid of water. A bat of western America inhabits waterless plains. In parts of Lozere, France, there are herds of cows and goats which hardly ever drink and yet produce the milk for Roquefort cheese.

Legally Her Husband's Boss.

Boston has one woman who is legally her husband's boss. She is Mrs. Ellor Carlisle Ripley, one of the assistant superintendents of the public schools of the city and the wife of Principal Fred H. Ripley, of the Longfellow school of Roslindale. Mrs. Ripley draws some $85 a week of the hub's wealth, about $1,500 more per annum than the man who has recently became her "hubby." An assistant superintendent is virtually a supervisor and Mrs. Ripley is in reality her husband's superior and could "fire" him in a minute if she saw fit. Mrs. Ripley is a young woman of pleasing personality.

Industrious French Workmen.

Nearly all the workmen employed in the naval arsenal at Toulon, France, add to their salaries by exercising another trade during their leisure hours. are hotel carpet beaters, others distribute prospectuses and handbills, or act as parcel carriers for local shopkeeprs. One man complained recently in all seriousness that he was so overworked at the arsenal that he had no time to exercise his profession of masseur. A number of arsenal hands actually carry on their supplementary trades in the yards. There are amateur shoemakers, watchmakers and barbers, who carry on a thriving and lucrative business among their comrades.

DAY OF TRIUMPH POSTPONED.

Dudekins Has Yet to Get Even with Witty Charmer.

She had been having fun with poor Dudekins for a long time, and he was wishful to get even with her. His idea took the form of a brilliant conundrum, whose answer Dudekins thought was locked in his manly chest.

"I have a conundrum for you, Miss Frances," he said, when he next met her.

"Ah!" she responded. "What is it? Who gave it to you?"

"I made it up myself!" he asserted, bridling somewhat.

"Indeed! What is it?"

"Why are my clothes like the moon?"

She hesitated a moment, and Dudekins began to look triumphant.

"You may think," she said, slowly—and Dudekins somehow felt the sand slipping from under him—"it is because they have a man in them, and you have a perfect right to think as you please. But, Mr. Dudekins, opinions differ!"

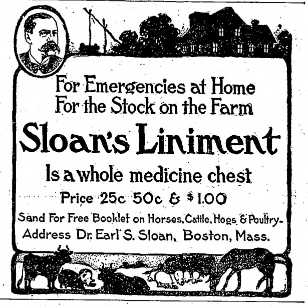
Queen Wilhelmina's Amusements.

The favorite amusements of Queen Wilhelmina are skating and riding, but as a child her hobby was the keeping of poultry.

When you buy WET WEATHER CLOTHING you want complete protection and long service.
These and many other good points are combined in TOWER'S FISH BRAND OILED CLOTHING
You can't afford to buy any other
A. J. TOWER CO. BOSTON U.S.A.
TOWER CANADIAN CO. LTD. TORONTO, CAN.
TOWER'S FISH BRAND
413

Enameline
J. L. PRESCOTT & CO
NEW YORK, N.Y. U.S.A.
ENAMELINE
STOVE POLISH
ALWAYS READY TO USE. NO DIRT, DUST, SMOKE OR SMELL.
NO MORE STOVE POLISH TROUBLES

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children
Bears The Signature Of Chas. H. Fletcher.
In Use For Over Thirty Years
The Kind You Have Always Bought
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.



For Emergencies at Home
For the Stock on the Farm
Sloan's Liniment
Is a whole medicine chest
Price 25c 50c & $1.00
Send For Free Booklet on Horses, Cattle, Hogs & Poultry.
Address Dr. Earl S. Sloan, Boston, Mass.

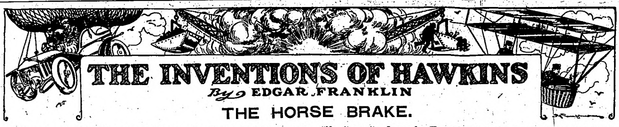
THE WINNING STROKE

If more than ordinary skill in playing brings the honors of the game to the winning player, so exceptional merit in a remedy ensures the commendation of the well informed, and as a reasonable amount of outdoor life and recreation is conducive to the health and strength, so does a perfect laxative tend to one's improvement in cases of constipation, biliousness, headaches, etc. It is all important, however, in selecting a laxative, to choose one of known quality and excellence, like the ever pleasant Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., a laxative which sweetens and cleanses the system effectually, when a laxative is needed, without any unpleasant after effects, as it acts naturally and gently on the internal organs, simply assisting nature when nature needs assistance, without griping, irritating or debilitating the internal organs in any way, as it contains nothing of an objectionable or injurious nature. As the plants which are combined with the figs in the manufacture of Syrup of Figs are known to physicians to act most beneficially upon the system, the remedy has met with their general approval as a family laxative, a fact well worth considering in making purchases.

It is because of the fact that SYRUP OF FIGS is a remedy of known quality and excellence, and approved by physicians that has led to its use by so many millions of well informed people, who would not use any remedy of uncertain quality or inferior reputation. Every family should have a bottle of the genuine on hand at all times, to use when a laxative remedy is required. Please to remember that the genuine Syrup of Figs is for sale in bottles of one size only, by all reputable druggists, and that full name of the company—California Fig Syrup Co., is plainly printed on the front of every package. Regular price, 50c per bottle.

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.
Louisville, Ky. San Francisco, Cal. New York, N.Y.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES
Color more goods brighter and faster colors than any other dye. One 10c package colors all fibers. They dye in cold water better than any other dye. You can dye any garment without ripping apart. Write for free booklet—How to Dye, Bleach and Mix Colors. MONROE DRUG CO., Unionville, Missouri.



THE INVENTIONS OF HAWKINS

By EDGAR FRANKLIN

THE HORSE BRAKE.

Hawkins is part inventor and part idiot.

Hawkins has money, which generally mitigates idiocy; but in his case it also allows free rein to his inventive genius, and that is a bad thing.

When I decided to build a nice, quiet summer home in the Berkshires, I paid for the ground before discovering that the next villa belonged to Hawkins.

Had I known then what I know now, my county seat would be located somewhere in central Illinois or western Oregon; but at that time my knowledge of Hawkins extended no farther than the facts that he resided a few doors below me in New York, and that we exchanged a kindly smile every morning on the L.

One day last August, having mastered the mechanism of our little steam runabout, my wife ventured out alone, to call upon Mrs. Hawkins.

I am not a worrying man, but automobile repairs are expensive, and when she had been gone an hour or so I strolled toward our neighbors.

The auto I was relieved to find standing before the door, apparently in good health, and I had already turned back when Hawkins came trotting along the drive from the stable.

"Just in time, Griggs, just in time!" he cried, exuberantly.

"In time for what?"

"The first trial of—"

"Now, see here, Hawkins—" I began, preparing to flee, for I knew too well the meaning of that light in his eyes.

"The Hawkins Horse-brake!" he finished, triumphantly.

"Hawkins," I said, solemnly, "far be it from me to disparage your work; but I recall most distinctly the Hawkins Aero-motor, which moted you to the top of that maple tree and dropped you on my devoted head. I also have some recollection of your gasoline milker, the one that exploded and burned every hair off the starboard side of my best Alderney cow. If you are bent on trying something new, hold it off until I can get my poor wife out of harm's way."

Hawkins favored me with a stare that would have withered a row of hardy sunflowers and turned his eyes to the stable.

Something was being led toward us from that direction.

The foundation of the something I recognized as Hawkins' aged work horse, facetiously christened Maud S. The superstructure was the most remarkable collection of mechanism I ever saw.

Four steel rods stuck into the air at the four corners of the animal. They seemed to be connected in some way to a machine strapped to the back of the saddle.

I presume the machine was logical enough if you understood it, but beyond noting that it bore striking resemblance to the vital organs of a clock, I cannot attempt a description.

"That will do, Patrick," said Hawkins, taking the bridle and regarding his handiwork with an enraptured smile. "Well, Griggs, frankly, what do you think of it?"

"Frankly," I said, "when I look at that thing, I feel somehow incapable of thought."

"I rather imagined that it would take your eye," replied Hawkins, complacently. "Now, just see the simplicity of the thing, Griggs. Drop your childish prejudices for a minute and examine it.

"Let us suppose that this brake is fitted to a fiery saddle-horse. The rider has lost all control. In another minute, unless he can stop the beast, he will be dashed to the ground and kicked into pulp. What does he do? Simply pulls this lever—thus! The animal can't budge!"

An uncanny clankety-clankety-clank accompanied his words, and the rods dropped suddenly. In their descent they somehow managed to gather two steel cuffs apiece.

When they ceased dropping, Maud S. had a steel bar down the back of each leg, with a cuff above and a cuff below the knee. Hawkins was quite right—so far as I could see; Maud was anchored until some well-disposed person brought a hack-saw and cut off her shackles.

"You see how it acts when she is standing still?" chuckled the inventor, replacing the rods. "Just keep your eyes open and note the suddenness with which she stops running."

"Hawkins," I cried, despairingly, as he led the animal up the road, "don't go to all that trouble on my account. I can see perfectly that the thing is a success. Don't try it again."

"My dear Griggs," said Hawkins, coldly, "this trial trip is for my own personal satisfaction, not yours. To tell the truth, I had no idea that you or anyone else would be here to witness my triumph."

He went perhaps three or four hundred feet up the road; then he turned Maud's nose homeward and clambered to her back.

As I waited behind the hedge, I grieved for the old mare. Hawkins evidently intended urging her into something more rapid than the walk she had used for so many years, and I feared that at her advanced age the excitement might prove injurious.

But Maud broke into such a sedate canter when Hawkins had thumped her ribs a few times with his heels, and her kindly old face seemed to wear such a gentle expression as she approached, that I breathed easier.

"Now, Griggs!" cried Hawkins, coming abreast. "Watch—now!"

He thrust one hand behind, grasped the lever, and gave it a tug. The little rods remained in the air.

A puzzled expression flitted over Hawkins' face, and as he cantered by he appeared to tug a trifle harder.

This time something happened.

I heard a whir like the echo of a sawmill, and saw several yards of steel spring shoot out of the inwards of the machine. I heard a sort of frantic shriek from Maud S. I saw a sudden cloud of pebbles and dust in the road, such as I should imagine would be kicked up by an exploding shell—and that was all.

Hawkins, Maud, and the infernal machine were making for the county town with none of the grace, but nearly all the speed, of a shooting star.

For a few seconds I stood dazed.

Then it occurred to me that Hawkins' wife would later wish to know what his dying words had been, and I went into the auto with a flying leap, sent it about in its own length, almost jumped the hedge, and thus started upon a race whose memory will haunt me when greater things have faded into the forgotten past.

My runabout, while hardly a racer, is supposed to have some pretty speedy machinery stored away in it, but the engine had a big undertaking in trying to overhaul that old mare.

It was painfully apparent that something—possibly righteous indignation at being the victim of one of Hawkins' experiments—had roused a latent devil within Maud S. Her heels were viciously threshing up the dirt at the foot of the hill before I began my blood-curdling coast at the top.

How under the sun anything could go faster than did that automobile is beyond my conception; yet when I reached the level ground again and breathed a little prayer of thanks that an all-wise Providence had spared my life on the hill, Hawkins seemed still to have the same lead.

That he was traveling like a hurricane was evidenced by the wake of fear maddened chickens and barking dogs that were just recovering their senses when I came upon them.

I put my lever to the last notch.

Heavens, how that auto went! It rocked from one side of the road to the other. It bounded over great stones and tried to veer into ditches, with the express purpose of hurling me to destruction.

It snorted and puffed and rattled and skidded; but above all, it went!

There is no use attempting a record of my impressions during that first half-mile—in fact, I am not aware that I had any. But after a time I drew nearer to Hawkins, and at last came within 30 feet of the galloping Maud. Hawkins' face was white and set, he bounced painfully up and down, risking his neck at every bounce, but one hand kept a death-like grip on the lever of the horse-brake.

"Jump!" I screamed. "Throw yourself off!"

Hawkins regarded me with much the expression the early Christians must have worn when conducted into the arena.

"No," he shouted. "It's"—bump—"it's all right. It'll"—bump—"work in a minute."

"No, it won't. Jump, for Heaven's sake, jump!"

I think that Hawkins had framed a reply, but just then a particularly hard bump appeared to knock the breath out of his body. He took a better grip on the bridle and said no more.

I hardly knew what to do. Every minute brought us nearer to the town, where traffic is rather heavy all day.

Up to now we had had a clear track; but in another five minutes a collision would be almost as inevitable as the sunset.

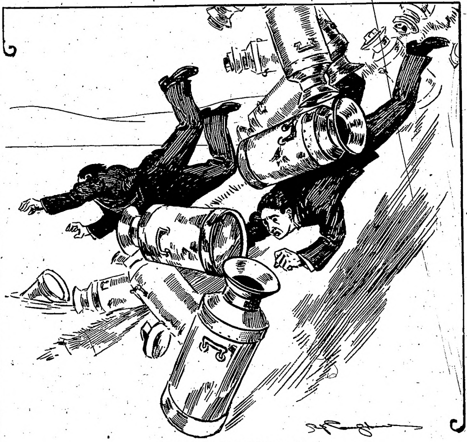
I endeavored to recall the "First Aid to the Injured" treatment for fractured skulls and broken backs, and I thanked goodness that there would be only one auto to complete the mangling of Hawkins' remains, should they drop into the road after the smash.

Would there? I glanced backward and gasped. Others had joined the pursuit, and I was merely the vanguard of a procession.

Twenty feet to the rear loomed the black muzzle of Enos Jackson's trotter, with Jackson in his little road-cart. Behind him, three bicyclists filled up the gap betweeen the road-cart and Dr. Brotherton's buggy.

I felt a little better at seeing Brotherton there. He set my hired man's leg two years ago, and made a splendid job.

There was more of the cavalcade behind Brotherton, although the dust revealed only glimpses of it; but I had seen enough to realize that if Hawkins' brake did work, and Hawkins' mare stopped suddenly, there was going to be a piled-up mass of men and things in the road that for sheer mixed-up-edness would pale the average freight wreck.



"Hawkins Shot Off Into Space."

Maud maintained her pace, and I did my best to keep up.

By this time I could see the reason for her mad flight. When the explosion, or whatever it was, took place in the brake machinery, a jagged piece of brass had been forced into her side, and there it remained, stabbing the poor old beast with conscientious regularity at every leap.

I was still trying to devise some way of pulling loose the goad and persuading Maud to slow down when we entered town.

At first the houses whizzed past at intervals of two or three seconds; but it seemed hardly half a minute before we came in sight of the square and the courthouse. We were creating quite an excitement, too.

People screamed frantically at us from porches and windows and the sidewalk. Occasionally a man would spring into the road to stop Maud, think better of it, and spring out again.

One misguided individual hurled a fence-rail across the path. It didn't worry Maud in the slightest, for she happened to be all in the air while passing over that particular point, but when the auto went over the rail it nearly jarred out my teeth.

Another fellow pranced up, waving a many-looped rope over his head. I think Maud must have transfixed him with her fiery eye, for before he could throw it his nerve failed and he scuttled back to safety.

Those who had teams hitched in the square were hurrying taem out of danger, and when we whirled by the courthouse only one buggy remained in the road.

That buggy belonged to Burkett, the constable. The town pays Burkett a percentage on the amount of work he does, and Burkett is keen on looking up new business.

"Stop, there!" he shouted, as we came up. "Stop!"

Nobody stopped.

"Stop, or I'll arrest the whole danged lot of ye fer fast drivin'!" roared Burkett, gathering up reins and whip.

And with that he dashed into the place behind Enos Jackson and crowded the bicyclists to the side of the road.

Our county town is a small one, and at the pace set by Maud it didn't take us long to reach the far side and sweep out on the highway which leads, eventually, to Boston.

I began to wonder dimly whether Maud's wind and my water and gasoline would carry us to the Hub, and, if so, what would happen when we had passed through the city.

Just beyond Boston, you know, is the Atlantic ocean.

At this point in my meditations we started down the slope to the big creamery.

The building is located to the right of the road. On the left, a rather steep grassy embankment drops perhaps 30 feet to the little river.

On this beautiful sunny afternoon, the creamery's milk cans, something like a hundred in number, were airing by the roadside, just on the edge of the embankment; and as we thundered down I smiled grimly to think of the attractive little frill Maud might add to her performance by kicking a dozen or two of the milk cans into the river as she passed.

Maud, however, as she approached the cans, kept fairly in the middle of the road—and stopped!

Heavens! She stopped so short that I gasped for breath. All in the twinkling the steel rods dropped into position beside her legs, the cuffs snapped, and the Hawkins Horse-brake had worked at last!

Poor old Maud! She slid a few yards with rigid limbs, squealing in terror, and then crashed to the ground like an overturned toy horse.

Hawkins shot off into space, and at the moment I didn't care greatly where he landed. I was vaguely conscious that he collided head-on with the row of milk-cans, but my main anxiety was to shut off my power, set the brake, point the auto into the ditch and jump.

And I did it all in about one second.

After the jump, my recollection grows hazy. I know that one of my feet landed in an open milk-can, and that I grabbed wildly at several others. Then the cans and I toppled headlong over the embankment and went down, down, down, while, fainter and fainter, I could hear something like:

"Whoa! Whoa! Gol darn ye! Ow! Stop that hoss! Bang! Rattle! Rattle! Bang! Whoa! Stop, can't ye?"

Then a peculiarly unyielding milk-can landed on my head and I seemed to float away.

I have reason to believe that I sat up about two minutes later. The crash was over and peace had settled once more upon the face of nature.

From far away came the sound of galloping hoofs, belonging, no doubt, to some of the horses who had participated in the late excitement.

The embankment was strewn with men and milk-cans, chiefly the latter. No one seemed to be wholly dead, although one or two looked pretty near it.

A few feet away, Burkett, the constable, was having a convulsion in his vain endeavor to extricate his cranium from a milk-can. The sounds that issued from that can made me blush.

Jackson was sitting up and staring dully at the river, while Dr. Brotherton, with his frock-coat split to the collar, was fishing fragments of his medicine case out of another can.

Others of the erstwhile procession were distributed about the embankment in various conditions, but, as I have said, nobody seemed to have parted company with the vital spark.

Hawkins alone was invisible, and as I struggled to my feet this fact puzzled me considerably.

A pile of milk-cans balanced on the river's edge, and on the chance of finding the inventor's remains, I tipped them into the stream. Underneath, stretched on the cold, unsympathetic ground, his feet dabbling idly in the water, his clothes in a hundred shreds, a great lump on his brow, was Hawknis, stunned and bleeding!

As I turned to summon Brotherton, Hawkins opened his eyes.

I am not one to cherish a grudge. I felt that Hawkins' invention had been its own terrible punishment. So I helped hm to his feet as gently as possible, and waited for apologetic utterances.

"You see, Griggs," began Hawkins, uncertainly—"you see, the—the ratchet on the big wheel—stuck. I'll put a new—a new ratchet there, and oil—lots of oil—on the—the—"

"That's enough, Hawkins," I said. "Come home."

"Yes, but don't you see," he groaned, holding fast to his battered skull as I helped him back to the road, "if I get that one little point perfected—it—it will revol—"

"Let it!" I snapped. "Sit here until I see what's left of my automobile."

Ten minutes later, Patrick having appeared to take charge of Maud S., Hawkins and I were making our homeward way in the runabout, which had mercifully been spared.

Something in my face must have forbidden conversation, for Hawkins wrapped the soiled fragments of his raiment about him in offended dignity and was silent on the subject of horse-brake.

Nor have I ever heard of the thing since. Possibly Mrs. Hawkins succeeded in demonstrating the fallacy of the whole horse-brake theory; in fact, from the expression on her face when we reached the house, I am inclined to think that she did.

Mrs. Hawkins can be strong-minded on occasion, and her tongue is in no way inadequate to the needs of her mind.

At any rate, a friend of mine in the patent office, whom I asked about the matter some time ago, tells me that the Hawkins Horse-brake has never been patented, so that I presume the invention is in its grave. As a public-spirited citizen, I venture to add that this is a blessing.

(Copyright, 1906, by W. G. Chapman.

HERDER LEADS LONELY LIFE.

The journey of the last two days has been in the solemn stillness of the forest, says a writer in the Pacific Monthly. Hardly has the soft twittering of a bird broken the unending silence. But now the voice of the distant flocks is the undertone that fills the air—it rises and falls in cadences, but is never still. There, under the shadow of the pines, is pitched the herder's tent. Company is scarce and therefore valuable, and hardly have his dogs given warning of a stranger when the one solitary figure is strolling toward us. It is quite impossible to forecast the nationality, age, upbringing or condition of this man. Sheep herding is as often a refuge as an occupation. Wages is good, work there is none, food is found, responsibilities sit very lightly; through six months of the year this outdoor life involves no hardship. If from one or two weeks' end to the next no living man is in sight to speak to—well, there is the less chance of quarreling, and the dogs are ever at hand and good company for many hours out of the 24.

But, then, the ever-present sheep. To rise with the sun, get breakfast and then follow the big flock as they slowly feed away from camp. To hear their everlasting "ba-as," to smell the ever-present woolliness, to live, move and have your being in an atmosphere of sheep—to walk when they walk, to stop when they feel disposed to rest, and to so put in the slowly passing hours, to accompany them back to the neighborhood of camp, and not until the flock has gone to bed for good to feel a moment's freedom from their society.

No wonder that, as one sheep-herding friend told me, he was ready to bless a wolf or two that broke in on the monotony of the day by trying to steal a sheep before his very eyes. The sheep herder is well armed as well fed. And very often on the summer ranges he can so manage the day's march with his flock as to bring in the blessed trout stream, where the fish are rising at the summer flies. One man I know learned Spanish in the summer's herding. Another found a haven in higher mathematics. Several others used their pocket knives to carve ornaments and knick-knacks. Books, magazines and letters are always brought out with the supply of beans and bacon, coffee and flour, sugar and tobacco.

CLEVER MATILDA.

"Your father is just a little bit—well—opinionated, you know, my dear, and I'm rather afraid as to what he will say when I ask him," said he.

"That's all right, George. I know how to manage papa," she replied.

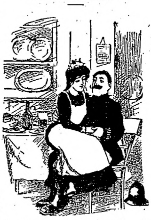
So the next morning she went to papa in a state of great indignation, and exclaimed:

"What do you think has happened? That absurd young man, Mr. Jenkins, has had the impertinence to propose to me!"

"Absurd young man!" exclaimed her father. "Who are you calling absurd? Let me tell you that I consider Mr. Jenkins a hard-working, steady, respectable young fellow, just the very sort of a husband for you. You'll die an old maid, Matilda, if you're so confoundedly particular. Just tell Mr. Jenkins to see me, and I'll make it all right."

And it was "all right."

MASTER AND MAID.



Policeman—Whatever would you do, Mary, if the master was to pop in now?

Mary—Oh, he couldn't say much. I was sitting on his knee last night.

Time for Disappearing.

The father—I thought that young man was coming to-night?

The girl—He is.

"And you are going out?"

"Sure thing!"

"But I thought he had been coming to see you?"

"So he had. But to-night he is coming to see you; and you know how I do dislike anything like 'rough-house,' pa."—Yonkers Statesman.

Firewater.

"What put him out of business?"

"Too much firewater."

"Why, I didn't know he was a drinking man!"

"He isn't; but when there was a slight fire in the basement of his store an alarm was turned in and the firemen deluged the place, and he was without insurance."—Houston Post.

Accomplished.

"Did your daughter take physical culture lessons while at college?" asked the visitor.

"O, yes," replied Mrs. Goldrox proudly. "She's got so now she can elevate her little finger just lovely when she eats soup."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Not Flattery.

She—Mr. Dobbins is altogether too much of a flatterer. He told me I was the prettiest woman he had ever met.

He—Oh, well, you know, Dobbins doesn't know many women.—Detroit Free Press.

Leaves That to Others.

"There's one thing about Gayboy—he knows how to order a good dinner."

"Um huh. There's only one thing about it he has to learn."

"What's that?"

"How to pay for it."—Detroit Free Press.

He Knew.

Oldrox—Yes, I'll admit that I'm anxious to get my daughter off my hands.

Stonebroke—Then why don't you let her marry me?

Oldrox—It wouldn't work.—Cleveland Leader.

Especially Sad.

"I suppose," said the sentimentalist, "that it makes you feel very sad to see the roses fading, the leaves withering; the grass dying—"

"Yes," interrupted Farmer Corntossel, "an' the summer boarders goin' home."—Washington Star.

In Sight.

"Does she carry his picture next to her heart?"

"No; that would be a giveaway."

"Why, no one would know it."

"Yes, they would; she wears a peek-a-boo waist."—Houston Post.

How They Passed the Summer.

Knicker—How did they pass the summer?

Bocker—His wife went away and tried to be a gay young kitten, while he stayed at home and tried to be a sad old dog.—N. Y. Sun.

Those Summer Girls.

"How do you like 'Coniston?'" inquired Phyllis.

"Coniston?" repeated Doris. "I can't recall the name. Have I ever been engaged to him?"—Judge.

First Words.

Knicker—Money talks.

Bocker—Well, mine has only reached the goo-goo stage.—N. Y. Sun.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. VI. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, OCT. 26, 1906. NO. 30.

Our Washington Letter

Some Things of Interest from the National Capital—Assistant Postmaster General Hitchcock Stops System of Fining Postal Employes as Means of Enforcing Discipline in Department.

TESTIMONIAL OF THANKS
HITCHCOCK

WASHINGTON.—Fining of employes as a means of enforcing discipline in the postal service, a system that has been in operation for many years, is to be abolished. First Assistant Postmaster General Hitchcock, who has jurisdiction of all post office employes, after a year's observation has reached the conclusion that it is detrimental rather than helpful. He proposes to establish a uniform system of efficiency records. To that end he has started Assistant Superintendent John A. Holmes of his bureau on a tour of inspection of the largest post offices of the United States. Dr. Holmes will confer with postmasters and their assistants regarding the change.

The practice of subjecting 250,000 or more employes to the liability of being fined for making errors in handling mail or for misconduct is believed by Mr. Hitchcock to be a type of punishment rightly termed humiliating and degrading. As there is no definite schedule of fines applicable to specific cases of dereliction, their imposition is solely a matter of discretion on the part of the administrative officers. A wide variation inevitably occurred in the relative amount of fines imposed by different officers. The system frequently led to resentment on the part of employes receiving the heavier fines.

In criticism of the system Mr. Hitchcock said that in the absence of an efficiency record which enables the clerk to receive full credit for the amount and character of work done, the plan of fining for errors is likely to discourage rapid work because of the increased liability for mistakes. Under Mr. Hitchcock's new plan, which will be used as a basis for all increases and reductions in salary, employes will be given to understand that when they become careless or inefficient a reduction in salary will follow. The periodical promotions that are made at the beginning of each fiscal year will affect only employes who deserve advancement on their efficiency records.

The amount of reduction in the salary of an inefficient or delinquent clerk will not be lost to the department, as in the case of fines, but will be utilized in the promotion of the most deserving.

NO DIVORCE SCANDALS TO BE PUBLISHED.

GOOD MORNING HAVE YOU BEEN DIVORCED

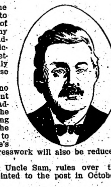
The report about the bevy of young women sent out by the United States census bureau to collect statistics of divorce, sent a shudder through the circles of Pittsburg, Newport, New York and South Dakota. It was at once surmised that this meant taking off the lids of scandal in every divorce case. Protests were heard by the census officials. The acting director of the bureau, Mr. Rossiter, felt called upon to say:

"It has been reported that the census agents will have interviews with divorced persons and ask them all sorts of personal questions. Nothing of this kind will be done. We are simply sending a corps of clerks from our offices in this city, as we continually do in collecting various kinds of statistics, and they are being installed in the courthouses of 20 of the larger cities, where, under the direction of an employe of the bureau, they will go through the divorce records of the last 20 years hurriedly and in a business like manner, and take out certain cold facts, which will never have any personal significance to the bureau of the public.

"It is estimated that between 30,000 and 50,000 cases are recorded for this 20 year period in each of the cities of New York, Chicago and Philadelphia, and that 1,000,000 are recorded for the entire country for this period. Is it likely that our clerks, used as they are to doing this sort of thing daily, will remember or will even look at names as they run through the records? Of course not, unless, perhaps, they happen to be personally interested in some particular case, and even then they are sworn to secrecy and would lose their position if they gave out to anyone what they had read. Our records will not even contain the names of the divorced persons when they are complete. It is a block of statistics that the government is after, and nothing else."

Mr. Rossiter estimates that it will require about a year to conclude the government researches upon the subject of divorce. At present there are 20 clerks at work in New York, 30 in Chicago, ten in Philadelphia, 12 in Boston, four in Baltimore and proportionate forces in other cities.

INDORSES PHONETIC SPELLING.



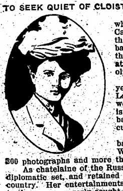
Charles A. Stillings, public printer for the United States government, who was the first to be notified of President Roosevelt's adoption of the phonetic or simplified style of orthography urged by Andrew Carnegie and a number of leading educators and literary men, has enthusiastically indorsed the president's decision. In a letter to the president Mr. Stillings said that only recently he had appointed a commission to revise the public printing office's "manual of style."

Mr. Stillings expressed himself as having no doubt that all departments of the government would take their cue from the president and advocate the phonetic changes. To provide the printing office with a uniform code of spelling would, he declared, "reduce considerably the necessary force of proofreaders and so lessen to an appreciable extent the cost of the office's operation." The amount of composition and presswork will also be reduced, appreciably lessening the expense.

Charles A. Stillings, as official printer for Uncle Sam, rules over the greatest printery in the world. He was appointed to the post in October, 1905, by President Roosevelt.

Mr. Stillings was connected with a Boston printing house for some years, was once secretary of the Typothetae of Washington, and at the time of his appointment was manager of the printers' board of trade of New York city. He is a son of Gen. Stillings, who was adjutant general on the staff of the late Commander-in-Chief Blackmar of the Grand Army of the Republic.

TO SEEK QUIET OF CLOISTER.



History will be repeating itself if the reports which reach here about Countess Marguerite Cassini have any foundation in fact. It is alleged that the beautiful chatelaine of the Russian embassy is soon to retire from the world and assume the black garb of the Sisters of Mercy in Paris, at whose convent she was received in the Catholic church some time ago.

Countess Marguerite, who was for three years the most intimate friend of Mrs. Nicholas Longworth and one of the most fascinating women who ever figured in Washington society, is remarkably handsome and talented. She is barely 25, but she has drained to the dregs the cup of international popularity.

She became chatelaine of the Russian embassy in Washington when she was less than 17. While in Washington she sat for no less than 800 photographs and more than 20 oil paintings and crayon sketches.

As chatelaine of the Russian embassy she became a society leader in the diplomatic set, and retained her leadership as long as she remained in this country. Her entertainments were noted for their brilliancy and invitations to them were eagerly sought, and seldom, if ever, declined. She was particularly popular with the young officers of the army and navy stationed about the city, and it was several times rumored that Cupid was not to permit her return to Europe.

IN FOREIGN LANDS.

SOME INTERESTING INFORMATION FROM MANY COUNTRIES.

THE PROGRESS OF MEXICO

Advance in Education Secures Prosperity—Ostrich Farming May Be Undertaken in India and Will Copy California Methods.

OSTRICH FARMING.

CALCUTTA, INDIA.

It is pointed out by the press that there are millions of acres of land in India well suited to ostrich farming, and that the soil and climate of these vast tracts are as well adapted for this husbandry as that of Africa or Egypt. One journal says that ostrich farms could be started on the edge of the Indian desert, in Sind, and in Baluchistan, which are at present poor and unproductive, because of barren soils and scant and irregular rains. It would be hard to exaggerate the benefits that would result from the introduction of the new industry. The tracts named would suit the birds. The farming could be undertaken by either European or native capitalists, who would have no difficulty in engaging the services of trained men at the same time that they purchased their ostrich chicks or eggs.

The demand for ostrich feathers of high class is greater than the supply, and the farmers of the Cape and Egypt who give intelligence to the raising of ostriches make large profits, just as the ostrich farmers of southern California have done. A comparison of the soil, climate, and other physical conditions of Africa and Egypt, where the ostrich does well, with the same conditions in parts of southern California, Arizona and New Mexico would suggest that there is hardly a limit to ostrich husbandry in America.

WILLIAM H. MICHAEL.

INDUSTRIES IN NOVA SCOTIA.

SYDNEY, N. S.

The last six months of 1905 were in all respects productive of greater activity in all lines of commercial business than were the preceding six months, owing largely to the cold weather, which kept the harbors closed with ice until the middle of May. However, with the advent of warm weather, business of all kinds began to advance and has continued to do so. Confidence was restored in the iron and steel plant by the successful production of steel rails by the open-hearth process. Large orders were secured not only for rails, but for rods, billets, blooms and slabs. The coal companies increased their shipments. Money became more plentiful and consequently the merchants replenished their stocks, most of the goods coming from the United States.

It is a noteworthy fact that American hats, both hard and soft felts, boots and shoes, silk and muslin waists, sheetings, calicos, and other washable dress fabrics are steadily gaining a foothold, the sales increasing every year.

The total value of declared exports to the United States for the calendar year 1905 was $1,480,923, of which $1,298,751 was from the six consular agencies and $182,172 from Sydney. The principal articles from Sydney were: Creosote oil $34,305, coal $[illegible]985, pitch $29,989, pig iron $29,285, canned lobsters, $11,070, and pulp wood $6,325.

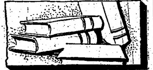
The Dominion Coal company, during the six months, mined and shipped 1,746,702 tons of coal, of which 298,920 tons went to the United States. The number of employes engaged in mining and transporting coal was 7,000. The Nova Scotia Steel and Coal company also shipped 100,000 tons of coal to various Canadian ports.

The fall fishing season, upon which so many of the people in the northern and eastern parts of Cape Breton island depend, was good so far as cod and hake were concerned, but the mackerel catch, which brings the largest returns, was almost a complete failure.

Agriculture, which had been carried on in a small and unproductive way, has received more attention during the past few years, a more careful and scientific mode of farming having been adopted with the results that farmers have been substantially rewarded for their efforts.

G. N. WEST.

MODERN MEXICO.



MEXICO CITY.

Saltillo, situated about 235 miles south of the American border, is noted for its delightful, uniform climate, for its excellent fruits and vegetables, mountain spring supply of water, and a modern water and sewerage system. Its beautiful parks are the attraction of visitors and travelers. Being a railroad center, the large agricultural, mining and manufacturing interests, where a considerable amount of American capital is invested, place the capital city of Coahuila in the front rank as a business center.

President Diaz has done much to secure the advancement in the educational facilities and the wonderful progress apparent in all branches of industry. He uttered words of wisdom when he told the Machinists' Union, when they recently called upon him in reference to the settlement of their grievances, that the government respected the right of men to refuse to work or to accept wages which they thought too low; that these rights would be always respected, but that they must not forget the protection of the government could only be thrown around those who maintained a peaceful attitude and refrained from disturbing public order; that to assure the continuance of progress and the development of the national resources it was quite indispensable that all capital, whether native or foreign, invested in undertakings profitable to the country, should be guaranteed and protected in its just rights; that to hamper the operations of companies and to allow unjust demands to be made upon them would bring harm to the whole country and likewise to the workingmen.

The president reminded the workingmen that the government, while respecting their just rights, would apply severe measures in case it became necessary to maintain the public peace. Thus the machinists, and through them the workingmen of Mexico, were plainly convinced of the president's impartial feelings, of his sense of and determination to secure justice, and peacefully resumed work.

Mexico's proximity to the United States, the mutual interest of citizens of both countries in its opportunities, and in the numerous enterprises render it necessary that capital be safe and that the laws be obeyed. The exports, imports and railway travel are constantly increasing—so much so that the Mexico of to-day promises to be one of the most enlightened and advanced countries in the world.

V. L. DUHAIME.

Why He Missed Them.

This Kaffir story is true. A Christion Zulu-Kaffir was heard recounting to another Kaffir a vision of heaven which he had had in a dream. "And saw you any Kaffirs there?" inquired his listener. The teller of the story pondered awhile, and then "No," said he, "for I did not look into the kitchen."

Cause of Hay Fever.

It is now known that hay fever is due to the invasion of the mucous membrane of the nose by the pollen of certain plants. This membrane is not equally sensitive in all persons; there are many who are immune from hay fever. Different pollens have not the same activity either; that of certain plants is innocuous, whereas that of other species is very active. The irritating action is really exerted by the pollen itself and not by a bacterium of any kind. At present 114 plants are known to have toxic pollen; wheat, rye and large number of gramina form a part of them. It is possible by snuffing up dry toxic pollen to produce hay fever during the middle of winter.

At Last.

"Ah, ha!" muttered the villain, a steely glitter in his eyes, "my time has come at last."

Carefully undoing the package, he took out the alarm clock.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Economy.

"Your wife's recent illness must have been fearfully expensive?"

"Not at all; she missed eight receptions, four balls and the opera season. Think of the saving in clothes."—Life.

Just One.

"Was there ever a man who did not tell his neighbors the bright things said by his first born?"

"Yes, I think there was one."

"Never! Not on your tintype!"

"How about Adam?"—Houston Post.

Time to Quit.

Bacon—I see some one says that in 800 years there will be no lawyers left on the earth.

Egbert—Well, they'll probably have all the money by that time, so what's the use?—Yonkers Statesman.

They All Do.

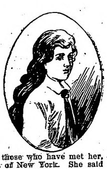
"Soakski takes more interest in his business than anyone I know."

"What's his business?"

"He runs a pawnshop."—Cleveland Leader.

Gossip of Gotham Town

Interesting Comment from the Eastern Metropolis—Sixteen-Year-Old Schoolgirl Who Is a Mystery—Glories in an Anarchistic Title—Fortune for Bible Fund.



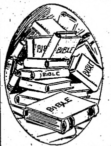
NEW YORK.—Elizabeth Flynn, the 16-year-old high school girl, who was arrested in this city for preaching to a crowd in the street, while a red flag waved over her head, delights in the title her socialist friends have bestowed upon her, "The Daughter of the Reds."

Petite, well formed, with almost faultless features, dusky hair and great, star-like eyes, this child of 16, whose gray tweed skirt is not down to her shoe tops, said in reply to a question:

"No, I do not object to being called 'The Daughter of the Reds.' I got that at the Collectivists' dinner, and I should like to explain right now why I don't object to it. The red flag does not mean riot, bloodshed and anarchy. It means the red, healthy blood of the people. I am in that sense a daughter of the reds, and I love in that understanding the red flag."

This girl, whose brilliancy of intellect amazes those who have met her, is the daughter of Thomas Flynn, a civil engineer of New York. She said her thoughts were turned toward socialism because her father was cheated out of two years' wages by his employers. Last winter, during a long illness, she became absorbed in the works of Walt Whitman, Elbert Hubbard, Robert G. Ingersoll and Tom Paine, which she studied in connection with the Bible. At an age when most girls are laying aside their dolls she is deeply versed in radicalism. Among her friends are Bolton Hall, J. G. Phelps Stokes, Jack London and other socialists. She has met Gorky, but says: "I do not care to meet geniuses. They are always egotistical. I would rather read what they write and keep aloof from them."

HIS RICHES GOES TO BUY BIBLES.



All hope entertained by the relatives of Bloodgood H. Cutter, the famous "poet lariat" of Mark Twain's "Innocents Abroad," who died at Little Neck, L. I., recently, that he had died intestate, and that they would divide his $750,000 estate among them, was ended when the last will and testament of the eccentric nonagenarian was discovered in a secret drawer of an antique cabinet in one of his rooms, by William Purchase, who had acted as the venerable poet's valet for years.

By the will each of 20 half-brothers, half-sisters and other relatives is bequeathed a life interest of $5,000 each in the estate, the balance being left unconditionally to the American Bible society.

Since the death of the "farmer poet," as he was sometimes called, energetic search had been made for the will, and as day after day passed without its being found the hopes of the relatives that each would fall heir to a goodly legacy became brighter, so that the finding of the instrument has plunged them into deep dejection. There is already talk of contesting.

The will bequeaths the poet's vast collection of curios gathered on 14 voyages around the world, including the one he made with Mark Twain—and which the humorist immortalized in his "Innocents Abroad"—to the Metropolitan Museum of Art. These curios fill three big farmhouses. The library of 5,000 volumes is left to the Long Island Historical society.

ORGANIZED GANG OF HOTEL ROBBERS.

Tenants of the Ansonia, at Seventy-third street and Broadway, have been victims during the last year or so of many burglaries. Despite the closest watch things have systematically disappeared. One day half a dozen pairs of silk hose or a bit of lingerie would be reported stolen, and the next a quantity of jewelry. The succession of thefts was so daring and systematic that W. E. D. Stokes, proprietor of the fashionable hostelry, had begun to believe he was harboring a "Raffles" in his house, but the arrest of Lena Blodgett, a pretty maid formerly employed by the wife of Hyman Sonn, a guest of the Ansonia, has cleared up the mystery.

Accomplices of Lena Blodgett were Frank Fanning, the head carpenter, and Patrick Walsh, his assistant, both of whom have been employed by the hotel for several years and were trusted employes. These men while about their work had access to all apartments. Kate Gallagher, a former sweetheart of Fanning, is believed to have given information to the police which led to the arrest of the gang. She had lately failed to find favor in the eyes of Fanning, and this was her method of revenge.

MORTON ON INSURANCE ABROAD.

EUROPE
AMERICAN CANNED MEAT
INSURANCE POLICY

Paul Morton, president of the Equitable Life Assurance society, has been abroad for some time and has but recently returned to his desk in the Equitable building.

"What are the conditions of insurance affairs in Europe?" Mr. Morton was asked.

"I went across," Mr. Morton ultimately said, "to see what could be done to smooth over some troubles which had been encountered in France, but found our company could live under the conditions imposed by the French government and that we could operate under these laws. In fact, the laws of New York state are just as stringent as are those of Europe.

"The Equitable will continue in France. The laws of that nation, while generally favoring French companies, do not discriminate against those of other countries."

In reply to another question, Mr. Morton said the beef scandal had nearly died out abroad. "Whatever they want to eat," he said, "we will continue to supply. During the short time they stopped eating our meats we gave them American oatmeal. While in England I made a proposal that if the entire British army was fed wholly on American meat our company would insure everyone in the army at regular rates. We not only want to sell Europeans our meats, but to insure their lives after they buy it."

PATHETIC LETTER TO DR. STORK.

Irene, the nine-year-old adopted daughter of Druggist F. E. Blenckstone, of Oradell, N. J., wrote a letter to the stork in the Central park zoo two months ago, asking that a little baby sister be left at her home as soon as convenient to the stork. No baby arrived at the Blenckstone home, but, Saturday night, a girl baby arrived at the home of Everett A. Haring, whose nine-year-old daughter Margaret is a playmate of Irene Blenckstone.

The latter at once concluded a serious mistake had been made and she so told Margaret. But her playmate was obdurate and refused to give the baby away to the claimant. So Irene, on Monday, wrote another letter to the stork, addressing it Central park. She wants a baby sister before November.

To a reporter, who called to see Irene she said: "I love babies and I really want one. I am sure the good, kind stork meant Margaret's baby for me, but she loves babies, too, and won't give hers to me. So I wrote another letter to the stork and placed a blanket on the sofa over night, so the baby will have something to sleep on when she arrives. I have dolls and a cat and dog, but they are not babies. I want something to play with that can learn to talk. I have no brothers or sisters and if the stork knew how lonesome I get sometimes, I am sure it would send me a good little baby."

The letter she wrote follows:

Dear Mr. Stork: I will please ask you again, please bring me a baby. You will find a blanket and pillow on the sofa, because I sleep there every night. So kindly bring it before November. I would like a little girl. I know a little girl who only got a baby last Saturday at 7:30 p. m.

IRENE BLENCKSTONE.

OVER 300 PERSONS DEAD IN HURRICANE

SEVERE CYCLONE, ACCOMPANIED BY HEAVY RAIN, SWEEPS OVER HAVANA.

Many Are Injured and Property Loss Will Reach Fully $2,000,000—Twenty-Eight Said to Have Drowned on Steamer St. Lucie.

Miami, Fla., Oct. 20.—At least 353 persons are known to be dead and incalculable damage has been done to several of the Florida keys and to shipping as a result of a terrific hurricane and tidal wave which struck this port Friday morning.

The hurricane swept down upon the keys without warning and its advent was almost immediately marked by a gigantic wave which picked up vessels and beached them high and dry or crushed them like eggshells.

The greatest loss of life so far as known at present was at Elliott's key. The tidal wave struck the key with overwhelming force and completely engulfed it. According to apparently thoroughly reliable information every living thing on the key was destroyed and the land swept bare of every vestige of habitation.

It is believed now that a portion of the Florida Fish & Produce company's fleet were destroyed. Manager Adams sent out one of their boats to look for the men and boats, and on their return they reported no signs of the fleet. The fishing nets were found strewn upon the shore.

Twenty Dead at Havana.

Havana, Oct. 20.—A cyclone of unprecedented severity, accompanied by a terrific downpour of rain, swept over the provinces of Havana and Pinar del Rio Wednesday night and resulted in 20 deaths in this city and the serious injury of a dozen or more persons. The damage is estimated at fully $2,000,000. The dead are all Cubans of the poorer class.

The storm caused great havoc and confusion in the shipping in the harbor. Many buildings were badly damaged and nearly all the trees in the city and suburbs were uprooted.

Army Tents Blown Down.

The 2,000 American soldiers and marines at Camp Columbia were put to great inconvenience by the storm. Nearly all the 400 tents in camp were blown down, but there was little actual damage.

If it were not for the wreckage in the harbor, one would not know that such a severe storm had blown over this end of the island.

Friday night gay crowds were promenading the streets and lounging in the cafes, apparently quite oblivious of the fearful experience through which their city had passed. Street car traffic was fully resumed.

Warships Drag Anchors.

The Brooklyn drifted further than any other warship, and finally brought up off La Regla with her stern in the mud. She got off Friday morning under her own steam and has sustained no injury. The cruiser Denver, the cruiser Minneapolis, the battleship Texas, the auxiliary cruiser Prairie and the supply ship Celtic all dragged their anchors more or less, but prompt seamanship averted collisions. These ships were all made fast to permanently anchored buoys which never before were known to have dragged. The damage sustained by the squadron amounts to little. Two boats were lost and some of the lighter deck fittings were carried away. The bridge of the Prairie was displaced.

Four Men Drowned.

Two coasting schooners were driven high on the rocks at the Malecon. The crew of one managed to get ashore, but the crew of the other, four men, was drowned.

The chartered army transport Cubano, from Newport News, with horses and mules and a few teamsters arrived here Friday morning after a terrific struggle with the gale off the Florida coast. Her foremast was carried away and huge seas swept her decks. Her superstructure was damaged and a number of sails were carried away. One hundred mules and 20 horses were swept overboard and many other animals were injured.

Many Lighters Lost.

The total number of lighters sunk in the harbor has not yet been ascertained. Many of them were loaded with sugar and other merchandise, upon which the loss will be great. Owing to the lack of lighters steamers are now discharging alongside the wharves. The storm drove the lighters against the bulkheads, where they were broken or sank. The harbor has been searched for dead, and it is now believed that all the bodies have been found.

Damage to Houses.

In Havana city about 50 houses were more or less injured, but owing to the massive construction of roofs and walls the damage is serious only in a few instances.

The buildings of the University of Havana sustained damages amounting to many thousands of dollars. A partition wall in the American legation was blown down. The office furniture was ruined and the books and records of the legation were wet through.

The light wooden structure over the sea baths at Vedado were badly wrecked.

Eight persons were killed and four were injured by the collapse of a tenement house on Inquisidor street. The other fatalities resulted from falling signs and cornices, contact with live wires in the city or by drowning in the harbor.

ROOSEVELT MAY RUN AGAIN

RUMORED HE WOULD ACCEPT NOMINATION AGAINST HEARST.

Should the Latter Win in New York Contest, President May Again Be Candidate.

Washington. Oct. 19.—"Theodore Roosevelt will again be a candidate for the presidency, if Hearst is elected governor of New York," declared a Republican leader close to the nation's chief executive, to a Chicago Journal correspondent. He said that if the Democrats win in New York the next Democratic candidate for the presidency may be William R. Hearst, and that the Hearst peril is the only thing that can induce Roosevelt to change his decision not to run again.

"It is conceded that the man who is elected governor of New York will be the candidate of his party for president," added this leader. "If it is Hughes, well and good, but if it is Hearst, then look out for an early statement that the president has yielded to the popular demand and has finally decided to cast aside a personal preference for private life and accept another term as president for the good of the party and the country."

To more than one of his friends the president has stated that he would regard the election of Hearst as governor of New York a public calamity second only to his possible election as the president of the United States.

It is no secret that Theodore Roosevelt has been itching to roll up his sleeves and bump into the New York campaign. Were it not for the solemn traditions that hedge themselves about the presidential office he would like nothing better than take the stump in person against the New York editor.

Should the president's political lieutenants in that state bring the word to him at the last moment that Hughes is really in serious danger of defeat, it is altogether possible that he would ignore precedents and traditions and take the first train for New York.

TWO MEN KILLED IN COLLISION

Wreckage Catches Fire After Smash-Up on the Santa Fe.

Pueblo, Col., Oct. 18.—Express Messenger Harry Murdock and a negro were killed, while more than a score of passengers were injured as the result of a head-on collision between two Santa Fe express trains near Manzanillo at 1:56 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Both locomotives were totally demolished as was the baggage car on the east-bound train. With the exception of the baggage car on the west-bound, the other coaches were practically uninjured, none of them leaving the track.

Of the four engine men, all but W. T. McMurray, engineer of No. 601, west-bound, jumped for their lives and escaped without injury. McMurray, a veteran of 35 years in the service of the Santa Fe, stuck to his post and was injured. He made every effort to avoid the collision.

The cause of the collision is not given by the Santa Fe officials here, but they state that No. 601 was running on short time and that McMurray evidently endeavored to make the siding at Manzanillo before No. 10, east-bound, left the station. Immediately after the collision the wreckage caught fire.

SERVICES OVER SAM P. JONES

Impressive Ceremony for Evangelist Held at Cartersville, Ga.

Cartersville, Ga., Oct. 19.—In the presence of a large congregation impressive funeral services were held Thursday afternoon over the remains of the Rev. Sam P. Jones, the evangelist, in the Sam Jones tabernacle here. Bishop C. M. Galloway, of Mississippi, presided, and was assisted by many prominent ministers. The body was taken to Atlanta Friday morning. It lay in state in the state capitol until afternoon, when it was placed in a receiving vault to await the completion of the Jones family vault here.

SOLDIERS FIGHT PRAIRIE FIRE

South Dakota Farmhouses and Grain Stocks Are Threatened.

Sturgis, S. D., Oct. 17.—A squadron of soldiers from the Sixth cavalry stationed at Fort Mead has been sent out to assist in fighting a terrific prairie fire, which started about a mile from Tilford Tuesday, and which has burned over a large expanse of country.

Many farmhouses and grain stacks are said to have been destroyed and others are threatened.

Tilford reports the fire gaining headway and spreading in the direction of Sturgis.

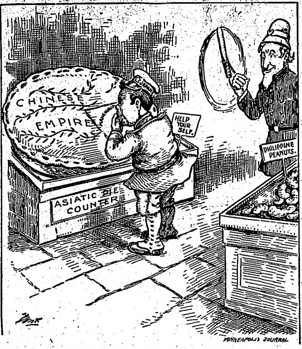
Women Win Damages from Planter.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 17.—A special to the News-Scimiter from Helena, Ark., says that the jury in the damage suit against the wealthy farmer Musgrave, of Mississippi county, Ark., brought by Miss Vitt and Miss Emmons, both of St. Louis, returned a verdict Tuesday. Damages were assessed in favor of Miss Vitt for $625, and in favor of Miss Emmons, $1,000. Counsel for Musgrave says he will pay these amounts.

Acquitted.

Ida Grove, Ia., Oct. 19.—Oscar Berger, accused of fraudulent banking, was acquitted. The jury was out 18 hours.

EXPANSION FOR JAPAN.



U. S.—His Taste Seems to Run in a Different Direction. I Don't Believe the Philippines Are in Danger.

NEW YORK CENTRAL ROAD FOUND GUILTY

JURY DECIDES IT GRANTED REBATES TO SHIPPERS OF SUGAR.

Detroit Firm Arranged with Traffic Manager to Send Freight Over the Line at a Reduction of Five Cents Per Hundred.

New York, Oct. 20.—Judge Holt, in the United States circuit court Friday imposed a fine of $108,000 on the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad company for granting rebates to Lowell M. Palmer, who had charge of transportation for the American Sugar Refining company. There were six counts, and a fine of $17,000 was imposed in each.

Frederick L. Pomeroy, assistant traffic manager of the New York Central, was fined $1,000 on each count, a total of $6,000.

New York, Oct. 18.—The New York Central railway and Frederick L. Pomeroy, its general traffic manager, were found guilty of granting rebates on sugar shipments, the verdict being returned in the United States court here Wednesday.

The defendants may be fined $120,000 each, but sentence was deferred until Friday to permit the attorneys for the defense to file motions with the court.

In discussing the jury's verdict, Austin G. Fox, counsel for the defendants, placed the responsibility for the conviction of his clients upon public opinion.

"You can't defend rebate cases in the present state of public opinion," he said.

Rebates Given Detroit Firm.

The charge against the New York Central and Pomeroy was based upon indictments found by the United States grand jury after many months of investigation. It was alleged that the defendants entered into an arrangement with the American Sugar Refining company whereby Edgar & Son, of Detroit, were favored by a reduction of five cents per hundredweight on sugar shipments from New York to Detroit from the regular traffic rates.

Besides trying to show that claims for rebates were addressed to Mr. Pomeroy, Mr. Stimson endeavored to prove that the New York Central was concerned in all of the transactions. Letters from Mr. Palmer to Mr. Pomeroy, acknowledging the receipt of drafts amounting to thousands of dollars, were admitted. It is charged that these drafts represented the payment of a rebate of five cents per hundredweight on shipments of sugar to W. H. Edgar & Son.

Gave Rebate of Five Cents.

In one of these letters from Mr. Pomeroy to Mr. Palmer it was stated that Mr. Palmer's claim for a rebate of almost $1,000 for shipments of sugar to W. H. Edgar & Son, of Detroit, had been reached on a basis of a tariff of 23 cents per hundredweight with a rebate of five cents, whereas the tariff during the month of June 1904, was 21 cents per hundredweight. Mr. Pomeroy asked Mr. Palmer to change his claim to the basis of a three-cent rebate.

When the prosecution announced that it would rest, Mr. Lindsay said the defense would offer no evidence. He then made a motion to dismiss on the grounds that the corporation could not be made a codefendant. The motion was denied.

To Meet at Joplin in 1907.

Denver, Oct. 20.—The American Mining Congress Friday named a board of directors, among the members selected being E. R. Buckley, Rolla, Mo.; George W. E. Dorsey, Fremont, Neb., and James W. Malcomson, El Paso. The congress voted to hold its meeting next year at Joplin, Mo.

LIMITS PRICES FOR GRAIN

CHICAGO BOARD OF TRADE HAMPERS COUNTRY BUYERS.

Brokers Are Prohibited from Offering More Than Posted Rates Under Penalty of Expulsion.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—That the Chicago Board of Trade is killing Chicago as a grain center and has already placed the city in the position of a "one-horse" village in that respect, because of an illegal rule passed by that body, was the declaration Tuesday of Richard Gambrill, a broker, before the interstate commerce commission.

James Pettit, president of the Peavey Elevator company, told of a pool between the elevator companies regulating storage charges.

He declared that he was not sure the plan was illegal, but since the new rate law had gone into effect his firm had discontnued its connection.

The commission is investigating the complaint that the railroads and the elevator owners have combined to restrain trade and kill competition.

Gambrill, who said he was a broker for John C. Shaffer, an elevator owner that testified Monday, was the first witness Tuesday.

"So long as your august body is investigating these conditions, I would like to tell of a rule that I think is killing Chicago as a grain center and has already placed the city in the position of a one-horse village so far as the grain trade is concerned.

"Every afternoon before the closing of the Board of Trade a call is posted giving the price that is to be bid to the country for grain.

"Every broker who bids must bid within that price.

"For that reason I quit doing business. I couldn't make any money. I thought the rule unfair and illegal and in restraint of trade."

Commissioner Lane—Was that rule passed by the Board of Trade?

"Yes."

"Was it contested?"

"It was contested bitterly. For example, I have orders every day from the east to buy grain and at a price two or three cents above the Chicago limit, as made by the Board of Trade. Yet I couldn't—didn't dare to—offer more, so I quit that branch."

"What penalty was there, or is there, attached to violation of that rule?"

"Expulsion from the Board of Trade."

WOMAN GIVEN $15,000 BY A JURY

Lost Diamond Ring on Steamer and Was Imprisoned by Captain.

Lockport, N. Y., Oct. 18.—The jury in the case of Mrs. Della B. Sweeting, against the steamer Western States Wednesday reported to Judge Hazel in federal court a verdict of $15,000 in favor of the plaintiff. Mrs. Sweeting, whose home is in Jackson, Mich., sued for $25,000.

In 1904, while making a trip to Detroit on the boat, an employe on board stole a diamond ring from her. She complained to the captain and, according to her story, was insulted, arrested and imprisoned. The boat employe who stole the ring was convicted and sent to prison.

Bad Fire in Alabama.

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 19.—Fire which broke out after midnight in the six-story building of the Prowell Hardware company, on First avenue near Nineteenth street, burned for six hours, causing a loss of about $300,000.

Repair Shops Burn.

Fremont, O., Oct. 17.—Fire Tuesday destroyed the Lake Shore electric railway repair shops, with much valuable machinery, motors and rolling stock. Loss, $100,000; fully covered by insurance.

Killed by Cars.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Oct. 19.—John G. Kane, supposed to be well known vaudeville theatrical manager, was killed by the cars here.

STANDARD OIL MAY PAY HEAVY PENALTY

JURY FINDS COMPANY GUILTY OF CONSPIRING UNDER THE VALENTINE LAW.

Liable to Fine of from $50 to $5,000 for Each Day of the Offense, or Officers May Be Imprisoned for from Six to Twelve Months.

Findlay, O., Oct. 20.—After deliberating 32 hours the jury in the case of the state of Ohio against the Standard Oil company, of Ohio, returned a verdict of "guilty" on the charge of conspiracy against trade, in violation of the Valentine anti-trust law. The verdict was rendered at 4:35 o'clock Friday morning, the jury having announced its readiness to report exactly at four o'clock.

The judge and attorneys arrived in half an hour, when the verdict was rendered.

The penalty is a fine of from $50 to $5,000, which may be repeated for each day of the offense, or imprisonment of from six to 12 months.

Will File Motion for New Trial.

The Standard Oil company, of Ohio, has given notice that it will file a motion for a new trial. Under the practices of the court the defendant has three days to put this motion in form.

The next step will be for the court to impose the penalty.

The defense will then take their bill of exceptions to such rulings of Judge Baker as they have objected, to the circuit court of the state. The appeal from this court is to the supreme court of the state, to which tribunal there is no doubt the issue will ultimately be decided.

To the state, the suit, the verdict and the ultimate appeal is important particularly because it intimates an entirely new method of proceeding against alleged trade monopolies—that of information and affidavit, instead of by grand jury indictment.

The verdict was rendered at 4:35 o'clock Friday morning, and resulted from a continuous deliberation by the jury during 32 consecutive hours. The trial occupied seven days preceding this deliberation.

Dramatic Scene at the Close.

A touch of the dramatic marked the two closing hours of the jury's deliberations. Songs were sung during all but ten minutes of this time. This ten minutes came at the end, and was occupied by the remaining juror, who had stood out in explaining his position and surrender to the majority. There was not the slightest levity about this hymnal service. The jurors had then been many hours without sleep. The songs which were started shortly after two o'clock in the morning, echoed at first feebly through the spacious court.

Importance of Verdict.

When the case went to the jury at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday night, the first ballot of the jurors stood nine for conviction and three for acquittal.

As the result of continuous deliberations to four o'clock Thursday morning one of the three for acquittal joined the majority. At seven o'clock Thursday night one of the two remaining for acquittal went over to the other side, and at four o'clock Friday morning the last of the three gave his assent to the verdict of "Guilty."

STORM IN CENTRAL AMERICA

Great Loss of Life and Destruction of Cattle and Crops Reported.

San Salvador, Oct. 20.—A tempest has raged incessantly for ten days throughout the republic, flooding the rich valleys, principally that of Majada, and resulting in great loss of life and the destruction of cattle and crops.

The Salvadorean man-of-war Izalco was lost at Acaputla.

The topography of various departments has been changed, buildings have fallen, burying their tenants in the ruins, and the iron bridges over the principal rivers have been carried away.

Up to Wednesday 15,000,000 tons of water had fallen. The aqueducts and electric light plants at Sonsonate and Salvador have suffered heavy losses.

The storm is abating. The railroads, telegraphs and commerce are paralyzed, but traffic is being restored in some towns of the republic. The water mains at some places have disappeared.

The rivers are bringing down the bodies of persons drowned in the storm and the carcasses of cattle, and the sight of these tend to increase the terror of the people.

Guatemala and Honduras also have suffered severely. It is said the losses there will amount to many millions of dollars.

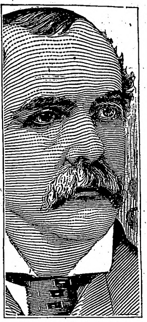
Murphy Before Grand Jury.

New York, Oct. 20.—An investigation of the charges made Thursday by Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, that attempts had been made by the managers of the Independence league in this city to secure money from Democratic nominees for congress, senate and assembly, was begun before the grand jury Friday.

White Man to Hang for Assault.

Alexandria, La., Oct. 30.—A verdict imposing the death penalty on Thos. Brady, a white man, for a criminal assault upon a 16-year-old girl, was returned by the jury Friday which tried him.

UNITED STATES SENATOR FROM SOUTH CAROLINA PRAISES PE-RU-NA.



Ex-Senator M. C. Butler.

Dyspepsia Is Often Caused By Catarrh of the Stomach—Peruna Relieves Catarrh of the Stomach and Is Therefore a Remedy For Dyspepsia.

Hon. M. C. Butler, Ex-U. S. Senator from South Carolina for two terms, in a letter from Washington, D. C., writes to the Peruna Medicine Co., as follows:

"I can recommend Peruna for dyspepsia and stomach trouble. I have been using your medicine for a short period and I feel very much relieved. It is indeed a wonderful medicine, besides a good tonic."

CATARRH of the stomach is the correct name for most cases of dyspepsia. In order to cure catarrh of the stomach the catarrh must be eradicated.

Only an internal catarrh remedy, such as Peruna, is available.

Peruna exactly meets the indications.

ELEPHANT AT THE TELEPHONE

Animal Took Much Time to Learn Ludicrous Trick.

So perfectly is this elephant broken that he works by cues imperceptible to the audience. The trainer merely raises his shoulders and the young bull strides toward the telephone box, turn the crank, ringing the bell, picks up the receiver in his long trunk and holds it to his great, flap ear. Then he hangs it up with the suddenness of disgust, rings the bell a second time, and again holds the receiver to his ear, while he listens with the sage, bland expression which only an elephant can assume. When finished, he hangs up the receiver and "rings off."

For something like two minutes this performance lasts. Yet it required a month of steady, hard work to break the elephant into this simple, ludicrous trick. More than 2,000 times, actual count, Barlow had to grasp Tom's trunk, apply it to the bell crank and teach the circular motion of ringing the bell, by leading the trunk just as you might lead the hand of a young child when teaching it to wind a music box. More than 1,000 times the trainer had to lead the tip of the big receiver of the telephone to teach the beast to hold it to his ear and hang it accurately back on its hook. And when these details were mastered, it took more than 500 trials to teach the succession of winding the crank and listening before Tom understood and knew enough to twist the crank without breaking it into halves at every contact.—Apleton's Magazine.

CASTE IDEA CARRIED FAR.

Illustration of Bitterness Between Followers of Mohammed.

Here is a tale from O'Donovan's "Merv" illustrating the bitterness of feeling between the various sects of the followers of Mohammed: O'Donovan had offered his Mohammedan attendant, who happened to be a Shiite, some of his cold chicken, which the man took at first and chewed ruminantly. Suddenly, however, he spat the mouthful out, exclaiming: "Who cooked this?" since it is a sin for a Moslem to eat food cooked by an infidel. "Oh, it's all right," replied O'Donovan, "it was cooked by your coreligionists down there," pointing to a city of Sunnites. "What!" exclaimed Shiite, furiously, "by those infernal Sunnites! I shouldn't have minded much if it had been cooked by you or any other giaour; but by a Sunnite! Pah!" and he spat again in his disgust. "But what is the difference between Shiite and Sunnite? Aren't both good Moslems?" "What is the difference between us! Don't you know that when a Shiite washes his hands he lets the water drip from the wrist; but when those Sunnites wash their hands they let the water drip from the elbow?"

New York Fond of Amusement.

There is more money, per capita, spent in New York city every year for amusements than in any other part of the world. The people spend 12 per cent. more than those in the metropolis of any other state or county, 18 per cent. more than those in the next largest cities, 86 per cent. more than those in smaller towns, and 57 per cent. more than those in the rural districts.

HE GUARDED JEFF DAVIS.

SOLDIER WHO WATCHED OVER CONFEDERATE PRESIDENT.

Was on Duty at Fortress Monroe When Davis Was a Prisoner There —He Served Thirty Years in the Regular Army.

St. Louis.—S. A. Trask, who recently resigned as assistant marshal of Webster Groves, Mo., and who served many years in the United States regular army, was at one time a guard over Jefferson Davis, the leader of the confederacy, while the latter was a prisoner at Fortress Monroe, Va., soon after the close of the civil war.

For 35 years, he has been a wearer of the blue, having served for 30 years in the regular army and for two years and six months served as conductor on the Suburban railway in this city. He has occupied the position he lately resigned for a period of two years and four months.

He removed to St. Louis on his retirement from the army, and has lived here up to the date of his appointment as assistant marshal of Webster Groves, when he moved, with his family, to that place.

Trask participated in many of the most important campaigns and engagements against the hostile tribes of Indians in the west, notably the great winter campaign in the Big Horn country, under Gen. George Crook, and which terminated with the battle of Red Rock Canyon, on the north fork of the Powder River November 25, 1876. In this battle there were engaged from 3,000 to 5,000 Sioux and Cheyennes under White Antelope, and 13,000 cavalry under Col. R. S. MacKenzie. The fight resulted in breaking the spirit of the red men, who had slaughtered Gen. Custer and his brave band.

Trask served under Gen. Crook in Arizona during the campaign of 1872 and 1873, when six months' of scouting and skirmishing subdued the Tonto Apaches. His troop, under command of Capt. George Price, was the first that ever succeeded in marching through the Tonto basin, which for ages was the stronghold of the Tontos. He was at Fort Grant, Ariz., when the Tonto chief surrendered to Gen. Crook.

He was also present at Fort Larrime, Wyo., when the great Chief Red Cloud made his last treaty with the government, and was selected as orderly to the Indian commissioner when 3,000 feathered and painted braves, the picked men of the Sioux Nation, came to the fort to listen to the speeches of their chiefs and the commissioner in regard to that treaty.

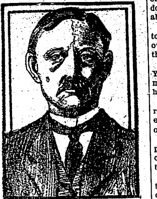
Scouting, escorting and campaigning took up the first 15 years' service of Mr. Trask, and he can relate many hair-raising incidents in which he participated.

Mr. Trask served 15 years as post quartermaster sergeant. He was appointed from regimental quartermaster sergeant, and was among the first to fill that important position.

He was on duty at Fort Bowie, Ariz., when the noted Chief Geronimo surrendered. He took an important part in that campaign by supplying and issuing stories to the troops on the field.

He was on duty at Fort Abraham Lincoln, N. D., in 1887, and under Lieut. A. C. Sharp, wound up the business of that post after it had been ordered abandoned. He lowered the last flag that floated over that historic post, and has it as a sacred memento.

He was then sent to Fort Bennett, S. D., where he took a similar part in the abandonment of that post, and with his family went through some thrilling experiences with the treacherous Mission River and Dakota blizzards.



S. A. TRASK.
(An Old Soldier Who Has Remarkable Record.)

For his faithful services he was ordered to duty at West Point, where he served for two years and a half in charge of the quartermaster stores. He can relate many interesting anecdotes of that famous military school.

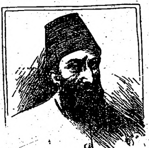
At his own request, he was then ordered to report for duty at Fort Meade, S. D., at that time one of the most important points in the northwest. There he served for five years, and for his faithful service during that time received special mention from the inspector general.

At the close of hostilities with Spain Mr. Trask, having reached the period of 30 years' service, and having a family of interesting children, applied for his retirement from active service. His request was granted, and with his wife and children Mr. Trask came to St. Louis to take up his residence.

Though 58 years old, he is still hale and hearty, and looks as rugged and active as a young soldier.

BEST-GUARDED MAN IN EUROPE

He Is "Abdul the Damned," the "Sick Man" of Turkey.



THE SULTAN OF TURKEY.
(Forty-Three Thousand Spies Are Employed to Guard Him.)

Constantinople.—In the Turkish budget for the coming year several million dollars are set aside to provide for the personal security of the sultan, Abdul Hamid. It is well-known to people who have traveled in Turkey that the sultan has at his personal service a regular army of spies who are said to number 43,000. Three thousand of these are employed near the sultan's palace, while several thousand more are scattered through the capital, some of them making a special object of their espionage the foreign embassies.

All over the Turkish empiro are the sultan's spies, scattered so that even high officials do not escape their vigilance. Besides, the bodyguard of the Turkish sovereign, which numbers 35,000 men, is like a living wall which surrounds the sultan in moments of danger. These soldiers are paid between $40 and $100 a month.

The sultan leads a very regular life. He rises at five or six every morning, and after a walk in the spacious gardens of his palace he is ready for breakfast, which he generally eats all alone. Osman Effendi, his special secretary, tastes all food before the sultan partakes of it, and he is the only one allowed to be present at the morning meal of the Turkish sovereign. After breakfast the sultan spends an hour or two in his libraries, of which he possesses four, well stocked with books and manuscripts in all sorts of languages, among which are thousands of works of great value which have never seen the light of publicity.

PRIEST A NOTED COMPOSER.

Produced Many Celebrated Oratorios That Have Brought Fame.

New York.—Rev. Father Hartmann von an der Lan-Hochbrunn, a member of the Franciscan Order of Friars, who is a celebrated composer of oratorios, and who has the distinction of being the third musician selected as a member of the Italian Academy of Immortals and the fourth German admitted to membership, is in this country.

Father Hartmann is a native of Salurn, Tyrol, and comes of a German family which was admitted to the nobility by King Leopold I., in 1694. If he were not a priest he would bear the title of count, to which he is entitled by virtue of his ancestry. As a musician he is regarded as among the most talented of the European composers, and his oratorios "St Peter," dedicated to Cardinal Parochi; "St. Francis of Assisi," dedicated to the emperor of Austria; "The Last Supper" and "The Death of Christ," dedicated to the German emperor, rank among standard musical productions. He was educated in the Conservatory of Music of Posen, under Busch, Zipperle, Deluggi and Auzoletti.

After becoming a friar his work as an organist attracted the attention of Peter Singer, a celebrated European musician, who at once marked him out for promotion. In 1893, Father Hartmann became the organist of the Catholic church in Jerusalem, and was director of the Philharmonika there. Called to Rome in 1895, Father Hartmann became organist of the Church Ara Coeli, and two years later was appointed a director of the Conservatory of Music of St. Chiara in Rome.

Because of his musical triumphs Father Hartmann was decroated by the pope with the Golden Cross, first class, Ecclesia et Pontifice. The emperro of Austria has conferred upon him the Golden Medal of Merit and he is also a Knight of Austria. He has also the decoration of the Franz Joseph order, founded in 1848.

Cute.

In peek-a-boo time she was fond
Of porous plasters, she
Laced baby ribbon through their holes
And then, real prettily,
Tied all the ends in cuffy knots
Till each one was a gem
Seen through a peek-a-boo; no won-
Der she was stuck on them.
—Houston Post.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Brig. Gen. W. H. Bell, U. S. A., retired, died at his home at Arvada, Col., aged 72.

Speaker Cannon just missed being arrested in Philadelphia for speeding an automobile too fast.

Ex-Senator J. D. Walker, a prominent lawyer of Fayetteville, Ark., was killed by falling downstairs in his office.

Fire in the center of the business district of Birmingham, Ala., burned several buildings, causing a loss of $300,000.

Ribbon manufacturers in New York decided to advance prices from one-eighth cent to one half cent per yard on all lines.

Railways centering in New York announce they will carry no more grain until they secure sufficient equipment to handle it.

The liabilities of the banking house of Zuckerman & Co., which closed its doors at Turin, Italy, are estimated at about $1,200,000.

The attorney general of Missouri is to begin proceedings to determine the ownership of Island park, located in the Missouri river.

The steamer Republic left New York with 724 steerage passengers, most of them Italian laborers, going home for Christmas.

William Bushell, who fell seven stories in New York, said it was the finest experience he ever had. He got only one slight bruise.

The Etna Banking & Trust company of Washington, D. C., has been closed by direction of the acting comptroller of the currency.

The hall of records in New York that cost $10,000,000 is ready for occupancy, six years after the date promised for completion.

Daniel Burns, of New York, has had a snake's fang taken from his right thumb, left in his left thumb by a boa constrictor 20 years ago.

Too much prosperity is the reason given by an eastern railway official for the car blockade, which has tied up the grain business east and west.

The national civil service commission has called down the president for contributing one dollar to the Republican congressional campaign committee.

All of the $500,000 estate of C. N. Schoelkopf, of Kansas City, goes to a brother and sister because he did not sign a will he made giving it to charity.

About 600 silverware workers in New York are on strike for a nine-hour day. All the shops are rushed with orders for the holiday trade, but the work is tied up.

New York Life Insurance company officials are threatened with arrest by the international policyholders' committee for alleged violation of the law regarding the election of directors.

WOMEN'S W. C. T. U. MEMORIAL

Impressive Ceremonies at Boston for Members Who Have Passed Away.

Boston, Oct. 20.—An impressive memorial service for members who have died during the past three years was one of the leading events of the second day of the triennial convention of the World's Women's Christian Temperance union in Tremont Temple Friday.

Lord Carlisle, of England, spoke in memory of his life-long friend, Sir Wilfrid Lawson, the noted English parliamentary temperance leader, and others made brief addresses in honor of members from various countries who have passed away.

Bank Closed.

Washington, Oct. 20.—The Aetna Banking & Trust company (branch), of Washington, D. C., has been closed by direction of the acting comptroller of the currency, and Robert Lyons has been appointed receiver. This company is a branch of the Aetna Banking & Trust company, of Butte, Mont., incorporated under the laws of West Virginia.

THE MARKETS.

New York, Oct. 20.

LIVE STOCK—Steers	$5 00 @ 5 75
Hogs, State	6 80 @ 6 90
Sheep	3 50 @ 5 50
FLOUR—Minn. Patents	4 10 @ 4 35
WHEAT—December	81⅞@ 82
May	84⅛@ 84¼
CORN—December	58¾@ 58⅞
RYE—No. 2 Western	69½@ 70
BUTTER	19 @ 26½
CHEESE	12¾@ 13
EGGS	24½@ 25
CHICAGO.
CATTLE—Choice Steers	$6 15 @ 7 25
Common to Good Steers	4 85 @ 6 15
Yearlings	4 50 @ 6 10
Bulls, Common to Choice	2 25 @ 4 00
Calves	3 00 @ 8 00
HOGS—Light Mixed	6 30 @ 6 50
Heavy Packing	6 20 @ 6 30
Heavy Mixed	6 30 @ 6 40
BUTTER—Creamery	19 @ 23½
Dairy	16 @ 21½
EGGS	15 @ 25
LIVE POULTRY	11 @ 11½
POTATOES (bu.)	34 @ 43
WHEAT—December	73¾@ 74⅛
May	78⅜@ 78⅝
Corn, May	43¼@ 43⅜
Oats, May	34¾@ 35
Rye, December	62½@ 63
MILWAUKEE.
GRAIN—Wheat, No. 1 Nor'n	$ 78 @ 79½
December	73½@ 73⅝
Corn, December	43¼@ 43½
Oats, Standard	34½@ 35
Rye, No. 1	64½@ 65
KANSAS CITY.
GRAIN—Wheat, December	$ 68¼@ 68⅜
May	71⅞@ 72
Corn, December	37⅞@ 37½
Oats, No. 2 White	33½@ 33¾
ST. LOUIS.
CATTLE—Beef Steers	$3 50 @ 7 00
Texas Steers	2 70 @ 5 25
HOGS—Packers	6 30 @ 6 45
Butchers	6 35 @ 6 50
SHEEP—Natives	3 00 @ 5 75
OMAHA.
CATTLE—Native Steers	$4 25 @ 6 40
Stockers and Feeders	2 75 @ 4 50
Cows and Heifers	2 00 @ 3 75
HOGS—Heavy	6 10 @ 6 25
SHEEP—Wethers	5 00 @ 5 40

BRIEF MINNESOTA ITEMS.

Minneapolis—The live stock sanitary board suggests several amendments to the present laws.

Minneapolis—The Great Northern will put on another train between St. Paul and Spokane.

St. Paul—The street car company objects to having its service regulated by the city council.

St. Paul—Florence Murphy, 177 York street, is probably fatally burned while playing with a bonfire.

Minneapolis—The state supreme court declares a part of the primary election law unconstitution.

Renville—The German Presbyterian church, four miles north of Renville, was dedicated Sunday, Oct. 14. Rev. Swede will be installed as pastor.

Minneapolis—Minnesota's legislature will be asked to provide for an exhibit at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition which will be held in Seattle in 1909.

Malung—For three hours H. J. Wells, a farmer living near here, was held up on a slim sapling a few yards away from his house by a big black bear.

Perham—Perham's new Catholic church was dedicated by Bishop Trobec of St. Cloud, assisted by several visiting priests. The church cost $40,000 and is the finest in northern Minnesota.

St. Peter—Attacked by a vicious ram as she was crossing the door yard at her farm in Cambria township, Blue Earth county, Mrs. James A. Thomas was hurled to the ground and severely injured by the animal.

Winona—An unusually strong and inspiring program has been prepared for the eleventh annual meeting of the Southern Minnesota Educational association, which is to be held at Winona on Nov. 8, 9 and 10.

Wyoming—The postoffice and general store of Richner & Simmons was robbed last night, the safe blown open and $500 and an unknown amount of stamps taken. The burglary was not discovered until this morning.

East Grand Forks—The family of Thomas Frazier, a farmer living six miles north of here, escaped cremation in their burning dwelling only because one of them was aroused from a sound sleep by the crash made by a large frying pan as it fell to the floor.

Duluth—Workers in factories inspected by the state labor bureau in 1906 have increased 5,959 over 1905, an increase of 5.6 per cent, according to the summary of factory inspectors' reports which Julius E. Moersch, statistician of the state labor bureau.

Hastings—In the recount of the primary votes of Dakota county for sheriff on the Republican ticket and senator on the Democratic ticket, J. J. Grisim, who was defeated for sheriff by C. S. Lewis of Farmington by eleven votes, won out over his opponent by several votes.

Owantonna—Corydon King, or, as he is more popularly known, "Cord" King, of this city doubtless is the oldest constable in the Western country and probably is the oldest in the entire United States. It is extremely doubtful whether there is another city in the world which can point out a police officer in active service who has arrived at an age within ten years of that which Mr. King carries so lightly.

Big Falls—While playing with a revolver, which she had discovered in a bureau drawer, Irene, the eleven-year-old daughter of Village President Robinson, was instantly killed by the accidental discharge of the weapon. The bullet entered just above her mouth and came out out at the right temple.

Virginia—Virginia is suffering from a mild epidemic of typhoid fever, 25 cases being reported at the present time. There are also many cases of fever in the lumber camps north of the city. Lax food inspection and the filthy condition of the streets and alleys are causes of the epidemic. The question of creating the office of city food inspector is being agitated, as it is the general opinion that one is needed.

Chatfield—Two deputy sheriffs and a city marshal have received severe drubbings at the hands of an alleged madman who lives in the woods near this place, and one of the deputies has a few small shot in each arm as a result of his second attempt to arrest the lunatic.

St. Paul—Secretary of State P. E. Hanson got out a new batch of sample ballots. They differ from those got out in the first part of the week in that the name of John W. Johnson does not appear, having been ordered off by the supreme court, and also that Frederick E. Wheaton's name has been shortened to Fred E. Wheaton. Wheaton is the Democratic candidate for clerk of the supreme court. He protested against being called Frederick.

Moorhead—Frank Bell is in a hospital in this city suffering from serious burns received when he was hit with a red hot stove, thrown at him by a man with whom he was fighting. The affair occurred at Sabin, Minn., eight miles south of here. Bell and another man held a jollification at Bell's house. After a time they became quarrelsome, and a fight started! The fight grew so intense that Bell's adversary picked up a red hot stove that was in the room and threw it at Bell, burning him severely.

St. Cloud—Fritz Frudenfelt, who lives on a farm at Brockway, near here, returned to his home two days ago from this state, where he had been called by the death of his father, only to find that during his absence Mrs. Frudenfelt had left for parts unknown, leaving two small children in the house alone. It was these tots that greeted the father on his return. The children had been alone in the house for two days and during that time had had nothing to eat.

St. Paul—A brown and white pointer dog, supposed to be mad, bit several persons last night and caused much excitement at Fifth and Robert streets. Two of the injured people were treated by Dr. Roy Labbitt at the central police station.

Winona—Another addition of forty-five cans of trout fry has just been received here from the government fish hatchery at Manchester, Iowa, and another large shipment is promised in ten days.

Washington—Earl B. Wolfe was appointed postmaster at Payne, St. Louis county, to succeed I. N. Fowler, resigned.

MADE THINGS HUM

INDIGNANT BEES FOR A TIME OWNED THE CAMP.

Innocent Appearing Log Brought In to Make Pleasant Fire Contained Elements of Disturbance Galore.

The moral to be drawn from the following incident is that nothing is certain in this world and that it is a wise plan to look before you leap, says the New York World.

A short time ago a young Bostonian, William Hoffman, brought to a camp at Ashland, Me., his bride of a month. After doing Bar Harbor and the White mountains the couple longed for quiet and sought it in the vastness of the primeval forest. They would, they thought, be far from friends, and prepared to finish their vacation clad in old clothes and surrounded by limitless freedom.

The only shadow which crept upward on the roseate horizon of domestic bliss was mice. Mrs. Hoffman has a horror of mice and the second day in camp when she discovered one of the small rodents scudding from back of the fireplace in the main room she nearly went into hysterics. She thought that if they had invaded one room they might another; and that day the guides spent most of their time plugging suspicious-looking holes with soap.

When the shades of evening fell Mrs. Hoffman grew more nervous and demanded a roaring fire in the grate. This had been crackling cheerfully some time when there came a knock at the door and two Portland couples who were camping in the neighborhood dropped in to make a friendly call. The advent was unexpected, but the Hoffmans were by this time lonesome enough to welcome any strangers of respectable appearance, and when bridge was suggested a table was brought out and the party was soon lost in the excitement of the game.

So interesting did they find bridge that the hours wore away and the fire died down until the supply of wood in the none too commodious box was entirely exhausted. Thereupon Mr. Hoffman and his male guests went out in search for more. As the guides had retired and the axe was missing they seized upon a four-foot log lying just back of the camp and carrying it to the fireplace gently laid it upon the embers.

Had Mr. Hoffman been less of a tenderfoot he would have noticed that the log was hollow and full of bees, but being unversed in the lore of the woods, he merely retired to the table and began shuffling the cards. The deal was half completed when the whole room seemed to be alive with buzzing, humming insects, the smell of burned honey and pain. The women screamed and ran out of doors, the men did likewise, and the guides, tumbling out of their cots, came rushing down, thinking a bear had invaded camp.

Near the camp was a brook and here the besmeared the swollen faces, arms and ankles of the party with applications of mud until they were a sight to behold. Then a fire was built and the campers made as comfortable as possible until the guides could smoke the indignant bees from the cabin. Next day the Hoffmans left for New York to get a little rest before going home.

'Twas But a Dream.

Jim Wray, the Harvard rowing coach, said to a prophet of evil before he sailed with the Harvard crew for England: "I take no stock in your words. Your words remind me of those a certain married man once heard. This married man, coming home quietly one evening, heard in the drawing-room the voices of his wife and mother-in-law in earnest conversation. He tiptoed to the door and listened intently. He heard his mother-in-law say: "No, darling, I really must go to-morrow. I do not believe in mothers-in-law making long visits. A day or so once or twice a year is enough. And now let me tell you, dear, what a treasure I think you've got in Will. There are few husbands like him, and you must try your best not to spoil him. He is perfection as he is. But don't you think you are a little hasty and inconsiderate with him sometimes? You must be gentler and more accommodating and, above all, avoid every appearance of stricture. Men need a little latitude and you have no right to chide Will when he stays out till two or three in the morning, for you must remember that he is a man, not a child or a woman, and it is your duty to allow him three or four evenings a week—'

"Will stirred uneasily. He awoke. It all seemed so real, and yet, alas! it was but a dream."

Prospects.

"It seems my daughter is determined to marry you," said old Roxley, sternly. "Now, see here! I'm told you're a regular beer guzzler."

"Well," replied the bold youth, "I admit I've been used to my share of beer, but all that'll be changed when I'm married."

"Ah!"

"Yes; I'll be able to afford wine then."

Discouraged.

"What do you think of spelling reform?"

"It's about like all reforms," said the man who is seldom pleased. "The words that were really hard to spell in the first place are just about as hard as ever."

COME OF A NOBLE STOCK.

Pride, Dignity and Beauty of the Modern Spaniards.

You may see to-day in any church portal in Spain the somber dignity of Velasquez; the sinister cast of countenance of Philip the Second; the nose and proud bearing of a Roman centurion, says the Nineteenth Century. In the Basque province the dignity and the pride of the peasantry are reflected in the graceful carriage and symmetry of movement for which the men of that coast and the girls carrying pitchers on their heads are justly celebrated. There is no trace of awkwardness in a Spanish peasant, on whose features is stamped the pride of Rome, who will talk to you with the ease and volubility of a Spanish courtier. It is a noble stock.

Though to-day the glory of Spain has departed and the modern Spanish favor a western "bowler," and the women wear Parisian hats, the national type of Spain persists with all its dignity and characteristics. Living types of Murillo's street urchins may be seen in any Spanish village. A group huddled together in some shady retreat; brown, chubby, curly headed, merry little rascals, lunching off a watermelon picked up in the market, happy as princes in their hempen rags and with their meager morsel. Or you may see the sunny side of Spain as Goya painted it. A dance in the open square, a bridal feast, a bullfighter's carousal, a brawl, an elopement; the apparel is less gaudy to-day, but the sun and the types and the spirit are the same.

That brawny picador with his wide-brimmed sombrero, his swarthy countenance, aquiline nose and raven locks, looks for all the world like a Roman gladiator. The lad at his side, with his finely chiseled features, might have waited on Poppoea. And that young girl in her white lace mantilla and the red roses in her warm black hair, such a one Goya would have delighted to portray as she stands there with her delicate head defiantly thrown back, her lustrous eyes aglow with mischief, that graceful line of figure and those pursed and pouting lips.

Training Dog Police.

The training of the young Newfoundlands that M. Lepine adds to his police staff is one of the sights of Paris, says the Century. It takes place in the headquarters of the agents plongeurs, a small building on the quay-side not far from the Cathedral of Notre Dame. Dogs and men enter into the exercise with zest, and there is usually a crowd of onlookers. Only dummy figures are used, but the "rescue" is, nevertheless, a very realistic affair. The big dogs know perfectly well what the exercise means, and they wait with comic enthusiasm until the dummy is thrown into the water and an agent plongeur rushes out on hearing the splash and the outcry of spectators. While the men are busy with lines and life-buoys, the dog plunges into the water, swims to the dummy, watches with rare intelligence for an opportunity to get an advantageous hold; and then it either swims ashore or waits for its master, who brings to the rescue long poles, cork belts, and the like. The more experienced dogs, however, will easily effect a rescue from first to last without human assistance; and it is an inspiring sight to watch them looking for a foothold on the slippery sides of the river bank, and pulling the heavy dummy into a place of safety.

It takes about four months to train the dogs efficiently. They are also charged with the protection of their masters when attacked by the desperate ruffians who sleep under the arches of the bridge in summer. Thus in Paris also the police dogs are a proved success.

A College in Bokhara.

There lay behind the great arch and the domes and the minarets a retired precinct of ancient trees and shaded walks, a grove, in the midst of the city, colonnaded in quadrangle by the pointed arches of the students' cells. Under the trees was a sort of summer house or pavilion. Two or three young men were walking in an avenue against the farther colonnade, and on the stone steps of a wide, shaded pool sat several mullahs on their praying rugs.

We visited a number of the students in their cells—monastic little brick-walled rooms where they live the year round (there are no vacations in Musulman colleges) and for years on end. It is not unusual for a student, after passing the primary school, to spend as much as 15 or 20 years at his higher studies, though usually in such a long course he will go through several different colleges in the order of advancement.

Quiet men, these students, mild eyed, patient, often middle aged.—Minneapolis Bellman.

Appropriate.

The boy's fishing pole was fastened under the root of a tree on the river bank, and he was sitting in the sun playing with a dog.

"Fishing?" inquired a man passing along the road.

"Yep," answered the boy.

"Nice dog you've got there. What's his name?"

"Fish?" That's a queer name for a dog. Why do you call him that?"

"'Cause he won't bite."

Then the man proceeded on his way.

His Assets.

"What are your liabilities?" asked the lawyer of the bankrupt press agent.

"Ah," cried the latter, "my liabilities are my assets."—Baltimore American.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50.

Entered as Second-class matter August 30, 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

The Brown County Journal observes: "When in the legislature Mr. Cole called up the joint resolution asking congress to put lumber on the free list. And still the Democrats say Mr. Cole was selected by the lumbermen as their candidate for governor. –Thirteen Towns.

We have no personal illwill toward E. M. Stanton, or John B. O'Brien, but we would rather see them tryed to make a campaign on their own account rather than as the sworn candidates of Thief River Falls on the County seat removel deal; for they seem to be about like the farmer said about the bed bug. That the bug was all right, but he did not like the way he made his liveing.

Cole has met the enemy of republicism in this state and they are his. There is no longer a loop hole left for a republican to get out of and say. "I am a republican but I om going to vote for Johnson." Get out you "Mug Wamp."If you are a republican you will vote for Cole, as the line is squarely drawn this year. If you vote for Johnson, voto the rest of the ticket, as Judge Pendegast their nominee for Leiutenant Governor is a northern Minnesota man is just as much entitied to you vote as Mr. Johnson. If you are a republican and indorse the administration of president Roosevelt vote that ticket. If you are a democrat and want to see a return to the good old times of 1893-5., with wheat 47 cents a bushel and the country full of tramps and free soup houses, vote the good old democratic ticket. Vote it straight from top to bottom, and you may again see a return of the good old Grover and Clover time in a few years, but don't make yourself ridiculous, by saying you are a republican, but vote for Johnson for Governor, for his name is Johnson, American born and a democrat.

Democratic ApolOgies,

The apologies the Democrats are now crowding upon the Social-Labor party would sound more sincere if they had not been made necessary by uncalled for abuse and wholly false accusations. When crocodiles shed tears they are least to be trusted.

It is openly admitted that Mr. John W. Johnson acted in good faith, and now, with a dry wash in the hands and a pleading crook of the knee these men who have dragged the Social-Labor candidate's name in the mud say they regret that his party is left without a candidate on the ticket.

It is really amusing, this Democratic agony. The leaders were in a panic for fear the voters could not tell the difference between the Democrat Johnson and the Social Labor Johnson. In their frenzy they saw all kinds of spooks and hobgoblins. They lost their heads, but not their power of vituperation.

Now they are equally frantic because they fear they may lose the Social-Labor vote, and appeal to the Laborites' "spirit of fairness." Ye gods! Where did they ever learn the words?-Duluth News Tribune.

Don't Forget Dan.

Dan Linuihan remembered the poor homesteaders of the Eleven Townships last spring, when the delinquent personal taxes came into his hands for colection as Sheriff. Did he hitch up a fast driveing team and go out after the homesteaders last cow to make a few dollars sheriffs fee? No not Dan, but we will tell you what he did do. He went down in his pocket and paid postage to notify them to come in and settle, or send their money in to pay their tax, and in some cases paid their taxes out of his own pocket to save them expense. Now these are facts, and is well well known by a large number of the settlers on this Reservation. Now after having only one tearm they are trying to defeat him for re election, just because a stranger wents his place, but we think the Eleven Towner's will attend to that part of the deal, by placeing a good big X, right where it will do the most good on November 6th,.

"Keep your eye on Duffey, thers going to be a fight." "Keep your eye on Duffey. their going to have it right"

We can hardly believe Thief River Falls voters will indorse the principal of their papers in not letting the other parts of the County have one office.

If E.L Quist wanted an office in Red Lake county, he should have kept fight on going after the one he tried to get two years ago, instead of side tracking, to try to defeat a man so well qualified for his position, and popular as is Frank Jeffers.

We believe it would be the safest plan for the tax payers to give the Thief River Falls pet, County seat removel candidates, Stanton, and O'Bien a tap with an X November 6th, that will send them back into the "wood chuck" wood pile.

There is an old fellow named S. T. Johnson that wants to be elected Court Commissioner awful bad, and as he has the appearence of being well along in years, and this might be his last chance to get office, and; Whereas, he claimes he has been offered, and did refuse one hundred dollars to pull off from the ticket, now we prepose that we all give the old man a vote November 6th, and help him to gratify the ambition of his life to obtain office. Remember his name is Johnson. Don't make a mistake and vote for the Johnson at the head of the ticket, but the one at the tail of the ticket.

Congressman Halvor Steenerson is to tour eastern Polk county in company with A. D. Stephens We hope this will not be a Sampson and Deliah trip, and that if the cry should go forth two years hence of "The Philistines be upon thee, Sampson", that when Sampson awakes and shakes himself, that he will not find that he has been shaven and became weak, and like any other man.

We entend to publish a paper devoted to the best interest of the locality in which we live, and don't care a snap for Thief River or Red Lake Falls, County seat "scrap", but are going to support the man for office that we think is the best man for the position, but when the Thief River Falls papers throw down their County seat removel blanket and said to the candidates for county office. walk on this or you can not be elected by the gods we unfuched our collier button and got ready to scrap. O'Brien, Nelson. Quist, Stanton, and both Johnsons promptly steped on that platform and said to hl-with the republicans and democrats this is good enough for us.

* * *

Republican State Ticket.

United States Senator—
Knute Nelson,
Douglas County.

Governor—
A.L. Cole,
Cass County.

Lieutenant Governor—
A.O. Eberhart,
Blue Earth County.

Chief Justice—
Charles M. Start,
Olmsted County.

State Treasurer—
Clarence Dinehart,
Murray County.

Secretary of State—
Julius Schmahl,
Redwood County.

Attorney General—
E.T. Young,
Swift County.

State Auditor—
S.G. Iverson,
Fillmore County.

Clerk of Supreme Court—
C.A. Pidgeon,
Wright County.

Railroad Commissioner—
C.F. Staples,
Dakota County.

For Congress 9th District.
HALVOR STEENERSON.
Polk County.

State Senator 61st Ditrict.
A. L. HANSON.

Representative 61st District.
JENS J. OPSAHL.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam October 19, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. October 17th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that KATHLEEN A. DALEY, of Germantown Minn., has filed notice of his intention to make final commutation proof in support of his claim, viz: Homestead Entry. No. 785, Red Lake Series, made October 26th 1904, for the N.W. ¼ Sec. 28, Twp. 154 N. R. 40 W., and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the United States Land office at Crookston Minn. on December 4th 1906.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Albert T. Rice, Teresa O'Reilly, John O' Reilly, John Connacker all of Germantown Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam October 19, 1906

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn. October 17th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that JOHN CONNACKER, of Germantown Minn., has filed notice of his intention to make final commutation proof in support of his claim, viz: Homestead Entry No. 701, Red Lake Series, made October 5th 1904. for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 28, Twp. 154 N. R. 40 W, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the United States Land Office. at Crookston Minn. on December 4th 1906.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Alfred T. Rice, Teresa O'Reilly, John O'Reilly, Kathleen A. Daley all of Germantown Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam October 19th 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. October 17th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that ALFRED T. RICE of Germantown, Minn., has filed notice of his intention to make final commutation proof in support of his claim, viz: Homestead Entry, No. 1151, R.L.S. made April 24, 1905, for the S.W. ¼ Sec. 20, Twp. 154, N. R. 40 W. and that said proof will be made before the Register and Reciever of the United States Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on December 4th, 1906.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Teresa O'Reilly, Kathleen A. Daley, John O'Reilly, John Connacker all of Germantown Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register

NTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam September 28 1906.

Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston Minn. August September 25, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before L.G. Browning U.S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota, on November 5th 1906, viz:

Fred Solie.

H.E.No. 586 Red Lake Series, for the N.W. ¼ Sec. 16, Twp. 154. N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Knut Rogness, Ole Wiseth, Pete Brevik, of Germantown Minn. Olef Araker of Brunkeberg Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Regster.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam October 5th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. September 27th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L.G. Browning U.S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota on November 5th 1906, viz:

Christen H. Bjerke.

H.E. No. 697, Red Lake Series, for the Lots 3. 4. E½ S.W. ¼ Sec. 31, Twp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

John M. Johnson; Bernt Johnson, Ole Gsving, of Brunkeberg Minn. Gulbrand Granum, of Thief River Falls Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam October 5th 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office, at Crookston Minn. September 28th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L.G. Browning, U.S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota on November 5th 1906 viz:

Thom M. Thorson.

H.E. No. 780 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 1, 2, E½ N.W. ¼ Sec. 7 Twp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ole H. Langlie, Jacob B. Nesheim, Carl J. Olson, of Brunkeberg Minn. Aaron [illegible] Abraham of Thief Riv Falls Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Oct. 12th, 1906.

Department of the Interior.

Land Office at Crookston Minn. September 26th, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that OLUF SNOBACK of Rhoda Minn., has filed notice of his intention to make final Commutation proof in support of his claim viz: Homestead Entry No, 1316 Red Lake Series, made July 26th 1905. for the S. E. ¼ Section 32 Township 153 N. Range 40 W., and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on November 16th 1906,

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Andreas Christiansen. George Singer. Stephen Singer, Knut K.Olson, all of Rhoda Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register

Notice for Publication.

First Pub in The Sunbeam October 19th 1906

Department of the Interior, Land Office, at Crookston Minn. October 17th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that TERESA O' REILLY of Germantown Minn., has filed notice of his intention to make final commutation proof in support of his claim, viz: Homestead Entry, No. 784. Red Lake Series, made October 26th 1904, for the S.W. ¼ Sec. 27 Twp. 154 N. R. 40 W. and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the United States Land office, at Crookston Minn. on December 4, 1906.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Alfred T. Rice, John Connacker, Donald O'Brien, Kathleen A. Daley all of Germantown Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Vote For Germo.

H. & B. MILLING CO.
BEST
VIVO
PATENT
96
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.
VIVO

VIVO

HANDLED BY ALL THE LEADING MERCHANTS OF THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

(ALWAYS CALL FOR VIVO).

We pay the highest market price for all grain, at our mill in Thief River Falls, or at our elevator at Plummer, and always have on hand a compleat line of flour & feed at both points.

☞ Promt shipments made by boat to all points along the Red Lake River.

We solicit your orders.

Hanson & Barzen Milling Company.

THE MERCHANTS

State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds, Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.

J. A. DUFFY, Cashier.

The Radny Store:

☞ THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE RADNY STORE.

John has, Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes.

A full and complete line of groceries.

Best brands of flour, at lowest market price

.00

Call and see me for bargains at Raday post office and store.

John Radneskie.

IF YOU WANT TO DO BUSINESS,

With The People Of Eastern Red Lake County,

YOU SHOULD AVERTISE,

IN A PAPER,

THAT THEY TAKE AND READ.

TRY "THE SUNBEAM", WITH AN AD., FOR RESULTS.

Why Pay Cash

WHEN YOU CAN BUY ON

Easy Credit Terms

PIANOS $124.75 UP.

ORGANS $10.00 UP.

SEWING MACHINES $7.50 UP.

STOVES and RANGES $2.10 UP.

HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE Of all kinds at 60 cents up.

IRON and STEEL SAFES, TYPEWRITERS and OFFICE FURNITURE From $6.25 up.

We are the largest manufacturers on earth, have unlimited capital and sell direct from the workshop to the fireside on EASY MONTHLY PAYMENTS to honorable people in all parts of the earth. No other manufacturer will let you use the goods for years while slowly paying for them.

Write for information and Free Catalogue

THE ENGLEWOOD CO.
Consolidated Factories.
51-53 Randolph St, Chicago, Ill., U. S. A

Magnet Power.

The lifting of massive iron and steel plates weighing four, six and twelve tons by magnetism is now done every workday in a number of large steel works. The magnets are suspended by chains from cranes and pick up the plates by simple contact and without the loss of time consequent to the adjustment of chain and hooks in the older method. It is also found that the metal plates can be lifted by the magnets while still so hot that it would be impossible for the men to handle them. A magnet weighing 300 pounds will lift nearly five tons.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

VOTE FOR FORD.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

VIVO flour is the best. Ask your dealer for vivo.

HORSES FOR SALE, at the Plummer livery barn.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar, will cure your cough.

Applicaions to make final proof written free at this office.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar will bring relief to Asthma patients.

Nels Olson, of Garnes was a pleasant caller here to day.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar Do not wait get it at the first indication of cough or cold.

Chas Swanson made a business trip to Thief River Falls Monday, returning Tuesday.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar, is a remedy that cures by removing the cause. Try a 50ct. bottle.

Hommy Bros. have been threshing for Mrs. Shosten and August J. Wentzel this week.

They say politicts are warming up down at Plummer, the boys are all looking for them 37 votes.

The politicians have kept us so busy that we can hardly get time to look up the local news this week.

CATTLE WANTED, Highest market price paid for fat cattle, inquire at this office, or of Chris Larson at Anton Post office.

C.L. Clark has bought the N. E.¼ of section 31 in this township and has built a small house and moved his family into it and will make his home here.

H.T. McAnulty superintendant of schools and candidate for re election, was a caller here Tuesday evening He was accompanyed by P. Sullivan.

There is to be a political meeting at our school house tomorrow evening, but whether it is Republican, Democrat, or the "Square Deal" party we have not learned.

Candidate for register of Deeds Frank Jeffers was a pleasant caller here yesterday. He is making an agressive campaign for re election for Register of Deeds and considers his chances good to win out. Frank is a No. 1 good fellow and a man well qualified for Register of Deeds. give him a vote Nov. 6th.

Mrs. Walt McAndress returned home from Blooming Prairie Minnesota last Saturday, where she has been the past three weeks visiting her Mother, who is not expected to recover, from her ilness. Mrs. Mcandress expects to recieve a message to return there at any time as there is not much hope of her recovery.

Steffen Jordahl and M. E. Hyland were visiting their relatives in this Township, from Saturday to Monday. They made this ofice a plesant call and did not forget to pay an other years subscription to THE SUNBEAM. This makes $5 even that each of these two men have paid us for subscription, after we had delivered the goods, and still they say we are young.

Thomas Jacobson threshed 236 bushel of No. 1 flax from 16 acrs of new breaking, Peat Hunstad theshed 20 bushel of No 1 northern wheat per acre, while Walt McAndress, Henry Arndt, P.C. Wolde, Ole Overum and P. Sullivan all drop into line, with a record of about 16 of wheat and 40 bushels of oats per acre and all on new breaking, so we, guess this part of the country is.

VOTE FOR Jeffers.

DEER PARK DIGS IN.

"THE SQUARE DEAL" CANDIDATES GET A HOIST.

Rhoda Minn. Oct. 23rd, 1906.

Editor of The Sunbeam.

For some reason, or other the patrons of this Post Office and others in this vicinity were presented with a bunch of the "square deal remedy" advertising matter from the Thief River Falls Press last week. After looking it over carefully we found it contained the names and pictures of a lot of fellows that seemed willing to give us a dose of the "Square Deal" remed at the polls on November 6th. But as we are not asking for their remedys we shall not take them, as we have been a resident of this county since its existance and are getting kind of yoused to the climate, and furthermore we have found that the doses prescribed by the present County officials have been prescribed according to law, and to the satisfaction of the tax payers.

Now the "Square deal" remedy is a new thing and it may be a good thing, for Thief River Falls, but for us we prefer the true and tried remedy, with Ford at the head. With Germo, and Jeffers at their places, and Dan on the rear. With this combination we will be sure of haveing everthing that goes towards the interest and welfare of the county and the tax payers. Now as this is all that we are looking for, (and more than we will get if we make a change) therefore let every voter of this county make it a paint to cast his vote on the 6th day of November, for men that we know have a good clean record behind them, and a store of experiences. Remember all this means money saved to the tax payers, and an intelligant voter will not over-look this matter, in his choice for an officer, this is no lottery scheme, its a matter of business, and it means dollars, and cents to the tax payers at the end, one way or an other. And furthermore, we are not in a position, nor are we ready to draw blanks yet. "Hew to the line, let the chips fall where they may."

Don't forget James E. Ford, Jeffers, Germo and Linnehan where you mark your (X) on election day.

A Voter.

POLITICAL PCK-UPS.

We have had a bad tooth ache this weeek and feel rather ugly.

"Keep your eye on Duffey, thres going to be a row." Keep an eye on Duffy we are going to have it now". Say you homesteaders on this Resorvation, has Hunt treated you right? Have we not always stood for the intrest of the people? If you think we have not, go into your booth, November 6th, and vote No X, on evry principal that we have advocated.

It is the field against Thief River Falls.

A farmer made the remark to us today that Stanton was fortuniate in not being much aquainted, as any man that knew him would not vote for him.

"Keep your eye on Duffey, thers going to be a fight." "Keep your eye on Duffey, their going to have it right."

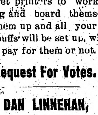
What do you suppose We have been doing up here the past two years, only getting aqainted.

We want to give the "square Deal" candidates such a hoist November 6th, that they will ask the voters of Red Lake County for office the next time they want one.

There are some announcements that have been sent up for publication this week that have not complied with the rules of the office, and did not appear. We trusted Senator Stephens for doing some of this kind of work four years ago and have not got our pay yet. If you know where I can get printers to work for nothing and board themselves send them up and all your political puffs will be set up, whether you pay for them or not.

Request For Votes.

DAN LINNEHAN,



Sheriff of Red Lake County, Candidate for re election.

Your VOTE, and Support Respectfully Solicited.

ALL YOUR FALL NEEDS,

Will be well taken care of, If you come to the

GOLDEN RULE DEPARTMENT STORE,

THIEF RIVER FALLS.

Complete Departments, In CLOTHING, DRY GOODS, LADIES CLOKES, SHOES. Underware, Hats and Caps, all kinds Rubber goods, and Sheeplined Coats, and Don't Forget our GROCERY DEPARTMENT. We buy all kinds of farm produce.

O. J. SCHEI & CO., Props.

Vote For Germo.

FRED RICHARDS.

Black River Township.

Republican Candidate for Superintendant of Schools.

Respecitfully Solicits your vote and suppor November 6th.

JOSEPH PERRAULT

CLERK OF THE DISTRICT COURT

Respectfully solicits your vote and support at the general election on November 6, 1906

H. T. McAnulty

Supt. H.T. McAnulty wishes to announce to the voters of Red Lake County, that he is a candidate for re election. Mr. McAnulty is serving his first term as Supt. of schools. He has received only $87.50 a month, and has paid all his own traveling expenses. He has visited nearly every school in the county twice each year, and has devoted his entire time and attention to the best interests of the school, and if re-elected will certainly do as well in the future as in the past. He holds a complete state certificate, valid in rural and graded schools of Minnesota.

H.T. McAnulty.

James E. Ford,

Candidate for re-election as County Auditor of Red Lake County, has done his duty as a public official.

VOTE FOR HIM NOV. 6th,

Having served one term as County Attorney, I am asking for a second term, and would deeply appreciate the support of the voters in all parts of the County.

THOMAS GERMO.

I am asking for re-election to the office of Registor of Deeds and would deeply appreaciate the support of the voters in all parts of the County.

FRANK JEFFERS.

MARKS'S LUNG BALSAM, with TAR.

For the cure of all discases of the lungs, throat and chest, as Cough, cold, Asthma, Bronchitis La Grip and will prevent consumption when taken in time.

VOTE FOR GERMO.

Free To Women.

Our handsome catalog of Womens Cloaks, Suits, and Skirts sent free on request, showing all the latest styles. We manufacture our goods and sell direct to customers. Every garment sent subject to examination.

Write now.

MAIL ORDER GARMENT CO.
508 Century Bldg. Minneapolis Minn.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York

Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Oct. 26th, 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minnesota Oct. 23rd, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota, on December 6th, 1906. viz:

Walter H. Quist

H E. No. 1145 Red Lake Series, for the S. E. ¼ Sec. 35, Twp. 154 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Harry Blackie, Charles P. Quist, of Thief River Falls Minn. Emil Sigrud, John Anderson, of Germatown Minnesota.

R.J. Montague, Register.

FOR SALE: One pair of work oxen four years old, well baoke to harness. One work horse, gentle and a good single driver, weight about twelve hundred pounds. One full blooded short horn cow, milk strain, 7 years old. One short horn hieffer calf, four months old, on easy terms, or at a discount for cash. For further particulars, see or write J. A. Hendicks, at Fosston Minn.

ECZEMA and PILE CURE FREE.

Knowing what it was to suffer, I will give FREE OF CHARGE, to any afflicted a positive cure for Eczema, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Piles and Skin Diseases. Instant relief. Don't suffer longer, Write F. W. Williams, 400 Manhattan Avenue, New York. Enclose Stamp.

LAND OFFICE BUSINESS.

U.S. Commissioner L. G. Browning with office located at Thief River Falls, is prepared to take homestead entries final proof etc., within the Crookston U. S. Land District.

Office in News building, three doors south of the post office.

Wanted: Gentleman or lady with good reference, to travel by rail or with a rig, for a firm of $250,000.00 capital. Salary $1,072.00 per year and expenses; salary paid weekly and expenses advanced. Address, with stamp, Jos. A. Alexander, Sunbeam, Minn.

MONEY TO LOAN.

I have money to loan on realestate at 7½ per cent. Payments at the land office made for you when you make final proof.

Special attention given to Notary Public work.

Applications to make final proof written free.

Stephen Singer.
Rhoda Minn.

Subscribe for The Sunbeam.

THE FIRST

STATE BANK, OF

THIEF RIVER FALLS, WILL LOAN YOU THE Money To Make Your Second Payment, or to make your final proof. Give us a call, as we give the best rates

On Farm Loans.

Knudson Singer, Edward Singer,

SINGER BROS.

Dealers In,

WORKING MENS
CLOTHING
MADE IN DULUTH
This line is justly celebrated because they fit and STAND THE WEAR
WE CAN FIT YOU

Groceries, flour & feed.

Dry Goods, Boots & Shoes.

HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR FARM PRODUCE

Rhoda, Minn.

NEW STORE,

AT ANTON MINNESOTA.

Dry Goods, Goceries, Flour & feed.

Fine & Heavy Shoes, of best quality.

EXCLUSIVE AGENTS FOR THE CELEBRATED DE LAVAL CREAM SEPERATOR, IN THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

Any Kind Of Stock Taken In Exchange for Goods.

give me a call.

Located at Anton post office, on the Red Lake River, Eight miles east of Thief River Falls.

Christ Larsen, Proprietor.

NAUGHT COUNTS BUT LOVE

By MAX PEMBERTON

There was a merry company in the parlor of the Castle Inn when the stranger entered there.

He appeared to be a man of some 30 years of age, with a youth's face and a fine figure of his own; upright as a drill sergeant, and with such a pair of eyes that, as Tom Forsyth, who kept the ferry, said afterwards, it was lucky for the maids of Brede that the darkness cloaked them.

Joel, the landlord, looked the traveler up and down, and his fat face took wrinkles of merry fat. He breathed in with satisfaction. Rare was the day when a stranger in a gold-laced vest drew rein at his door. Such men, as a rule, were ferried across the river by Tom Forsyth and rode on to my lord's castle upon the hill. There was no other road from Brede but to my lord's house or to the sea.

After the stranger had retired to the inner parlor, mine host hazarded the opinion to Tom the ferryman that the stranger came with some news of my lord's son, whose ruin in the gaming houses of London had long since ceased to tickle evil tongues.

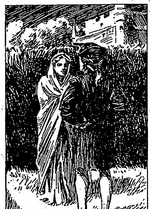
To which Tom Forsyth added the venture that such a visit boded no good to the castle, and that the Lady Alice should know it forthwith. Herein, however, he found no supporters; for, said the wise heads of the company, "'Tis not for the likes of us to put our hands into that kettle;" and so, in lieu of it, they filled the little brown mugs and listened at the inner parlor door and reported every circumstance of the stranger's behavior, as they viewed it through the glass of the inner door.

"He be a-talking to hisself—that's what he be a-doin'—a most unordinary thing," said Roberts, the grocer.

"He be counting his guineas—a sackful, neighbors! 'Tis lucky for he that he lies at an honest house."

In the silence that followed no one noticed that Tom Forsyth had left the room.

But in the meantime he had crossed the river, demanded speech with her ladyship at the castle gate, and now stood in the presence of the Lady Alice.



Every Word That She Spoke Was Like Music in His Ears.

Tom had met her often, riding her black horse upon the road to the sea; but so gracious and stately did she now appear, and above all expectation, beautiful, that hardly did he dare lift his eyes to hers.

She seemed to waft the fragrance of her beauty all about her; her voice was music in his ears; and she was speaking to him, Tom Forsyth, as though he were among the number of her friends.

Finally he found his tongue and blurted out his news.

"We've a visitor down yonder tonight, your ladyship."

"A visitor, Tom?" How the white face flushed at this!

"Yes, your ladyship, and an uncommon queer one, too; not a mug filled, though he's been there an hour or more."

The Lady Alice smiled faintly; then, of a sudden, the blush deepened.

"Tell me about him, Tom; what is he like?"

Tom was no hand at describing another man; but he did his best.

But the Lady Alice appeared no longer to be listening to what he said. Suddenly she put her hand upon his in an impulsive gesture and said in a sweet voice: "Tom, if I may wish to send a message to your stranger, shall I find the ferryboat upon our side in an hour's time?"

Only a curmudgeon could have resisted such a voice.

"Yes, my lady; you send a message."

The full hour passed after Tom reached the ferry before a blue-eyed page boy from the castle came racing down and commanded him to put him across upon the instant. Tom saw the lad disappear behind the lights of the inn; he was gone not above a quarter of an hour when he came racing back again.

It was long after supper, in fact, close to the hour of midnight, when the traveler who had so mystified mine host, Joel, and his satellites, slipped by a side door from the Castle Inn. The moon shone round and full.

He made straight for the ferry and crossed, plying the oar himself. In half an hour's time he was conversing with a cloaked figure without the castle gate. They were speaking of the Lady Alice's brother; but deeper thoughts were unspoken, and would remain so if their destiny willed it.

"You have been generosity itself, Sir Richard," my lady was saying (for it was the Lady Alice herself); "the debt to you is common for us all; it will lie heavily upon my father's shoulders and upon mine. We can never repay, do what we will."

Sir Richard's eyes shone softer in a sudden ray of moonlight that pierced the hedge. Every word that she spoke was like music in his ears.

"No debt is there when the task is of a man's own seeking, Alice. I told you six months ago that our poet, Pope, was right when he said that the greatest study of mankind is man. I have studied men all my life. Your brother Harry was but a human addition to my library. I found the pages blurred and almost undecipherable; but I read them, nevertheless. Here was a fellow creature who had wandered upon all roads for want of a signpost. I began by asking him to rest a little while in my house; I showed the pages of life and the pictures that were to be painted upon them by a man's will and by his industry. I tempted him to begin and to find excitement in the pursuit. When the old gypsy inclination called him away, I was patient, not angry. He would come back, I said. Time justified me, and the months have gleaned the blades of my harvest. Tonight Harry is waiting at Ashford hall for me. My work is done, Alice. I need no man's thanks for a little patience and kindness that have been their own reward. They have given me this opportunity to speak with her to whom I may never speak again until the end of my days."

The Lady Alice made no reply, but she turned away her head. Perhaps there was something in her pretty eyes which she did not wish him to find.

"You are leaving England, Sir Richard?" she asked anew, with her head still averted from him. The tone of her voice nerved him to speak of it.

"A man's country is dear to him only when it gives him that which his heart desires. If I leave England, Alice, it will be because I no longer may hope here. If I go, it will be because there is one at Brede who would visit the sins of the son upon the daughter. I say it only to ask your forgiveness; there is a duty which is above love; let me speak no ill of your father."

And, as they stood together, believing this to be the hour of their farewell, suddenly the alarm bell rang out from the castle, and almost at the same instant they heard a man's voice. "My lord is dying!" he cried to them; "the Lady Alice has left him!"

"You must go to him," said Richard quietly. Though his heart was beating fast, his wit was less sure than my lady's at such a moment.

"Richard, you shall take me," she whispered, refusing to release his hand.

He kissed her gently.

"You are right," he said, "that is wise, dear one; we will go together."

When they entered the courtyard they found the servant beside himself.

"He waked from a dream and asked for your ladyship," he said to the Lady Alice. She pushed him aside; and, still holding Sir Richard's hand, she led the way to the great bedroom, where, upon a couch by the window, they found the lord of the castle lying, pale and insensible.

He had waked from a troubled dream, as old Martin said, and, in violent agitation, had insisted upon his daughter's being summoned to him forthwith. When they searched for her and found her gone, the truth was told to him.

"She is not here, my lord," they said; "and this night Tom Forsyth came up from the inn to speak of a stranger there." And, to their wonder, this master of the oath and the madman's anger spoke no word to them; but, shrinking away as one robbed suddenly of his reason, hid his face and cried: "She was all that I had; God of heaven, forgive!" And then he had fallen prone and they had laid him upon the couch.

Thus the Lady Alice found him, and almost with the touch of her hand my lord roused and recognized her. He gave a cry of joy and, raising himself feebly upon the pillow, put his arm about her and held her to his heart.

"Thou, Alice! they have not taken thee, then?"

"I am here, dear father; they shall never take me from you."

"There is another. Who is it stands there, Alice? Does Harry come to me, then?"

"It is not Harry, father; look again."

"Sir Richard Hardinge—ah, I might have named him. Where, then, is my son?"

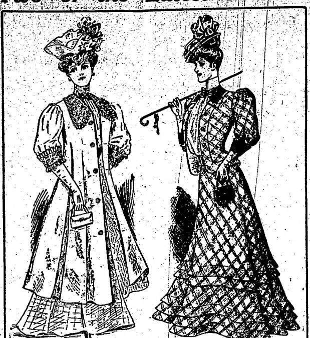
Sir Richard stepped forward and answered for them both: "In my house, earl, waiting for the message which will bring him to your side again. All is well with him."

Silence fell upon the room, a silence restful and satisfying. When the earl next spoke, it was to the daughter whom the night had taught him to love.

"I have learned my lesson," he said, drawing down her face to his own. "Yea, in all the world naught counts but love. Let him take thee, child. And thou wilt not shut an old man out from thy heart, little Alice; therein only would he dwell."

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

Two of the Latest Models.



An Alpaca Coat.—These coats are extremely useful, whether made in light or dark alpaca; they form a very nice wrap without being heavy. Our model is in white alpaca, and has collar and deep cuffs of lace, edged with pleated ribbon, about 1 inch in width; large pearl buttons are used for fastening.

The hat is of tuscan, trimmed with ribbon and small pink flowers.

Materials required for the coat: 3½ yards alpaca 46 inches wide, ¾ yard lace 18 inches wide, 3 yards pleated ribbon, 5 buttons.

Plaid Costume.—This is in shades of gray, with a line of blue running through. The skirt, which touches the ground all round, is trimmed with crossfolds about 2½ inches deep; they are stitched on from the under side, so that they simulate deep tucks.

The smart little jacket fits tightly at sides and back; it is edged all round with a shaped piece that is ornamented with velvet-covered buttons in front. The turnover collar and the cuffs are faced with blue velvet to within 1 inch of the edge. A white lawn blouse, with linen collar and blue tie, are worn with this jacket.

Gray fancy straw hat, trimmed with blue ribbon.

Materials required for the costume: 8 yards 46 inches wide, ⅝ yard velvet 20 inches wide, 3½ yards silk for lining jacket.

OF AID TO HOSTESS

SUGGESTIONS FOR NOVEL AND PLEASING ENTERTAINMENTS.

Spool Party Makes Enjoyable Pastime for a Party of Small Guests—Try a New England Breakfast.

A Spool Party.

This party was certainly a novelty for the 12 little guests who were invited to spend the hours from three to five with the six-year-old hostess. The oldest child asked had passed her ninth birthday, and she proved a decided help in assisting to amuse the younger ones.

First dolls were made by inserting a pasteboard nose in a slit and doing the face with a tiny brush and black paint (ink will do), toothpicks were stuck in slits for arms, and the children were greatly interested in the construction of these wooden men.

Then a bowling alley was made by inverting one end of an ironing board and arranging spools at the other like ten pins. A prize was given to the child making the best score.

Coarse needles and colored twine were provided for a spool stringing contest, with another prize, and when refreshments were served there was a spool-shaped candy box (bought at the favor counter) filled with sugar peppermints for each child to take home. So, good mothers, save your spools if you want to provide something new for your little one's party.

A New England Breakfast.

A hostess who has spent the summer at a Massachusetts coast resort issued invitations for this "Breakfast" to eight of her friends. The hour was half after eleven, and the spread was so unusual to the usual fashionable menu that the guests were delighted. With the exception of a few added frills, the hostess said it was the breakfast which was served her on Sunday mornings by one of the foremost of New England housekeepers. The table was spread with a plain damask cloth, a glass bowl filled with pink and crimson dahlias was centerpiece. There were no candles or artificial light. On either end of the table old-fashioned latticed china fruit dishes stood, filled with various fruits. These were passed, then white cornmeal mush in blue canton bowls was served with cream and sugar, hot rolls, codfish balls, scrambled eggs, Boston baked beans in brown earthenware ramakins and genuine Boston brown bread, followed by hot doughnuts, some cream cookies and coffee, which the hostess poured herself.

After this innovation in gastronomy, the hostess showed a rare collection of New England antiques, heelless slippers, lace collars, some silver spoons, one of which had a much worn point from stirring custards and the handle bore the initials of the "eldest" daughter for many generations and had just come into the possession of the hostess.

A Rose Luncheon.

Pink is always a satisfactory color, both to hostess and guests, and a "Rose" luncheon is the prettiest affair imaginable. The table may be left bare, with individual doilies, or a lace cloth over pink used. A plain white damask cover, with pink rose buds and petals scattered over it is always good. Use pink candles, rose shades in holders of glass or silver, and for the most stunning centerpiece suspend a square basket filled with pink roses and maidenhair fern, with pink satin ribbons or tulle streamers from the overhead light to within about six inches of the table.

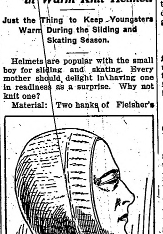
The place cards are pink roses cut from water color paper and painted. Cut them out in rose forms and write half of a rhyme, either original or from "Mother Goose," on it. In the drawing-room hand the guest a slip of paper containing the other half. In this way the seats at table are found. The nut holders and ice cream or ice cases are made of pink paper in rose shapes. The cases for the cream standing on three wires twisted together and covered with green paper to make legs; these are very dainty. As girls sometimes talk personalities and tell things best untold, a huge American beauty rose was suspended over the dining-room in token of the fact that such was the ancient custom in Greece, the rose being the emblem of secrecy, hence our oft used term, sub-rosa.

MADAME MERRI.

Comfort for the Boy in Warm Knit Helmet.

Just the Thing to Keep Youngsters Warm During the Sliding and Skating Season.

Helmets are popular with the small boy for sliding and skating. Every mother should delight in having one in readiness as a surprise. Why not knit one?



Boy's Knit Helmet.

Material: Two hanks of Fleisher's knitting worsted (any color desired); five steel needles No. 12.

Cast on 56 stitches. Knit back and forward for about five inches. This forms half of the cape. Repeat this for the other half of the cape.

Now divide the stitches on four needles and join as is done in making a stocking. Knit 2, purl 2, for about three or four inches. This forms the neck.

For the open face leave 28 stitches in the middle of the front cape. The remainder of the stitches (84), knit forward and back, same as was done in the cape, for 90 needles (45 ridges).

Bind off 28 stitches on each side of the 85; knit the 28 left on the needles for 56 needles (28 ridges); bind off and sew them to the sides.

Take up all the stitches around the face of the hood and add those left on the fourth needle; knit two, purl two for 20 rows. Bind off.

HAD CONSIDERED THE POINT.

Juryman's Explanation Somewhat of a Joke on Judge.

A lawyer in the western part of Massachusetts having a rather desperate case to defend, called the court's attention to the wording of the statute, empowering the jury to "judge of the law as well as of the facts," and requested him to instruct accordingly. The judge somewhat reluctantly did so, adding, however, that the jurymen should accept his interpretation of the principles involved unless they were fully satisfied that they knew more law than he did.

In spite of this, an outrageous verdict was brought in, utterly contrary to the instructions of the judge, who severely rebuked the jurors.

The foreman, a horny-handed farmer, rose to reply. "Jedge," said he, "weren't we to jedge the law as well as the facts?"

"Certainly," was the response, "but I told you not to judge the law unless you were satisfied that you knew the law better than I did."

"Well, jedge," answered the farmer, as he shifted his quid, "we considered that p'int."

TERRIBLE SCALP HUMOR.

Badly Affected with Sores and Crusts—Extended Down Behind the Ears—Another Cure by Cuticura.

"About ten years ago my scalp became badly affected with sore and itching humors, crusts., etc., and extended down behind the ears. My hair came out in places, also. I was greatly troubled; understood it was eczema. Tried various remedies so called, without effect. Saw your Cuticura advertisement, and got the Cuticura Remedies at once. Applied them as to directions, etc., and after two weeks I think, of use, was clear as a whistle. I have to state also that late last fall, October and November, 1904, I was suddenly afflicted with a bad eruption, painful and itching pustules over the lower part of the body. I suffered dreadfully. In two months, under the skillful treatment of my doctor, conjoined with Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, I found myself cured. H. M. F. Weiss, Rosemond, Christian Co., Ill., Aug. 31, 1905."

Worry Postal Authorities.

Because the postal administration has imposed a duty of five pfennigs instead of two on postal cards intended for urban delivery, the citizens of Hanover have inaugurated a singular strike against the postal authorities. Instead of writing postal cards, they all write letters, and, not satisfied with sending their effusions in an envelope, they fill it with newspaper so as to bring the weight of the letter to the maximum of 250 grams. As the envelopes they now use are of the maximum size tolerated it is easy to obstruct a letter box with only a dozen of such missives. The postal authorities are alarmed at this obstruction of the postal service, and it is probable that the former tariff of two pfennigs on postal cards will have to be reestablished.

Gasoline and Alcohol.

The greater safety of alcohol, as compared with gasoline for commercial uses, is due to the fact that it will not ignite from pure radiated heat, as gasoline does; that water will extinguish burning alcohol while it will only spread a fire of gasoline, and that the flames of burning alcohol radiates very little heat while that of gasoline radiates heat very rapidly.

Denatured Alcohol.

Denatured alcohol is used in a hat factory at Manchester, England. The manufacturers use the spirit, recover it, and restill the product in their own factory, and use it over again until it is used up.

A FOOD CONVERT.

Good Food the True Road to Health.

The pernicious habit some persons still have of relying on nauseous drugs to relieve dyspepsia, keeps up the patent medicine business and helps keep up the army of dyspeptics.

Indigestion — dyspepsia — is caused by what is put into the stomach in the way of improper food, the kind that so taxes the strength of the digestive organs they are actually crippled.

When this state is reached, to resort to stimulants is like whipping a tired horse with a big load. Every additional effort he makes under the lash increases his loss of power to move the load.

Try helping the stomach by leaving off heavy, greasy, indigestible food and take on Grape-Nuts—light, easily digested, full of strength for nerves and brain, in every grain of it. There's no waste of time nor energy when Grape-Nuts is the food.

"I am an enthusiastic user of Grape-Nuts and consider it an ideal food," writes a Maine man:

"I had nervous dyspepsia and was all run down and my food seemed to do me but little good. From reading an adv. I tried Grape-Nuts food, and after a few weeks' steady use of it, felt greatly improved.

"Am much stronger, not nervous now, and can do more work without feeling so tired, and am better every way.

"I relish Grape-Nuts best with cream and use four heaping teaspoonfuls at a meal. I am sure there are thousands of persons with stomach trouble who would be benefited by using Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

A Wonderful Discovery

It has been the aim of scientists for years to find some liquid preparation which would possess anodyne, astringent and antiseptic properties and yet be of such a consistency that it would penetrate, first, through the skin, then through the muscles and finally to the very bones, exerting on its way down, healing and pain destroying properties.

Max R. Zaegel Ph. G.

Max R. Zaegel, a graduate of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy, established at Sheboygan, Wis., as a chemist for the last 23 years, has discovered this long sought secret.

FREE
SAMPLE

It consists of a mixture of vegetable and mineral oils forming an amber colored liquid of pleasant odor and taste, which, when used as directed, restores vitality and strength and gives prompt relief to all pain.

Applied to cuts, sores, burns and bruises it heals, as owing to its antiseptic properties, no pus or matter can form in any wound where this wonderful oil is used.

If you have rheumatism, piles, pain in back or catarrh, write Mr. Zaegal and he will be pleased to mail you a sample bottle free.

Address your letter to M. R. Zaegel & Co., 180 Main St., Sheboygan, Wis.

It is free now, so do not fail to write to-day, stating the nature of your complaint.

SICK HEADACHE

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively cured by these Little Pills. They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.

SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature

Brent Good

REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

W. L. DOUGLAS

$3.50 & $3.00 Shoes

BEST IN THE WORLD

W.L.Douglas $4 Gilt Edge line cannot be equalled at any price

To Shoe Dealers: W. L. Douglas' Jobbing House is the most complete in this country Send for Catalog
SHOES
ESTABLISHED 1876
CAPITAL $2,500,000

SHOES FOR EVERYBODY AT ALL PRICES.
Men's Shoes, $5 to $1.50. Boys' Shoes, $3 to $1.25. Women's Shoes, $4.00 to $1.50. Misses' & Children's Shoes, $2.25 to $1.00.
Try W. L. Douglas Women's, Misses and Children's shoes; for style, fit and wear they excel other makes.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer, and are of greater value than any other make.

Wherever you live, you can obtain W. L. Douglas shoes. His name and price is stamped on the bottom, which protects you against high prices and inferior shoes. Take no substitute. Ask your dealer for W. L. Douglas shoes and insist upon having them.

Fast Color Eyelets used; they will not wear brassy. Write for Illustrated Catalog of Fall Styles.
W. L. DOUGLAS, Dept. 12, Brockton, Mass.

YOU CANNOT

CURE

all inflamed, ulcerated and catarrhal conditions of the mucous membrane such as nasal catarrh, uterine catarrh caused by feminine ills, sore throat, sore mouth or inflamed eyes by simply dosing the stomach.

But you surely can cure these stubborn affections by local treatment with

Paxtine Toilet Antiseptic

which destroys the disease germs, checks discharges, stops pain, and heals the inflammation and soreness.

Paxtine represents the most successful local treatment for feminine ills ever produced. Thousands of women testify to this fact. 50 cents at druggists.

Send for Free Trial Box

THE R. PAXTON CO., Boston, Mass.

THEY CURE ANÆMIA

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the Most Successful Remedy for All Forms of Debility.

Anæmia, whether it results from actual loss of blood, from lack of nutrition due to stomach trouble, or whatever its cause, is simply a deficiency of the vital fluid. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood. They do that one thing and they do it well.

"As a girl," says Mrs. Jessie Fink, of 180 East Mill street, Akron, Ohio, "I suffered from nervous indigestion and when I was eighteen years old I was reduced in weight to 93 pounds. I was anæmic, nervous, couldn't eat or sleep, was short of breath after the least exertion and had headaches almost constantly. I had a doctor, of course, but I might as well have taken so much water for all the good his medicine did me. Finally my vitality and strength were so reduced that I had to take to my bed for several weeks at a time. I could not digest any solid food and for weeks I did not take any other nourishment than a cup of tea or beef broth.

"While I was sick in bed I read of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I stopped all other medicine and began to take the pills. Soon my improvement was very noticeable. My strength began to return, my stomach gave me no pain and just as soon as I began to take solid food I gained in weight. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills certainly saved my life. I am now perfectly well, have regained my normal weight of 120 pounds and I think Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a wonderful medicine."

These celebrated pills are recommended for stubborn stomach trouble, for all cases of weakness and debility, such as result from fevers and other acute diseases. All druggists sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, or they will be sent by mail postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

DEER FEED ON PEACHES.

Connecticut Farmers Restive Under Depredations.

While the Connecticut farmer is sleeping snugly curled up in his best mortgage, along comes a mild-eyed and wild-toothed deer and drags from the sagging limbs bushel after bushel of peaches. Statistics as to the capacity of a deer's stomach not being at hand, it is impossible to estimate the exact amount of damage per deer per peach per farmer, but the total is so much that the attorney general of the state was appealed to to decide whether or not peaches are crops, says the Boston Advertiser. He says they are, and the farmers are beginning to try to collect damages from the state, which protects the deer until 1911. As a matter of fact, and aside from considerations of peach advertising, the animus of the agitation undoubtedly is the restiveness of the Connecticut smooth bore, which rusts on the wall, waiting for a snack of venison. Undoubtedly there will be introduced into the legislature of Connecticut this fall bills looking toward the opening of the deer season before 1911. The Connecticut farmer (backed by those city folks who are making use of him to further their own ends) would rather get a shot at the deer than to continue to get from the state in damages a better price than he could ever get for his peaches in the market.

A WOMAN'S KIDNEYS.

Women have much to do, so many pains to suffer, so many critical periods to go through, that it is important to keep the kidneys well, and avoid the backache, bearing-down pain, headache, dizziness, languor and other common signs of weak kidneys. Mrs. Charles E. Smith, of 22 Boyden St., Woonsocket, R. I., says: "My kidneys were weak from childhood, and for eight or ten years past my back was very painful and I had many annoying symptoms besides. When I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills I weighed only 120. To-day I weigh 165, and am in better health than for years. Doan's Kidney Pills have been my only kidney medicine during four years past. They bring me out of every attack."

Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Rulers Look for "Rainy Day."

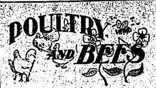
Nearly all European kings and queens have money invested in foreign countries. Every year the czar and czarine of Russia intrust a large portion of their private savings to the British and French national banks. King Leopold, of Belgium, has a universal reputation, and not an enviable one, as Leopold & Co., rubber merchants. He founded the Congo Free State and is one of the largest rubber and ivory dealers in the world. He is also one of the cleverest of financiers, and knows his way about all the bourses of Europe. King George of Greece speculates largely in agricultural products, follows carefully all the fluctuations of the financial markets and is assiduous in putting his money into good things. The sultan of Turkey declines to trust any Turkish bank with his savings, which are nearly all deposited in British banks.

Russia To-day.

The Marquis de Custine once defined the Russian government as "an absolute monarchy tempered by assassination." The present situation is described by Constantin Waliszewski as "an anarchy, tempered by a state of siege."

Woman Bank President.

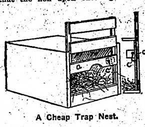
Mrs. Elizabeth Davidson, of York Harbor, Me., on the death of her husband, assumed his duties of president of the National bank of the county.



SIMPLE TRAP NEST.

Gives Good Satisfaction at Ontario Agricultural College.

The design of a trap nest shown herewith is used by the Ontario agricultural college and is well recommended as being very effective. The door is adjusted just low enough so that the hen upon entering brushes against it slightly and thus raising it, allows the hook, c, to drop back, releasing the door. The nest is 12 inches wide, 12 inches high and 15 inches long. The door, a, is made of very light material, so that it will be pushed upward as the hen enters the nest. To set the nest the door is raised and the hook caught slightly under one of the slats, as illustrated. Trap nests are useful if you wish to keep track of the laying records of your different hens.



A Cheap Trap Nest.

MARKETING LIVE POULTRY.

Some Points to Consider to Secure the Best Returns.

In all large cities there is a constant demand throughout the year for all kinds of live poultry. A large proportion of this live stock is absorbed by the Jewish trade, as orthodox Jews will not use meat of any kind unless it is killed by a certain method under the direction of a rabbi. Each large market has a slaughter house, where animals and birds are slaughtered according to these prescribed rites. The best prices for live poultry are secured at the time of the Jewish holidays, the dates of which vary from year to year. They can be ascertained through any commission house or dealer.

Occasionally the price of live poultry is as high as for dressed stock, and under these conditions it is a waste of time to dress the birds before shipment. This is particularly true if the market is near at hand, as the birds will not shrink much when being shipped but a short distance.

For shipping live poultry to market well-constructed crates are particularly desirable, says the Montreal Herald. They should be of sufficient size to avoid causing discomfort to the birds, yet small enough to permit easy handling by expressmen and others. Long crates should be equipped with solid cross partitions to prevent the birds being thrown together at one end when the crate is tipped in handling. Failure to observe this simple precaution often results in the loss of a number of birds in each shipment. All crates should be thoroughly ventilated, as in crowded express cars they are frequently piled one above another, and many birds are smothered in this way.

AVOID MEDICINES.

Poor Practice to Dope Fowls to Keep Away Disease.

Some people follow the practice of putting medicine in the drinking water of the fowls. They imagine that it is keeping away disease. As well think of putting medicine in the drinking water of human beings. We know that the way to keep any creature healthy is to give that creature good living conditions and good food, with sunlight and exercise. If that will not induce a body to remain healthy nothing else will.

'I always avoid the use of drugs in the water that is given the fowls, and I have no faith in them at all, says a writer in Farmers' Review. Some say put them in to kill the germs. If the germs are about, boil the water and that will kill them without injuring the intestines of the fowls. The membranes of the fowls are very tender, anyway, and I imagine that they are very easily hurt. I am certain that much injury has been done first and last by putting powerful drugs in the food and drink of the poultry. Medicines should be used only when the fowls are sick and not when they are well. I have not much faith in them even when the fowls are sick.

Don't Be In a Hurry.

I would advise producers not to demoralize the market by rushing in their honey too early; and also shipping to unknown parties, writes a beekeeper in Farm Journal. I have always found sale for my crop near home. I should rather give my neighbors the benefit of low prices, than to ship and be compelled to make a low price.

Sunflower Seeds.

Feed sunflower seeds occasionally, but never more than three times a week. Being so rich in oil, they tend to cause shedding of feathers. Linseed meal being of the same nature, should be used in the same way. When hens are slow to moult at the proper time, hasten the process by these foods.

LIGHT VS. DARK HONEY.

The Flavor of the Latter Is Preferred by Some.

While those of cultivated taste, who are wonted to the very best that the culinary art can give us, much prefer and praise only the lighter grades of honey, like that from basswood, clover, alfalfa, white and black sage and the mesquite, yet there are others—and I have known not a few such—who prefer and always select the dark honey when they can get it, says Prof. A. J. Cook, in California Cultivator. Such people prefer the flavor which is always present in the darker grades of honey. I have one friend, a college professor and long a colleague, who always preferred buckwheat honey, and laid in his supply in the late fall when he could get this kind. While I was glad to supply him this, I always laughed at him and expressed surprise at his taste. The golden rod honey and other honey from the autumn wild flowers in the east, though not quite as dark as that from the buckwheat, are highly colored and somewhat pungent in flavor. Here belongs the amber honey of our wild buckwheat of California. While most will prefer the white grades of honey and others who will prefer honey of the darkest hue, like buckwheat, the wideawake beekeeper will be on the sharpest lookout for customers, especially of these latter classes, for thus he may gain a market for all kinds of honey at good prices. If a person thinks that buckwheat honey is the best, or if he prefers the amber-colored honeys, he will make no objection to paying the best market price for honeys of these grades. The friend I referred to above never objected to giving me a first-class price for buckwheat honey. Indeed, it would hardly be consistent to claim that a honey is first-class or of the best quality and yet request that a lower price be asked for it.

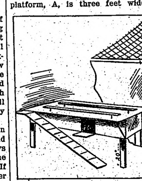
Another point of interest in this relation has to do with the grading of honey. The up-to-date beekeeper will see to it that his honey is kept by itself, for it will always bring the highest figures in the market. Later in the season, as the bees commence to gather from sources which give amber colored honey, the whiter grades will all be extracted that the amber honey may be kept by itself. In this way the grade of the lighter honey will not be lowered. In California the beekeeper cannot be too careful in extracting to keep his sage and alfalfa honey entirely separate from that from the wild buckwheat. It is even more important that the still darker buckwheat honey be kept by itself. It is hardly necessary to suggest that these darger grades of honey are just as suitable for wintering the bees as is any that is produced. Thus it behooves the beekeeper to extract the lighter honey and let the bees fill up the combs with the darker varieties in the later part of the season for their own food during the winter.

With the beekeeper, as with those in any department of agriculture, it is important to grade carefully. There are few points which the beekeeper should study with more thoroughness than that of grading. If he is producing extracted honey he has only color to guide him in making up his grades. If, on the other hand, he is working for comb honey, then he must have a lookout not only for color, but for the number of uncapped cells, completeness of the sections and the general appearance of the same.

ROOSTS AND NESTS.

Here Is a Good Arrangement for the Poultry House.

The nests are about 14 inches square and 20 inches above the floor. The platform, A, is three feet wide by seven feet six inches long, the roosts being of the same length and 22 inches by two. For heavy breeds to enable them to reach the roost more easily a board to serve as a step should be fastened by means of hinges either to the partition wall or to the platform.



Plan of Roosts and Nests.

BEES AND POULTRY.

Plum trees planted in the poultry yard benefit both tree and hens.

Honey that is sealed will stand much more dampness than that which is unsealed.

Nothing will make hens lay more eggs and develop young pullets faster than green cut bone.

All propolis, or bee glue, should be carefully removed from each section. This is easiest done with an old table knife.

The honey should be piled a few inches off the floor, and a little out from the wall; otherwise that near the bottom and side of the room will accumulate moisture.

More sour milk than you know what to do with? Set a panful of it where the hens can get at it, and see how quickly it will disappear. You couldn't put it to a better use. The hens can turn it almost directly into eggs.—Farm Journal.

You can do your dyeing in half an hour with PUTNAM FADELESS DYES. Ask your druggist.

Did you ever hear of a man falling in love with a woman's intellect?

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Don't accuse men of acting the fool; perhaps they are not really acting.

Stiffness, Stitches, Lameness, Cramp all decamp when you apply St. Jacobs Oil.

American Autos Abroad.

During the 12 months ended June 30, 1906, the value of American automobiles exported was $3,497,016, which is $1,000,000 more than during the previous year. England took the greatest proportion, $194,709, with British North America second, Mexico third and France fourth.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists. Price, 75c. per bottle.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Novelist Avenged Dog's Death.

Gabriele d'Annunzio has erected a monument to his dog. The inscription is long, beginning: "Sacred to the imperishable memory of my greatest and most faithful friend." The dog was killed by a peasant some months ago. The novelist prosecuted the man, who, at the trial, at Florence, said that he killed the dog because it worried his hens. The author had engaged the services of two notable councilors, at an expense of $1,000, to prosecute. He won, and the peasant was sentenced to ten days' imprisonment.

Had Church Roof Fixed.

Miles Finlen, the rich Montana copper miner, visited some relatives in Bay City, Mich., recently. He attended services in an old wooden church, and while there a rainstorm came up. The roof leaked, and some water fell on Finlen's neck. After the services had ended he asked one of the church officials: "Why in blazes don't you give people a decent place to worship in?" "I suspect it's because we haven't the money," was the suggestive reply. Next afternoon material for a new roof began to arrive in front of the church and Finlen walked into the pastor's study with a check for $750. "Fix up your old roof," is all he said.—Indianapolis News.

Mrs. Craigie's Address.

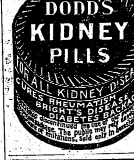
An amusing story of the late Mrs. Craigie, the noted novelist, was told the other day at the Author's club in New York.

"When Mrs. Craigie was in America last year," said the editor, "she was invited to make an address at a certain meeting. She accepted the invitation, but her name, through some oversight, was put far down on the programme, and worse than that, the chairman, a rather stupid person, introduced before her some speakers who were not on the programme at all.

"In short, it was close on to 11 o'clock when the chairman, with a pleasant smile, bowed and said:

"'Mrs. Craigie, the eminent author of "Some Emotions and a Moral," will now give us her address.'

"Mrs. Craigie rose and said, calmly: "My address is No. 56 Lancaster Gate, Hyde Park, W., London, and I now wish you all good-night, for I am far from home."

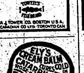


MAKE EVERY DAY COUNT—
no matter how bad the weather.
You cannot afford to be without a
TOWER'S WATERPROOF OILED SUIT OR SLICKER
When you buy look for the SIGN OF THE FISH
A. J. TOWER CO. BOSTON U.S.A.
TOWER CANADIAN CO LTD TORONTO CAN.

A Positive CURE FOR CATARRH

Ely's Cream Balm

is quickly absorbed.
Gives Relief at Once.



It cleanses, soothes, heals and protects the diseased membrane. It cures Catarrh and drives away a Cold in the Head quickly. Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. Full size 50 cts. at Druggists or by mail; Trial size 10 cts. by mail.
Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

OPERATIONS AVOIDED

Two Grateful Letters from Women Who Avoided Serious Operations.—Many Women Suffering from Like Conditions Will Be Interested.

Margrite Ryan
Margret Merkley

When a physician tells a woman, suffering from female trouble, that an operation is necessary it, of course, frightens her.

The very thought of the operating table and the knife strikes terror to her heart. As one woman expressed it, when told by her physician that she must undergo an operation, she felt that her death knell had sounded.

Our hospitals are full of women who are there for just such operations!

It is quite true that these troubles may reach a stage where an operation is the only resource, but such cases are much rarer than is generally supposed, because a great many women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after the doctors had said an operation must be performed. In fact, up to the point where the knife must be used to secure instant relief, this medicine is certain to help.

The strongest and most grateful statements possible to make come from women who, by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, have escaped serious operations.

Margrite Ryan, Treasurer of St. Andrew's Society, Indianapolis, Ind., writes of her cure as follows:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I cannot find words to express my thanks for the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did me. The doctor said I could not get well unless I had an operation for the trouble from which I suffered. I knew I could not stand the strain of an operation and made up my mind I would be an invalid for life. Hearing how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had saved other women from serious operations I decided to try it, and in less than four months I was entirely cured; and words fail to express my thankfulness."

Miss Margret Merkley, of 275 3d Street, Milwaukee, Wis., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Loss of strength, extreme nervousness, severe shooting pains through the pelvic organs, cramps, bearing-down pains, and an irritable disposition compelled me to seek medical advice. The doctor, after making an examination, said that I had a serious female trouble and ulceration, and advised an operation as my only hope. To this I strongly objected—and I decided as a last resort to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"To my surprise the ulceration healed, all the bad symptoms disappeared, and I am once more strong, vigorous and well; and I cannot express my thanks for what it has done for me."

Serious feminine troubles are steadily on the increase among women—and before submitting to an operation every woman should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and write Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. for advice.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been curing the worst forms of female complaints, all functional troubles, inflammation, ulceration, falling and displacement, weakness, irregularities, indigestion and nervous prostration. Any woman who could read the many grateful letters on file in Mrs. Pinkham's office would be convinced of the efficiency of her advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Ask Mrs. Pinkham's Advice—A Woman Best Understands a Woman's Ills.

How to Save DOLLARS in Cooking and Heating

It has cost many stove users HUNDREDS OF WASTED DOLLARS to find this out.
Cut out this Coupon and mail to us and we will solve this problem for you. You will get all this information FREE.

GARLAND STOVES AND RANGES
"The World's Best"

Sold by Leading Dealers Everywhere

FREE INFORMATION COUPON
WRITE PLAINLY and only on ONE SIDE OF THE PAPER.
Address Manager Advice Department
THE MICHIGAN STOVE COMPANY, Detroit, Mich.
Largest Makers of Stoves and Ranges in the World.
A STOVE or RANGE to meet the wants of all—also a complete line Garland Gas Ranges.
No attention can be given to your letter unless this coupon, fully filled out, is attached.

42

Send me free of charge your Stove Book on

Cast Ranges	Base Burners
Steel Ranges	Heating Stoves
Cook Stoves	Oak Stoves
Gas Ranges	Gas Heaters

Also your Expert Stove Advice free of charge.
Indicate this way (X) the kind of stove or range wanted.

My stove dealer's name __________
My Name __________
Address __________
State __________

NO MORE MUSTARD PLASTERS TO BLISTER.
THE SCIENTIFIC AND MODERN EXTERNAL COUNTER-IRRITANT.

CAPISICUM VASELINE

EXTRACT OF THE CAYENNE PEPPER PLANT

A QUICK, SURE, SAFE AND ALWAYS READY CURE FOR PAIN.—PRICE 15c.—IN COLLAPSIBLE TUBES—AT ALL DRUGGISTS AND DEALERS, OR BY MAIL ON RECEIPT OF 15c. IN POSTAGE STAMPS. DON'T WAIT TILL THE PAIN COMES—KEEP A TUBE HANDY.

A substitute for and superior to mustard or any other plaster, and will not blister the most delicate skin. The pain-allaying and curative qualities of the article are wonderful. It will stop the toothache at once, and relieve Headache and Sciatica. We recommend it as the best and safest external counter-irritant known, also as an external remedy for pains in the chest and stomach and all Rheumatic, Neuralgic and Gouty complaints. A trial will prove what we claim for it, and it will be found to be invaluable in the household and for children. Once used no family will be without it. Many people say "it is the best of all your preparations." Accept no preparation of vaseline unless the same carries our label, as otherwise it is not genuine. SEND YOUR ADDRESS AND WE WILL MAIL OUR VASELINE PAMPHLET WHICH WILL INTEREST YOU.

CHESEBROUGH MFG. CO.
17 STATE STREET, NEW YORK CITY

Enameline NO DUST DIRT SLOP SPILL NO SMOKE SMELL MUSS OR SPATTER
STOVE POLISH

That Cough makes your life a burden.

Johnson's Anodyne Liniment

dropped on sugar will cure it, and cure as well colds, cramps and all throat troubles. For Internal as much as for External use. 25c., three times as much 50c. All dealers.
I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

GRINDERS THAT GRIND
Ask for Catalog ST-178
FAIRBANKS, MORSE & CO., Minneapolis, Minn.

LIVE STOCK AND MISCELLANEOUS ELECTROTYPES
In great variety for sale at the lowest prices by A. N. KELLOGG NEWSPAPER CO., 73 W. Adams St., Chicago

$25,000.00 FOR AGENTS. Pleasant work among your friends, frequent sales, large commissions, and big prizes for all. Address Dept. 15 X, 11 E. 24th St., N. Y. City.

THE INVENTIONS OF HAWKINS

By EDGAR FRANKLIN

THE ALMOST-PERPETUAL MOTOR

My wife is averse to widowhood. Lately she exacted my solmen pledge not to assist Hawkins with any more of his diabolical inventions.

For a similar reason, his own good lady drew me aside a few evenings since, and insisted upon my promising to use every means, physical force included, which might prevent her "Herbert" from experimenting further with his motor.

Hawkins hadn't favored me with any confidences about the motor, and at the first opportunity I indicated with brutal directness that none was desired.

Hawkins inquired with frigid asperity as to my meaning; but the very iciness of his manner satisfied me that he understood perfectly, and, believing that he was sufficiently offended to keep entirely to himself all details of his machine—whatever it might be—I breathed more easily.

Some of these days one of Hawkins' inventions is going to take him on a personally conducted tour to a quiet little grave, and I have no wish to learn the itinerary beforehand.

Now, bitter experience has taught me that eternal vigilance is the price of freedom from complicity with the mechancal contrivances of Hawkins, and I should have been suspicious. Yet when Hawkins appeared Sunday morning and asked me to go for a little jaunt up the Hudson in his launch, I accepted with guileless good faith.

His launch was—perhaps it is still—the neatest of neat little pleasure boats, and when we left the house I anticipated several hours of keen enjoyment.

Crossing Riverside Drive, it struck me that Hawkins was hurrying, but the balmy air, the sunshine, and the beautiful sweep of river filled my mind with infinite peace, and it was not until we had descended to the little dock that I smelled anything suggestive of rat.

Hawkins climbed into the launch, and I smiled benignly on him as I handed down the lunch and our overcoats. I had just finished passing them over when I stopped smiling so suddenly that it jarred my facial muscles.

"Where has the engine gone?" I demanded.

"That engine, Griggs," responded Hawkins, pleasantly, "has gone where all other steam engines will go within the next two years—into the scrap heap."

"Which very cheerful prophecy means—"

"It means, my dear boy, that before you stands the first full-sized working model of the Hawkins A. P. motor, patent applied for!"

The inventor flicked off a waterproof cover and exposed to view in the stern of the launch what looked like an inverted wash-boiler. At first glance it appeared to be merely a dome of heavy steel, bolted to a massive bed-plate, but I didn't spend much time examining the thing.

"There, Griggs," began Hawkins, triumphantly, "in that small—"

"Hawkins," I cried, desperately, "you get out of that boat! Get out of it, I say! Come home with me at once. I'm not going to be mixed up in any more of your wretched trial-trips. Come on, or I'll drag you out!"

Hawkins eyed me coldly for a minute, admonished me not to be an ass, and went on untying the launch.

He is stronger and heavier than I. Frankly, had I meditated such a course seriously, I couldn't have hoisted him out of his boat.

If I had ever studied medicine, I suppose I should have known how to stun Hawkins from above without killing him, but I have never even seen the inside of a hospital.

Again, could I have conjured up any plausible charge, I might have called a policeman and requested him to incarcerate Hawkins; at the moment, however, I was a bit too flustered for such refined strategy.

Obviously, I couldn't prevent Hawkins testing his motor, but my heart quaked at the idea of accompanying him.

On the other hand, it quaked quite as much before the prospect of returning to his wife and admitting that I had allowed Hawkins to sail away alone with his accursed motor.

If I went with him, a relatively easy death by drowning was about the best I could expect. If I didn't, his wife—

I stepped down into the launch.

"Coming, are you?" observed Hawkins. "Quite the sensible thing to do, Griggs. You'll never regret it."

"God knows, I hope not," I sighed.

"Now, in the first place, I may as well call your attention again to the motor. The A. P. stands for 'almost perpetual'—good name, isn't it? You don't know much about chemistry, Griggs, or I could make the whole proposition clear to you. The great point about my motor, however, is that she's run by a fluid somewhat similar to gasoline—another of the distillation products of petroleum, in fact—which, having been exploded, passes into my new and absolutely unique catalytic condensers, where it is returned to its original molecular structure and run back into the reservoir.

"Hence," finished Hawkins, dramatically, "the fuel retains its chemical integrity indefinitely, and, as it circulates automatically through the motor, the little engine will run for months at a time without a particle of attention. Is that quite clear?"

"Perfectly," I lied.

"All right. Now I'll show you how she starts," smiled the inventor, opening with a key a little door in the wash-boiler and lighting a match.

"Careful, Hawkins, careful," I ventured, backing toward the cabin.

"My dear fellow," he sneered, "can you not grasp that in an engine of this construction, there is absolutely no danger of any kind of explo—"

Just then a heavy report issued from the wash-boiler. A sheet of flame seemed to flash from the little opening and precipitate Hawkins into my arms.

At any rate, he landed there with a violent shock, and I clutched him tightly, and tried to steady the launch.

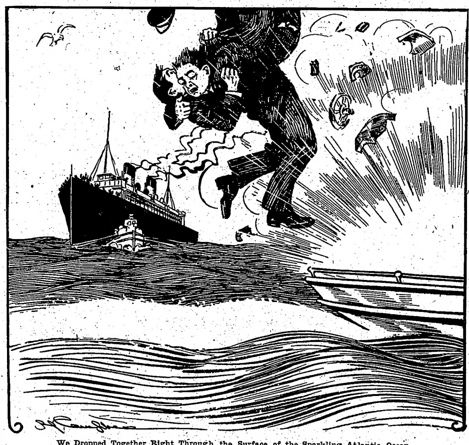
"Leggo! Leggo!" he screamed. "Let me go, you idiot! It always does that! It's working now."

He was right. The launch was churning up a peculiarly serpentine wake, and the motor was buzzing furiously.

Hawkins dived toward his machinery, tinkered it with nervous haste for a little, and finally managed to head the boat down stream just as a collision with the Palisades seemed inevitable.

"Really, Griggs," he remarked, smoothing down his ruffled feathers, "you mustn't interfere with me like that again. We might have hit something that time."

"We did come near uprooting that cliff," I admitted.



We Dropped Together Right Through the Surface of the Sparkling Atlantic Ocean.

Hawkins thereupon ignored me for a period of three minutes. Then his temper returned and he began a discourse on the virtues of his motor.

It was long and involved and utterly unintelligible, I think, to anyone save Hawkins. It lasted until we had passed the Battery and were in the shadow of Governor's Island.

Then it seemed time for me to remark:

"We're going to turn back pretty soon, aren't we, Hawkins?"

"Turn back? What for?"

"Well, if we're going up the Hudson, we can't run much farther in this direction."

"Hang the Hudson!" smiled the inventor. "We'll go down around Sandy Hook eat our lunch, and be back in the city at two, sharp. Why, Griggs, this is no scow. What speed do you suppose this motor can develop?"

"I give it up."

"One hundred knots an hour!"

"Indeed?"

"Confound it! You don't believe it, do you?" snapped Hawkins, who must have read my thoughts. "Well, she can make it easy. I'll just start her up to show you."

Argument with Hawkins is futile. I saved my breath on the chance of finding better use for it later on.

Hawkins unlocked his little door, fished around in the machinery, and fastened the door again with a calm smile.

Simultaneously, the launch seemed to leap from the water in its anxiety to get ahead. For a few seconds it quivered from end to end. Then it settled down at a gait that actually made me gasp.

I am not positive that we made 100 knots to the hour, but I do know that I never traveled in an express train that hastened as did that poor launch when the Hawkins A. P. motor began to push it through the water.

An account of our trip down the Narrows and into the lower bay would be interesting, but extraneous. Hawkins sat erect beside his infernal machine, looking like a cavalryman in the charge. I squatted in the cabin and watched things flash past.

The main point is that we reached the open water without smashing anything or smashing into anything.

"Well, I think we may as well swing around," said Hawkins, glancing at his watch. "It's wonderful, the control I have over the launch now. Every bit of the steering gear is located in that steel dome, along with the motor, Griggs. Nothing at all exposed but this little wheel.

"You observed, probably, that I set it a few moments ago, so that the wind wouldn't blow us about, and haven't touched it since. Now note how we shall turn back."

Hawkins grasped his little wheel, puffed up his chest, and gave a tremendous twist.

And the wheel snapped off in Hawkins' hands!

"Why—why—why—" he stuttered, in amazement.

"Yes, now you've done it" I rapped out, savagely. "How the dickens are we to get back?"

"There, Griggs, there," said Hawkins, "don't be so childishly impatient. I shall simply unlock this case again and control the steering-gear from the inside. Certainly even you must be able to understand that."

The calm superiority of his tone was maddening.

One or two of my sentiments defied restraint.

Heavens knows I didn't suppose it would make Hawkins nervous to hear them, but it did. His hands shook as he fumbled with the key of his steel box, and at a particularly vicious remark of mine he stood erect.

"Well, Griggs, you've put us in a hole this time!" he groaned.

"How?"

"You made me so nervous that I snapped that key off short in the lock!"

"What!" I shrieked.

"Yes, sir. The motor's locked up in there with fuel enough to keep her going for three months. I can't stop her or move the rudder without getting into the case, and nothing but dynamite would dent that case!"

"Then, Hawkins," I said, a terrible calm coming over me, "we shall have to go straight ahead now until we hit something or are blown up. Am I right?"

"Quite right," muttered Hawkins, defiantly. "And it's all your fault!"

I transfixed the inventor with a vindictive stare, until he abandoned the attempt at bravado and looked away.

"We—we may blow back, you know," he said, vaguely, addressing the breeze.

"The chances of that being particularly favorable by reason of your having set your miserable rudder to correspond with the present wind?" I asked. "Can't we tear up the woodwork and contrive some sort of rudder?"

"We could," admitted Hawkins, "if it wasn't all riveted down with my own patented rivets, which can't be removed, once they're set."

Hawkins' rivets are really what they claim to be. Only one consideration has delayed their universal adoption. They cost a trifle less than one dollar apiece to manufacture and set.

But they stay where they are put, and I knew that if the launch's woodwork was held together by them, it wasn't likely to come apart much before Judgment day.

"Real nice mess, isn't it, Hawkins?" I said.

"It—might be worse."

"Far worse," I agreed. We might be wallowing helplessly around in those heaving billows, or a gale might be tiring itself all out in the effort to swamp us. But, as it is, we are merely careering gaily over the sunlit waves at an unearthly speed. In a day or two, Hawkins, we shall sight the French coast, barring accidents, go ashore, and—"

"By Jove, Griggs!" exclaimed the inventor, lighting up on the instant. "Do you know, I hadn't thought of that. Just let me see. Yes, my boy, at this rate we shall be in the Bay of Biscay Monday night or Tuesday morning at the latest. Think of it, Griggs! Think of the fame! Think of—"

I couldn't bear to think of it any longer. I knew that if I thought about it for another ten seconds I should hurl Hawkins into the sea and go to my own watery grave with murder on my hands.

The bow of the launch being the furthest possible point from its owner, I gathered up my overcoat, cigars, and a sandwich, and crouched there, keeping out of the terrific wind as much as possible, watching for a possible vessel and munching the food with a growing wonder as to whether I should ever return to the happy home wherein it was prepared.

There I sat until sunset, and it was the latest sunset I have ever observed. With dusk descending over the lonely ocean, I returned in silence to Hawkins.

He was in bounding spirits. He chattered incessantly about the trip, planned a lecture tour—"Across the Atlantic in Forty Hours"—formed a stock company to manufacture his motor, offered me the London agency at an incredible salary, and built a stately mansion just off Central park with his own portion of the proceeds.

Having babbled himself dry, Hawkins informed me that salt air invariably made him sleepy, and crawled into the cabin for slumber.

And he slept. It passed my understanding, but the man had such utter confidence in himself and his unintentional trip that he snored peacefully throughout the night.

I didn't. I felt that my last hours in the land of the living should be passed in consciousness, and I spent that terrible time of darkness in more or less prayerful meditation.

After ages, the dawn arrived. I lit another cigar, and wriggled wearily to the bow of the boat and scanned the waters.

There was a vessel! Far, far away, to be sure, but steaming so that we must cross her path in another 15 minutes.

I tore off my overcoat and scrambled to the little deck, wound one arm about a post, and waved the coat frantically.

Nearer and nearer, we came to the steamer. More and more I feared that the signal might be unnoticed, or noticed too late. But it wasn't.

I have known some happy sights in my time, but I never saw anything that filled me with one-half the joy I felt on realizing that the steamer people were lowering one of their boats.

They were doing it, there was no doubt about the matter. In five minutes we should be near enough to their cutter to swim for it.

I dived to the stern to awaken Hawkins. He was already awake. He stood there, tousled and happy, sniffing the crisp air, and he had seen the approaching boat.

"Got it ready?" he inquired, placidly.

"Got what ready?"

"Why, the message," exclaimed Hawkins, opening his eyes in astonishment. "We'll have to hustle with it, I reckon."

"Hawkins, what new idiocy is this?" I gasped.

"Surely we're going to give that steamer a few lines to tell the world about our trip?"

Seconds passed before the full, tersible significance of his words filtered into my brain.

"Do you mean to say," I roared, "that you are not going to swim for that boat?"

"Certainly I do mean to say it," he replied, stiffly. "Let me have your fountain pen, Griggs."

I took one glance at the boat. I took another at Hawkins. Then I gripped him about the waist and threw my whole soul into the task of pitching him overboard.

Hawkins, as I have said, is heavier than I. He puffed and strained and pulled and hauled at me, swearing like a trooper the while. And neither of us budged an inch.

The cutter came nearer, nearer, always nearer. Thirty seconds more and we should shoot by it forever. The thought of losing this chance of rescue almost maddened me.

I had just gathered all my strength for one last heave, when the middle of my back experienced the most excruciating pain it has ever known. Something seemed to lift me clear of the launch, with Hawkins in my arms; I heard a dull report from somewhere, and then we dropped together, right through the surface of the sparkling Atlantic ocean!

Hawkins was picked up first. When I came to the surface two dark-skinned sailormen were dragging him in, struggling and cursing and pointing wildly toward the horizon, where his launch was careening away with the speed of the wind.

It was the French liner La France which had the honor of our rescue. She deposited us in New York on Wednesday morning.

Over the rest of this tale hover some painful memories. I am not a fighting man, but I am free to say that when my wife and Mrs. Hawkins delivered to me their joint opinion on broken promises, their sex alone saved them from personal damage.

It was upon me that the blame appeared to rest entirely. At least, Hawkins didn't come in for any of it at the time.

Just at the moment of that emotional interview Hawkins was busy in his workshop—perfecting something.

It seems that the motor, after all, was our salvation. Hawkins says that some of the power must have dribbled out of the machine proper and blown the steel dome from its foundations.

Assuredly there was plenty of energy behind the thing when it struck me; I have darting pains in that portion of my anatomy every damp day.

The launch has never been reported, which is probably quite as well.

Perhaps it has reached the open polar sea, and is butting itself into flinders against the ice-cakes. Perhaps it is terrorizing some cannibal tribe in the southern oceans by inflicting dents on the shoreline of their island.

Wherever the poor little boat may be, it contains 11 of my best cigars, the better part of a substantial meal, and, what is in my eyes of less importance, the sole existing example of what Hawkins still considers an ideal generator of power.

(Copyright, 1906, by W. G. Chapman.)

A SAILOR ON SEA PICTURES

"I'll take a sailor along with me the next time I buy a marine painting," said a millionaire. "I bought two marines last month, and yesterday my old friend, Capt. Salthorse, had at a look at them.

"Salthorse said:

"'In this first picture we've got a trading schooner in charge of a tug towing away from a rockbound coast through a fearful jumble of sea. The schooner's main topmast is gone, and all sails are lowered except her staysail, which is kept hoisted, though she is towing head on to the gale. Why that hoisted staysail? All hands, I suppose, are drunk.

"'In that second picture,' continued Capt. Salthorse, 'the principal boat, an 18-footer, is racing, yet has no flag flying. That's as incorrect as it would be for you to go to a dinner party minus a shirt. The crew of this boat are getting in the spinnaker, and, if they lower away, both spinnaker and boom will be in the water, for they have neglected to let the boom go forward. But I know what the trouble is with them. They, too, are drunk.'"

DESERVED PUNISHING.

Farmer Dolittle's land was bad; his methods were infinitely worse. He never liked work himself, and the exertion of seeing that others did it appeared to be too much for him.

Consequently it would have puzzled an expert to say exactly what was growing in any one field of that particular farm.

One day a neighboring farmer was passing, when Farmer Dolittle hailed him.

"Hayseed!" he shouted. "Neighbor Hayseed!"

"Well?" responded Mr. Hayseed, sauntering up.

"Your pigs!" explained Farmer Dolittle. "They're amang ma taties!"

"Eh?" ejaculated Hayseed. "Ye doan't say so!" Then, after a pause, he added: "Ne'er mind! Let 'em stop theer a bit! They desarves punishin', anyways, an' if disappointment won't cure 'em, nowt will!"

In No Danger.

Mrs. Minks (severely)—George, there is an account in the paper about a business man leaving his wife and running off with a pretty typewriter girl.

Mr. Minks—Indeed!

"Yes; and it's the third account of the kind I've seen this week."

"That doesn't interest me."

"It does me. You have a pretty typewriter girl in your office."

"No, we haven't. My partner eloped with her last week."—N. Y. Weekly.

This Rapid Age.

Fair Bargaineer—I want a pair of shoe-strings, some hair-pins, half a dozen handkerchiefs, and a belt-buckle. I have to catch a train in 15 minutes, and I am in a great hurry.

Floorwalker—Take the elevator to the eleventh floor for the shoe-strings. The hair-pin department is on the second. You will find the handkerchiefs in the extreme rear of the seventh floor, and the belt-buckles are in the basement.—Judge.

Terrible Responsibility.

"Don't bother me," said the man with a haunted look; "I've got to read all the fashion articles and all the books I can get on the social proprieties, besides looking up all the methods of regulating restaurants employed by the various cities. This responsibility is terrible."

"Who are you, anyhow?"

"I'm the mayor of a summer resort town."—Washington Star.

Whyness of It.

"Women," remarked the homelike an old bachelor who achieves success."

"Because why?" queried the youth.

"Because," explained the philosophy dispenser, "they can't say that he would never have amounted to anything if it hadn't been for his wife."—Chicago Daily News.

An Absurd Suggestion.

"Government officials should be paid no more than their services are actually worth."

"I suppose," said Senator Sorghum, with sarcasm, "that you'll next expect us to pay for the damage we do, by turning portions of our private fortunes into the conscience fund."—Washington Star.

A Smooth One.

He stole a kiss,
And the angry miss
Exclaimed: "I like your cheek!"
"That's good," said he;
"I shave, you see,
Each morning in the week."
—Cleveland Leader.

UNPROFITABLE ENGAGEMENT.

"What reason did he give for wishing to break off the engagement so soon?"

"He said the report that he was engaged to me had not extended his credit as much as he had hoped for."

Nigh.

'Tis time, almost, for summer girls,
Who homeward come from seaside's lure,
To dope themselves, ere they retire,
With Mrs. Mixem's Freckle Cure.
—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Implicated.

"Did you have anything to do with this batch of sausage?" inquired the Pakington investigator.

"Yes, sir," replied the workman. "I had a finger in it."—Judge.

Pessimistic.

"I never knew such a pessimist as that fellow Jenkins?"

"Yes, I actually believe his idea of heaven is a place that is paved with gold bricks."—Puck.

He Knew.

Missionary—Do you know who I am?

Cannibal—Sure! You're an edible.—Judge.

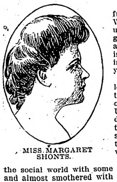
Historical Society
MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. VI. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, NOV. 2, 1906. NO. 31.

Our Washington Letter

A Bevy of Pretty Debuntantes Will Make the Coming Social Season at the Capital an Unusually Interesting One—Figures Showing the Salt We Eat.



MISS MARGARET SHONTS.

WASHINGTON.—There is always a delightful expectancy relative to the debutantes of a Washington season, and this year's crop presents unusual features in many ways. There are rich girls and poor girls, pretty girls and homely girls, accomplished girls and athletic girls, but there is no gainsaying that they are all highly interesting girls, and each possessed of many endearing young charms.

There will be at least 40 to enjoy the Bachelors, the Sixty Couple and the numerous subscription dances, and there are more ballrooms to be open next season than ever before in this city. Usually a girl has established a reputation for dancing before her formal presentation, and even thus early in the game it is not unusual to hear some well-seasoned bachelor remark that a certain girl of his set is almost as fine a dancer as was her mother or perhaps her elder sister.

There is no longer such a thing as surprising the social world with some shy beauty who has been kept housed, sheltered and almost smothered with accomplishments and learning. Not much. The bud of to-day generally has a generous foretaste of the world for at least a season before she is launched, just to make her easy and at home, you know. She dances through a winter, romps through tennis and golf on the open field in the summer, rides with all the old beaux, and is even pretty well introduced abroad before formally making her bow here, and sometimes even presented at court abroad just to give them experience.

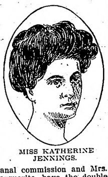
Most all of the girls will make their debuts in December, and, so far as now known, the old-fashioned afternoon tea will prevail, with a charming exception, such as a pretty ball like the one at which Mrs. Gaff introduced Miss Zaidee Gaff two winters ago, or the series of dinners, which method was adopted by Mrs. Postlethwaite in presenting her daughter, who was married Wednesday, October 3, to Henry Ives Cobb.

There is quite a little story connected with that series of dinners of Mrs. Postlethwaite's, however, which was revived by her daughter's marriage. All of the guests bidden to the first dinner were surprised not to find the bud there at all. Then ensued an explanation to the effect that Mrs. Longworth, then Miss Alice Roosevelt, had telephoned over to Miss Postlethwaite saying that the President and Mrs. Roosevelt were dining out and that she would like the debutante to come over and enjoy dinner with her and a few of her friends. Miss Postlethwaite, now Mrs. Cobb, in her charming manner explained to Miss Roosevelt that she was having a dinner at home that night. Mrs. Postlethwaite, however, who took a different view of the situation and looked upon Miss Roosevelt's invitation as an order, insisted that her daughter leave her own guests and go. So Washington had its first experience of a debutante dinner without the debutante, an event quite as cheerful as a wedding without a bride.

CAPITAL BEAUTIES IN GREAT VARIETIES.

There is a delightful variety of girls to be presented. One cabinet girl, Miss Erma Shaw; one diplomatic girl, so far as known, Baroness Elizabeth Rosen, who astonished the North Shore with her expert swimming, strong tennis and delectable horsemanship all last summer.

There are more than a half dozen girls from the army and navy sets, and others from official and resident society.

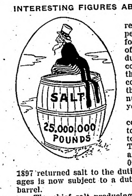


MISS KATHERINE JENNINGS.

Newest of all the girls in Washington who will be presented this season is pretty, tall, willowy Katherine Jennings, who is one of the most winsome girls ever introduced from what is known in Washington as the "South African contingent." She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hennen Jennings, who last year, as they will this, occupied Mrs. A. C. Barney's residence in Rhode Island avenue, near the French embassy, from which Miss Zaidee Gaff made her debut two years ago.

The daughters of chairman of the Panama canal commission and Mrs. Theodore P. Shonts, Miss Theodora, and Miss Marguerite, have the double advantage of having been presented at the spring court in London this year, where they were much admired, and a good share of the entire season under the chaperonage of Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, but they also have many friends in Washington.

INTERESTING FIGURES ABOUT SALT.



The United States consumes 26,872,700 barrels of salt annually, or a barrel for every three persons in the land. Last year it went abroad for only 1,151,133 barrels. In 1880 63.5 per cent. of the salt used in our country was of home production. Last year 95.7 per cent. of the product consumed was produced within the borders of this country. In 1880 the consumption in this country was only 9,384,263 barrels. Thus we see that the people of the United States are using annually three times as much salt as they used 26 years ago.

Only 5,961,060 barrels were produced in this country in 1880, and the consumers were forced to go abroad for 3,427,639 barrels. Last year the total production at home was 25,966,122 barrels. The tariff act of 1894 placed salt on the free list and the importations increased to nearly 560,000,000 pounds the following year. The tariff act of 1897 returned salt to the dutiable list, and salt in bags, barrels or other packages is now subject to a duty of 12 cents a hundred pounds, or 33.6 cents a barrel.

The chief salt producing states are Michigan and New York. Statistics recently gathered by the government show that the combined output of these two states amounts to more than two-thirds of the total production of the United States.

No attempt has ever been made to ascertain what per cent. of the salt consumed in the United States is used for culinary purposes. The annual output is largely consumed in the industries of meat packing, fish curing, dairying and the like.

REHABILITATING "OLD IRONSIDES."

Under an act of congress, "Old Ironsides" is to be rebuilt once more and refitted for sea service.

The work is to be done where she was originally built—Boston—and the money is being raised by the Massachusetts State society, United States Daughters of 1812, through an appeal to patriotic Americans for the preservation of this historical object lesson, which will once more cruise under "Old Glory" as a training ship for naval apprentices. The original plans of this old fighting ship were recently unearthed in the East Indian Marine Museum, Salem, Mass., and will play an important part in the rebuilding.

In 1830 it was reported in the newspapers that it was the intention of the government to destroy the Constitution, together with a number of other ships.

But the very announcement met with a public clamor of disapproval, as did Secretary of the Navy Bonaparte's recommendation, late last year, that she be used for a target.

Small wonder indeed that the New Englanders were moved to recite the career of the famous old ship to the navy secretary, inasmuch as it is the only real relic of that branch of American arms that preserved the United States in her second war with Great Britain.

The "Old Ironsides" remained in active commission until the advent of the real ironclad, when she was used for auxiliary purposes.

At last, having no utility, even as a training ship, her destruction was ordered, and had been begun when the wave of popular dissent, voiced in the poem of Oliver Wendell Holmes, forced the navy department to desist.

Since that time she has been lying in the Boston navy yard—her decks roofed over like a nondescript building.

OF FOREIGN LANDS.

INTERESTING CORRESPONDENCE FROM MANY COUNTRIES.

ON ITALIAN EMIGRATION

The Number of Passports Issued for America Show a Remarkable Increase—India the Coal Field of Asia.

COAL MINING IN INDIA.

CALCUTTA.

All of the coal in India is bituminous. Some of it is hard and glossy and is much like Rock Springs (Wyo.) coal. Such coal retails in Calcutta at 8 annas or 16 cents per maund (82 pounds). There are 27 maunds per ton, which would make a ton cost $4.41. By purchasing a ton or more at one time the rate is from $2.08 to $2.24 per ton.

The coal fields now operated are located in Bengal, the native states of Central India and Hyderabad. A comparison of the figures officially given out will show that India is first among the coal-producing dependencies of Great Britain. In answer to my question as to whether there were other coal deposits not yet opened, I was assured that the coal fields of India had scarcely been touched; that India's coal field is estimated to cover 35,000 square miles. The total output during 1905 was 7,762,779 tons. Bengal, in which Calcutta is situated, supplied 93 per cent. of this amount.

ITALIAN EMIGRATION.

VENICE.

The number of emigration passports issued by the Italian government for the past two years is shown in the following table:

	1904.	1905.	Increase.
United States	168,789	316,797	148,008
Argentina	51,779	86,158	34,379
Brazil	19,724	30,079	10,355
Other American countries	9,282	11,690	2,408
Total	249,574	444,724	195,150
Europe, Asia and Africa	221,617	281,607	59,990
Total	471,181	726,331	255,140

These figures do not represent the actual number of emigrants embarked, and, particularly in regard to trans-Atlantic emigration, they must be reduced considerably. According to the reports of the steamship companies engaged in this kind of transportation from Italian ports and from Havre, the total number carried to the United States in 1905 was 264,990, against 150,119 in the preceding year, but to these figures must be added the fairly large number of those who embarked at other ports outside of Italy, which brings the totals much nearer the totals of passports issued.

Italian emigration is to a surprising extent temporary, and depends upon the season of outdoor labor. For example, of the 266,982 persons to whom emigration passports were issued last year for European countries, probably over 90 per cent. of those who actually went returned last autumn, or, having departed this spring, will come back in November, when there is no longer the same demand for laborers. Indeed, this characteristic holds good also in trans-Atlantic emigration, and is strikingly demonstrated by the crowded steerages of the Mediterranean and French steamers sailing from New York toward the month of December. This tendency to return is of the utmost value to Italy, and is encouraged by the authorities, who realize that but for it the 99,598,816 lire sent from abroad in the past four years through the Bank of Naples alone for the families of emigrants, or for deposit in the state savings banks, would have been very much less, and that if emigration were more permanent in character this important item in the finances of the country would diminish instead of increase. Of the 38,417,886 lire, equal to $7,503,493, transmitted through this bank in the past year, $4,257,680, or about 57 per cent., came from the United States.

PAUL NASH.

JAPAN EXHAUSTING HER COAL.

Japan is at present India's only real competitor in the orient; but, considering the difference in the extent of the coal fields of India and those of Japan, it is reasonable to conclude that the day is not far off when India will control the far eastern coal market. The conclusion is based on the fact that Japan has but 6,000 square miles of coal field. Her present annual output is 10,000,000 tons, which is in excess of the Indian mines, but this is a small tonnage compared with what India is capable of producing.

In referring to the coal future, the chief inspector of mines for India observes that the chief need for a sound development of the Indian coal fields is improvement in superintendence and working capacity of the miner. The methods of working the mines are crude and unscientific, and this results in not only a smaller output than should be expected but also in great waste. To overcome this condition the government of India has established a college, which has a large attendance, at Sibpore, for the scientific training of native engineers with special reference to coal mining. It is believed that the classes at this institution will furnish the needed skilled assistants to European superintendents.

The Indian miner performs work underground much as the Indian laborer does on top of the ground. Whatever kind of labor he undertakes he brings to it an easy-going manner and bone and muscle that are far inferior to that of the English miner or the miners in America. In fact, he accomplishes less than half the results of the western miner. He has not the physique, having inherited small bones, light muscles, and an "easy way" from his ancestors. It is believed, however, that he is growing stronger and becoming more capable, and that in time the coal miners of India will by heredity become almost equal to coal miners anywhere.

One thing is to be deplored, and that is the employment of women in and about the mines as laborers. Some of these coolie women are said to walk five miles in a day in the performance of their work; and carry on their heads loads of 80 pounds half that distance. There is a strong sentiment growing against this sort of drudgery for women, but I fancy it will be a long time before the women of India will be delivered from such toil. It has not been so many years since women and children were rescued from such drudgery in other and more enlightened countries.

Here, in the capital of India, the coolie women carry bricks and mortar on their heads and climb bamboo ladders to the third and fourth stories of buildings as helpers to coolie masons. These women sweep the streets and do all sorts of menial labor. They carry on their heads burdens seemingly large enough to bend the backs of bullocks and donkeys.

WILLIAM H. MICHAEL.

ARGENTINA PROSPEROUS.

BUENOS AIRES.

The government has published its estimate of the wheat crop, which is placed at 3,881,739 tons, which should leave an export surplus of 2,750,000 tons, as against 2,868,000 for last year. Our linseed crop is placed at 840,000 tons, which should leave a surplus of 550,000 tons. The partial failure of the wheat crop in many districts was due to late frosts, hot suns, fogs and locusts.

An idea of how the country is being developed can be gathered from the fact that whereas in 1895 we had 4,892,000 hectares (1 hectare equal 2.471 acres) under cultivation, in 1905 the area was returned as being 13,081,461, an increase of 167.4 per cent.

The area under wheat in 1895 was 2,049,000 hectares, in 1905, 5,675,293 hectares; under linseed in 1895, 387,324 hectares, in 1905, 1,022,782; under maize in 1895, 1,244,182 hectares, and in 1905, 2,717,300 hectares.

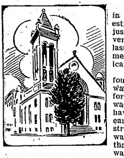
Making further comparisons, we find that in 1895 the population was 3,954,911, while in 1905 it was 5,616,968 inhabitants.

Railways in 1895 aggregated 14,461 kilometers (1 kilometer equal 0.621 mile) in length; in 1905, 19,753 kilometers. In 1885 our railways, with a total length of 4,502 kilometers, carried 8,143,960 tons, and in 1905, with 19,753 kilometers, they carried 22,703,550 tons, so that while in 20 years the length of line has increased by nearly 500 per cent., the goods carried have increased by 700 per cent.

When arranging china jars on polished furniture cut a piece of thick baize to the exact size of the base and pink it out at the edges, choosing some dull color which will barely show. This neat mat will effectually preserve the polished surface and will never be an eyesore.

Gossip of New York

An Interesting Church That Has Just Celebrated Its 150th Birthday—Has Had But Six Pastors During All Those Years, and All Were Men of Reputation—Other Gotham Chatter.



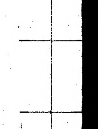
NEW YORK.—October marks the milestones in the history of one of New York's most interesting churches, the Scotch Presbyterian. It has just celebrated its one hundred and fiftieth anniversary with a series of services and ceremonies lasting through two weeks, in which many noted men in the denomination from Europe and American took part.

In its long life the Scotch church has had four places of worship and only six pastors. It was the question of psalm-singing that led to the formation of the church, which early records say was in 1756, although members of the church who have studied the matter think the date was much earlier. The first house of worship was in Cedar street, between Broadway and Nassau street. It was a modest wooden building, much smaller than the present church. At the time George III. was king of Great Britain New York was a village of from 8,000 to 10,000 inhabitants and the Royal standard floated over the public buildings. The church was used as barracks for the Hessian troops and in this way was much damaged. An appeal was made to the inhabitants of New York and the sum of 963 pounds, three shillings and sixpence were paid to the church officials with which to make repairs.

It was several years afterward, in 1756, that the original chapel, which it is thought was built soon after the organization of the church, was replaced by a more pretentious structure. An article on New York at this time describes it as "a genteel stone building, 65½ feet long and 55 feet wide." There was no great pipe organ, no gilded walls or cushioned pews. There was a gallery for "persons of color." One of the first orders recorded is "that five buckets be provided for the church, on which will be painted 'Scot's Church, Cedar street.'" In the spring of the same year it was "agreed that the church be whitewashed and well cleaned." Sermons were much longer then than in these days. Indeed, to-day even the best Presbyterians would not sit through them.

Dr. Wylie has in his possession the original document of incorporation, a time-worn paper, dated August 17, 1784. The congregation worshipped in this building for 81 years. The church is older than the general assembly, and until 1824 it was affiliated with the Associated Church of Scotland, and was known as the First Associate Reformed Presbyterian church of New York.

HAS HAD SIX REMARKABLE PASTORS.



DR. WYLIE.

All of the six pastors have been men who have made their impress on the city of New York, not only in their ministry to the congregation but by their connection with various organizations, religious, patriotic, social and civic.

Rev. Dr. John Mason was the first pastor, and he was born in Lingithgowshire, Scotland, and was sent from that country, May 25, 1762, to take charge of the parish. He served as chaplain in the revolutionary war. He received the degree of doctor of divinity from Princeton university in 1798.

His son, Rev. Dr. John M. Mason, succeeded him, remaining pastor for 17 years. The second Dr. Mason was educated in Columbia and the University of Edinburgh. He was called "the Prince of Preachers," and was an orator. He founded Columbia Grammar School, was provost of Columbia college and later became president of Dickinson college.

The third pastor was Rev. Robert B. E. McLeod. He served the church for 12 years. It was Dr. McLeod who drew up the plan of union between the general assembly and the Associate Reformed church.

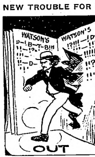
The fourth pastor was Rev. Joseph McElroy. He was shepherd of the flock for 49 years, until he died, on December 16, 1871, being 84 years old.

The fifth pastor was Dr. Hamilton, who preached during the celebration ceremonies. He was called to the Scotch church from Belfast, Ireland, October 19, 1873, and remained for 17 years, then accepting the pastorate of the Warren Memorial Presbyterian church, Louisville, Ky.

Dr. Wylie, the present pastor, is rounding out his sixteenth year in the church. When he had been in charge 15 years the congregation sent him and Mrs. Wylie on a trip to the Holy Land, Egypt and Europe.

This is one of the few Protestant churches of the city that support a parochial school. This school was chartered long before there were any public schools in New York. It now has three departments, kindergarten, junior and senior, and there are four teachers.

NEW TROUBLE FOR COL. W. D. MANN.



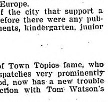
Col. W. D. Mann, of Town Topics fame, who figured in the news dispatches very prominently for a considerable period, now has a new trouble to deal with in connection with Tom Watson's Magazine.

It will probably be a surprise to many people to learn that Col. Mann is in any way interested in the publication which bears the name of the Populist leader and philosopher. Col. Mann is the chief stockholder in the magazine of which Mr. Watson is the editor, and he and Mr. Watson had a dispute about money due for editorial services. When Mr. Watson asked for money Col. Mann criticised the magazine. Mr. Watson found himself helpless in a fight with Mann, for the colonel had the advantage of a majority of ownership of the stock, while Mr. Watson owned only about one-fifth.

Col. Mann didn't like the September number. He and his friends said it was hardly right to burden a magazine for the general public with a 27-page article, venting Mr. Watson's personal feelings against the editor of the Macon (Ga.) Telegraph. Mr. Watson, he held, had used much space in previous issues to vent personal animosity against political enemies in Georgia.

This unsatisfactory state of affairs led to the announcement from Thomson, Ga., that Mr. Watson had resigned as editor and would no longer write for the magazine.

NEW MEMORIAL HOSPITAL OPEN.



Benediction of the new wings of St. Luke's hospital, the gift of Mrs. Robert Graves, former widow of Henry B. Plant, took place recently and the building is now occupied by patients. It is to be known as the Margaret J. Plant Pavilion and has cost more than $400,000 since it was begun in March, 1904.

Designed by Ernest Flagg in the style of the French Renaissance, the new structure is eight stories in height, it has been constructed of white sandstone and marble and occupies a commanding position, overlooking Morningside Drive. It is nearly a block in extent and is fitted throughout with the most approved hospital furnishings and appliances. Sixty-five rooms for patients have been provided, as well as separate kitchens, operating rooms and attendants' quarters. From a medical point of view, the thoroughly equipped hydro-therapeutic and electro-therapeutic departments are the most remarkable features of the new building.

Mrs. Graves made the gift in accordance with the expressed wishes of Mr. Plant. It was his desire that his name should be connected with some charitable institution of a non-sectarian character. St. Luke's hospital answers this description.

Free patients are the chief gainers. Although the new wing is for private patients, the effect has been to open large parts of the older buildings for the use of the less fortunate.

Mrs. Graves has quietly carried on extensive charities in this city for many years. From her first husband, who was a millionaire steamship, railroad and hotel owner, she received a large bequest, while Robert Graves, her present husband, is a wealthy wall paper manufacturer. At her expense there are at present maintained seven beds in as many New York hospitals for the care of injured firemen.

PROBE JAP SCHOOL TROUBLE AT FRISCO

SECRETARY METCALF IS SENT WEST ON IMPORTANT MISSION.

President Dispatches Cabinet Officer to Learn Condition of Affairs Regarding Exclusion of Children and Restaurant Boycott.

Washington, Oct. 27.—President Roosevelt Friday night directed Victor H. Metcalf, secretary of the department of commerce and labor, to proceed to San Francisco and make a thorough and complete inquiry into the situation affecting the exclusion of Japanese children from the schools provided for white children, and the determination to place Japanese pupils in separate schools.

The president is anxious to obtain at first hand from a cabinet officer who is acquainted with local conditions in San Francisco full information affecting every phase of the subject, to the end that whatever action is taken by this government may be after an accurate understanding of the situation. The president feels that every effort within the power of the administration should be exerted to see that all the treaty rights claimed by the Japanese for its people residing in the United States should be respected and protected.

Demands Full Rights.

The determination to send Secretary Metcalf to San Francisco was one of the results of the request made by Viscount Aoki, the Japanese ambassader, who at a conference with Secretary Root Thursday asked, in behalf of his government, that the Japanese subjects in California be accorded their full rights under the treaty of 1894, including that of the children to attend the public schools of San Francisco. This request was the subject of very long and earnest discussion at the cabinet meeting Friday, when the conclusion was reached that the best thing to do was to send Mr. Metcalf to California to secure personally all the data which could have any possible bearing on the situation.

The dispatch of a cabinet officer on such a mission, it was argued, would demonstrate to the Japanese the evident sincerity of this government in dealing with the whole subject and its desire to show that every effort is being made to get at the facts.

Allege Boycott on Restaurants.

Incidental to the inquiry into the school question, Mr. Metcalf will pay some attention to the charges made by Count Aoki to Secretary Root that Japanese restaurant keepers in San Francisco have suffered indignities. These reports, the ambassador says, come from consular officers of the Japanese government in San Francisco. At least seven or eight reports have been made, concerning a boycott inaugurated against these restaurants and these reports state that agents have been posted to prevent patrons from entering the restaurants and in several instances stones have been thrown and windows broken.

Situation Is Grave.

Administration officials do not hesitate to express privately their views of the present anti-American feeling growing out of the wrongs which the Japanese declare they have suffered, and one member of the cabinet said after the meeting that the general situation was exceedingly grave and would require the most delicate treatment to prevent an open rupture.

The president is doing all in his power to show the Japanese that there is no general feeling against the race, but that the trouble is entirely local and expressed gratification when he learned through Ambassador Aoki that the Japanese press is for the most part attempting to check the feelings against Americans.

OHIO ICE MEN LOSE IN COURT

Face Prison Under Valentine Anti-Trust Law Conviction.

Toledo, O., Oct. 27.—Circuit court Friday upheld the decision of Judge Kinkade, of common pleas court, in the sentences he gave Reuben Lemon, Holland Beard and Joseph Miller, convicted of conspiracy in restraint of trade in the sale of ice.

These are the famous ice cases which were tried in common pleas court last summer. The sentences given the men were $2,500 fine each and six months in the workhouse, and if the supreme court affirms the lower courts, the ice men must serve their sentences.

The circuit court also held the Valentine anti-trust law constitutional.

Change in French Foreign Office.

Paris, Oct. 27.—There has been quite a change in the personnel of the foreign office as a result of the appointment of M. Pichon to be foreign minister. M. Thiebaut, former first secretary of the French legation at Washington and recently chief of the cabinet of the ministry of foreign affairs, retires from that position and becomes minister of France at Buenos Ayres.

Report on Ginned Cotton.

Washington, Oct. 26.—According to a bulletin issued Thursday by the census bureau there, had been ginned up to October 18, 4,910,290 bales of cotton of the growth of 1906, counting round bales as half bales. For the same period last year, 4,990,566 bales were ginned.

MADMAN JUMPS INTO OCEAN

DRIVEN INSANE BY SUFFERING HE SEEKS RELIEF IN SEA.

Six Survivors of Southern Hurricane Undergo Nerve-Wracking Experience While Clinging to Raft.

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 26.—Counting the minutes, which seemed to them to be but few intervening between them and death, bruised, bleeding, hungering and athirst, five men adrift on a bit of wreckage, off the Florida coast saw one of their companions whose suffering had driven him mad, throw himself into the sea to death and not long afterward a ship which was coming saved their lives.

The five survivors of one of the greatest tragedies which has ever occurred on this coast were landed here by the British steamer Heatherpool, Capt. John Grieves, commanding, which arrived for Bunker coal, being en route from New Orleans to Rotterdam.

They, with about 145 others, were constructing a concrete viaduct for the Florida East Coast railway, through the Florida keys, and were aboard houseboat No. 4, which lay anchored off the coast on the night of October 17.

The great hurricane which swept over the coast struck the houseboat about one o'clock in the morning of October 18, and No. 4 broke adrift. The houseboat soon afterwards foundered and all of the 150 men were thrown into the sea. The houseboat was dashed to pieces by the waves.

Many of the men were killed by heavy timbers, which struck them as they were struggling to find means of rescue. Six men lashed together two timbers, one 10 by 20 inches in thickness and breadth and the other probably 14 inches, and both 20 feet long and lived on this raft until the man became mad from suffering and injury and threw himself into the sea.

On the morning of October 19, Capt. Grieves, standing upon the bridge of his ship, heard cries for help and discovered the raft. He launched a lifeboat and soon brought the perishing men aboard, where they were given light food and put to bed.

UTES HOLD SOLDIERS AT BAY

Maj. Grierson to Await More Troops in the Wyoming Trouble.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 25.—Word was received here Wednesday from the scene of the Indian depredations in Wyoming to the effect that Capt. C. P. Johnson, of Maj. Grierson's command, with an orderly and a scout, overtook the Utes on Little Powder river, about 40 miles north of Gillette.

It is said the Indians absolutely refused to return to their reservation, and declared they were going to Dakota. Maj. Grierson, it is said, has determined to await reenforcements before trying to force the removal of the band, as cowboys report that the Utes are holding nightly dances and are in a mood for trouble.

SEVEN KILLED IN EXPLOSION

Fatal Blow-up in Cambria Steel Company's Mine.

Johnstown, Pa., Oct. 25.—By an explosion in the mine of the Cambria Steel company here Wednesday seven men are reported to be dead and two painfully but not fatally burned.

The explosion is thought to have been caused by the ignition of gas in setting off of a blast. Most of the victims are foreigners. The explosion occurred in a heading three miles from the mouth of the mine shaft.

Eighteen men are reported imprisoned in the heading, but no mention is made of this in an official statement given to the press by the manager of the Cambria Steel company.

KILLS FATHER AND WOUNDS SON

Quarrel Over Farm Rent Leads to Fatal Shooting of Two.

Paris, Mo., Oct. 25.—Benjamin Sager, a farmer, was shot dead and his son, Claude, aged 21, fatally wounded Wednesday by John Sebastian, an aged farmer.

The Sagers had rented a field from Sebastian, and were to pay Sebastian for rent half the crop of corn grown thereon.

They quarreled over division of the crop and Sager and his two sons attacked Sebastian with corn knives, whereupon the latter drew a pistol and shot two of his assailants.

Must Produce Records.

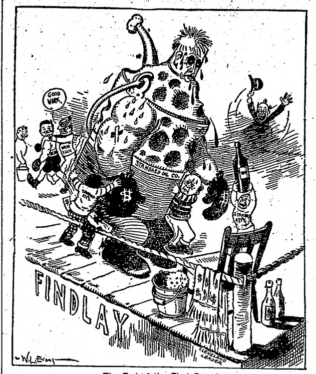
St. Louis, Oct. 26.—In the United States circuit court Thursday Judge Finkelnburg decided that Robert M. Frazer, chairman of the fast-bound freight committee, must produce before Special Commissioner Rombauer the records of the committee wanted by the government in its ouster suit proceedings against the Terminal Railroad association.

Indiana Bank Robbed.

Goshen, Ind., Oct. 25.—Six masked men blew open the safe of the Shipshewana bank early Wednesday, after tying and gagging three men in a livery stable next to the bank building. A small amount of money was secured, as their efforts to blow the inner safe were unsuccessful. The men made their escape on a handcar.

Traveling Man Found Dead.

Guthrie, Okla., Oct. 25.—L. Irons, a traveling salesman from Omaha, was found dead from heart disease in his room at a local hotel Wednesday.



The End of the First Round.

SAY ROAD CONTROLS HOLDING COMPANY

RAILWAY SAID TO BE INDIRECT OWNER OF COAL LAND.

Operators Allege They Are Not Receiving Just Treatment at the Hands of the Carrying Concerns, Who Show Favors.

Knoxville, Tenn., Oct. 25.—The investigation being conducted here by the interstate commerce commission into the relation of the Southern railway to coal lands and questions of car supply and distribution, was concluded Wednesday. The two members of the commission here, Judge Clements and Commissioner Harlan, together with C. C. McChord, Kentucky state railroad commissioner, and others attending agents and attorneys of the commission, went to Louisville, Ky., where a similar investigation will be begun.

Alleged Road Owns Coal Company.

It is said an effort will be made to establish the fact that the Louisville & Nashville Railroad company owns the Louisville Property company, a corporation which owns about 50,000 acres of land in Kentucky and Tennessee, and which leases coal veins to companies on a royalty basis. An effort will be made to prove that the incorporators of the Louisville Property company are, or were, officers of the Louisville & Nashville railway, and that these officers now own, or did own, stock in the company.

Discrimination in Cars.

The commission entered into an examination of witnesses from the Jellico region. Numerous complaints were made of unfairness of discrimination in the furnishing of cars to Jellico operators by the Southern and Louisville & Nashville railroads. The complaints against the Louisville & Nashville grew out of conditions prior to the opening of the main line of that company to Knoxville, Atlanta and southern points in April of last year.

Operators Complain.

Witnesses from the Jellico district testified that the Southern railway is refusing longer to furnish cars to mines located on the Louisville & Nashville tracks, and some of the testimony tended to show that certain mines have been favored in this respect.

The alleged refusal of the Southern Railway company and of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad company to exchange switching accommodations in Louisville, Nashville, Knoxville and Atlanta was also the subject of bitter complaint, but Judge Clements stated that the commission had no authority to remedy the distress caused by this refusal.

BANK ROBBERS SECURE $5,000

Hold Citizens at Bay While They Dynamite Institution at Odin, Ill.

Odin, Ill., Oct. 27.—Holding fully 100 terrified citizens at bay, a band of robbers "shot up the town" early Friday, deliberately dynamited the Odin bank, took $5,000 from the wrecked safe and escaped. Fully ten minutes elapsed after the robbers touched off the first charge of dynamite before they secured the booty.

Aehrenthal Succeeds Goluchowski.

Vienna, Oct. 25.—After a lengthy audience with Emperor Francis Joseph Wednesday morning Baron Aehrenthal, the Austro-Hungarian ambassador to Russia, definitely accepted the foreign ministry portfolio in succession to Count Goluchowski, who recently resigned.

Fire in Drug House.

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 27.—The stock in the wholesale drug house of Berry, Demoville & Co., on the public square, was damaged $50,000 by fire Friday. The loss is covered by insurance.

DEDICATE ILLINOIS TEMPLE

WILLIAM J. CALHOUN DELIVERS ORATION OF THE DAY.

Gen. J. C. Scofield Accepts Handsome Temple on Behalf of the Federal Government.

Vicksburg, Miss., Oct. 27.—The dedication of the magnificent Illinois Memorial temple in the Vicksburg National park took place Friday under the most favorable auspices. A clear and beautiful October day set the seal of its approval upon an occasion which was alike a delightful one to the men who wore the gray and those who wore the blue. Fraternalism was the keynote of the speeches and was the spirit of the greeting which was exchanged when the confederate veterans from Mississippi and Louisiana met those from Illinois.

William J. Calhoun was the orator of the day and addresses were made by Govs. Vardaman, of Mississippi, and Deneen, of Illinois; C. E. Matthews, president of the Illinois Monument commission, and others. The monument was accepted on behalf of the United States government by Gen. J. C. Scofield, who represented the secretary of war on this occasion. The booming of cannon and the music of bands added much to the spirit of the dedication. The parade, which preceded the dedication was one of the greatest events of its kind in the history of this section. The troops were composed of the First Illinois regiment of infantry, the infantry of the state of Mississippi and a battalion of artillery of Mississippi. Hundreds of carriages containing men and women of national reputation were in line.

Among the invited guests of the state of Illinois who attended the exercises were: Mrs. John A. Logan and her daughter, Mrs. Tucker; Rear Admiral Bowman H. McCalla, U. S. N., who commanded the Marblehead in the Spanish war, and Maj. Gen. Eugene A. Carr, U. S. A., the only surviving Illinois division commander of the Vicksburg campaign.

EIGHT-HOUR DAY IS UPHELD

Government Wins First Case Against Contractors on Federal Work.

Cincinnati, Oct. 27.—The first test of the federal eight-hour day law ended in a victory for the government here Friday. After being out only fifteen minutes the jury in the United States court found the Sheridan-Kirk Contracting company guilty of violating the law in the construction of the big Ohio river dam at Fernbank, nine miles below this city. The determination of the penalty will come later. The law provides for a fine not exceeding $1,000.

TRAINMEN DEMAND MORE PAY

Railway Employes Ask Higher Wages and Better Working Conditions.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 27.—It was officially announced at the headquarters of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers in this city Friday that requests had been made not only to the lines of Chicago, but also to a number of the big eastern systems, for higher wages and better working conditions for all classes of trainmen. It was said that similar requests would probably be made by that brotherhood to every other railroad in the United States.

Fire Stops Cannon Banquet.

Paris, Ill., Oct. 27.—Fire at the Paris hotel caused a hurried adpournment of a banquet at which Speaker Cannon was being entertained by local Republican politicians. Mr. Cannon later spoke at the courthouse.

Wisconsin Pioneer Dies.

Oshkosh, Wis., Oct. 27.—Samuel McClellan Hay, for 58 years identified with the business interests of Oshkosh, and a pioneer merchant and banker of wide reputation, died Friday, aged 81 years.

RAILROADS WILL PAY CASH FOR ADS

PUBLISHERS NO LONGER TO BE COMPELLED TO TAKE TICKETS FOR SPACE.

Chairman Knapp of the Interstate Board Rules Against Exchanging Advertising for Transportation, Holding It Is a Violation of Law.

Washington, Oct. 26.—Under a ruling of the interstate commerce commission, transportation over railroad lines no longer may be given to newspaper publishers or editors in exchange for advertising space in their newspapers.

A protest against this ruling has been received by the commission from the Massachusetts Press association, through William J. Hefferman, the secretary of the association. In Mr. Hefferman's communication, he says that the association unanimously voted to "Enter its protest against the reported ruling in holding that the payment for railroad transportation at full rates in advertising shall be treated on any other basis than that of transportation paid for in cash."

Knapp Explains Ruling.

In a letter to Secretary Hefferman, in response to the protest, Chairman Knapp, of the commission, says in part, after quoting the section of the law which prohibits the issuance of free transportation or transportation paid for in any other way than in cash:

"You are, of course, aware that all tariffs filed in compliance with the regulating statute name rates in dollars and cents, and do not in any case provide that transportation can be paid for with impunity. It seems plain to the commission that the law above quoted, coupled with the fact stated, permits payment for services of interstate carriers only in money.

"A contrary rule would sanction unequal compensation by different persons and involve ordinarily some degree of discrimination in favor of those permitted to exchange their commodities for the transportation they desire or secure. It is the aim of the law to prevent every sort of favoritism and secure absolute equality of treatment in all cases.

Doesn't Abridge Private Rights.

"This ruling of the commission in no way intereferes with or abridges the rights of private contracts. Newspapers and their advertising space may be freely exchanged for any species of property upon such terms as may be acceptable to the parties to the transaction, but the facilities of the public carrier are not private property, nor are they the subject of bargain and sale like merchandise. The right to travel or have property carried by rail, like the right to the common highway is not a contract right but a political right, the very essence of which is equality.

Complies with Statute.

"Conceding that the advertising arrangements in question are ordinarily made and carried out in good faith, it seems plain to me that these arrangements must, as a practical matter, involve some measures of discrimination, and it is not easy for me to see how an honest newspaper can seriously object to a ruling of the commission which appears to be in obvious accord with the provisions and the purposes of the restraining statute."

TAKE FIVE BODIES FROM RUINS

Total Number of Dead in Kansas City Fire Has Reached Eight.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 27.—Five bodies were recovered Friday from the ruins of the Chamber of Commerce building in Kansas City, Kan., which was destroyed by fire Thursday, and it is now known that at least eight persons lost their lives in the fire.

The body of Charles A. Lynch, a laborer, was recovered late Friday afternoon.

The bodies of Edward Winslow and his wife and two daughters were recovered earlier in the day.

Eight persons are still missing.

FARMERS FIX MINIMUM PRICES

American Society of Equity Agrees on Quotations for Products.

East St. Louis, Ill., Oct. 26.—The following minimum price scale was adopted at Thursday's session of the American Society of Equity:

Wheat, $1; corn, 45 cents, until January 1; 50 cents from January 1 to April 1; 55 cents April 1 until the next meeting of the society; oats, 40 cents; cotton, 12 cents based at New York; hogs, $6.50; cattle, $6; hay, $14. With the exception of cotton all prices are based on delivery at Chicago.

Attempts Murder; Kills Self.

New York, Oct. 27.—Believing that he had killed his sweetheart with the four bullets he fired at her, Frank Dorsey, a clerk, whose home was in Brooklyn, Friday shot himself dead in a Fourth avenue bird store, where both were employed. The young woman, Miss Josephine Schmidt, was only slightly wounded in the leg. Dorsey was 22 years old, seven years the junior of Miss Schmidt, who had refused to marry him.

Spain Fixes Foreign Contingent.

Madrid, Oct. 27.—The military contingent for 1907 has been fixed at 100,000 men.

HAD TO USE A CANE.

Weakened Kidneys Made an Elwood, Ind., Man's Back Give Out.

R. A. Pugh, transfer business, 2020 North B street, Elwood, Ind., says: "Kidney trouble kept me laid up for a long time, and when I was able to be up I had to use a cane. I had terrible backaches and pain in the shoulders. The kidney secretions were dark colored. After doctoring in vain, I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. Three boxes cured me entirely, and I am glad to recommend them."

Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Point Won by Flattery.

Gen. French, the English officer who represented that country at the recent French maneuvers, received the following letter after his triumphant return from the Boer war:

"My Dear French: You are a great British general. I want your autograph; but, whatever you do, don't let your secretary write it."

Needless to say, the boy got the autograph, and a signed photograph of his hero to boot.

A Good Record.

Out of all the external remedies on the market we doubt if there is one that has the record of that world-renowned porous plaster—Allcock's. It has now been in use for sixty years, and still continues to be as popular as ever in doing its great work of relieving our pains and aches. It is the remedy we all need when suffering from any ache or pain resulting from taking cold or overstrain.

Allcock's Plasters are sold by Druggists all over the world.

Playwright's Method of Work.

Mr. A. W. Pinero has an unusual method of writing his plays. His work day does not begin until that of the average city man is over. In the morning he goes out, preferably on his bicycle, returning in time for early dinner. Then he has a comfortable sleep, and on waking up, late in the afternoon, he prepares for business. After a cup of tea he goes to his desk and remains working at his play until far into the night.

Laundry work at home would be much more satisfactory if the right Starch were used. In order to get the desired stiffness, it is usually necessary to use so much starch that the beauty and fineness of the fabric is hidden behind a paste of varying thickness, which not only destroys the appearance, but also affects the wearing quality of the goods. This trouble can be entirely overcome by using Defiance Starch, as it can be applied much more thinly because of its greater strength than other makes.

Prospective employer—"Why did you leave your last place?" Irate Cook—"Humph! Why did yer last cook lave here?"

Defiance Starch—Sixteen ounces for ten cents, all other brands contain only 12 ounces for same money.

A man saves his religion and his best suit of clothes for Sunday.

BUILT UP HER HEALTH

SPEEDY CURE OF MISS GOODE

She Is Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and Writes Gratefully to Mrs. Pinkham.

For the wonderful help that she has found Miss Cora Goode, 255 E. Chicago Avenue, Chicago, Ill., believes it her duty to write the following letter for publication, in order that other women afflicted in the same way may be benefited as she was. Miss Goode is president of the Bryn Mawr Lawn Tennis Club of Chicago. She writes;

Miss Cora Goode

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I tried many different remedies to build up my system, which had become run down from loss of proper rest and unreasonable hours, but nothing seemed to help me. Mother is a great advocate of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female troubles, having used it herself some years ago with great success. So I began to take it, and in less than a month I was able to be out of bed and out of doors, and in three months I was entirely well. Really I have never felt so strong and well as I have since."

No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, bloating (or flatulence), displacement of organs, inflammation or ulceration, can be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Her experience is very great, and she gives the benefit of it to all who stand in need of wise counsel. She is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for twenty-five years has been advising sick women free of charge. Address, Lynn, Mass.

OWN AND OPERATE MINE.

THRIFTY MICHIGAN MINERS ARE THEIR OWN EMPLOYERS.

After More Than One Year's Trial Co-operative Mining Industry Has Been Declared a Success—Owned by Workmen.

Saginaw, Mich.—After a year's trial a cooperative coal mining industry at this place has been declared a success. This mine is owned by the workmen who operate it. They establish prices, make contracts and go down underground to dig out the product.

There are no labor troubles or strikes, for every man is personally interested in the welfare of the company.

It was on September 1, 1905, that coal was first sold from the new mine of the Caledonia company. There has been no idleness since, and the workmen-owners are preparing to put on double shifts to keep pace with their orders.

When it was organized the plan was to have the company consist of 100 men, and the capital stock was placed at $50,000. After a year of success it has been decided to increase the capital to $250,000 and the company to 500 men.

So well, in fact, has this purely cooperative mine done that two other organizations have been formed in Michigan along similar lines. One of these new companies, like the Caledonia, is formed entirely of practical handlers of the pick and shovel.

The men forming the Caledonia selected their executive officers from among themselves. Business of the company is looked after by a general superintendent, who is responsible to a board of managers.

At all times the acts of the board are subject to review by a general assembly of the miners, who keep in touch with the affairs of the concern as they do with the vein of coal from which they make their living.

When it came to an allotment of the stock few of the men were able to take more than a small holding. They were not capitalists.

Some, in fact, had little or no money and arranged to pay their part in labor.

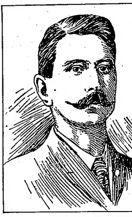
Last spring the Caledonia workers fixed upon the 1903 scale of wages as that to be paid in their mine. This is 5.55 per cent. higher than the scale of the succeeding season—1904-5. The average pay of the Caledonia miner is now $2.75 a day.

So far the workmen-owners have refrained from declaring a dividend. Starting with a small capital, they have considered it wiser to turn back into the mine, for the development of the property, all profits above operating expenses.

Then, too, the original mine has only 40 acres of coal land, and as there has been a steady demand for the output it was necessary to look to the future.

Recently the company has purchased an additional 500 acres adjoining its mine.

It was by good fortune and an exercise of shrewdness that the Caledonia people secured their original 40 acres.



BENJAMIN R. CUSHMAN.
(Secretary of the Coal Company Owned by Workmen.)

In the midst of land controlled by a combination of existing companies was this little tract, on which the combination was paying royalties. Thinking that it would be well to save this amount, and that there would be no difficulty in securing control at any time, the holders permitted the lease to lapse.

Waiting for just such an opportunity, the Caledonia promoters quietly and quickly secured a lease upon it themselves.

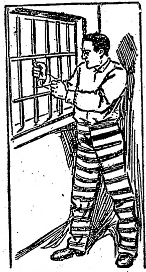
So secretly were all the preliminaries carried on that it was only when the work of sinking a shaft was begun that the actual existence of the new workingmen's company became generally known.

●●

WITH A WOOLEN STRING.

Convict Cuts His Way Through Bessemer Steel Bars.

St. Louis.—Out of pieces of woolen yarn, unraveled from a sock and twisted together, a prisoner in the new federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan., constructed an instrument which he used to saw through the top and bottom of a three-inch steel bar.



SAWING THE STEEL BARS.
(Convict at Work in the Penitentiary at Leavenworth.)

That a common piece of yarn could be made to cut the strongest steel bars, tested with acids and resisting steel saws, is a discovery that not only surprises police and keepers of jails and penitentiaries, but scientists as well. It is the first case of the kind on record, as far as can be learned, and the prisoner who used it in the Leavenworth penitentiary is the originator.

The prisoner was confined in one of the isolation cells. A guard standing on a tier above noticed him working his hands back and forth around the bars and notified the guards on the lower floor. They investigated and found that the top had been sawed through. The bottom was about half through. The prisoner readily confessed and showed the warden how he had accomplished the feat.

The ravelings of his woollen sock he had twisted together as a tailor would pieces of thread. He had made them compact by frequent wettings. Dust and sand picked up in the quarry were kneaded into the string. When finished it was almost as hard as a piece of emery stone. It required two days, he said, to saw through the bar with the string, several new strings having to be made, as they wore out quickly.

The warden doubted the statement at first. The prisoner offered to show him and made one of the instruments out of common twine. Small pieces of a broomstick were used as handles. With this the warden had the prisoner finish sawing through the bottom of the bar.

When plans for the new penitentiary were made it was decided to use Bessemer steel for the window gratings, it being deemed harder and nearer saw-proof than the iron which had been used. The bars at his window were the ones sawed. The opening made was large enough for a man to have crawled through.

"The fact that Bessemer steel bars have been successfully sawed without using steel makes it more and more necessary that guards be constantly on the watchout," said Mr. Shipley. "Prisoners have made saws of tin cans and the like, but never before of common yarn."

TWAIN'S DAUGHTER ON STAGE.

Start Her American Career at Norwalk, Conn.

Norwalk, Conn.—Mark Twain's daughter, Miss Clara Clemens, made her American debut as a concert singer in this city.

MISS CLARA CLEMENS.
(Daughter of the Greatest of American Humorists.)

Miss Clemens first appeared in a professional way at Florence, Italy, under favorable auspices. She has a rich contralto voice of unusual clarity and beauty, and for years has been devoting herself to its cultivation under the best masters in Europe.

Miss Clemens was assisted in her Norwalk recital by Miss Marie Nicholls, a young Boston violinist.

An Explanation.

"Why is a great man more appreciated after he is dead?"

"He is not more appreciated," answered Senator Sorghum. "He is more freely complimented because he is less feared by envious rivals."—Washington Star.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

MAY SHIP VEAL.

Minneapolis.—A number of complaints from farmers who ship dressed veal have been received by E. K. Slater, state dairy and food commissioner, stating that they could not ship their veal since the new law went into effect, as the express companies refuse to carry it unless it is inspected. Mr. Slater feared that if the law were to be enforced this way it might have the effect of stopping farmers and retail butchers from killing veal for shipment and force them to ship it alive to the large packers. The matter does not come under his duties, however, and he has referred the inquirers, and he says there are dozens of them, to Dr. Ketchum, the government inspector at South St. Paul.

First of all the law compels the inspection only in slaughtering houses which are doing an interstate business. Further the law specifically provides "that the provisions of this act requiring inspection to be made by the secretary of agriculture shall not apply to animals slaughtered by any farmer and sold and transported as interstate or foreign commerce, nor to retail butchers and retail dealers in meat and meat food products supplying their customers."

SUICIDE.

Duluth.—Joseph Jindra, aged 26, whose parents reside at New Prague, Minn., committed suicide here yesterday after repeated attempts. He was stopping at a bowery lodging house, and wrote a letter asking forgiveness of his parents for his rash act, and then began firing a revolver at his head.

He fired five shots at his head without hitting himself, and then placed the muzzle of a rifle against his breast and fired it. This produced the desired result and Jindra died immediately.

He left $45 in money and a diamond ring to the poor, providing his parents did not refuse to bury him.

The names of his parents are not mentioned in the letter, nor does he give any reason for committing suicide, other than he must do it. Jindra had been working in the woods of northern Minnesota for some time.

HONOR THE DEAD.

St. Paul.—Honor and tribute was paid to the memory of the departed members of the Ancient Order of United Workmen at the People's church, where the annual memorial services of the lodge were held.

Fully 1,500 people were there to hear the addresses. The pulpit was decorated with the emblems of the lodge in floral designs, while a score of candlesticks, each bearing several lighted candles, flickered from the tables in front of the speaker's platform. The various lodge banners also occupied prominent places between the chairs of the speakers.

MAY STRIKE.

Minneapolis.—Representatives of the Switchmen's Unions of the Twin Cities will confer with the officials of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads in regard to an increase in wages. The switchmen sent their ultimatum to the officials Sept. 25 and they demanded an answer within 30 days. They asked for a schedule of wages of 42 cents an hour for night work and 38 cents for day work. They also asked for an eight-hour day and that preferred positions in the yards be given to the oldest switchmen qualifying.

ROBBED.

Duluth.—J. H. Pinkerton, treasurer of the town of Schroeder, Cook county, Minn., is short $3,000, and explains that he was robbed of that amount a few days ago while transferring the money from a Duluth bank to the Cook County Bank at Grand Marais, the county seat of Cook county. He carried the money in a satchel, and says that while going from the boat at Grand Marais to the hotel, after dark, a man rushed up and seized the satchel and vanished in the gloom.

TWIN CITY MAN.

Washington.—Herbert G. Squieres, who has recently been appointed minister to Panama to succeed Charles E. Magoon, resided for many years in the Twin Cities, the family having located in Minneapolis in 1870, where his father was senior member of the firm of Squieres, Hart & Monroe.

Herbert Squieres has for many years been identified with public service in both the army and diplomatic corps. In both branches he achieved distinction as an officer and diplomat.

NEWS NOTES.

Minneapolis—The new minister to Panama formerly resided in the Twin Cities.

St. Paul.—The A. O. U. W. and Degree of Honor lodges hold their annual memorial service.

Rochester.—A party of surveyors is in this city surveying the route of an electric railroad to be run from Dubuque to the Twin Cities. The road is to run across the center of the city, with connections with St. Mary's Hospital and the state hospital and with a branch line running to Oronoco. It is expected to be built next summer.

Minneapolis.—Geo. W. Cooley, engineer of the state highway commission, is much pleased at the results obtained in the piece of experimental road built by the commission near Crookston this summer. He is exhibiting with considerable pride a picture of a part of the road showing it as level as a macadamized street, and he says it has been free from ruts all summer, in spite of the wet weather.

Alexandria.—The Alexandria Business Men's Association has elected the following officers: President, A. H. Gregersen; vice president, G. A. Kortsch; secretary, E. E. McCrea; treasurer, W. T. Cowing; executive committee, G. B. Ward, H. T. Holverson, August Nagel, Andrew Jackson and W. K. Barnes.

St. Paul.—Roy Asp, sixteen years old, an A. D. T. messenger boy, was accidentally shot by Ernest Gustafson, also a messenger boy, at Asp,s home, 923 Margaret street.

St. Paul.—E. Olson declines to be robbed and turns his alleged assailant over to the police.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Spain's military contingent for 1907 has been fixed at 100,000 men.

The steamer Graf Waldersee has arrived in New York with 35,000 birds.

The cruiser Minneapolis arrived at Philadelphia with 400 marines from Havana, Cuba.

Joseph Schroeder fell 400 feet into a Pennsylvania mine airshaft and was only slightly bruised.

Mrs. Louisa Smith, the oldest gypsy in America, died in a camp near Freehold, N. J., aged 101.

Secretary Taft, at the request of Senator Warren, of Wyoming, will deliver a speech at Cheyenne on November 5.

Silverware for holiday presents will come higher this year because of the increased cost of silver bullion and of labor.

Frank Dorsey, a Brooklyn clerk, fired four shots at Josephine Schmidt, who had jilted him, and then killed himself.

Eduardo Alonzo, a newspaper man, and Ranon Mondoza, member of the council, fought a duel at Havana. Both were wounded.

Reports as to stringent regulations at the University of Berlin intended to shut out Americans are officially declared to be untrue.

Vladimir Poulsen, of Copenhagen, has invented a wireless system substituting a continuous flow of energy for intermittent sparks.

Gov. Higgins, of New York, announces he will take no further action in the Albert Patrick case until a final federal court decision.

The stock in the wholesale drug house of Berry, Demoville & Co., on the public square of Nashville, Tenn., was damaged $50,000 by fire.

The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railroad company announced a straight fare of 2½ cents would be charged in Indiana after November 1.

"Slab" Pitts, a negro, who was run out of Roswell, N. M., after serving 90 days for violation of the Edmunds act, was lynched by cowboys at Toyah, Tex.

Several Dominican generals in the recent rebel army have fled across the border into Hayti. They will embark for a foreign country, as they are barred from Hayti.

Frank W. Mack, for many years a newspaper man and formerly superintendent of the eastern division of The Associated Press, died at Santa Ana, Cal., of consumption.

The president has received the report of a committee sent to Oklahoma to investigate charges preferred against Gov. Frantz of that territory. It completely exonerates him.

The New Zealand parliament approved the renewal of the San Francisco mail subsidy. A contract was also approved, giving $3,000 to steamers on the Vancouver service that make the trip in 18 days.

FRATERNALS MUST PAY TAXES

Illinois Supreme Court Holds Legislature Has No Power of Exemption.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 25.—The supreme court Wednesday rendered an opinion in the case of the supreme lodge of the Modern American Fraternal order against the board of review of Effingham county.

The supreme lodge scheduled office furniture and supplies for taxation amounting to $6,000. The board of review added $30,000, the amount of mortuary expense fund on hand. The lodge appealed from the action of the board, asserting such fund was exempt under the provisions of the act of 1905.

The court holds that the legislature had no power of exemption.

Ex-Consular Agent Dead.

Paris, Oct. 27.—Milton M. Price, ex-Unitew States consular agent at Xeres de la Frontera, Spain, died here Thursday.

French Warship to Tangier.

Paris, Oct. 27.—In view of the situation in Morocco the French government has decided to send a warship to Tangier.

THE MARKETS.

New York, Oct. 27.

LIVE STOCK—Steers	$5 00	@ 5 75
Hogs, State	6 80	@ 6 90
Sheep	3 50	@ 5 50
FLOUR—Minn. Patents	4 15	@ 4 40
WHEAT—December	81⅛@	81⅜
May	83⅛@	83⅜
CORN—December	58¾@	58⅞
RYE—No. 2 Western	69½@	70
BUTTER	19 @	26½
CHEESE	12¾@	13
EGGS	24½@	25

CHICAGO.

CATTLE—Choice Steers	$6 00	@ 7 25
Common to Good Steers	4 85	@ 6 00
Yearlings	4 50	@ 6 10
Bulls, Common to Choice	2 25	@ 4 00
Calves	3 00	@ 7 50
HOGS—Light Mixed	6 20	@ 6 40
Heavy Packing	6 05	@ 6 25
Heavy Mixed	6 20	@ 6 35
BUTTER—Creamery	19 @	25½
Dairy	18½@	23
EGGS	19½@	21½
LIVE POULTRY	8½@	14
POTATOES (bu.)	34 @	43
WHEAT—December	72⅜@	72⅞
May	77⅛@	77⅜
Corn, May	43⅛@	43⅜
Oats, May	34⅝@	34¾
Rye, December	62½@	63

MILWAUKEE.

GRAIN—Wheat, No. 1 Nor'n	$ 78 @	79
December	72⅝@	72⅞
Corn, December	43¼@	43⅜
Oats, Standard	34 @	35
Rye, No. 1	65½@	66

KANSAS CITY.

GRAIN—Wheat, December	$ 67 @	67⅛
May	71¼@	71⅜
Corn, December	37⅞@	38
Oats, No. 2 White	33½@	34

ST. LOUIS.

CATTLE—Beef Steers	$3 50	@ 7 00
Texas Steers	2 40	@ 5 50
HOGS—Packers	6 15	@ 6 35
Butchers	6 25	@ 6 35
SHEEP—Natives	3 00	@ 5 25

OMAHA.

CATTLE—Native Steers	$4 25	@ 6 40
Stockers and Feeders	2 75	@ 4 50
Cows and Heifers	2 50	@ 4 50
HOGS—Heavy	6 10	@ 6 25
SHEEP—Wethers	5 00	@ 5 50

A FABLE FROM NATURE.

A nightingale wooed, in a garden green,
The loveliest rose that ever was seen,
And he sang for her, with his wilding art,
The tremulous plaint of a wistful heart.

"Dearest nightingale," said the little rose,
"Such a wonderful gift you songs disclose,
That I long for this world to share with me
The magical charm of your melody."

The nightingale thrilled with a joyous pride,
As he flew to the tree-tops far and wide—
And plaintive and tender and sweet he sang,
Till the whole green earth with his praises rang.

But the rose no echo nor tidings knew,
And paler and frailer each day she grew;
Yet, bravely she answered the jeering rain—
"Nay, hush! for my love will come back again."

When the first wild joy of his song was spent,
The nightingale back to the garden went.
"Dear rose, I have brought you my fame!" he said.
But no answer came—for the rose was dead.
—Charlotte Becker, in Puck.

With That Exception.

"I hope you had no trouble in holding the congregation while I was away," said Rev. Dr. Fourthly, who had just returned from his summer vacation.

"Well, no," said Rev. K. Mowatt Laightly, the young clergyman who had occupied the pulpit during his absence, "except on one occasion. I had announced the Sunday previous that I should preach a sermon for the benefit of the heathen, and there didn't anybody come. I think the congregation must have misunderstood me, somehow."—Chicago Tribune.

In for It.

"What's the matter, my boy? You look discouraged."

"I am. My boss invited me out to his house to dinner a few evenings ago."

"Well, that's not so bad."

"You don't understand. I accepted his invitation, and I'm afraid now that I'll have to marry his eldest daughter or lose my job."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Practical Girl.

"She had two suitors," said the person who is telling of the romance in the life of the fair young girl who had just been married. "One of them thought of her all day and dreamed of her all night. And she—"

"And she married him?"

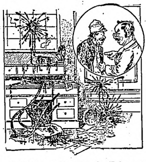
"No, indeed. She married a man who thinks of money all day and dreams of it all night."—Judge.

It's Different There.

"I read somewhere the other day," said the sweet young thing, "that one of the Russian grand dukes grafted to the extent of $35,000,000 in one year."

"Yes," replied the ex-insurance official, "over there a man doesn't have to divide up with so many people in order to get them to keep their mouths shut."—Chicago Record-Herald.

CORDIAL INVITATION.



Bookkeeper (to porter)—Take a wet cloth Antone, and clean up the boss' private office. It looks as if he had to write to his mother-in-law again inviting her to make him a visit.—Fliegende Blaetter.

Infallible.

The beauty doctor doesn't tell
The greatest, best recipe
By which the ugly girls may become beautiful and sweet;
And so I'm glad to give it here,
I'm a free-hearted one;
The way to be a charmer right
Is to inherit "mun."
—Houston Post.

He Made Good.

"Give me a little time," said the young man, in concluding his graduating essay, "and I will do something that will arouse the country."

Three months later he was making good.

He was peddling alarm clocks in a farming district.—Chicago Daily News.

Diplomatic.

Reporter—Colonel, how do you stand on the question of the spelling reform?

Political Leader—Any system of spelling that suits the plain peepul of this country, sir, is good enough for me.—Chicago Tribune.

Doesn't He Get It?

"I have just heard of the champion mean man."

"What did he do?"

"Offered to give his wife alimony out of the money she had inherited just before he married her."—Chicago Record-Herald.

After.

It frequently happens that the girl who can twist a man around her finger has an entirely different proposition on her hands after they get married.—Chicago Record-Herald.

FAILED TO PLEASE.

His eyes make no attempt to conceal his admiration of the beautiful young thing as she enters the parlor.

Indeed, he does not want them to.

"You are positively queenly," he declares, enthusiastically.

An offended expression comes to her face.

"Queenly?" she asks, disdainfully.

"Yes; you are a veritable queen in appearance."

Haughtily she bids him leave.

"But why?" he inquired, amazed.

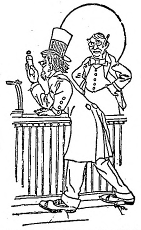
"Oh, nothing. I'm a queen in appearance, am I? Well, I happened to look over a lot of magazine pictures of different queens and princesses today, and if you think I look like them it's time for you and me to be strangers."—Life.

Still a Novice.

"Is Bunkerton much of a golf player?"

"Oh, he puts up a fair game, but he still has an idea that his locker was made merely to hang his clothes in."—Chicago Record-Herald.

GOT HIS.



Customer—Couldn't you run this hotel without a bar?

Hotelkeeper—Not very well.

Customer—Why not?

Hotelkeeper—Because nobody volunteers to tell me how to run it except intoxicated individuals.—Chicago Daily News.

Peek-a-Boo.

When aerial navigation has been solved,
And men can go
O'er the housetops and the steeples
In their daily to and fro,
Even folks in tall skyscrapers
Will, however, they're inclined,
Recognize that it is prudent
To 'most always close the blind.
—Houston Post.

Evidence.

"Yep," remarked Si Whipple, the landlord of the Benson Bend hotel, "ther sausages I've bean a-feedin' my guests air made from kanines."

"How'd yer find thet out?" inquired the postmaster.

"Wa-al, I fed 'em sausages fer a week, an' by Saturday every guest I had begun ter growl."—Judge.

Long-Felt Want.

Caller—Are you the chap who invented the machine for locating fires?

Inventor—Yes.

Caller—Well, I've got an idea for you to work on.

Inventor—What is it?

Caller—Invent a machine for locating a policeman when he is wanted.—Chicago Daily News.

The Same Stick.

Lady Finehealth (at hotel entrance)—No, I have no money to spare for you. I don't see why an able-bodied man like you should go around begging.

Lazy Tramp—I s'pose, mum, it's fer about the same reason that a healthy woman like you boards at a hotel instead of keepin' house.—N. Y. Weekly.

Family Ties.

Diggs—Did you hear about Mrs. Weeds?

Biggs—No; what of her?

Diggs—Why, she married her former husband's brother last week.

Biggs—You don't say!

Diggs—Yes; and now she refers to the late lamented as her deceased brother-in-law.—Chicago Daily News.

Had Had Training.

"We want a man for our information bureau," said the manager, "but he must be one who can answer all sorts of questions and not lose his head."

"That's me," replied the applicant. "I'm the father of eight children."—Cassell's Journal.

An Explanation.

"Why is a great man more appreciated after he is dead?"

"He is not more appreciated," answered Senator Sorghum. "He is more freely complimented because he is less feared by envious rivals."—Washington Star.

Domestic Science.

"I may be old fashioned," said Uncle Jerry Peebles, "but I'm durned if I can see any economy in buyin' a 25 cent chunk of ice to keep six cents' worth of blue milk from spoilin'."—Chicago Tribune.

And Then.

Jack—You're not in love, Bob. You only think you are.

Bob—Well, how on earth am I to find out my mistake if I am mistaken?

"Oh, marry the girl, by all means."—Cassell's Journal.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-class matter August 30. 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

We were placed in the position at the primary election of not having any votes to talley, but it is different now, as the boys are all home from Dakota.

There is one thing that is gratifying to us, and that is when THE SUNBEAM gets into a row, all the subscribers begin to look for a stick to hit the other fellow a crack.

If Thief River Falls want to show themselves square let them vote their party ticket next Tuesday. We have the so called square Deal candidates skined any how, but if you vote on that solid business you simply show the balance of the county, what you would do if you had the chance.

We can not yet believe that the sensible people and voters of Thief River Falls will be drawn into a campaign, (by office seekers, that want to make a cheap campaign) in which they will place themselves in the position of being on one side of a question and Red Lake County on the other. It is up to the people to test the matter next Tuesday, to see whether the dog wags the tail or the tail wags the dog, in this County.

It is rather late in the day for Ernest L. Quist to begin to whine about the opposition to his candidacy on this reservation after he has turned down the republican voters that gave him the nomination and went into a combination to defeat other candidates on the republican ticket, as the toole of Thief River Falls plan to elect a county-ticket that Were favorable to the tax payers paying the county seat removel expenses. Oh no Mr. Quist, if you wanted our support you should have stayed right by the republican party and made a campaign of principal, instead of selling out to the most corrupt " pot gang" of politicans that ever enfested any state or County, you made your bed, now lie on it and quit your whineing.

Now don't forget Johnson, we mean the court commissioner Johnson, the old man that wares glasses because he needs them, not like Quist who had his picture taken in them for effect. This Johnson is the man who was offered one hundred dollars to pull off from the ticket, he don't say by who, but we believe he missed a good thing by not taking it. We bet that John Estman thinks it is Duffy of Red Lake Falls that offered him the hundred but you may be sure it was not, for if Duffy threw away money like that he would not have any left in his bank in a short time. But anyhow give the old man a vote as he is about the only one that stands any show of being elected of "The Square Deal" candidates and we don't want to be negish like our brother John and take the whole thing, so give them the court commissioner. But be sure to not get the two Johnsons mixed up and vote for the one on the head of the ticket, instead of the one on the tail, as the democrats stand in mortal fear of a mix up of the Johnsons.

JOHN ESTMAN
VS
ELEVEN TOWNSHIPS.

The Thief River Falls News, (John Eastmans paper), says, "Editor Hunt is certainly loosing cast with his neighbors. for the residents out there are all united for the ticket which he's opposing".

Well now wouldent that "jar" you. Who are they supporting John? Are they supporting a gang Captained by a man who did all that was in his power to prevent the settlers on this resvation from getting an extension of time on their land, so they would be compelled to make final proof on their land. that you might publish part of their notices and the banks loan them money?

Are they supporting a "gang" Captained by a man that said, when wimen of questionable chaactor were ordered out of Thief River Falls and Plummer, that they, the wimen, "should move up to the town of High Landing, where they could practice their profession, undisturbed by respectiable people or officers of the law?"

Are they going to vote for a "gang" Captained by a man, that swore to an affidavit before the U. S. Land office eight months ago, "that the land for miles around in the vicinity in which THE SUNBEAM is SUPPOSED to be published is only partially settled, with scaresely any improvements thereon; that nearly all of said settlers are homesteaders who live on their claims only a portion of the year, a large portion of them moveing into the Cities and Villages during the winter months and return to their claims in the spring of the year?"

Did not space forbid we could publish colums to prove the friendship of John Estman for the settlers on this reservation, but if you are of the opinion that him and his "gang" ticket are the ones to tye to go vote it, then go down to John Estman, and ask him to use his influence for an other years extension of time of payment on this reservation and see if he don't say; "prove up and make a loan and pay up the government" It does not make any difference to us for we can publish your Notice to make final proof, the Notice of Mortgage foreclosure on, your home, or the tax title on your land and be sure of our pay, as the bankers will pay us, then Hunt can ware a plug hat and might regain "his lost cast among his neighbors."

When this campaign is over, and the smoke of battle has rolled away we shall stand just in in the same position on the county seat removel "scrap" that we have always taken, which is let the two Fall's have it out, as we are to far away from them to to desire to take any part in it, as we have had enough experience in County seat rows, and don't want any more of that kind of glory. But if either side envade our territory and touch the intrest of our neighbors, the settlers on this reservation, we will dig up that buried hatchet, and make it as interesting for them as poosiable.

We don't know how Thief River and Red Lake Falls are fight ing this campaign, but we do know we are not in any county seat removel game, but are simply in the campaign for the election of county officers in Red Lake county.

If this County officer campaign being conducted by Thief River Falls is under the direction of the County seat removel committee, we would advise the property owners of that place to call a meeting at once and fire that committee.

A. L. COLE,

Who will lead the Republican party to victory; In this State next Tuesday

Republican State Ticket.

United States Senator—
Knute Nelson,
Douglas County.

Governor—
A.L. Cole,
Cass County.

Lieutenant Governor—
A.O. Eberhart,
Blue Earth County.

Chief Justice—
Charles M. Start,
Olmsted County.

State Treasurer—
Clarence Dinehart,
Murray County.

Secretary of State—
Julius Schmahl,
Redwood County.

Attorney General—
E.T. Young,
Swift County.

State Auditor—
S.G. Iverson,
Fillmore County.

Clerk of Supreme Court—
C.A. Pidgeon,
Wright County.

Railroad Commissioner—
C.F. Staples,
Dakota County.

For Congress 9th District.
HALVOR STEENERSON
Polk County.

State Senator 61st Ditrict.
A. L. HANSON.

Representative 61st District.
JENS J. OPSAHL.

COUNTY TICKET

AUDITOR- JAMES E. FORD,

TREASURER-K. M. HANSEN.

REGISTER OF DEEDS-FRANK JEFFERS.

SHERIFF—DAN LINNIHAN.

JUDGE OF PROBATE- N. W. TARRANT,

COUNTY ATTORNEY—THOMAS GERMO.

County Surveyor—J. K. WOOD;

Clerk of Court—JOSEPH PERRAULT.

COURT COMMISSIONER—S T. JOHNSON.

County Superintendent of Schools—H. T. MCANULTY, or FRED RICHARDS. Let The Ladies decide;

REMEMBER TO VOTE THE ABOVE TICKET TUESDAY.

ELEVEN TOWNS IN LINE.

Frank Jeffers, candidate for re-election to the office of Register of Deeds, was in this vicinity this week interviewing the voters here. Mr. Jeffers has had but one term in this office and has made an excellent officer. Those who have had the largest volume of business with his office are the loudest in his praise, regardless of party or location. This office is one of the most important, as well as the most difficult in the county to conduct, and the voters will do well to retain the man whom they have tried and not found wanting.-Reservation Eleven Towns.

Thats the stuff Alex give it to a man of the stump of Quist that would sell out the Republican ticket, and the interest of his home country to a "Pot Gang" of County treasurer "Lotters" to get office.

VOTE FOR JEFFERS.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam October 5th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. September 27th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L.G. Browning U.S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota on November 5th 1906 viz:

Christen H. Bjerke.

H.E. No. 697, Red Lake Series, for the Lots 3. 4, E½ S.W. ¼ Sec. 31, Twp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

John M. Johnson, Bernt Johnson. Ole Gsving. of Brunkeberg Minn. Gulbrand Granum, of Thief River Falls Minn.

R. J. Montague, register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam October 5th 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office, at Crookston Minn. September 28th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L.G. Browning, U.S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota on November 5th 1906 viz:

Thom M. Thorson.

H.E. No. 780 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 1. 2, E½ N.W. ¼ Sec. 7 Twp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ole H. Langlie, Jacob B. Nesheim, Carl J. Olson, of Brunkeberg Minn. Aaron E. Abraham of Thief Riv Falls Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Oct. 12th, 1906.

Department of the Interior.

Land Office at Crookston Minn. September 26th, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that OLUF SNOBACK of Rhoda Minn., has filed notice of his intention to make final Commutation proof in support of his claim viz: Homestead Entry No. 1216 Red Lake Series made July 26th 1905, for the S. E. ¼ Section 32 Township 153 N. Range 40 W., and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on November 16th 1906,

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Andreas Christiansen. George Singer. Stephen Singer, Knut K. Olson, all af Rhoda Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register

Notice for Publication.

First Pub in The Sunbeam October 10th 1906

Department of the Interior; Land Office; at Crookston Minn. October 17th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that TERESA O' REILLY of Germantown Minn., has filed notice of his intention to make final commutation proof in support of his claim, viz: Homestead Entry, No. 784. Red Lake Series. made October 26th 1904, for the S. W. ¼ Sec. 27 Twp. 154 N. R. 40 W. and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the United States Land office, at Crookston Minn. on December 4, 1906.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Alfred T. Rice, John Connacker, Donald O'Brien, Kathleen A. Daley all of Germantown Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam September 28 1906.

Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston Minn. August September 25, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before L.G. Browning U.S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota, on November 5th 1906, viz:

Fred Solie.

H.E. No. 538 Red Lake Series, for the N.W. ¼ Sec. 16, Twp. 154. N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Knut Rogness, Ole Wiseth, Pete Brevik, of Germantown Minn. Olef Arakre of Brunkeberg Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

H. & B. MILLING CO.
BEST
VIVO
PATENT
96
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.
VIVO

VIVO

HANDLED BY ALL THE LEADING MERCHANTS OF THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

(ALWAYS CALL FOR VIVO)

We pay the highest market price for all grain, at our mill in Thief River Falls, or at our elevator at Plummer, and always have on hand a compleat line of flour & feed at both points.

☞ Promt shipments made by boat to all points along the Red Lake River.

We solicit your orders.

Hanson & Barzen Milling Company.

THE MERCHANTS

State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds, Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.

J. A. DUFFY, Cashier.

The Radny Store:

☞ THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE RADNY STORE.

John has, Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes.

A full and complete line of groceries.

Best brands of flour, at lowest market price

.... .00............

Call and see me for bargains, at Raday post office and store.

John Radneskie.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam October 19, 1906

Department of the Interior., Land Office at Crookston, Minn. October 17th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that JOHN CONNACKER, of Germantown Minn., has filed notice of his intention to make final commutation proof in support of his claim, viz: Homestead Entry No. 701, Red Lake Series, made October 5th 1904, for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 28, Twp. 154 N. R. 40 W. and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the United States Land Office, at Crookston Minn. on December 4th 1906.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Alfred T. Rice, Teresa O'Reilly, John O'Reilly, Kathleen A. Daley all of Germantown Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Don't forget Dan.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam October 19, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. October 17th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that KATHLEEN A. DALEY, of Germantown Minn., has filed notice of his intention to make final commutation proof in support of his claim, viz: Homestead Entry; No. 785, Red Lake Series, made October 26th 1904, for the N.W. ¼ Sec. 28, Twp. 154 N. R. 40 W. and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the United States Land office at Crookston Minn. on December 4th 1906.

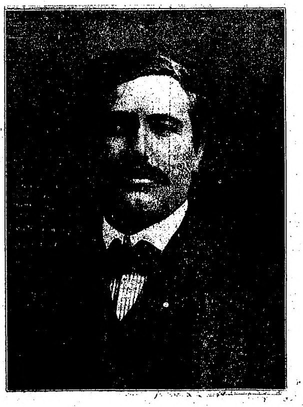
He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Albert T. Rice, Teresa O'Reilly. John O'Reilly, John Connacker all of Germantown Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, register.

DON'T FORGET DAN:

Vote For Jeffers,-X.



THE LOCAL NEWS.

VOTE FOR FORD.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

VIVO flour is the best. Ask your dealer for vivo.

HORSES FOR SALE, at the Plummer livery barn.

We had our first snow storm on Monday.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar will cure your cough.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar will bring relief to Asthma patients.

It is up to the people, to turn out to Election.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar Do not wait get it at the first indication of cough or cold.

We extend thanks to a large number of our Friends for subscription paid during the last two weeks.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar, is a remedy that cures by removing the cause. Try a 50ct. bottle.

E.M. Stanton and E.L. Quist made an appeal for votes to our new school house seats, last Saturday evening.

H.P. Mark of Fosston was doing business with our merchants yesterday, for the Marks medicine Co. of Fosston.

Mrs. Walt McAndresa recieved word Tuesday, that her mother was lying near death at Blooming Prairie and left for there this morning.

If you are of the opinion we are wrong on the question of the election of county officers in this county, vote the "gang" ticket, Vote her straight.

The Hommy Bros. had to lay up their threshing rig for to days on account of the storm this week and improved the opportunity to visit their homes in Equality Township.

The prairie fires that were raging in this locality, last week must have driven all the deer out. as we did not see the track of one in the snow Tuesday, while out hunting.

D. Kolstrand and Ole Howard went to Thief River Falls, Wednesday, Mr. Howard by team and Mr. Kolstrand by boat. He made this office a pleasant call and gave his subscription an other years boost.

Highlanding is to have a Lisenced auctineer. Halvor Hommy having applied for Lisense. Any one desiring his service can write him at Erie. Halvor is a first class auctineer and gives the best of satisfaction.

Thomas Germo spoke to a large and appreciative audience at Rhoda Wednesday evening, and to an other here last night. They all turn out to hear Tom, and they will all turn out and vote for him Tuesday.

The mail contractor has been changed on this rout from Sunbeam to Lillo. Engebert Vattendahl contractor, now Mrs. John Radneski, having resigned, and M.E. Hyland has contracted to carry the mail to June 30th next year.

George Singer and Charles W. Johnson of Rhoda, came up Saturday evening to attend, what they thought to be a political meeting, but the only result they got out of it, was one vote gained for Jeffers for Register of Deeds. Mr. Johnson said after the Quist meeting. "I bedogond if I ain't been a republican all my life and voted the ticket straight, but a man that will betray the party that gave him the nomination can't get my vote. Who is running against him?" Frank Jeffers.

We wish to notify our advertisers that we are in politicts this week and have neglected to attend to their orders, but next week we shall attend to that part of the business, for when your house is on fire you don't stop to consider what color you are going to paint it.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

The Ebenezer Ladies Sewing Society will hold a mission auction on Saturday, Nov. 10, at the school house district 34 near Willie Swansons house. The exercises will begin at 10, 30 o'clock a.m. and the ladies will serve free lunch for dinner. The auction will begin at 1 o'clock p.m. The ladies have worked industriously for the success of this entertainment and let us show them by a good attendance, and fair prices for the goods offered, that we apreaciate their efforts.

E.A. Mostue.

W. G. Hunt will speak at the Highlanding school house Saturday evening at 8 o'clock. Will preach at Radny Sunday after noon at 1 o'clock. Will speak at Kratka hall Monday evening at 8 o'clock. (Quists town) Come and hear the truth.

We would rather use the pencil, than the voice but we propose to use both from date to election day, as we don't propose to be lied about in our own territory without telling the people the truth, come to the meetings advertised by Hunt.

OLITICAL PCK-UPS.

Now we lay down the pen, satisfied. We have made a good fight and a clean fight, and one in the interest of the settlers on this reservation. It is up to you gentlemen to indorse one side or the other. The time for nutrality is past. Next Tuesday is election day.

Honorable Republicans Don't vote for E.L. Quist, because you think he is a Republican. He betrayed the party that gave him the nomination and sold out body and soul to the County treasury "loot gang." We don't want to trust a man to handle valuable papers for us in the Register of Deeds office that will do that. Do you?

VOTE FoR JEFFERS.

If Thief River Falls wanted the county attorneyship, why did they not nominate some honorable attorney of that place, that was not mixed up in the county seat scrap. Hit that "wood chuck" with an X November 6th.

VOTE FoR GERMo.

Be sure to mark an X opposit the name of Halvor Steenerson next Tuesday, for while he is not in any hard race, he will appreciate your indorsement for Steenersons X yes

We are sorry that we have not time, or space to dig into the affairs of Polk County legislative district fight, but when you run up against John Estman in a fight you usually have enough to attend to, without enterfering with your neighborhood.

The general opinion is that the county campaign is about the dirtiest, meanest proposition ever pulled off in this part of the country.—St. Hilaire Spectator.

Oh shucks Harry this aint bad, wait till we get in the county seat removel scrap. then's when you will see the mud fly.

The county ticket which we publish in another colum is a fair Representative ticket of parties, politicts, and factions and nationality in this county. Here you have Sweds, Norwegins, Germans, Irish, French, and Americans. Here you have Republicans, Democrats, and Independants. Four from Thief River Falls, four from Red Lake Falls, and two from the farming districts. Now Eleven Towners we are the jury, is not this a fair ticket.

VOTE FOR Jaffers.

VOTE FOR DAN.

ALL YOUR FALL NEEDS.

Will be well taken care of, If you come to the

GOLDEN RULE DEPARTMENT STORE,

THIEF RIVER FALLS.

Complete Departments, in CLOTHING, DRY GOODS, LADIES CLOKES, SHOES, Underware, Hats and Caps, all kinds Rubber goods, and Sheeplined Coats, and Don't Forget our GROCERY DEPARTMENT. We buy all kinds of farm produce.

O. J. SCHEI & CO., Props.

Request For Votes,

Vote For Germo.

FRED RICHARDS,

Black River Township.

Republican Candidate for Superintendant of Schools.

Respecitfully Solicits your vote and suppor November 6th.

JOSEPH PERRAULT

CLERK OF THE DISTRICT COURT

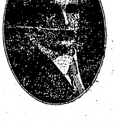
Respectfully solicits your vote and support at the general election on November 6, 1906

H. T. McAnulty

Supt. H.T. McAnulty wishes to announce to the voters of Red Lake County, that he is a candidate for re election. Mr McAnulty is serving his first term as Supt. of schools. He has received only $87.50 a month, and has paid all his own traveling expenses. He has visited nearly every school in the county twice each year, and has devoted his entire time and attention to the best interests of the school, and if re elected will certainly do as well in the future as in the past. He holds a complete state certificate valid in rural and graded schools of Minnesoa.

H.T. McAnulty.

James E. Ford,



Candidate for re-election as County Auditor of Red Lake County, has done his duty as a public official.

VOTE FOR HIM NOV. 6th,

Having served one term as County Attorney, I am asking for a second term, and would deeply appreciate the support of the voters in all parts of the County.

THOMAS GERMO.

MOB LAW.

Julius Pleth, the Land man of Plummer was assaulted on the publick street of Plummer this week, by E. M. Stanton, the "gang" Candidat for County attorney. If you want to indorse mob law in this county vote for E.M. Stanton. They are trying to MOB the Sheriff out of office in this County. Put an X where it will count next Tuesday and indorse law and order, so you can use your gun to shoot wild game with. Vote for Linnihan, for Sheriff and Germo for County attor[illegible]

Vote for your own interest next Tuesday, not for a "Gang" that is trying to run part of the people out of the country and get a mortgage on them that remain.

VOTE FOR FORD

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Oct. 26th, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota Oct. 23rd, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota, on December 6th, 1906. viz:

Walter H. Quist

H. E. No. 1145 Red Lake Series, for the S. E. ¼ Sec. 35, Twp. 154 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Harry Blackie, Charles P. Quist, of Thief River Falls Minn. Emil Sigrud, John Anderson, of Germatown Minnesota.

R.J. Montague, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam October 19th, 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. October 17th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that ALFRED T. RICE of Germantown, Minn., has filed notice of his intention to make final commutation proof in support of his claim, viz: Homestead Entry, No. 1151, R.L.S. made April 24, 1905, for the S.W.¼ Sec. 20. Twp. 154, N. R. 40 W and that said proof will be made before the Register and Reciever of the United States Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on December 4th, 1906.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz;

Teresa O'Reilly, Kathleen A. Daley, John O'Reilly, John Connacker all of Germantown Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam November 2, 1906.

Department of the Interior.- Land Office at Crookston Minn. october 24, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before J.M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls, Minn., at Thief River Falls Minn., on December 7th, 1906

SAMUEL A. MILLS.

H.E. no. 384 Red Lake Series, for the N.E.¼ Sec. 12 Twp. 153 N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivaton of said land viz:

Ole Oversen, Peter [illegible]ngstad, of Kratka Minn, Tom Thorson, Jacob B. Neshelm of Brunkeberg Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam November 2. 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. October 27, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before J.M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the city of Thief River Falls, Minn., at Thief River Falls, Minn., on December 7th, 1906.

NORA KRISTENE MARTINSON

H. E. No. 1192 Red Lake Series for the N.W. ¼ Sec. 23, Twp. 153 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous reesidence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Joseph Johnson, Gutorm G. Olson, Lars C. Fovir, Nels N. Grand all of Erle Minn.

R. J MONTAGUE, Register.

I am asking for re-election to the office of Register of Deeds and would deeply appreaciate the support of the voters in all parts of the County.

FRANK JEFFERS.

In Praise of Cockneys.

Cockneys are the best natured people under the sun. It is notorious that a big London crowd is of all crowds in the world the most harmless and the easiest to manage. But see them also in their ordinary collections, outside the gallery door of a popular theater or crowding in the carriages of an excursion train—what fun and kindness and wholesome give and take! A deliberately rude or offensive cockney is hardly to be met.—G. S. Street in Pall Mall Gazette.

The Mortality List.

Manager (of great exposition)—What alarms me is our mortality list. Assistant—Mortality list? Why, it's next to nothing at all! "I know better than that. More than one-third of the people that come through the turnstiles are deadheads."

THE FIRST

STATE BANK, OF

THIEF RIVER FALLS, WILL LOAN YOU THE

Money To Make Your Second Payment, or to make your final proof. Give us a call as we give the best rates

On Farm Loans.

NEW STORE,

AT ANTON MINNESOTA.

Dry Goods, Goceries, Flour & feed.

Fine & Heavy Shoes, of best quality.

EXCLUSIVE AGENTS FOR THE CELEBRATED DE LAVAL CREAM SEPERATOR, IN THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

Any Kind Of Stock taken In Exchange for Goods.

give me a call.

Located at Anton post office, on the Red Lake River, Eight miles east of Thief River Falls.

Christ Larsen.-Proprietor

Notice for Publication,

Fist Pub. Nov. 2, 1906.

Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston Minnesota October 31, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on December 18, 1906, viz:

Iver Johnson.

H.E. No. 1152 Red Lake Series, for the N.E.¼ Sec 29 Twp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

John Larson, Knut Larson, John Ellingbo, Nels Resen all of Lillo Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register,

DAN LINNEHAN,

Sheriff of Red Lake County

Candidate for re-election.

Your VOTE, and Support Respectfully Solicited.

Anxious.

"I hear that your wife has run away from you?"

"Yes. I've offered a reward for her capture, dead or alive."

"How much?"

"Ten dollars alive and a thousand dollars dead."—Judge.

MARKS'S LUNG BALSAM, with TAR.

For the cure of all diseases of the lungs, throat and chest, as Cough, cold, Asthma, Bronchitis, La Grip and will Prevent consumption when taken in time.

VOTE FOR GERMO.

ECZWEA and PILE CURE FREE.

Knowing what it was to suffer, I will give FREE OF CHARGE, to any afflicted a Positive cure for Eczema, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Piles and Skin Diseases. Instant relief. Don't suffer longer, Write F. W. Williams, 400 Manhattan Avenue, New York. Enclose Stamp.

U.S. Mail,

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 8. 30 a. m. on Tuesday's Thurday's and Saturday's. & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 3. p.m.

WM. G. HUNT, P.M.

The Only Sure Way.

"Say, old man," said the soulful young man, "what's the best way to find out what a woman thinks of you?" "Marry her," replied Peckham promptly.—Catholic Standard and Times.

TWO LIARS MADE ONE

By Leonard W. Conant

(Copyright, 1906, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

The canoe drifted idly on the shimmering water of the bay and the man and the woman in it seemed more occupied with their own thoughts than with each other—although the girl, it might be noted, ever and anon gave the man a covert glance from beneath the long lashes, as though she were trying to read something in his gloomy face.

"Beautiful cruise, this," he grunted presently, making several vicious lunges with the paddle.

"The day could not be more perfect," she replied, with that feminine substitute for sweetness which savors so much of gall and wormwood.

He swept the canoe along with strong, measured strokes for several minutes, the strength of his strokes being reflected in the savage firmness of his lips.

"If you have become permanently tongue-tied you may take me home," she said, presently, pulling her shapely hand out of the water, where it had been trailing idly. "I will try to find a deaf-mute to take me out next time—just for sociability's sake."

Silently he turned the bow of the craft toward the shore., then pausing with the paddle resting across his knees, he looked at her steadily and said:

"Look here, Ethel, what has happened since Wednesday? For the past three or four days a stone wall seems to have arisen between us. What is it? Tell me. For heaven's sake, let us have some sort of an understanding. If I have done anything to displease you, let me make amends. Only tell me what it is all about."

"You seem to have something on your mind yourself," she replied.

"Nonsense," he replied, sternly. "I am as I was a week ago, but I do not seem to be able to get within gunshot of you. Now I demand to know what is the matter."

"Oh, do you, indeed?" she replied, sweetly. "Quite dramatic, isn't it?"

He plunged the paddle into the water again savagely.

"There's that lovely new electric launch of O'Brien's just going in. I do wish you would take me down to the Point in it. They are going to have a lovely supper and a dance there to-night."

He looked at her with mingled reproach and dignity.

"You know perfectly well that O'Brien charges $2 an hour for the launch," he replied, "and that I could not afford to hire it for two hours—to say nothing about the eight or ten it would take to go to the Point and hold it over the dance. Besides, the supper tickets for to-night are $5 each. You forget that I am only a lawyer's clerk, although you said you understood it perfectly when you accepted my ring."

"That's right," she replied, looking him coolly in the face. "I did forget, and I beg your pardon."

"I see it all clearly now," he broke out passionately. "You are tired of being tied to a poor man and want your freedom. I was a fool to think that a girl like you could be contented to be tied to a poor devil on a salary of $15 a week and only the prospect ahead of being admitted to the bar after a time and then only a chance of establishing a practice." And he dug the paddle into the water with a vim that sent the little craft spinning shoreward.

"That is all very fine talk," she replied. "What does it mean?"

"It means that I thought we could get along very happily until I got my admission by being frugal and your helping some at first, as you said you intended to, by sticking to your typewriting," he replied. "But I perceive that the glamor of the world has possessed you. Well, be it so. God knows it has been the dream of my life, but I can see it is over now and I give you back your freedom." The paddle bent under the desperate energy of his strokes.

The girl looked him squarely in the eye and a slight sneer played over her mouth.

"You really should go on the stage," she replied, "and I would suggest melodrama. I do think, however, that you should have given me credit for more of a sense of perception than you did."

He paused and glanced at her in open-mouthed wonder.

"What do you mean?" he asked.

"I see it all very plainly now," the girl went on. "You have had your summer's fun, and the summer being about over, you now want to free yourself of the responsibilities of a seaside flirtation and go back to the city and brag about your little conquest. Do you think it quite generous, however, to throw the responsibility of the parting on me? Possibly you mean it to be a delicate way to soothe my pride—but the work is too coarse, sir. Well, I accept the situation and dismiss you and return you your ring."

She made a motion to pull the simple gold band from her finger, but he started forward and, being unable to reach her, fairly thrust the end of the paddle into her hands to prevent her from completing the threat.

"Wait," he commanded, imperiously. "This is no way to settle the destiny of two lives. Let us at least find out what it is all about. It is worse than foolish to take so radical a step as you propose without a clear and definite understanding."

So deadly cold was he and so dominant was his tone and attitude that the girl paused.

"I offer to release you from your engagement, Ethel," he went on, "only because it seems to me that you desire to be released. God knows I want you as ardently as ever I have. It is your own coldness and something that you have erected between us that led me to say what I did. I do not demand, nor do I want my own freedom, but I will not hold you to your promise if you desire to retract it."

"And supposing I do not?" she said, looking at him defiantly.

"Then all is well," he replied, eagerly.

"And you will be chivalrous and marry the typewriter with whom you have had a summer's flirtation," she said.

"Why not?" he replied, smiling. "If she will tie up to a poor devil of a lawyer's clerk, who is not making any more, if as much, as she is?"

"You might have spared yourself that mendacious lie," she replied, flushing hotly. "You have been deceiving me all summer, and you know it. The rich Mr. Wenham, with his automobiles and yachts and horses and summer place and house on the avenue, could well afford to take me to the Point in a hired electric launch if he were not acting a part."

"What do you mean?" he stammered.

"Oh, I happened to run across that dear Mrs. Perkins, at whose demure little farmhouse you board, and her command of the English language was scarcely sufficient to tell me of the glories of your wardrobe and your equipments, and the poor soul was nearly distracted that you always went forth so modestly attired and only entertained your fine friends from the hotel surreptitiously—albeit at great expense. I did not explain to her that you were putting yourself to all that trouble to fool a poor stenographer, but I did take pains to find out just who and what you are, and the result is that I know that you are a fraud."

The girl stopped with flashing eyes, and the young man, whose face had attained a flaming red, broke into a merry laugh.

"Well," he said, looking at the girl with provoking calmness, "I guess it is horse and horse."

"What do you mean?" she asked, sharply.

"Merely that while Mr. Wenham may have concealed his riches from Miss Vance, it also is true that Miss Vance, daughter of a banker and heiress to a million in her own right—which came to her from her grandfather Van Courtney, was trying to fool a poor lawyer's clerk and have a summer's romance at the expense of a broken heart."

The canoe swept up to the dock at this moment and he helped her out and dragged the canoe into the boathouse without giving her a chance to answer, although he noted her flaming cheeks.

"You see," he said, as he came out, wiping his hands on his trousers, "your work was as coarse as mine. "It was all very well to live at a cheap boarding house, but when we met the Ostlers and the Olrichs and the Van Dolds, as we did at times at the hotel and they made such a fuss over you, I did a little investigating myself. So now that we have proven ourselves two liars, let's make it one."

And, being in the lee of the boathouse, he deliberately took her in his arms and kissed her—and she shamelessly put both arms about his neck and returned his kisses.

PLANTING TREES FOR TIES.

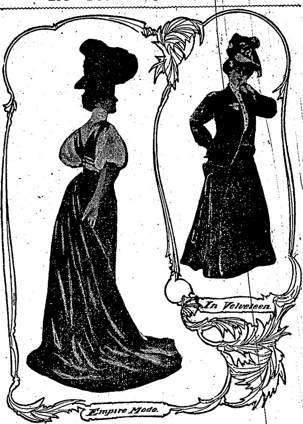
Railroads Providing for Day When Forests Are Gone.

The most perishable of the factors that enter into a railroad's "maintenance of way" accounts, the ties, are in moden practice reckoned for furthest ahead. The Atchison is the latest road to adopt the plan of growing its own ties, which means that about 20 years from now the construction department will be cutting its own lumber, provided, of course, that in the intervening generation ties of steel or sleepers of stone or concrete after the English fashion have not come into general use.

Dispatches from the west announced that the Atchison had paid $100,000 for a ranch in California containing 8,659 acres on which to grow eucalyptus trees to supply the road with ties. It takes the tree, which is a relatively rapid grower, about 20 years to arrive at a diameter large enough for the purpose and each tree will then furnish from six to eight ties. In order to give the road a continuous supply about 450 acres will be planted each year and at the end of 20 years, when the first plantation is ready for the ax, the planting will begin all over again.

The railroads of the middle west began the planting of the eucalyptus groves some years ago and there are now in Kansas several such plantations of a fair growth, though none has yet reached an age sufficient for cutting. If the present rate of consumption, which has been estimated at 80,000,000 ties a year, continues they will all be needed.

In Chiffon Velvet.



In Velveteen.
Empire Mode.

Suggesting, but not slavishly following the empire mode, one of the two charming chiffon velvet gowns illustrated will prove an equally becoming model for debutante and dowager alike. The little blouse is in a cream white lierre lace with a doublure of white chiffon that serves to throw up the dainty design into bold relief. Just the regulation house pattern is followed in this; and the piece is a separate one, so that any given number of blouses may be worn with the velvet gown and a variety of appearances so easily arranged. What one might term the bretelle straps that run over the shoulders to catch in the girdle both back and front, are wide enough to cover the blouse altogether at their lower edges, and exquisitely wrought band embroideries make for a richness of effect. The girdle offers an attractive note of contrast, being in a light shade of lavender, the velveteen taking a deep aubergine tint, just the color one sees on the outside of an eggplant. The skirt is of a very full circular cut, little tucks grouped in three serving to adjust the fullness at the short-waisted ceinture; and the hem is stiffened with a flexible princess haircloth that adds much to the graceful set of the gown.

The coat and skirt costume, with its enviable tendency to support the vogue of the separate blouse, is ever an economical one, and perhaps one of the most charming designs that have been put forth this season makes the subject of the second illustration. The velveteen is in a dull deep bronze green, the broad braid, woven in a plaid pattern and presenting light and relieving tones, making for a simple and yet most effective trimming. The use of a silk fringe to edge the pointed strappings of braid is a happy idea. The coat fronts roll back a trifle to reveal a vest of banana-yellow cloth, with large smoked pearl "stud" buttons for a fastening. The skirt is of a plain circular cut, the front snugly fitted and the back disposed in a number of tiny overlapping plaits. Two rows of braid are posed above the hem, an upper strapping seeming to simulate a front panel on the skirt.

Simple Rules for the Proper Care of Pets

Observation and Precautions Necessary to Keep Them Perfect in Health and Beauty.

Never have your canary in the room while it is being swept or "dusted," as particles of dust in the air will have a very injurious effect on the bird's voice.

A very injurious habit often contracted by seed-eating birds is that known as "twirling." They turn and twist the head and neck so far back that they lose their balance. Whenever a bird does this the best plan is to cover its cage so that it cannot see any above it, as it is because it catches sight of objects overhead that the habit is induced.

Water-plants not only greatly add to the beauty of an aquarium, but they also save its owner a good deal of trouble in the end. They give out the oxygen which the fish require and keep the water fresh, so that it is only necessary to change it two or three times a year for the purpose of cleaning and rearranging the various objects in the tank.

Complaints are often made of rabbits destroying their hutches by gnawing the woodwork till it will scarcely hold together. Their natural instinct teaches them to do this to keep their sharp teeth in good condition. To prevent it give them a stick to gnaw and they will leave the hutch alone.

The cat is a better observer than the dog. Cats are frequently known to imitate human actions; to let themselves in or out by raising a latch or drawing a bolt, and to obtain admission by ringing a bell or knocking with the knocker, this being the result of their own observation. Dogs, on the other hand, though they may be trained to perform these actions as tricks, very seldom, if ever, do them of their own accord.

The quality and quantity of silk produced by your silkworms will all depend on how you feed them. Too much food should not be given at once, but they should never be left entirely without at any time during the day or night. You must therefore watch carefully to get an idea of their appetite, and provide accordingly. Fresh mulberry leaves are the proper food for silkworms, but if at any time these are not procurable young lettuce leaves are the best substitute, but they are only a stopgap; silkworms cannot live for a long period without their natural food.

The Egg Fortune.

For this potent formula for peering into the future an absolutely new laid egg is necessary. Drop the white only into a glass of cold water. A clever seer will then foretell the future from the queer shapes which the albumen assumes.

Amusements For Big And Little Children

A Little Paint and Paper, with Some Ingenuity, All That Is Necessary at a "Butterfly Party."

Every one loves butterflies, and the amusement of making them herein described is a favorite sport among art students, but anyone can enjoy it with very little trouble.

All that is required is a few tubes of oil colors—red, vermilion, lake, cobalt, white, yellow and green, and a few sheets of plain note paper and some dull fruit knives.

Each piece of paper should be folded in half, straight down the middle, the fold well creased, and the paper then opened. One carrying the tubes of colors then squeezes a tiny speck of several colors on each paper, close to one side of the fold and midway between top and bottom, so that the paint is on the inside, between the two halves.

The players then take the fruit knives and with the dull edge press upon the paper over the fold and the paint, working the latter upward and outward toward the edge of the paper to make the wings of the butterfly. The paper may be held to the light, every now and then, to see how the paint is being worked, so that the knife may be guided aright.

When the top wing is formed in profile the knife should be worked downward on the paper to form the lower wing, a little smaller than the upper one. The more paint put in the fold the easier it will be to get a beautiful result.

When all have finished and the papers are opened in each will be found a gorgeously colored butterfly with wings widespread ready for flight. No two will be alike, for even though the same colors are used the different amount of pressure made by the knives will cause the paints to blend in different ways.

A pretty use to put these butterflies to is to let them dry thoroughly, and then make of them a border for a picture frame, or a dado around the walls of a "den." If so much color is not desired, a beautiful effect may be had by using only white paint on tinted paper, the tint being selected to blend with the other paper on the walls.

Fashionable Color Combination.

Blue and black seem to be a fashionable combination on the new hats. A black satin felt has a peculiar steel-blue velvet in folds around the crown, run through a large cut-steel buckle. The left brim is upturned and held by a somewhat lighter shade of the blue velvet. A white aigrette is the only relief in the somewhat somber color scheme.

Bordeaux shades are noticed among the imported hats.

BIRDS THAT ENJOY DANCING

Have Regular "Ball Rooms" for Their Gyrataions.

Dancing is by no means confined to quadrupeds; it is the principal play of many birds.

Perhaps the finest of bird dancers is the South American cock o' the rock. These birds have regular dancing places, level spots which they keep clear of sticks and stones.

A dozen or more of the bird dancers assemble around this spot, and then a cock bird, his scarlet crest erect, steps into the center. Spreading his wings and tail, he begins to dance, at first with slow and stately steps, then gradually more and more rapidly until he is spinning like a mad thing. At last, tired out, he sinks down, hops out of the ring and another takes his place.

Some of the quail tribe are great dancers, and so are the American sand hill cranes. It is a most ludicrous sight to watch a crane dancing; he is so desperately solemn over the whole performance. He looks like a shy young man who has just learned to waltz and is rather ashamed of the accomplishment.

DODDS KIDNEY PILLS
CURES ALL KIDNEY DISEASES
RHEUMATISM BRIGHT'S DISEASE BACKACHE DIABETES
[illegible] discontinued the use of our [illegible] package. The public may rely only on [illegible] of imitations, sold only in [illegible]

A Positive CURE
CATARRH
Ely's Cream Balm
is quickly absorbed.
Gives Relief at Once.

It cleanses, soothes heals and protects the diseased membrane. It cures Catarrh and drives away a Cold in the Head quickly. Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. Full size 50 cts., at Druggists or by mail; Trial Size 10 cts. by mail.
Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.
HAY FEVER

Canadian Government Free Farms

Over 200,000 American farmers who have settled in Canada during the past few years testify to the fact that Canada is, beyond question, the greatest farming land in the world.

OVER NINETY MILLION BUSHELS

of wheat from the harvest of 1906 means good money to the farmers of Western Canada when the world has to be fed. Cattle Raising, Dairying and Mixed Farming are also profitable callings. Coal, wood and water in abundance; churches and schools convenient; markets easy of access. Taxes low.

For advice and information address the Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or any authorized Canadian Government Agent. CHAS. PILLING, Clifford Blk., Grand Forks, N. Dak.; J. M. Machlan, Box 116, Watertown, S. Dakota; E. T. Holmes, 325 Jackson Street, St. Paul, Minn.

RHEUMATISM AND NEURALGIA
ST. JACOBS OIL
The Proved Remedy For Over 30 Years.
Price 25c and 50c

W. L. DOUGLAS
$3.50 & $3.00 Shoes
BEST IN THE WORLD
W.L.Douglas $4 Gilt Edge line cannot be equalled at any price

To Shoe Dealers: W. L. Douglas' Jobbing House is the most complete in this country Send for Catalog

SHOES ESTABLISHED 1876 CAPITAL $2,500,000

SHOES FOR EVERYBODY AT ALL PRICES.
Men's Shoes, $5 to $1.50. Boys' Shoes, $3 to $1.25. Women's Shoes, $4.00 to $1.50. Misses' & Children's Shoes, $2.25 to $1.00.
Try W. L. Douglas Women's, Misses and Children's shoes; for style, fit and wear they excel other makes.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer, and are of greater value than any other make.

Wherever you live, you can obtain W. L. Douglas shoes. His name and price is stamped on the bottom, which protects you against high prices and inferior shoes. Take no substitute. Ask your dealer for W. L. Douglas shoes and insist upon having them.
Fast Color Eyelets used; they will not wear brassy.
Write for Illustrated Catalog of Fall Styles.
W. L. DOUGLAS, Dept. 12, Brockton, Mass.

Enameline
ENAMELINE
STOVE POLISH
ALWAYS READY TO USE. NO DIRT. DUST, SMOKE OR SMELL.
NO MORE STOVE POLISH TROUBLES

DEFIANCE STARCH—16 ounces to the package —other starches only 12 ounces—same price and "DEFIANCE" IS SUPERIOR QUALITY.

Success in the Gulf Coast Country

Here is an example of what YOU could do.

150 Bushels of Corn from One Acre in 15 Months

Mr. John Closner has a farm near Hidalgo, Texas. He has raised three crops of corn on one piece of land in the last fifteen months. Each crop yielded not less than fifty bushels to the acre.

He does not have to wait for the ground to thaw in the Spring. Almost as soon as he harvests one crop he can plant for the next. He is not afraid that the weather will be too wet or too dry or too cold. He waters his land by irrigation and has an inexhaustible supply of water.

If you will write Mr. Closner at Hidalgo, Texas, he will tell you more about this country. There have been many other instances of remarkable success in the Gulf Coast Country, of which I will be glad to tell you upon request.

Wouldn't you like to have a small farm there where success does not depend on uncertain weather with irregular rainfall?

Now the land is cheap and you can get it on easy terms. Twenty acres will cost you about $500. The cost of clearing it is about $5 an acre. The cost of water for irrigation varies. You may want an artesian well of your own; you may get water from some river; or you may get it from your neighbor. But the cost is not great, and those who have tried it have netted from the first crop a sum which has paid all expenses and left a good surplus.

The Winter Vegetable Garden of America

Take a trip down there and see for yourself—that's the best way. Every first and third Tuesday of each month, we will sell round-trip tickets to any point in the Gulf Coast Country and return, at the following rates:

From Chicago,	$25.00
From St. Louis,	20.00
From Kansas City,	20.00
From Peoria,	23.00
From St. Paul,	27.50
From Minneapolis,	27.50

These tickets will be good 30 days and they will permit you to stop over at any point. Low rates for one way tickets on some days, also.

Let me send you our books describing the wonderful crops produced in this marvelous country. Don't delay, write me to-day.

JNO. SEBASTIAN, Passenger Traffic Manager,
ROCK ISLAND-FRISCO LINES,
700 La Salle St. Station, Chicago, Ill., or 700 Frisco Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

JAPAN LAND OF JUGGLERS.

Old Wizard Amuses Dinner Guests by Fooling Foreign Skeptic.

Japan is the land of jugglers and fashionable Japanese always have them at any large entertainment they give. One very clever old man goes around in a single cotton gown with two baskets full of "properties" over his shoulders, and, putting them down anywhere, performs his tricks, with the expectant audience encircling him. A hatful of coppers rewards him sufficiently and he goes on to eat fire, disgorge eggs, needles, lanterns and smoking pipes at the next place. At a recent Japanese dinner a foreign guest determined to have no optical illusions about what the jugglers did. He never allowed his glances to be distracted and was not once off his guard. Noticing this, the old juggler played to him entirely. An immense porcelain vase was brought in and set in the middle of the room and the juggler, crawling in, let himself down into it slowly. The skeptic sat for half an hour without taking his eye from the vase, which, he was convinced, was sound and firm and stood on no trap door. After this prolonged watch the rest of the company assailed him with laughter and jeers, and pointed to his side, where the old juggler was seated fanning himself and had been seated for some minutes.

Chinese Adept at "Soldiering."

The Chinese in the mines of South Africa exert themselves as little as possible when on salary, but show great activity when put on piecework.

People sometimes stir up a lot of trouble by telling the truth when it would be policy to say nothing.

NERVOUS COLLAPSE

Sinking Spells, Headaches and Rheumatism all Yield to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Mrs. Lizzie Williams, of No. 416 Cedar street, Quincy, Ill., says: "Ever since I had nervous prostration, about thirteen years ago, I have had periodical spells of complete exhaustion. The doctor said my nerves were shattered. Any excitement or unusual activity would throw me into a state of lifelessness. At the beginning my strength would come back in a moderate time after each attack, but the period of weakness kept lengthening until at last I would lie helpless as many as three hours at a stretch. I had dizzy feelings, palpitation of the heart, misery after eating, hot flashes, nervous headaches, rheumatic pains in the back and hips. The doctor did me so little good that I gave up his treatment, and really feared that my case was incurable

"When I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills my appetite grew keen, my food no longer distressed me, my nerves were quieted to a degree that I had not experienced for years and my strength returned. The fainting spells left me entirely after I had used the third box of the pills, and my friends say that I am looking better than I have done for the past fifteen years."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are recommended for diseases that come from impoverished blood such as anæmia, rheumatism, debility and disorders of the nerves such as neuralgia, nervous prostration and partial paralysis. They have cured the most stubborn indigestion. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills agree with the most delicate stomach, quiet all nervousness, stir up every organ to do its proper work and give strength that lasts.

Sold by all druggists, or sent postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

SICK HEADACHE

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively cured by these Little Pills.

They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.

SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature

Brent Good

REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

TOWER'S FISH BRAND

HOLD UP! and consider

THE FISH BRAND POMMEL SLICKER

LIKE ALL TOWER'S WATERPROOF CLOTHING.

Is made of the best materials, in black or yellow fully guaranteed, and sold by reliable dealers everywhere. STICK TO THE SIGN OF THE FISH

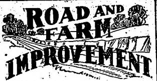
TOWER CANADIAN CO. LIMITED TORONTO, CAN. A. J. TOWER CO. BOSTON, MASS. U.S.A.

Should Hens

be helped to make a large egg yield? Why not, as well as helping cows to give extra milk?

SHERIDAN'S CONDITION POWDER

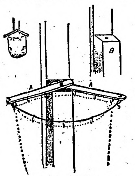
is a scientific medicine invented to enable hens get the full benefit from all kinds of food. It's the pioneer of tonics to make hens lay. In use over forty years. One pack, 25c.; five, $1; two-lb. can, $1.20; six, $5.00. Express paid. At all dealers. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.



A HANDY BAG HOLDER.

How the Filling of Bags with Grain or Vegetables Is Made Easy.

Those who have occasion to bag grain or vegetables will appreciate the simple bag holder here described, says a writer in the Homestead. Fasten an inch board to the side of the barn near the grain bin in a convenient place to fill the bags. Then set a post of six by six material, and spike it against the board. The post should be just high enough to permit the bottom of the bag to rest on the floor while it is being filled. This is important, for it is not intended that there be any strain on the framework composing the holder proper. Take two pieces of strong wood an inch wide and a half inch thick, bore holes in one end with a spike, through these holes fasten the two arms to the top of the post. At proper intervals on each arm insert screw hooks over which the buttonholes in the bag are to be slipped, or if the bag is without holes the edge may be slipped over the hooks. A strong cord is tied to the ends of the arms and supplied with additional hooks to hold up the front of the bag. The illustration shows plainly the details of this convenience, which may be readily made from material likely to be found on any farm.



The Bag Holder.

BUILDING GOOD ROADS.

Interest in the Movement Spreading to All Parts of the Country.

The good roads problem is occupying the attention of the people as it never did before, and on every side are heard discussions of ways and means to provide better highways. In Missouri Gov. Folk has suggested that the money obtained from dramshop licenses be used in building roads, and the next legislature will be asked to pass a law to that effect.

In some states the revenue derived from automobile licenses will be used for building roads. The utilization of convict labor seems to be the simplest and best method of improving the roads quickly and at the least expense, and when this method is adopted the roads will rapidly become better.

In the southern states it is a common sight, says the Motor Way, to see the convicts working on the roads, and wherever this work is being done the county or district is benefited and the improved roadway means a higher value for the adjacent farm land. Better highways will bring the country resident closer to the city and enable him to enjoy many of the privileges of city life heretofore denied him.

FARM NOTES.

Fowl diseases are indications of incorrect management. Removal of the cause prevents recurrence of the effect. Proper care is the best and only preventive known. It costs nothing to apply.

Tuberculosis is frequently caused by damp, filthy quarters. Your barn must be kept clean, dry and light, with a good supply of fresh air, and above all, pure drinking water.—P. P. Southworth, Minnesota.

Cheshire hogs mature early, are of good size, have fair grazing qualities, produce a fine grain of pork firm in texture, and rank high among the bacon breeds. They are very valuable for crossing upon rough hogs.

Every farm ought to be an experiment station, the farmer its professor. No farmer can copy the station results and reproduce them in detail on his farm. Conditions vary. He must study conditions, be patient in experiments and observant of results.

Grass.

Grass is of great importance on my farm, and one-third of all my farming operations depend upon grass. I raise timothy, red top, clover and blue grass. About 15 per cent. of all my grass is made into hay and 18 per cent. is used for pasturage. The grass crop in this locality does not receive the attention from farmers that it should. About the only kind recently introduced into this neighborhood is alsike clover. There are no other new kinds that have been successfully grown, although alfalfa and orchard grass have been introduced and are used to a limited extent. I think, says this Randolph county correspondent of Farmer's Review, it would be an improvement for farmers to keep more stock and manure the land better and to feed out so far as possible all the feed produced on the farm.

SAVING FODDER.

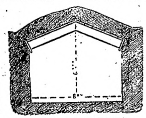
Method and Time Have Much to Do with Quality of the Corn Stalks.

It frequently happens that farmers put too low an estimate on well-cured corn fodder. When corn is cheap and roughness scarce, which is frequently the case, it is worth half as much for feeding, especially to young stock, as grain. For sheep, colts, calves and milk cows I consider it superior to either clover or timothy, but much of its value depends on the condition in which it is saved. Like timothy, it is almost universally left standing until the blades become weather-beaten and the strength and nutriment dried out to such an extent that it is almost worthless as a feed. There is a season for all kinds of farm work, and the proper time for securing corn fodder is just before the milk leaves the grain and while there is some sap left in the stalk and the blades are green. If cut and properly cured in this condition and fed liberally to horses, mules and cattle, they will always be in a healthy, growing condition. I do not mean to say that grain, clover and timothy should not be fed at all, says the writer in the Journal of Agriculture, but I do claim that if more bright, well-cured corn fodder were saved and fed to our farm stock there would be fewer cases of heaves and coughing among our horses and less dry murrain among our cattle. In cutting off corn fodder, I prefer putting it in large shocks, 16 hills square, which amounts to about 256 hills to a shock, but some of our farmers who have emigrated from the east make them much smaller, putting from 64 to 144 hills to a shock, and only having more weather-beaten fodder, which is almost worthless as feed. To prevent the shocks from twisting and falling, they should be securely bound near the top with binder twine. All good farmers know that after the shocks have stood a couple of weeks and become settled, the binding will become loose and should be tightened. When the weather is damp it will pay to hire hands or call in the neighbors, as in olden times, and husk it out in short order, mingling business with pleasure, for it is good to be neighborly. In husking, the fodder should be made into bundles and tied with twine in two or three places. It would be better if the teams could follow the huskers and haul off the roughness to the barn or make a rick of it. By Christmas the crop, both grain and fodder, should be well housed. In feeding the fodder a good roomy manger is indispensably necessary. It saves much feed and prevents the stock from tramping it. The stalks should be thrown from the manger as often as necessary, and let them be tramped and mixed with the soil and the droppings of the stock. This will make many loads of rich manure to renovate the farm.

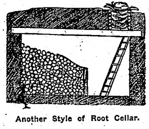
UNDERGROUND CELLARS.

Methods of Construction That Will Provide Admirable Storage.

The illustrations show two forms of root cellars for storing either fruits or vegetables. There will be little expense in building either of them, the labor of digging being the main work, says the Montreal Herald. The side of a hill is a good place to build, but on the open prairie root cellars can be made entirely underground, with steps or ladder leading down.



One Type of Root Cellar.



Another Style of Root Cellar.

Essentials of a Silo.

The proper construction of the silo is of the greatest importance. If the sides of the silo are not air-tight, too much air is admitted and the silage will spoil. If the walls are not perfectly rigid the pressure of the silage will cause them to spring out, thus allowing air to enter between the silage and the wall, and, again, the result is decayed silage. Before building a silo the most careful attention should be given to location, size, form, and method of construction. These will differ somewhat according to locality and individual needs.—Farming.

Never Mix Cider and Vinegar.

If there is a cider mill nearby it will pay to have the surplus apples ground up into cider, says Farming. It is almost always readily marketable as vinegar. Sweet cider should never be added to old vinegar, because the acetic acid in the vinegar will prevent the sugar in the cider from being converted into alcohol, and consequently the result will be a very poor quality of watery vinegar.

As a general thing the other fellow has no use for your opinion unless it coincides with his own.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES cost but 10 cents per package and color more goods faster and brighter colors.

It takes a lot of common sense to get a man out of trouble a little nonsense got him into.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Written by Woman-Hater.

Women may be outspoken, but they are never out-talked.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by his firm.

WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN,
Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75 cents per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

First Persian Parliament.

The members of the new Persian parliament will be elected by the agesvotes of all male Persians between the ages of 30 and 70 who are able to read and write, are not in the service of the state, and have not been convicted of crime.

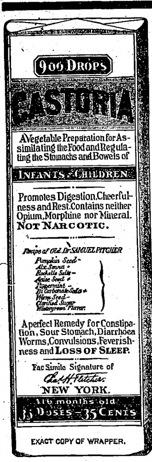
SAVED BABY LYON'S LIFE.

Awful Sight from That Dreadful Complaint, Infantile Eczema—Mother Praises Cuticura Remedies.

"Our baby had that dreadful complaint, infantile Eczema, which afflicted him for several months, commencing at the top of his head, and at last covering his whole body. His sufferings were untold and constant misery, in fact, there was nothing we would not have done to have given him relief. We finally procured a full set of the Cuticura Remedies, and in about three or four days he began to show a brighter spirit and really laughed, for the first time in a year. In about ninety days he was fully recovered. Praise for the Cuticura Remedies has always been our greatest pleasure, and there is nothing too good that we could say in their favor, for they certainly saved our baby's life, for he was the most awful sight that I ever beheld, prior to the treatment of the Cuticura Remedies. Mrs. Maebelle Lyon, 1826 Appleton Ave., Parsons, Kan., July 18, 1905."

The Caravan Cure.

One of the many "cures" favored by fashionable people weary of London, is the "caravan cure." This simple and enjoyable method of renewing one's strength consists in traveling about Britain in a cart, such as the Gypsies have, and camping out at night wherever a haven can be found. Lord and Lady Arthur Grosvenor have spent the summer journeying in this fashion through Exmoor, a wild and mountainous country, made famous by the great romance, Lorna Doone. One night they encamped on the farm of John Ridd, of the novel. The difficulties in hill climbing have been enormous, but the pleasure of the trip has made it worth while.



900 DROPS
CASTORIA
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS & CHILDREN
Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC.
Recipe of Old Dr SAMUEL PITCHER
Pumpkin Seed
Alx. Senna
Rochelle Salts
Anise Seed
Peppermint
Bi Carbonate Soda
Worm Seed
Clarified Sugar
Wintergreen Flavor
A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.
Fac Simile Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher
NEW YORK.
35 DOSES—35 CENTS
EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

Don't Suffer all night long from toothache neuralgia or rheumatism

Sloan's Liniment

kills the pain — quiets the nerves and induces sleep

At all dealers. Price 25c. 50c & $1.00

Dr. Earl S. Sloan, Boston, Mass. U.S.A.

WHAT JOY THEY BRING TO EVERY HOME

as with joyous hearts and smiling faces they romp and play—when in health—and how conducive to health the games in which they indulge, the outdoor life they enjoy, the cleanly, regular habits they should be taught to form and the wholesome diet of which they should partake. How tenderly their health should be preserved, not by constant medication, but by careful avoidance of every medicine of an injurious or objectionable nature, and if at any time a remedial agent is required, to assist nature, only those of known excellence should be used; remedies which are pure and wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, like the pleasant laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. Syrup of Figs has come into general favor in many millions of well informed families, whose estimate of its quality and excellence is based upon personal knowledge and use.

Syrup of Figs has also met with the approval of physicians generally, because they know it is wholesome, simple and gentle in its action. We inform all reputable physicians as to the medicinal principles of Syrup of Figs, obtained, by an original method, from certain plants known to them to act most beneficially and presented in an agreeable syrup in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to promote the pleasant taste; therefore it is not a secret remedy and hence we are free to refer to all well informed physicians, who do not approve of patent medicines and never favor indiscriminate self-medication.

Please to remember and teach your children also that the genuine Syrup of Figs always has the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package and that it is for sale in bottles of one size only. If any dealer offers any other than the regular Fifty cent size, or having printed thereon the name of any other company, do not accept it. If you fail to get the genuine you will not get its beneficial effects. Every family should always have a bottle on hand, as it is equally beneficial for the parents and the children, whenever a laxative remedy is required.

MOTORS OF ALL KINDS
Ask for Catalog ST-179
Fairbanks, Morse & Co., Minneapolis.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

SALESMEN WANTED.

We want a live, active and thoroughly experienced salesman in this locality with sufficient money to buy outright his first month's supply of our Simplicity Low Pressure Hollow Wire Gasoline Lights. A utility needed in every store and home and fully complying with insurance rules. To such a man we will give exclusive sales right and guarantee to refund money if goods not sold in 60 days. Further particulars on request. The Standard-Gillett Light Co., 930 N. Halsted St., Chicago, Ill.

READERS of this paper desiring to buy anything advertised in its columns should insist upon having what they ask for, refusing all substitutes or imitations.

THE INVENTIONS OF HAWKINS

By EDGAR FRANKLIN

THE AUTO-AERO MOBILE.

We were sitting on my porch, smoking placidly in the sunset glow, when Hawkins aroused himself from a momentary reverie and remarked:

"Now, if the body were made of aluminum it would be far lighter and just as strong, wouldn't it?"

"Probably, Hawkins," I replied, "but it would also be decidedly stiff and inconvenient. Just imagine how one's aluminum knees would crackle and bend going up and down-stairs, and what an awful job one would have conforming one's aluminum spinal column to the back of a chair."

"No, no, no, no," cried Hawkins, impatiently. "I don't mean the human body, Griggs; I——"

"I'm glad to hear it," I said. "Don't you go to inventing an aluminum man, Hawkins. Good, old-fashioned flesh and bones have been giving thorough satisfaction for the past few thousand years, and it would be wiser for you to turn your peculiar talents toward—"

"There! there! That will do!" snapped the inventor, standing stiffly erect and throwing away his cigar. "This is not the first time that that mistaken humor of yours has prevented your absorbing new ideas, Griggs. Incidentally, I may mention that I was referring to the body of an automobile. Good evening!"

Whereupon Hawkins stalked up the road in the direction of his summer home, and I wondered for a minute if his words might not be prophetic of future trouble.

Now, where an aspersion is cast upon his inventive genius, Hawkins is quick to anger, but usually he is equally ready to forgive and forget. Hence it astonished me that two whole weeks passed without the appearance of his genial countenance on my premises.

They were really two weeks of peace unbroken, but I had begun to think that it might be better for me to stroll over and beg pardon for my levity when one bright morning Hawkins came chug-chugging up the drive in a huge, new, red automobile.

It was of the type so constructed that the two rear seats of the car may be dropped off at will, converting it into a carriage for two, and the only peculiar detail I noted was the odd-looking top or canopy.

"Well, what do you think of her?" demanded Hawkins with some pride.

"She's all right," I said, admiringly.

"Body's built of aluminum," continued the inventor. "Jump in and feel the action of her."

As I have said, barring the canopy, the thing appeared to be an ordinary touring-car, and I was tired of lolling in the hammock. Without misgiving, I climbed in beside Hawkins, and he turned back to the road.

The auto did run beautifully. I had never been in a machine that was so totally indifferent to rough spots.

When we came to a hillock, we simply floated over it. If we reached an uncomfortably sharp turn, the auto seemed to rise and cut it off with hardly a swerve.

Once or twice I noticed that Hawkins deliberately steered out of the road and into big rocks; but the auto, in the most peculiar manner, just touched them and bounced over with never a jar.

In fact, after two miles of rather heavy going, I suddenly realized that I hadn't experienced the slightest of jolts.

"Hawkins," I observed, "the man that made the springs under this thing must have been a magician."

"Well, well!" said the inventor. "On to it at last that there is something out of the ordinary about this auto, are you? But it's not the springs, my dear boy, it's not the springs!"

"What is it?"

"Griggs," said Hawkins, beaming upon me, "you are riding in the first and only Hawkins' Auto-aero-mobile! That's what it is!"

"Another invention!" I gasped.

"Yes, another invention. What the deuce are you turning pale about?"

"Well, your inventions, Hawkins—"

"Don't be such a coward, Griggs. Except that I had the body built of aluminum, this is just an ordinary automobile. The invention lies in the canopy. It's a balloon!"

"Yes, sir. Just at present it's a balloon with not quite enough gas in it to counterbalance the pull of gravitation on the car and ourselves. I've got two cylinders of compressed gas still connected with it. When I let them feed automatically into the balloon, and then automatically drop the iron cylinders themselves in to the road, we shall fairly bound over the ground, because the balloon will just a trifle more than carry the whole outfit."

"Well, don't waste all that good gas, Hawkins," I said hastily. "I can—I can understand perfectly just how we should bound without that.'"

"Don't worry about the gas," smiled Hawkins placidly. "It costs practically nothing. There! One of the cylinders is discharging now."

I glanced timidly above. Sure enough, the canopy was expanding slowly and assuming a spherical shape.

Presently a thud announced that Hawkins had dropped the cylinder. Then he pulled another lever, and the process was repeated.

As the second cylinder dropped, we rose nearly a foot into the air. Still we maintained a forward motion, and that was puzzling.

"How is it, Hawkins," I quavered, "that we're still going ahead when we don't touch the ground more than once in a hundred feet?"

"That's the propeller," chuckled the inventor. "I put a propeller at the back, so that the auto is almost a dirigible balloon. Oh, there's nothing lacking about the Hawkins Auto-aero-mobile, Griggs, I can tell you."

When I had recovered from the first nervous shock, the contrivance really did not seem so dangerous.

We traveled in long, low leaps, the machine rarely rising more than a foot from the ground, and the motion was certainly unique and rather pleasant.

Nevertheless, I have a haunting fear of anything invented by Hawkins, and my mind would insist upon wandering to thoughts of home.

"Not going down-town, are you, Hawkins?" I asked with what carelessness I could assume.

"Just for a minute. I want some cigars."

"Hawkins," I murmured, "you are a pretty heavy man. When you get out of this budding airship, it won't soar into the heavens with me, will it?"

"It would if I got out," said the inventor, with pleasant assurance. "But I'm not going to get out. We'll let the cigar man bring the stuff to us."

So it would rise if any weight left the car! That was food for thought.

Suppose Hawkins, who operated the auto according to the magazine pictures of racing chauffeurs, leaning far forward, should topple into the road? Suppose a stray breeze should tilt the machine and throw out some part?

Up without doubt, we should go, and there seemed to be quite an open space up above, through which we might travel indefinitely without hitting anything that would stay our celestial journey.

Ping Went the Last Wire.

"How do you let the gas out of the balloon, Hawkins?" I ventured presently.

"Oh, the cock's down underneath the machine," said that gentleman briefly. "Don't worry, Griggs. I'm here."

That, in a nutshell, was just what was worrying me, but there seemed to be nothing more to say. I relapsed into silence.

We rolled or floated or bounced, or whatever you may choose to call it, into town without accident or incident. People stared considerably at the kangaroo antics of our car, and one or two horses, after their first glance, developed furor transitorius on the spot; but Hawkins managed to pull up before his cigar store, which was in the outskirts of the town, without kicking up any very serious disturbance.

The cigars aboard, I had hoped to turn my face homeward. Not so Hawkins.

"Now, down we go to the square," he cried buoyantly, "do a turn before the court house, float straight over the common, and then bounce away home. I guess it'll make the natives talk, eh, Griggs?"

"Your things usually do, Hawkins," I sighed. "But why perform to-day? This is only the first trial trip. Something might go wrong."

"My dear boy," laughed the inventor, "this is one of those trial trips that simply can't go wrong, because every detail is perfected to the uttermost limit."

That settled it; we made for the square.

The square, be it remarked, is in the center of the town. The court house stands on one side, the postoffice on the other, and the square itself is a beautifully kept lawn.

We were just in sight of the grass when I fancied that I detected a rattle.

"What's that noise, Hawkins?" I said.

"Give it up. Something in the machinery. It's nothing."

"But I seem to feel a peculiar shaking in the machine," I persisted.

"You seem to feel a great many things that don't exist, Griggs," remarked Hawkins, with a touch of contempt.

"But——"

"Hey, mister!" yelled a small boy. "Hey! Yer back seat's fallin' off!"

"What did he say?" muttered Hawkins, too full of importance to turn his head.

"Hey! Hey!" cried the youngster, pursuing us. "Dat back seat's most fell off!"

"What!" shrieked Hawkins, whirling about. "Good Lord! So it is! Catch it, Griggs, catch it quick!"

I turned. The boy was right. The rear seats of the automobile had managed to detach themselves.

In fact, even as we stared, they were hanging by a single bolt, and the head of that was missing.

"Griggs! Griggs!" shouted Hawkins, wildly endeavoring to stop the engine. "Grab those seats before they fall! I didn't screw 'em on with a wrench—only used my hands—but I supposed they were fast. Heavens! If they drop; we shall go——"

Just at that moment a sudden jolt sent the seats into the road.

Two hundred pounds of solid material had left the Hawkins Auto-aero-mobile!

Hawkins didn't have to finish the sentence. It became painfully evident where we should go.

We went up!

Up, up, up! In the suddenness of it, it seemed to me that we were shooting straight for the midday sun, that another thirty seconds would see us frying in the solar flames.

As I gripped the cushions, I believe that I shrieked with terror.

But Hawkins, scared though he was, didn't lose his head entirely. The machine hadn't turned turtle. It was ascending slowly in its normal attitude, and as a matter of cold fact we hadn't risen more than thirty feet when Hawkins remarked, shakily:

"There, there, Griggs! Sit still! It's all right. We're safe!"

"Safe!" I gasped, when sufficient breath had returned. "It looks as if we were safe, doesn't it?"

"N-n-never mind how it looks, Griggs. We are. The propeller's working now."

"What good does that do us?" I demanded.

"Good!" cried the inventor, pulling himself together. "Why, we shall simply steer for the roof of a house and alight."

"Always provided that this cursed contrivance doesn't heave us out first!"

"Oh, it won't," smiled Hawkins, settling down to his machinery once more. "Dear me, Griggs, do look at the crowd!"

There was indeed a crowd. They had sprung up on the instant, and they were racing along beneath us across the common, quite regardless of the "Keep Off the Grass" signs.

"How they will stare when we step out on the roof, won't they?" observed Hawkins.

"If we don't step out on their heads!" I snapped. "Steer away from those telegraph wires, Hawkins."

"Yes, yes, of course," said the inventor, nervously regarding the 30 or 40 wires strung directly across our path. "Queer this thing doesn't respond more readily!"

"Well, make her respond!" I cried, excitedly, for the wires were dangerously near.

"I'm doing my best, Griggs," grunted the inventor, twisting this wheel and pulling that lever. "Don't worry, we'll sail over them all right. We'll just—pshaw!"

With a gentle, swaying kind of bump, the auto stopped. We had grounded, so to speak, on the telegraph wires.

"That's the end of this trial trip!" I remarked, caustically. "The epilogue will consist of the scene we create in distributing our brains over that green grass below."

"Oh, tut, tut!" said Hawkins. "This is nothing serious. I'll just start the propeller on the reverse and we'll float off backward."

"Well, wait a minute before you start it," I said. "They're shouting something."

"Don't jump! Don't jump!" cried the crowd.

"Who the dickens is going to jump?" replied Hawkins, angrily, leaning over the side. "Fools!" he observed to me.

"The hook and ladder's coming!" continued a stentorian voice.

"Well's they'll have their trouble for their pains," snapped Hawkins. "We shall be on the ground before they get here."

"Why not wait?" I said. "We'll be sure to get down safely that way, and you don't know what you may do by starting the machinery. The wires are all mixed up in it, and they may smash and drag us down, or upset us, Hawkins."

"Croak! Croak! Croak!" replied Hawkins, sourly. "Go on and croak till your dying day, Griggs. If any one ever offers a prize for a pessimistic alarmist, you take my advice and compete. You'll win. I'm going to start the engine and get out of this."

He pulled the reverse lever, and the engine buzzed merrily. The auto indulged in a series of unwholesome convulsive shivers, but it didn't budge.

"Hey! Hey!" floated up from the crowd.

"Oh, look and see what they're howling about now," growled Hawkins.

The cause of their vociferations was only too apparent.

Ping! Ping! Ping! One by one, sawed in two by the machine, the telegraph wires were snapping!

"Stop it! Stop it, Hawkins!" I cried. down the ladder like a couple of conconfounded Italian women in a tenement house fire."

Hawkins sat back with a sullen scowl. I drew a long breath of relief, and began to scan the landscape for signs of the hook and ladder company.

They were a long time in coming. Meanwhile, we were hanging in space, a frisky balloon overhead, and below, Hawkins' engine having considerately left a little of the telegraph company's property uninjured, six telegraph wires and a gaping crowd.

But the ladders couldn't be very far off now, and we seemed safe enough, until——

"What's that sizzling, Hawkins?" I inquired.

"I don't know," he replied, gruffly

"Well, why don't you try to find out?" I said, sharply. "It seems to me that we're resting pretty heavily on those wires."

"Indeed?"

"Yes." I glanced out at the balloon canopy. "Great Scott, Hawkins, the balloon's leaking!"

"Eh? What?" he cried, suddenly galvanized into action. "Where, Griggs, where?"

"I don't know. But that's what is happening. See how the wires are sagging—more and more every second."

"Great Caesar's ghost! Listen. Yes, the wires must have hit the escape valve. Why, the gas is simply pouring out of the balloon. And the machine's getting heavier and heavier. And we're just resting on those six wires, Griggs! Oh, Lord!"

"And presently, Hawkins, we shall break the wires and drop?" I suggested with forced calm.

"Yes, yes!" cried the inventor. "What'll we do, Griggs, what'll we do?"

Frightened as I was, I couldn't see what was to be gained by hysterics.

"I presume," I said, "that the best thing is to sit still and wait for the end."

"Stop it! Stop it, Hawkins!" I cried. "You're smashing the wires!"

"Well, suppose I am? That'll let us out, won't it?"

"See here," I said, sternly, "if an all-wise Providence should happen to spare us from being dragged down and dashed to pieces, consider the bill for repairs which you'll have to foot. You stop that engine, Hawkins, or I'll do it myself."

"Well——" said the inventor, doubtfully. "There! Now be satisfied. I've stopped it, and we'll wait and be taken down the ladder like a couple of confounded Italian women in a tenement house fire."

Hawkins sat back with a sullen scowl. I drew a long breath of relief, and began to scan the landscape for signs of the hook and ladder company.

They were a long time in coming. Meanwhile, we were hanging in space, a frisky balloon overhead, and below, Hawkins' engine having considerately left a little of the telegraph company's property uninjured, six telegraph wires and a gaping crowd.

But the ladders couldn't be very far off now, and we seemed safe enough, until—

"What's that sizzling, Hawkins?" I inquired.

"I don't know," he replied, gruffly.

"Well, why don't you try to find out?" I said, sharply. "It seems to me that we're resting pretty heavily on those wires."

"Indeed?"

"Yes, but think, man, think of that awful drop! Forty feet, if it's an inch!"

"Fully."

"Why, we'll simply be knocked to flinders!"

"Oh, the idiots! The idiots!" raged Hawkins, shaking his fists at the crowd. "Why didn't they bring a fire net? Why hasn't one of them sense enough to get one? We could jump then."

Ping! The first of the six wires had snapped.

Ping! The second had followed suit.

The Hawkins Auto-aero-mobile was very delicately balanced now on four slim wires, and the balloon was collapsing with heart-rending rapidity. From below sounds of excitement were audible, here and there a groan and now a scream of horror, as some new-comer realized our position.

"Hawkins," I said, solemnly, "why don't you make a vow right now that if we ever get out of this alive——"

Ping! went the third wire. The auto auto swayed gently for a moment.

"You'll never invent another thing as long as you live?"

"Griggs," said Hawkins, in trembling tones, "I almost believe that you are right. Where on earth can that hook and ladder be? Yes, you are right. I'll do—I'll—can you see them yet, Griggs? I'll do it! I swear——"

Ping Ping! Ping!

Still sitting upon the cushions, I felt my heart literally leap into my throat. My eyes closed before a sudden rush of wind. My hands gripped out wildly.

For one infinitesimal second, I was astonished at the deathly stillness of everything. Then the roar of a thousand voices nearly deafened me, the seat seemed to hurl me violently into the air, for another brief instant I shot through space. Then my hands clutched some one's hair, and I crashed to the ground, with an obliging stout man underneath.

And I knew that I still lived!

Well, the auto had dropped—that was all. Ready hands placed me upon my feet. Vaguely I realized that Dr. Brotherton, our physician, was running his fingers rapidly over my anatomy.

Later he addressed me through a dreamland haze and said that not a bone was broken. I recall giving him a foolish smile and thanking him politely.

Some 20 feet away I was conscious that Hawkins was chattering volubly to a crowd of eager faces. His own features were bruised almost beyond recognition, but he, too, was evidently on this side of the River Jordan, and I felt a faint sense of irritation that the Auto-aero-mobile hadn't made an end of him.

My wits must have remained some time aloft for a last inspection of the spot where ended our aerial flight. Certainly they did not wholly return until I found myself sitting beside Hawkins in Brotherton's carriage.

We were just driving past a pile of red scrap-metal that had once been the auto, and the wondering crowd was parting to let us through.

"Well, that's the end of your aero-thingamajig, Hawkins," I observed, with deep satisfaction.

"Oh, yes, experience is expensive, but a great teacher," replied the inventor, thickly, removing a wet cloth from his much lacerated upper lip to permit speech. "When I build the next one——"

"You'll have to get a divorce before you build the next one," I added, with still deeper satisfaction, as I pictured in imagination the lively little domestic fracas that awaited Hawkins.

If his excellent lady gets wind of the doings in his "workshop," Hawkins rarely invents the same thing twice.

"Well, then, if I build another," corrected Hawkins, sobering suddenly, "I shall be careful not to use that rear arrangement at all. I shall place the valve of the balloon where I can get at it more easily. I shall——"

"Mr. Hawkins," said Brotherton, abruptly, "I thought I asked you to keep that cloth over your mouth until I get you where I can sew up that lip."

Apart from any medical bearing, it struck me that that remark indicated good, sound sense on Brotherton's part.

(Copyright, 1906, by W. G. Chapman.)

Acted as Aids of Cupid.

Combinations of Circumstances That Materially Aided the God of Love.

A sea captain called at a village inn and asked the landlady, a young widow:

"Do you know where I can get a mate? I have lost my mate."

"I am very sorry for you, Mr. ——," she said, smiling. "I want a mate, too, and cannot get one. As we are in the same position, I'll tell you what I'll do; if you'll be mine, I will be yours!"

He closed with the bargain, and, the widow keeping her word, he is now supplied with two mates.

A doctor who had saved the life of a woman, a personal friend, was asked his charge. He said he generally allowed his patient friends to remunerate him as they thought befitting.

"But don't you often get disappointed on these terms?" she inquired.

"I may say, never."

"As you are so easily pleased, here," and she playfully gave him her empty hand, while in the other was concealed a check for a handsome sum. "How easily I could have taken you in!" she added, producing the check.

"But you have only succeeded in drawing me out," he said, declining to relinquish her hand. "Don't insult me with a check; I am most generously rewarded."

Perhaps she understood the doctor's difficulty and wished to help him out of it. At any rate, the giving of her hand led him to offer his heart.

While in a tobacconist's shop a gentleman asked a girl behind the counter, who happened to have red hair, if she would oblige him with a match.

"With pleasure, if you will have a redheaded one," she promptly replied, with such a suggestive, demure smile that she aroused his interest.

Further conversation proved her to be a person worthy of regard, and eventually the redheaded match was handed over.

QUAKES HARD TO FORETELL

Scientists Only Know That Some Regions Are Less Liable to Disturbance Than Others.

No prediction can be made safely as to future earthquakes in any particular region, writes Rollin D. Salisbury, in The World To-day. If any conjecture is warranted, it is merely that regions which are known to have contracted the earthquake habit are, on the whole, more likely to quake in the future than are regions which have long been free from seismic disturbances.

No part of the continent seems less likely to be shaken than the Mississippi basin. Yet there were disastrous earthquakes about the mouth of the Ohio river in 1811-13. Regions covered with thick layers of clay, sand, gravel, glacial drift, etc., like much of the basin of the upper Mississippi, are less likely to suffer severely than those where solid rock comes to the surface, for the loose material acts as a cushion to deaden the vibrations which come to the surface from the solid rock below.

The movements which result from crustal adjustments due to the shrinking interior may be more or less periodic, even though their cause is in constant operation. The crust yields only when the stress at some place has become too great for the strength of the rocks of the crust at that place. Yielding in one place, or in one great area, often seems to afford adjustment or relief over a wider area. Earthquakes in California, therefore, are no indication that earthquakes are imminent in Denver or Chicago or New York.

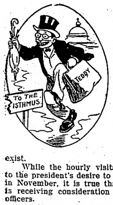
MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. VI. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, NOV. 9, 1906. NO. 32.

From Nation's Capital

Washington News as Related by Our Correspondent—Canal Problems and Campaign Keep President Busy—Navy's Gunnery Surprises Army Officers.



WASHINGTON.—Great activity prevails at the White House. The president is holding long conferences day and night with members of his cabinet. He is at work on his annual message to congress which he hopes to have completed, with the exception of the parts referring to Cuba and Panama, before he starts for the isthmus. Most of the conferences relate to Panama. The specifications for the work and the general construction scheme is receiving the closest scrutiny.

When the president reaches the canal zone early in November he will be an expert on canal matters, and as he crosses the isthmus, examining the work on the ditch, the sanitary arrangements, the quartermaster's depot, the housing of the workmen and all other essentials that enter into making the construction work a success, the president will be able at a glance to take in the situation and detect whatever weak points may exist.

While the hourly visits of cabinet officers at the White House are due to the president's desire to have his message to congress out of the way early in November, it is true that the political situation, especially in New York, is receiving consideration at the hands of the president and his cabinet officers.

The president is unquestionably deeply interested in the welfare of Candidate Hughes, and does not propose to show any apathy. He makes no attempt to disguise his interest in the contest and he proposes to do all he can to promote the success of the Republican ticket.

ARMY OFFICERS SEE SOME GOOD TARGET WORK.

Somebody in authority in the army department conceived the idea of sending representatives of the coast defense to sea with Rear Admiral Evan's battleship fleet, to study the sharp gunnery of the deep. The innovation was to be kept secret, but the particulars of the trip are related by a mariner.

The army officers selected for the mission were Maj. C. J. Bailey, of the Artillery Corps, and Maj. L. M. Fuller, of the Ordnance Corps. They went aboard the Maine, the flagship of the North Atlantic fleet.

When the vessels reached the Massachusetts bay target grounds several of them, including the Maine, began preliminary practice. The two army officers came on deck to witness the "warming-up" trials, and the wardroom brigade of the Maine noticed that each major had wads of cotton stowed away in his ears.

A midshipman walked up to a six-inch rifle, said something to the gun crew, and looked at the range finder. Then the "middy" walked to the breechblock and, with one hand resting on the huge piece of steel, raised his other hand in the air. There was a flash, a roar and a target 1,600 yards away went over on its side.

The whole thing was was so quickly and quietly done as to take the army officers unawares. One of them called to the midshipman:

"Can you do that every time?"

"Well, no, not every minute of the day," bawled the midshipman. "Now and then we miss."

"But before you fire do you not shout 'Take cover' as a warning to those around to get behind something?"

"There is no danger so long as the gun holds together," replied the young officer.

One of the majors noticed that a midshipman of the gun nearest them had stooped for one last glance along the sight of a rifle. The major shouted: "Take cover." In an instant everything was buried in a cloud of white smoke.

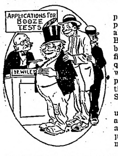
"Fine work, boys," said the midshipman, with his body so close to the empty gun that the heat warmed his face. "That's the kind that counts," he cried to the majors.

At dinner that day the two majors were lavish in their praise of the crack work of the gun crews.

"It's just this way," said a member of the admiral's staff. "It's hit or miss. And you can't hit unless you poke your very nose into a gun and fire at the right time."

The officers of Admiral Evan's fleet will await the majors' report with much interest.

"BOOZE EXPERTS" SEEK GOVERNMENT JOBS.



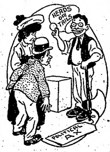
Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief chemist of the department of agriculture, is receiving letters from people all over the country who want to join his alcohol class. A communication from a man in Boston, who styles himself a "leading expert on booze," is a gem. He impatiently declares his fitness to fill the position of testing "kill me quick" for the government and wants to know when he shall show up to begin the merry occupation. Dr. Wiley is receiving so many applications for places on the official board of Uncle Sam's spirit testers that his hair is growing gray.

Since the white light of publicity was shed upon the Wiley scheme to determine whether alcoholic drinks are deleterious to the human stomach, the learned doctor has been besieged with plaintive wails from lovers of mixed and unmixed drinks. All are anxious to help.

Experiments with saltpeter to determine whether foods doctored with this chemical are harmful to the stomach will begin as soon as Dr. Wiley can get a dozen subjects to undergo the scientific course. So far he has been unable to find young men willing to fill their systems with saltpeter. If subjects cannot be obtained, science will be the loser, but Dr. Wiley will not be responsible.

There is a probability that at no distant day Dr. Wiley will institute a series of experiments with tobacco. If a tobacco class is added to the bureau of chemistry, everything will be tested from street stubs and "two fors" up to perfectos and Turkish atrocities.

HUSBAND OR WIFE TO LOSE POSITION.



President Roosevelt has decided to eject from the government service the husband or wife where both are employed. He has called upon the civil service commission for a list of names of such employes. When this list has been furnished, under direction of the president, the husband and wife who are both upon Uncle Sam's pay roll will be given an opportunity to decide which shall remain and which shall resign. If no agreement is reached one or the other will be dismissed. The president will interpose no objection to the employment of women whose husbands are living but are not in the government service, nor will he attempt to regulate the number of members of any family who shall be given government employment further than to make it impossible for both the husband and the wife to remain upon the pay rolls. It is estimated that in Washington alone there are at least 100 cases where both husband and wife are in the government service. In some instances the marital relations are secret and the wife appears upon the pay rolls under her maiden name.

A Stunner.

An amusing scene was witnessed in a Scottish police court not long back.

A married woman and a spinster residing in the same building, but on different floors, had disagreed over some details of that never failing cause of war, "the stairs," and the battle was being renewed before the magistrate.

In the course of some remarks addressed to the presiding bailie, the old maid cast reflections on the character of her opponent's husband.

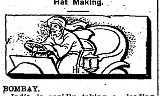
"He's maybe no a very guid mon; but he's a sicht better than nane."

IN FOREIGN LANDS.

INTERESTING CORRESPONDENCE FROM MANY COUNTRIES.

INDIA GOOD MOTOR FIELD

Time Ripe for Introduction of American Machines—Gold-Mining in Western Australia—Straw-Hat Making.



BOMBAY.

India is rapidly taking a leading place in the exploitation of the motor industry in foreign lands. It is worth the careful attention and thorough investigation of American manufacturers who are seeking to enlarge their markets. The present time is an unusually good one for them to find out what the peculiar and special needs of the country are and what their competitors are doing to capture and hold the increasingly valuable trade. Reliability trials are to be held at Mysore, in southern India, during the Christmas holidays. These will be followed by a general motor exhibition at Calcutta from January 21 to January 30, at which all the leading European manufacturers will be represented.

The value of the trade is seen from the official statement that the motor cars, motorcycles, and cycles imported during the last fiscal year amounted to approximately $2,000,000, of which one-half was through the port of Bombay, the supply mart of western India. Accessories, which are classified under different headings, add to this total, while fuel and lubricating oils have had largely increased sales since the use of motor cars has become popularized.

One cause of the popularity of the motor in India is the number and the extent of good roads, some of them hundreds of miles in length. A perfect highway runs from Bombay to Delhi, 900 miles, over which the trials were made in 1904.

From Peshawar, farther north at the frontier of Afghanistan, a fine road extends all the way to Calcutta, a distance of 1,500 miles. These and similar roads are known as the grand trunks, and were built and maintained as military highways before the advent of the railways. They are kept in a perfect state of repair.

The high-class and high-priced cars which in any country must be considered as luxuries have found their best customers among the native rulers, whose example has been followed by the rich Parsee merchants and financiers of Bombay, and in a modest degree by some of the officials of the Indian government. Gradually the use of motors has spread until they have ceased to be looked upon as luxuries, and are now regarded as necessities by a growing number of persons who are able to invest from $1,000 up to $5,000 in a motor vehicle. At first it was found necessary to employ European chauffeurs, and this is still done by the owners of the finest machines, but it is now possible to obtain competent native chauffeurs at very moderate wages.

CHARLES M. PEPPER.

GROWING HAT STRAW IN ITALY.

FLORENCE.

Straw materials for hats were imported into the United tSates from all countries for the year ending June 30 to the value of $2,373,189, and straw hats to the value of $2,197,995. Some interest is therefore being manifested in the extension of the industry in Italy, both for the further supply of home markets and for export.

For straw employed in making hats, the wheat is sown as thickly as possible in order that the growth of the plant may be impoverished as well as to produce a thin stalk, having toward the end, from the last knot, the lightest and longest straw. The wheat blooms at the begining of June and is pulled out by hand by the roots when the grain is half developed. If allowed to remain in the ground a longer time the straw would become brittle. About five dozen uprooted branches, the size of the compass of two hands, are firmly tied together into little sheaves and stowed away in barns. Then the straw is again spread out to catch the heavy summer dews and to bleach in the sun. After additional bleaching the straw is cut in small bundles and classified. Finally it is cut close above the first joint from the top and again tied up in small bundles, containing about 60 stalks each, and delivered to women in almost every private dwelling of the lower classes.

S. BERNARDI.

GOLD MINING IN AUSTRALIA.

AUSTRALIA.

Gold is still to be found in abundance in western Australia and constitutes the state's chief source of wealth. Since 1891, when practically the first discovery was made, there has been a constantly increasing output, with the exception of 1900, 1904 and 1905, when the yield fell slightly below that of preceding years.

Prior to 1898 the entire production amounted to approximately $24,000,000, but in that year work was begun in earnest, with the result that in the succeeding 12 months over $20,000,000 was taken out. In 1901 the sterling value of the gold mines was £6,719,881 ($39,702,301); in 1902, £7,609,149 ($37,029,824); in 1903, £8,335,579 ($40,565,096); in 1904, £8,129,456 ($39,562,008); in 1905, £7,818,612 ($38,054,142); and up to May 31 of this year the yield amounted to £3,044,275 ($14,814,964).

For several years the problem of a water supply for the gold fields was most difficult to solve, for in that territory, about 400 miles from Perth, the capital of the state, there are no rivers, few natural supplies of surface water, and the rainfall is light. The vital importance of overcoming this difficulty was recognized by the state, and some idea of the magnitude of the undertaking may be formed by the cost of the construction which amounted to over $15,000,000. In 1896 the premier of the state obtained the approval of the legislature to an expenditure of $12,500,000 for the provision of a supply of 5,000,000 gallons of water a day. The work was energetically pushed and brought to a successful completion in 1903.

Fully 18,000 men are engaged in mining, and the wages paid are sufficiently high to induce first-class miners to remain permanently employed. In the gold fields the value of mining machinery in use amounts to approximately $20,000,000, and there have been erected about 4,000 stamps. These figures show conclusively the splendid industry that has been built up, and all conditions now point to a continuance of the prosperous conditions.

HARRY S. BURRILL.

Not on the Board.

Argus was declining a job.

"No," he explained, "I couldn't be a director, because I couldn't keep my eyes shut."

The promoters accordingly fought shy of him.—N. Y. Sun.

DEMAND FOR INDIAN TEA.

CALCUTTA.

The total exports of tea from India during the year ended April 26, 1906, amounted to 214,198,943 pounds, valued at $29,294,936. The shipments to the United Kingdom were 166,604,000 pounds; Canada, 15,019,000 pounds; Russia, 9,991,000 pounds; Australia, 7,746 pounds; Turkey and Asia, 3,464,000 pounds; the United States, 2,185,000 pounds; Persia, 1,091,000 pounds, and to all other countries, $8,084,000 pounds. All these countries, except the United States and Persia, increased their purchases over 1905. The trade with the United States decreased 9.7 per cent. and that with Persia 65.5 per cent.

There are 134 tea-planting companies registered in India. Of these 128 are in Bengal, and most of the others in Assam. The total acreage, in 1905-6, was 524,472 and the production 222,217,223 pounds. The total paid-up capital invested in the tea industry was $11,293,477, and is increasing each year. India will have to improve, however, on the quality of tea in order to hold its best trade. The demand for higher grade teas is increasing throughout the United Kingdom, Canada and the United States.

During the last two weeks of August, 1906, two public sales of tea were held in Calcutta, at which 39,243 packages were offered for sale. They brought 11.3 cents per pound. The total exports of tea from Calcutta, Chittagong and the South Indian ports, from April 1 to July 31, 1906, amounted to 40,740,024 pounds, against 31,186,627 pounds for the corresponding period of 1905.

W. H. MICHAEL.

Postal Service Profits.

Great Britain holds the record for profits and out of postal service. Russia comes next, then Germany and France fourth.

Our New York Letter

Interesting Gossip from Gotham Town—Prize-Winning Horses Are Guests at Millionaire's Dinner—Free Magazine for Blind to Be Published.

NEW YORK.—Harvey S. Ladew, many times a millionaire, who attracted attention in the fashionable world a few years ago by originating a buck-and-wing dance, has eclipsed all previous attempts at novel entertainment with a "pony dinner."

Forty guests were summoned to his mansion at Glencove to celebrate the victories won by the Ladew entries in the Piping Rock horse show and two of the four-footed winners had places at the board, while three more were led through the banquet hall by grooms in livery and fed with sugar plums.

The Ladew country seat is one of the finest on Long Island. The dining-room, built in the colonial style, accommodated 100 diners comfortably. The hospitable mahogany was in the form of a horseshoe. Directly over it were incandescent electric lights in horseshoe form and with electric nails between the inner and outer edges of the shoe.

Near the curve of the table on either side were the box stalls of wahr wood, garlanded with roses and bedecked with the blue ribbons won by the occupants. The stalls were close enough to the table for the horses there to poke out their velvety noses for caresses.

The table equipment, all made to order, was symbolical of the occasion. The silver salt cellars were miniature feed boxes. The golden celery holders were replicas of the hayracks and all the glassware was engraved with delicate little scenes of the field, the road and the course.

ZIEGLER RICHES TO HELP THE BLIND.

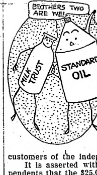
A monthly magazine for the blind, the first to be published in America, the second periodical of its kind in the world, is the benefaction for which Mrs. William Ziegler, widow of the late baking powder king, has supplied funds.

The limited number of books that have been printed with raised characters are so expensive as to be beyond the reach of thousands of poor folk, whose poverty is made the more unbearable by lack of sight.

"Ben Hur," for instance, which sells in department stores for one dollar or less, in type for the blind sells for $10.50. Other books that have been put into raised type are proportionately as expensive. The blind, shut out from the thousands of pleasures that come through the sense of sight, enjoy intensely the reading of books. So far little has been done to provide literature for the 70,000 blind persons of this country.

The magazine will contain news of the day, short stories reprinted by permission from leading periodicals and contributions from blind readers themselves. Letters from inmates of state blind schools all over the country, telling of the work being done by them, will be one of the features.

BELIEVE OIL MEN CONTROL MILK TRUST.



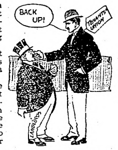
Employes of the milk trust have learned, although no official announcement has been made, that on the 1st of November, the price of milk and cream will be advanced by the $25,000,000 corporation which has the supply of New York city firmly in its grasp.

The price probably will be nine cents a quart for milk and 12 cents a half pint for cream, an increase for the year of some $7,000,000 in milk bills for the city.

The Borden company's competitors found it necessary last month to advance the price of cream and of certified milk. Some of them declare, however, that the price of ordinary milk will remain at eight cents. The trust meantime held off, and although it was intimated in various quarters that conditions have been brought to a point where the screws could be put down tighter on the consumer, no move was made, and many customers of the independents were induced to transfer their patronage.

It is asserted with a marked degree of confidence by some of the independents that the $25,000,000 Borden company is virtually in possession of the interests which "the street" calls the Standard Oil crowd.

TENANTS' UNION ORGANIZED TO SEEK REFORM.



The Tenants' Union of New York has been organized. To get legislative relief for the rent payers of the city is the purpose of the organization, and to this end letters have been sent out to the candidates for the state legislature calling upon them for support.

Treasurer George Graydon and President Cornelius Donovan alone are bearing the expenses of the organization, which they now claim has a membership of over 5,000.

"We dont' intend to indorse any candidate for office," said Mr. Donovan, "but we do expect to be indorsed by some of the candidates for public office. The Tenants' Union is nonpolitical in character, working for a relief which can come from either party and be equally welcome. There are two questions, however, that I would like to have answered by the judges now running for office. They are:

"'Would it be constitutional to limit the landlords in the same manner as the pawnbrokers and money lenders are limited under the law?'

"'Is the landlord's demand "more money or your home" a free contract?'

"Our organization is directed at downing the dishonest landlord, whom we purpose to drive out of the city. These sharks hunt out a group of tenants whose rent has not been raised in a year and buy the building over their heads for the sole purpose of hoisting the rent. This practice should be stopped by legislation, and we expect to develop some definite plan of action at the coming mass meeting."

WOMAN CHEF FOR WOMAN'S CLUB THE LATEST.

LADIES' CLUBS
CHEF

Following the initiative just taken by the Marlborough, the exclusive woman's club of London, employing a woman to preside over its culinary affairs, the Colony club, New York's most fashionable woman's club, just building at the corner of Madison and Thirtieth streets, has decided to do likewise.

Announcement has been made that among the 30 employes it will require to conduct this club properly the principal consideration—namely, the chef—is a woman. Mrs. Naylor, for several years the celebrated chef of W. C. Whitney and later with one of London's most prominent families, has been engaged by the Colony club to fill this important place.

Mrs. Naylor's advent in New York club life will be a decided innovation when it is remembered that the Martha Washington hotel, which is decidedly prejudiced in favor of women employes, even to bellgirls, employs a man chef.

Joke on Learned Brother.

Sir Robert Romer, who contemplates retirement after many years on the British bench, is decisive in manner and parsimonious of words. On one occasion Justice Rigby and he were sitting in the court of appeal. The former was delivering an elaborate decision and, as was usual with him, paused to emphasize a point, "I agree," said Sir Robert sonorously. "But I have not finished my observations," said Justice Rigby, as he proceeded more exhaustively. At length he finished. Lord Justice Romer waited some moments to be sure that the end had really come and then seriously responded, "I still agree," while the appeal court laughed long and heartily.

RAILROAD TRACKS DID NOT FIT WELL

CONNECTION BETWEEN BRIDGE AND SURFACE RAILS AT THE THOROUGHFARE BAD.

Aged Bridgetender Says He Was Given Orders to Saw Off Section That Projected, When He Was Unable to Hammer It Into Place.

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 2.—The inquest into the Thoroughfare disaster of Sunday was begun Thursday by Coroner Gaskill and after the examination of several witnesses an adjournment was taken until Monday morning at ten o'clock. The sudden termination came as a surprise, but it was stated later that this step was taken for the purpose of summoning additional witnesses and to also give the experts who are to testify an opportunity to prepare maps and other necessary papers. None of the officials of the railroad company was called.

Rails Did Not Connect.

The most important testimony thus far adduced was that of Bridge Tender Stewart and Mrs. Elizabeth Driscoll. The former testified that the grooves in the rails over the draw did not always connect, this being the case in hot weather, and it was then necessary to knock them in place.

Mrs. Driscoll said that the train was running at a high speed when it struck the trestle, and another witness said that there was no apparent slackening of speed when the cars rushed on to the bridge.

Story of the Bridge Tender.

Daniel Stewart, the aged bridge tender, testified as to letting the yacht Sinbad through the draw. After the yacht had passed he placed the red flags, or danger signals. He said the towerman relocked the bridge and then he (Stewart) went to the center and relocked the rails, raising them about an inch and one-half above the other rails. He said that the rails were down and fast and he gave the signal, "All is right," and the towerman pulled the lever.

The only trouble he has had with the rails, he said, was in extremely hot weather, when they would leave the groove at the connection. If this happened he would hit the rail a blow with a hammer. He reported this to the company, and was told to saw off the section that projected.

The bridge previous to Sunday, he said, had not been opened for two days, but on Sunday he opened it twice. He said when the train jumped off the trestle he ran out to assist in the rescue, but could do nothing.

The train was going pretty fast and he did not notice that it slacked up for the bridge. He noticed the electric flash prior to the accident.

Rail Could Not Stick Up.

Stewart admitted that one rail could lock and the other stick up. The rail that he sawed off was on the north-bound track and the accident on the south. He said he was 65 years old and had worked for the Pennsylvania railroad company for the past 25 years. He declared that he locked the bridge about 15 minutes before the train arrived.

Assistant Bridge Tender Russi corroborated Stewart. He did not see the front car jump in the air as had been testified to.

Tower Tender John Spiker said he unlocked the bridge for the Sinbad to pass and locked it again. It was about 2:05 p. m. when he opened the bridge and he closed it at 2:12. When the train struck the draw there was a bright flash and the car bounced over the ties. He noticed Stewart pound the rails down only once during the summer. Spiker said he could lock the draw with one end of the rails sticking up.

The inquest then adjourned until Monday morning.

One More Body Found.

The body of H. N. Burch, another victim of the Thoroughfare disaster, was recovered from the mud near the scene of the wreck Thursday. The divers who brought Burch's body to the surface say that the body was in an upright position leaning against a piling of the bridge and had apparently been sucked into the mud feet first.

TERRORIST CHIEF GOES FREE

Gerschunin, Foe of Russia, Escapes Siberia in a Water Cask.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 2.—Gerschunin, one of the most famous terrorists and head of their "fighting organization" during the Sipiaguine and Plehve regimes, has escaped from the mines of Siberia concealed in a water cask. Gerschunin, who is a Jew, was condemned to life imprisonment for complicity in the assassination of Minister of the Interior Sipiaguine and the attempt on the life of H. Pobedonostseff, late procurator general of the holy synod. He was sent to the silver mines at Akatui, on the Mongolian frontier of Siberia, when the Schlusselburg fortress was closed as a prison for political offenses February 13.

Congressman Hoar Dead.

Worcester, Mass., Nov. 2.—Representative Rockwood Hoar, of the Third Massachusetts district, son of the late Senator George F. Hoar, died Thursday at his residence in this city, after an illness of five weeks. Congressman Hoar Since September 26 had been unable to take part in the campaign fo. his reelection to congress.

PORT DALNY OPEN TO TRADE

QUIET MOVE GIVES ADVANTAGE TO JAP MERCHANTS.

Best Locations for Business Being Rehabilitated Under Permits Given to Subjects of the Mikado.

Washington, Nov. 2.—Dalny was opened for the trade of the world on September 1 without any ceremony whatever, acocrding to a report just made to the state department by John Edward Jones, the American consul at that point.

Mr. Jones says there is much business activity in Dalny and many Japanese cargoes have arrived already. A number of Chinese merchants are on the ground looking over the field. At present no business houses are available, but Mr. Jones says a number of Japanese firms have obtained permission to repair buildings which were damaged in the late war and merchants of other nations probably can obtain the same right. Haste is necessary, however, as the consul says only a few of the damaged structures still remain unleased.

There is much talk of the establishment of a Chinese customhouse at Dalny during the winter for goods intended for the Manchurian trade outside of the leased territory, the report states.

Criticism of the lack of capacity of the railroad to transport goods into the interior is heard everywhere, Mr. Jones says.

As the Manchurians are good farmers and regard wheat as their staple crop, Mr. Jones says it is likely that the Sungari valley will be devoted entirely to wheat next year and in consequence there will be a great demand for farming machinery. Cotton goods are also in great demand. Some American cotton fabrics already have been received, but Japan is working hard for the trade. The Chinese want dyed cloths ready to make up, and are especially fond of light and dark blue colors. Japan has taken advantage of the intimate knowledge it has of the taste of the Chinese and is working hard to control the market. Food is scarce and extremely high priced, and it is almost impossible to get labor.

DEATH OF JAMES D. YEOMANS

Former Member of Interstate Board Dead at Washington.

Washington, Nov. 1.—James D. Yeomans, formerly a member of the interstate commerce commission, died Wednesday of a complication of diseases. He was 61 years of age.

Mr. Yeomans took part in many of the important cases brought before the interstate commerce commission. He was a native of Wyoming county, New York, and had considerable experience in the railroad world. He entered the railway service early in life, became general superintendent of the Buffalo, New York & Philadelphia railway, was identified with other railroad interests and later on became general superintendent of the Olean, Bradford & Warren railway. In the latter part of his railroad career he was identified with railroad building in New York, Pennsylania and Michigan. He was succeeded on the interstate commerce commission by former United States Senator Francis M. Cockrell, of Missouri.

INDIANA SHIPPERS GAIN POINT

State Board Rules Roads Must Allow Ample Time to Load Cars.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 1.—In a decision handed down Wednesday by the state railroad commission, a number of new rules were ordered adopted that will compel the railroads hereafter to consider their own neglect, weather conditions and the manner in which shippers are to be notified of the arrival of cars.

Under the rules in operation at the present time the shippers are only allowed 48 hours in which to load or unload their cars, weather conditions and necessary delay not being taken into consideration. Under the new ruling made by the railroad commission Sundays and holidays will be excepted.

DOG SAVES LIVES OF FAMILY

Awakes Master in Time to Escape From Burning House.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Nov. 1.—John Dolan, his wife, two daughters and son were saved from burning to death Wednesday morning by their dog. When the animal finally awakened Dolan their home was in a mass of flames and it was with difficulty that they made their escape.

Dolan was first aroused by the dog's howling but told the animal "to shut up," and went to sleep. The dog next jumped into the bed and seized Dolan by the arm. This thoroughly awakened Dolan and the family gained a place of safety just as the roof was falling in. Their home, barn and other buildings were totally destroyed.

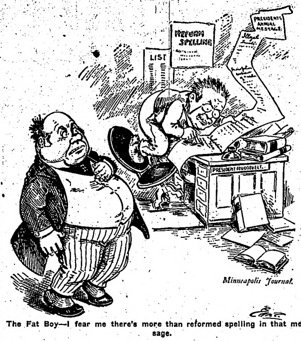
President Has Poor Luck.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 3.—A special from Scottsville says that President Roosevelt is still hunting turkey, but so far has not met with any success. Mrs. Roosevelt in the meanwhile keeps open house to the people of Albemarle.

Close University of Moscow.

Moscow, Nov. 1.—The University of Moscow was closed Wednesday by order of the rector until Nov. 12, in consequence of violations of the rule against open political meetings being held in the university building.

OTHERS REFORMS, ALSO.



The Fat Boy—I fear me there's more than reformed spelling in that message.

SOLDIERS GIVE UP PONIES TO INDIANS

UTES STAMPEDE CAPTURED ANIMALS WITH WHOOPS AND REVOLVER SHOTS.

Renegades Greatly Outnumber the Troops, Who Consider Discretion the Better Part of Valor and Refrain From Attacking the Redskins.

Sheridan, Wyo., Nov. 1.—A skirmish occurred Wednesday between a band of the renegade Ute Indians and a troop of the Tenth cavalry on Bitter Creek according to word brought by a special courier. The troops had captured 50 Ute ponies and severely frightened five herders.

As the troopers were driving away the ponies, 100 Utes, fully armed, surrounded the cavalrymen and the ponies, stampeding the ponies with revolver shots and native war whoops. The Indians recovered all their ponies but five were killed by the troops in and effort to stop the stampede.

The Indians did not fire at the soldier. The soldier desisted from attacking the Utes as the reds greatly outnumbered the troopers.

Believe Indians Will Fight.

Troopers say that, as far as they can ascertain from rumor and observation, the Indians will fight with little provocation.

Another detachment of the Tenth cavalry that left Sheridan Monday night ran across a wandering band of 100 Crow Indians under command of Chief Sweet Mouth. The troopers drove the Crows back to the Crow agency. The Crows said that they were hunting and denied any intention of joining the Utes.

Still another squad of the Tenth cavalry fell in with a band of Cheyenne Indians, who, on representation that they were hunting, were allowed to go in peace.

Say Guides Are Treacherous.

Settlers charge that Indian guides employed by the federal troops are acting treacherously and leading the troops on false trails to keep the soldiers from overtaking the Utes. These settlers mention among the wily guides Woman's Dress, American Horse and White Cow Bull.

Some troopers of the Tenth cavalry marched all Tuesday night to capture a small band of Utes reported to be encamped on Bitter creek, but found no Indians at the designated place.

Indians May Accede to Terms.

Sheridan, Wyo., Nov. 3.—The Ute Indians, now almost 400 strong, and with 1,100 ponies, are still camped on Little Powder river, in Montana, 35 miles northeast of Moorehead. A messenger who arrived Friday at Arvada, talked with Chief Unkaskia, who said:

"Snow comes, we go to see Sioux pretty soon. Cheyennes come not now."

A messenger arriving at Arvana from the conference between the military and the Utes reports that the conference was still in session when he left, but the indications were that the Indians would agree.

It is understood the military offered to take the Utes home, issue rations during the winter, and promised to take up the matter of allowing them another abiding place by next spring.

CIVIL WAR OFFICIAL RECORD OUT

Volume 20 of Federal and Confederate Navies Is Completed.

Washington, Nov. 3.—Volume 20 of the official records of the union and confederate navies in the war of the rebellion has been completed and volumes 19 and 20 distributed during the year, according to the annual report of Charles W. Stuart, superintendent of library and naval war records of the navy department.

Volume 21, which includes the operations of the west gulf blockading squadron during 1864, has also been completed, and volume 22 is compiled and is in part in press.

TUBERCULOSIS IN THE NAVY

RATIO PER 1,000 NEARLY TWICE THAT OF 1905.

Naval Surgeons Studying Peculiar Disease That Destroys Nose and Face of Guam Natives.

Washington, Nov. 3.—Tuberculosis has made alarming inroads upon the personnel of the navy and marine corps in spite of the measures taken by medical officers to check the disease. The annual report of Rear Admiral Rixey, surgeon general of the navy, shows that in 1905 the number of tuberculosis cases in the service was 243, or 6.1 for every 1,000 men. In 1905 the ratio was only 3.2 to every 1,000. Practically all the cases are pulmonary tuberculosis.

The deck force, mess attendants and cooks were most affected by the disease and the machinery force came next. More careful examination of recruits is urged by Admiral Rixey, who also suggests that greater care must be taken in isolating tuberculosis cases. He suggests that men whose work keeps them below decks should be required to take exercise on deck regularly.

Admiral Rixey's report shows that the marines who went to the canal zone on the Columbia and were quartered there from May to July of this year were great sufferers from malaria. The ship returned to Boston on July 21 and between July 13 and the time of the arrival at Boston 215 of the 298 officers and men suffered acute malarial paroxysms. The return to northern climate banished the malarial rapidly and no cases proved fatal. Most of the men were bitten by mosquitoes while encamped at Camp Reed, near Corozal.

An infectious, painful and repulsive disease is reported by Admiral Rixey as being prevalent in the Island of Guam. Naval surgeons are studying and treating the disease which has so far been confined to natives. Rhinopharyngitis mutilans is the name given to the disease, which is a sort of ulceration that destroys the nose and upper part of the face. At present there are about 200 cases on the island.

A corps of dental surgeons and a nurse corps of trained women nurses are innovations in the service recommended by Admiral Rixey.

FIVE TRUE BILLS FOR PEONAGE

Newman, Ga., Manufacturers Indicted by the Grand Jury.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 3.—Five indictments for peonage against well-known manufacturers were returned by the federal grand jury here Friday as the result of a special investigation by Assistant Attorney General Charles Russell, of the department of justice in Washington.

Those indicted are: F. B. Cole, one bill; Jean Reinhold, two bills, and H. L. Ziegler, two bills, all of Newman, Ga.

The investigation was instigated by the complaints of a number of German immigrants who were induced to come south by the southern immigration bureau of New York under promise of employment in a furniture factory at Newman.

NAME ROYAL ARCANUM HEADS

Supreme Regent Appoints Boston Man to Succeed W. O. Robson.

Boston, Nov. 3.—At a special meeting of the supreme council of the Royal Arcanum held here Friday the following appointments were made by Supreme Regent H. C. Wiggin, of Rome, N. Y., to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Supreme Secretary W. O. Robson: Supreme secretary, A. T. Turner, Boston; supreme auditor, W. F. McConnell, New York; supreme trustee, F. W. Dickinson, Springfield, Mass.

Bryan Indorses Hearst.

New York, Nov. 3.—Wm. J. Bryan has written a letter to Bird S. Coler, borough president of Brooklyn, indorsing the candidacy of Wm. R. Hearst for governor.

ARCTIC EXPLORER NEAR NORTH POLE

ROBERT E. PEARY AND HIS PARTY REACH BEYOND 87 DEGREES.

Compelled to Subsist on Dog Meat and Musk Oxen When Caches Are Swept Away by Ice Thrown Up by Gale.

New York, Nov. 3.—The United States now holds the record of "furtherest north," 87 degrees six minutes.

This feat was accomplished by Commander Robert E. Peary, of the United States navy.

The intrepid arctic explorer failed to reach the north pole, as he had confidently hoped to do with his specially constructed vessel, the Roosevelt, but he penetrated nearer to the pole than the duke of the Abruzzi's expedition, which had held the arctic record, 86 degrees 34 minutes. What Commander Peary did and his experiences during the past year in the frozen north are rather briefly, but certainly vividly, summarized in a communication received Friday night from Peary by Herbert L. Bridgeman, secretary of the Peary Arctic club. This communication follows:

Peary's Dispatch.

"Hopedale, Labrador, via Twillingate, N. E., Nov. 2.—Roosevelt wintered north coast Grant Land somewhat north Alert winter quarters. Went north with sledges February via Hecla and Columbia. Delayed by open water between 84 and 85 degrees. Beyond 85 six days. Gale disrupted ice destroyed caches, cut off communication with supporting bodies and drifted due east. Reach 87 degrees six minutes, north latitude over ice, drifting steadily eastward. Returning ate eight dogs. Drifted eastward delayed by open water, reached north coast Greenland in straightened conditions. Killed musk oxen and returned along Greenland coast to ship. Two supporting parties driven on north coast Greenland. One rescued by me in starving condition. After one week recuperation on Roosevelt sledged west, completing north coast Grant Land and reached other land, near one hundredth meridian. Homeward voyage incessant battle with ice, storms and headwinds. Roosevelt magnificent ice fighter and sea boat. No deaths or illness on expedition."

Receipt of News Surprises.

After furnishing press the contents of Commander Peary's report, Mr. Bridgeman said that the receipt of any news from the explorer now was quite a surprise to him, because he had supposed it had become too late in the season for Commander Peary to send news of his venture. Mr. Bridgeman added that the message spoke for itself and that since he did not know more of the results of Commander Peary's effort to reach the pole than the public did, he could hardly comment upon the dispatch. There was little doubt, however, he said, that Commander Peary was coming home. This seems to be borne out by the routing of the dispatch. Hopedale or Hoffenthal is a Moravian mission station on the east coast of Labrador. Twillingate is a port on the east coast of New Foundland. Mr. Bridgeman said the message was probably mailed by Commander Peary from Hopedale to the most accessible cable point.

ALLEGE ROADS DISCRIMINATE

Charge for Transportation Said to Be Unfair to Shippers.

Washington, Nov. 2.—All railroads operating in Oklahoma have been made defendants in a complaint filed with the interstate commerce commission Thursday by the territory, through its attorney general, W. O. Cromwell, the charge being that extortionate rates are charged on shipments of wheat to Galveston, and that points in Arkansas, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa and Indian Territory are favored.

It is declared in the complaint that a reasonable charge for the transportation of wheat by carload lots for export from points in Oklahoma to Galveston is not more than five mills per ton mile, and that the railroads are making charges all in excess of 7.75 mills per ton mile.

It is shown that by agreement the various railroads involved, 16 in number, have established rates uniform in character and that all discriminate in favor of the longer hauls from points in the states which are alleged to receive preferential treatment. The commission is asked to determine what is the just rate for Oklahoma rates on export wheat and that that rate be made the maximum in the future.

Plumbers' Trust Gets Postponement.

Lima, O., Nov. 3.—Surprise was created in legal and business circles here Friday, when the first of the 15 or more indictments against the alleged plumbers' trust in this county, set for trial, was postponed indefinitely. Prosecutor Welty says the cases will all be pushed to trial at the next term of court.

Big Factory Destroyed.

New York, Nov. 3.—Fire early Friday destroyed a seven-story factory building at Stanton and Mangin streets, causing a loss of $100,000. Two watchman in the building were rescued with difficulty.

WOMENS WOES

Thousands of women suffer daily backache, headache, dizzy spells, languor, nervousness and a dozen other symptoms of kidney trouble, but lay it to other causes. Make no mistake. Keep the kidneys well, and these aches and troubles will disappear.

Mrs. Anthony Cadrette, 77 Mechanic street, Leominster, Mass., says: "My sight failed, I had sharp pain in my back and bearing-down pains through the hips. I was nervous, fretful and miserable. The urine was greatly disordered and I began to have the swellings of dropsy. I was running down fast, when I started using Doan's Kidney Pills. A wonderful change came and after using them faithfully for a short time I was well."

Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

A lame excuse is sometimes the result of having one's leg pulled.

Lived 104 Years.

Old Dr. Yernest, whose fame is known the world over, was a remarkable example of robust manhood. He lived 104 years, and had it not been for an accident which resulted fatally, there is no telling how many years he would have survived.

He is known to fame chiefly from the fact that he prescribed a remedy of roots and herbs known as the Swedish Essence of Life.

This remarkable medicine has an action that affects the entire system. It tones up the stomach and creates an appetite; works on the liver and has a mild, continuous effect upon the bowels, thus cleaning out the entire system; it makes new rich blood, regulates the heart and kidneys and rids the body of all waste matter.

It is not a secret patent medicine, but one composed of Roots and Herbs, the names of which are on every bottle.

In the south and in malaria districts it has proven a great remedy for the cure and prevention of fevers.

If you have rheumatism, catarrh, constipation or backache, you can test its curative virtues at absolutely no expense.

Send your name and address to M. R. Zaegel & Co., Chemists, 161 Main street, Sheboygan, Wis., and they will mail you free in plain wrapper, securely sealed, a trial bottle of the genuine Swedish Essence of Life that may restore your health and add many years to your life. Write today for the free trial bottle, stating the nature of your complaint.

ZAEGEL'S SWEDISH ESSENCE A LIFE PRESERVER

TRADE MARK REGISTERED.

A Positive CURE FOR CATARRH

Ely's Cream Balm is quickly absorbed. Gives Relief at Once.

ELY'S CREAM BALM
CURES COLD IN HEAD
CATARRH
ROSE-COLD
HAY-FEVER
DEAFNESS
HEADACHE
50 CTS.
ELY BROS. NEW YORK

It cleanses, soothes, heals and protects the diseased membrane. It cures Catarrh and drives away a Cold in the Head quickly. Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. Full size 50 cts. at Druggists or by mail; Trial size 10 cts. by mail. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

MY BACK

is so lame, is a common complaint.

Johnson's Anodyne Liniment

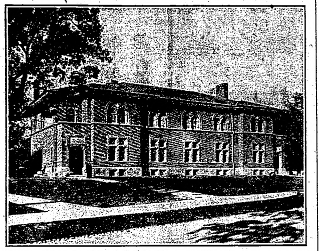
Rubbed on Briskly

removes all lameness and soreness of muscles, and quickly heals cuts, burns, scalds, bites and bruises. Established 1810. 25c., three times as much 50c. All dealers. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

MINNESOTA NEWS

Interesting Items Gathered in the Gopher State

ALICE SHEVLIN HALL.



The past summer has seen more changes in the buildings upon the university campus than any previous period in the history of the University of Minnesota. The new Alice Shevlin hall, the gift of the Hon. Thomas Shevlin to the women of the university, provides a beautiful building which has been needed for many years. The building is not a dormitory, but provides for the needs of the nine hundred women who spend a large portion of each week day, during the college year, upon the campus. It is said that there is no other similar building in existence, among the colleges of the country.

The main floor provides rooms for the social and religious life of the women of the university and includes assembly rooms and club rooms for the women's societies. The second floor provides for the studious and tired women. This floor has a room with fifteen couches where it is possible for the tired girl to get a nap, study rooms and a room for emergency cases of illness and a reading room.

The basement has cloak and toilet rooms, and a dining room and kitchen where the young women may eat their lunches and secure hot beverages.

ORE SHIPMENTS.

Duluth.—It is now certain that the ore shipments from the Lake Superior region for 1906 will be approximately 37,000,000 tons, and with a favorable month of November, as far as weather is concerned, the total may reach 37,500,000. The total under any reasonable conditions of weather for the balance of the season is likely to be over rather than under 37,000,000 tons.

The position of Minnesota in the iron ore industry is one of pre-eminence in the United States, and is rivaled in the world only by the German empire. The Mesaba range is expected to ship about 23,000,000 tons of the 37,000,000 tons to be shipped this season, and the Vermillion range will come in for close to 2,000,000 tons, making the total for Minnesota as near as can be estimated at present, about 25,000,000 tons, leaving 12,000,000 tons to be shipped from other states bordering on Lake Superior. Minnesota last season shipped about two-thirds of all the ore forwarded from Lake Superior, and the proportion, it is expected, will be about the same this year.

FOOD LAW.

Minneapolis.—With the beginning of 1907 the law putting the dairy and food commission under civil service will go into effect. The law will apply to all inspectors employed by the department.

No one thereafter is to be appointed to those positions without passing an examination as to his general qualifications and special fitness for the position and satisfying the board as to his moral, mental and physical fitness. No inspector is to be removed except for cause. This will take the department out of politics, as far as the inspectors are concerned, although the commissioner and clerical force still will be subject to change when a change is made in the governorship.

The law was passed by the last legislature, but it does not go into effect until the week after the governor is inaugurated next January.

The law makes the dairy and food commissioner, the attorney general and the dean of the agricultural college the examining board.

DEDICATED.

Hamline.—With impressive ceremonies the 150-foot flag pole on the campus of the University of Minnesota was dedicated and the flag for the first time was raised. The university cadet corps, drawn up in a hollow square around the pole, stood at attention while to the strains of the "Star Spangled Banner" from the university band the flag was slowly raised.

Professor Henry Nachtrieb spoke in behalf of the donors, who were unable to be present, and the speech of acceptance was made by J. T. Wyman, president of the university regents.

The gigantic staff was the gift to the university by Louis Schwager and Walter Nettleton, university alumni residing in Seattle. The forty-foot flag was given by George H. Partridge.

NEWS NOTES.

Duluth.—Raymond Witty and William Williams, the Aurora (Minn.) boys of fourteen and fifteen years who went hunting and got lost, were found by one of five searching parties at 4 o'clock in the morning. They were within five miles of town and had a fire.

Le Sueur.—George Iten, of Le Sueur, 21 years of age, son of Gus Iten, was instantly killed Saturday by the accidental discharge of his own rifle just as he was drawing up on shore a boat in which he had been hunting.

St. Cloud.—Rev. H. F. Parshall, for twelve years rector of St. John's Episcopal church in this city, has been promoted by Bishop Morrison to the position of archdeacon with headquarters at Cass Lake.

Alexandria.—Hog cholera is epidemic is the southern part of Hudson township. More than 200 hogs have died since last July and as many more are suffering from the disease.

St. Paul.—The Relief Society is preparing for Thanksgiving dinners.

St. Paul.—The House of Hope calls Dr. Henry C. Swearingen, of Lincoln, Neb.

St. Croix Falls.—The big concrete dam across the river here is now completed.

Minneapolis.—The state will collect $450,000 more than last year in railroad taxes.

Cloquet.—Philip Smith, a pioneer, has been missing for a week and suicide is surmised.

St. Paul.—Israel Senecal, 874 Oakdale avenue, is injured during a collision in the railway yards.

Minneapolis.—The damage suit of Miss Mabel B. Barrett against the Soo road is settled for $16,000.

St. Paul.—The seventeenth annual report of the Great Northern shows gross earnings of $51,276,280.35.

St. Paul.—The corporation attorney gives an opinion on the city's obligation concerning the Broadway bridge

Stillwater.—The state treasury received $120,000 from the board of control for twine payments at the state prison.

St. Paul.—The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred McCullum, of Lincoln Park, dies from the effects from a dose of soothing syrup.

Cannon Falls.—The formal opening of the Catholic church, after weeks of repairs, was a noteworthy event from the presence of former pastors.

St. Paul.—Ensign Webb R. Raudenbush was one of the trial officers of the battleship Minnesota when she developed the fastest speed of any ship in the navy.

St. Paul.—Joseph Gaertner, a tailor, has filed a petition in bankruptcy. There are listed unsecured debts aggregating $3,154.09. The assets are $4,235, of which $3,260 is claimed as exempt.

New Prague.—A large circus tent, pitched just south of the flour warehouse of the New Prague Flouring Mill Company, has excited the curiosity of the small boy and aroused the interest of townspeople.

St. Peter.—Albert Schmidt, residing in the township of Oshawa, has been notified of a legacy that has fallen to him through the death of a relative in Germany. The inheritance, however, is not making him particularly happy, for he has been advised that his share will amount to only $1.50.

Winona.—Foxes are becoming so numerous in Winona county and are causing so much damage to the farmers by taking poultry and committing other depredations that the county board has been petitioned by many farmers to offer a bounty.

St. Paul.—Civil service examinations are announced for St. Paul as follows: Nov. 21 and 22 to secure eligibles for positions as mechanical draftsmen; Dec. 5 and 6 to secure eligibles for positions as architectural and structural steel draftsmen.

Minneapolis.—If a young woman takes out a notary commission, marries, is divorced and resumes her maiden name, is her commission still valid? This question was asked of the governor yesterday by a Minneapolis young woman, and the governor turned the query over to the attorney general.

Northfield.—The success of the Minnesota Hemp Company has been so great that the manager, J. D. Miller, announces the extension of the plant by an outlay of more than $60,000 on new drying rooms, tanks and machinery.

Foley.—Foley is enjoying a boom. Two large brick buildings are now in process of construction. One will be occupied by Charles Latterell, who will install the postoffice therein and W. H. Flinn will occupy the other with a drug store.

Hamline.—The experts at the state experiment station have developed a superior variety of flax.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

The Salvation Army opened a $240,000 lodging house for workingmen at Boston, Mass.

Importations of sugar from Cuba in September were 137,000,000 tons less than in August.

French troops have been sent to southern Morocco to catch bandits, who had stolen a troop of camels.

John J. Eller, a New York policeman, worked 24 hours with a fractured skull after being hurt in a collision.

Frank Le Fleur, a chauffeur whose automobile ran down and killed a pedestrian, was convicted of manslaughter in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Marie Slettheimer, of Chicago, has secured a $10,000 verdict against the Pennsylvania company for the killing of her husband.

Fire destroyed a large warehouse of the Standard Oil company on the crude oil docks at Bayonne, N. J., causing a loss of $51,000.

Volumns 20 and 21 of the civil war official records of the federal and confederate wars of 1863-64 has been completed at Washington.

King Edward, it is expectetd, will open the great Irish exhibition next May, for which a guaranty fund of $1,000,000 has been raised.

The plant of the Carnegie Plow & Manufacturing company at East Carnegie, Pa., was completely destroyed by fire. The loss is $125,000.

The New York chamber of commerce has adopted a special committee's report favoring the establishment of a national central bank.

Lillie Devoe, 16 years old, a penniless Chicago girl, fainted in the streets of Yonkers, N. Y., after a long walk in a search for her brother.

A surgeon in the insane asylum at Middleton, N. Y., removed an iron bolt five inches long from the stomach of a maniac, who had swallowed it.

The widow of Russell Sage has doubled the salaries of five clerks employed in the office of her husband, as a reward for long and faithful service.

The Real Estate Trust company, of Philadelphia, which failed August 28, reopened for business. Over $600,000 was deposited in the first hour of business.

The case against the Standard Oil company before the federal court, Jackson, Tenn., was passed to the next term of court. The indicment contains 1,545 counts.

Newcombe Carlton, architect of the Buffalo exposition buildings, wedded Mrs. Josephine Winslow Smith, of New York, widow of Clifford Smith, an Omaha millionaire.

Manila missionaries and workers in the Young Men's Christian association are protesting against the war department's ruling forbidding them transportation on army transports.

Standing timber, a sawmill and other property of the Lindsey Bauman company, Menominee, Mich., have been attached for $15,000 on a judgment secured by the Corn Exchange National bank of Chicago.

SCULLY WEALTH GOES TO WIDOW

Will Disinherits Three Daughters of the Land King.

Washington, Nov. 2.—The will of William Scully, otherwise known as "Lord" Scully, said to be the largest owner of real estate in America, was filed here Thursday for probate. The document was executed April 22, 1901. All his lands, none of which are outside the United States, are devised absolutely to his wife, E. Angela Scully. Mr. Scully totally disinherits his three daughters, Mary, Julia and Katherine.

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 2.—John Scully, grandson of "Lord" Scully descended by another child than the three disinherited daughters, stated Thursday that the terms of his grandfather's will had been known by the members of the family and was not a surprise. Why the daughters were not given a share of the estate he said was a private family affair, which he did not care to relate.

THE MARKETS.

New York, Nov. 3.

LIVE STOCK—Steers	$5 00	@	5 75
Hogs, State	6 80	@	6 90
Sheep	3 50	@	5 50
FLOUR—Minn. Patents	4 15	@	4 40
WHEAT—December	83¾	@	84¼
May	84⅞	@	85¼
CORN—December	53¼	@	53⅝
RYE—No. 2 Western	69½	@	70
BUTTER	19	@	26½
CHEESE	12¾	@	13
EGGS	24½	@	25
CHICAGO.
CATTLE—Choice Steers	$6 35	@	7 35
Common to Good Steers	4 85	@	6 35
Yearlings	4 50	@	6 25
Bulls, Common to Choice	2 25	@	4 00
Calves	3 00	@	7 50
HOGS—Light Mixed	6 10	@	6 30
Heavy Packing	5 80	@	6 10
Heavy Mixed	6 05	@	6 20
BUTTER—Creamery	19	@	25½
Dairy	18½	@	23
EGGS	19½	@	21½
LIVE POULTRY	8½	@	14
POTATOES (bu.)	34	@	43
WHEAT—December	74½	@	75
May	78⅞	@	79¼
Corn, May	44⅛	@	44¼
Oats, May	35⅛	@	35¼
Rye, December	62½	@	63
MILWAUKEE.
GRAIN—Wheat, No. 1 Nor'n	$ 79	@	80
December	74¼	@	74¾
Corn, December	43	@	43½
Oats, Standard	33¾	@	34
Rye, No. 1	65½	@	66
KANSAS CITY.
GRAIN—Wheat, December	$ 68¼	@	68¾
May	72¾	@	72⅞
Corn, December	37⅞	@	38
Oats, No. 2 White	33¼	@	33⅝
ST. LOUIS.
CATTLE—Beef Steers	$3 25	@	6 90
Cows and Heifers	2 40	@	5 25
HOGS—Packers	6 10	@	6 35
Butchers	6 20	@	6 40
SHEEP—Natives	3 00	@	5 50
OMAHA.
CATTLE—Native Steers	$4 00	@	6 25
Stockers and Feeders	2 75	@	4 60
Cows and Heifers	2 00	@	4 00
HOGS—Heavy	5 90	@	6 15
SHEEP—Wethers	5 00	@	5 50

MONEY IN FRENCH BANKS.

Figures Give Eloquent Testimony to Thrift of Nation.

Alfred Neymarck, a French statistician, has recently made a computation of the savings and investments of the people of France, with the result that he calculates that from 1885 to 1905 the deposits in the great banks of the country increased from $182,400,000 to $579,400,000. In the same period the deposits in the Bank of France increased from $71,600,000 to $164,600,000. The value of bonds deposited in the banks increased from $622,600,000 to $1,386,000,000. The six great railroads sold $1,896,493 of bonds out of a capital of $803,200,000, and canceled on their old and new loans $432,800,000.

From 1880 to 1905 the depositors in the savings banks have subscribed and paid for $840,000,000 of government bonds. The limit that each person can deposit in the savings banks is $300. The interest on this sum, if not drawn, is invested by the bank in government bonds. From 1891 to 1903 the same class of people subscribed for and held $104,000,000 of bonds isued by the French colonies and protectorates, $189,000,000 of city of Paris bonds, and $185,000,000 of local communal bonds and those of mortgage and loan companies.

From 1885 to 1905 the deposits in the people's savings banks increased from $442,200,000 to $642,000,000, while the number of depositors increased from 4,900,000 to 7,000,000 and the possessions of the mutual relief societies from $11,200,000 to $32,000,000.

Mr. Neymarck estimates the aggregate value of stocks, bonds and other securities in the hands of French capitalists, $14,800,000,000 in 1890, at $17,400,000,000 in 1900, and $18,600,000,000 at the end of the year 1905.

Jerome and Jerome.

That a prophet is not without a certain degree of honor and recognition, save in his own country, has been proved again at the hands of a young Louisville person.

The young man in question reads things and talks about them with a careless abandon that frequently brings some startling information to light.

Recently he was extolling to a friend the virtues of Mr. Jerome, of New York. The friend did not fully agree as to the extent of Mr. Jerome's powers, but finally laughed and said, familiarly:

"Well, I guess William Travers is all right, at that."

"Who's all right?" asked the young chap, with elevated brows.

"Why, William Travers Jerome," replied his friend. "That's his name, isn't it?"

The young champion of Mr. Jerome laughed loud and long.

"Well, of all the durn fools," he cried. "Don't you know his name is Jerome K. Jerome?"—Louisville Times.

Anecdotes of Dan O'Connell.

There are a good many interesting stories told of the famous Daniel O'Connell. Once he was defending a prisoner indicted for murder. The principal witness against the defendant swore that the prisoner's hat had been found near the place of the murder. The hat was then produced in court, and the witness swore positively that it was the same one that was found, and that it belonged to the prisoner.

"By virtue of your oath, are you positive that this is the same hat?"

"Yes."

"Did you examine it carefully before you swore that it was the prisoner's?"

"Yes."

"Now, let me see," said O'Connell, as he took up the hat and began carefully to examine the inside of it. He paused with a curious expression on his face, and then spelled aloud, "J-a-m-e-s. Now, do you mean to say that that name was in the hat when you found it?" he asked, turning to the witness.

"I do."

"Did you see it there?"

"I did."

"And this is the same hat?"

"Yes."

"Now, my lord," said the lawyer, turning to the judge, "there's an end to this case. There is no name whatever within this hat."

The prisoner was instantly acquitted.—The Sunday Magazine.

Let Him Right In.

A minister, addressing a meeting of the London Bible society, of which the marquis of Anglesey was president, said that St. Peter refused to admit the marquis as a peer, or as Wellington's old officer, or lord lieutenant of Ireland, or the leader of the horse guards at Waterloo; but let him right in as soon as he knew that he was president of the Bible society.

To a man who told a minister that a sinner was kept in hades only long enough to repent, the clergyman replied: "Well, if you'd rather go to heaven by way of hades, there's nothing to hinder your trying."

In Greenland, the missionaries had to describe heaven as a hot place, to make it attractive to the Eskimo; but when a West African had ice described to him, he thought that the missionary was lying or that it was to be seen only in heaven.—The Sunday Magazine.

All Changed.

"Don't be so snappy," said Wrounder. "There was a time when you used to call me the light of your life."

"Yes," replied his wife, "but that was before you began to go out every night."

SPOONER'S CONCEIT.

"Do you really mean it, Mr. Spooner, when you say I am the best girl in the world?" asked Miss Flypp, after the young man had suggested that she should become Mrs. Spooner.

"Indeed I do, Miss Flypp," asservated the young man. "I say it again—you are the best girl in the world."

"And the loveliest, I think you said?"

"The loveliest without doubt."

"I think you said something about my accomplishments, too?"

"I did. I said they excelled those of any other girl."

"I believe you called me sweet?"

"A sweeter woman ne'er drew breath," quoted the ardent lover.

"You used the word 'perfect,' too, did you not?"

"I did. I also pronounced you the pink of perfection, propriety and modesty, the empress of my heart, the peerless one among the beauteous creatures of your sex, a maiden adorable, enchanting, and worthy of the hand of the best man on earth. Say the word that will make me the happiest man on earth, my own Dora."

"Before I give you an answer, Mr. Spooner, I should like to ask you one question."

"A dozen, if you like."

"One will be enough. Don't you think that you have a great deal of assurance to expect a woman with all those excellent qualities to marry such an ordinary man as you?"

Then Mr. Spooner went home.

From Daily Dispatches.

"There is such a difference between the classes in Russia," remarked the little man who always reads the cable news over his breakfast food. "Now, the aristocracy over there own so many castles."

"That's nothing to the peasants," replied the tall boarder as he dissected a fish.

"Nothing to the peasants! Why, what do the peasants own?"

"Why, they have castles to burn!"—Chicago Daily News.

Ballast.

"What's Bill Holdup doing reading all dese scientific papers here of late?" asked the champion porch-climber.

"Why, he's interested in ballooning," replied the star safe cracker.

"Ballooning? What on earth put him wise to ballooning, pal?"

"Why, he heard dat a great many balloons carry sandbags."—Chicago Daily News.

The Profitable Customer.

Purchaser—Those matches I had yesterday were not good.

Proprietor of Shop—I'm very sorry, sir, but you never buy anything else of me.

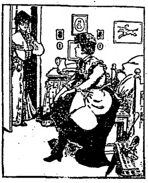
Purchaser—Well, I shan't deal here any more.

Proprietor of Shop (to his errand boy)—Bill, go and shut up the shop at once.

Discouraging.

"It is very discouraging," said the salesman in the New York furniture house. "The only time I have time to sit down is when I'm coming downtown on the cars, and then I can't find a seat. When I'm at work there are lots of empty seats here, but I don't have time to sit down."—Yonkers Statesman.

TAKING THEM IN TIME.



Mistress—What do you mean, Mima, by putting on my newest boots, which I've only worn once myself?

Housemaid—But, ma'am, if you'd worn the boots many times they'd be much too large for me!—Fliegende Blaetter.

Lost Opportunities.

Many a flower is born to blush unseen,
Its fragrance lost upon the desert air;
Many a tramp in dirt and rags is seen
Who might have been a lazy millionaire.
—Chicago Daily News.

Just the Right Color.

"Did you notice what beautiful auburn hair that waitress has?" asked Dibbs.

"Yes. It just matches this tomato soup," replied Binks, removing a nice long one.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Kind Words.

First Dear Thing—So Edith Finley is to be married, after all?

Second Ditto—Yes, dear; after all of us.

Asked?

Garson—Don't mope, old fellow. Look on the bright side of things.

Miles—Which is the bright side of a bad headache?—Cassell's Journal.

Lubricated.

Miss Sparkle—Is Ferdy's automobile an easy runner?

Cholly Glinn—Sure, his dad pays the bills.—N. Y. Herald.

SIGNS THAT FAIL IN DRY WEATHER.

A tall Kentuckian was suffering tortures while doing some compulsory shopping with his wife. Wandering about a store in listless, useless fashion, he noticed a sign which read: "If you don't see what you want, ask for it." A good-looking young woman wasn't busy near by. He looked at the sign and then at the girl.

"Well, sir," she said, observing his condition of doubt, "what is it?"

"Does that sign go?" he asked, nodding toward it.

"No, sir," she smiled pertly; "it stays right where it is."

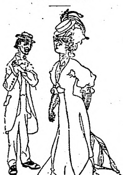
"Excuse me, miss," he stammered; "I mean, does it mean what it says?"

"Sure. What will you have?"

His eyes caught a new light as he bent eagerly over to her.

"I'd like to have a pull at a black bottle if you happen to have one handy behind the counter," he said, in an intense and soulful whisper. "I haven't had a drink for three hours, and it seems like three weeks."—Judge.

SOFT NOTES.



Miss Twostep—You forbid the chorus girls receiving bouquets while in the theater?

Manager—Yes; I notice you get so interested in the notes in them you forget the notes of the orchestra.—Chicago Daily News.

Her Roundelay.

It won't be long
Till hens will lay
Fresh eggs again,
And every day;
And cackle loud,
And cackle long,
In an exultant
Glory song;
A large fresh egg,
And one a day;
This is the old hen's
Round-o'-lay.
—Houston Post.

Not For Her.

"How do you like Chaucer?" asked Mrs. Oldcastle, as she glanced at some of the finely bound books in the splendid library.

"Well, I can't say that I like it at all," replied her hostess, "though I s'pose it would be better for my complexion if I could learn to get along with something besides coffee."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Unnecessary Fear.

"Harold!" she exclaimed after she had rested for a moment against his manly breast, "I believe you have heart trouble."

"Calm yourself, darling," he replied; "I've agreed to help Prof. Lightfinger with his slight-of-hand performance to-night. That's a rabbit."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Wanted Play to Be Success.

Quiet Man (on first night of new piece)—Excuse me, sir, but I don't see any occasion for such violent applause.

Demonstrative Neighbor—I do, my friend. The author is one of my wife's boarders, and he's over two months behind with his bill.—Cassell's Journal.

Vice Versa.

Magistrate—If, as you say, you found this woman so violent and headstrong, even during the engagement, why did you marry her?

Husband (meekly)—I—I didn't marry her. She married me.—Cassell's Journal.

Hoped So.

Rivers—There's Weerius again. Has he told you his last hard-luck story yet?

Brooks—He has, unless he manages to sneak up on me some day when I'm not expecting him.—Chicago Tribune.

With Some Assistance.

"Yes, I heard about Dick and Min eloping. Dick got a rope for her, and she climbed out of the window."

"That's true, except about the rope. Min's father furnished that for her.—Chicago Tribune.

True Self-Sacrifice.

"So Gadsby won a hero medal for stopping a runaway team. Most any man would have done that."

"Yes, but the girl in the carriage was suing him for breach of promise."—Detroit Free Press.

Not Particular.

"Grace says she loves a man with shoulder straps."

"Who is he?"

"Oh, no one in particular. Just any man."—Detroit Free Press.

Great Advantage.

Knicker—How would you like to be an octopus?

Bocker—Fine; think how many straps you could hang on to in a car.—N. Y. Sun.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-class matter August 30, 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn, under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

The campaign is over, let us have peace. If you were defeated for office, take your medicine and shut up, or tell your troubles to the policeman, as they are hired for that purpose. If you can't find enough policemen go talk with Lewy Gonyea sheriff of Polk County or Dan Linnihan sheriff of Red Lake County.

Naturally.

Gunner—Yes, he is a champion golf player, and so is the girl he is going to marry. Not only that, the minister who will perform the ceremony is very fond of the game.

Guyer—Ah, I suppose he will be pleased to link them together.—Chicago News.

Bound to Crop Out.

"Yes, I believe I did say you were always lying about yourself."

"I'll have you to understand, sir, that I am not used to this kind of talk. I'm a gentleman, sir."

"There you go. Can't keep from it, can you?"—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Time to Get Busy.

Her Husband — I thought you were going to visit your mother?

His Wife—And so I am.

Her Husband—Well, you had better begin to pack your trunk at once. The train leaves in forty-eight [illegible] Tribune.

How She Died.

A minor poet who talked of his lady's person being "curiously mix'd" would not be enthusiastically reviewed nowadays. But so startlingly beautiful was the lady in question, one Susanna Perwich, who died of rheumatic fever at Hackney on July 3, 1661, "in the flower of her age," that these lines in praise of her have not only been preserved, but they have even escaped classification with nonsense verse. This explanation is, perhaps, necessary before quoting the inspired account of her death:

Behold, damp sheets
Cling close about her in the bed,
At which she, waking, said, "I'm dead!"
Shall [illegible] go flame
And [illegible] shame
It [illegible] peace
So [illegible] hence?

[illegible] Chronicle.

[illegible]

It is quite [illegible] after a ball to find that the action of the heart shows traces of fatigue, particularly in delicate young women, who complain of a vague sensation of uneasiness, sadness and even of pain and are, in a word, in a peculiar condition that is not yet disease, nor is it health—much nearer the former than the latter. Diseases caused by dancing are commoner in women than in men. The most frequent are laryngitis, particularly in women who talk a great deal while dancing; colds, bronchitis and sometimes pneumonia and pleurisy. Dancing should be absolutely forbidden in all cases of consumption, which may assume a very rapid form from this cause. It is counter indicated as well in all cases of heart trouble.

Out of the Public.

When I was a very little boy, writes Sir William Gregory in his autobiography, my grandfather, who was then undersecretary for Ireland, took me to the chief secretary's room in Dublin castle and formally introduced me to Lord Melbourne.

After I had been with him for some little time he said, "Now, my boy, is there anything here you would like?"

"Yes," I answered, pointing to a very large stick of sealing wax.

"That's right," said Lord Melbourne, pressing on me a bundle of pens; "begin life early. All these things belong to the public, and your business must always be to get out of the public as much as you can."—Pearson's Weekly.

Omens of Bricklayers.

Bricklayers believe it is unlucky to lay the top brick at the north corner of a building. Some of them would lose a day's pay rather than imperil their future by doing such a piece of work. A bricklayer often bricks up in the hollow of a wall a horseshoe with a cent tied to it. This he does for good luck. To lay the first and last brick of any building but a church brings good luck to the bricklayer. Churches are the luckiest buildings to work on; theaters are the unluckiest. It is bad luck to break a trowel.—New York Press.

Anxious.

"I hear that your wife has run away from you?"

"Yes. I've offered a reward for her capture, dead or alive."

"How much?"

"Ten dollars alive and a thousand dollars dead."—Judge.

WHY TRAVEL ABROAD?

An American Should Give His First Study to His Home Land.

When Payne wrote "There's No Place Like Home," he gave poetic expression to the love he bore toward the ingle nook more precious than "temples or palaces." What flowers of rhetoric could approach in power of assertion these five little monosyllabic words, "There's No Place Like Home"—to gainsay which were impossible!

It is the great privilege of Americans to be able without hyperbole to apply them to travel, for what is there in any part of the habitable globe more fraught with interest, instruction, education, refreshment of mind and body and uplifting of soul than nature has provided, with hand so lavish, for the delectation of those having the good fortune to dwell in this goodly land?

Would he see a Riviera? We have several on the shores of the azure waters both of the gulf and the Pacific, far distancing that laved by the Mediterranean.

Does he pine for snow capped mountains? Let him repair to the plains whence Pike's Peak, Mount Logan and our other great elevations rear their hoary summits into cloudland.

Would he witness a majestic cataract? There is but one without a rival, the imperial Niagara—in the chain of our great lakes, most turbulent of links.

Neither Nile, Niger nor Ganges, great rivers though they are, are comparable to our own Mississippi, well named "The Father of Waters." Our peerless Hudson excels in picturesque effects the vaunted Rhine.

What of the beauties of the Golden Gate, on whose shores sits enthroned queenly San Francisco, pronounced peerless among cities by a much traveled European prince of imperial blood?

Where is there, even in miniature, anything to vie with that earthly paradise, the valley of the Yosemite; what to compare with the deep and rugged gorge through which passes to the sea the impetuous Colorado river?

The Mammoth Cave of Kentucky, one of the world's wonders, is as yet but partially explored.

Why, then, travel abroad, while all these and vastly more than can be enumerated remain unseen at home?

"Are not Abana and Pharpar, rivers of Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel?" said Naaman the Syrian of old when ordered by the prophet to betake himself to the Jordan for healing. Who can help admiring his pride of country and robust patriotism? Most worthy are they of emulation.

Be it for health or recreation, there is no grander travel field than that we have at home.—Travel.

There Was a Limit.

An Irishman one day went into the shop of a barber to get shaved. After being properly seated and the lather about half applied the barber was called to an adjoining room, where he was detained for some time. The barber had in the shop as a pet a monkey, which was continually imitating its master. As soon as the latter left the room the monkey grabbed the brush and proceeded to finish lathering the Irishman's face. After doing this he took a razor from its case and stropped it and then turned to the Irishman to shave him.

"Shtop that!" said Pat. "Ye can tuck the towel in me neck and put the soap on me face, but, begorrah, yer father's got to shave me!"

Louis the Great's Size.

Louis the Great had even and tolerably regular features without any strongly marked characteristics. By all his contemporaries he is spoken of as a tall man, but he had a way of raising his head, surmounted by the monstrous wig he wore, and of swelling his chest that created the impression of height, for when the sepulchers of the kings were violated by the convention and his body was dragged out of his coffin it was measured and found a trifle over 5 feet 6 inches.

A Fortune In His Legs.

During the reign of Queen Elizabeth an English gentleman of wealth named Corbet, of a distinguished family near Shrewsbury, bet that his leg was the handsomest in the country or kingdom and staked estates worth £80,000 on the subject. He won the wager, and a picture is still preserved in the family mansion representing the process of measuring the legs of the different contestants.

Decidedly Friendly.

Ranter—I thought this paper was friendly to me.

Editor—So it is. What's the matter now?

Ranter—I made a speech at the banquet last night, and you didn't print a line of it.

Editor—Well? What further proof did you want of our friendship?

A Rare Case.

Sorroughs—I'm always expecting disaster, but still the unexpected happened to me once. Cheerfule—How was that? Sorroughs—When the calamity came nobody remembered to say, "I told you so."—Houston Chronicle.

Hamlet at Singapore.

I saw "Hamlet" played and adapted for Malays at Singapore. It was sung instead of spoken, and mostly to English tunes. Hamlet addressed the ghost to the tune of "Her Golden Hair" and killed Polonius to "Listen to the Band." Polonius addressed his son to "That's English, You Know." and, with the king and queen, sang "Mary Was a Housemaid" to other words. The ghost scene included three ghosts, two clowns and a bottle of whisky.

An Innocent Gambler.

"Cheyenne was a wide open town in the old days, and every hotel and bar had its little faro game and roulette wheel and stud poker game," said a man who was there. "Our party was staying at the Inter Ocean hotel. A long, loose jointed Missourian ambled in one night and butted into the poker game. There were two or three card sharps at the table, and every citizen carried his shooting iron. This long Missourian looked rather easy, but before he had been playing an hour he was $1,500 to the good. John Chase, proprietor of the hotel, became interested and watched the game. In a few moments he saw the Missourian turn a trick that was not strictly according to Hoyle, and he called the Missourian outside.

"'Now, see here,' said Chase, 'I want to warn you. You'd better be pretty careful. Those fellows are all professional gamblers and are armed to the teeth. You don't seem to realize what you're doing.'

"'Say,' replied the long Missourian, with a look of childlike innocence, 'are they cheating me?'"—San Francisco Chronicle.

Prevention Better Than Cure.

In these days, when most medical men are on the still hunt for miraculous cures, specifics in one or other form, it is easy to lose sight of, at least to fail to give sufficient attention to, the matter of the cause or causes of disease and of the means of prevention as well as of the really scientific because so often simple measures calculated so to help nature as to enable her to successfully perform a cure.

We all remember how the profession ransacked the entire earth for some medicament that should "cure" scurvy. No better illustration of what good old Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes declared to be shameful to the profession could be given than the various "treatments" for scurvy till some thoughtful layman discovered the true cause of the disease to be lack of vegetable food. A rational supply of vegetables or fruit and fruit juices and a diminished ration of salt meat sufficed to render all the armies, navies and camp dwellers of the world "immune."—Health Culture.

Siberian Convicts.

Some interesting phases of Siberian life are described in Samuel Turner's book on that country. Of the exiles he writes: "When I told a Siberian friend that I carried a revolver as a protection against wolves I was promptly informed that I had much more reason to fear the human wolves I might encounter, and this, I found, was a general view of the case. About one-third of the criminal exiles escape all control. Armed with a stick, to which is attached a strong piece of cord or catgut, they will approach the unwary traveler from behind, throw the cord round his neck and quietly strangle him by twisting the stick, to rob him at their leisure of whatever he may possess or secure his passport in order to make their escape from the country."

A Siberian Wonder.

The scientists have for years been perplexed over the wonderful frozen well at Yakutsk, Siberia. As long ago as 1828 it was announced that the ground was frozen to an abnormal depth at the place referred to. In the summer of 1829 a Russian merchant set a gang of men to the task of ascertaining the depth of the frozen stratum. They gave up the job after digging some thirty feet in solidly frozen ground. The Russian Academy of Sciences took the matter in hand and between 1838 and 1844 dug to a depth of 382 feet and then abandoned the shaft because the earth was still frozen as hard as a rock. Natural cold could never penetrate to such a depth, and the phenomenon is still unexplained.

The Horse as a Jumper.

A horse can certainly jump higher than a man. There is at least one authentic case of a hunter clearing a seven foot paling, and a century or so ago a Mr. Bingham leaped his horse over the wall of Hyde-park, which was six and one-half feet high on the inside and eight feet on the outside. The horse cleared this obstacle twice in rapid succession, and we are quite certain that no man who has ever lived could do it.—London Answers.

Coffee In Guatemala.

The laborers in the coffee plantations in Guatemala get only 8 to 20 cents (gold) a day. The capitalists get as profit 50 to 60 per cent of the market value. During harvesting time the coffee business gives employment to more than one-half of the population. A single coffee tree, under the most favorable conditions, has been known to yield twenty-five pounds of beans.

Work and Talk.

Generally speaking, it is true of women as of men that those who think most say least. Woman's talkativeness is the result of her sedentary occupation. Tailors, shoemakers and weavers—all men who sit close at their work—have, in common with women, not only hypochondriacal fancies, but also a tendency to great talkativeness.—Richter.

The Word Cigar.

The word cigar occurs in a German dictionary for the first time in 1813 and in the Dictionnaire of the French Académie in 1835. Kant used the word "ziggaro" in 1798. In Spain at the present day the word "cigarro" means a cigarette, for which the Spaniards have the word "pitillos." Their name for a cigar is "un puro."

Therein Is the Difference.

A meddler is a person who fails in his attempt. The meddler who succeeds is no meddler, but a hero.—Duluth Herald.

LAND OFFICE BUSIES.

U.S. Commissioner L. G. Browning with office located in Thief River Falls, is prepared to take homestead entries final proof etc., within the Crookston U. S. Land District.

Office in News building three doors south of the post office.

J. K. WOOD,
COUNTY SURVEYOR & CIVIL ENGINEER.

Will give all orders for Surveying prompt attention.

Office at Thief River Falls
Minnesota

ECZMEA and PILE CURE FREE.

Knowing what it was to suffer, I will give FREE OF CHARGE, to any afflicted a positive cure for Eczema, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Piles and Skin Diseases. Instant relief. Don't suffer longer, Write F. W. Williams, 400 Manhattan Avenue, New York. Enclose Stamp.

MARKS'S LUNG BALSAM, with TAR.

For the cure of all diseases of the lungs, throat and chest, as Cough, cold, Asthma, Bronchitis La Grip and will Prevent consumption when taken in time.

Notice for Publication.

Fist Pub. Nov. 2, 1906.

Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston Minnesota October 31, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on December 18. 1906, viz:

Iver Johnson.

H.E. No. 1152 Red Lake Series, for the N.E.¼ Sec. 29 Twp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

John Larson, Knut Larson, John Ellingbo, Nels Reseo all of Lillo Minn,

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Nov. 9th 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office, at Crookston Minn. November 1st 1906.

Notice is hereby given that ANDREW AMUNDSON, one of the heirs of Soren Amundson, deceased, of Lillo Minnesota, has filed notice of his entention to make final five years proof in support of his Claim viz: Homestead Entry No. 4247 made June 27th 1901, for the Lots 2, 3, and 6, Section 31 Township 152 N, Range 39 W, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on December 22nd, 1906.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Knut Lintvet, Lars Haanen, Torger [illegible]ton, Amund Sundan, all of Lillo Minnesota.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam November 2 1906.

Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston Minn. October 27, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the city of Thief River Falls, Minn., at Thief River Falls, Minn., on December 7th, 1906.

NORA KRISTENE MARTINSON

H. E. No. 1192 Red Lake Series for the N.W. ¼ Sec. 23, Twp. 153 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon, and cultivation of said land viz:

Joseph Johnson, Gutorm G. Olson, Lars C. Fovir, Nels N. Grand all of Erie Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

The Englishman's Morning Tub.

Until the beginning of the seventeenth century English princes and other babes were immersed three times in the font when christened. The last Prince of Wales who was submitted to this ordeal appears to have been Arthur, the son of Henry II., who died in 1502 at the age of sixteen. The abolition of the practice was strongly objected to upon sanitary grounds by Sir John Floyer, a celebrated physician, who died in 1734. "Immersion," he says, "would prevent many hereditary diseases," and "the English will return to it when physic has given them a clear proof that cold baths are both safe and useful." So our morning tub is the outcome of royal immersion.—London Mail.

Willing to Oblige.

"I may as well tell you, young man," said Miss Spooner's father, "that I always close up the house and turn out all lights by 10 o'clock."

"Don't bother tonight, sir," replied Jack Nervy. "I'll attend to that for you."—Philadelphia Press.

Matinee Accessories.

George—Did you have a good time? Gertie—Oh, lovely, lovely! George—Was the play good? Gertie—No, but I had on my new hat and had a box of delicious caramels with me.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

H. & B. MILLING CO.
BEST
VIVO
PATENT
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.
VIVO

Vivo

HANDLED BY ALL THE LEADING MERCHANTS OF THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

(ALWAYS CALL FOR VIVO)

We [illegible] price for all grain, at our mill in Thief River Falls, or at our elevator at Plummer, and always have on hand a compleat line of flour & feed at both points.

☞ Promt shipments made by boat to all points along the Red Lake River.

We solicit [illegible].

Hanson & Barzen Milling Company.

THE MERCHANTS

State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds. Long time and low rates. Call on or WRITE US.

J. A. DUFFY, Cashier.

The Radny Store;

☞ THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE RADNY STORE.

John has, Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes

A full and complete line of groceries.

Best brands of flour at lowest market price

.......00.......

Call and see me for bargains, at Radny post office and store.

John Radneskie.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam October 19, 1906

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn. October 17th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that JOHN CONNACKER, of Germantown Minn., has filed notice of his intention to make final commutation proof in support of his claim, viz; Homestead Entry No. 701, Red Lake Series, made October 5th 1904, for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 28, Twp. 154 N. R. 40 W. and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the United States Land Office, at Crookston Minn, on December 4th 1906.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Alfred T. Rice, Teresa O'Reilly, John O'Reilly, Kathleen A. Daley all of Germantown Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Remarkable Lunar Rainbow.

I recall many lunar rainbows during the half century since I was an observant boy and, if memory serves me, one double lunar rainbow. But the most perfect of these bows that I recall I saw on the edge of Darlington, S. C. I was in a road leading north, with extensive fields east and west; hence my opportunity. The full moon had just risen above the tops of the distant woods, and the bow in the west was perfect. The span of the bow was materially less than the span of a sun rainbow, but its depth, or thickness, was proportionately much greater. The rainbow colors were distinct, but pale, as if the arch were built of pale mother-of-pearl, and they changed and faded less rapidly than the sun rainbows I have seen.

When in camp on John's island, South Carolina, I saw a brilliant sun rainbow with one foot of the arch so near we could stand on it or pass behind and in front of it, but we did not "dig for gold."—Macon Cor. Scientific American.

Nelson's Famous Signal.

It is a fact that Nelson's famous signal to the fleet at Trafalgar was in its original form, "England 'confides' (not 'expects') that every man will do his duty." This is the story as given by Captain Pasco, Nelson's flag lieutenant on the Victory: "His lordship came to me on the poop, and after ordering certain signals to be made about a quarter to noon he said, 'Mr. Pasco, I wish to say to the fleet, "England confides that every man will do his duty."' And he added, 'You must be quick, for I have one more to make, which is for close action.' I replied, 'If your lordship will permit me to substitute "expects" for "confides," the signal will soon be completed, because the word "expects" is in the vocabulary, whereas "confides" must be spelled.' His lordship replied in haste and with seeming satisfaction, 'That will do, Pasco; make it directly.'" And the famous signal was made.—London Chronicle.

The Only Sure Way.

"Say, old man," said the soulful young man, "what's the best way to find out what a woman thinks of you?" "Marry her," replied Peckham promptly.—Catholic Standard and Times.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam October 19, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston, Minn, October 17th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that KATHLEEN A. DALEY, of Germantown Minn., has filed notice of his intention to make final commutation proof in support of his claim, viz: Homestead Entry, No. 785, Red Lake Series, made October 26th 1904, for the N.W. ¼ Sec. 28, Twp. 154 N. R. 40 W, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the United States Land office at Crookston Minn. on December 4th 1906.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Albert T. Rice, Teresa O'Reilly, John O'Reilly, John Connacker all of Germantown Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Why Pay Cash

WHEN YOU CAN BUY ON Easy Credit Terms

PIANOS $124.75 UP.
ORGANS $10.00 UP.
SEWING MACHINES $7.50 UP.
STOVES and RANGES
HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE Of all kinds at 60 cents
IRON and STEEL SAFES
TYPEWRITERS and OFFICE FURNITURE From $6.25 up.

We are the largest manufacturers on earth, have unlimited capital and sell direct from the workshop to the fireside on EASY MONTHLY PAYMENTS to honorable people in all parts of the world. No other manufacturer will let you use the goods for years while slowly paying for them.

Write for Information and Free Catalogue

THE ENGLEWOOD CO.
Consolidated Factories
61-63 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill., U. S.

Subscribe for The Sunbeam

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

VIVO flour is the best. Asu your dealer for vivo.

HORSES FOR SALE, at the Plummer livery barn.

George Singer of Rhoda was doing business at Thief River Falls last Friday, and Saturday.

P. Sullivan Henry and Ray Arndt drove up to Moose Lake Monday.

Mark's Lung Balsam, with tar, will cure your cough.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar will bring relief to Asthma patients.

Wallace Payne, a brother of Mrs. A. W. Shosten arrived from Michigan to visit her last Friday.

Thor Torkelson moved his thresing rig from Kratha home to Deer Park township yesterday.

Mark's Lung Balsam, with tar Do not wait get it at the first indication of cough or cold.

Mr and Mrs. John Engen, of Equality are visiting Mr. and Alfred Hammerstine this week.

Halvor K. Hommy is helping Andrew Ellingsen wait on customers at the Highlanding store this week.

Mark's Lung Balsam with tar, is a remedy that cures by removing the cause Try a 50ct. bottle.

We had a good soaking rain on Tuesday evening which improved plowing conditions in this locality.

A bad prairie fire south of here on Saturday evening prevented James Colman, Charles Clark and ye editor from making a political trip to Kratka.

Even J. Sund returned home from Norway Lake Minnesota Wednesday, where he has been working during the harvest and threshing season.

Two brothers of August J. Wentzel, from Fisher are visiting him this week. They are well pleased with the country and may decide to locate here

Walt McAndress has made qute an improvement in the road running by his place by putting in a ditch to let the water out and a substancial bridge across the ditch.

Stephen Singer left for Red Lake Agency Tuesday afternoon to make settlement on some old contracks up thare, and to contract to deliver suplyes this winter.

Postmaster Thomas Jacobson, of Highlanding is nursing two of Jobes conforters this week that are quite painful, however he managed to get around quite lively election day.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Ole Overum on Saturday evening last, a bouncing baby boy. Mother and baby doing well and Ole feeling so proud that we almost thought he would bring him over to election to vote on Tuesday.

A nine pound baby girl arrived at the home of Rev E, A. and Mrs. Mostue on Sunday evening last, as a welcome visitor and will make her permanent home with them. There is no eminent danger of race suicide in this part of the country.

We shall make an effort to get a telephone line in here this winter, from the south by Lambert, so we can get conections with the outside world. Promises from the west that have been made us for the past two years are not of much use to the people when they want to use a telephone line.

Ye Editor was visiting old friends and neighbors in Deer Park Township Sunday and Monday looking up the political situation and found the boys ready to deliver the goods, and they delivered them at Tuesdays Election.

The ladies supported H. T. McAnulty for superintedant of schools.

Dr. C. C. Hauglad, who made weekly visits though this locality last summer is now located in Silver Leaf Township nine miles northeast of Thief River Falls and is prepared to attend all calls for medical services.

Election Returns.

Owing to not haveing any telephon conections it is difficult to get compleate election returns up to the time of going to press.

We have them as follows.

Governor Johnson was elect. by about thirty thousand majority, with the rest of the state ticket republican.

Halvor Steenerson elected to Congress with practically no opposition.

A. D. Stephens elected to the state Senate from Polk County by handsome majority.

A. L. Hansen elected to state Senate from this district without opposition.

The following is the returns for County officers from the towns we have heard from.

HIGH LANDING.

Auditor; John B. O'Brien, 42. James E. Ford. 11. County treasurer, O. T. Tanberg, 32. K. M. Hansen, 21. Register of deeds, E. L. Quist 42. Frank Jeffers, 11.

Sheriff. Lewis A. Nelson, 31. Dan Linnihan, 28. Judge of probate, N. W. Tarrant, 37. Charles Ecklund, 14. County Attorney. E. M. Stanton, 33. Thoms Germo, 17.

County Surveyor, Wood, 45.

Clerk of District Court, C. W. Johnson, 44. Joseph Perrault, 8.

Court Commissioner, S. T. Johnson, 39. Simon Paul, 13.

County Superintendent of Schools, Fred Richards, 9. H. T McAnulty, 52.

55 votes cast.

DEER PARK.

Auditor, John B. O'Brien, 8. James E. Ford. 41. County Tresury; O. T. Tandberg, 41. Karl M Hansen, 7. Register of Deeds; Earnest L. Quist, 12. Frank Jeffers. 37. Sheriff; Lewis A. Nelson 16. Dan Linnihan, 32. Judge of Probate Court; Charles Ecklund, 21. N. W. Tarrant 27. County Attorney; Thomas Germo, 40. E. M. Stanton 8. County Surveyor; James K. Wood, 41. Clerk of the District Court; C. W. Johnson, 26 Joseph Perrault, 20. Court Commissioner; Simon Paul 20. S. T. Johnson, 28. County Superintendent of Schools; Fred Richards, 13. H. T. McAnulty, 35. County Cor; Joseph Belair, 1.

There was 51 votes cast.

We have not got complete returns from Equality, and Garnes, but understand they went about the same as Deer Park.

Doomed the Colonel.

Emperor William I. of Germany was a strict disciplinarian. One day during the maneuvers of the army a cavalry regiment charged at a strongly intrenched and embatteried village, of which the garden walls were lined with marksmen. "Look, look!" exclaimed the Russian representative. "That regiment is lost." "No," was the emperor's calm reply, "this regiment isn't, but the colonel certainly is." And, sure enough, at the close of the maneuvers he was placed on the retired list.

Two Kinds of Boys.

"My son got brain fever from studying too hard," said one mother to another, trying to repress a thrill of intellectual pride.

"That's bad, but my boy broke his leg and two ribs in his first game of football," replied the other, with motherly gratification.—Baltimore American.

Unexpected.

"Can your wife make as good pies as your mother did?"

"Yes, indeed. Mother uses my wife's recipe."—Cleveland Free Press.

Assistant Fool Makers.

It doesn't take much of a girl to make a fool of any man. Nature did so much.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

ALL YOUR FALL NEEDS,

Will be well taken care of, if you come to the

GOLDEN RULE DEPARTMENT STORE,

THIEF RIVER FALLS.

Complete Departments, in CLOTHING, DRY GOODS, LADIES CLOKES, SHOES Underware, Hats and Caps, all kinds Rubber goods, and Sheeplined Coats, and Don't Forget our GROCERY DEPARTMENT. We buy all kinds of farm produce.

O. J. SCHEI & CO., Props.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub in The Sunbeam October 19th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office, at Crookston Minn. October 17th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that TERESA O'REILLY of Germantown Minn., has filed notice of his intention to make final commutation proof in support of his claim, viz: Homestead Entry, No. 784, Red Lake Series, made October 26th 1904, for the S. W. ¼ Sec. 27 Twp. 154 N. R. 40 W. and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the United States land office, at Crookston Minn. on December 4, 1906.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Alfred T. Rice, John Connacker, Donald O'Brien, Kathleen A. Daley all of Germantown Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Oct. 12th, 1906.

Department of the Interior.

Land Office at Crookston Minn. September 26th, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that OLOF SNOBACK of Rhoda Minn., has filed notice of his intention to make final Commutation proof in support of his claim viz: Homestead Entry No, 1216 Red Lake Series made July 26th 1905. for the S. E. ¼ Section 32 Township 153 N. Range 40 W., and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn., on November 16th 1906.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Andreas Christiansen, George Singer, Stephen Singer, Knut K. Olson, all of Rhoda Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register

U. S. Mail.

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 8. 30 a. m. on Tuesday's Thurday's and Saturday's. & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 3. p.m.

Wm. G. HUNT, P.M.

Diet and Digestion.

Abstemiousness in diet is very conducive to a good digestion. It is preferable to be a little underfed than at all overfed. Hence we come to one of the first causes of indigestion in the adult, too large a quantity of food. After an ordinary meal the food should all have left the stomach by the end of six or seven hours. If owing to an excessive quantity the stomach cannot deal with the amount some food remains in the stomach and ferments. This creates discomfort, pain, wind, nausea and perhaps vomiting, by means of which the abused stomach gets rid of its burden. If the sufferer is not thus fortunately sick the best thing he can do is to drink a large tumbler of lukewarm water, which will probably induce vomiting and so wash out the stomach. Half a teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda added to the fluid will cause still more relief. During the next twenty-four hours the lightest diet, such as a little tea and dried toast, some boiled rice, a little arrowroot or corn flour, should be taken.

For Its Vocabulary's Sake.

"Indirectly, more forcibly sometimes than directly," said a senator, "a man may be accused."

"Thus a good woman of Cincinnati called her cook one morning and said: " 'Mary, come and take the parrot out of the bedroom at once. The master has lost his collar button.' "

The Difference.

Mr. Wholesale—Want a job, eh? What can you do? Applicant—Nothing. Mr. Wholesale—Say, you don't want a "job." What you want is a "position."—New York Press.

The Way of the Law.

A man who goes to law may not be in the poor suitor class when he starts, but is liable to be before he finishes.—Washington Star.

Who rises every time he falls will sometimes rise to stay.—Morris.

Fixing the Blame.

"Do you believe in hoodoos?" asked the superstitious person.

"Well," answered the man who had failed to make good in a dozen different enterprises, "I've got to preserve my self respect, you know."—Detroit Free Press.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Oct, 26th, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota Oct. 23rd, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota, on December 6th, 1906, viz:

Walter H. Quist

H. E. No. 1145 Red Lake Series, for the S. E. ¼ Sec. 35, Twp. 154 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Harry Blackie, Charles P. Quist, of Thief River Falls Minn. Emil Sigrud, John Anderson, of Germantown Minnesota.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam October 19th 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. October 17th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that ALFRED T. RICE of Germantown, Minn., has filed notice of his intention to make final commutation proof in support of his claim, viz: Homestead Entry, No. 1151, R. L. S. made April 24, 1905, for the S. W. ¼ Sec. 20. Twp. 154, N. R. 40 W and that said proof will be made before the Register and Reciever of the United States Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on December 4th, 1906.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Teresa O'Reilly, Kathleen A. Daley, John O'Reilly, John Connacker all of Germantown Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam November 2. 1906.

Department of the Interior.- Land Office at Crookston Minn. october 24, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before J. M. Bishop. Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls, Minn., at Thief River Falls Minn., on December 7th, 1906

SAMUEL A. MILLS.

H. E. No. 1384 Red Lake Series, for the N. E. ¼ Sec. 12 Twp. 153 N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivaton of said land viz:

Ole Overson, Peter Hunstad, of Kratka Minn. Tom Thorsen, Jacob B. Neshelm of Brunkeberg Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register.

All a Matter of Doubt Anyway.

A young man from the south who a few years ago was so fortunate as to be enabled to enter the law offices of a well known New York firm was first intrusted with a very simple case. He was asked by the late James C. Carter, then a member of the firm, to give an opinion in writing. When this was submitted it was observed by Mr. Carter that, with the touching confidence of a neophyte, the young southerner had begun with the expression, "I am clearly of opinion."

When this caught his eye he smiled and said:

"My dear young friend, never state that you are clearly of opinion on a law point. The most you can hope to discover is the preponderance of the doubt."—Success.

Mixed Feelings.

The little girl who, after a drink of soda, declared that her nose felt as if her foot was asleep has evidently grown up and retained her happy power of expression, for evidently the young lady mentioned in Punch is the same person who drank bubbles when she was small.

The young woman was traveling in a coach as an elderly and somewhat sour looking man, in trying to open the window, pinched his finger nail severely.

"Oh!" exclaimed the lady sympathetically. "How horrid! I always think anything wrong with one's nails sets one's teeth on edge all down one's back!"

Looking Forward.

"Progress is becoming extremely rapid."

"Yes, indeed. In the year 3000 or so lightning will have to get a move on if it wants to be considered fast."

Lucky Patients.

"Did you ever make any mistakes, doctor?"

"Well, I've had several patients get well that I expected would die."

THE FIRST

STATE BANK, OF

THIEF RIVER FALLS, WILL LOAN YOU THE

Money To Make Your Second Payment, or to make your final proof. Give us a call, as we give the best rates

On Farm Loans.

NEW STORE,

AT ANTON MINNESOTA.

Dry Goods, Goceries, Flour & feed.

Fine & Heavy Shoes, of best quality.

EXCLUSIVE AGENTS FOR THE CELEBRATED DE LAVAL CREAM SEPERATOR, IN THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

Any Kind Of Stock taken in Exchange for Goods.

give me a call.

Located at Anton post office, on the Red Lake River, Eight miles east of Thief River Falls.

Christ Larsen,-Proprietor

LOOK

SINGER BROS,

Rhoda, Minn.

Will Use This Sapce NextWeek.

A RUNAWAY RED HORSE

By STRICKLAND W. GILLILAN

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

"No," said Perry Grimes, in the tone of a man who has been unjustly accused, "I never done nobody, even if I did swap hosses an' sell fruit trees clost t' twenty year."

"Nah," scorned Ed Flint, "you didn't never do a soul. How about th' time ye swapped th' runaway red hoss t' th' Greaser out t' Alhambry? Was that any Carneejy endowment?"

"O, well, that was a case where th' exception proved th' rule. Anyhow, ye must admit that was a most unusual circumstance an' mustn't be judged accordin' t' ordinary standards. Ort it, mister?"

Thus appealed to, I demanded a complete exhibit of the happenings, before passing upon the case. Whereupon Perry took a fresh chew, adjusted his made-up blue bow to the curves of his turn-down celluloid collar, and proceeded:

"It was out clost t' Alhambry, Californy. I wasn't much but a kid then, and had traded frum a good hoss my daddy give me for a starter, down to a bridle with a bum headstall. But one day a feller come along with a hoss that had cornered th' blemish market an' was holdin' fer a raise. But that wasn't all. That hoss had th' runaway habit so indellyble fixed in 'is system that he was willin' at any time to die in th' cause. Jest as he got in front o' th' ranch my daddy an' me hung up at, this plug stopped in th' middle of a uncomplete runaway. Th' man on 'is back partly finished th' trip, but stopped at th' end o' th' bridle rein, which was a longish one.

"Dad hurried in an' got 'is first-aid-to-th'-snake-bit bottle, took a teeny pull at it hisself to see that it was flowin' free an' that nobody had changed th' contents when he wasn't lookin' an' applied it to th' dead man's mouth. Next thing dad knowed th' dead man had th' bottle an' was emptyin' it, effective an' sociable. Then he got up, with consid'able difficulty, braced hisself with 'is legs wide apart an' cut loose with a pontoon o' langwidge I've wished many a time I could duplikit.

"When 'is breath had petered out an' he was tryin' t' git 'is voice t' flow over them wide, high an' deep dams he had throwed acrost 'is stream o' talk, he ast us if we would lend him th' loan of a gun, long enough t' shoot that critter which he proceeded t' name agin, variegated an' fluent. Seein' 'is temper, I told 'im t' toddle on an' I'd shoot th' brute after he'd gone.

"With that he quieted down a little an' tole us about th' animule. It had been a-runnin' thataway fer nine mile an' was as fresh as a dandylion after a shower. Dad tried t' git 'im t' take 'is hoss on furder, but he started in with them undecent remarkins an' dad, out o' pure jealousy, give 'im th' downbrakes. Then, after a little more parleyin', dad showed 'im th' nearest way t' Loss Anglis afoot, an' he moseyed off, lookin' back every onct in awhile an' shakin' 'is fist at ole Shortstop that was perusin' alfalfy as if his mind had never been on nothin' else er harmfuller.

"Dad an' me managed t' rope an' tether 'im, an' after a right smart skirmish we got th' cooterments off 'im. Then I let 'im have 'is rope an' he capered 'round with 'is tail up like he was needin' some kind o' callisthennicks fer 'is constitootion. He sure was a pizen hoss. Takin' a invoice of 'is blemishes, I could see that all that ailed 'im was a bit of a curb on 'is right hock, tetch o' ringbone on one front pastern, one more eye'n he was gittin' any good of, an' a gentle whisper o' spavin. Didn't take dad long t' find out that th' hoss was mine an' not his'n, when he glimpsed them ornaments.

"One day, after I'd fleshed that runaway till it took a good judge o' hossmeat t' sight 'is markin's, my good thing comes by. 'Long about sundown a Greaser limps in frum Loss Anglis way, leadin' 'is mount. Picketin' it adjacent to our ranch house he proceeds to onsaddle it an' carry water an' wash its back, where they was th' worst an' biggest saddle-gall I've ever met up with.

"Th' hoss war a coal-black mare; sixteen high, eyes like a doe, forehead like a statesman, ears little enough for a pony, long, straight nose, thin throat-latch, chest an' shoulders like a greyhound, body straight an' taperin' back t' hips like th' rock o' Gibraltar. They not only wasn't nothin' th' matter with that mare—barrin' a saddle-gall—but they wasn't no way fer anything t' git th' matter with 'er.

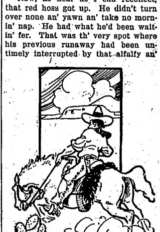
"Purty soon a think hits me an' knocks me cold. When I feels th' circulation resumin' in my system, I hunts around an' locates my tongue an' mentions to 'im that I've got a mighty good travelin' hoss there that's just dyin' fer a long, rapid trip. An' I know I ain't lyin' when I says it. He was caperin' 'round at th' time, snortin' like a stalled freight engyne with frost on th' rails. He keeps at th' out end of 'is rope an' keeps 'is cancelled eye out o' sight. Happens most of 'is other beauty spots is on th' same side as 'is dark-lantern, an' with 'is fattenin' an' th' surryin' I'd been givin' 'im with a long-handled broom, his hair shined like satin. He was a strong-lookin' devil, an' strong as he looked. If it hadn't been fer th' nasty interduction I'd had to 'im when th' perfessor a' cussology landed there sudden with 'im, I'd 'a' had some sort o' kindly feelin's toward th' hoss myself. But I knowed 'im fer a wicked runaway scamp that wouldn't never do nothin' but run away no matter how old he lived t' be.

"Th' Greaser turned an' give a look at th' red hoss. Then he turned an' looked back at 'is mare, an' th' comparison wasn't endurable. He went at th' saddle-galls agin an' I thought my think had gone plenty wide. But I kep' on a-naggin' an' ast him t' try that red hoss onct. No harm t' try him. But th' Greaser wasn't listin' good, bein' all wrapped up in th' black's galls.

"Howsmever, after I'd bothered 'im quite awhile he agreed t' try th' red hoss just onct. I roped th' wild-cat an' he seemed t' scent a chanst fer devilment, fer he never tried t' kill me ner nothin'. Then I ast th' Greaser t' bring on 'is saddle an' bridle an' cooterments. He disagreed at fust, but I explained how it wouldn't be a fair test o' th' red hoss' road powers if he didn't put on th' entire travelin' kit right at th' start. So he drug 'is whole shootin' match over an' cinched it onto my hoss while that cherry colored Satan stood as quiet as a lamb.

"Then Mister Mexican got onto th' red's back an' spurred 'im, gentle. Th' red rolled 'is eyes an' gritted 'is teeth, but only flinched a little. Then th' dark man, some provoked, raised 'is quirt an' brung it down on that hoss' flanks an' said 'Ad-a-lan-ty!' which is Greaser fer 'Git up,' with other an' emphaticker meanin's throwed in extry.

"Now, as near as I can recollect, that red hoss got up. He didn't turn over none an' yawn an' take no mornin' nap. He had what he'd been waitin' fer. That was th' very spot where his previous runaway had been untimely interrupted by that alfalfy an' 'is own appetite, three weeks before, an' he was abundant ready to resume with interest an' enthooziazzem. He did. He went down that trail like a cyclone makin' up time. He looked as if he'd started fer a good, long runaway—th' effort of 'is life. But I wasn't satisfied. I stood holdin' my breath an' lookin' fer a certain symptom. I seen it. Then I breathed easy.



He Looked as If He'd Started fer a Good Long Runaway.

"Th' symptom? W'y he just put 'is nose down between 'is forelegs an' shook 'is head. Then I knowed he had th' bits in 'is teeth an' would keep on runnin' till he got tired out. An' in th' condition he was then in, if that Greaser steered 'im right they would be about forty mile nearer th' Mexican border by th' time lassitood set in in them wicked legs. I seen th' cloud of dust disappear, th' Greaser addin' sooperfluous demonstrations.

"I went an' fondled th' mare an' put alum-water on 'er back an' pegged 'er out where th' alfalfy was longer. But I didn't dast let myself begin t' feel I owned 'er. That Greaser might—though I doubted it—manage t' head off that equine horror an' steer it back.

"Yit when late evenin' had come on an' they hadn't no Greaser showed up t' claim th' beauty, my hopes was raisin'. An' when I went over t' th' post office at Alhambry that night, I met this fool Ed, hyer, an' he says:

"'Hy, Perry, swapped off that red hoss o' yourn this mornin,' didn't ye?'

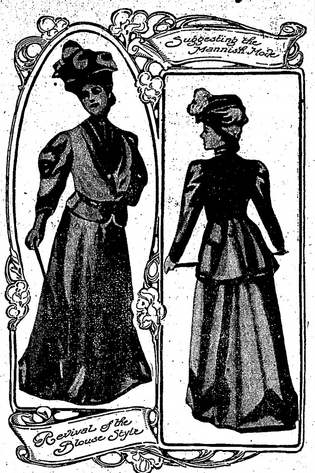
"'Met a Greaser 'leven mile east o' town this morning about nine, ridin' your hoss at a gait I never seen tetched on a race track. Th' Greaser's face looked like somethin' was troublin' him, an' he was sawin' away on that leather as if he had to. Th' hoss didn't seem interested in nothin' but goin'.'

"'Ed,' says I, 'frum what you say, I've swapped.'"

Diamond Eyes.

In the beautiful church of St. Paula le Mura, in Rome, there are two diamonds set in a rather odd place. These stones were given to the church by Isabella II. of Spain. Above the column of the inner aisles and transept is a row of medallions of all the popes. These medallions, although they look much smaller from the floor, are really five feet in diameter. Veiwed from a certain position, the eyes of one of the popes seem to emit lightning flashes at times and at others to glow with a lurid light. Those are the diamonds donated by the Spanish queen.

The New Blouse Styles.



A charming model for well-nigh every style and description of figure is an imported gown from Paris. One of the new deep gray tints—not a gun-metal nor yet a moleskin, but rather the deep and dense gray that is known in France as sourisette—the very deepest mouse-gray known to the dyer's art.

The coat is bloused all around over a cleverly shaped and fitted belt of the narrowest variety that has been seen for some time. Persian lamb of black Leipsic dye, and velvet of the deep mouse tint, are both used for trimming. The fur forms a border to the cut-out neck and trims the sleeve, and likewise borders the very full skirt in wavy points that are further emphasized by the application of a shaped fold of the cloth above them.

The little basquine that is added over the hips sets snugly, adding nothing to the size of the figure at this point.

The skirt is managed with deep plaits, stitched down over the hips and then falling in full lines to the feet, the application of fur and fold making for the effect of a double or tunic skirt.

The second costume is a design by Perdoux of Paris.

The coat is in a deep shade of sapphire-blue broadcloth—the satin-faced kind—while the skirt shows the same shade, plaided with green, brown and a black satin overstripe.

The coat follows the form known as "continental military." The collar is of the stock variety, close and tight around the throat, the vest of braided white broadcloth being built up to meet and to match this collar. The fronts are rolled back, the better to display the fancy waistcoat. A broad silk braid trims the coat, and the buttons are embroidered with an empire laurel wreath, to add to their beauty.

The skirt is rather a novel cut, the front and back showing a bias seam at the center and unbroken from belt to hem. The sides are circular in cut, the fulness increased by the addition of a circular flounce, applied with a piping of black satin.

The sleeve accords with the severe military style, being of an easy fulness at the top and finished with a braid and velvet trimmed cuff at the wrist.

RIBBON MUCH USED

STILL THE MOST POPULAR FORM OF TRIMMING.

Separate Waists Formed Altogether of this Material Are Seen—Antique Colorings in Demand.

Ribbon trimming proved so popular this summer that it is to be employed to no little extent during the autumn and coming winter. The nets show the chief evidence of the popularity of ribbon as adornment, but any number of waist house gowns and even elaborate evening dresses depend almost entirely upon figured taffeta and brocade ribbon for the finishing effect. In truth, many separate waists are formed absolutely of wide ribbon, while with some of the prettiest chiffon and lace skirts are waists solely of ribbon and trimmed with lace or chiffon like the skirt.

One immense advantage in brocade and flowered ribbon is that it frequently makes certain colors possible that otherwise would be most unbecoming. For example, many women to whom ordinarily pale blue is most unbecoming can look exceedingly well in a gown made up with trimmings of pink or red, and vice versa. Pink, which can be trimmed with blue of the latest shade, is generally preferred.

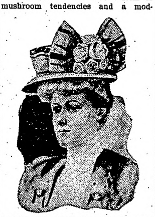
An exceedingly pretty and effective afternoon gown was formed completely of alternate strips of plain blue and bright flowered ribbon. The bodice front and back was a deep shaped yoke of Lierre lace, the silk being bordered with a fine piping of black velvet, and where the material crossed over in front were tiny black velvet soirettes. There was no added belt, but the flowered ribbon about the waist fitted perfectly, fastening across in front below the lace vest. The elbow sleeves were finished off with narrow lace ruchings and little velvet soirettes. The skirt was untrimmed, depending for effect solely upon the contrasting rows of ribbon. The ribbon was a large flower design, with shaded pink and red roses.

This autumn a large number of the handsomest afternoon and evening wraps are trimmed with wide collar and revers, and turned-back cuffs of wide ribbon in green. In most cases dull colorings are preferred for wraps, although here and there are seen bright crimson brocades and brilliant blues that are charming at this time of year. The so-called antique colorings are much in demand among the gay flowered ribbons. For hats ribbon of all possible kinds and colorings plays an important role at the present time.

BROWN THE COLOR SCHEME.

Seasonable and Smart Millinery for Every Day Wear.

A hat of a serviceable smartness much to be desired for everyday wear is of nut-brown felt with a brim of mushroom tendencies and a moderately high crown draped with some rich brown corded silk ribbon bordered and checked with darker brown velvet, which is drawn into a big bow at the left side. Here, too, there cluster some roses in lovely autumnal tints of purple and brown and pink, though, of course, other equally successful color schemes can be arranged.



Color Work Grows Popular.

Inch by inch, color work is encroaching upon the province of all-white embroidery, showing itself especially strong in table covers and their little cousins, which seem like nothing in the world but great centerpieces.

Art nouveau and renaissance ideas have been combined, to mutual benefit, for the designs, even in pieces that rank as Russian or French or eastern, or as anything else.

One stunning cover of natural-colored linen was apparently embroidered solid in red, the big, effective design looking as though it represented lots and lots of work. It didn't though, for outlining was the only stitch used, row after row of it filling in the design, and the heavy rope-silk doing its share to minimize the work of that filling by working up heavily.

SKIN ERUPTIONS 35 YEARS.

Suffered Severely with Eczema All Over Body—A Thousand Thanks to Cuticura Remedies.

"For over thirty-five years I was a severe sufferer from eczema. The eruption was not confined to any one place. It was all over my body, limbs, and even on my head. I am sixty years old and an old soldier, and have been examined by the Government Board over fifteen times, and they said there was no cure for me. I have taken all kinds of medicine and have spent large sums of money for doctors, without avail. A short time ago I decided to try the Cuticura Remedies, and after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap, two boxes of Cuticura Ointment, and two bottles of Cuticura Resolvent, two treatments in all, I am now well and completely cured. A thousand thanks to Cuticura. I cannot speak too highly of the Cuticura Remedies. John T. Roach, Richmondale, Ross Co., Ohio, July 17, 1905."

Going to Take a Day Off.

A postmaster, not many miles from Billville, posted the following notice on his shutter recently:

"All parties expectin' mail are hereby notified to git all that's comin' to 'em in advance—any time before next Thursday, that bein' the day we have app'inted to go huntin'—not havin' had a holiday from the government since July 4, and the said government seemin' to forget that bein' only human, we need rest and recreation occasional. There's some little mail here for the Joneses and the Tompinses—but it don't amount to much, as it's all got one-ecnt stamps on it. There ain't nuthin' much in the business nohow!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Romance in Writers' Lives.

A strange comedy and tragedy was woven into the lives of Ibsen and Bjornson. As young men they were great friends; then politics flung them apart; they quarreled and never met for years and years. Strange fate brought the children of these two great writers together and Bjornson's daughter married Ibsen's only child. The fathers met after a quarter of a century of separation at the wedding of their children.

Important News Chronicled.

An English paper gravely announces that "Sir Keri Singh, the maharao of Srohi, lost his last jaw tooth on July 2 and had a diamond one put in its place."

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

It has been observed that the average man is never so happy as when he is posing as a critic.

Consummate Nerve.

Senator Tillman, at a banquet in Charleston, said of a notorious corporation:

"This is what I dislike about these people.

"They break the law with bribery and with corruption, and then, if there is a strike among their hands, a window broken, a gate torn down, they are the first to come whining to the law—these lawbreakers—for protection. What nerve, what impudence!"

Senator Tillman paused and smiled.

"Do you know what, in their nerve, they remind me of?" he said. "They remind me of a man who takes shelter from a thunderstorm in an umbrella shop."

For Our Women Readers.

As probably all of you know, the name QUAKER on a package of rolled oats means exactly what sterling does on a piece of silver.

Both stand for PURITY. In another part of this paper you will find an advertisement of QUAKER OATS, now put up for the first time in large FAMILY PACKAGES at the same price as inferior oats. In addition you get in each package FREE a beautiful piece of imported china. Read the advertisement, and then ask your grocer for a FAMILY package of QUAKER OATS. You will be delighted with the oats, and more than delighted with the beautiful present in the package.

Keeping Parents in Subjection.

In the life of the very rich some parents still seek to resemble those curfews incarnate in humble life who keep the girls at home and the boys out of the barrooms. Middle life and old age are too hidebound to get accustomed to the manners of the new generation of young men who are old and worn before they graduate and of young women who win or lose large sums at gambling. Children have a right to expect from their parents docile obedience. At first this may be difficult, but, as Aristotle says, "Virtue is a habit," and it can be acquired. —N. Y. Evening Post.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

The Common Evil.

The sin which is termed dishonesty is the same evil as that which is called disease in living bodies or blight in the seasons, and in cities and governments has another name, which is injustice.—Plato.

FROM GIRLHOOD TO WOMANHOOD

Mothers Should Watch the Development of Their Daughters—Interesting Experiences of Misses Borman and Mills.

MATILDA BORMAN
MYRTLE MILLS

Every mother possesses information which is of vital interest to her young daughter.

Too often this is never imparted or is withheld until serious harm has resulted to the growing girl through her ignorance of nature's mysterious and wonderful laws and penalties.

Girls' over-sensitiveness and modesty often puzzle their mothers and baffle physicians, as they so often withhold their confidence from their mothers and conceal the symptoms which ought to be told to their physician at this critical period.

When a girl's thoughts become sluggish, with headache, dizziness or a disposition to sleep, pains in back or lower limbs, eyes dim, desire for solitude; when she is a mystery to herself and friends, her mother should come to her aid, and remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will at this time prepare the system for the coming change, and start this trying period in a young girl's life without pain or irregularities.

Hundreds of letters from young girls and from mothers, expressing their gratitude for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished for them, have been received by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., at Lynn, Mass.

Miss Mills has written the two following letters to Mrs. Pinkham, which will be read with interest:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:— (First Letter.)

"I am but fifteen years of age, am depressed, have dizzy spells, chills, headache and backache, and as I have heard that you can give helpful advice to girls in my condition, I am writing you."—Myrtle Mills, Ouquawka, Ill.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:— (Second Letter.)

"It is with the feeling of utmost gratitude that I write to you to tell you what your valuable medicine has done for me. When I wrote you in regard to my condition I had consulted several doctors, but they failed to understand my case and I did not receive any benefit from their treatment. I followed your advice, and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am now healthy and well, and all the distressing symptoms which I had at that time have disappeared."—Myrtle Mills, Ouquawka, Ill.

Miss Matilda Borman writes Mrs. Pinkham as follows:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound my periods were irregular and painful, and I always had such dreadful headaches.

"But since taking the Compound my headaches have entirely left me, my periods are regular, and I am getting strong and well. I am telling all my girl friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Matilda Borman, Farmington, Iowa.

If you know of any young girl who is sick and needs motherly advice, ask her to address Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., and tell her every detail of her symptoms, and to keep nothing back. She will receive advice absolutely free, from a source that has no rival in the experience of woman's ills, and it will, if followed, put her on the right road to a strong, healthy and happy womanhood.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound holds the record for the greatest number of cures of female ills of any medicine that the world has ever known. Why don't you try it?

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Makes Sick Women Well.

NO PATENT FEE FOR OUR SERVICES
Send for booklet. MILO B. STEVENS & CO., 905 14th St., Washington, D. C. Branches at Chicago, Cleveland and Detroit. Estab. 1864.
PROTECT YOUR IDEAS

READERS of this paper desiring to buy anything advertised in its columns should insist upon having what they ask for, refusing all substitutes or imitations.

THEY CURE RHEUMATISM

A Particularly Painful Form of This Disease Yields to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Of the many forms which rheumatism takes, that which is popularly known as sciatic rheumatism probably tortures its victim more than any other. That Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured this stubborn as well as painful trouble is a fact proven by the following statement, and no sufferer who reads this can afford to let prejudice stand in the way of trying these blood-making pills.

Rheumatism is now generally recognized as a disease of the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make—actually make—pure blood. When the blood is pure there can be no rheumatism. Mrs. Thomas Bresnehan, of 54 Mill street, Watertown, N. Y., says:

"My trouble began with a severe cold which I took about a week before Christmas in 1904. I began to have rheumatic pains in my back and limbs and after a time I couldn't straighten up. I suffered the most awful pain for months and much of the time was unable to leave the house and I had to take hold of a chair in order to walk and sometimes I could not stand up at all.

"The disease was pronounced sciatic rheumatism and, although I had a good physician and took his medicine faithfully, I did not get any better. After some six weeks of this terrible pain and suffering I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and that is the medicine that cured me. After a few boxes the pain was less intense and I could see decided improvement. I continued to take the pills until I was entirely cured and I have never had any return of the trouble."

All druggists sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, or the remedy will be mailed postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

THE TICKING OF THE CLOCK.

Soothing Company to Some Sleepers Cause of Wakefulness in Others.

"Not all people," said the jeweler, "like the ticking of a clock; it is a pleasant sound to most people, but not to all.

"Some people, clock lovers these, couldn't sleep without a clock in the same room. Its ticking is company and it scares away the spooks. Such people would wake up if the clock should stop in the middle of the night.

"But there are other people who can't sleep with a clock in the same room and who, if they found themselves in a strange place anywhere with a clock in their sleeping apartment, would stop the clock before they went to bed.

"Of course there is much of habit in this; but we have our fancies about clocks, as we do about all things else."

Tha Zulu War Cry.

The Zulu war cry, used whenever they take the field by the South African footballers now in London, has puzzled our newspapers, not one of which seems able to spell it correctly, says Notes and Queries. The Daily Express gives it as "Igamilzho," and the Daily Mail as "Gammillo." The cry really consists of two words, and should be written "Igama layo." "Igama" is Zulu for "name," and "layo" is a possessive pronoun, meaning either "his" or "their." Thus the Daily Mail, although quite wrong in its orthography of the cry, is right in saying that it merely means "That is his name." The explanation is that Zulu etiquette does not allow warriors, when they rush into battle, to mention the names of their enemies, but the leaders shout out, "That is his name," pointing to the victims with their spears.

Waiter's Modest Request.

Melba admires the independence of her fellow Australians, but on one occasion she had rather a pronounced experience with what she calls their "delightful impudence." She had waited a long time for dinner at her hotel in a large mining town and finally made a sharp complaint to the waiter. "Well, ma'am," said he, coolly, "you might sing us a song to pass the time." This to a vocalist who one evening received $5,000 from William Waldorf Astor for singing four songs in his London mansion.

HARD TO SEE.

Even When the Facts About Coffee Are Plain.

It is curious how people will refuse to believe what one can clearly see.

Tell the average man or woman that the slow but cumulative poisonous effect of caffeine—the alkaloid in tea and coffee—tends to weaken the heart, upset the nervous system and cause indigestion, and they may laugh at you if they don't know the facts.

Prove it by science or by practical demonstration in the recovery of coffee drinkers from the above conditions, and a large per cent. of the human family will shrug their shoulders, take the drugs and—keep on drinking coffee or tea.

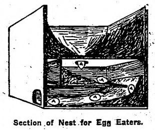
"Coffee never agreed with me nor with several members of our household," writes a lady. It enervates, depresses and creates a feeling of languor and heaviness. It was only by leaving off coffee and using Postum that we discovered the cause and cure of these ills.

"The only reason, I am sure, why Postum is not used altogether to the exclusion of ordinary coffee is, many persons do not know and do not seem willing to learn the facts and how to prepare this nutritious beverage. There's only one way—according to directions—boil it fully 15 minutes. Then it is delicious." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville, in pkgs. "There's a reason."

POULTRY
AND BEES

NEST FOR EGG EATING HENS.

A Lake County (Ill.) correspondent of Prairie Farmer sends an illustration of a nest that he has devised for egg eaters. Our sketch brings out the idea fairly well. A false bottom is put on the middle of the nest box with a hole a little over two and one-half inches in diameter in the bottom. This hole should be just large enough for an egg to go through. The sides of the nest is packed with shaving, leaves or hay and a bit of burlap tacked about the hole and around the sides to make the nest.



Section of Nest for Egg Eaters.

A lower shelf is made extending only part way across the box. As shown in the cut when the egg, A, comes down through the hole in the bottom of the nest proper, it strikes on this padding, slides off from the second shelf and drops into a lower compartment and gradually rolls until it reaches the position of the last egg. Here it is handy for the hand-hole when the gatherer comes for the contents of the nest. This device is said to work very satisfactorily and prevents the hen from eating her egg simply because it disappears from her sight at once.

FOWLS WITHOUT LICE.

Don't Give Vermin a Foothold, and Your Task Will Be Easy.

Last summer the editor of the Farmers' Review visited the Maine experiment station. That station has done a great deal in the way of poultry investigation. Conditions there are of the very best, with the result that the enterprise is successful. One of the surprising things found there is that there are no lice. Consequently no lice killers have to be used; the chicks do not have to be greased after they are out of the shell; the birds do not have to be fed enough food to supply both themselves and the lice, and the perches do not have to be painted with anti-lice paint. All this expense and all this labor are saved.

It is a wonder that considering the great losses we experience from lice we do not take more precautions to entirely rid the poultry houses of them. A few years ago the Farmers' Review sent out inquiries to many poultry raisers as to the cause of their greatest losses, Most of the replies said that the greatest losses were due to lice. It may be that to lice are due far greater losses than we have suspected.

We know very little about how contagious diseases are carried from fowl to fowl. It may be that the lice do more of this work than any other medium. It may be that a louse draws infected blood from one fowl and from it infects the next fowl on which he happens to be.

There is an impression abroad that there is little poultry disease where there are no lice and no dirt. It is a good thing to assume this at any rate. It may be an error, but if it is the error is on the part of virtue.

Prof. Charles Wood, in charge of the Maine station, was asked by the writer how he could keep his fowls free from lice. He replied that it was an easy thing to do. He started with perfectly clean pens and yards. He used incubators that had never been used before, and he put into those incubators eggs that had no lice on them. The chicks hatched had no lice, and no fowls are purchased and brought onto the farm. There has to be a beginning for the lice infestation, and the problem is to prevent the beginning. This is not a difficult thing to do.

If it can be done at an experiment station where there are 600 laying hens and thousands of chicks, it certainly can be done on any farm.

Dark Poultry Houses.

There are still many dark poultry houses to be met with in the country. Some of them are so dark that it is a wonder that the hens can get along without becoming diseased. It is also a wonder how the floor of such a house can dry out at all. It is not a difficult matter to knock a hole in the side of a poultry house and put in a window. This should be done now while the weather is good, says the Farmer's Review. The additional light will prove a great boon to the fowls which will thrive better because of the light in their dwelling house. In the summer time this matter of light is not of so much importance as it is in the winter. In the summer the fowls have the run of the farm and spend but little time in the poultry house, but in the winter they have to spend a very large amount of time there, especially if the location is in states where snow remains on the ground during a considerable part of the winter

TRANSFERRING BEES.

Easily Done by Inverting Hive and Driving Up Into Empty Box.

There are at least three ways of transferring bees from box hives. The old method is to pry open the old hives with cold chisel and hammer, cut out the combs and fit them into the movable frames, fastening them in with sticks and strings. After trying this method on several colonies, I must pronounce it a messy, sticky job.

A much better way is to drive them out by the following plan. Take the hive to be transferred under a tree or in the shade of a building and turn it bottom up. Place on top of it an empty box of the same size, blow in a little smoke at the bottom occasionally and drum on the old hive with a couple of sticks for 10 or 15 minutes. Nearly all bees and queen will go up into the empty box.

In the meantime place the hive in which you wish to put the bees on the stand where the old hive stood so the field bees that will be coming in all the time have a place to go. They will be rushing in and out again, not knowing what to make of it. Then carry the box of bees and dump them in front of the new hive and they will soon run in and make themselves at home.

Stand the old hive in a new location and drum on it again in 21 days, having an empty box above it as at first. Put these young bees in a new hive or add them to the old colony as you prefer. If one desires two colonies from the one, it is better to let the old box hive cast a swarm first, then drum in 21 days and the one drumming will be all that is necessary.

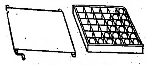
Still another way which is better and less work than either of the above methods, if one wishes to keep the whole force together and get the most money from them, says Farm and Home, is to take a movable frame hive full of empty combs, a week or two before swarming time. Place it under a box hive, closing the entrance of the top hive and compel the bees to go through the new ones. When honey begins to come in fast, the bees will crowd the queen into the lower hive, always storing their honey above the brood.

When the queen is laying nicely in the under hive, put a queen excluder between the two hives, and soon all the brood will be hatched out above and the combs will be filled with honey. It can then be taken off and the combs cut out, the honey extracted and the old combs rendered into wax. I find this the most satisfactory way of all, getting more honey and wax and keeping down increase.

HANDY EGG TURNER.

Roller of Curtain Cloth on Which Eggs Are Placed Does the Trick.

When keeping eggs for hatching they should be turned frequently. The sketch shows a combination egg drawer and turner which is very effective. The bottom of the egg drawer is removed and the eggs rest upon a roller curtain cloth, which winds upon a rod with a small crank. Winding the roller a very short distance turns each egg and jostles it slightly. A single turn on the crank will usually be sufficient.



Egg Turning Device.

A Cheap Drinking Fountain.

A good drinking fountain may be made of an ordinary red clay pot of large size, up-ended in a saucer or plate after the pot is filled with water. The hole in the bottom must, of course, be stopped up. A cork will serve the purpose, provided the hole be first reamed out to make the cork fit snugly, so that it may be air tight. The reaming can be done with any suitable instrument at hand—a pair of scissors with the blades closed will do. One or two notches should be filed or sawed in the rim of the pot, not quite as deep as the plate. If deeper than the plate the water will run out of the pot immediately, instead of keeping the plate full for the chickens to drink from.

The arrangement is said to be superior to regular crockery drinking fountaains, because the red clay, being unglazed, is slightly porous, and the air blowing on it keeps the water cool if the pot is set in a shady place.

The Farmer and the Auto.

The modern farmer has good reason to hate the auto hog, and he expresses his hatred. Many centuries ago, when the farmer was a beast of burden, he had as strong a hatred for the horse—or rather the combination of man and horse which ruled the foot soldier. By and by the horse became a worker instead of a fighter, and then the farmer saw its value. Now history may repeat itself, says Rural New Yorker. Automobiles will some day be cheaper, so that farmers can own them. Then we shall hear a different story.

A Marketing Hint.

As the sources for honey are yearly growing less, we should watch every chance for making the most of what we have. Not a pound of honey nor wax should be shipped to a distant market, says Farm Journal, until the locality where it has been produced has a full supply.

Turnips are best harvested by allowing the sheep to eat them off in the field.

Carpet rags dyed with PUTNAM FADELESS DYES will remain bright and beautiful. No trouble to use.

Proposal to Honor Engineer.

A proposition in honor of John A. Roebling's memory by the erection of a monument in Trenton, N. J., is taking a new turn and the citizens may build a new school of industrial arts and dedicate it in his name. Mr. Roebling was the builder of the Brooklyn and other suspension bridges, and one of the foremost engineers in the country in his day.

Mrs. Sage's Gift to Church.

Mrs. Russell Sage made her first gift for benevolent purposes of any size when a few days ago she contributed $1,000 from the $70,000,000 bequeathed to her by her husband to the Lawrence Methodist church. This congregation had been struggling to raise $12,000 to build a new edifice on the plot adjoining the present church property. Mrs. Sage's donation brings the fund up to more than $7,000.

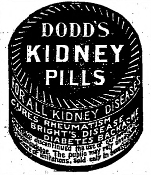
The Ideal Family Laxative.

Is one that can be used by the entire family, young and old, weak and strong, without any danger of harmful effects. It should have properties which insure the same dose always having the same effect, otherwise the quantity will have to be increased and finally lose its effect altogether. These properties can be found in that old family remedy, Brandreth's Pills, because its ingredients are of the purest herbal extracts, and every pill is kept for three years before being sold, which allows them to mellow. We do not believe there is a laxative on the market that is so carefully made.

Brandreth's Pills are the same fine laxative tonic pills your grandparents used. They have been in use for over a century and are for sale everywhere, either plain or sugar-coated.

Uncanny Chinese Legend.

There are the two celebrated towers of the imperial city, the Bell tower and the Drum tower. As to the casting of the bell in the former there is this legend: There had been two unsuccessful attempts and the life of the founder was threatened in case of a third failure. His daughter discovered by occult means that nothing but the blood of a virgin mingled with the molten metal would insure success. So at the next casting she sacrificed her life by throwing herself into the molten metal, leaving only one shoe behind. The casting was perfect. But when the bell was first struck "all were horror-stricken as, after the heavy boom of the bell, came a low wail, as of a girl in agony, distinctly saying the word 'heish,' shoe. And to this day people when they hear it, say, "There's poor Ko-ai's voice calling out for her shoe.'"—Shanghai Times.



SICK HEADACHE

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively cured by these Little Pills.

They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.

SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature

Brent Good

REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

There is no satisfaction keener than being dry and comfortable when out in the hardest storm

YOU ARE SURE OF THIS IF YOU WEAR TOWER'S FISH BRAND WATERPROOF OILED CLOTHING

BLACK OR YELLOW

On sale everywhere

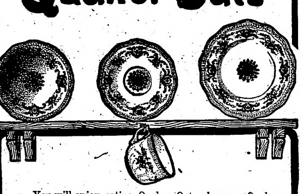
SPALDING'S ATHLETIC LIBRARY.

The Standard Athletic Library of the World. Each book complete in itself. Boys can become proficient in any particular sport by studying the text of any one of these books. Price, each book, 10 cents.

Every boy should send a postal card and receive FREE, a fully illustrated and interesting catalogue of Sports.

A. G. SPALDING & BROS.

New York Chicago Philadelphia San Francisco
Boston Buffalo Pittsburg St. Louis Kansas City
Washington Baltimore Syracuse Cincinnati
New Orleans Minneapolis Denver
Montreal, Canada London, England



These Handsome Dishes

with every large size family package of

Quaker Oats

You will enjoy eating Quaker Oats, because Quaker Oats is the best rolled oats made. There is a delicious taste to Quaker Oats that you never find in other brands.

Quaker Oats cost no more than inferior rolled oats, and in addition you receive a handsome plate, vegetable dish or cup and saucer, of semi-porcelain, beautifully decorated in dainty tints and gold, with every large sized family package.

Quaker Oats

has a larger sale all over the world than all other brands of rolled oats combined.

This of itself proves the superiority of Quaker Oats. If you have not used Quaker Oats already, you don't know how delicious, wholesome and satisfying rolled oats can be made.

Remember, you get these exquisitely decorated dishes in every large sized family package retailing at 25c. Remember, you get better Oats and better china than you have ever bought in a family package and at the same price. Quaker Oats is more economical, tastes better, and goes farther than any other brand of rolled oats. Do not allow your dealer to substitute inferior oats for Quaker Oats.

The Quaker Oats Company

There's a new Quaker product, Quaker Best Cornmeal, sold only in sealed packages, 3 lbs. 10 cents. Ask your grocer.

Enameline STOVE POLISH NO DUST DIRT SLOP SPILL NO SMOKE SMELL MUSS OR SPATTER

NO MORE MUSTARD PLASTERS TO BLISTER.
THE SCIENTIFIC AND MODERN EXTERNAL COUNTER-IRRITANT.
CAPISICUM VASELINE
EXTRACT OF THE CAYENNE PEPPER PLANT

A QUICK, SURE, SAFE AND ALWAYS READY CURE FOR PAIN.—PRICE 15c.—IN COLLAPSIBLE TUBES—AT ALL DRUGGISTS AND DEALERS, OR BY MAIL ON RECEIPT OF 15c. IN POSTAGE STAMPS. DON'T WAIT TILL THE PAIN COMES—KEEP A TUBE HANDY. A substitute for and superior to mustard or any other plaster, and will not blister the most delicate skin. The pain-allaying and curative qualities of the article are wonderful. It will stop the toothache at once, and relieve Headache and Sciatica. We recommend it as the best and safest external counter-irritant known, also as an external remedy for pains in the chest and stomach and all Rheumatic, Neuralgic and Gouty complaints. A trial will prove what we claim for it, and it will be found to be invaluable in the household and for children. Once used no family will be without it. Many people say "it is the best of all your preparations." Accept no preparation of vaseline unless the same carries our label, as otherwise it is not genuine. SEND YOUR ADDRESS AND WE WILL MAIL OUR VASELINE PAMPHLET WHICH WILL INTEREST YOU.

CHESEBROUGH MFG. CO.
17 STATE STREET, NEW YORK CITY

THE CANADIAN WEST IS THE BEST WEST

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

The testimony of thousands during the past year is that the Canadian West is the best West. Year by year the agricultural returns have increased in volume and in value, and still the Canadian Government offers 160 acres FREE to every bona fide settler.

Some of the Advantages

The phenomenal increase in railway mileage—main lines and branches—has put almost every portion of the country within easy reach of churches, schools, markets, cheap fuel and every modern convenience.

The NINETY MILLION BUSHEL WHEAT CROP of this year means $60,000,000 to the farmers of Western Canada, apart from the results of other grains and cattle.

For advice and information address the SUPERINTENDENT OF IMMIGRATION, Ottawa, Canada, or any authorized Government Agent.

CHAS. PILLING, Clifford Blk., Grand Forks, N. Dak.; J. M. Machlan, Box 116, Watertown, S. Dakota; E. T. Holmes, 325 Jackson Street, St. Paul, Minn.

YOU CANNOT CURE

all inflamed, ulcerated and catarrhal conditions of the mucous membrane such as nasal catarrh, uterine catarrh caused by feminine ills, sore throat, sore mouth or inflamed eyes by simply dosing the stomach.

But you surely can cure these stubborn affections by local treatment with

Paxtine Toilet Antiseptic

which destroys the disease germs, checks discharges, stops pain, and heals the inflammation and soreness.

Paxtine represents the most successful local treatment for feminine ills ever produced. Thousands of women testify to this fact. 50 cents at druggists.

Send for Free Trial Box
THE R. PAXTON CO., Boston, Mass.

W. L. DOUGLAS
$3.50 & $3.00 Shoes
BEST IN THE WORLD
W.L.Douglas $4 Gilt Edge line cannot be equalled at any price

To Shoe Dealers: W. L. Douglas' Jobbing House is the most complete in this country Send for Catalog

SHOES FOR EVERYBODY AT ALL PRICES.
Men's Shoes, $5 to $1.50. Boys' Shoes, $3 to $1.25. Women's Shoes, $4.00 to $1.50. Misses' & Children's Shoes, $2.25 to $1.00.

Try W. L. Douglas Women's, Misses and Children's shoes; for style, fit and wear they excel other makes.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer, and are of greater value than any other make.

Wherever you live, you can obtain W. L. Douglas shoes. His name and price is stamped on the bottom, which protects you against high prices and inferior shoes. Take no substitute. Ask your dealer for W. L. Douglas shoes and insist upon having them.

Fast Color Eyelets used; they will not wear brassy.
Write for Illustrated Catalog of Fall Styles.
W. L. DOUGLAS, Dept. 12, Brockton, Mass.

TRUCKS FOR EVERY PURPOSE
Ask for free Catalog ST-180
FAIRBANKS, MORSE & CO., Minneapolis.

DEFIANCE STARCH easiest to work with and starches clothes nicest.

THE INVENTIONS OF HAWKINS

By EDGAR FRANKLIN

THE PUMPLESS PUMP.

There are some men to whom experience never teaches anything. Hawkins is one of them; I am another.

As concerns Hawkins, I feel pretty sure that some obscure mental aberration lies at the seat of his trouble; for my own part, I am inclined to blame my confiding, unsuspicious nature.

Now, when the Hawkins' cook and the Hawkins' maid came "'cross lots" and carried off our own domestic staff to some festivity, I should have been able to see the hand of Fate groping around in my locality, clearing the scene so as to leave me, alone and unprotected, with Hawkins.

Moreover, when Mrs. Hawkins drove over in style with Patrick, to take my wife to somebody's afternoon euchre, and brought me a message from her "Herbert," asking me to come and assist him in fighting off the demon of loneliness, I should have realized that Fate was fairly clutching at me.

By this time I should be aware that when Hawkins is left alone he doesn't bother with that sort of demon; he links arms with the old, original Satan, and together they stroll into Hawkins' workshop—to perfect an invention.

But I suspected nothing. I went over at once to keep Hawkins company.

When I reached his place, Hawkins didn't meet my eye at first, but something else did.

For a moment, I fancied that the Weather Bureau had recognized Hawkins' scientific attainments, and built an observatory for him out by the barn. Then I saw that the thing was merely a tall, skeleton steel tower, with a windmill on top—the contrivance with which many farmers pump water from their wells.

"Well," remarked Hawkins, appearing at this point, "can you name it?"

"Well," I said, leaning on the gate and regarding the affair, "I imagine that it is the common or domestic windmill."

"And your imagination, as usual, is all wrong," smiled Hawkins. "That, Griggs, is the Hawkins Pumpless Pump!"

"What!" I gasped, vaulting into the road. "Another invention!"

"Now, don't be a clown, Griggs," snapped the inventor. "It is——"

"Wait. Did you lure me over here, Hawkins, with the fiendish purpose of demonstrating that thing?"

"Certainly not. It is——"

"Just one minute more. Is it tied down? Will it, by any chance, suddenly gallop over here and fall upon us?"

"No, it will not," replied Hawkins shortly. The foundations run 20 feet into the ground. Are you coming in or not?"

"Under the circumstances—yes," I said, entering again, but keeping a wary eye on the steel tower. "But can't we spend the afternoon out here by the gate?"

"We cannot," said Hawkins sourly. "Your humor, Griggs, is as pointless as it is childish. When you see every farmer in the United States using that contrivance, you will blush to recall your idiotic words."

I was tempted to make some remark about the greater likelihood of memory producing a consumptive pallor; but I refrained and followed Hawkins to the veranda.

"When I built that tower," pursued the inventor, waving his hand at it, "I intended, of course, to use the regulation pump, taking the power from the windmill.

"Then I got an idea.

"You know how a grain elevator works—a series of buckets on an endless chain, running over two pulleys, just as a bicycle chain runs over two sprockets? Very well. Up at the top of that tower I extended the hub of the windmill back to form a shaft with big cogs. Down at the bottom of the well there is another corresponding shaft with the same cogs. Over the two, as you will see, runs an endless ladder of steel cable. Is that clear?"

"I guess so," I said, wearily. "Go on."

"Well, that's as far as I have gone. Next week the buckets are coming. I shall hitch one to each rung of the chain, or ladder, throw on the gear, and let her go.

"The buckets will run down into the well upside down, come up on the other side filled, run to the top of the tower, and dump the water into a reservoir tank—and go down again. Thus I pump water without a pump—in other words, with a pumpless pump!

"Simple! Efficient! Nothing to get out of order—no valves, no pistons, no air-chambers—nothing whatever!" finished Hawkins triumphantly.

"Wonderful!" I said absently.

"Isn't it?" cried the inventor. "Now, do you want to look over it, to-day, Griggs, or shall we run through those drawings of my new loom?"

Hawkins has invented a loom, too. I don't know much about machinery in general, but I do know something about the plans, and from what I can judge by the plans, if any workman was fool-hardy enough to enter the room with Hawkins' loom in action, that intricate bit of mechanism would reach out for him, drag him in, macerate him, and weave him into the cloth, all in about 30 seconds.

But an explanation of this to Hawkins would merely have precipitated another conflict. I chose what seemed to be the lesser evil; I elected to examine the pumpless pump.

The pump was just as Hawkins had described—a thin steel ladder coming out of the well's black mouth, running up to and over the shaft, and descending into the blackness again. When we reached its side, it was stationary, for the air was still.

"There!" cried Hawkins. "All it needs is the buckets and the tank on top. That idea comes pretty near to actual execution, Griggs, doesn't it?"

"Most of your ideas do come pretty near to actual execution, Hawkins," I sighed.

"Now, look down here," he continued, leaning over the well with a calm disregard of the frailty of the human make-up, and grasping one of the rungs of the ladder. "Just look down here, Griggs. Sixty feet deep!"

"I'll take your word for it," I said. "I wouldn't hold on to that ladder, Hawkins; it might take a notion to go down with you."

"Nonsense!" smiled the inventor. "The gear's locked. It can't move. Why, look here!"

The man actually swung himself out to the ladder and stood there. It made my blood run cold.

I expected to see Hawkins, ladder, and all shoot down into the water, and I wondered whether Heaven would send wind enough to hoist him out before he drowned.

But nothing happened. Hawkins simply stood there and surveyed me with sneering triumph.

"You see, Griggs," he observed caustically, "once in a while I do know something about my inventions. Now, if your faint heart will allow it, I should advise you to take a peep down here. So far as I know, it's the only well in the State built entirely of white tiles. Just steady yourself on the ladder and look."

Like a senseless boy taking a dare, I reached out, gripped the rung above Hawkins, and looked down.

Certainly it was a fine well. I never paid much attention to wells, but I could see at a glance that this one was exceptional.

"I had it tiled last week," continued Hawkins. "A tiled well is absolutely safe, you see. Nothing can happen in a tiled well, no——"

That was another of Hawkins' fallacies. Something happened right then and there.

A gentle breeze started the windmill. Slowly, spectacularly, the ladder began to move—downwards!

"Why, say!" cried the inventor, in amazement, as he made one futile effort to regain the ground. "Do you think——"

I wasn't thinking for him, just then. All my wits were centered on one great, awful problem.

Before I could realize it and release my hold, the ladder had dropped far enough to throw me off my balance. The problem was whether to let go and risk dashing down sixty feet, or to keep hold and run the very promising chance of a slow and chilly ducking.

I took the latter alternative, threw myself upon the ladder, and clung there, gasping with astonishment at the suddenness of the thing.

"Well, Hawkins?" I said, getting breath as my head sank below the eye of the beautiful earth.

"Well, Griggs," said the inventor defiantly, from the second rung below, "the gear must have slipped—that's all."

"Isn't it lucky that this is a tiled well?"

"What do you mean?"

"Why," I said, "a tiled well is absolutely safe, you see. Nothing can happen in a tiled well, Hawkins."

"Now, don't stand there grinding out you cheap wit, Griggs," snapped Hawkins. "How the dickens are we going to escape being soaked?"

Down, down, down, down, went the ladder.

"Well," I said, thoughtfully, "the bottom usually falls out of your schemes, Hawkins. If the bottom will only fall out of the water department of your pumpless pump within the next half-minute, all will be lovely!"

"Oh, dry up!" exclaimed the inventor nervously. "Goodness! We're half way down already!"

"Why not climb?" I suggested.

"Really, Griggs," cried the inventor, "for such an unpractical man as yourself, that idea is remarkable! Climb, Griggs, climb. Get about it!"

I think myself that the notion was rather bright. If the ladder was climbing down into the well, we could climb up the ladder.

And we climbed! Good heavens, how we did climb! It was simply a perpendicular treadmill, and with the rungs a full yard apart, a mighty hard one to tread.

Every rung seemed to strain my muscles to the breaking point; but we kept on climbing, and we were gaining on the ladder. We were not 10 feet from the top when Hawkins called out:

"Wait, Griggs! Hey! Wait a minute! Yes, by Jove, she's stopped!"

She had. I noticed that, far above, the windmill had ceased to revolve. The ladder was motionless.

"Oh, I knew we'd get out all right," remarked the inventor, dashing all perspiration from his brow. "I felt it."

"Yes, I noticed that you were entirely confident a minute or two ago," I observed.

"Well, go on now and climb out," said Hawkins, waving an answer to the observation. "Go ahead, Griggs."

I was too thankful for our near deliverance to spend my breath on vituperation. I reached toward the rung above me and prepared to pull myself back to earth.

And then a strange thing happened. The rung shot upward. I shot after it. One instant I was in the twilight of the well; the next instant I was blinded by the sun.

Too late I realized that I had ascended above the mouth, and was journeying rapidly toward the top of the tower. It had all happened with that sickening, surprising suddenness that characterizes Hawkins' inventions.

Up, up, up, I went, at first quickly, and then more slowly, and still more slowly, until the ladder stopped again, with my eyes peering over the top of the tower.

I didn't waste any time in thanking the ladder. Before the accursed thing could get into motion again, I climbed to the shaft and perched there, dizzy and bewildered.

Hawkins followed suit, clambered to the opposite end of the shaft, and arranging himself there, astride.

"Well," I remarked, when I had found a comparatively secure seat on the bearing—a seat fully two inches wide by four long—"did the gear slip again?"

"No, of course not," said the inventor. "The windmill simply started turning in the opposite direction."

"It's a weak, powerless little thing, your windmill, isn't it?"

"Well, when I built it I calculated it to hoist two tons."

"Instead of which it has hoisted two—or rather, one—misguided man, who allowed himself to be enticed within its reach."

"See here," cried Hawkins wrathfully, "I suppose you blame me for getting you into a hole?"

"Not at all," I replied. "I blame you for getting me altogether too far out of the hole."

"Well, you needn't. If it hadn't been for your stupidity, we shouldn't be here now."

"What!"

"Certainly. Why didn't you jump off as we passed the mouth of the well?"

"My dear Hawkins," I said mildly, "do you realize that we flitted past that particular point at a speed of about 70 feet per second? Why didn't you jump?"

"I—I—I didn't want to desert you, Griggs," rejoined Hawkins weakly, looking away.

"That was truly noble of you," I observed. "It reveals a beautiful side of your character which I had never suspected, Hawkins."

"That'll do," said the inventor shortly. "Are you going down first or shall I?"

"Do you propose to trust all that is mortal of yourself to that capricious little ladder again?"

"Certainly. What else?"

"I was thinking that it might be safer, if slightly less comfortable, to wait here until Patrick gets back. He could put up a ladder—a real, old-fashioned, wooden ladder—for us."

"Yes, and when Patrick gets back those women will get back with him," replied Hawkins heatedly. "Your wife's coming over here to tea."

"Well?"

"Well, do you suppose I'm going to be found stuck up here like a confounded rooster on a weather vane?" shouted the inventor. "No, sir! You can stay and look all the fool you like. I won't. I'm going down now!"

Hawkins reached gingerly with one foot for a place on the ladder. I looked at him, wondered whether it would be really wicked to hurl him into space, and looked away again, in the direction of the woods.

My gaze traveled about a mile, and my nerves received another shock.

"See here, Hawkins!" I cried.

"Well, what do you want?" demanded the inventor gruffly, still striving for a footing.

"What will happen if a breeze hits this infernal machine now?"

"You'll be knocked into Kingdom Come, for one thing," snapped Hawkins with apparent satisfaction. "That arm of the windmill right behind you will rap your head with force enough to put some sense in it."

I glanced backward. He was right—about the fact of the rapping, at any rate.

The huge wing was precisely in line to deal my unoffending cranium a terrific whack, which would probably stun me, and certainly brush me from my perch.

"There's a big wind coming!" I cried. "Look at those trees."

"By Jimminy! You're right!" gasped the inventor, recklessly hurling himself upon the ladder. "Quick, Griggs. Come down after me. Quick!"

Nerving myself for the task, I swung to the quivering steel cable, kicked wildly for a moment, and then found a footing.

"Now, down!" shouted Hawkins, below me. "Be quick!"

That diabolical windmill must have heard him and taken the remark for a personal injunction. It obeyed to the letter.

When an elevator drops suddenly, you feel as if your entire internal organism was struggling for exit through the top of your head. As the words left Hawkins' mouth, that was precisely the sensation I experienced.

Clinging to the ladder for dear life, down we went!

They say that a stone will drop 16 feet in the first second, 32 in the next, and so on. We made far better time than that. The wind had hit the windmill, and she was reeling us back into the well to the very best of her ability.

Before I could draw breath we flashed to the level of the earth, down through the mouth of the well, and on down into the white-tiled twilight.

My observations ceased at that point. A gurgling shriek came from Hawkins. Then a splash.

My nether limbs turned icy cold, next my body and shoulders, and then cracked ice seemed to fill my ears, and I still clung to the latder, and prayed fervently.

For a time I descended through roaring, swirling water. Then my feet were wrenched from their hold, and for a moment I hung downward by my hands alone. Still I clung tightly, and wondered dimly why I seemed to be going up again. Not that it mattered much, for I had given up hope long ago, but still I wondered.

And then, still clutching the ladder with a death-grip, with Hawkins kicking about above me, out of the water I shot, and up the well once more. An instant of the half-light, the flash of the sun again—and I hurled myself away from the ladder.

I landed on the grass. Hawkins landed on me. Soaking wet, breathless, dazed, we sat up and stared at each other.

"I'm glad, Griggs," said Hawkins, with a watery smile—"I'm glad you had sense enough to keep your grip going around that sprocket at the bottom. I knew we'd be all right if you didn't let go——"

"Hawkins," I said viciously, "shut up!"

"But—oh, good Lord!"

I glanced toward the gate. The carriage was driving in. The ladies were in the carriage. Evidently the afternoon euchre had been postponed.

"There, Hawkins," I gloated, "you can explain to your wife just why you knew we'd be all right. She'll be a sympathetic listener."

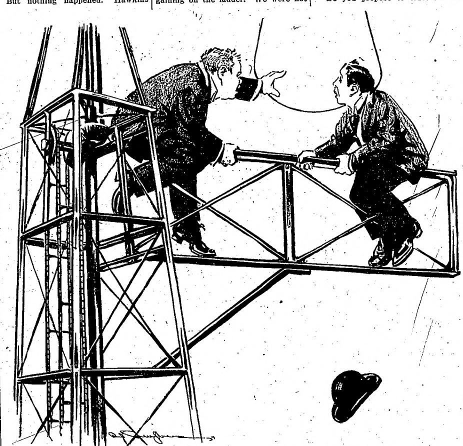
Said Hawkins, with a sickly smile: "Oh, Griggs!"

Said Mrs. Hawkins, gasping with horror as Patrick whipped the horses to our side——

But never mind what Mrs. Hawkins said. This chronicle contains enough unpleasantness as it is. There are remarks which, when addressed to one, one feels were better left unsaid.

I think that Hawkins felt that way about practically everything his wife said upon this occasion. Let that suffice.

(Copyright, 1906, by W. G. Chapman.)



"What Will Happen If the Breeze Hits This Infernal Machine Now?"

Brawls, North and South.

Two young men filled with mixed opinions and beverages proceeded to dust the asphalt of Surf avenue with each other a few nights ago, and immediately a crowd that had been headed toward a park entrance tacked across the street to see the free fight instead.

"Set me down any place in the eastern states," drawled a lank tar heel here to see the sights, as he watched the human ring form around the fighters, "and I'll tell you, as soon as a fight starts, whether I'm north or south of the Mason and Dixon line. When a scrap begins up this way you all swarm toward the battlefield like ants to a jug of 'lasses. Down our way the first punch is the signal for everyone within range of a six-shooter to scatter for cover."—N. Y. Sun.

"Fields of Peace."

It was the belief of the ancient Egyptians, according to a recent writer, that everything, material and immaterial, had its immortal double. Out of this grew the idea of a life in the future state of perfect happiness in the "Fields of Peace." For a long time the common people regarded these "Fields of Peace" not as a celestial place but as situated in the fertile and well-watered regions of the Nile delta in the northwest of Egypt, where the blessed ever breathed the cool north wind. Here they lived an ideal form of their life upon earth. They plowed their fields and grew the grain which supplied them with the "bread which grew not stale and beer that never became sour." Here was situated the duplicate of their earthly towns or villages.

Glad of It.

Subbubs—Somebody's stolen our dog again. That's a d—

Mrs. Subbubs (hastily)—William! William! don't swear about it.

Subbus—Who's swearing? I was just going to say it's a dog-gone big relief.—Philadelphia Press.

Invisible to Some.

"Henry," said Mrs. Meeker, as she laid aside the paper, "I don't see the point to these everlasting jokes about being henpecked."

"No, I suppose not, my dear," replied Mr. Meeker; "neither does the man."—Chicago Daily News

---

Michigan Turns to East for Gridiron Contests.

Football Authorities of Ann Arbor University Seek New Athletic Relations.

Michigan may break away from the western intercollegiate conference and join hands with some of the big eastern institutions. Such action would probably disrupt the present organization of the "big nine," causing a general remodeling all along the line in college athletics in the middle west.

Sentiment among students at Ann Arbor, and even some of the athletic officials is strongly in favor of cutting loose from the "big nine" and seeking other connections, tying up with Cornell and Pennsylvania, and possibly one or two other schools in the east.

Yost, Baird and Fitzpatrick, while declining to make statements to the public, are known to favor such a move, for they believe the Maize and Blue can produce athletes capable of holding their own with the best any of the big eastern colleges can turn out.

Michigan's chief cause of dissatisfaction is the way Chicago canceled its contract with the Wolverines for a football game at Ann Arbor this fall, under the assertion that the new conference rules do not permit enough games to take on so hard a battle. After that the Midway school hooked up with Minnesota for a game at Marshall field, and Michigan, of course, was forced to turn elsewhere for big games. Pennsylvania accommodated the Wolverines, just as the Red and Blue accommodated Stagg back in 1899 when other members of the "big nine" turned him down.

Alumni of Michigan are doing all in their power to bring about a change from the western to the eastern intercollegiate. They would like to see the Ann Arbor athletes compete with any of the big schools of the east—Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Pennsylvania or Cornell.

Yale, Harvard and Princeton, it is argued, are probably too far from Ann Arbor to make an agreement with them possible and consequently the general idea is for Michigan to organize with Pennsylvania and Cornell for the two big games of the season, getting their practice work with the little colleges of Michigan and surrounding states. Cornell would be slated to play at Ann Arbor the year Michigan went to Pennsylvania and the next year Penn would come west and Michigan would go to meet Cornell at Ithaca.

This is the plan talked among the alumni who are working to bring sufficient pressure on the board of control of the Ann Arbor school to cause it to cut away from the "big nine" and seek new connections in the east.

J. C. FAGAN.
(Captain of Team of Culver, Ind., Military Academy.)

COLLEGE FOOTBALL NOTES.

"Michigan is good, but nothing like as strong as last year," declares Capt. Carrithers, of Illinois. "All of their plays are built around Garrels."

The entire effort of the maroon eleven is directed toward Minnesota this season. It is the big game of the west and probably will be a corker.

Yost expressed himself in accord with the opinions of other western coaches and officials in the interpretation placed on the rule against hurdling.

Halfback Runyon, one of Purdue's most promising candidates for a backfield position, broke his left leg and sprained his right ankle in scrimmage practice.

Coach Stagg, of Chicago, has instituted night practice school for his team. He is coaching his men on blackboard relative to the many new plays he is perfecting.

Quarterback Dwan, of the Notre Dame eleven, will probably quit the gridiron on account of parental objections. He has been running the team in splendid shape.

Of a group of 20 football teams in the east, nine have not been scored on. Yale, Princeton, Pennsylvania State, Dartmouth, Lafayette, Brown, West Point, Swarthmore and Virginia.

MINNESOTA
HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

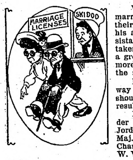
THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. VI. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, NOV. 16, 1906. NO. 33.

Our Washington Letter

Interesting Gossip Gathered at the National Capital—To Stop Marriage of Blind Persons—Weak Spots in Bank Examinations Pointed Out.



WASHINGTON.—Government control of the marriage of persons deprived of one or more of their senses is the latest administration idea. By his appointment of a committee on eugenics Assistant Secretary of Agriculture W. M. Hayes has taken a step which, it is expected, will result in a great improvement in the human race through more favorable conditions in the relationship of the sexes.

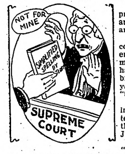
It is the object of this committee to devise a way to prevent the marriage of two blind persons, should it be determined that their union would result in a transmission of their deficiency.

Members of the committee are: Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, Washington; Dr. David Starr Jordan, president of Leland Stanford university; Maj. Charles Woodruff, M. D., U. S. A.; Dr. Charles B. Henderson, University of Chicago; C. W. Ward, New York, and Rev. J. E. Gilbert, Washington.

Eugencies is defined as "the science of generative or procreative development; the doctrine of progress or evolution, especially in the human race, through improved conditions in the relations of the sexes."

The committee will submit a report at a meeting of the American Breeders' association in Columbus, O., January 15. The committee, Assistant Secretary Hayes says, will "investigate and report on heredity in the human race; devise methods of recording the values of the blood of individuals, families, peoples, and races; emphasize the value of superior blood, and suggest methods of improving the heredity of the family, the people, or the race."

SIMPLIFIED SPELLING GETS A REBUFF.



"Roosevelt spelling" was up before the supreme court of the United States the other day, and in an encounter with the traditions of that ancient body it did not come off the victor.

The case under consideration was that of Dalcour against the United States, and Solicitor General Hoyt was engaged in presenting the government's side. In the course of his argument he had occasion to refer to a long quotation in his brief from a decision of the court rendered some years ago by Justice Bradley, in which the word "through" was spelled "thru."

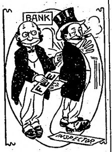
Chief Justice Fuller held a copy of the brief in his hand, and when the word was reached interrupted Mr. Hoyt with a question as to whether the extract was intended to be a quotation from Justice Bradley's official opinion.

"In all except the spelling," replied Mr. Hoyt.

"Ah," significantly responded the chief justice, with an interrogative inflexion that caused a general smile through the courtroom. The solicitor general explained that the department of justice, like all other departments of the government, had attempted to follow the new order of spelling, and he added that, while he considered it proper to pursue this course in the original text of the department's briefs, he did not feel that the department was justified in changing the orthography of judicial opinions. He said that in the future such changes would be guarded against.

The court has not adopted the simplified spelling system.

BANK EXAMINATIONS ARE NOT THOROUGH.



Do bank examiners examine? Is their examination worth anything? Is the public protected against loss by their work?

Such questions as these are inevitably suggested to the average man by disclosures like those in Chicago recently, in connection with the failure of the Milwaukee Avenue State bank; in connection with the Philadelphia failure, and the Pittsburg bank thefts.

"No bank inspection will protect the public against downright dishonesty on the part of the bank's officers."

This may be taken as the official and final statement of the comptroller's office. Banking always has been and always will be a business in which the head of the bank must be trusted and trustworthy.

It has been shown repeatedly that collusion between two officials in a bank (or sometimes merely the dishonesty of one official) will deceive the best bank examiner in the employ of the government.

A good illustration of this fact took place in the failure of a bank not long ago at Redbank, N. J. One of the best examiners on the comptroller's force was sent to look into the affairs of the institution. He spent several days going over the securities and books, and then called the directors together and reported that the bank was perfectly sound, and that he would recommend that it go on.

At this moment the cashier of the bank came in.

"You are entirely mistaken, gentlemen," said the cashier. "This bank is busted."

The examiner and directors looked at the man in amazement.

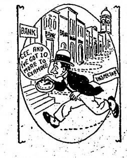
"It is very simple," said he. "If you will wait a minute I will go into the cellar and get some papers."

Presently the cashier returned with some loose sheets which had been removed from the ledger. They contained the record of deposits. Most of them were of money which had been put in for saving, and to draw interest, but it was one of the bank's liabilities, and it put a very different aspect on the matter.

Until the dishonest bookkeeping was disclosed the affairs of the bank appeared all right. There was no way in which the examiner could tell that loose pages had been taken from the ledger—unless, indeed, he were gifted with some Sherlock Holmes instinct beyond the ordinary equipment of the accountant.

In other words, the national or the state bank examiner is not a Sherlock Holmes. In most cases he judges a bank's condition by surface conditions. Only when rumors of something wrong have come to him does he try to insert the probe below the surface. And even then he has small chance of outwitting the sharp and crooked bank officials who are on the ground and who have had every chance to cover their tracks.

HUNDREDS OF BANKS TO EACH MAN.



BANK
BANK
GEE, AND I'VE GOT 10 MORE TO EXAMINE INSPECTOR

There are 78 bank examiners to examine 7,966 national banks. Last year these examiners made a total of 11,716 examinations. Anybody will see from these figures that an examiner does not linger long over any one bank.

What the examiner does is to look over the securities, check up the amount of loans and discounts, see what proportion they bear to the capital and assets, and generally to make sure that the books of the bank do not show anything contrary to the national banking act. The examination is, in fact, more a check on the officers' way of doing business than a precaution against actual dishonesty.

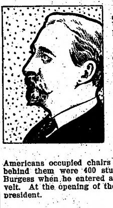
National banks are not supposed to be examined oftener than twice a year. And then all that is necessary, in most cases, is that the records may appear all right. Among the assets may appear certain notes which are forgeries, but the bank examiner does not take each signature to be less effective than it should be. It has one great weakness—namely, the fee system. Comptroller Ridgely says of this:

"The weakest feature of the present system of examination is that the examiners are paid by fees instead of salaries. I believe every comptroller of the currency in recent years has recommended a change in this system.

"The government can and should by all means improve the service by paying examiners by the day and greatly increasing their number, so that a man should have time and take time to go into matters as thoroughly as is necessary to get at the real condition of the bank. The men ought to be paid good salaries; large enough to attract and hold good men. It is one of the difficulties of the present service that it is hard to keep good men."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

American Professor in Berlin.

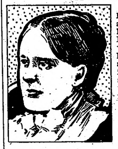


Prof. John W. Burgess, who opened the Theodore Roosevelt course in American history at the University of Berlin the other day, is dean of Columbia university of New York city.

Three cheers for President Roosevelt were proposed and given by Emperor William at the ceremonies attending the opening. The members of the emperor's suite, the professors and the students responded vigorously. The emperor then conversed with Prof. Burgess, congratulating him on the successful beginning of his work, and also had a talk with Ambassador and Mrs. Tower. The emperor requested the ambassador to cable to President Roosevelt his thanks for the president's cooperation.

Besides Emperor William, the empress, Prince August Wilhelm, United States Ambassador Tower and Mrs. Tower, Dr. Studt, the minister of education, and about 50 professors and resident Americans occupied chairs near the reading desk in the lecture hall, while behind them were 400 students, who energetically cheered Prof. John W. Burgess when he entered and applauded every reference to President Roosevelt. At the opening of the proceeding Prof. Burgess read a letter from the president.

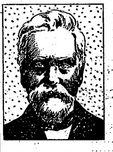
Head of National W. C. T. U.



Mrs. Lillian H. N. Stevens, who opened the National Women's Christian Temperance Union at Hartford, Conn., the other day, has been at the head of the organization since the death of Miss Frances Willard in 1898. In 1894 she was elected vice president at large, and prior to that time she had been assistant recording secretary 13 years and recording secretary one year. Mrs. Stevens is a native of Dover, Me., and began life as a school-teacher. At 21 she was married and went with her husband to his home near Portland. She first met Miss Willard in 1875, and materially assisted in organizing the Maine W. C. T. U. Besides her temperance work Mrs. Stevens is interested in promoting homes for the dependent classes.

Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens in her annual report said in part: "No former year has marked greater progress. The people more widely than ever before know what alcohol is. The reiteration that alcohol is a poison and not a food has forced the study of the liquor question upon many who heretofore have been unmindful, if not altogether unbelieving.

Sir Hiram Stevens Maxim.

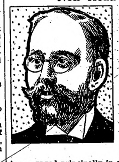


The fierce, white-whiskered man representing the latest portrait of the famous inventor and scientist, Sir Hiram Maxim, would hardly be taken for a native of Maine. Yet such is the case, for he was born in Sangerville, of the Pine Tree State, a little over 66 years ago. His Maxim gun and "cordite," a smokeless powder, have made him world famous.

Probably the most thankless task that he ever performed for erring humanity was the result embodied in a book of two months' sojourn at Monte Carlo. He proved that tradition, superstition, and the most elaborate "systems" were alike ineffective in fighting the "game" played there. By a mathematical demonstration of the law of averages he showed that two insurmountable obstacles must sooner or later overwhelm the most successful player, the most carefully devised systems—the bank's percentage and limit placed on stakes.

For the last ten years and more Sir Hiram has devoted himself to attempts to solve the problem of aerial navigation. Like Santos-Dumont, he early discarded the balloon, and devotes all his energy to constructing an aeroplane which can be propelled with such velocity as to lift itself and its navigator free from Mother Earth. While the young Brazilian has only succeeded in propelling his aeroplane over a track which it almost clears, Sir Hiram, in speeding over his track one morning, suddenly found himself lifted clear of the ground and precipitated several yards to the right. It was perhaps the first instance in which a flying machine has actually lifted a human being from terra firma.

New Head of Spanish War Veterans.

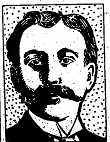


Capt. Hamilton Ward, Jr., recently elected commander-in-chief of the Spanish war veterans, of which he was one of the founders, was born in the nation's capital while his father was a member of the Forty-first congress, in 1871. He is now a resident of Buffalo.

Young Ward attended the Vermont Episcopal institute in Burlington, Vt., a military school, and studied law in his father's office in Belmont, N. Y. When his father was elected a justice of the supreme court of the state of New York young Ward removed to Buffalo, and was admitted to the bar in 1892. Shortly thereafter he became assistant district attorney of Erie county and retained that position until the hostilities with Spain, when he resigned and was commissioned a captain in the Two Hundred and Second New York volunteer infantry. He served with his regiment till its muster out on April 15, 1899, at Savannah, Ga., being engaged principally in garrison duty in western Cuba.

He has been practicing law in Buffalo since that time. He was department judge advocate in 1901, and secured the enactment of laws placing Spanish war veterans on the same basis as G. A. R. men in respect to holidays, appropriation for memorial service, funeral expenses, license and in part poor relief. He as elected national judge advocate in 1902 at the Detroit encampment and was on the committee on amalgamation; assisted in preparing the rules and regulations that are now substantially in force, and prepared the manual for courts-martial; he also assisted Past Department Commander Simmons, of Rochester, N. Y., in the preparation of the ritual for the installation of camps.

Protector of Frisco Grafters.



Abraham (commonly called "Abe") Ruef, who is making desperate efforts to prevent the indictment of boodlers and grafters of San Francisco by usurping the office of district attorney, is a lawyer by profession, and has been for years a political "boss." He has ruled the Republican and labor party machines, and was instrumental in electing Schmitz, the Socialist candidate, as mayor of San Francisco three years ago. The police and saloon power he has controlled in the hollow of his hand, but the earthquake and fire upset his political domination in the latter respect, and the Citizens' Reform association has been on his trail for a long time. Ruef's appointment to be district attorney—made by one of his tools, Acting Mayor Gallagher, for the purpose of preventing incriminating evidence reaching the grand jury—is denounced as most disgraceful.

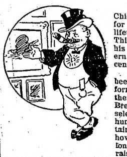
Francis J. Heney, of Oregon, employed by Rudolph Spreckels to ferret out municipal graft, has announced that he intended to prosecute bribe givers more vigorously than bribe takers. By this he is assumed to mean the united railroads, which is rumored to have given $500,000 to Ruef and the supervisors to secure an overhead trolley franchise, which had been refused before the fire.

Ruef is said to fear more than anything else that a popular uprising against him may be incited by the oratory of Heney. Heney so wrought upon the crowd in the courtroom recently that observers declared if he had been permitted to speak ten minutes longer there would have been an attempt to lynch Ruef. Heney is intensely in earnest. He seems to have the power of exciting his audience and making his hearers share his own feelings.

Ruef has received so many threatening letters and has been so loudly hooted that he has become afraid and has engaged a bodyguard to attend him wherever he goes.

From New York Town

Newsy Gossip of Gotham Doings by Our Correspondent—"Pat" Sheedy to Open Unique Gallery of Art—City to Have Music Central.



NEW YORK.—Patrick F. Sheedy, long of Chicago, who makes no pretense of loving "art for art's sake," is about to realize the dream of a lifetime by opening a picture gallery on West Thirty-fourth street. One of the attractions of his gallery will be an assemblage of old and modern paintings collected by "Jack" Carr, who recently passed from this life at Copenhagen.

These works of art were supposed to have been acquired by their owner in an entirely informal manner. Many were picked up here and there at cut rate prices, like the Meyer von Bremen recently offered in this city, or quietly selected from private collections. There are a hundred or so of them, and the last one was obtained 28 years ago, according to Sheedy. They, however, have been kept from the public eye so long that questions of titles are not likely to be raised. The fact that such an artistic treasure trove existed in Europe was pointed out several weeks ago in a cable dispatch from Paris.

Sheedy has been in communication with the present owners and when they deliver the paintings in New York he will be able to make satisfactory arrangements for their disposition.

These canvases will not constitute the entire stock, for the famous painting which the noted amateur, who has now become a professional, acquired from Raisuli, the bandit, will also be on view. Two hundred other art works, some of them from the brushes of old masters and a few now innocent of varnish, will be displayed.

It was through the mediation of Sheedy that the famous Gainsborough of the duchess of Devonshire, which was stolen, was recovered in Chicago and returned to its owner.

"Men change their opinions," said Sheedy, "but not their principles. I am no reformer and I do not have to proclaim my honesty. I am still Pat Sheedy, and I would be the same if I were minister of the Gospel. I've gone through life looking for the good in what might be termed the bad people, and not looking for the bad in what might be termed the good people.

"Anybody can buy a picture from me with impunity, and no one will get arrested for doing so. I'm not one of those dealers who will say: 'It's all right, but don't say you got it from me.' I have been preparing for this business now about 20 years, and I will have something here well worth looking at.

"Many of the nouveau riche have plenty of money to spend, but, having no training in art, they do not know how to do it. For the benefit of the uninitiated I have gathered some small collections which will be placed in rooms so that they may be studied with reference to the furnishings. One who sees pictures in such circumstances will be able to tell at a glance whether or not the works will harmonize with white and gold interiors. If they don't, they can see the effect in some other color."

TO SEND MUSIC BY TELEPHONE.

Within a few weeks New Yorkers will have the benefit of one of the most wonderful electrical inventions of the age—the telharmonic. This is an instrument for the transmission of music from a central keyboard to the homes, hotels, restaurants and public places of a city.

At a cost of more than $50,000 the central musical "plant" has been established at a convenient point in Manhattan. The instrument is virtually perfected, and in a short time, it is expected, the company will be ready to offer its musical wares to the public. At no great cost the householder, flat dweller or restaurant proprietor may have a telharmonic installed, connected by wire with the central instrument or instruments, and by simply pushing a button will be able to turn on the music. The instrument that will be placed in the homes is a small affair and can easily be hidden by a grouping of flowers or potted plants. Four grades of music will be available—grand opera, pipe organ, orchestral or piano.

Tests thus far made show that the rich tones of the central instrument are preserved in transmission, and there is no marring of the music by the rasping sound of the phonograph. The inventor of the telharmonic and the capitalists who are backing him are confident that the instrument will not only have connections with thousands of homes here, but will soon be used almost universally by the restaurant keepers.

FEDERAL BUILDING CATS WELL CARED FOR.

The cats in the basement of the Federal building receive better treatment than any other such aggregation in New York. This is particularly true of Black Tom and his three cronies. Besides coming in for the best of fare from their guardian, old Barney, the watchman, the quartette has a feast twice a week on catnip, while it is in season. Every Tuesday and Friday he brings in a bundle of the herb from his country place in Long Island, or if he is staying in the city he has his gardener make a special trip to bring it in.

As regularly as these days come along Black Tom and his four pals drop in and stroll around. If there is any delay on the part of Taylor, the postmaster's colored man, to spread the feast, Mr. Willcox is apprised of it by the four cats solemnly filing into his private office, taking up their station on his desk and gazing at him.

In addition to this the cats have become used to drinking nothing but the soft, pure rain water which accumulates for their special benefit in a cistern on the roof. Barney discovered this taste of his pets by watching them trot out on the roof and eagerly lap up the water in the gutters after every rainfall. Stopping at nothing to keep the four in good humor he built a small cistern on the roof.

TINY BOY WINS FIGHT TO ENTER SCHOOL.

The happiest boy in New York is little Max Birenbach, the seven-year-old son of Solomon Birenbach, for he has been allowed to again take his place among his companions in school, who have long teased him for being too small to enter their classes.

Ever since the fall term opened Max has been trying his best to be admitted, but the teachers refused to let him stay in school.

In height he is only a little over two feet, while the teachers of the school gave a broad guess that he weighed only 17 pounds. Their excuse was that they feared to step on him or that he would be injured by the larger children, and that he would surely some day drop through a crack, fall into an ink bottle or in some other way lose himself.

The boy's father put the matter before the board of education and a committee was appointed to visit the Birenbach home the other evening. Max spoke up in his own defense:

"They say I weigh only 17 pounds," said he, "but that isn't so. Now look and see if you don't think I weigh more than that."

The little fellow drew himself up. The visitors looked, but while it was evident Max had their sympathy it was also plain that they doubted too. "We'll settle the matter," said one of them, "by taking the boy to the grocery store downstairs and placing him on the scales."

Max led the way and nine anxious Birenbachs followed. The little fellow stepped on the scales and bore down with all his might. At exactly 33 pounds he tipped the bar. There was a shout of joy from the boy.

This decided the matter with the board members. They wrote a note to the Rivington street principal, ordering him to admit Max Birenbach to school without delay.

HEARST DEFEATED IN NEW YORK STATE

REPUBLICANS ELECT HUGHES GOVERNOR BY PLURALITY OF 50,000.

New State of Oklahoma Is Lined Up in the Democratic Column, the Indians Lining Up Against Republicans.

Elections were held Tuesday in 42 states, and while the results in a number of instances were of unusual interest, it may be said that generally speaking there were no great surprises.

Throughout the south the Democratic state and congressional tickets have been elected by the usual majorities. In the west and east the states that were aligned two years ago in the Democratic or Republican columns show no material change, the Democrats making gains in some instances and the Republicans in others. The Republicans retain control of congress by a good majority.

Result in New York.

Perhaps the widest general interest in the elections centered in the remarkable fight for governor which has been waged in New York state between Charles E. Hughes, the Republican candidate who throughout the campaign has had the support of President Roosevelt, and William Randolph Hearst, who has been running as the regular Democratic and Independent league nominee. The latest returns available show that Mr. Hughes, while losing nearly all the principal cities of the state, was successful by about 50,000 plurality. The rural districts brought about the Republican victory.

In New York city, the Tammany-Independence league judiciary ticket was successful, with possibly one exception over the candidates named by the nonpartisan "Judiciary Nominators."

Massachusetts for Guild.

Massachusetts has reelected Curtis Guild, Republican, as governor over District Attorney John B. Moran, of Boston, who was the candidate of the Democratic party, the Independence league and the Prohibitionists.

In Chicago, it is estimated that the Independence league ticket polled 40,000, but there was a Republican plurality for the state officers.

Pennsylvania has elected Stuart, Republican, governor, over a fusion opposition by the usual Republican plurality.

Michigan, Iowa, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Connecticut, Indiana and Wisconsin have rolled up Republican pluralities, although there was some falling off from the usual vote in Iowa.

Nebraska shows big Republican gains. Ohio also shows Republican gains over the Pattison vote of last year. The Republicans expect a plurality of 75,000 in the state.

Oklahoma Is Democratic.

The constitution of the new state of Oklahoma will be written by Democrats. The Indians voted the Democratic ticket almost solidly. Oklahoma also went strongly Democratic in choosing delegates to the constitutional convention.

New Mexico and Arizona have voted against the proposition to enter the union jointly as a single state.

Gov. Hoch is reelected in Kansas by a slightly reduced majority.

Missouri Is in Doubt.

The result in Missouri shows the Democrats gain some of the congressional districts they lost two years ago.

Congressman Nicholas Longworth was reelected in Cincinnati.

Congressman J. W. Wadsworth, for many years chairman of the house committee on agriculture at Washington, was defeated in the Thirty-fourth New York district.

Congressman Babcock, of Wisconsin, formerly chairman of the Republican congressional committee, failed of election.

The Republicans carried Utah, Wyoming and Washington and seem to have lost Nevada, while both parties are claiming Colorado.

Montana seems to have been carried by the Republicans and Texas takes its usual place in the Democratic column.

In Rhode Island, James K. Higgins, Democrat, was elected governor.

Big Plurality in Illinois.

The Illinois Republican state ticket has been elected with a plurality of 120,000 for John F. Smulski.

All the Republican state candidates have been successful.

The Republicans will have a majority of 60 votes on joint ballot in the next general assembly. In the house the Republicans will have 90 members and in the senate 42.

SECRETARY HITCHCOCK TO QUIT

James R. Garfield, of Ohio, to Be Given Interior Portfolio.

Washington, Nov. 8.—Secretary of the Interior Ethan Allen Hitchcock will retire from President Roosevelt's cabinet on the 4th of next March, and James R. Garfield, of Ohio, at present commissioner of corporations, will succeed him. Herbert Knox Smith, now assistant commissioner of corporations, will be appointed to Mr. Garfield's place. These changes and that of the retirement of Commissioner Richards of the general land office on March 4 were announced in the following statement from the White House Wednesday.

TEXANS SHOT FROM AMBUSH

AWAKENED FROM SLEEP BY VOLLEY OF BULLETS.

Rangers Kill Four of Attacking Party, Fatally Wound One and Capture Two.

Laredo, Tex., Nov. 10.—Four Texas rangers sent to Rio Grande City to quiet turbulent political conditions there and investigate the assassination of District Judge Welch, which occurred the night before the election, were ambushed by a body of armed Mexicans between Fordyce and Rio Grande City late Thursday night. The rangers were asleep in camp when awakened by a volley of shots from the darkness. A pitched battle ensued and four of the attacking party were killed, one fatally wounded and two captured. The rangers escaped unscathed.

The situation in Starr county was brought about by alleged election irregularities, due to political clubs supplying Mexican residents with poll tax receipts and insisting that they be allowed to vote. Judge Welch, who was assassinated Monday night, had gone from his home in Corpus Christi to be present at Rio Grande City on election day in an effort to prevent disorders. He was assassinated while asleep at night. It is charged that armed representatives of political clubs controlling the Mexican vote patrolled the voting places on election day and refused to allow members of the opposing faction to vote. Several shooting affrays occurred, but no one was killed or wounded. It is charged by one faction that Judge Welch was murdered by a hired assassin and that the ambuscade of the rangers was instigated by the same faction which inspired the murder of Judge Welch.

MOB IS CHECKED IN WISCONSIN

Officers Prevent Lynching of Prisoner at Spring Green.

Spring Green, Wis., Nov. 9.—Prompt and decisive action by the local authorities Thursday prevented the lynching of Thomas Balf, who is accused of assaulting Mrs. Edward Frank.

Balf, who was captured at Madison Wednesday, was brought here at noon Thursday for his hearing and the train with the officer and prisoner was met by an enraged mob, which only needed a leader to carry out a lynching.

Balf spent most of the afternoon in jail, and during much of the time there was a crowd about the jail yelling, "Hang him!" When it came time to catch the 4:30 train, however, the officers braved the mob, and then they were forced to run from the would-be lynchers. The constables and Balf reached the train safely.

PRESIDENT OFF FOR PANAMA

Roosevelt Party Goes to Inspect Work on the Canal.

Washington, Nov. 9.—"Good-by, I am going down to see how the ditch is getting along," shouted President Roosevelt, as he stood on the after starboard deck of the yacht Mayflower at the Washington navy yard, as the vessel was leaving the dock with the president for his Panama trip.

Accompanying the president, were Mrs. Roosevelt and her maid, Surgeon General Rixey, of the navy, and M. C. Latta, one of the assistant secretaries of the White House. The Mayflower took the party to Wolf Trap light, at the mouth of the Rappahannock river in Chesapeake bay, where a transfer was made to the battleship Louisiana, which is to convey the president to and from the isthmus.

REPRIMANDS WEATHER CHIEF

President Directs Censure be Administered to Willis L. Moore.

Washington, Nov. 8. — President Roosevelt has directed that a reprimand be administered to Willis L. Moore, chief of the weather bureau, for his action in the case of a printer named Cooper in his office who had been expelled from the Typographical union for not paying his strike assessments.

Mr. Moore, it is alleged, urged Cooper on two occasions to pay his assessments, but the latter refused and he was expelled from the union. Following this Cooper was transferred to New Orleans, and he claimed that this action on the part of Mr. Moore was intended as a punishment for him for not complying with the demands of the Typographical union.

MOODY TO BE SUPREME JUSTICE

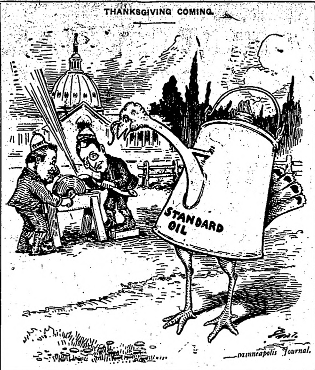
President Appoints Attorney General to Position on Federal Bench.

Washington, Nov. 8.—The president Wednesday announced the appointment of Attorney General William Henry Moody, of Massachusetts as justice of the supreme court of the United States, to succeed Justice Henry Billings Brown, who retired some time ago. Mr. Moody has filled the office of attorney general since July 1, 1904. Previous to that time he had served for more than two years as secretary of the navy. He had also represented his state in the fifty-fourth, fifty-fifth, fifty-sixth and fifty-seventh congresses. It is generally expected that Mr. Moody will retire from the department of justice the latter part of December.

Fire Loss Is Heavy.

New York, Nov. 9.—Fire Thursday night in the building occupied by the Federal Lithograph company, at 91-97 Horatio street, caused a loss of about $150,000.

THANKSGIVING COMING.



—Minneapolis Journal.

INDICT RAILROADS ON REBATE CHARGE

FEDERAL GRAND JURY VOTES BILLS AGAINST MINNEAPOLIS CARRIERS.

Allegation Is Made That Refunds Were Given to Grain Firms and Individual Shippers Doing Business in Northwestern Metropolis.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 9.—Eleven indictments were handed to Judge Lochren in the United States district court at 4:10 p. m. Thursday, and they cover the giving of rebates by certain railroads and the receiving of the same by grain firms and individuals. The list of corporations against which the indictments were voted, as given out by Assistant District Attorneys Ewart and Dickie, who have had charge of the cases, were as follows:

The Great Northern Railroad company, four indictments and about 75 counts.

The Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railway, one indictment and 50 counts.

Wisconsin Central railway, one indictment and 17 counts.

Minneapolis & St. Louis railway, one indictment and five counts.

The indictments against the railroads charge the giving of rebates, and under the head of receiving rebates the following true bills were returned:

W. P. Devereaux company; McCaull-Dinsmore company, Minneapolis; Ames-Brooke company, of Duluth; Duluth Milling company.

Rebating Is Charged.

Some of the Specific charges contained in the indictments against the Great Northern railway were two indictments for giving rebates to the Spencer Grain company, one for giving to the McCaull-Dinsmore company and for giving rebates to the Spencer Grain company.

The Omaha railroad, the Wisconsin Central, the Minneapolis & St. Louis were charged with favoring the Spencer Grain company. The companies indicted who are not railroad companies are charged with receiving rebates.

Besides the corporations, indictments were returned against 11 individual officials of the railroads named, but United States District Attorney Houpt said he would not consent to the names being given out for publication owing to the fact that no service had as yet been obtained upon them.

Allege Absorption of Charges.

The general offense alleged in the railroad indictments is the absorption of grain elevator charges.

After the bunch of indictments had been given out to the court the jurors were excused for the term and told to convene again in St. Paul.

That a further and more searching investigation into the rebate question will be made is not denied by Assistant United States District Attorney Ewart, and further revelations are expected to be made at the next sitting of the grand jury.

Perhaps the most surprised people of all were the railroads, for none of those interested expected indictments to be brought. Each company had made its best endeavors to disclaim any criminality in its relation with the grain companies.

Diplomats to Be Changed.

Washington.—Diplomats who are watching prospective changes in the American diplomatic service must wait until after the president's return from Panama and Porto Rico to have their curiosity gratified. Secretary Root announces the state department will not take any action during Mr. Roosevelt's absence.

Wades to His Death.

Monticello, Minn., Nov. 10.—Theodore Mochell, aged 65, a wealthy farmer near here, left his home Thursday morning and deliberately waded out into the Mississippi river to a point beyond his depth and was drowned.

CONGRESS IS REPUBLICAN

DEMOCRATS HAVE GAINED 28 MEMBERS OF HOUSE.

Senate Will Remain Practically as It Has Been, with Majority in Lower Branch Cut Down.

Returns show that the next congress will be Republican in both branches. The political complexion of the senate shows a Republican gain of one in Colorado. There are two or three close legislative contests but they are chiefly between individuals, and the senate will stand nearly as at present, with 58 Republicans and 32 Democrats, leaving a Republican majority of 26. The returns indicate a Republican membership in the house of representatives of about 223, which is a majority of 64 over the Democrats.

MAKEUP OF NEXT CONGRESS.

	House.				Senate.
	1904.		1906.		1906.
States.	I.ep.	Dem.	Rep.	Dem.	Rep.	Dam.
Ala	..	9	..	9	..	2
Ark	..	7	..	7	..	2
Calif	8	..	8	..	2	..
Colo	3	..	3	..	1	1
Conn	5	..	5	..	2	..
Dela	1	..	1	..	2	..
Fla	..	3	..	3	..	2
Ga	..	11	..	11	..	2
Idaho	1	..	1	..	1	1
Ill	24	1	19	6	2	..
Ind	11	2	9	4	2	..
Ia	11	..	10	1	2	..
Kan	8	..	8	..	2	..
Ky	2	9	4	7	..	2
La	..	7	..	7	..	2
Me	4	..	4	..	2	..
Md	3	3	3	3	..	2
Mass	11	3	11	3	2	..
Mich	12	..	12	..	2	..
Minn	9	..	8	..	2	..
Miss	..	8	..	8	..	2
Mo	9	7	4	12	1	1
Mont	1	..	1	..	1	1
Neb	6	..	5	1	2	..
Nev	..	1	..	1	1	1
N. H..........	2	..	2	..	2	..
N. J.	9	1	6	4	2	..
N. Y..........	26	11	25	12	2	..
N. C..........	1	9	..	10	..	2
N. D..........	2	..	2	..	2	..
Ohio	20	1	17	4	2	..
Ore	2	..	2	..	2	..
Pa	31	1	26	6	2	..
R. I..........	1	1	1	1	2	..
S. C..........	..	7	..	7	..	2
S. D..........	2	..	2	..	2	..
Tenn	2	8	2	8	..	2
Tex	..	16	..	16	..	2
Utah	1	..	1	..	2	..
Vt	2	..	2	..	2	..
Va	1	9	1	9	..	2
Wash	3	..	3	..	2	..
W. Va..........	4	1	5	..	2	..
Wis	10	1	9	2	2	..
Wyo	1	..	1	..	2	..
Totals	249	137	223	163	59	31
Majority	112		64		28

The Democrats lost three and gained 31 congressmen, as follows: Illinois, 5; Indiana, 2; Iowa, 1; Maryland, 1; Minnesota, 1; Missouri, 6; Nebraska, 1; New Jersey, 3; New York, 1; North Carolina, 1; Ohio, 3; Pennsylvania, 5.

Republicans gained one each in Maryland, Kentucky and West Virginia, making the net Democratic gain 28.

DISCUSS INJUNCTION MEASURE

President Promises Fair Treatment to Representatives of Labor.

Washington, Nov. 8.—The measure introduced at the last session of congress known as the Pearre anti-injunction bill was the subject of a conference Wednesday between President Roosevelt and Samuel Gompers, and several other representatives of the American Federation of Labor.

The president promised the committee to delegate four officials identified with the legal work in the government service to meet a similar number of labor representatives with their attorney to go over the whole matter and to preesnt their conclusions to him.

BOARD OUSTS FISH FROM PRESIDENCY

J. T. HARAHAN BECOMES HEAD OF ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILWAY SYSTEM.

Harriman Believed to Have Accomplished Task of Securing Control of Railroad System from the Atlantic to the Pacific Oceans.

New York, Nov. 8.—By the election Wednesday of J. T. Harahan as president of the Illinois Central Railroad company, to succeed Stuyvesant Fish, it is believed that E. H. Harriman has at last realized the fulfillment of his plan to control a railroad line from the Atlantic to the Pacific oceans.

In this great plan the Illinois Central was the one link missing to complete a line of track from New York to San Francisco and Portland, Ore., from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico, and from the gulf to the Pacific again.

Moves with a Purpose.

Until within a few months eastern terminals of the Harriman system were at Kansas City, Omaha and New Orleans. The first important step in the direction of securing the desired outlet on the Atlantic seaboard for the Uunion Pacific and Southern Pacific railroads is believed to have been taken by Mr. Harriman several weeks ago when it was reported that one of the roads under his control had taken over control of the Baltimore & Ohio by purchase of a block of 40,000 shares of the Baltimore & Ohio company, which was sold by the Pennsylvania Railroad company. This would give Mr. Harriman a route from Chicago and St. Louis to Baltimore and New York.

Central Is Connecting Link.

